The Soviet space shuttle Buran, which means snowstorm in Russian, lifts off from its launch pad Tuesday in Baikonur, USSR. The unmanned shuttle, orbited the Earth twice during its three hour, 25 minute maiden flight.

Soviets launch shuttle

Associated Press

MOSCOW-- The Soviets broke the U.S. monopoly on reusable spacecraft Tuesday by launching their own space shuttle on a three-and-one-half hour unmanned orbital flight that President Mikhail Gorbachev hailed as a major coup for his space program.

"The space plane has ushered in a new era in the history of Soviet space exploration," state-run Radio Moscow declared after the 190-ton Buran made two orbits, streaked earthward in a fireball and landed at a specially built runway in Soviet Central Asia on its maiden mission.

The pilotless flight of the Buran "snowstorm" in Buran was a major success for the Soviet space program after a series of problems that included the near loss of cosmonauts on a joint Soviet-American mission in September and loss of contact with a probe sent to Mars.

The early morning launch of the Buran fastened to the back of the 196-foot-tall Energia booster rocket also ended a seven-year U.S. monopoly on reusable spacecraft inaugurated by the launch of the shuttle Columbia in April 1981.

In Washington, NASA congratulated the Soviets on the mission.

Tass said the Buran shuttle was superior to its U.S. counterpart because of a bigger payload capacity and its ability to fly automatically.

The official news agency also disclosed the shuttle's dimensions: Buran, "roughly the same size as a passenger airliner," is 115 feet long, 18 feet in diameter and has a wingspan of 79 feet.

Gorbachev was informed of the flight's success and called it, "One more confirmation of the joint Soviet-American scientific and technical cooperation." Tass said.

For years, the Soviets criticized the U.S. shuttle as wasteful and unreliable. But Western space specialists said the Soviets began planning their own space plane in 1982 at the latest.

"NASA congratulates the Soviets on the successful flight of their space shuttle. It is a major technical accomplishment," said James Fletcher, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

James Harford, executive director emeritus of the American Institute of Aeronatics and Astronautics said the mission showed that the Soviets had a pretty able bunch of guys.

An earlier attempt at sending Buran into orbit was aborted Oct. 29 only 51 seconds before blastoff when a computer sensed that a platform had not pulled far enough away from the Energia booster and stopped the countdown.

The mission was designed to test the shuttle's performance on blastoff, in orbit and on landing, the radio said.

Hall presidents approve resolution on formals

By JOHN O'BRIEN
Staff Reporter

The recent uproar over housing for the 1989-90 school year and the Student Senate resolution regarding hall forms were the main topics of discussion among the Hall Presidents' Council Monday night.

The resolution, passed by the Faculty Senate Monday night, states that the University and not the presidents approve of the independent newspaper serving Notre Dame and Saint Mary's

By ASHOK RODRIGUES

The Faculty Senate unanimously passed a resolution Monday to help prevent controversy in the future like that caused by George Bush's recent visit.

The resolution was written by Assistant Professor Stephen Fallon and Associate Professor Clark Power both of the Program of Liberal Studies. It asked the university administration and the White Center for Law and Government to place several contingencies on future invitations.

The first condition was that "the University and not the campaign staffs sets the ground rules for visits by presidential nominees, preferably including questions from students and faculty from across the political spectrum.

The second requirement was that "campaign staffs have nothing to do with ticket distribution or the timing of ticket distribution, and that events be open to all members of the community." Finally, the resolution requested "that the university administration make every effort to prevent the appearance of a Notre Dame endorsement for any candidate."

Though the acceptance of the resolution does not insure access to faculty page 4

Campus insanities drive me to near insanity

There's nothing like checkmarking to heighten one's sense of the ridiculous. I sat outside Stefan Center for over two hours, catching a cold for a class I don't even like. It is at times like these that I learn the true meaning of the concept of "Every man for himself," as people that I normally consider to be halfway civilized become monsters as they fight for classes. This optimum situation put all of us in such a wonderful frame of mind that we found ourselves giggling not only about the uselessness of the checkmarking system, but about the world in general. Thus, I decided to collaborate with my companes outside the language lines to compile a list of other insanities to be found around campus.

The fruitflies have returned to the mirrors of Farley; now when I blow dry my hair, I find myself wondering what forms of insect life are finding their way into my scalp.

The cereal dispensers in the dining halls are about as useful as trying to build a snowman in the summertime: either you can count the number of Rice Krispies that come out on one try and then adjust the number of Rice Krispies that come out on the second try; or you can be content with the amount of cereal that comes out one dispenser at a time and not waste any or eat the cereal from a box sideways.

The cereal dispensers in the dining halls are so far away from the door itself that in order to insert my Detex, open the door and juggle whatever I happen to be carrying I really need a third arm. It is more difficult to smuggle food out of the dining hall than it is to pass through United Security and not have ordered one.

Estonia split on independence

Associated Press

TALLINN, U.S.S.R.—Estonia's parliament on Wednesday will consider a "declaration of sovereignty" that proclaims the Baltic republic's independence from the Soviet Union in all areas except defense and foreign policy.

Its members also will weigh a related amendment to the Estonian constitution that would bar enforcement of any new Soviet law unless it has been ratified by the Estonian parliament, said Edgar Savisaar, one of the leaders of the Estonian People's Front, the broad-based citizens' group behind the proposal.

Although the People's Front claims the support of the leadership of the Estonian government and the Estonian Communist Party, passage of the proposals is by no means assured. They require a two-thirds majority in the 289-member Supreme Soviet, or parliament, of Estonia.

"I'm not sure they are united," Savisaar said in an interview Tuesday. Deputies are expected to divide approximately along ethnic lines, as many lawmakers who are ethnic Russians or members of other ethnic groups do not share the Estonians' views.

Ethnic Estonians hold 189 seats in the parliament, but need 100 for a two-thirds majority, according to the People's Front.

Deputies were being intensely lobbied Tuesday as proponents and opponents of the amendments tried to win their votes, said Tarmu Tammet, a Tallinn journalist working with the People's Front.

Savisaar carefully avoided reference to any possibility of force to halt the Estonian reforms, he said, "We are very worried about our future. At the same time, we are very hopeful."

‘Security Week’ planned at SMC

BY JOANNA GRILLO

plans for a future Security Awareness Week were introduced at Tuesday's joint meeting of the Saint Mary's Board of Governance and Programming Board.

The plans for this event come out of our concern for safety and security on our campus," said Student Body President Julie Parrish.

The tentative Security Awareness Week is scheduled to take place early into the Spring semester. One of the goals of the event is to better inform the students on matters of personal safety, including the dangers of walking alone at night.

Other topics of interest include the results of the Founder's Day student survey. "The survey's were really positive. We are very pleased with the results," said Parrish. Students expressed the most concern over items such as the improvement of social life, residence life, expansion, diversity and better relations with Notre Dame. Comments directed toward student government were all positive. Students praised members for their availability, openness and willingness to talk with students.

Requests for more campus wide events and service projects were also voiced. The completion of the student wide survey marks the accomplishment of one of student government's goals for the school year.

tion, senate members are hopeful the University will take action. "There is good communication between the senate and administration," said the Senate Chair F. Ellen Weaver. "Often, in very serious matters, the administration has listened to the recommendations of the senate and acted upon them."

Resolution co-author Fallon said he was "dismayed that the University allowed the Bush campaign to give a political rally under the guise of a University sponsored lecture." Fallon said that he hoped the resolution would be a step towards ending the commercialization of candidates and returning politics to the issues.

PLO chief calls for U.S. move in Israel

Associated Press

ALGIERS, Algeria—Palestinian Liberation Organization Chief Yasser Arafat said Tuesday it was up to the United States to make the next move toward Middle East peace now that the Palestinians have formed an independent state that implicitly recognizes Israel.

"The ball is now in the American court," Arafat said a few hours after the Palestine National Council, the PLO's parliament-in-exile, solemnly proclaimed Palestinian independence in a ceremony early Tuesday.

The declaration accepted U.N. Security Council Resolution 242, which implicitly recognizes Israel when it refers to the right of all countries in the region to live within secure and recognized borders.

The proclamation topped the list of issues taken up during the council's four-day special session in Algeria, which ended Tuesday. The 40-member council also voted to form a provisional government at a future date and pledged to restrict guerrilla operations to military targets in Israeli-occupied territories.

PROBLEM:

A Notre Dame student and a St. Mary's student have flights to catch at O'Hare Airport in Chicago. Assuming they both want to enjoy every minute of Thanksgiving break, what mode of transportation should they use from South Bend to O'Hare?

a) car
b) commuter flight from Michiana Regional Airport

SOLUTION:

City traffic, tolls and parking charges clearly make traveling by car an incorrect answer.

And while "b" may seem to be a good solution, remember that any kind of delay in South Bend could mean missing flights at O'Hare. Or, worse yet, a mean missing flights at South Bend could mean...well, let's just say it could be a nightmare.

If you answered "c," congratulations! Not only is United Limo the most reliable mode of transportation to O'Hare, it also offers the lowest fare and the most convenient departure/arrival point for the students - the ND Main Circle. This results in no hassles and maximization of the students' enjoyment.

Why learn this lesson the hard way? If you need to get to O'Hare, count on UNITED LIMO. We'll get you there.

ND and Bush: "A Modest Proposal"

Now that George Bush and Dan Quayle have been elected as the new leaders of our nation, perhaps we should begin to prepare ourselves for life under the policies that carried them into office. MBA summer school invites students

Dear Editor:

Summer is usually a time for relaxation, for play; a general break from the pressures of school. There are those of us, however, who also have time to study throughout the summer. Yes -- thanks to a program developed by the Graduate School of Business at the University of Chicago, summer school can become an opportunity of a lifetime.

All in all, the summer was one that none of us involved would have missed. Although the thought of MBA studies was intimidating at first, the staff at University of Chicago made us feel like a part of the university community from day one. It was an academic, professional, and personal opportunity of a lifetime.

A major theme of the campaign was patriotism. Mr. Dukakis was labeled unpatriotic for his veto of a bill requiring school teachers to lead the Pledge of Allegiance. At the risk of sounding harsh, Notre Dame has impressed us as a school lacking real patriotism. We're not contending that the pledge should be sworn every day, but it really bothers us that there is only one American Flag on campus, and we can't even see it from our room in Grace. Further, while there is a crucifix in every classroom, as is expected at a Catholic university, we wonder why there is not a flag there as well.

Notre Dame's total lack of patriotic observance also disturbs us. We don't even get Labor Day or Veteran's Day off like the rest of the country, and the only time we sing the national anthem is at football games. However, the Rosary is prayed every day at the Grotto. Now, don't misunderstand us. We will wake up and sing 'God Bless America' is as important as our Blessed Mother, and we would do feel a weekly service before the War (alias Peace) Memorial is in order.

Another campaign promise was "No New Taxes." "Notre Dame, Read My Lips: No tuition increase!" Let's face it, the administration has acted like a bunch of tax-and-spend liberals. We do not pay too little; they spend too much! They will, of course, argue that they must raise tuition to avoid running a deficit, and we think President Reagan and his advisors, Notre Dame does not want to see itself bought out by the Japanese.

The answer is to cut spending. Obviously, the athletic budget is unable. So what's to be done? We've been thinking that, in the spirit of the administration in Washington, the University could cut spending on education and do away with the Center for Social Concerns. The building could be better used than by one of the ROTC units.

On the subject of spending, Notre Dame recently paid $200,000 to regild the Dome. Think of how many "thousand points of light" for the Grotto that money could have bought. However, it's a good thing Mr. Dukakis didn't become president; that budgetbusting was interested in "200 million points of light."

Another but issue this year is housing. Why should upperclassmen be guaranteed housing by our University? After all, most Americans don't enjoy this luxury. Those of us who are unable to obtain housing can sleep on the sidewalks and over the steam tunnels. This would keep down the University's housing budget while preparing us for the transition into the real world.

On another note, we should consider bringing in lectures in accordance with the current thinking in Washington. Perhaps the Law School could sponsor Oliver North speaking on Constitutional Law. Hopefully, the College Republicans will not try to horde all the tickets for this partisan event.

Finally we should be concerned that Monk Malloy, our "kind and gentle" president may not appear tough enough to lead our great University. Therefore he needs a lightweight as vice­ president. We could promote Fr. Beauchamp to head basketball coach (maybe we'd even win a few at the NCAAs) and make Digger the new veep for the champ to head basketball coach.

We hope that these recommendations can be implemented as soon as possible so that Notre Dame can remain "the envy of the world."

We leave you then with one final thought from our 83-year-old grandmotters. If you work hard, maintain a 1.0 GPA, look like Robert Redford, and come from an affluent background, you too can be anything you want to be.

I awoke to a very unpleasant sight Monday morning -- 6,000 red dots had been stuck on the sidewalks, trees, buildings and even on Moses. Not just a little abrasive denial of the sanctity of nature, but also a very large and abrasive denial of the sanctity of the Notre Dame campus. They are stuck on the sidewalks, trees, buildings and even on Moses. And every morning --
W what you see is what you get. ...or maybe not, especially when you're dealing with an illusionist. Stuart Macdonald and his lovely assistant Lori perform "A Night of Illusion" Thursday at 9 p.m. in Washington Hall. The show is centered around suspense, glamour, and music illusion, (hence the title) but also play a vital role in the production.

Stuart, born in Topeka, Kansas, found his calling early in life and began performing his act as a young teen. He studied illusions, sleight of hand, and manipulation until he earned the title "virtuoso." His now famous routine has taken him halfway around the world and landed him a spot in the Society of Magician's Hall of Fame in Hollywood, California.

Lori, the ultimate team player, allows herself to be sliced in three, floats, trans­formed into Stuart, and gets locked in a small wicker bas­ket as Stuart bulls five Hindu steel swords deep into her body. Always looking for a new thrill, Stuart locks Lori in cuffs, ties her in a sack, and secures her in an airtight trunk. Feeling remorse for his dastardly act, however, Stuart, with much swagger and bravado, sacrifices himself and amusingly appears in Lori's place.

For the finale, Lori is sucked through a giant, Batman-like roller to be com­pressed wafer thin and as flat as old T-UP. Not to worry, all that needs be done is to add water and you have an in­stant 3-D woman.

Lori, by all means, is not the only member of the team exposing herself to danger. Stuart, always managing to stay in front of the act, ex­poses himself in a different manner when he performs his hilarious rendition of a magician's version of a male stripper. Relax, it's just an illusion... or maybe not.

The Notre Dame Chorale and Saint Mary's Women's Choir are keeping busy this week with performances on and off campus. This week's choral events included two concerts by the Notre Dame Chorale and will include a high school women's choir festival at Saint Mary's which starts tomorrow.

Last night the Notre Dame Chorale, conducted by Carl L. Starn, performed a concert at Sacred Heart. Some of the works included Bach's double chorus motet, "Singet dem Herrn ein neues Lied" and four motets by Durufle based on Gregorian chants. There were also other works by Ives, Brahms, Billings, and Dutler.

The schedule of performances for the Saint Mary's College High School Choir Festival is as follows:

Thursday, November 17
9:40 New Prairie High School, New Carlisle, IN.
10:10 West Noble High School, Ligonier, IN.
10:40 & 11:10 W. H. Harrison High School, West Lafayette, IN.
11:40 Providence Catholic High School, New Lenox, IL.
12:10 Saint Mary's College Women's Choir
7:30 Glenbrook South High School, Glenview, IL.
2:30 & 3:00 New Trier High School, Winnetka, IL.
3:30 East Kenwood High School, Grand Rapids, MI.
4:00 Wayne High School, Fort Wayne, IN.
Friday, November 18
9:40 Northwood High School, Nappanee, IN.
10:10 Goshen High School, Goshen, IN.
10:40 Bellmont High School, Decatur, IN.
11:10 Notre Dame High School, Chicago, IL.
11:40 Hinsdale Central High School, Hinsdale, IL.
12:10 Mason High School, Mason, MI.
2:00 The Saint Mary's College Women's Choir
3:00 Saint Joseph's High School, South Bend, IN.
3:00 Pike High School, Indianapolis, IN.
3:30 Twin Lakes High School, Monticello, IN.
4:00 River Valley High School, Three Oaks, MI.

All performances will be held at the O'Laughlin Auditorium at Saint Mary's College.

The Saint Mary's College Women's Choir.

Music and Director of the Women's Choir at Illinois State University, Dr. Axel Theimer, Associate Professor of Music and Director of Choral Activities at St. John's University and Dr. Sandra Willets, Visiting Professor of Music and Director of Choral Activities at Duquesne University.

Each high school choir will perform for 15-20 minutes and will receive written evaluations from two of the commentators. They will be Calvin and Hobbes.

Dr. Nancy Menk, coordinator of the event, feels that all-women's choirs don't get many opportunities to perform, so the festival is held really "to promote women's vocal ensemble."

both should help the Irish in an area of weakness—rebonding.

Junior Cathy Emigholtz, who has been hitting the boards hard for the Irish as of late and sophomore Krisi Davis, who must compensate for a distinct height disadvantage underneath with hustle, have been fighting it out in practice trying to claim the final spot in the lineup as a forward.

Emigholtz and Davis have been pushed from behind as well, as two talented twin towers, freshmen Margaret Nowlin and Jennifer Tranel, should provide the power underneath and take some of the scoring pressure off Bunek in the key.

What does Crawford expect of his court time?

"I'm the guy who's suppose to come in and shoot," laughed Crawford. "When I got in the Blue-Gold game on Sunday, everybody was yelling for me to shoot the ball—even the defense."

DON'T MISS THE MAGIC OF STUART LORI!

Thursday, Nov 17
Washington Hall 9 pm, $1
Crawford works way to walk-on position

By CHRIS COONEY

Sports Writer

Notre Dame's top four women's tennis players have been invited to participate in the ITCA Region 2 Tournament, November 17-19 in Madison, Wis.

CeCe Cahill, Katie Clark, Tracy Barton and Kristy Doran will compete against 64 of the Midwest's best collegiate players. The top singles finishers and the number-one doubles team will qualify for the national tournament next February.

All four of the women will compete in the singles draw, while the combinations of Cahill-Barton and Clark-Doran will vie for the doubles crown. Kim Pacella and Ann Bradshaw are also named as alternates and also will attend the meet.

Irish coach Michele Gelfman hopes that the team will continue its recent intense level of play. "We hit with the best of them at our last meet in Houston," Gelfman said. "I hope we can carry our confidence into this tournament and avenge our earlier losses to Indiana."

Cahill has been seeded fifth, and Gelfman believes she has a good chance of advancing at least as far as the quarterfinals.

"CeCe, and the entire team, will have to take one match at a time," Gelfman remarked. "We're up against the best of the Midwest, and we will have to keep our heads and play our toughest tennis. We've been spotted to try to look any further than the first round."

Gelfman feels this tournament will be a big test for Clark-Doran, who are all freshmen.

"With such a young team, this may be where our inexperience might show," Gelfman commented. "However, the girls are all playing well."

Gelfman added that if someone finishes in the top three or four, she hopes they will receive at-large invitations to the national tournament.

"Tim has tried out every year and he's done well in Bookstore, which is another thing we look at. And he went to our summer camp for several years, so he's just very wired to Notre Dame and Notre Dame basketball."

"We've introduced thephi eros to Notre Dame basketball-everyday student body. Bookstore Basketball and afternoons at the Rockne Memorial are just two ready times for former high school standouts to display their talents."

"Both of those events have been familiar ones to Crawford, who last April was named Most Valuable Player in the Bookstore All-Star Game and in his freshman year was named to the all-tournament team."

Crawford has worked diligently on his game and his grades-the accounting major was named to the Dean's List last semester to make sure he was ready to be the type of student the Irish coaching staff were.

"I tried out freshman and sophomore years," said Crawford. "But I really wasn't much opportunity with those two guys already on the team. But I went to the Rock everyday to play and lift and played with guys from the team and always tried to improve my game hoping that at some point I could do this."

Besides the springtime laurels, he came to Notre Dame with an impressive list of credentials. Among them are being named to the McDonald's All-American high school basketball team, two years as second-team all-state in Michigan, two years as academic all-state and a starting spot on both the Basketball Coaches Association on Michigan All-Star Game and the Best of Michigan vs. Best of Iowa contest.

During his senior year in high school, Crawford averaged 24 points and 11 rebounds per outing and led his team to the state's regional finals two years running before bowing out both times to a team led by Temple's sophomore sensation Mark Mooon.

"I'll have the best seat in the house for those games," joked Crawford.

Crawford was recruited by Minnesota and Penn State, but fell in love with the Air Force Academy, received an appointment and planned on going there until he was told on June 1 that problems with his hearing would keep him out. "So there I was without a college. Notre Dame was the only school I had applied to and only place I wanted to go if I couldn't play basketball. I decided to come here a week before school started and decided to just work as hard as I could to make the team."

"The work has paid off and he is now doing whatever he was recruited to do, which is play for a Division I basketball team."

"So far I'm loving it," said Crawford. "I'm having a great time, and I've learned a lot about basketball."

Crawford, who was a walk-on to represent the student body, said "I've been doing this for 18 years now."

"That is sophomore Karen Robinson's preseason prognosis for the Notre Dame women's basketball team.

The Irish have had to shelve hopes for an NCAA bid through the growing years of the program, but like a good wine, they have matured and are now ready to uncork the type of explosive play that nearly earned the team its first trip to the NCAA's last year.

It will be up to an intimidating Robinson, who was named team captain as a sophomore, to lead the Irish in overcoming the combination of experience and size that the Irish will need to defeat in order to qualify for the national tournament.

"I'm very wired to Notre Dame and Notre Dame basketball," Robinson said.

"We're up against the best of the Midwest, and we will have to keep our heads and play our toughest tennis. We've been spotted to try to look any further than the first round."

Gelfman feels this tournament will be a big test for Clark-Doran, who are all freshmen.

"With such a young team, this may be where our inexperience might show," Gelfman commented. "However, the girls are all playing well."

Gelfman added that if someone finishes in the top three or four, she hopes they will receive at-large invitations to the national tournament.

"Every since I've been here that we should have a walk-on to represent the student body."
