At least 200 have lost their lives in violence in Algeria

Associated Press

Soldiers fired into crowds of demonstrators Sunday who refused to disperse, and police and hospital sources said at least 200 people had died in rioting over rising prices and a government austerity program.

Clashes between the army and demonstrators grew more violent late Saturday and early Sunday. Soldiers were ordered to shoot at protesters who did not disperse and fire repeatedly.

The government confirmed deaths among security forces.

In the capital, Algiers, army helicopters armed with rockets flew low, apparently in a result, these students' wire. At approximately 1:20 p.m., senior Bob Splude said he was watching television when "a loud bang startled me. It was the loudest noise I'd ever heard. Then I noticed that the cable splitter box had blown apart, and pieces were flying all over the room. The TV didn't work anymore, and the stereo tuner didn't either," Splude estimated his damages at $550.

A 26-year-old government official, Aliouane Fadela, said she saw gendarmes in riot gear "charging bystanders who were doing nothing, and then kick them once they were on the ground." The gendarmes are police under military control.

Authorities on Thursday imposed a state of emergency with overnight curfews and arrested more than 900 people for looting.

The official APS Algerian news agency gave a list of reasons for the mounting unrest - crop failure, the collapse of oil prices, the global economic crisis and Algeria's enormous population increase - from 9.4 million in 1964 to more than 23 million.

The unrest began about 10 days ago, when industrial workers staged strikes for higher wages. The government said it would not break with its austerity plan to raise taxes.

A funeral procession for a 14-year-old boy was held this weekend in Santiago, Chile. The boy died from gunshot wounds from unidentified gunmen last Thursday during an anti-Pinochet protest. Demonstrations have been held almost daily since the government conceded defeat.

ND hosts delegation of Japanese teachers

By JOHN O'BRIEN

News Staff

Notre Dame played host to a delegation of 21 Japanese school teachers Friday as they completed their tour of the South Bend school system.

As part of a continuing teacher exchange program between the U.S. State Department and the Japanese Educational System, the delegation was hosted by the South Bend school system and WNDU and WSBT TV.

"We're attempting to internationalize our curriculum," said AI Large, director of media services for the South Bend school system. Large, along with four other teachers from South Bend, traveled to Japan earlier this summer.

The delegation of teachers toured six schools since their arrival on Tuesday. While they visited a series of schools ranging from elementary to college level, the Japanese were most impressed with the special education facilities at Edison Middle School.

According to Nan Tulchinsky, a member of this summer's U.S. delegation, the Japanese "were surprised to see special education students taught alongside non-handicapped children." In Japan, handicapped students are placed in special schools outside the regular educational system, Tulchinsky said.

The Notre Dame-St. Mary's Neighbor Study Help program also impressed the delegation. "They were particularly impressed with the fact that the students did not receive any pay for their help," said Japanese Leda, another member of the U.S. delegation.

The tour, led by the Japan Club, began with a conference with former Dean of Business Wiliako Furusha, who provided the teachers with a souvenir packet containing books and brochures about Notre Dame. Becky Clusserath, co-president of the Japan Club, explained, "It's a Japanese tradition to provide guests with gifts."

The delegation visited various spots on campus, including the LaFortune Student Center, the War Memorial and the Hesburgh Library. A lighter moment came as tour guide Tom Gasper attempted to explain the premise of "Touchdown Jesus" to the visitors.

Suzuki Keiya, a teacher at Kotoaki Elementary School, said, "Compulsive gamblers? Gambling fever spread rapidly Saturday evening at the Angola Athletic Center, which served as a casino for Saint Mary's seniors and their fathers. The casino night was one of many activities held for Senior Father-Daughter Weekend."

"I like the atmosphere."
Turning 21 is the key to freedom, independence

Senior Bar...A place that strikes desire in the hearts of many who have not yet come of age. For the first time, I was finally able to enter this famous establishment, where alumni and graduating seniors reside. I found it to be a fascinating place—not quite as populated as I had expected, (then again there WAS an away game Saturday night), but definitely a place to which I will return in the near future.

My 21st birthday was one of those days in my life that I look forward to ever since I came to this university four years ago. Coming from a home in the state of Ohio, where the bar-entering age is 18, I have been able to enter bars with my friends back home for the last three years.

I enjoy it immensely, mainly for the conversation and togetherness that takes place there. Going to the bars with friends is like going to your favorite family gathering, only a little louder and far more crowded. The bar is always the place to meet new people and to be with all the old friends that you have not seen since high school.

But not being of age while being a Notre Dame senior can really put a damper on one’s social life. While the majority of the graduating class is flocking to Senior Bar on Thursdays, Chi Chi’s on Tuesdays and the other “hot spots” on other nights of the week, the “under-agers” are sitting in their rooms deciding which book to read or which re-run to watch on television. The on-campus bars (which are the only confirmed for those who are not yet legal) can be a lot of fun, but their size is limited. And because of Notre Dame alcohol policy, everyone attending one is in danger of being fined or, in some cases, even suspended.

Now that I have turned 21, I can go out to the bars with my friends at Notre Dame, get to know my professors better and have an active social life like every student should.

This off-campus “bar scene” makes the Notre Dame social experience complete. Not only is the size of the “party” larger, but the atmosphere is far more relaxed. There are no fears that activities of being in violation of campus laws and regulations and possibly ruining a future career.

But the part I like most about this birthday is that, for the first time in my life, I feel like I am truly treating me like an adult. Even though the bouffants will still want to see my ID and check my age, and even though my friends peers will occasionally call me immature, I will still live with the satisfaction that I am a legal adult.

Being 21 is having the ability to do what you want in society, with the laws of the state and one’s own moral values as the only guidelines. These guidelines (especially the moral ones) should be well known and familiar to each graduate as he or she prepares to enter the real world of the workplace.

Notre Dame has definitely been a major influence on me in this regard. Now that I have the freedom to choose what I want to drink, where I want to go out and to do with the rest of my life, I have come to a realization.

The rules of this administration, which I may have griped about in the past, have been a key in understanding my responsibility to both myself and to society.

Although most graduates want to break most of the rules which they have lived under in the past four years, I have personally found that I will probably live my life in a very similar manner in what this university practices. But most importantly, I will do it by my own choice. I may have had one night of going wild and not having fun, but I know that eventually it will be a thing of the past.

Judicial Council plans J-Board revisions

By DANNIKA SIMPSON

Two representatives from Student Affairs met with the Judicial Council Thursday night to discuss a revision of the inner-hall Judicial Boards. The council is comprised of nine committees, including the inner-hall Judicial Boards, the Student Rights committee, the Judicial Review Board and the Publicity committee. The council refers students seeking legal advice at reasonable rates to South Connell.

The Judicial Council, many students do not know exactly what the Judicial Council does. Terry Squyres, a representative from Pasquarilla West Hall, suggested that the Publicity Committee inform students about the duties of both the Judicial Council and the Judicial Boards.

Rise in crime ends 5 year decline

WASHINGTON- Crime levels rose 1.8 percent last year, the government reported Sunday, ending a five-year decline the Reagan administration had attributed partly to tougher treatment of criminals.

People living in the West were the most likely to have been victims of crime last year, while residents in the Northeast were the least likely to be victimized, the study by the Bureau of Justice Statistics.

Nationally, the number of personal and household crimes rose about 613,000 in 1987 to more than 34.7 million, and the number of crimes hit the lowest level in the 15-year history of the government’s national crime survey, 34.1 million.

Rise in crime levels were steeper in 1986, the peak year with 41.5 million crimes committed, said Joseph Bessette, acting director of the bureau, a Justice Department agency.

Administration officials have suggested that the decline in crime was due to sterner law enforcement and a more cooperative public. Some academic experts analyzing the data have stressed that the size of the most crime-prone age group, those in their mid to late teens, has shrunk in the 1980s. The crime-prone age group will continue to decline in size until the early 1990s, demographers say, when it is anticipated by many experts that crime levels will take a decisive turn upward once again.

Last year’s slight crime increase probably suggest a greater concentration of low-income groups at the young age levels “where crime goes on,” said Alfred Blumstein, dean of the school of urban and public affairs at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh.

Last year, the number of personal crimes rose nearly 250,000 or 1.4 percent from 1986 to more than 19 million, with increases in all four categories of rape, robbery, theft and assault, which includes murder.

The amount of household crime rose by nearly 360,000 or 2.3 percent to 15.7 million, with increases in burglary, larceny and motor vehicle theft.

In 1987, the number of personal crimes per 1,000 people was 125 in the West, 101 in the Midwest, 91 in the South and 71 in the Northeast. The number of household crimes was 233 in the West, 166 in the Midwest, 179 in the South and 116 in the Northeast.

The West was the only region to show an increase in personal crime last year compared with 1986, up 4.8 percent. In the South it fell by 4.8 percent, while the Northeast and Midwest showed no significant change.

The national crime survey was compiled by questioning 46,000 people last year in 34,000 households.

Economic crisis hits Yugoslavia
Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia—Tens of thousands of demonstrators took to the streets Sunday, and students began a hunger strike to protest police violence and demand the ouster of Communist leaders.

Residents reported a heavy police presence and roadblocks around Titograd, the capital of the southern republic of Montenegro, 280 miles southwest of Belgrade. Club-wielding riot police broke up an overnight rally there against local Communist leaders early Saturday.

Three people were reported hospitalized in Niksic, 15 miles northwest of Titograd, where police fired tear gas Saturday to break up a crowd.

The state news agency Tanjug quoted local authorities as saying the situation in Niksic was "extremely serious" and said thousands of workers at a local steel mill put down their tools Sunday and marched to protest police actions.

The news agency said federal president Rajko Dzidarevic would speak to the nation to address "the deteriorating crisis situation."

The presidency of Bosnia, another of Yugoslavia's six republics, issued a statement saying violent protests are "seriously jeopardizing the integrity, constitutional order and security of the country," Tanjug said.

First AIDS victim dies in USSR
Associated Press

MOSCOW—The Soviet Union on Sunday reported its first AIDS death, that of a pregnant prostitute from Leningrad, and authorities maintained the photograph to alert her sexual partners.

The 26-year-old woman died Sept. 5 of pneumonia following a 26-pound weight loss, chronic tonsillitis and bronchitis and a serious decline in the count of her immune system's T-cells, the labor newspaper Trud reported.

All are common symptoms of acquired immune deficiency syndrome, and the newspaper noted that epidemiologists were incensed that the woman's doctors failed to diagnose AIDS before she died.

They are now trying to locate the victim's sexual partners to determine who else might be infected with the disease, and authorities are considering publishing the woman's photograph to alert her partners, Trud said.

She was registered as a night school student and as a worker at a factory, but police said she earned her living as a prostitute for foreigners.

Soviet officials say they have identified 63 AIDS carriers but only one person has died of the deadly disease. However, they say other cases may have been diagnosed incorrectly.

High tuition means high quality
Associated Press

NEW YORK—Fewer than six out of 10 young people say they have saved for college, and nearly 50 percent said tuition costs prevent many from seeking a higher education, according to a poll released Sunday.

In addition, more than one out of three teen-agers and young adults questioned in a survey commissioned by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education believe the most expensive colleges offer the best education.

The poll, aimed at measuring student awareness of college issues, was based on telephone interviews of 1,061 people age 13 to 25 from Aug. 24 to Sept. 7. It was released as part of National Higher Education Week, which began Sunday.

The poll, conducted by the Gallup Organization, had a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Thirty-eight percent agreed that "the higher the tuition costs, the better the quality of education a student will receive." Among pre-college-age students, the figures were higher: 53 percent of 13- to 15-year-olds agreed with the statement, 41 percent of 16- and 17-year-olds surveyed did. But only 27 percent of current college students and graduates felt that way.

Complaints about stock market crash unresolved

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—Two out of three small investors who experienced problems during the stock market crash are still waiting a year later for their complaints to be resolved, according to a survey released Sunday by state securities regulators.

The North American Securities Administrators Administration said 64 percent of investors responding to a survey said their problems arising from the collapse of the stock market in October 1987 had not been resolved.

"This confirms our suspicions that small investors were and remain the invisible victims of the Oct. 19 stock market crash," said John Baldwin, the new president of the NASAA, the national organization for state securities regulators.

"A full year after Black Monday, those of us who regulate the markets at the grass roots level are still finding a surprising number of dazed investors stumbling through the ruins of their post-crash finances," said Baldwin, who is director of the Utah Securities Division.

Baldwin said the organization's survey showed that investors who had been burned were not rushing back into the market. One out of seven small investors said they had bailed out of the market altogether or were holding less than $500 in securities.

Of those still in the market, two-thirds indicated they had changed or were planning to change brokerage firms.

The most common complaint, made by half of the survey respondents, concerned problems with brokers executing trades late or getting trades wrong during the hectic period surrounding the crash.

The next most common gripe, made by 33.7 percent of those in the survey, concerned that their broker had misled them.

Senate discusses anti-drug bill

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—President Reagan warned Congress on Saturday that "time is fast running out," and pressed the Senate to approve a House-passed anti-drug bill before adjournment.

Reagan, as he has in several other speeches during the past week, said he supports the death penalty provision in the measure.

But in the Democratic response, Sen. Daniel Moynihan praised the Senate's version as the better legislation and argued the House bill "has had too many extras."

"The House bill has many good and tough provisions that ensure our national commitment to five simple but powerful words-- those words are 'zero tolerance' and 'Just say no,'" Reagan said, lifting the slogan from his wife Nancy's anti-drug education campaign.

"By zero tolerance, we mean simply, that we've got to have it," Reagan said in his weekly radio address from Camp David, Md.

"We will no longer tolerate those who sell drugs and those who buy drugs. All Americans must know that to stamp out those parasites who survive and even prosper by feeding off the energy and vitality and humanity of others. They must pay," the president said.

Reagan said he supports moves to deny federal benefits to anyone convicted of drug sales or use, user penalties and allowing the admission in federal court of evidence seized illegally, but in "good faith."

While the House passed its version of the legislation earlier this month on a 375-30 vote, the measure has not yet come before the Senate.

"We must, we need and we will have this law," the president said. "I challenge the U.S. Senate to get that bill passed."

Reagan pointed out that the House bill includes the death penalty for those who authorize drug-related killings or anyone who kills a law enforcement officer in a drug-related crime.

"It marks a major departure in federal policy," noted Moynihan.

The austerity plan is aimed at resolving an economic crisis made worse by the fall in the price of oil, the nation's main source of revenue. The plan, announced in January, aims to line up food prices with world markets and cut surplus workers in the state-owned industries that dominate the economy.

The unemployment rate is estimated at above 40 percent of the capital, and food prices have risen by as much as 40 percent since January.

HELP FIGHT BIRTH DEFECTS
One of the great efforts of the Greek philosopher Plato in his philosophic and literary masterpiece “The Republic” is to get his readers to think about justice in an entirely new way. As true now as it was four centuries before Christ in Athens, we human beings tend to think about justice as a thing primarily other-directed. To be just is to be fair to pay one’s debts, to not borrow from others without asking, to do our part in making society functions as it ought and so on. A just individual is one who does good to others, he respects their rights and perhaps their needs.

Thomas D’Andrea inside out

What we frequently forget, and this is Plato’s great lament, is how impor­tant it is for us, for our own individual souls, to be just. No less than our society and our world needs our justice, we our­selves need to be just. This is the self­ directed side of justice: our develop­ment, fulfillment and happiness as rational creatures requires and even depends on our being just. The unjust man is a warped man as much at odds with his own better self as with his society, his family and his God.

This sounds paradoxical. Typically, we think we have the duty to be just so as to provide for the well-being of others. We would think it strange, almost perversely, if someone went around performing acts of justice entirely for his own benefit. But level-headed philosophers, pre- and post-Christian, and nearly all Christians have long thought that the search for personal individual happiness and the providing for the well-being of others are two ac­tivities strictly correlative. Though the details of their correlation have always to be worked out in the concrete (an ongoing process and something by no means easy), the two have long been seen as a complementarity instead of opposition.

The self-directed side of justice has particular significance in a Christian context. We live in a world teeming with injustice— injustice producing great human suffering. Whether it be denial of the rights of the unborn, racial op­pression, expressions of religious and political rights, economic enslavement of poor and wealthy alike (and the last goes on), ours is a world far from just. Yet as Christians we believe in a God who both infinitely merciful and omnit­ ipotent. He could, if He wanted step, in and stop all injustice in an instant.
But He doesn’t. He gives His grace and leaves the solution of the problems of injustice largely up to us, and to our cooperation with Him. And that is a very striking thing. God, unlike our world, does not need our justice—He wants it and we need to freely give God what He wants because our happi­ness here and beyond depends on it.

This is not simply or even mainly be­cause God will punish us if we are unjust. It is rather that in our injustice we will be cheating and punishing our­selves. To be just (and merciful) is to be most godlike, and to be most godlike is to be most happy. So God won’t force us to be just—He created us to be free and autonomous.
Not all our world’s sins can be solved, and probably won’t be just if we simply think that “in the abstract” the needs of others and a bit of our heart’s way. Unless we are aware of the well-being of another soul have to be nourished (as flourishing as individuals depends on it), we will probably fall far short of the mark. This commonplace of Christian wisdom, often neglected (though certainly not by John Paul II in his recent encyclical “On Social Con­ cerences”), is a good thing for us to keep in mind as the many requests go out, in and around the University, for our time, our energy and talents, and our money.
We need to teach catechism, to visit the elderly, the homeless and the underprivileged; we need to take an ac­tive interest in the problems of human development throughout the world and in the promotion of respect for all human life. And we’re not doing anyone a fa­vor.

P.O. Box Q

Stanford band behavior ‘rude’

Dear Editor:

I am writing in response to Mark McLaughlin’s column of Oct. 5 in which he asserts that “We need more trees at Notre Dame.” I believe his logic is easily felled. Mr. McLaughlin’s unique brand of “forestation” is not welcome in this community.

The author maintains that Stanford University is tolerant enough to allow the students to develop a sense of humor. Was it a sense of humor that the band exhibited last Saturday night?

The not only discrepancy in opinion between the author and myself. While he so delicately refers to the Stan­ford Band as “non-conservative,” I unambiguously deem them rude. Running onto the field during the Notre Dame Band’s post-game performance over­ stepped any boundary of silliness or fun. It was inexcusable. And as for Stanford’s tolerant administration, they thought the band was so “funny” last year that they banned it from performing at all home games.

Mr. McLaughlin even goes so far as to question our band (though he denies doing so) by saying that in comparison it “seemed rather staid with its renditions of ‘Amazing Grace’ at the half.” It is an insult to imply that a comparison can even be made between the two; there is virtually no common ground between “bands.”

Mr. McLaughlin voices a ridiculous complaint when he asks if we must be classy all the time. He makes it sound as if this is a negative attribute, that class is essentially a deterrent to fun on campus. Need we resign to a society without any sense of humor? Is this not the case. Notre Dame’s reputation as a classy university is hardly a stigma.

The author’s logic falters again when he grants that, although the Stanford Band’s actions may have been immatu­re, weird, rebellious, and stupid, col­lege is our only chance to act like this. I don’t know about Mr. McLaughlin, but when I chose to come here the opportunity to act immature and stupid was not a prime motivation.

Finally, even if the Notre Dame administration did ask the Stanford Band to tone down for its appearance in Notre Dame Stadium, what harm is there in that? Given free reins, what is it that kind of “creative, energetic, and imagi­native” ways they would have found to insult us. There is no need to subject ourselves to such conduct in our own stadium.

In conclusion, the author accuses Notre Dame students of being lapdogs of the administration with their submis­sive “Father knows best” attitude. If Mr. McLaughlin wanted to attend a liberal college where student protest runs rampant and, more importantly, where there are few blue blazers, why didn’t he choose traditional Notre Dame? Perhaps it is the author himself, and not the entire Notre Dame community, that is barking up the wrong tree.

Manilow's oldies: 'Big Fun'

PETE SKIKO AND BRIAN O'GARA
accent writer

BARRY MANILOW.

What does that name conjure up in your mind?

A born showman, shattering down pseudo-marble stage stairs in a hot pink jacket and black spandex pants, belting out one of his new pop tunes to a capacity crowd of gentle senior citizens and gushing teenage devotees, clinging to his every croon?

A philosopher (a la Springsteen), prefacing each of his new songs with some kind of poignant message, however trite, which might replace previously engrained images of the leastest spot north of Havana?

Or the old beagle himself, stirring up memories of yesteryear? You know, all the old favorites, up in the attic with baseball cards, broken radios and posters of the Greatest and Charlie's Angels: "I Write the Songs. Even Now, Somewhere Down the Road, This One's For You..." the list goes on and on.

To two dubious reviewers, who cast aside both some what negative preconceptions and much of a Friday night to spend two-and-a-half hours with the Old Smoothie, he was all of these. Certainly not great, but definitely entertaining.

Barry tended to overestimate his ability to disseminate grandly fatherly advice and deliver stand-up comedy. But when it came down to what he was there at the Joyce ACC to do, sing, he did not disappoint, especially during his medley of the old songs near the end of the show.

The show, which featured a talented troop of singer/dancers/musicians accepting Barry's every piece, never lacked in energy. But Manilow seemed strangely out of place cascading up and down staircases, while barking out lyrics to fast-paced Latin tunes like the frenzied "Hey Mambo" and "I'm Your Man", both off of his new "pop" album.

The crowd definitely noticed the lack of sentimentality in Manilow's new, jazzed-up work, and were never really in the show until he sang the first of his Golden Oldies, "Shuga". The opening set included such non-remarkable newcomers as "Sweet Life", "Brooklyn Blues", and "I Am Your Child", which showed hints at the old Manilow, but had a new, slick look that just didn't fit the Manilow style. His "comedy" routine had some bright moments, including his pathetic accordion routine had some bright moments, including his pathetic accordion rendition of current pop tunes "Born in the U.S.A.", "I'm So Excited" and "Like A Virgin" ("Madonna would have stayed a virgin a little longer if she had played it like that," suggested Manilow).

During a salute to his days as an audition pianist for Broadway shows, he discussed the early Barry Manilow look, "I was always upright - slicked back hair, horned rim glasses... basically I was a real geek. I was a real geek that day," (Chuckling Manilow, insisting he has left that part of his life behind (the jury's still out on that one). But one thing is for sure - Manilow can still melt the hearts of his audience with the tunes that made him famous back in the mid 70's. That was apparent during the climactic 3-minute medley of his greatest hits, which spanned from "One Voice" to "We Write the Songs". But even during this testament to his past successes, the new Manilow couldn't resist moonwalking right into "Copacabana."

Barry Manilow's new material lacked punch and sincerity, seeming to get old in a hurry. But certainly, Manilow has earned a place in the hearts of many, for his soulful music of 15-15 years ago, and as he did a splendid job of keeping the toes tapping and the music fresh Friday night.

Injuries plague ND at Ball State Invite

By BOB MITCHELL
Sports Writer

This weekend the Notre Dame's men's tennis team did not build much momentum. Injuries slowed the Irish as they recorded a disappointing 11-15 record in the third rounds of singles and doubles competition.

In his quest to the top ranks of collegiate tennis world, the Irish travelled to Ball State to clash heads with four of the eight top eight teams of the Big Ten--Purdue, Illinois, Iowa, and Western Michigan.

"We learned that we are very human," said Bayliss. One Irish player, however, is playing out of this world. Paul Odland, the No. 6 player, downed his three foes to capture his flight championship.

On the way to his victory Odland (5-1 for the season) conquered Greg Kennett of Illinois 6-4, 6-3 and Bryan Rusk of Iowa 6-3, 6-2. In the championship match Odland ignored a first set loss and responded with a 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 victory.

"Odlund carried the day," said Bayliss. "He did what he had to do to win."

In other singles competition, the Irish experienced some physically brutal matches. No. 1 player Dave DiLucia bruised his shoulder in his first match of the competition. He posted an overall record of 5-7 which placed him seventh in the number one flight.

Adding injury to injury, DiLucia was up 4-1 in the third match only to go on to drop the match, then Dolhare withdrew because of his ankle. But his replacement, Odlund, teamed with DiLucia to place third in the flight. The tandem of Paul Odland and Kennett of Illinois 6-2, 6-4, in the championship.

The No. 3 team of Mike Wallace and Dave Beiter won their flight in impressive fashion. They posted first and second round victories over Rits and Lynch of Purdue, 6-3, 6-2, and Fiedler-McKee of Wisconsin, 6-4, 7-6, 6-2, respectively. In their championship match, the combination defeated Kaska and Demarchi of Ball State 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

Boomer Esiason's three first-half touchdowns kept the Cincinnati Bengals as the NFL's only unbeaten team Sunday, while five more quar­ terbacks were sidelined with injuries.

The Bengals are 6-0, matching the best start in the team's history.

Esiason, the league's top­ rated passer, burned the New York Jets with touchdown pass plays of 60 and eight yards to Eddie Brown and 36 yards to Tim McGee to help the Bengals overcome a safety and fumbles that led to an early 9-0 lead by the Jets.

Cincinnati also got a pair of second-half touchdown runs from Ickey Woods, who carried 30 times for 139 yards--the first 100-yard game of the rookie's career.

The Jets, 3-3-1, took the lead when Esiason was sacked in the end zone by Lyons for a safety on Cincinnati's first play from scrimmage. On the Bengals' next offensive play, Stanley Wilson fumbled and Lyons recovered on the Cincinnati 7.

Roger Vick's 1-yard run gave the Jets a 9-6 lead.

Bears 24, Lions 7

Jim McMahon completed eight of 11 passes for 78 yards, including an 11-yard touch­ down to Dennis McKinnon, before leaving the game with a right concussion as Chicago defeated Detroit in Pontiac, Mich.

The Bears, 5-1, remained in first place in the NFC Central Division, while the Lions, 1-5, lost quarterback Chuck Long with a sprained knee.

Mike Tomczak replaced McMahon and completed 12 of 22 passes for 187 yards, including a 31­ yard touchdown pass to Ron Morris.

Rusty Hilger, who was signed Monday as a free agent, replaced Long and threw a 7­ yard touchdown pass to Pete Mandley for the Lions' only score.

Broncos 16, 49ers 13 OT

A 22-yard field goal by Rich Karlis, set up by cornerback Steve Wilson's interception, gave Denver an overtime vic­ tory over San Francisco 49ers, 4-2.

Steve Young, who took over at quarterback for the 49ers after Joe Montana left with bruised ribs, threw a pass from his 3-yard line and Wilson caught the ball after it went off the hands of receiver Jerry Rice. Wilson returned seven yards to the San Francisco 5. One play later, Karlis made the winning kick.

Playing at Milwaukee, Brett Favre led three second-half touchdowns and Green Bay intercepted five passes in its victory of the season.

Green Bay, 1-5, scored two touchdowns in the final five minutes of the second quarter for a 17-9 halftime lead. Pau­ lwood finished with a career-high 118 yards on 14 carries.

What’s the most feared football stadium in the United States? A 1967 College Football Association poll of the nation’s 10th Division I-A head coaches ranked LSU’s Tiger Stadium as No. 1. It’s doubtful Auburn coach Pat Dye would disagree.

His unbeaten Tigers went into Saturday night’s contest in Death Valley with the fourth-best offense in the nation and the third-best defense. They crawled out with a 7-6 defeat after LSU quarterback Tommy Hodson hit tailback Eddie Pul­ler with a dramatic fourth-down, 11-yard touchdown pass with 1:44 to play and David Brownwy kicked the extra point.

"I’m exhausted. I don’t have anything left," said Hodson, who was 6-for-14 for 74 yards on the final drive. "Talk about leaving it all on the field ... That’s the only pass I had left in me. If football was a five-down game, I don’t know if I had it in me.".

Auburn’s defense lived up to its billing. Despite the deafen­ning cheers from the crowd of 79,411, fourth-largest in Tiger Stadium history, LSU never got beyond its 44-yard line in the first half and managed only 54 yards of total offense in the first two periods.

Columbia 16, Princeton 13

The Losing Streak is over. The Lions won a game after five years and 44 games and against Solomon Johnson scored from the 2 with 5:13 to play.

Johnson’s touchdown run capped a 53-yard drive for Col­umbia, 1-3, against Princeton, 2-2, had taken a 13-9 lead. "This is what you dread," Princeton coach Steve Toshes said. "Life can be cruel. We were not the better team on the field today. They deserve the victory."

Greg Abbruzzese ran for 182 yards, leading Columbia to its first victory since a 21-18 defeat of Yale on Oct. 15, 1983.

The Lions had become the laughing stock of college football during the stretch — even on the Columbia campus. Fans unused to celebrating stormed onto the field, tore down both sets of goalposts and smeared themselves with mud at the final gun.

No. 2 UCLA 38, Oregon State 21

Troy Aikman completed 24 of 35 passes for 288 yards and four touchdowns in a duel with Beavers quarterback Erik Wil­helm.

"I think they’re a shoe-in for the conference title, but any­thing can happen in this league," said Wilhelm, who completed 28 of 46 passes for 309 yards and three touchdowns.

No. 3 Southern Cal 42, No. 18 Oregon 14

It was open season on the Ducks, who entered the game with the second-best defense in the Pac-10. But there was a good reason for what turned into a poor performance in the Coliseum.

“Our defense was on the field too long,” Oregon coach Rick Brooks said. “They eventually wore us down.”

Irish finish sixth behind Rice, Filar

By MARY GARINO
Sports Writer

There was good news and bad news for the Notre Dame women's cross country team as it placed sixth at the Notre Dame Invitational Friday.

The good news was the performances of Notre Dame's top three runners, Theresa Rice, Linda Filar and Lucy Nusrala. Rice, in her final home meet, finished third and recorded her best time ever at the Burke Memorial Golf Course, 19:32. Filar followed up on last week's encouraging effort by crossing the finish line in 19th place. Next was Nusrala, who was 13th.

The bad news is that the two runners who filled out the top 5 for the Irish, Terese Lemanski and Kevalene Ryan, came in 50th and 58th, respectively, giving Notre Dame a total of 134 points, 54 behind the champion, Ohio University. Women's coach Tim Connolly conceded that this has been a recurring problem for his team. "A couple of individuals ran well, but our fourth and fifth runners fell off," Connolly said. "It's the same thing every week."

Rice, a senior and the captain of the Irish squad, said that the team will be stronger when she and Jenny Ledrick return to form, and when Rice's recovery from an injury. Ledrick finished in 71st place out of the 90 runners in the Invitational, her first race this season, and Kibetlesit was a spectator.

Rice also said that the field was very competitive, although it was not as tough as last week's National Championships. Following Ohio U in the standings were Western Ontario, Michigan, Michigan State, Bowling Green and Kent State.

During the race, Rice, Filar and Nusrala ran the first mile together in the lead. Gradually some of the rest of the runners overtook them, but the trio stayed in contention.

"It was a comfortable first mile. We paced each other," said Rice. "The results were good."

For Rice, the results were better than good, they were outstanding. She was beaten only by two women from Wisconsin-Oshkosh, Tiffany Fox and Cheryl Niederberger. It was a fitting way for Rice to race for the last time at Notre Dame. "I was glad I ran as well as I did," she said.

Filar was also impressive. She came through for the Irish in the second consecutive meet, having finished 15th at the National Championships. She was third in 16 seconds. Filar had over 1000 meters and continued his impression and surprised a lot of the rest of the runners.

Connolly pointed out, however, that three good efforts are not enough to win races, especially against the quality teams in the Invitational. "It was not the front runners, but the gap in the between the first and fifth man."

The situation did not improve when junior Mike O'Connor, the number three runner for the Irish, was unable to finish the race due to a nagging leg injury.

"We have to run up to our capabilities and get healthy," Connolly continued. "Getting healthy is the most important thing. We have the capability to win this race."

The Irish now have a two-week break before facing USC away on October 22. What steps do the Irish take now to get back on track? "We are going to take these next two weeks and go back to the drawing board," said Ryan Cahill. "We need to get back to the fundamentals of training and racing and improve our weaknesses."

Hackett was a spectator for Rice, who was defending champion.

NEW YORK — Kirk Gibson homered with two outs in the 12th inning and Orel Hershiser, who twice failed to win games as a starter, got the final out as the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the New York Mets 5-4 to even the National League playoffs at two games apiece.

Hershiser, called into a bases-loaded, two-out situation as the seventh Dodgers pitcher of the day, got Kevin McReynolds on a pop fly to center fielder John Shelby.

Alejandro Pena got the victory with three innings of hitless relief as the Dodgers played without reliever Jay Howell. Howell was suspended Sunday for using an illegal substance in his glove. Howell, who led the Dodgers with 31 saves, was ejected in the eighth inning of Game 3 on Saturday when pine tar was found on the heel of his glove.

Howell was suspended for three days by NL president Bart Giamatti and would be eligible for Game 7, if the series goes that far.

Game 5 of the best-of-seven series is scheduled Monday at 12:08 p.m. EDT, giving the teams less than 12 hours to recover.

Mets starter Dwight Gooden carried a three-hitter, 4-2 lead into the ninth inning. But Gooden, who had walked four, threw two wild pitches and committed a balk, got into trouble again when he walked Shelby leading off the inning. Then Dodgers catcher Mike Scioscia homered into the right-field bullpen to tie it. It was the Dodgers' first home run in 47 innings, including the last 13 innings of the regular season.

The Mets rallied for victories in Games 1 and 3, but this time it was the Dodgers' turn.

Reliever Roger McDowell got the first two outs in the 12th before Gibson homered deep over the right field fence to break a 1-1 tie and send batting slump Gibson, who has been playing with a painful hamstrings strain, led the Dodgers with 25 homers but hadn't homered since Sept. 11.

Tim Leary, a 17-game winner for the Dodgers, attempted to close out the game in the bottom of the 12th. But Mackey Sasser and pinch-hitter Lee Mazzilli leading off the inning, the last to fail to get down a sacrifice bunt, filed out to left and former Met Jesse Orsello rescued.

Orozco walked Keith Hernandez on a 3-2 count to lead the bases, then got Darryl Strawberry on a popout to second.

Darryl Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds hit consecutive home runs off John Tudor in the fourth inning to give New York a 3-2 lead.

Burks' leadoff single in the eighth and Honeycutt immediately got Marty Barrett to ground into a double play. Eckersley pitched the ninth to get his fourth save of the season.

The Athletics missed a chance to sweep Oakland when John McNamara was fired at the All-Star break, could do little against Anderson, Canseco, the only hitless Oakland player in a 10-4 romp in Game 3, struck back with vengeance. He went 3-for-4 with a homer and double to wind up 5-for-16 in the series.

Canseco, the first player to hit 40 home runs and steal 40 bases in a season, singled in the eighth against Lee Smith, stole second and scored on Mark McGwire's single.

Oakland's other run came in the third. Walt Weiss and Carney Lansford singled and Dave Henderson, after failing to get down a sacrifice bunt, flied out to left and former Met Jesse Orsello rescued.

Irish escape Pitt with 30-20 victory
Panther errors open door for ND

By THERESA KELLY
Assistant Sports Editor

PITTSBURGH — For the Irish, it was case of three too many Notre Dame runners, too many fumbles and one too many men on the field. But Pitt couldn't take one less monkey off its back.

The Irish beat the Panthers 30-20 Saturday in the first-half sun and second-half drizzle at Pitt Stadium, taking advantage of three crucial Pitt miscues to break the Panthers' three-game winning streak over the Irish.

"It's like anything else," said Irish coach Lou Holtz. "You give someone a chance, and there's a chance they'll take advantage of it."

Tony Brooks, Mark Green and Tony Fried all scored touchdowns for the Irish. Pitt couldn't score.

"I couldn't believe it," Pitt punt returner Alonso Hampton said. "especially when I'm the one who is supposed to count the players. I didn't get it done, and it turned the game around. We always seem to make one little mistake, and the other team always seems to capitalize."

Other mistakes that Pitt would like to take back included the opening drive touchdown pass on the Notre Dame two-yard line. Richards was hit by Todd Lyght, coughed it up, and Pitt got the recovery.

"It was frustrating, because it really isn't on what happened," Dickerson said. "The rain had just started, but I can't really blame it on that. I guess I just didn't tuck it away. I couldn't believe it."

From the opening kickoff, it was a game they should have won. From the Irish point of view, they were happy to get out of Pittsburgh with a win. "Make no mistake, I'm proud of our team," said Holtz, who takes an undefeated team into the national rankings. "I think we were a little better, but we're not the usual '12 men on the field' 5-yard penalty."

"It's a low key error on our part," Pitt coach Mike Gottfried said. "It kept the drive alive for them, and they went and scored. It was a mistake that never should have happened."

On the first third-down situation after the Irish got the ball back, Pitt's 12-man penalty, one less man, and a 12-men penalty, block to free Tony Brooks for the touchdown. Then on third- and fourth-down from the Pitt 18, Banks bounced out of the hands of two Pitt defenders at the line of scrimmage and got the first down.

He did all this on the rain-soaked Pitt Stadium astroturf, running the risk that he could aggravate the sore knee. Yet he played like the same old Banks.

"I really wasn't thinking about my knee," said Banks. "But right now I think it's at the point where it's more mental than anything else. When you can't really think about what's hurting be- hind you, it's a lot easier."

I never thought about what this means to me," said Holtz. "I never thought about what this is going to do for this team."

The Turning Point came in the third quarter, Banks led the go-ahead scoring drive with a 30-yard reception, another reception for a first down on a third-and-six play, and the carry for the touchdown. On three rushes and two catches Banks took the football 41 of the final 43 yards.

"Coach Holtz never really told me I needed to play," said Banks. "It was just under- stood. A.J.'s been hurting. He's playing with a lot of pain, and he's doing a great job. It's just a question of how long he can last."

Banks also keyed Notre Dame's final drive which put the score out of reach at 30-20.

PITTSBURGH — You couldn't help but cringe when, on his first play since returning from a knee injury, fullback Braxton Banks took the fake from Michel and fumbled the ball across the Irish goal line, missed two chances to recovery it, and watched Irish cornerback Stan Smagala cover the ball for a touchdown.

"It was frustrating, because it really isn't on what happened," Dickerson said. "The rain had just started, but I can't really blame it on that. I guess I just didn't tuck it away. I couldn't believe it."

The score tied at 17 in the third quarter. Banks led the go-ahead scoring drive with a 30-yard reception, another reception for a first down on a third-and-six play, and the carry for the touchdown. On three rushes and two catches Banks took the football 41 of the final 43 yards.

"Coach Holtz never really told me I needed to play," said Banks. "It was just understood. A.J.'s been hurting. He's playing with a lot of pain, and he's doing a great job. It's just a question of how long he can last."

Banks also keyed Notre Dame's final drive which put the score out of reach at 30-20.
