High winds, rain ravage Jamaica

Associated Press

Hurricane Gilbert slammed into Jamaica on Monday with torrential rains and 115 mph winds, ripping the roofs of buildings, pounding beachfront resorts, and spashing flash floods and mudslides.

The brunt of the storm lashed Kingston on the southwest coast, knocking down power lines, uprooting trees and flattening fences. On the northeast coast, 20-foot waves hit Ocho Rios, a popular resort where tourists were evacuated from hotels.

In Kingston, authorities said body bags were stacked in a hospital, the roof was torn off a home for physically handicapped people and a firefighter was hurt when heavy winds blew him off his truck.

The hurricane was churning toward the Cayman Islands, flat islands with few sheltered areas, the National Weather Service in Coral Gables, Fla., reported.

Only minor injuries were reported in Kingston, the capital city with 750,000 people. The National Weather Service reported heavy damage to Kingston's airport and aircraft parked on its fields.

The initial 30-minute shock of the storm let up as the hurricane's eye moved across the city. Skies brightened, winds died and people waited for an hour before the second blow arrived.

All Jamaica-bound flights were canceled at Miami International Airport. A national Weather Service report at 6 p.m. EDT said the hurricane was moving west at 17 mph with maximum sustained winds of 115 mph. It said Jamaica was being deluged by rain late Monday.

It said the eye of the storm was centered at latitude 18.3 north and longitude 77.8 west, west of Kingston.

"The eye of the storm moved right lengthwise down the island," said Rob Sheets, National Hurricane Center director. "It is on the western tip of Jamaica and will be moving toward the Cayman Islands.

Sheets said the Cayman Islands has a dearth of sheltered areas.

"They're very flat, there's not a lot of places people can go to get refuge," he said.

Cayman Island Airlines was running flights every two hours to Miami to evacuate as many people as possible before the hurricane hit, said airline spokesman Claude Chaisolm.

Gilbert reached Jamaica with swirling winds, Puerto Rico, Haiti and the Dominican Republic. Hurricane warnings were issued Monday for the south coast of Cuba east of Guatemala.

In Kingston, a policeman suffered a broken leg when a fence collapsed, a firefighter answered an emergency call when a wall collapsed and a firefighter was injured when a wall collapsed. A firefighter answering an emergency call was hurt when a wall blew off the fire truck, the disaster office reported.

In Washington, the Navy reorganized its command in Panama Bay, Cuba, and Roosevelt Roads, Puerto Rico, had taken various precautionary steps but appeared to be safe from the brunt of the hurricane.

Couple choose same winning combination

Associated Press

An Indiana couple unwittingly chose the same winning numbers in the Illinois Lottery's Cash 5 drawing, a speaker for the lottery said Monday.Keith and Frances Nowicki, who own a grocery market in South Bend, Ind., both won $10,276 for selecting the winning numbers 11, 13, 19, 24 and 29 in Friday's Cash 5 drawing, said spokeswoman Carrie Worley. Four others also selected the winners and will receive the same cash prize, she said.

Nowicki selected his numbers from a group of "lucky numbers" he received in two fortune cookies at a Chinese restaurant, Worley said.

Mrs. Nowicki, who accompanied her husband when he bought his winning ticket, purchased a "quick pick" computer-generated ticket, which coincidentally held the same numbers her husband had selected.

The two told lottery officials they were not aware they had the same numbers until they watched the drawing Friday.

They said they would use the money to pay bills.

Carol Zennie

Zennie became involved with the organization in her senior year at Ohio State University and became chapter president in her senior year. She joined Theta Sigma Phi in 1972 (before the name was changed to WICI) and eventually went on to become president of the Dayton, Ohio, chapter and, through her continued involvement, was elected to her current position in 1986. As regional vice-president, Zennie also serves on the National Board of WICI.

According to Zennie, "The mission of WICI is 'leading change.' This organization empowers its members to make change in their careers, community and families; the possibilities are endless. Those who embrace it (the club's mission) see ZENNIE, page 3.

Roommate’s sleeping patterns terrorize others

For me, every morning is a “rude awakening.” Some people actually leap out of bed at daybreak with bright eyes and bushy tails, ready to greet the new day. I, on the other hand, sort of slither out. I guess you could say I’m more likely to “sigh and whine” than “rise and shine.”

Typically, my alarm yanks me out of Dreamland around 6 o’clock. The alarm continues to emit frantic beeps until a) my roommate shuts it off, or b) I pummel it to death—whatever comes first.

In the past, my alarm clocks have been the victims of frequent abuse. As a result, each tends to have a rather short life span. They generally last about a week or two. Then, one particularly unwellcome morning, I’ll officially declare the device “Satan’s spawn” and proceed to blot out the beast into oblivion.

These, however, are drastic measures. Usually, I opt for much more peaceful alternatives, such as the “snooze button.” In my book, the invention of the snooze button ranks right up there with the discovery of electricity and indoor plumbing.

After exhausting my snooze button quota, I groggily grop for my glasses and spend the next several minutes cursing morning people, mornings and people in general.

Then, turning the alarm to the “radio” mode, I burrow myself deeper under the covers and bury my head beneath the pillow, vowing to face the day “just one more song.” I generally belt from beneath the blankets one hour and two CDs later, with three minutes to dash to class.

These brisk 30 second drips do seem to revitalize me, however. For once, they certainly help me achieve at least momentary alertness.

My friends will readily attest that “Hell hath no fury like Michelle awakened.” God help the poor soul who interrupts my nightly date with the Sandman.

I see my roommates flipping coins every night before bed, and although they assure me they’re just trying to save some old math problems, I know better. They’re really trying to determine who’ll be unlucky enough to rouse me out of the hagigmatic condition the following morning.

I guess I can hardly blame them, though. Wanting me up in the morning is sort of like Saint George facing the dragon unarmed.

I remember those long lost days of yesteryear, when I’d eagerly leap out of the sack between 8:00 and 9:00 a.m. with a contented smile knowing that I’d probably have three or four more minutes of blissful rest before the alarm would go off. I’m not quite sure how I survived those days.

I remember those long cold days of yesterday, when I’d eagerly leap out of the sack on Saturday mornings and tipple downstairs to catch a quick hour of cartoons while Mom and Dad were still “sawing logs” upstairs. I treasured those early hours, when the morning belonged to me, Road Runner and Scooby Doo.

Eventually, however, Monday would roll around, and I’d be back to my old self again—crawling out of bed only after Mom’s gentle persuasions had graduated into ominous threats and hearty roars.

Sleep became even more precious when high school began. With the advent of 7 a.m. track practices, “early bird” drivers’ ed classes and daybreak bus trips to school, each extra moment of sleep was like a slice of heaven.

It’s true that after I graduated from Sesame Street videos to biology filmstrips, I no longer had an incentive to rise and shine. After all, it’s hard to muster up a lot of enthusiasm for logarithms and past participles.

Once I got to college, things changed once more. No longer could I rise at noon and creep down to the kitchen, arriving at breakfast “as nature.” The dining hall took care of that.

Some of my friends can still lumber out of their bunks on weekends, occasionally even being caught in their pajamas and ready to cross the cafeteria, hair and pride in tact.

I have no such luck.

Instead, when I wake up, I resemble a cross between Pippi Longstocking and Meesy Marvin. In fact, the only disguise for my bleary eyes and haywire hair would be a ski mask. As a result, I generally opt for the wait-until-two-minutes-before—the-dining-hall-closes phenomenon when everyone else is done eating approach.

This enables me to hit two birds with one stone: not only do I escape the sure humiliation of appearing in public looking sub-human, but I also get in an extra hour of Z’s.

I guess I might as well admit it... If sleep is the real goal, I’m a self-proclaimed wimp!
Senates approves topics for report

The Student Senate approved topics and chairpersons for student reports to the Notre Dame Board of Trustees during its weekly meeting held Monday night.

Pete Gutrich was appointed chairperson for the Co-Residential Housing Report. The evaluation of the Student Activities Fee Report will be chaired by Mike Moynahan. Steve Bishop, Missy Dill, and Kenny Fitzpatrick are chairpersons for the Student Transportation Report, and the Campus Parking Report will be chaired by Karen Flaherty.

Student Senate President Tom Doyle announced that an amendment to the student constitution will be considered and debated at the next meeting.

This amendment would mandate Senate meetings for all voting members to be open to the public. It also stipulated that three absences by a voting member would require a review by the Senate with the possibility of impeachment of that member.

According to Doyle the purpose of this proposed amendment is to make Senate meetings more open and accessible. Other business covered at the meeting included budgetary matters and officer reports.

In addition, Senators are planning to have news letters to the members of their respective districts completed by next week. An election will be held on Thursday to elect a new representative for District Two.

American engineer released in Lebanon

Syrian troops today rescued an American engineer who was abducted by gunmen in Lebanon and flown to Al­ giers. It took on fuel and returned to Beirut but there were no signs of the two hijackers. There was no word of the American engineer or of any other American held by the Moslem kidnappers. Longest held in Lebanon was Rudolf Cordes, a senior minister in the Syrian government. He is in good health," said a Syrian official.

Rassi told reporters in Beirut that Cordes was freed at an undisclosed location in the Bekaa Valley area.

A senior doctor who declined to be identified said about 5 percent of the diarrhea patients have contracted cholera.

President Hussain Muhammad Ershad said the $30 million in aid so far promised to his country was not enough even to rebuild the roads washed away by flood waters that cover three-fourths of the country.

He said it was too early to estimate the total amount of funds needed.

"For centuries the people of Bangladesh have lived with floods, but never before have the rivers unleashed such fury on her people," the 59-year-old former army general said during a news conference.

The government puts the official death toll at 801 from the floods, which started June 13 and reached new heights in late August. The health control center said 138 deaths were from diarrhea, while the others were caused by drownings, houses collapsing and snake bites.

President of Bangladesh cent of the diarrhea patients the rivers unleashed such fury the More than 250,000 people were suffering from diarrhoea, the health center said, with nearly 30,000 new cases reported in the last 24 hours. Many got the disease by drinking water contaminated by raw sewage and flood waters.

Minister tried for worker's murder

Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- A minister went on trial Monday on charges of beating a hand­ man and burning down his church in an alleged attempt to assume a new identity and dis­ appear with $50,000 in church money.

Jury selection is expected to take most of the week in the first-degree murder and arson trial of the Rev. John Terry, who faces the death penalty if convicted.

Terry may take the witness stand to break his yearlong silence in the decapitation of James Matheny.

The slaying and fire on June 15, 1987, at Emmanuel Church of Christ Pentecostal Oneness stunned Terry's parishioners. Some have stuck by him since Matheny's body was found rolled up in a scorched carpet.

"Two days before this hap­ pened we would have given him our last dime," said Marsha Brown, 30, who with others in the 46-member congregation has been attending services in a borrowed building in nearby Gallatin. "I don't feel personally betrayed - more let down than anything else."

About half the members have stopped attending services, she said.

"I'm sad for him. I guess I'm a little bitter, but you have to keep the love of God no matter what," said Marsha McClanahan, 35, who has not been attending services held by the current pastor, the Rev. Wayne Cole.

Members of the denomina­ tion formed in the early 1900s believe in faith healing and sometimes practice such rituals as foot washing and speaking in tongues.

Brown, McClanahan and other church members said Terry, 43, was well-liked and respected during his nearly 20 years as their preacher. Terry had treated Matheny, who was the ex-husband of a church member and had been in trou­ ble with the law.

Police initially thought it was Terry's body firefighters dis­ covered in the carpet because Terry's belt and other articles of clothing were found on the body. The head and lower part of the right arm had been severed with butcher-like­ cision, and Matheny initially was suspected of killing Terry until medical examiners iden­ tified the body.

Terry, who had worked part­ time as a supermarket butcher to earn extra money, showed up at his lawyer's office two days after the fire. His lawyers have since turned over to aut­ horities a map of a marina where they said the head and lower part of his body could be found, though a search begun last week was halted Sunday after divers came up empty handed.

"The divers can't see anyth­ ing. They can only feel. It's covered in the carpet because they said the head and lower part of his body could be found, though a search begun last week was halted Sunday after divers came up empty handed.

Senate primaries slated for today

Associated Press

Battles for Senate nominations to replace Democrat William Proxmire in Wisconsin and Republican Bob Staf ford in Vermont highlight primary voting in six states Tuesday, along with challenges to GOP lawmakers who helped elect them to office.

New Hampshire Republicans will choose a candidate to govern the state a term and give Democratic Attorney General Hubert "skib" Hampshire a primary challenge. Utah has just one contested congressional race.

In Wisconsin's four-way Democratic Senate race has been lively and expensive, with Milwaukee Bucks basketball team owner Herb Kohl spending nearly $2 million after making a late entry. Much of that was on TV advertising to argue his wealth makes him immune to special interests and thus he would be "nobody's senator but yours."

Bayh later replied, "If there's anyone who's been naive or slightly uninformed, it's Mr. Bush." Mutz also said he has pointed his running mate, Marion County Prosecutor Stephen Goldsmith, to be the chairman of a truth squad that will travel the state setting the record straight.

A poll published by the Milwaukee Journal on Sunday showed Kohl neck-and-neck with former Gov. Anthony Earl, the early favorite. Kohl was preferred by 43 percent of the voters and Earl by 40 percent. Edward Garvey, an unsuccessful Senate candidate in 1986, drew 8 percent, Secretary of State Douglas La Follette 5 percent, and 4 percent were undecided. The poll had a margin of error of 6 percent.

La Follette, who reported spending $10,536, ran a radio commercial that began with the sound of a toilet flushing. People of Indiana have the right to choose Republican gubernatorial candidate Mike Bayh, the lieutenant governor.

Batkis also said Bayh has disbursed $1 million in television commercials that he claimed give a distorted or incomplete account of either Man ti's record or Bayh's performance in the Senate. The tapes include the economic development program Muts head, tax increases during the last eight years and the budget for Muts' office.

Muts also said Bayh has dis beal the record on his role in license branch reform and on a proposed pay increase he says he turned down. Asked if he was calling Bayh a liar, Muts said, "I don't think he is really. He's a little ill-informed, naive about the legislative process."
Let's talk economic facts concerning the '88 election

By RICH COGLIANESE
Business Columnist

Ask yourself this question, "Are you better off now than you were eight years ago?" The answer to this question is a loud YES. In the 1986 election we could measure success by the economic policies that allow for growth and the tried and failed stations of the past. 1984 is an important election year. It is important to allow one of the candidates to lie to the nation about the state of its economic affairs. Virgil gave some sage advice 2000 years ago. Don't trust Greeks bearing gifts.

When Ronald Reagan and George Bush took office on January 20, 1981, the nation was in a state of economic chaos. The prime interest rate had reached 14 percent. Inflation was at 13 percent. Americans were not able to make ends meet. The consumer kept claiming larger and larger portions of America's wealth through increased taxes. Also taxes were not indexed to inflation so when a worker received a cost of living increase, this would burn a hole in the tax bracket. America was looked upon as a failure. A malaise fell over.

Ronald Reagan and George Bush tax rates down a few points to a few percent. Reagan's economic chaos Ronald Reagan and George Bush immediately attempted to stimulate the historic and economically vindicated tax cuts. These cuts lowered, among other things, the top tax rate from 70 percent to 50 percent. They also stimulated the economy. By lowering taxes, people had more money at their disposal to spend. America's government borrowed money from do-gooders. The new government borrowed money from the banks on the expected jobs created since 1982 earn more than $20,000 per year. These are not jobs that pay have allowed Americans to enjoy the longest peace time economic boom in this country's history.

Point 1. The misery index is down, way down. The misery index was a wacky invention of then Governor Carter (himself a governor of whom the American people knew nothing about). Mr. Carter added the inflation rate to the unemployment rate to come up with the misery index. While Ford was president, the misery index stood between twelve and thirteen percent. Carter said that no president should dare seek re-election with a misery index so high. During the final year of the Carter Administration, the misery index hit 20.7 percent. As President Reagan told the Republican delegates in New Orleans, the misery index is stubborn things. During the first quarter of this year, the misery index averaged 12.9 percent, the lowest in twenty years. Finally, the percentage of elderly Americans living below the poverty line is now the lowest since records were first kept. "Facts are stubborn things."

Point 2. Eighteen million new jobs have been created during the Bush years. This is approximately 200,000 new jobs every month that President Reagan and George Bush were in office. Since 1982, the United States has created three times more jobs than Western Europe and Japan combined. A combined working age population is one and one half times larger than the U.S. "Facts are stubborn things."

Point 3. As Vice President George Bush says, "These are good jobs." Over half of the jobs created since 1982 earn more than $20,000 per year. These are not jobs that pay have allowed Americans to enjoy the longest peace time economic boom in this country's history.

The following is a list of accomplishments of the Reagan-Bush Administration and some clarifications for the fall election.

Point 5. The miracle worker from Massachusetts doesn't even tell the truth about the Massachusetts budget. Well, he is complaining about the budget deficits during the Reagan years. Reagan and Bush took office, the trade deficit was with smoke and mirrors. Well, he would only bring about larger budget deficits. Facts are stubborn things."

Point 6. The current economic expansion is the longest in peacetime history. It has been going on for about 69 months as of August. The historical average is only 27 months. Ronald Reagan and George Bush are responsible for the economic boom in this country by lowering taxes and raising defense spending. Mike Dukakis is a classic tax and spend liberal. Earlier this year he raised taxes back in his home state yet again. He is also against increase defense spending. Dukakis and Carter have a great deal in common. Both believed in failed eco tax receipts of the next month. This is very creative accounting, but it is not a balanced budget. Although Massachusetts sets law allows Dukakis to claim that he has balanced the budget. U.S. law does not. Mike Dukakis has never balanced a Massachusetts budget and as president, he would only bring about larger budget deficits. Facts are stubborn things."

He continued with a litany of inanite

Back at Notre Dame I have met with a strange mixture of attitudes: indifference at the whole thing on the part of some (always a source of concern to me), but also fear-based primarily on prejudice on the part of others. The answer is usually, "I have a picture of St. Louis, so I don't want to see it."
Demand for the occupation and its attacks until the University does not realize they can be held in a 'safe' area first place.

The area for the occupation lies in the area it is scared and devoid of other people. The people of.

Come easily, misunderstandings, and worries about the University are also turned into a column.

I graduated columnist. Latission. Choice about declaration most of the point of the Union, itself is at best a mptation itself. It is not the Protessists and Notre Dame a disservice. The second report will evaluate the current level of social programming. That is, it will attempt to answer the question, are the resources currently available sufficient for a student body that is predominantly tied to campus for its social life? The third will be a comprehensive study, along with recomdendations, on the need for better transportation options for both on- and off-campus students. The final report shall address all aspects of campus parking, a problem which has only worsened in recent years. Because these issues are of in-

Inside" essay generalizes

Dear Editor:

Upon reading Alison Cockes' Inside column of Sept. 5 on student resistance to change, I was struck by the self-serving generalizations she employs to convincingly portray Notre Dame students as conformists who are afraid to make important decisions. Her column serves almost no other purpose than to add to the already lengthy list of stereotypes that presently afflict our student body.

Miss Cockes' essay begins with a story that she seems to feel shows how students here "tend to push aside their true desires in order to conform..." Her story is one of a girl at a party confessing that she really doesn't like the taste of the beer that she is drinking. Although I'm not expert on the alcohol compulsion habits of females at this University, I would guess that many female members of this community are perfectly happy with the taste of the alcoholic beverages that they choose to drink. Portraying ND females as vacuous and unwilling conformists when it comes to their drinking habits is unfair and, to a certain extent, degrading.

Later in her essay, Miss Cockes asserts another ill-conceived opinion that many students here are "wasting" their time and money by studying subjects that they really dislike, only looking for a good job after college. She states, "Many deciding that a business major was not the right one for me decreased my job prospects, but at least I won't be gnawing my teeth over classes I hate." Miss Cockes goes on to say, "I may never own a yacht or a townhouse, but I'll be doing something I enjoy." Her tacit implication in these statements is that more Business Administration majors don't enjoy their work in the major and, for the most part, are greedy and selfish.

It is these sort of statements to which I take the greatest exception. Speaking as a student enrolled in the College of Business Administration, I find that almost all of us are quite happy with our jobs in the major and, for the most part, are moderately satisfied.

It is true that some students should take greater exception to my views, but these should not be thought of as the absolute encompassing view of the human condition as Mr. Glus's.

I do not believe that the stereotypes Ms. Cockes so beautifully constructs should be believed or used by anyone.

In summer, South Bend keeps hopping

Mary Berger

Back in the High Life

As a true lover of the Rocky Mountains I can see from my Colorado window, I must admit South Bend was not on the top of my list of places to spend my summer days. However, unbeatable opportunities arose last spring, so I decided to forge ahead. I did research during my vacation. Not only did I re-search James Madison, but I also had the opportunity to observe what happens in our favorite midwestern town when we are not here.

Notre Dame serves as host to numerous groups during the summer. At the end of May, Charismatics held their meetings here; later in the summer, Jehovah's Witnesses convened. During June and early July, 1,718 young people participated in the Notre Dame Summer Sports Camps, playing basketball, football, tennis, soccer, lacrosse, and wrestling. The summer nights grew longer, the number of events seemed to grow larger. For courses this year, covering such topics as personal dilem-mas of life, prayer and poetry, and contemporary spirituality. Most of the participants work in some area of education, from high school or university teaching to counseling or parish work.

Two of the largest annual JACC events this summer were held in July and attracted distinctly different disciples. Both groups travelled from all over the United States and neighboring countries, but the second group also had participants from as far away as England.

The first event was a roadtripper's fantasy. Over 5,000 recreational vehicles and travellers made way to South Bend, converging on the immediate fields around campus to attend the Family Motor Coach Association Rally. Most of these nomads are retired, travelling throughout the country and returning most summer what it was. They made it, as my roommate and I, for serious business. Such are the types of changes that are in store for the Lon-don Program student. One starts out in the Baywater section of London. Here the streets are lined with an assortment of busy markets and stores, and half the signs are written in English and the other half are written in Arabic. BMWs and Rolls-Royces are parked along sidewalks where beggars have daily stations in front of Indian restaurants.

One takes a ride on the tube (the subway) during rush hour to a classroom building on the other side of town. The walk from the tube station to the classroom building completes this sense of being in a different place as one realises that all the build-ings here are over 200 years old and have an architectural diversity that our library and O'Shay can't begin to match. But these initial observa-tions are only superficial. Every detail of life there is a little different. The pace of life is a little slower, and people's clothes are a little more subdued. Even the trip to the corner grocery store becomes a reminder that one is in a foreign country. It is this everyday experience of absorbing a new culture that is the most educational part of many foreign studies program. The environment in which student life is carried out is also quite different from the one that exists at Notre Dame. The social opportunities are more varied and more accessible: one can simply walk two blocks to get a pint of lager at a local pub, or one can be more extravagant and spend a wild night at one of Lon-don's posh dance clubs or even attend the Andrew Lloyd Webber musical. Finally the academic envi-

In a month, the appli-cation process for the various foreign studies pro-grams will be underway. For any students considering applying to one of these pro-grams, I offer my reflections on the subject based on my experiences in the London program last year.

Although visiting tourist sites, going on shopping sprees and taking off to Paris for the weekend are all great fun, I can't do such things for an entire semester. Much of one's expe-

Men's soccer team drops two road games

By PETE SKIKO
Assistant Sports Editor

The Notre Dame women's soccer team dropped a pair of games on the road over the weekend, evening their season record at 2-2.

The Irish fell 2-0 at Indiana on Friday and 1-0 to Lake Forest on Saturday afternoon.

The Indiana game was a back-and-forth affair which was tightly contested until the middle of the second half, when the Hoosiers broke the game open with two quick goals. The Irish had seen Indiana in seasons past when both teams were under club status.

Against Lake Forest, Notre Dame outshot the Foresters 25-6 and were still held scoreless. But as Head Coach Dennis Grace commented, "it's not scoring just a matter of time."

Belles win tourney

By ELIZABETH VANDERSAIL
Sports Writer

Following a win in Fort Wayne on Thursday over Saint Francis, Saint Mary's fought a tough battle against exhausted opponents and first-game losses to place first in the Kalamazoo tourney last weekend.

The Belles had a shaky start on Thursday as they fell 11-15 in the first game against Saint Francis.

"I was pleased with the play of senior captain Tami Suth. Tami really dug in and he helped to get us going," said head coach Sue Meley.

Under the leadership of Suth, the Belles rallied back in the second game to an 18-15 victory and a strong showing, 15-15, in the third. The effectiveness of Suth at the net, and the strong performances of freshmen Kim Rajpakt and Jennifer Smith emphasized the strong spirit of the Belles. They displayed a strong finish of 15-5 and 15-9 in the final games.

10 teams, divided into two pools of five, competed in Saturday's tournament at Kalamazoo.

The Belles finished 3-1 in their pool with losses to Illinois University and Kalamazoo College, which sent them to the semi-finals. They faced Kalamazoo College and claimed victory after three straight sets. "It was a tough match, but everyone played well," Meley said. "It would have been impossible to single out one player who outplayed another, it was truly a team effort." The Belles suffered a first-game defeat to Tri-State in the finals 6-15, but held on to take the upper hand. Victory was in the fifth set, giving them a commanding 15-12, 15-9, 15-6 win.

"It was a big win early in the season," Meley said. "For the first time we acted together throughout a whole tournament. The last match was a superb effort, especially the come back in the last two games."
This year's top six players consist of three freshmen, who have proven to be strong assets to the team. Those players are Ellen Mayer, Angie Mueller and Marie Koscielski at fourth, fifth and sixth singles respectively. "They looked very good in practice, but I was especially pleased to see that they are real competitors, as reflected in the match against Hillisdale," said Laverie.

Junior Jennifer Block, playing at No. 2 singles, feels confident about this year's team. "We're a very young team with lots of potential," Block said. "With Deb's strong bench coaching, I think we'll be able to recapture the state title this year."

With two wins already chalked up on their record going for their fall season, SMC expects to recapture the state title this year. "With our young team and the addition of three dynamic freshmen, the Belles appear on their way to a successful season," Block added.

Grunhard also made his name known on special teams last year for his uncanny ability to be the first man down on defense after snapping the ball on punts. "The team knew Hillisdale was not one of our stronger competitors, but they went into the match with intensity and solidly defeated Hillisdale," said head coach Deb Laverie.

SMC tennis dominates Hillsdale

The Saint Mary's tennis team traveled to Hillsdale Friday and captured an 8-1 victory. The win gives them a 2-0 record going for their fall season.

"They knew Hillisdale was not one of our stronger competitors, but they went into the match with intensity and solidly defeated Hillisdale," said head coach Deb Laverie.

ND volleyball squad finishes second in Saluki Invitational

By MOLLY MAHONEY

The Notre Dame women's volleyball team returned from this weekend's Saluki Invitational, after narrowly losing the tournament to Arizona. Notre Dame beat Arizona in its second match of the Invitational, but the winner was decided by comparing the total number of games each team won and lost.

Arizona won 11-4 for the tournament and Notre Dame finished 11-5, so the Wildcats edged the Irish by one loss to take home the trophy.

The Irish were upset by Bowling Green, but came back to tally wins against Arizona, Iowa and the host school. The Irish had three players on the all-tournament team.

Seniors Mary Kay Waller and Zanette Bennett and freshman Julie Bremner all received recognition for their play during the Invitational.

"The team was really good and - in that order," said Irish head coach Art Lambert. "Waller was in the first two games against Bowling Green and we ended up losing five, but we started to come together after that match and that's a good sign."

Friday morning, Notre Dame had Bowling Green down after winning the first two games 15-5 and 15-11, but the starters were removed going into the third game and the squad lost its momentum.

The inexperienced Irish squad was outplayed by the Falcons and by the time the starters returned, the team was down 0-2 in the match and dropped the final three games of the match 15-13, 15-4 and 15-10.

The Irish then took on the tournament's eventual winner, Arizona, Friday afternoon and won the hard fought five game match, 4-15, 16-14, 15-12, 9-15 and 15-10. It was a valuable victory over a Wildcat team that is looking to see where it will fall off last year after qualifying for the NCAA tournament last season and dominate play in its PAC-10 Conference.

The Irish also recorded a win over Iowa on Saturday in three games, 15-13, 15-4 and 16-14. The Hawkeyes are consistently strong in the Big Ten Conference and the victory could improve Notre Dame's chances of earning recognition from the polling committees.

The Salukis of Southern Illinois fell easily to the Irish in three games as well on Saturday, 15-8, 15-4 and 15-0, completing the team's four-match road trip in Carbondale, Ill.

Grunhard's versatility vital to Irish

Notre Dame football coach Lou Holtz is the first to admit there's something "a little bit different," about offensive tackle Tim Grunhard.

"He really is a kickback to the football players in the older days," said the third-year Irish coach. "He would love football even better if he didn't have a face mask, or if you could fold your helmet up and put it in your pocket."

In short, what Grunhard would enjoy the most is "He's a little bit different."

Grunhard isn't going to complain about any natural teasing from his coach. After all, Holtz is the reason that the Chicago native is living out his dream of starting for the Fighting Irish.

"Being from the south side of Chicago from an Irish family, I've always loved Notre Dame and Notre Dame football," said Grunhard. "While Gerry Faust was here, I wasn't recruited, so I was going to go to Minnesota, where Holtz was coaching, or to the University of South Carolina.

"I was recruited by Gerry Faust kind of a bad taste in my mouth about Notre Dame, but once Holtz got the job, I was a 6-3, 220-pound junior. "When Holtz came to Notre Dame and asked me to come here, it was one of the best things to happen to me."

"I'm just trying to pay back what Notre Dame has given me by playing the best football of my life for the two years I have left."

"If time on the practice field after winning the first two games 15-5 and 15-11, but the starters were removed going into the third game and the squad lost its momentum."

"I'm just trying to pay back what Notre Dame has given me by playing the best football of my life for the two years I have left."

"If time on the practice field Grunhard is one of the main reasons the Irish offensive line performed well in the season-opening win over Michigan."

"The offensive line has more than paid back any dues we owe. As both the starting guard on the offensive line and the long snapper on the kicking and punting team, Grunhard could not regain its composure players on the field and one of the last. But special teams is a tradition that goes back to high school for Grunhard.

"When I was a high school, I snapped over the guy's head twice in one game," said Grunhard. "From that point, I said to myself that I never want to snap again. My high school coach said, 'You really have a talent for it. We have a lot of confidence in you.'"

"I performed so well in the second of this practice my freshman year (in college), I snapped over a guy's head, and Coach Holtz said, 'If I see you do that again, you'll never snap again at Notre Dame."

"I was encouraged by our play after the Bowling Green game, especially against Southern Illinois," said Lam­bert. "We didn't drop down to their level like we did against Bowling Green and I think we're headed in the right direction now.

"Notre Dame got another strong performance out of middle blocker Walker, as she tallied 57 kills and 29 blocks for the tournament.

"Walker's control of the net has been exemplary thus far in the season and she leads the team with an impressive .318 hitting percentage and 43 blocks.

Bennett, an outside hitter and middle blocker, continued her consistent net play as well, as she led the team with 64 kills and brought her total kills for the year up to 92.

She also had a strong tournament serving, recording eight aces during the four-match Invitational.

"Freshman setter Julie Brem­ner, who earned all-tournament honors with Waller and Bennett in the first tour­ment of her career, led the team with 54 digs.

Bremner has been a steady performer as a setter, record­ing a .303 assist percentage see IRISH, page 13

Irish rugby squad loses to Michigan

While the Irish football team handled Michigan Saturday night in Notre Dame Stadium, the Rugby Club was not as fortunate against the Wolverines in the afternoon behind Stepan Center.

The Wolverines handed the Irish squad losses at all three levels and, to make matters worse, all were shutouts. The Notre Dame "A" team lost 36-0 and the "B" and "C" groups both fell by identical 16-0 scores.

The Irish did find some relief in the losses. The Wol­verines brought their club team, a team that had only two players still in college. The remainder of the team was composed of older, more experienced players.

"Actually, we're not too disappointed," club president Jim Lammers said. "Their club side is one of the top 10 in the nation. It would be equivalent to amateurs playing professionals. We learned a lot."

The Irish, now 8-1 for the season, travels to Western Illinois this weekend. The next home contest will be against Kalamazoo Saturday, Sept. 24.

Petie Wall with crew Paige Cooper placed third in the "A" division, while Tom Sessions with crew Matt Losinske and Watts Hodgins took sixth in the "B" division.

The Irish will send squads to both Iowa and Kent State to compete in events this weekend.

The Rowing Club will open its season Sept. 24 in the Head of the Ohio, one of four races during the fall season.
