Drug tests ordered for transportation workers by DOT

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Transportation Department on Monday ordered a wide range of drug testing, including random checks, for more than 4 million transportation workers from airline pilots and flight attendants to truckers and railroaders.

Transportation Secretary Jim Burleson said the transportation industries are no more immune to drug abuse than other parts of society, listing a series of accidents and other indicators he said shows narcotics to be a problem among truck and bus drivers, commercial pilots and railroad workers.

"The American people demand and expect a drug-free transportation system. These rules will take us as far as practically possible toward that goal," Burleson said at a news conference.

He acknowledged the tests, which take effect in a year, likely will be challenged in the courts.

The Supreme Court has before it two separate drug-testing cases, including one involving post-accident testing of railroad workers, that are expected to be decided next year.

After Burleson's announcement, the head of the 40,000-member Air Line Pilots Association vowed to go to Congress and to the federal courts to overturn the requirement for random testing.

"Random testing is a counter-productive, shotgun strategy that is at the same time an unwarranted invasion of privacy and of no significant value in the battle against drug abuse," said ALPA President Henry Duffy.

The series of federal regulations estimated by Burleson will cost businesses more than $2.1 billion during the first 10 years, but Burleson said the testing will save the same companies about $8.7 billion in increased productivity, accident reductions and medical cost savings.

Besides requiring random checks, the regulations call for

Senate exams hall formals, phone books

A resolution concerning the limiting of residence hall formals was passed by the Fall Board of Trustees.

The resolution, formed mainly by the four student senators, stated that since alcohol has been officially eliminated at formals and formals are a "vital part of Notre Dame hall and social life," their numbers should not be limited by the University Administration.

"Students have really communicated to us that this decision was a major flaw in the Alcohol Policy and a step in the wrong direction," commented Tom Raak and Mark Chapman.

The senators met with Father David Tyson, who recommended that they use the "proper channels" such as the senate, Hall Presidents' council, and the Campus Life Council to show their dissatisfaction with the decision to limit hall formals to one per semester.

Student Senate also approved the use of the Notre Dame Hall and Social Life at Notre Dame.

These reports are very, very good. They address crucial aspects of life here at Notre Dame and suggest some possible possibilities for change," said Student Body Vice-President Mike Paese.

A "Civil War" was announced between North and South quads to support the United Way. Money will be collected through the donation of anniversary, during dinner, with the most generous squad winning the war.

Finally, the long-awaited campus phone directories should be in the dorms by the end of the week.
Secret admirers ads work wonders for social life

The focus of this article is a true Notre Dame institution: The Observer personal ads. Every day at lunch, most of the majority read through these ads. Although there are a wide variety, certain ones stand out: the "secret admirer" ads.

In the essence of true equality, the secret admirer in the personal ads do not discriminate against either sex. As you've read, the recipients range from the "guy who works the salad bar at South on Monday nights" to the "gorgeous redhead in a green dress who was buying shampoo at the bookstore yesterday."

The requests following these descriptive introductions vary as well. While some proclaim passionate love, others simply offer compliments or attempt to arrange a future rendezvous. The primary goal, however, is to receive some form of response from the object of your attention.

Of course, personal ads which read "Will the beautiful Brunette in Dr. Freeman's 8 a.m. class, who wore spandex pants and a blue sweater to class Monday, meet me for an unforgettable night of passion?" tend to go unanswered. While some personal ads are entered jokingly, others are placed by people with genuine interest in meeting a specific someone.

I recently tried this method myself. While studying on the 12th floor of the library last Sunday, I noticed an extremely attractive girl with golden blonde hair sitting only a few tables away. Most great girls will probably say, "Big deal, there's plenty of great-looking girls in the "brave every day!" It wasn't just her looks though--she had this smile that could knock you out.

So I placed a personal to her the next day. At this point, I decided to go all out and call her. I quickly rejected the idea of walking up to her and saying, "Wow, you look great! Let's take a walk and get to know each other." I could only picture two responses to this approach: being ignored or being laughed out of your Nikes.

Not being one to make an idiot of myself if I can help it, I rejected the idea of walking up to her and saying, "Wow, you look great! Let's take a walk and get to know each other." I could only picture two responses to this approach: being ignored or being laughed at. In my case, while I was weren't just her looks at all--this girl's looks and personality and character--and this is someone I would have never met in person, someone who first approached her through a personal ad.

For any girls out there who don't think that's too tough, how many of you "screen" prospective STI days in the doghouse before answering "yes?" or "Sorry, but I'm taking a trip to Iowa State that weekend." In all fairness, though, guys often do the same thing. The key is to be open-minded and maybe even a little adventurous.

Granted, walking up to someone on the quad or sending a personal are not "safe things," but they can work. In my case, while I was initially impressed by this girl's looks and smile, I was even more impressed with her personality and character--and this is someone I had never met in my previous two years here. At the very worst, I made a great new friend--an accomplishment I'd be proud of any day.

Take a chance! There's always almost that special someone you've wanted to meet, but never have. Take a small risk. The payoff can be great!

We ended up seeing a movie, one of the most reliable forms of entertainment around. Needless to say, I had a great time and I think she enjoyed herself, too, but that's not the point of this story. Regardless of whether I ever "cut out" with her again, she'll have my respect and admiration. Think about it for a second. This girl was willing to go out with someone she had never met in person, someone who first approached her through a personal ad.

Bush seeks to minimize world financial market jitters

Associated Press

GULF STREAM, Fla.—George Bush, seeking to calm world financial market fears about his forthcoming presidency, said today that he will continue the Reagan administration policy of coordinated intervention with U.S. allies in exchange markets when major currencies rise or fall too quickly.

The president-elect sought to minimize the weakening of the dollar against the Japanese yen and German mark and the plunge of the stock market since his election last Tuesday, saying "These gyrations happen."

Bush working on senior Cabinet posts; Brady will most likely stay at Treasury

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—President-elect George Bush plans to consider candidates this week for his senior Cabinet posts, and a list of three to five names is being drawn up for each, aides said Monday.

Bush will return to Washington from a Florida vacation on Tuesday. He is expected to announce that Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady, a longtime adviser and friend, will remain in his job after Jan. 20, when the Bush administration begins.

Leaders of Bush’s transition team said the president-elect wants to consider four or five senior cabinet choices this week. They said he especially wants to assemble his economic team rapidly, which also is likely to include former Deputy Treasury Secretary Richard Darman as budget chief, and Stanford University Professor Michael Boskin as chief economic adviser.

"I think that the economic team, under the circumstances, would be one you’d want to pay attention to early on," said Robert Teeter, a co-director of the transition with Craig Fuller.

Bush has no timetable for making appointments, and will announce them as decisions are made, Fuller said. Bush already has named former Treasury Secretary James Baker III as the new secretary of state.

Bush fueled speculation about Cabinet leaders when he named New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu to a private dinner Monday night at his vacation quarters. Sununu is mentioned as a leading candidate to be Bush’s chief of staff. So is Fuller.

Bush also did nothing to dampen speculation that the White House would be run by a power-sharing triumvirate—Sununu, Fuller and Teeter.
We're Giving Your Parents A Thanksgiving Break

So You Can Own A Macintosh™!

Before you go home this Thanksgiving, head over to your campus resale center for a Student Loan-To-Own application. Break the news to your parents about the student deal of a lifetime! It's an opportunity for you to get an Apple Macintosh — the computer you really want for only $30.00 a month.

With your parents' signature, you can own a Macintosh computer. Apple's Student Loan-To-Own Program makes buying a Macintosh as easy as using one.

Simply pick up a loan application at the address listed below, or call 800-831-LOAN to receive one in the mail.

Your parents need only to fill out the application, sign it and send it. If they qualify, they'll receive a check in just a few weeks for you to purchase your Macintosh.

The big break is you don't have to prove financial hardship or offer collateral. Best of all, the loan payments can be spread out over as many as 10 years.

Isn't this just the break you've been looking for?

Catholic bishops to speak out on issues

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- The nation's Roman Catholic bishops on Monday recommitted themselves to speaking out fearlessly on public issues in the new Bush administration while grudgingly bowing to Vatican intervention on a church matter.

The President of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, Archbishop John May of St. Louis, opened the group's annual meeting by congratulating President-elect George Bush on last week's victory.

But he quickly added that the bishops, convinced despite criticism that there's no such thing as "too much social consciousness," would continue to tackle heated public issues as they did repeatedly during the Reagan administration.

"Our voices will not be heard only in praise and appreciation," he said.

May and other leaders of the bishops' conference played down talk of new controversy between them and the Vatican, but most of the discussion at Monday's session revolved around two issues:

- A last-minute intervention by the Vatican that will keep the group from voting this week on guidelines for resolving disputes with theologians, a document several years in preparation.

- The bishops' own proposed rejection of a draft Vatican document that seems to greatly limit the theological authority of conferences such as the American bishops' meeting that human rights will continue to be a source of disagreement between the United States and Soviet Union.

Quayle to resign Senate seat early

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- Vice President-elect Dan Quayle announced Monday he intends to resign his Senate seat in time to give his successor a jump in seniority over the new class of lawmakers being sworn in Jan. 3.

Quayle said he had "no recommendations" to make on a successor when he met privately with Indiana Gov. Robert Orr, who will make the appointment. "I evaluated everyone from top to bottom," he told reporters afterward.

Orr, a Republican, stressed that the decision would be his to make, and said he and Quayle "talked about a whole lot of people. That's confidential."

The list of possible successors includes Rep. Dan Coats, a former aide to Quayle who holds the House seat once occupied by Quayle; Indiana House Speaker Paul Manweller and Mitchell Daniels, a former White House political director with close ties to Sen. Richard Lugar.

Other names mentioned include Marion County Prosecutor Steve Goldsmith; Lt. Gov. John Mutz, who was defeated in the election for governor last week, and Indianapolis Mayor William Hudnut.

Others whose names have cropped up include former Indiana Secretary of State Edwin Simcox, one-time Environmental Protection Administration chief William Ruckelshaus and Rep. Dan Burton.

Quayle's wife, Marilyn, has passed up several opportunities to say whether reports of her interest in the seat are true, although the vice president-elect told reporters that she intends to issue a statement shortly.

Speculation on a new Indiana senator picked up Monday as President-elect George Bush said in Florida that he had "no specifics yet" on the duties Quayle will hold in the new administration.

Bush said his campaign pledge that Quayle will head a space council stands.

Quayle will play reduced role in new administration, experts say

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- Dan Quayle is likely to be a "man on the outside" in George Bush's White House if Quayle follows the usual vice presidential candidacy that began in a furor but settled into obscurity, experts say.

Encumbered by his image as a political novice who needed a bevy of professional handlers to survive early campaign controversies, Quayle is likely to be given a traditional ceremonial role—going to political gatherings and state funerals—rather than the advisory role that Walter Mondale and Al Gore had, some scholars feel.

"Dan Quayle is going to set the process back about a decade or more. One thing that political scientists have been talking about is just how much the vice presidency has grown . . . With Quayle, it's just going to retreat to the old obscurity, experts say.

But Eddie Mahe Jr., a GOP consultant who worked with the Bush campaign, says Bush is likely to give Quayle a more active role in the administration than he had in the campaign.

"Vindication demands that. Both of them will want to prove how right the decision was," Mahe says.

Democrats portrayed Quayle during the campaign as a lightweight, a man with little legislative accomplishments, untested and unqualified to be a heartbeat away from the presidency. Even some members of Quayle's own party were dismayed at Bush's choice.

Quayle didn't help his case by making a number of celebrated gaffes during the campaign.

Detectives search for more bodies in California

Associated Press

SACRAMENTO, Calif.— Detectives armed with steel probes found a sixth body Monday in the yard of a Victorian rooming house run by a missing landlady who had told a social worker she took in elderly boarders as a way to repay society.

The sixth corpse—unidentified like the others—was discovered shortly after digging resumed Monday morning. It was "wrapped in some type of clothing," and buried in a shallow grave under a shed, said police Sgt. Bob Burns. The cause of death was not immediately known.

On Monday, 200 spectators watched from behind police lines as investigators worked at the grounds of the home. Authorities say there could be eight bodies buried.

Bums said police are still searching for the landlady, Dorothea Montalvo Puente, 59. Burns said investigators were told she ran a board and care home eight or nine years ago about eight blocks away, and authorities were interviewing tenants and neighbors there. There were no immediate plans to dig at that property, Bums said.

Authorities issued an all-points bulletin for Puente, who disappeared Friday. Friday night, detectives interviewed her for several hours and released her for lack of evidence.

Authorities believe the victims, apparently all low-income elderly people and all residents of the eight-room Victorian home downtown, were killed for their Social Security checks.

at colleges and universities across the nation. The organization's main branch is in Washington, D.C.

Krier said he decided to form a chapter at Notre Dame after reading a pamphlet at Vanderbilt University, where his brother was a UCAM officer.

Herold and Krier formed the group at Notre Dame this fall with the help of Mike Affleck, coordinator of peace programming and education at the Center for Social Concerns. The group's 20 members range from freshmen to graduate students, Krier said.

"UCAM has no one, set political opinion. It has mixed members who are highly motivated," Herold said, adding that most people are interested in the group "once they find out it's not ultra liberal."

Last night Goldrick stressed the need for students to get to know their professors on a more casual basis outside the classroom because, he said, it is often difficult for professors to interact with every student in a class of hundreds.

The university has had a difficult time developing the extra-curricular academic life on campus, Malloy said.

"Since much of our day is devoted to the classroom... we tend to think of the dorm as a place to escape and get away from that routine. To present opportunities for intellectual development in that kind of a climate is not always so easy," said Malloy.

Thomas Morris, a fellow for both Flanner and Pasquerilla West Halls, expressed his enthusiasm for the fellow program and said he "relished the opportunity to be involved."

The interaction of students and faculty on a casual basis allows for the "looseness of exchange of ideas that you don't get in the classroom," said Morris, an associate professor of philosophy.

"My idea of classroom teaching is that the disease in the classroom ought to be contagious. You want to take it back with you to the dorm." Morris said he especially enjoyed a viewing of clips from Woody Allen films and a discussion of the philosophical and religious questions of the films with Flanner and Pasquerilla West residents.

Fr. Oliver Williams, an in-residence hall fellow at Flanner, said he is optimistic about the future of the hall fellow program.

"We're just beginning this but I think it can be very successful. It really does enhance the intellectual atmosphere on campus," Williams said.

drug testing before employment, periodically during annual physicals if there is reasonable cause to suspect drug use and after an accident. The drugs covered by the tests are marijuana, cocaine, opiates, amphetamines and PCP.

The random testing provision, which requires that at least 50 percent of a given workforce be tested during a single year, has attracted the loudest protests from the unions. They argue that such tests constitute an invasion of privacy and have minimal benefit.

You don't need your parents' money to buy a Macintosh.

It's never been difficult for students to convince their parents of the need for a Macintosh computer at school.

Persuading them to write the check, however, is another thing altogether.

Which is why Apple created the Student Loan-to-Own Program. An ingenious loan program that makes buying a Macintosh as easy as using one.

If they qualify, they'll receive a check for you in just a few weeks. There's no collateral. No need to prove financial hardship. No application fee.

Best of all, the loan payments can be spread over as many as 10 years.

Which gives you and your parents plenty of time to decide just who pays for it all.

Students should be open to honor code

Dear Editor:

Garry Volan in his column of Nov. 2, makes the point that the Honor Code works at other schools because students respect the Code, and that it is what is needed for the Notre Dame Honor Code at this time. Respect means giving the respect needed for the code to work. In the Academic Council meeting in April 1987, an unopposed voice vote approved this experimental period, which "will serve to publicize and increase awareness of the Honor Code. It will be a catalyst for discussion and will educate the campus community about the positive and negative aspects."

We recognize that more education is needed, not just for students, but for the entire community. The University Honor Code Committee is currently compiling a handbook explaining the Honor Code, and it will be distributed in the spring semester. Any suggestions and ideas still have the final say.

In reference to Mr. Volan’s insistence that the Code is inconsistent with the social life at the University, our response is simply that the Honor Code had to start somewhere. Obviously, since it has encountered resistance already, thrusting it upon students in every aspect of their lives would have been a mistake. The codes at Haverford, Brigham Young University, Washington and Lee, and the military academies which govern all aspects of student life are based upon established traditions. We do not have the necessary foundation of tradition. We have a new honor code and it give it a chance before a tradition can possibly be established.

During the next few years, students will be educated about the Code so that they can responsibly decide for themselves. We urge students to try to keep an open mind about the Honor Code and not to be prejudiced one way or the other until they understand it. Obviously, Gregory Volan has tried to come to terms with the Honor Code and has made an educated decision about it. We thank him and respect him for it.

Quote of the Day

"I don't know what your destiny will be, but one thing I know: the only ones among you who will be really happy are those who have sought and found how to serve."

— Albert Schweitzer
The Queen of Scholars Graduate Campus was completed as an architectural design for six graduate schools to be located to the north of St. Joe's Lake, as is indicated in the inset photograph at left. The construction of the “Mod Quad” was the product of a $52 million development program from 1967 to 1972 called “SUMMA: Notre Dame’s Greatest Challenge.” Aimed at increasing the size of the Notre Dame campus, the project was to allocate $9 million for the construction of six new high-rise residence halls. The Queen of Scholars Graduate Campus was located immediately north of St. Joe’s Lake and included a 100-foot-high white marble column, surmounted by a statue of Our Lady, the Queen of Scholars, and surrounded by three concentric marble colonnades encompassing statues of past and future great world educators.

The Queen of Scholars Graduate Campus was also to include a graduate administration building, a theater and gymnasium, a church, a women's dormitory, a visiting bachelor faculty living quarters building including transient hotel accommodations for 100 people, a sports area, and a faculty housing and club area. The proposed Ellerbe Projection was to be located directly north of the Memorial Library. The two towers in the foreground, Grace and Flanner, were the only buildings to see reality.

The potential to revolutionize the graduate program at Notre Dame. This potential was embodied in the Queen of Scholars Commission. The Commission was set up to enhance the relationship of Notre Dame to the entire academic world through a variety of programs. It was to annually award ten monetary grants of $5,000 each (not adjusted for inflation) to select scholars or educators throughout the world who contributed most during the year to the fields of scholarship and education.

The selection of a scholar or educator to receive one of these awards was to be made by a committee of the Queen of Scholars. The select scholar was to receive a monetary grant of $5,000 each year for five years. The Queen of Scholars Graduate Campus, the Holy Cross Community Area – to be entirely autonomous in their own settings and administration. Each was designed to have the potential to expand in future years. It seems fairly obvious why the Queen of Scholars Graduate Campus never became a reality. The Lady of the Lake, as the King’s namesake, was probably due to financial constraints. Nonetheless, the Lady of the Lake, as the King’s namesake, was probably due to financial constraints. Aim could excel at more sports than just football

Combine the size and strength of a weightlifter with the height and agility of a basketball player, and you've got some idea of the threat Jeff Aim poses to opposing quarterbacks.

Standing 6-7, 240-pound junior defensive tackle has been a disruptive force in opposing backfields this season, stuffing opposing blockers and applying pressure on quarterbacks. He also has created something of a question mark prior to the season's end.

"It's a new defensive line," said the Orland Park, Ill. native. "We've changed the way we're hitting this year. We tend to hit people in the face this year," he said. "If we get the quarterback know that we're out there and we're trying to get him.

"I think we've been slowly proving we can do it. I think that Chris and I have to put pressure on the quarterback and try to get a hand up in his face," said Aim. "If we can, we can sack him. But I think the most important thing is just to keep the quarterback know that we're gonna have to do something to stop us.

Aim credits Palermo for setting up the defensive line, considering something of a question mark prior to the season's end.

Alm has made his presence felt on the Notre Dame defensive line this season. Alm has recorded two key interceptions in wins over Miami football player right now," said Palermo. "I think he understands the game fairly well. With his size and development, the best way for him to show his abilities was to move him down inside.

Considered one of the top 16 players in the nation according to United Press International's 1985 prep talent survey, Alm had been plagued by a season. Alm has been moved to the defensive tackle. Recruited to Notre Dame, but everything seems to have come together in 1986. He is enjoying his season's finest to date, and has earned the respect of his coaches to boot.

"Going into spring football last spring, Jeff had a history of being injured and basically not performing up to his abilities," said Palermo. "I think what he did was to make a commitment in the springtime that he was going to be the best player he could be. I think he really wants to help this football team.

"Going into spring football last spring, Jeff had a history of being injured and basically not performing up to his abilities," said Palermo. "I think what he did was to make a commitment in the springtime that he was going to be the best player he could be. I think he really wants to help this football team.
Doug Rader, calling his new job a "dream opportunity," was named manager of the Califor­nia Angels Monday. Rader, 44, a former Texas Rangers manager and Gold Glove-winning third baseman for the Houston Astros, worked as a scout for the Angels during the 1986 season. He replace Cookie Rojas, who was fired late in the season. Rader is the 12th manager in the club's 28-year history.

"There are not many people who love baseball who wouldn't be ecstatic, not only to be a part of this organization, but to get the job I have been given," Rader said during a news con­ference to announce his hiring. Rader, who will work with "not excellent talent, but good enough to get us headed in the right direction," said his top priority was getting the players to realize their potential.

"The Dodgers are a perfect example," Rader said of the team up the freeway that won the Penn­ant, but reports say the game was beaten. "We interviewed quite a few men who wanted to manage here and I can truthfully say they were all qualified," Autry said. "We got it down to one guy and I think we made a very good choice." "The selection process went on longer than we had hoped," General Manager Mike Port said. "There were a lot of good baseball people interviewed. We have the man we want." Rader was appointed Rang­ers' manager in the winter of 1962. He had a 77-85 record and finished third in the American League West in 1983. He was fired by the Rangers in 1985 after the team started the season 9-23. He has a major league managing record of 156-201, in­cluding a 1-1 record while serv­ing as interim manager for the Chicago White Sox in 1986. Rader played 10 seasons with three major league clubs; Houston, San Diego and Toronto. He was with the Astros for more than eight seasons.

He won five consecutive Gold Glove Awards (1979-83), and hit 20 or more homers three times. The Angels fired Rojas with eight games remaining in the 1988 season and replaced him on an interim basis with third base coach Moose Stubing. The Angels lost all eight games un­der Stubing and finished the season with a 12-game losing streak and a 75-87 record, for fourth place in the AL west, 29 games behind Oakland. Others considered for the job included former Angels' manager Jim Fregosi and former Cleveland manager Pat Corrales.

"There is truly something special about going here and graduating from here," said Buoniconti. Buoniconti constantly deflections attention away from his abilities and other clubs did not.

Rader said his contract with the Angels was for one year, and he was retaining the club's coaching staff. Angels owner Gene Autry said several people were inter­ested in the managerial job.

"We interviewed quite a few men who wanted to manage here and I can truthfully say they were all qualified," Autry said. "We got it down to one guy and I think we made a very good choice." Hockey continued from page 16 game. Kneal put the Irish ahead 2-1, getting assists from Robert Copeland and manneke. But three straight Falcon power play goals in the next 11 minutes effectively put the Irish away.

"This is the Year of Cultural Diversity here at Notre Dame," said Schafer. "We could sure use a few Swedes, Russians and Canadians to shore up our defense. But for now, we've just got to get ready for Lake Forest." The Irish battle the Foresters in a home-and-home series beginning at Notre Dame this Friday night.
Buffalo routs Miami

Associated Press

MIAMI - Ronnie Harmon ran for one touchdown and caught a 16-yard pass from Jim Kelly for another and Robb Riddick had two 1-yard scoring runs as the Buffalo Bills maintained the NFL's best record by beating Miami 31-6 Monday night.

It was the sixth straight win for the Bills, 10-1, who maintained their lead of four games over New England in the AFC East with five games to go.

The Bills, who intercepted Dan Marino three times, scored on their first possession of the game. They led 10-6 at halftime and, relying mainly on a defense led by Bruce Smith, Cornelius Bennett and Art Still that held Miami to just 33 yards rush­ing, the Bills handed the Dol­phins their worst defeat since 1970.

Then they put the game away with two touchdowns 2 1/2 minutes apart in the third quarter.

The first score, with 5:33 left in the period, came on Riddick's 1-yard plunge at the end of an 80-yard drive aided by two Miami penalties. The second was a 6-yard run by Harmon set up by Bennett's interception and 30-yard return of a Marino pass on Miami's first play after the kickoff.

The Bills' 10-1 record represents their best start since 1964 and the six-game winning streak is their longest since 1974.

Coach K not exactly pleased as AP tabs Duke No. 1 team

Associated Press

Duke, a Final Four team two of the last three seasons, was named the No. 1 team Monday in The Associated Press' preseason college basketball poll.

The Blue Devils, who finished fifth in the final regular-season poll of the season and went on to the Final Four and a semifinal loss to eventual champion Kansas, received 33 first-place votes and easily out ­ distanced No. 2 Georgetown, which had eight first-place votes.

Duke, which last held the top ranking over the final three polls of the 1985-86 season—another in which it reached the Final Four—finished with 1,257 points from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, well ahead of the Hoyas' 1,107.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski wasn't overly pleased at being No. 1.

"If you're ranked very high early, there's a tendency to think you've already accomplished something, and you really haven't accomplished anything," he said.

Michigan, Louisville and Oklahoma—the latter two of last season's Final Four—rounded out the Top Five in a voting that showed the quick turns of the fortunes of col­ egiate basketball programs.

Five teams from last season's final poll—Purdue, Kentucky, Bradley, Wyoming and Xavier, Ohio—did not even receive a vote in the preseason balloting and another, Kansas State, got just one.

Kansas, which wasn't expected to fare that well following the graduation of Danny Manning, the NBA's No. 1 draft choice and the player most re­ 15ponsible for the Jayhawks' title. However, a three-year probation for recruiting violations was handed down to Kansas and the Jayhawks will not defend their title in the NCAA tournament.

Nine of the teams in the preseason poll, including Georgewton, were unranked in the final poll of last season.

Eight teams received first­ place votes and 51 of the 293 Division I teams eligible for recieving votes did.

Michigan received four first­ place votes and 1,096 points, 74 more than Louisville, which got seven No. 1 votes. Oklahoma had nine first-place votes and 1,061 points.

North Carolina was sixth with three No. 1 selections and 915 points, just four more than Iowa, which had two first-place votes. One point separated No. 8 Syracuse, 852 points, and II­ nisus, while Nevada-Las Vegas, the final team to receive a No. 1 vote, rounded out the Top Ten with 811 points.

Arizona—the final member of last year's Final Four—led the Second Ten with 650 points and was followed by Villanova, Georgia Tech, Missouri, Florida, Florida State, Ohio State, North Carolina State, Temple and Stanford.

Temple was the top team in the final poll of last season, but the Owls, who lost to Duke in the regional finals, lost three starters from the 32-2 team that brought the school its first No. 1 ranking.

Georgetown and Louisville are the only members of the Top Ten not to have finished in the Top Twenty of last season but Villanova, Georgia Tech, Missouri, Florida, Florida State and Stanford were not in that voting. In fact, Stanford and Florida were unranked at any time last season.

In addition to those mentioned above, Pittsburgh, Loyola Marymount, and Brigham Young did not return to the Top Twenty.

ND, Trojans retain top spots

Associated Press

Notre Dame and Southern California are within one step of a showdown between the nation’s No. 1 and No. 2 college football teams while Arkansas made the Top Ten for the first time this season and Houston cracked the Top Twenty after an eight-year absence.

Houston, which last appeared in Associated Press poll in September 1980, upped its record to 7-2 by defeating previously unbeaten Wyoming 34-10 Saturday night and dropping the Cowboys from 10th place to 16th.

Notre Dame, idle last weekend, received 18 of its first-place votes and 1,156 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. The 9-0 Irish, who play Penn State on Saturday, are No. 1 for the third consecutive week.

Southern Cal, a 5-0 winner over Arizona State, received 18 first-place votes and 1,331 points. The Trojans, also 9-0, are No. 2 for the third week in a row. They face No. 6 UCLA on Saturday and Notre Dame on Nov. 26.

Last week also saw 59 voters participating, Notre Dame led USC 42-3 in first-place votes and 1,181-122 in points. For the last three weeks, Notre Dame’s lead has decreased from 47 points to 25.

The other first-place ballot went to defending national champion Miami, which was idle last week. The Hurricanes, 7-1-0, received 1,060 points.

Unbeaten West Virginia, 10-0-0, remained No. 4 with 877 points following a 35-25 triumph over Rutgers. For the first time in three weeks, however, the Mountaineers failed to receive a first-place vote.

Basketball—the one that thought Jamere Jackson was too young to run for president—will jump from his seat and start yelling this time. Digger says the Duke recruit those players, but it did not mean something after the poor start by the NFL squad.

Digger will be the first to admit that Stevenson could have played. The Trojans, also 9-0, in losses to Duke and Kentucky last week. Digger says the Duke students would have greeted Stevenson with shopping bags and beer cans in the other. Maybe Kentucky and Kansas would opt for the championship or a little embarrassment, but Notre Dame and Digger never have and never will.

"It cost us three big games," Digger said of the Stevenson ordeal. "But do we sacrifice what we are as a University to be No. 1 at any cost? We refuse to do that at any cost. We will not put our- selves in a position where the athlete is bigger than the University."

In terms of the things that supposedly count, like graduation and preparation for the real world, Digger has the top program in the country. In terms of the marks under the win column that students and fans count, Digger somehow comes up Harry. That could change soon, especially as Proposition 48 begins to take full effect.

Before Proposition 48, athletes could get an ‘A’ in P.E. and still play. Notre Dame couldn’t recruit those players, but it did have to play against them. Now the Irish can be competitive again, both on the court and in recruiting.

"We’re looking beyond just getting into the tournament," Digger says. "We’re now getting competitive with the type of athlete we have. It’s starting to swing back for us."

It's unofficially official: top-ranked Notre Dame will meet No. 2 West Virginia in the Fiesta Bowl at Sun Devil Stadium in Tempe, Ariz. Athletic Director Dick Rosenthal met Monday with University of Cincinnati President Wa­ther William Beauchamp and Irish head coach Lou Holtz and decided Notre Dame would ac­cept the Fiesta Bowl bid when it is officially extended Satur­day.

Two newspapermen, the Mor­gantown Dominion Post and Charleston Daily Mail, re­ported Monday that West Virginia officials had a similar tele­phone call from the Mountaineers that Moun­tainaineers will be extended a Fiesta Bowl bid regardless of the outcome of Saturday's final regular-season game against 13th-ranked Syracuse.

The Fiesta Bowl has indi­cated its interest in both the Mountaineers (10-4) and the Irish (9-6) in a mid-season, and now can only hope the teams remain undecided to set up a game for the national championship.

"We made clear to the conclusion that, if we were in­vited after Saturday's game (against Penn State), we would choose to go to the Fiesta Bowl," Rosenthal said. "They called us great, but they will aim at the highest-ranked opponent for us to play." But although Fiesta Bowl of­ficial Bill Shover called a Notre Dame-West Virginia game "a done deal," Rose­enthal said bids are not officially ex­tended until Saturday.

"We're the best who gets invited to dinner," Rosen­thal said, "you can't tell them what to serve." But the Dominion Post said Notre Dame's executive director, will be at Mountaineer Field to an­nounce that Notre Dame's New Year's feast includes West Vir­ginia.

An unnamed source in the Daily Mail confirmed that the outcome of Saturday's game will decide which opponent the Iowa State coach chooses to go to the Fiesta Bowl and is going to play Notre Dame.

The Fiesta Bowl offers an es­timated payout of $3 million per team.

"We haven't discussed num­bers with them," Rosenthal added. He also said the large number of Notre Dame alumni in the Southwest and West and the fact the Irish have never played in the Fiesta Bowl make Tempe an attractive site.

Holtz said he was willing to accept whatever decision Rosenthal and Beauchamp made, preferring to concen­trate his own efforts on the up­coming games against Penn State (Saturday) and at South­ern (Tuesday) this week.

"I sat down and talked with Father Beauchamp and Dick Rosenthal," Holtz said. "I told them I was more interested in see­ing the Irish," Monday, November 15, 1988

Falcons gain revenge on ND hockey squad

By PETE SKIKO
Assistant Sports Editor

The Air Force Falcons gained a measure of revenge against the Notre Dame hockey team over the weekend, pick­ing up a 4-6 tie and a 6-2 win over the Irish in two-game series in Colorado Springs, Co.

Notre Dame had swept the Falcons in an emotion-packed pair of games at the JACC last year, and Air Force apparently was not ready to forget about it. Peppering Irish goaltender Lance Madson with shots and taking advantage of seemingly countless defensive miscues, the Falcons never let up with the exception of the third period of Friday night's thrill­ing overtime tie.

Down 6-3 heading into the final period, the Irish rallied to forge a tie behind goals from Chris Olson, Matt Hanzel and Dave Kuehl, and Hanzel scored just 22 seconds left in regulation and Madson stopped 37 Falcon at­tempts, including six-of-eight power play, I wouldn't have hit him. Redsaid Schafer, "but this weekend we picked up a lot of no-nonsense penalties that led to goals. We can't afford to be a man short against teams that can and will capitalize. Again, if it weren't for the fantastically

Buoniconti at charity tourney

By BOB MITCHELL
Sports Writer

Football, the game which Nick Buoniconti played with a passion for Notre Dame (1962-1961) and the NFL, crippled his 22-year-old body on October 26, 1985. In Buoniconti style, the 1961 co-captain and All­American had not lost faith, but went out and did something about the situation.

As a result, Nick Buoniconti returned to his alma mater this weekend to off Notre Dame's participation in a na­tional campaign to find a cure for spinal cord injuries. Students and staff competed in the "USFG sugar Bowl Flag Football Tournament" held in the Loftus Student Center.

"If I felt helpless when I saw my son lying in bed," said Buoniconti, "I had no accom­modation to him that research will go on to get him out of that wheelchair." Indeed it has. Since 1965 the drive to cure paralysis has found a straight road. Prior to 1965, research was practically non-existent but today in the Miami Project there are 60 scientists working 24 hours a day in 25 laboratories. The Miami Project which spends three and half million dollars a year is the center for paralysis research in the United States.

As time goes on, the cure becomes closer," said a deter­mined Buoniconti, a former lawyer and president of a Fortu­nate 500 company. Athletic director Richard Rosenthal was thrilled that Buoniconti played with a wheelchair. "Marc, now a full time student at the University of Miami, does his own part to help raise funds for the Miami Project. Marc, a psychology major, went to Dallas Texas last weekend and raised $30,000 for the Miami Project," said Buoniconti.

Nick Buoniconti is quick to point out that he is very grate­ful for Notre Dame's help in his quest to help the disabled.

"We will participate in the drive as long as the project goes on," said Rosenthal. "It is a genuine thank-you to the Notre Dame student body which evidences that Notre Dame cares. Just as it shows that Notre Dame is helping to solve problems in society." In recognition of Buoniconti's exemplary com­munity service, Rosenthal pre­sented the Miami resident with a plaque.

"I will treasure it and put it in a place of honor. My son, Marc, will treasure it also." At Notre Dame, students need only to walk five minutes to the JACC, write a check and be guaranteed a reserved seat for all 17 games. Maybe that's just too easy.

Digger deserves better from Irish student body

At Duke, students stand in line all night—sometimes all week—for a chance to see their beloved Blue Devils on the basketball court. At Indiana, students stay up all night for a chance to buy tickets for half of the Hoosier games.

At Notre Dame, students need only to walk five minutes to the JACC, write a check and be guaranteed a reserved seat for all 17 games. Yet still, that's just too easy.

Greg Guffey Sports Writer

At most other schools, students stand for the entire game no matter how lopsided the contest may be. At Notre Dame, however, students and fans try to avoid being a part of a lopsided Irish rout.
