More strikes threaten as negotiations fail in Poland

Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland - Negotiations early Thursday failed to bring a settlement to a strike by thousands of workers at one of Poland's biggest steel mills, and strikers said management was threatening police intervention.

Strikers at the sprawling Lenin steel mill outside Krakow in southern Poland issued a statement declaring: "A midnight negotiating session with management officials at the Lenin steel mill ended after just 15 minutes, according to a strike committee member who was reached by telephone and spoke on condition of anonymity."

The director said they were running out of possibilities of solving it politically, and later the police involved in the strike would take over," said the strike committee member.

On Wednesday, the second day of the stoppage, workers rejected a big pay raise offer.

Pentagon assessment: Soviets are winners in conventional arms war

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Soviet Union and its allies "have a substantially greater capability" to win a war in Europe than NATO, according to a Pentagon assessment which one senator said Wednesday "raises a new warning flag."

"There is an imbalance in conventional weapons in Europe, and there's absolutely no doubt about it," said Sen. Dan Quayle, R-Ind. "This is something that we're going to have to consider as we debate the Intermediate-range Nuclear Forces (INF) treaty next month.

Quayle based his comments on portions of the annual Pentagon publication, "Soviet Military Power," which will be formally made public Friday by the Defense Department.

Some sections of the report have already been sent to Capitol Hill, including the part which restates earlier comments by Pentagon officials.

Those officials, as part of the Senate hearings on the INF pact, have warned that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization needs to spend more money on non-nuclear weapons.

The assessment in "Soviet Military Power," released by Quayle, said the Warsaw Pact forces are winners in a variety of weapons, including numbers of tanks and artillery.

The conclusion of the INF treaty has heightened public awareness in the west of continuing imbalances and pressures.

Michael Garvey, Notre Dame's assistant director of public relations, first met the people of Santa Cruz on his two-week trip to El Salvador during Easter last year. Returning to the village this year to celebrate Holy Week, Garvey learned how letters from the Notre Dame community helped make Santa Cruz safe from the country's military.

Last autumn, Garvey read a letter from the villagers to many Notre Dame groups. It asked people to write the El Salvadoran military and the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador to protest the murder of an innocent person.

"We must tell you that a horrible thing happened recently in Santa Cruz. An elderly man by the name of Pilar, who was 60 years old, was killed in his house July 11," said the letter.

"He was machine-gunned as he lay in his hammock sleeping at night. Soldiers of the Sixth Infantry Brigade in Usulatan killed him, and they did it only because he refused to sell them bread," it said.

Back in Santa Cruz this Holy Week, Garvey was walking with a villager who pointed out Pilar's home. "Yes, a bunch of people from Notre Dame wrote about his murder," said Garvey.

His companion grinned and said, "You are the folks who wrote that letter. Well, not long after that letter appeared, the villagers told that military supported Pillar was transferred out of the..."

New associate dean of faculty named at Saint Mary's for fall

Saint Mary's College has named Patrick White, head of the English department at Pfeiffer College in Misenheimer, North Carolina, to be the associate dean of faculty beginning in the fall, said Dorothy Feigl, vice president and dean of faculty at Saint Mary's.

White's primary responsibilities will be faculty development, curriculum development, said Feigl.

"The initial emphasis of the position is to develop coherent, effective programs to open up opportunities for faculty to create new teaching programs," said Feigl. White expressed excitement about the new position.

"I sense a great deal of energy and interest among the students and faculty of Saint Mary's," said White. "It's an honor to be asked policy to make a great institution even better.

White has a lot of new ideas for the upcoming year.

"I'd like to encourage faculty and student discussions in connection with the curriculum. I think this is important for the stimulation of intellectual life," said White. White plans for external funding to aid in the payment of some of these activities.

"I have a lot of ideas. I hope to get a lot of feedback from faculty and students," said White.

Pennsylvania - George Bush, the apparent Republican presidential nominee, and his likely Democratic opponent Michael Dukakis set a combative tone for the campaign Wednesday, with Dukakis saying Bush has "some explaining to do" on the Iran-Contra affair.

"Let him fire away," Bush challenged.

Both said they looked forward to debates.

The other Democrat still in the race, Jesse Jackson, looked gamey ahead to the next round of primaries in Ohio and Indiana. Despite Dukakis' huge victory in Pennsylvania on Tuesday and growing delegate lead, Jackson said the race wasn't over.

"I keep struggling against the odds, and I've always struggled against the odds and succeeded," Jackson said on ABC-TV. "This campaign will remain alive. It will go right down to the wire in California and New Jersey on June 7."

Bush locked up the Republican nomination, passing the required 1,139-delegate mark with an easy win in Pennsylvania against a field that had long since withered.

He lunched privately with President Reagan, who indicated the time was nearing for a formal endorsement of his vice president.

Both Bush and Dukakis said they would continue their primary-campaign efforts. But they were already providing a preview of the fall general election campaign with a long-distance debate on foreign policy and other issues through network TV interviews.

Dukakis, the Massachusetts governor, opened fire on Bush's role in the Iran-Contra affair. Bush has suggested he would be a better choice as president because he has foreign policy experience that Dukakis lacks.

The governor said, "All we know is that he sat there and did nothing while we engaged in one of the worst and one of the most misguided adventures in the history of American foreign policy," a reference to the arms-for-hostages dealing directed by White House officials.

"I can't imagine what they were thinking of when they proceeded to do business with a terrorist nation," Dukakis added. "There's somebody in the administration, including the vice president, who's got some explaining to do."

Bush said he would ask Dukakis in debate what he would do about hostages in the Middle East. "Do you really care when a man like Buckley is being tortured to death?" he said he would ask, a reference to William Buckley, the CIA official who died after being taken hostage in Lebanon.

Jackson, campaigning in Ohio, took on both men on an issue he has tried to bring to the forefront of the campaign. "I challenge Mike Dukakis and George Bush to define South Africa as a terrorist state that conducts and sponsors terrorism," he said.

Talk in both parties was of vice presidential nominees.

Jackson appeared to indicate that conservative Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, supported for the ticket by many Democratic leaders, might not be acceptable. He mentioned no names and framed his comments in terms of a running mate for himself, making what seemed to be a reference to Nunn's opposition to some civil rights legislation and to the Equal Rights Amendment.

only briefly, said Feigl.

Douglas Franklin, Dayton Newspapers business manager, said police told him Monday they believed a body might be hidden on the seventh floor of the building. They said an unnamed informant reported another newspaper employee, Kenneth Rice, who worked under Sinks, had helped Sinks take a 55-gallon drum to the seventh-floor utility room Nov. 20, Franklin said.

"It had dirt and chunks of concrete inside," said Franklin.

"They began to believe they didn't have anything. But five minutes later, we started to get a smell," Franklin said. Searchers uncovered the band of a wristwatch, then a human wrist and bits of clothing, he said.

"At that point, everything stopped and they sealed the area," he said.

Rice said Sinks asked him

Nov. 20 to help dispose of what

Sinks said was a barrel of asbestos.

Rice agreed and said they drove in a company truck to pick up the blue plastic barrel from Sinks' garage.

"He told me he had asbestos in the barrel. It was heavy. I don't know, 70 or 80 pounds, and it took two men to handle it," Langer said.

Orbital debris, junk littering space

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Satellites and spent rockets are exploding unaccountably in orbit, littering space with dangerous chunks of shrapnel and forcing designers to add tons of shielding to protect the proposed U.S. space station and its crew.

More than 90 satellites to date "have blown up or broken up for unknown reasons," and the shards represent more than half of the 7,000 pieces of space debris being tracked by the U.S. space Command, said Dan Kessler, project scientist for debris studies at NASA's Johnson Space Center.

"These explosions have occurred everywhere, from one day (after launch) to three years," Kessler said in a telephone interview. He said he doubts the cause is collisions with meteoroids or the testing of secret anti-satellite weapons.

Space station planners "are faced with a considerable design problem," he said and are adding 2,000 pounds to the shielding of each of the six modules occupied by astronauts.

"The debris gets most severe at 500-600 miles," Kessler said, "but usually unmanned spacecraft are at that altitude and don't require the same level of safety as a crew." The space shuttle generally operates at altitudes of 150 to 300 miles.

"When I first started working in this area, very few people knew how their spacecraft were breaking up, including the designers," Kessler said. "The Space Command knew they were breaking up, but never took the time to identify why."

The explosions of satellites or rockets often aren't detected for a year or more after they occur, Kessler said. He said officials have long believed that French-made Ariane rockets explode in space but they are in orbits difficult to track with ground radar.

But, he said, "in 1986 they launched into an orbit that's easily detected and it blew up after nine months."

area. The lieutenant who was in charge of the operation was transferred to an area in the north of the country where the fighting is ferocious and has a very high casualty rate for officers."

Garvey noted that the villagers felt safe from the military during his Notre Dame group's visit.

"Pilar's murder, I think, is kind of an icon of what goes on all the time. We did not realize we were a sign of hope, not only because we brought a Catholic priest to baptize their children, but because we brought a level of international attention, which the people of Santa Cruz craved," he said.

This year, the Notre Dame group visited Santa Cruz intending to form a sister community relationship between the village and university. But that is not what the villagers wanted. "The people of Santa Cruz were very specific in telling us that they did not want money or things to directly come to them," said group member and senior Dan Stroub.

"They knew about a village who had a similar sister relationship, who became soft, forgot the struggle they were involved in. They did not want this to happen in Santa Cruz, but to give our support to the group CHIPDES, the non-governmental human rights commission. They want us to use Santa Cruz as a window for looking at all of El Salvador. So, we will have more of a communal, rather than a financial relationship with Santa Cruz," he said.

"One of the most important parts of our relationship with Santa Cruz is that when we come back here, they get international in attention," said Stroub. "It is then less likely that the government troops are going to go in there and blow up the village or occupy Santa Cruz like they did last year. That means that possibly U.S. aid will be cut off from the country. Human rights is a condition of U.S. aid to El Salvador." The Santa Cruz community was formed by refugees just over two years ago when they refused to be further uprooted by the military and settled in an abandoned village, said Stuart.

Contra judge accuses Reagan of withholding classified documents

Associated Press
WASHINGTON - The Iran-Contra trial judge accused the Reagan administration Wednesday of intentionally holding back classified documents needed by the defense, and warned that charges would be dismissed if the stonewalling continues.

U.S. district Judge Gerhard Gesell blamed the dilemma not on independent counsel Lawrence Walsh, but on an interdepartmental task force that has control over hundreds of thousands of secret documents that may be needed in the case.

"A stone wall is being built up between this court and the trial," Gesell said at the end of a day-long pre-trial hearing.

Noting that Walsh has tried to get the documents for the defense, the judge said: "The responsibility lies with the attorney general and the White House. I want to find out promptly what is taking place and what is going to take place."

Gesell said the case has encountered a serious obstacle because of the administration's "intentional withholding of documents necessary for the defense." He also has said the case cannot go to trial unless the administration declassifies relevant documents that may be introduced as evidence.

White House and Justice Department officials could not be reached immediately for comment.

Gesell said, "We cannot satisfy the maximum desires of the interdepartmental committee" and added he was not interested in trying to summarize "contents of masses of documents."

Gesell has ordered Walsh to make up to 300,000 pages of classified documents available to the defendants.

Guerrillas killed on Israeli border

Associated Press

JERUSALEM - Palestinian guerrillas crossed Israel's heavily guarded border from Lebanon for the second day in a row Wednesday and wounded a truck driver before soldiers caught them in a ravine and killed them, the army said.

No Israeli army casualties were reported.

Israeli officials said the increase in cross-border raids appeared connected with a row Wednesday and wounded guerrillas crossed Israel's heavily guarded border from Lebanon for the second day in a row. They and two soldiers were killed when an army patrol found them.

A 14-year-old Palestinian girl died Wednesday of wounds suffered the day before when Israeli soldiers opened fire during an Arab protest in the occupied West Bank, the army and hospital officials said.

Her death brought to at least 174 the number of Palestinians killed since a rebellion began Dec. 8 among the 1.5 million Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza, which Israel has occupied since the 1967 war. An Israeli soldier and a Jewish settler also have been killed.

The guerrillas crossed the border unnoticed, and it was the truck driver who alerted troops after running away from the assailants, said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Reagan assures Canada U.S. is moving to stop acid rain

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Reagan told Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney on Wednesday to "make no mistake, we are moving" against environmental pollution, but Mulroney demanded more action to stop U.S. acid rain from "killing our lakes, soiling our cities."

A senior U.S. official told reporters Mulroney gave Reagan "some private ideas" on how they might reach agreement on the issue. The official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, could offer no details on those ideas.

At a welcoming ceremony on the South Lawn of the White House, Reagan told the Canadian leader, "More can be done to protect our environment when science clearly points the way. Make no mistake, we are moving."

The U.S. government contends that more needs to be done in developing clean coal technology before targets and timetables can be set for reducing coal-fired power plant emissions that Canadians say are damaging their forests and lakes.

Canada has been pressing for an agreement on a timetable to reduce emissions to specified levels. In an interview before leaving Ottawa, Mulroney ruled out "dumping garbage" on its northern neighbor.

Asked about this as the two leaders posed for photographers before their meeting in the Oval Office, Mulroney said, "I think it's very clear that acid rain has that effect on the environment in the eastern United States and Canada. Yes, I think that's a normal fact."

Mulroney pleaded before a joint meeting of Congress for what he acknowledged would be expensive programs to clean up U.S. emissions, which he said caused half the acid rain that has killed 15,000 Canadian lakes and threatened or damaged 300,000 more.

"Half of our acid rain comes across the border, directly from the United States, falling upon our forests, killing our lakes, soiling our cities," Mulroney told Congress.

"It is despoiling your environment as inexorably as ours," he said. "It is damaging your environment from Michigan to Maine, and threatens marine life on the Eastern Seabord."

He said Canadian acid rain would benefit the United States if the U.S. acid rain emissions were cut. "We ask Congress to take a look at this, and we're talking about reducing 300,000 more."

"We invite the administration, and the leadership of Congress, to conclude an accord where we could have a schedule and targets for reducing acid rain that crosses our border," he said. "The cost of inaction is greater still."

Palestinians suffer undue repression

This article is written because an article, printed in the Viewpoint column on April 20 by Billy Lerman, called to my attention many grave misunderstandings on the situation in Palestine today and in the past, which I would like to address. I would like to address specifically the issues raised in Mr. Lerman's article because they seem most representative of the general public who have had little exposure to the problems in Palestine.

The belief that the Israelis are the cause of the Palestinian's anguish is not a myth. It is a fact. Prior to Israeli occupation, the Palestinians suffered no discrimination on the basis of their ethnicity, no fear of arrest for not having their ID cards with them, and no fear that they may be shot for trying to gather to demonstrate their political beliefs. For centuries the Palestinian peacefully inhabited the region of Palestine with no more than the regular problems of an agricultural community. Their problems originated with the Zionist call for a homeland in 1917, when the formation of the Israeli state in 1948, and continue today for those in refugee camps and in the state of Israel. The simple problem is that a whole nation was forced to move from its homeland or suffer under Israeli domination. The Palestinians have no home. The problem is that there is a refusal of the Israeli government to recognize the right of the Palestinians to a homeland. This is not a myth.

There seems to be a misunderstanding of the Palestinians' voluntary abandonment of their homeland. On April 10, 1948, the Arab village of Deir Yassin was taken over by Zionist forces. The Zionist forces butchered 254 men, women and children and threw their mutilated bodies in a well. This massacre of non-combatants and innocent people struck panic into the hearts of Palestinian villagers and began a large-scale exodus from Palestine. This pattern of massacre and fear of the Israelis did cause many Palestinians to flee their homeland without seeing an Israeli soldier for fear of their lives. Would any sane person stay home is the practice of their invading enemy was to murder children and parade captured women? There seems also to be a problem with the claim to a Palestinian homeland. It is not a fraudulent claim. The Jews are indeed recognized as having been in Palestine before the advent of Islam, but even in the Bible there are references to the Philistines, now known as Palestinians. The Palestinians have lived on the land continuously for centuries. No autonomous group within a state has been subject to the ills the Palestinians have. The Israelis are deprived of many basic human rights and can be held in prison without contact with their families or with the outside world. Palestinians are not given the right to gather in a political demonstration—since December 1967 over 200 Palestinians have been killed with live ammunition while trying to exercise their basic right as residents in a so-called democracy. Is this "autonomy"? Autonomy is understood as self-determination under the overall rule of a federal republic (a right given to Jews under the Muslim Ottoman Empire). The Palestinians have no such rights and are not even given the rights of the Jewish residents of Israel.

Another point that was raised was that of "the Palestinians in the occupied territories are there because of their political value in tainting world opinion against Israel." Those brave enough to stay in Palestine under Israeli occupation did so out of a love of the land which their ancestors had cultivated for centuries. They were willing to brave deportation, arrest, persecution, second-class citizen status and hunger in order to live in their ancestors' land. Some even had faith in the Israeli promise for fair treatment under the law. Those who are today trying to draw world attention to their plight are the children of those who have enough to remain in Israel in 1948. Those rallying and dying for world attention and understanding are young people in their teens and twenties. They recognize that their problems will not be solved under the present rule of the world. They did not choose in the fourties and fifties, forty years ago, but now are trying to bring about the changes that are needed for their survival as a nationality.

The standard of living in Palestine has not improved under Israeli occupation as is commonly believed. The economy is being artificially sustained by U.S. tax dollars and by donations of private American citizens. The standard of living is high for the European and American Jews who emigrated to Israel, but is not true for the poorer Middle Eastern dwellers for the Palestinians. I would encourage those who have questions on this to read "In the Land of Israel" by an Israeli, Amos Oz, for further information.

It was suggested that "many people clearly point out that the solution rests in the irresponsible hands of the Arab world." This, too, is erroneous. First, the Arabs are not irresponsible. They have made attempts to help the Palestinians according to their limited means. The real solution lies in Israel dealing with the United Nations and with the legitimate, United Nations recognized, PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization) who agree to help resolve this problem without resorting to such neo-Nazi techniques as trying to eradicate the Palestinians as a solution to their problem.

I would like to ask that the Notre Dame and St. Mary's community try to learn more before they accept at face value the views of both the Palestinians and the Israelis. The next time you read about a Palestinian teen being shot in the street by an Israeli soldier, or about the plight of a Palestinian refugee, recall the facts and not the distortions. Write to your legislators before you make up your opinion on this issue.

Focus on new aspects of academics

Last May, The College of Arts and Letters Advisory Council decided it needed to enhance the life of the undergraduates in the college. In the fall of 1987, the Office of the College Fellow opened. "The deans do a fine job," said Swartz, the college fellow, "but there are certain aspects of academic life that are desperately needed to address."

The office plans to do part of this by "bringing professors and students together to enrich the intellectual life of our stu- dents," he said.

Last May, the college appointed Thomas Fehlner as College Fellow, chose professors from each department in the college to act as Collegiate Teachers/Scholars, and selected a group as Collegiate Mentors. These professors would ideally help create "more meaningful contact outside of the classroom....not just at preregistration," said Swartz. One way the office hopes to achieve this is by constructing two areas in O'Shaughnessy Hall as faculty/student areas. "O'Shaughnessy is not ac- commodating as far as faculty and student interaction be- tween classes," Swartz said. "He's going to remodel the great hall into a coffee shop for faculty and students," a job which he said should begin this summer.

Swartz also said that plans are being made to move the Office of the College Fellow which is currently on the third floor of O'Shaughnessy, its vacant space will become a faculty/student lounge. The of- fice will move down the hall.

The office has other areas it wants to address, such as "ex- tending the classroom" by off- ering more opportunities for discus- sions before and after lectures, performances, and films. According to an article Swartz se- mester the office has spon- sored pre-performance and post-performance discussions of "Amadeus" to "help under- stand the play which shaped the way it was." It has also sponsored receptions for speakers brought in by depart- ments in the college, such as Shirley Chisholm and Arthur Schlesinger.

The office also has spon- sored field trips to the Henry Ford Museum, the Art Institute of Chicago, and to Stratford, Ontario, a Shakespeare festival. The eight-hour Strat- ford trip gives the students and faculty a chance to discuss real things. "You run out of small talk and have to talk about something of substance," Swartz said.

Starting next fall, ten dorms, five men's and five women's, will be designated by the col- lege for experimental sopho- more core courses. These ten will be paired, and nine men and women from each will be chosen to attend core class together in the dorms. This is part of an experiment to bring academics into the dorms. The idea could possibly be extended in a few years to bring "a sophomore year abroad at home," Swartz said, which would have all sopro- homes living in and attending classes in the same build- ing.

The office is also trying to integrate the honors programs with the college at large by making honors activities open to all students. This year, the

Doug Kinsky and Sig mund Abeles Art Exhibits were exam- ples of this integration. Although the "honors" designa- tion has previously been given before a student enters Notre Dame, the college will now "enrich that grade with people appointed after their freshman and sophomore years," said Swartz. These ap- pointments would be "to stu- dents who show intellectually aggressive attitudes."

The office also offers services to professors. It recently held workshops on lecturing tech- niques, honestly in the Notre Dame classroom, leading dis- cussion groups, and contract- ing with the students through use of a syllabus.

"The office shows our com- mitment to the undergradu- ate," said Swartz. "We're spend- ing a lot of bricks...to make that easier to happen."

Fehlner receives Fellowship

KATHY LENNEY

Thomas Fehlner, Notre Dame's professor of chemistry, was awarded a Guggenheim Fellow- ship for study in thin film deposition. The Founda- tion grants funds to help fel- lowship recipient to work free from other duties, during which to pursue their own scholarly work. Fehlner will conduct his research at the University of Wisconsin and will visit universities in Germany and England. The 1988 Committee of Se- lection chose 262 artists, scholars, and scientists from among 3,265 applicants, total- ing $6,343,000.

The fellowship is selected because of distinguished achievements in the past and expected to excite future accomplishment. Fehlner will spend his sabbatical year learn- ing more about the process of film making.

Having taught at Notre Dame since 1964, Fehlner greatly enjoys his work. "The most enjoyable aspect of my job is meeting new students. I've taught many non-chemistry majors and have had the op- portunity to meet a broad cross-section of undergraduates," said Fehlner.

A large number of factors have shaped the path that has led Fehlner to study the field of inorganic chemistry. "I have been influenced by my inter- ests, my successates, and the funding and the field," said Fehlner. He believes that a scientist's job is two-fold. First, publishing one's research is necessary to provide insight into the mysteries of life. Second, and just as important, is one's responsibility to ed- ucate the students.

"My job is to put ideas in the bank. The library is the bank people can go to when they need to find answers to prob- lems. It is also my job to pro- vide educated people for the future," said Fehlner.

This organic chemist believes that research is necessary for the life of his discipline, and respects the freedom he has in university research. He said, "The most important aspect of uni- versity research is that one is not restrained by anything but oneself. That research is necessary to generate new ideas and developments.

To make progress and push back the frontiers of knowledge, we need the freedom to go wherever our nose leads us," said Fehlner.

Yet, Fehlner believes that research cannot be the end all. "We cannot allow the stu- dents or eventually chemical research will die," he said. He hopes his teaching will excite his students because they will be the scien- tists of tomorrow.

Delay effective for Oils

So far this year, only a few albumsthough many must have really stood out for me. One of these al-bums is definitely Diesel & Dust by Midnight Oil. This is an Australian, and this entire album has a carefree traveling vibe that just never stops. Every song seems com- plete, which may be a result of the fact that this is Midnight Oil's first album in three years. After their last LP in 1985, Red Sails in the Sunset, the Oils took some time off to play in the small pubs of Australia. The three day tour left the group and the crucial audience-band connection this winter.

The five band members also went on a trip across the heartland of Australia in 1987, and camped out and got to know the country and its people. The band members really grew together during this trip, and they worked on their songs around campsites at night. Their theory was that if a song sounded complete around a campfire, with just acoustic guitars, it would sound com- plete in the studio as well.

When Midnight Oil returned to the studio in Australia to record Diesel & Dust, it was just right. The group had perfected songs like "Beds Are Burning" and "Warakurna" with its con- stant recordings and practices together.

The 10 songs on Diesel & Dust are all very political and comment on the social situa- tion in the land down under. For example, the first single in the United States, "Beds Are Burning." The band sold out the land from native Australians, and boldly proclaims: "It belongs to them. Let's give it back!" If you've heard this song, you know how catchy it is.

Midnight Oil's sound is carried along by the bass of Peter Gifford and the scathing vocals of Garth Gilmour. They play a jangly yet hard type of pop music, which seems to change listeners when it enters their lives.

This album10s the charts in Australia this past year. The Oils also stocked it rich with Australia with their song "The Dead Heart." This cut, probably the best one off the album, went to #1 nationwide in Australia. Its first verse tells us "We don't serve your country, don't serve your king. Know your customs. Know your land/" This wonderful song was written for the people of the desert lands and those who live there.

The songs "Dreamworld." "Sometimes," and "Wiihoo" are also worthy of single status. Some slower cuts are "Arctic World." and "Warakurna," which run together nicely and form a thread of feeling that becomes stronger as each song on the album unfolds. The strong lyrics and won- derful melodies of all these songs constitute an album that I would highly recommend to any listener. The fact that com- mercial radio stations have picked up on "Beds Are Burning" across the U.S. only helps push my message: Listen to this album, and you'll immedi- ately be hooked.

Ryan just misses no-hitter

Associated Press

Houston's 41-year-old Nolan Ryan came within two outs of what would have been the sixth no-hitter of his record-breaking career. Wednesday night, then settled for a no-decision as the Astros beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2 on Craig Reynolds' bases-loaded grounder in the 10th.

Ryan lost his no-hit bid when Mike Schmidt singled with one out in the ninth and blew his chance for a shutout in four years as the Arizona Diamondbacks beat Alumni twice to win the title.

The Bradleys led 2-0 after seven innings that rallied the New York Mets over the Atlanta Braves 2-1 Wednesday night and snapped the Padres' four-game winning streak.

The Braves led 2-0 as Zane Smith scattered four hits over seven innings and Brad Sutter pitched a hitless eighth.

Minnesota releases Carlton

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS - Steve Carlton, the winningest active pitcher in the major leagues entering this season, was released Wednesday by the Minnesota Twins.

Carlton, 43, the only pitcher in baseball history to win four Cy Young Awards, was 9-1 this year with an earned run average of 16.76. He has a career record of 329-244.

"Lefty" is, but particularly someone with Hall of Fame credentials," he said MacPhail, who is eight years younger than Carlton.

Carlton's release came a week after the Twins cut 27-year-old left-hander Tippy Martinez. The Twins' pitching staff, ranked last in the American League, still includes 45-year-old Joe Niekro, 37-year-old Bert Blyleven and reclamations project Charlie Lea.

MacPhail said he didn't know of any other teams interested in Carlton.

Carlton holds numerous career records, including:

- Most consecutive starting assignments (544);
- Most strikeouts in a game by a left-handed pitcher (19) and by a losing pitcher (19);
- Most balks in a season (11), a record sure to fall in this balk-filled campaign;
- Most years and consecutive years for an NL pitcher (23); and
- Most NL games started (677);
- Most NL starts and consecutive NL seasons with 100 or more strikeouts (18);
- Most NL strikeouts (4,900); and
- Most NL walks issued (1,717).

Carlton broke into the majors with the St. Louis Cardinals in 1965 and was up for good by 1966. A 1972 trade that sent Carlton to the Philadelphia Phillies for Rick Wise proved to be one of the more lopsided deals ever.

Carlton went on to win his four Cy Youngs with the Phillies and helped Philadelphia to five National League East titles, two NL pennants and one championship.

A six-time 30-game winner, his best season was 1972, when he won his first Cy Young. He was 27-10 with a 1.98 ERA for a team that won only 59 games.

"It's never easy to release a baseball player, no matter who he is, but particularly someone with Hall of Fame credentials," said MacPhail, who is much emphasis is placed on individual performances.

However, Connelly has proven his true worth both on the golf course as well as in the classroom. He currently holds a 3.1 GPA and has saved his best for last. Connelly has qualified for nomination as an Academic All-American athlete for the second year in a row.

"The value of Dick Connelly cannot be measured," stated O'Sullivan. "He possesses individual skill on the golf course and a wonderful ability to get along with his coach and teammates. Every one of the team members goes to see Dick Connelly. He gives of his time not just with personal problems, but of anything that pertains to the game."

O'Sullivan hopes that Connelly and the rest of the team have a wonderful season. The solid play of juniors Doug Giorgio and Paul Mohan paced the Irish last weekend for the initial two rounds but was not enough to garner a berth in the Tourney.

The women's tennis team defeated Western Michigan Wednesday to finish 12-14 for the spring season. Frank Pastor has the details at right.

By FRANK PASTOR
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's tennis team closed out its season with a 6-3 victory over Western Michigan Wednesday in a match marked by three defaults.

The Irish finished at 12-14 for the season and compiled a 14-14 record throughout the 1987-88 season. This year's schedule featured the most competitive opposition Notre Dame has ever faced.

"We didn't reach our .500 goal, but numbers don't mean everything," said Irish coach Michele Gelfman. "In terms of the development of the team, I think the girls held up under the upgraded schedule." Western Michigan (11-2), who had defeated Notre Dame 6-3 in last season's meeting between the two teams and holds matches at number-four and number-six singles, and number-four doubles.

"We won, 6-3 before the match even began," said Gelfman. "Because Western Michigan relinquished the number-four and number-six singles matches due to injuries.

Freshman CoCe Cahill, current ranked 550 among Division I players in the Volvo/ITCA rankings and third in the Midwest region, defeated Sonya Garshnek 6-1,6-0 at number-one singles to extend her record to 38-10. She easily eclipsed the Notre Dame singles-season record for most victories in a season, previously held by Susie Pasternack.

At number-two singles, Michelle Dasso fell to Kathleen Meyer 4-4,2-6 Alice Lohrer outscored Stephanie Schultz 6-2,6-4 at number-three. Fourth-seeded Kim Paesola was defeated by default over Jennifer Reault after trailing in the match 6-7,5-7,1. Natale Ilig beat Kathy Spyra 6-2,6-1 at number-five, and Cathy Bradshaw was awarded a victory at number-six after an even default match.

With the match already in hand, Gelfman decided to give her reserves some playing time in doubles. Jacqueline Uhll and Anne Martie Dega teamed up at number-one where they were defeated by Garshnek and Van Lanen, 7-6,6-0. Maura Weidner and Patricia O'Byrne filled in at number-two, dropping their match to Schilf's and Ken worthy 3-6,4-2. At number-three doubles, held by Bradshaw who by 1 another default. Gelfman hopes that this match will catapult Notre Dame to continued success next year when the Irish join the Midwest Collegiate Conference.

"Moving into next year, no one needs to do what we need to do to get the rankings as a team," said Gelfman.

Streak stands at 20 as O's fall to Twins

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS - The winless Baltimore Orioles tied an American League record with their 20th straight loss Wednesday night, falling to the Minnesota Twins 7-6 when their two-run rally in the ninth inning ended as Fred Lynn grounded out.

Baltimore players stood in stunned silence in the eighth inning when Kent Hrbek and Tim Laudner broke a 4-4 tie with leadoff homers in the eighth against reliever Bill Scherrer. A walk, balk and throwing error by pitcher Doug Sisk added another run, along with insult.

Royals 3, Yankees 1

NEW YORK - Kevin Seitzer singled home Kurt Stillwell with the tie-breaking run in the 11th inning Wednesday night as Kansas City beat New York 3-1 for the Royals' first victory in Yankee Stadium since 1986. Stillwell led off the 11th with a walk, moved to second on Willie Wilson's sacrifice, and scored on Seitzer's single to center.

Angels 4, Tigers 3

DETROIT - Jack Howell drove in two runs and Willie Fraser survived seven walks as the California Angels beat the Detroit Tigers 4-3 Wednesday night.

Howell tripled to score a run in the second and doubled to drive in another in the sixth as the Angels snapped a four-game losing streak.

Brewers 4, Rangers 3

ARLINGTON - Juan Nieves allowed seven hits in 7 1-3 innings and Dale Sveum had a two-run homer as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Texas Rangers 4-3 Wednesday night.

Senior goals Matt McQuillan had 22 saves as the Notre Dame lacrosse team beat Michigan State 16-7 at Loftus Sports Center Wednesday.

The Irish avenged losses to the Spartans the past two seasons and moved their record to 11-3. In addition, they took a step closer to the Great Lakes Lacrosse Association title, which will be decided Saturday when the Irish host Ohio State.

According to senior tri-captain John McNicholas, the victory over Michigan State is what has been a fun-filled and intense Bookstore basketball tournaments wind down on campus last weekend.

Led by NCAA qualifier Dan Garrett, eight members of the Notre Dame track team flew to Philadelphia tonight to compete in the Penn Invitational.

The Irish, who already qualified for the NCAA Outdoor Championship in June, have taken a step closer to the Great Lakes State. A total of 600 athletes will be participating in this three-day meet.

Though originally scheduled to participate in the Drake relays at Des Moines, Iowa, the Irish switched to the Penn meet for recruiting and visibility purposes.

"This is the first time in several decades we've gone to Penn," said Irish head coach Joe Piane. "Traditionally we've gone to Drake because the ICA's are on the East Coast. But this year we added the meet at the Naval Academy and this one to give us more exposure on the East Coast.

TRADITIONALLY Piane has recruited most of his distance runners from the East Coast, including Garrett, O'Connor and Markenbach (all from New York state).

The rest of the Irish track squad will travel to Muncie Saturday for the Ball State Invitational. Following a week off for exams, the team will try to qualify more members for the ICA's at the Illinois Twilight Invitational. Piane said that those who have already qualified will compete in different events. Garrett and the other seniors will not make the trip because of graduation.

The team returns to Philadelphia May 31 for the ICA's. In addition to the eight members participating at the Penn meet, seven students have qualified for the ICA's: Yan Searcy and Rich Culp in the 400, David Yarth in the 800, Mike Hogan in the 500, Rick Mulvey in the steeplechase, Chris Compton in the pole vault, Tim Smith in the discus, and the 1600-meter relay team.

Lacrosse team tops Spartans behind McQuillan's 22 saves

"He has a shot at qualifying for the Olympic trials," said Irish head coach Chip Olmstead, explaining the strategy for the Penn Invitational. "We'll also be trying for other runners for the NCAA's."

Heading the list for possible NCAA qualifiers are sophomores Mike O'Connor in the 3000 and senior Rich Markenbach in the 10,000-meter run. Both have already qualified for the ICA's, in addition to other five team members competing at Penn, including senior Tom Mick in the hammer throw, freshman Ryan Milhaiko in the javelin, sophomore Glenn Watson in 110-meter high hurdles, and freshmen John Cole and Jeff Smith in the high and long jumps, respectively. Smith was added just 17 centimeters to his longest jump to qualify for the NCAA's.

"It's been an unbelievable experience for me, my teammates have been so supportive and encouraging," said Garrett. "I've been able to focus on my craft and enjoy the process."

The Irish offense continually pressured the Spartan defense, McNicholas said. "Our defense really did a great job of controlling the game."

"I'm also not hinting that members of the varsity basketball players from entering the tournament. I'd like to throw in my two cents on a concept that just might make this Rite Aid's, will be competing on the latter rounds of Spring at Notre Dame even more exciting.

"This is obviously one of the best wins of my career here, especially since they beat us last two years," McNicholas said. "It's something that we've prursed ourselves in an underdog position, but it feels great to be on a team that seems to have a core group of players with experience."

Three goals and three assists. Sophomore attackman Brian McHugh had a goal and three assists while McNicholas added three goals and an assist. Although the Irish offense continually pressured the Spartan defense, McNicholas said. "Our defense really did a great job of controlling the game."

"It was unbelievable in many ways, but it feels great to be on a team that seems to have a core group of players with experience."

Junior attackman John Olmstead led the relentless Irish attack with three goals and three assists while McNicholas added three goals and an assist.

Despite all the pressure, the Irish offense continued to put pressure on the Spartan defense, McNicholas said. "It was not too much intensity as it was pure emotion. The guys never stopped hustling and they didn't look back."

"It was an incredible experience," said Olmstead. "I'm also not hinting that members of the varsity basketball players from entering the tournament.
