Bush prepares for inauguration

Four years ago, the weather was so harsh that President Reagan had to be sworn in doors and his inauguration parade was cancelled.

Reagan spent his last full day in office saying goodbyes. Meeting reporters, he discussed a somber aspect of his presidency - his failure to win the release of nine Americans held hostage in Lebanon, some for nearly four years.

"We don't know where they are," the outgoing president admitted, saying any rescue attempt would have been foolhardy.

"There hasn't been a moment that this hasn't been on my mind," Reagan told news service reporters.

Bush, appearing before an audience of top high school students from around the country, promised to do "all in my power" to let them take advantage of life's opportunities and talked about Americans' characteristic optimism.

"No one better personifies than a president named Ronald Reagan, whose shoes to fill," Reagan told reporters at a White House reception with President Reagan, the team convened to learn one of its members had died.

Robert Satterfield, 22, a senior cornerback, died early Thursday morning after he collapsed from a seizure at O'Tay's, a nightclub in Niles, Mich., according to the Office of Sports Information. He was brought by ambulance to Pawling Hospital in Niles, where he was pronounced dead at 3 a.m., the office reported in a statement released Thursday afternoon.

A preliminary autopsy report released by Sports Information Director John Heisler indicated Satterfield suffered a seizure followed by cardiac arrest. Tests showed no alcohol or drugs were found in his blood, he said.

The autopsy did not determine the cause of the seizure, but further tests are being conducted, said Heisler, adding that results may not be available for several days.

Satterfield was with teammates Darrell Gordon, a defensive end, and tailback Mark Green when he collapsed shortly after 2 a.m. Thursday, Heisler said.

At least 20 percent of American adult men have one or more homosexual experiences, and a minimum of 3.3 percent have such contacts with some frequency, according to a study by the National Research Council. The study, an analysis of data collected by questionnairenaires in 1970 and in a 1988 national survey, suggests that the minimum number of American men who have had at least one homosexual experience is lower than the estimates compiled 40 years ago by famed sex researcher Alfred Kinsey. The study indicates there is a need to compile accurate data on homosexuality in order to assess the progress of the epidemic of AIDS. - Associated Press

A therapy using foreign genes transferred into human patients was pioneered for the first time Thursday, clearing the way for limited trials of an experimental researchers hope will lead to improved treatment of a type of skin cancer. The National Institutes of Health and the Food and Drug Administration approved the use of a rat virus to make a gene that can then be used in the experimental treatment of melanoma, a virulent and often fatal skin cancer. “Every patient we will treat has advanced metastatic cancer and will die within a few months unless this treatment works,” said Dr. Steven Rosenberg, who pioneered the therapy. - Associated Press

Violence in Miami’s black neighborhoods ebbed Thursday as officials estimated riot damage to buildings at least $1 million and the community began examining the underlying causes of the uprising. Police spokesman Ray Lang said Thursday evening that 97 more arrests had been made that day and Miami’s Overtown and Liberty City were very calm. “I can’t think of anything that happened,” Lang said. “It’s a super quiet.” - Associated Press

Heart disease patients who smoke are three times more likely to have chest pains and restricted blood flow to their hearts than those who don’t light up, researchers say in a study touted as the long-sought “smoking gun.” The finding is the first direct evidence linking cigarettes to heart attacks, and will be published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Researchers say in a study titled “A Therapy...”

In NCAA sports, 48 + 42 equals one big mess

When the National Collegiate Athletic Association convenes every year, the big joke among sportswriters is how little the administrative fatcats accomplish.

The convention takes place in a warm-weather area during the winter months making it quite attractive for the overworked bureaucrats. It’s usually said that it’s a nice place to sit back and relax.

Chris Murphy

Editor-in-Chief

But, while NCAA sports have reached its highest point competitively, they have never been so maligned with the wrongdoings of doped-up players, win-at-all-cost coaches and athletic directors, and overzealous boosters.

And so now, those who have created, or at least allowed, the turmoil to go unchecked saddled up their white horses and rode into San Francisco for their annual get-together. This would be the year, the athletic directors decided, that they would take action to stop the beating that academia is taking from athletics.

From this gallant effort came Proposition 42, an amendment to Proposition 48 placing stricter academic requirements for high school athletes receiving college scholarships. The athletic directors’ collective genius said that Proposition 48, like today’s college athletes, must be bigger and stronger.

Its creation, however, has left Georgetown coach John Thompson crying foul, Temple coach John Chaney crying racism, and bunches of high school stars crying because many will be sitting at home in 1990.

The blunder lies in this proposition. Proposition 42 says that high school athletes who don’t score a 700 on the S.A.T. or 15 on the A.C.T. and get a 2.0 in core classes cannot receive financial aid for the freshman year from a university. So, instead, kids who do well enough in high school for four years to be accepted into a university, but fail on a three hour standardized test can’t go to a decent school on scholarship.

Wasn’t Proposition 48 effective? It proved to be enough to sit out a player, such as Tony Rice, for one year and make sure his grades checked out before allowing him to suit up. The NCAA made a good move last week in clearing up discrepancies by eliminating the partial qualifiers clause which even further clarifies Proposition 48 requirements for all schools.

They should have stopped there.

With Proposition 46, universities will deny the former Proposition 48 casualty from ever making good on an opportunity he deserves. If Proposition 48 wasn’t tough enough, it wasn’t the players’ fault. It was a clear and effective deterrent and schools succeeded more than they failed in getting freshman casualties adjusted for academic and athletic life at a university.

With Proposition 42, more rules will be broken and it will be dirtier than ever. Boosters, who are possibly harder to check than anyone in sports, are going to offer to pay for academic casualties to attend their school. The players, in exchange, are going to give four years of athletic excellence on the field.

The NCAA had a good thing going with Proposition 48. Players, like Tony Rice, are given the opportunity they have earned and many more have made good than failed on that opportunity.

The funny thing about the whole change is that administrators around the country debate as to whether standardized testing is accurate, fair or possibly biased. Now the NCAA has made it the bottom line across the board.

Fortunately, the NCAA has a chance to over turn Proposition 44 in its next meeting before it is to be enacted in 1990. Here’s hoping that it is.

Satterfield, a marketing major, was a quiet, unassuming person who was very popular with his sectionmates, said Brother Edward Luther, Fisher Hall rector.

"A student who came in to see me today said, 'I just can't believe it. He was my ideal for a person.' I think that sums it up right there," Luther said. A memorial book for students to sign will be left in Fisher chapel through the weekend, he added. Satterfield is survived by his father, Carl Satterfield and a brother, Darnell, both of Encore, Ca.

Poland plans to legalize Solidarity

Associated Press

WARSAW, Poland-Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski on Thursday disclosed the government plan for legalizing Solidarity, saying conditions to reinstate the banned union can be negotiated if it agrees to respect the law.

The Communist Party's position paper on trade unions and political freedoms was a "momentous event" for Poland, Jaruzelski said.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa reacted cautiously in his first comment on the offer, but said his union was at a critical juncture in its quest for legalization.

"If we blow it here, other people will have to deal with the same problem again," he said in Gdansk. "I don't want my son and his generation to live through such things again where it accumulates, rots and then explodes."

Walesa said he would await a copy of the official text of the party document before making a more complete statement on the conditions for reinstating the Soviet bloc's first independent trade union.

"Our offer is honest and serious," Jaruzelski said at a rare news conference. "I count on the fact that taking it up constructively will allow ... a historical step in Poland's development. That is what we all desire."

The offer marks a dramatic reversal in policy for Jaruzelski and other party leaders whose desire to impose martial law on Dec. 13, 1981, crushed the union, and reflects the failure of efforts to erase the opposition in the past seven years.

The party appears to be seeking a partnership with "constructive elements" of the opposition to battle rapidly rising inflation, a multibillion-dollar foreign debt and chronically ill-stocked stores.

The position paper released to the media Thursday night and to be published in newspapers nationwide Monday contains broadly written conditions for allowing more than one legal trade union.

Jaruzelski said Solidarity's willingness to respect Poland's Constitution was the most important condition to legalize the union and that details could be worked out at government-proposed discussions.

For me, an obvious and unquestionable condition, and this is a condition, is whether Solidarity agrees to accept and will respect the order of the socialist state, legal and constitutional," he said.

Jaruzelski declined to say when the talks, first proposed by the authorities in August, would begin. The position paper said the talks would be的政治 parties.

Other conditions outlined in the position paper say the new unions must be non-violent; must rely on lawful sources of funding; must respect the law; must be published in Poland; and to be published in the December 1981-1982 issue.

Reagan pardons 10, including George Steinbrenner

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Reagan has pardoned George Steinbrenner, the owner of the New York Yankees major league baseball franchise who was fined $15,000 for campaign law violations, a senior White House official said Thursday.

The official, discussing a series of Reagan pardons on grounds he not be identified publicly, said that Steinbrenner’s pardon was among 10 the president approved on Tuesday and Wednesday. The official would not speculate on whether Reagan would grant any more pardons before ceding the presidency to George Bush at noon today.

During an interview with the news wire services Thursday, Reagan had said only that there “have been some recommendations” from the Justice Department, whose pardons of office reviews pardon pleas.

Steinbrenner was the only well-known beneficiary of the Reagan pardons, the other nine men having been convicted of violations ranging from illegal possession of firearms and income tax evasion to concealing non tax-paid whisky.

Steinbrenner, principal owner of the New York Yankees, pleaded guilty in 1974 to charges of conspiring to vi-date federal election laws in connection with corporate campaign contributions.

are going to be pretty darn hard to fill,” he said.

Vice President-elect Dan Quayle, appearing separately before the same students, made a confession: “as one looks back at it, I’ll be the first to admit I wish I had taken education more seriously.”

The Bushes and the Quayles planned to join 12,000 other black-tie revelers at a $9 million entertainment gala, televised live to the nation, on the eve of Bush’s big day.

In the Capitol, where workers buffed the heavy mahogany doors through which Ronald Reagan will usher his successor, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee unanimously approved Bush’s senior cabinet appointees. Secretary of State-designate James Baker III, who had appealed during confirmation hearings this week for a restoration of bipartisanship in foreign policy.

Bush, at the forum for high school students, borrowed a line from Franklin Roosevelt: “we can’t always build a future for our youth, but we can build our youth for the future.”

Bush laughed at himself.

“I certainly learned the importance of education during the campaign,” he said. “I learned how vital it is to memorize dates - Pearl Har-ber day, for example.” Bush got that one woefully wrong during the campaign.

But if Bush has straightened out his dates, he still needs help on names. He told the youngsters he hopes to do better in his inaugural address than “Benjamin Harrison,” he said. He spoke for an hour and a half and then got pneumonia and died a few weeks later.” Actsually, that was William Henry Harrison, Benjamin’s grandfather.

Soviets to pull weapons out of Afghanistan

Associated Press

VIENNA, Austria - The 50,000 Soviet troops being pulled out of Eastern Europe will take the nuclear missiles and other arms under their control with them, the Soviet foreign minister said Thursday.

A NATO spokesman welcomed the announcement by Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze as encouraging. U.S. arms negotiator Stephen Ledogar said the speech was "very upbeat, very positive," but warned against reading more into the statement than the Kremlin intended.

Shevardnadze's speech came on the final day of a gathering that produced a 35-nation human rights accord. Shevardnadze said the agreement was the product of a "truth and other arms under their control with them, the Soviet Union has stopped modernizing its short-range nuclear weapons and called on the United States to follow suit.

"The Vienna meeting has shaken up the Iron Curtain, weakened its rusty supports, made new breaches in it and hastened its corrosion," he said, referring to the East-West division as Winston Churchill described it 40 years ago.

"Truth must be visible," Shevardnadze said in promising that the Kremlin would publish before the end of the month a timetable for troop removal.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, in a unilateral move, announced in December that Soviet forces would be cut by 500,000 soldiers, including 50,000 stationed in Eastern Europe.

Shevardnadze said the troops departing Eastern Europe will take with them "all their organic armaments, including tactical nuclear systems."

He also said the Soviet Union has stopped modernizing its short-range nuclear weapons and called on the United States to follow suit.

Handicapped students replace lost leprechaun

Associated Press

JEFFERSON, Pa. - Handicapped students in Michael Kulish's shop class fought back the disappointment of learning a thief at the Fiesta Bowl had stolen the leprechaun that they had given Notre Dame and crafted an even bigger mascot for the Irish.

"These kids are excellent students if given the opportunity. But all too often these kids get shrugged off," Kulish said Thursday from the Mon Valley Secondary School.

They weren't shrugged off by Notre Dame, whose alumni were delighted by the brightly colored 4-by-4 foot leprechaun on display at a hospitality center at the Fiesta Bowl.

"I had no idea it would look as good as it did and get as much attention as it did out in Phoenix. Everybody wanted their picture taken with it," said Charles Lennon, executive director of the alumni association.

"Someone out there really liked it," because the plywood rendering disappeared from the Princess Resort, he said.

Kulish's students took the affair to heart.

"They were somewhat, somewhat despondent when they came back to school," from their Christmas break, having watched in vain for their leprechaun during televised coverage Jan. 2 of Notre Dame's victory over West Virginia for the national college football championship.

They later learned what happened to it and agreed to try again.

"We couldn't wait to get started," Kulish said.

The new mascot is a 6-by-4 foot pipe-smoking, bearded elf sitting on a football, which is cradled by a base labeled "The Fighting Irish, National Champions."

Botha appoints Heunis as acting president

Associated Press
CAPE TOWN, South Africa - President P.W. Botha, hospitalized with a stroke that has weakened an arm and leg, on Thursday named a Cabinet minister and long-time political ally as acting president.

Constitutional Development Minister Chris Heunis, the senior-ranking Cabinet member, vowed at his swearing-in ceremony to adhere to Botha's policies.

"Everything is normal and under control," Heunis said later. "No government functions will be interrupted."

Heunis, 61, served as acting president for several days last year while Botha visited Europe. He will remain in his post until Botha either returns to office or decides to retire, at which point the Cabinet would elect a new president.

Botha, who turned 73 last week, suffered the stroke at his home Wednesday and was taken to a military hospital in the Cape Town suburb of Wynberg.

Botha's office and hospital officials said the president was in stable condition Thursday. Doctors said his left arm and left leg were weakened by the stroke, but his facial muscles and speaking ability were not affected.

The president was able to sit up and drink tea, doctors said.

Heunis was sworn in Thursday at Tuynhuis, the state president's official residence in Cape Town.

In his Cabinet post, Heunis has been assigned to develop a constitutional format that would give blacks limited power sharing with the white-run government.

Most prominent black leaders have refused to negotiate with Heunis, and the government's political reform process is widely perceived to be at a standstill.

Heunis had been considered a contender to succeed Botha on a permanent basis, but his political fortunes have fallen during the past two years.

There have been reports in South Africa that Botha planned to replace Heunis because of his inability to persuade black leaders to participate in negotiations.

Also, Heunis only barely won re-election to Parliament in 1989 when he was challenged by Dennis Worrall, who had recently quit as South Africa's ambassador to Britain to run as an independent.

As prime minister, and later as president, Botha pushed through the first significant racial reforms undertaken during the National Party's 40-year rule, such as legalizations of black trade unions and abolition of pass laws that restricted blacks' movements.

But Botha has refused to discuss the possibility of a one-person, one-vote system in South Africa, where the millions whites control the government and economy.

Gunman had 'hate for everybody'

Associated Press
STOCKTON, Calif. - Patrick Purdy, the gunman who killed five Southeast Asian children in a crowded schoolyard, had no grudge against any particular ethnic group, just "a hate for everybody," police said Thursday.

Thirty other people were wounded in Tuesday's attack at Cleveland Elementary School, which ended when Purdy - a loner with drug and alcohol problems and a fascination with all things military - killed himself.

Most of his victims were children of Southeast Asian refugees, but Capt. Dennis Perry said: "through his lifetime, Mr. Purdy developed a hate for everybody."

Perry said Purdy's enemy list apparently varied from day to day. He might be mad at one group but "the next day if he talked to Joe Dokes and he talked about the Lebanese... he probably didn't like them either."

Purdy was described as a danger to himself and others and suffering from "mild mental retardation" in a mental health report prepared after his arrest in El Dorado County in 1987. Perry said Purdy's freshman at the school as a boy, didn't have friends, no particular race, was described as a "loner, no friends, no particularly known friends, a problem with alcohol, a problem with marijuana and a distinct dislike for everybody - not a particular race, everybody."

"In a way he beat us, because we'll never know" why he did it, said Perry, chief of the investigation.

Medjugorje as a runaway freight train

Are good things happening at Medjugorje? It wouldn't surprise me. Obviously, a climax of sorts is being created, and love is in the air, so miracles can happen. You may believe it or not, but the Bible is no more phobic to that than a Holy Roller or a Buddhist can tell you of miracles that happen when you love and believe in God.

Nevertheless, the final warning about the punishment that will follow, if there is no repentance, hangs in the air as a threat; therefore, an accurate and honest view means the acceptance of Mary as a prophet of doom like the levite-sages, and that's not what Mary should mean to us as Christ's mother and the mother of the Church. It seems to me that if Medjugorje is true, it turns the Church into a circus. The Pope and the bishops are in the ring, with the big top, and half a billion eyes are on them. Meanwhile, God's ultimate expression, as seen by her own side, is her upstaging the ring master, and she's not by her own team of performers, who would have a better idea of what they were doing if they were trained seals. As a result, the Pope gets jerked around like Jumbo the elephant, and when he dances on command like a puppeteer, the rest of us have to dance too, if we want to stay in step.

Isn't that the way it would be if Medjugorje is true? Wouldn't that be a crazy way for Christ to run His Church, as the Pope and the bishops run the circus? Medjugorje rears away from the magisterium, and given them to his mother, who would then treat the Church like a great carnival?

Could I be wrong about Medjugorje? I didn't think so. I should be the last to say. I believe everything about Medjugorje, from Jimmy Swaggart and to the Queen of Heaven. Isn't it possible, then, that I'm wrong about Medjugorje? I think it's possible. If I'm wrong, I'll have more faith than any nun because I'll believe anything, as long as it's incredible, because they confuse faith with wishful thinking.

That's my view. I think Medjugorje is true. It turns the Church into a circus. But if I'm wrong about Medjugorje, I wouldn't be surprised at all. In fact, I think it's possible. If I'm wrong, I'll have more faith than any nun because I'll believe anything, as long as it's incredible, because they confuse faith with wishful thinking.
Having the eighties end a bit early is not necessary, but it does not always lower the calendar. The fifties began in 1945 following the end of World War II, and ended in 1963, with gunshots in Dallas. The sixties followed and continued until 1974 when the Watergate scandal forced President Nixon to resign. The seventies ended January 20, 1981, with the inauguration of Ronald Reagan.

When the eighties began, the class of 1988 was preparing to enter high school. As the eighties come to a close, the class of 1989 is preparing to graduate from college. Like it or not, we are the generation of the eighties. Forever our names will be linked with MTV, microwave ovens, VCR's, safe sex and the recession of the eighties. Forever our generation of the eighties .. Forever our generation of image-conscious, self-righteous, neo-Yuppies. We want our MTV videotaped and shown later on the microwave. We (present company excluded) want George Bush to inherit the teifton mantle from Ronald Reagan and lead us into the nineties. I am sure Mr. Bush would like nothing better than to successfully emulate Mr. Reagan's strong influence on the country. Unfortunately, if Bush imparts his personal- ity upon the nineties the way Reagan did upon the eighties, the nineties may be come known as the "Decade of the Wimp."

Debates challenge students' intellect

Dear Editor:

In the beginning of this past year Student Government laid out as one of its major agenda items various programs to increase the level of debate and discussion on this campus. In other words, for the Reagan Administration. In other words, for the Reagan and Bush dancing around the Oval Office singing Monty Python's "Always Look on the Bright Side of Life," it appeared that everything was in order, while integrity was out. What Oliver North did for the Iran-Contra scandal, George Bush did for the 1988 Presidential election. Bush's manipulation of the media and negative impact with all the style and glitz of Vanna White turning letters. Worried about the recession? No problem. How about some voodoo economics do get you out of the doo-doo? Both were typical eighties solutions: superficial publicity stunts. Sure, we could demolish a rag-tag group of locals in Grenada, but we could not protect our Marines in Beirut or our civilians on Pan-Am 103. Sure the recession vanished and big business continued making them. As the eighties come to a close, the class of 1989 was preparing to enter high school. As the eighties come to a close, the class of 1989 was preparing to enter high school.

Thus we have come to the end of the eighties and are being ushered into the nineties by George Bush, a man who closed out the eighties either by not doing his job. Does this seem like justice? Well, let's take a look. He claimed he was "out of the loop" when it came to matters concerning the Iran-Contra scandal. If, by some wild stretch of the imagination, he was telling the truth, just what was he doing? Playing golf with his future Vice President? Obviously, he was not performing his duties as the second in command to the president. Did he or did he not know of General Noriega's pharmaceutical activities? No one seems quite sure, not even Mr. Bush. Based on these incidents, "I trust George Bush with the reins of government about as much as I'd trust Lucy Van Pelt with a football." Thus, with the supreme "yes-man," George Bush at the helm, we stumble blindly into the nineties.

The Observer retains the right to edit commentaries submitted to the Viewpoint department. Please note that the briefer the piece, the more room there is for the range of topics and ideas can be analyzed through thoughtful, intelligent discussion. It has been too long since we have seen events like these occurring at Notre Dame with any regularity. If this project is judged to have merit and substance by the people who participate and attend, then we could begin this year a valuable tradition that enhances the intellectual character of Notre Dame. Obviously, this event will not satisfy by itself all the needs for debate and discussion on this campus. However, a project such as this can be a large step in fulfilling the mission of a truly academic community.

The debate topics that the consultant committee will select should be exciting and polemical. These themes will challenge all of us to think about critical issues that face us as an academic and Christian community. Your participation and attendance at the debate series will be necessary for its success. We hope that this event will stir this campus to reflect and argue challenging questions and aid in presenting a more thoughtful University and intellectually excited student body.

ND setter's wish comes true
Bremner becomes youngest player on National Team

By GREG SCHECKENBACH
Sports Writer

People often wish for things after they see a falling star. Usually, the wish is not granted, just like Bremner that special dream can become reality.

Notre Dame freshman Julie Bremner is the recipient of one of those special dreams that come true. She was the first Notre Dame player ever to be selected on the United States National Volleyball team, which consists of numerous players from the 1988 Olympic team that participated in Seoul. She will share playing time with two other setters, both of whom are older and more experienced.

Wilander ponders future after upset

Associated Press

MELBOURNE, Australia -- Mats Wilander's slide from the top continued Thursday with a shocking loss to Ramens Kris­han in the Australian Open tennis championships. The latest defeat recalled Bremner's, but in few instances he reached the pinnacle.

"Being No. 1 kind of got to me because from there you can only go down," he said. That's the direction Wilander has been heading since dethroning Ivan Lendl last September at the U.S. Open. A few weeks later, the Swede lost a first-round match in Paris. That was followed by a third-round defeat in Stock­holm, an early exit at the Masters and a disheartening loss to West German Carl-Uwe Steeb in the Davis Cup final.

"It's just not enjoying playing right now," said Wilander, who lost a first-round match at a Grand Slam tournament in four years, and left him con­templating breaking a spell of the sport.

"I just don't enjoy playing right now," said Wilander, who won three of the four Grand Slam titles last year. "I can't seem to get motivated.

"Winning the U.S. Open was such a big thing for me. After that, nothing really seemed impor­tant.

Wilander's motivational problems were glaringly ap­parent against the 27-year-old Krishnan, a smooth-stroking Indian whose father was a Wimbledon semifinalist in 1960 and 1961.

Krishnan, ranked 51st in the world, baffled Wilander with his grab-bag arsenal of off-speed shots and forced the defending champion into a se­ries of uncharacteristic errors.

"It's the biggest win of my career," said Krishnan, who won a warmup tournament in New Zealand last week. "To beat the No. 1 player in the world is very thrilling."
Craig: No shuffle, just performance

Associated Press

MIAMI - Roger Craig won't unveil a Super Bowl shuffle if he scores a touchdown on Sunday. But Craig is likely to do plenty of high-stepping between the end zones.

Cincinnati's Ickey Woods has drawn the thickest crowds of reporters of any running back this week. The performed the "Ickey Shuffle" all over Dade County.

Craig, who is five years' NFL experience and one Super Bowl ring up on Woods, just chuckles about being upstaged by a showman.

"As long as I show my work on the field, that's fine," he said Thursday. "I think my high knee action is good enough." "We have a few wins under our belt now, which should help us build up to a strong finish," Craig said right wing Dave Bankoske.

A strong team effort will be needed tonight for an Irish win, according to Gosselin.

"Beating Notre Dame makes their season. We've had a few good practices and I think we're ready to play. A few of our players had the flu while we were on the road trip, but everyone's well and ready to go," said Gosselin.

Lance Madison will be back in goal tonight after suffering a slight injury in the first game at Arizona. Backup netminder Mark O'Brien stepped in for the second game to record his first win of the season, stopping 27 shots.

Irish seek revenge against Foresters

By DAVE MCMANON

The Irish hockey team will seek a little revenge, along with six seventh and eighth victories of the season, in a home-and-home series with Lake Forest that begins with an away game tonight.

Notre Dame and Lake Forest will meet in the Joyce ACC Saturday night at 7:30.

In an earlier series with the Foresters, Notre Dame suffered two losses by respective scores of 5-1 and 5-4.

"We went into the first games overconfident," said Irish assistant coach Scott Gosselin. "They were ready to play and we didn't have a team effort." Notre Dame (6-18-2) is making sure to remember those earlier losses as it takes the ice this weekend.

"Revenge has been our theme all week in practice," said center Brian Montgomery. "They took a couple from us at the beginning of the year, and we need to show them that we're a good team."

On a recent eastern road trip, the Irish outplayed national power Boston College in the third period, only to lose 7-5.

"That third period showed us that it was time for us to get some wins," said Gosselin. After a split with Army, Notre Dame did collect a pair of wins.

In front of 11,000 fans at Arizona, the Irish scored a total of 19 goals to sweep a two-game series against the Ice Cats.

The Irish hope this recent surge brings a successful ending to a season that featured a tough schedule.

"We have a few wins under our belt now, which should help us build up to a strong finish," said right wing Dave Bankoske.

Fencers open 1989 season

BY CHRIS FILLIO
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame fencing teams will begin their respective seasons this weekend as they travel to Chicago for the first competition of the year. An East Coast trip scheduled to take place during the Christmas vacation had to be cancelled due to conflicts within the academic schedules of some schools. The meet was to have included St. John's, NYU, MIT, Harvard, Brown, and Princeton. Despite the lack of any prior meets this year, head coach Michael DeCicco feels quite optimistic about this weekend's action.

"We're going into the season without me knowing as much as I'd like to about our teams," said DeCicco. "The important thing is to fence as intelligently as we are capable of doing, and we should come out in good shape."

The Irish will face the University of Chicago, Lawrence, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan-Dearborn, and Oberlin. According to DeCicco, the toughest bouts will probably come against Chicago and Wisconsin, two Midwest schools with repeatable fencing programs. Wisconsin possesses an excellent foil team while Chicago will have one or two strong fencers in all three weapons.

The women's team will have to compensate for the loss of four time All American Molly Sullivan as well as All American junior Anne Barreda who is presently enrolled in the Angier's foreign study program. This year the Irish women will be led by captain Janice Hynes and seniors Brenda Leiser and Kristen Krachek, all members of the 1987 NCAA championship team. In addition, Hynes and freshman Heidi Piper (Brisbane, Australia) are returning from recent top performances at the a USFA Olympic circuit competition on the West Coast.

"This is their first action as a team," said DeCicco, "and the key is to work as a team. I'm quite confident about the women."

As in past years, the men's team present a solid lineup in each weapon. Heading the foil team once again will be senior All American Yehuda Kovacs. Returning foilists Joel Clark, Derek Holeman and Phil Leary will also travel this weekend. The epee squad will be led by seniors Ted Fay, Mark Gugel and Todd Griffee along with freshmen David Calessi and Mark Lawless. The saber team will send six fencers- Jeff Rossi, Tim Collins, Dave Kirby, Ed Bauger, Jim Kowalski, and Bill Pietrusiak. Both the men's and women's teams have the depth and experience exhibited by past championship teams. With the addition of leadership and team cohesion, the Irish may be on the threshold of a very promising season. This weekend's action will take place on Sunday at the University of Chicago.

ND indoor track opens with conference meet

By SCOTT BRUTOCO
Sports Writer

The Irish 1989 track season kicks off today at the Meyo Track in the Loftus All-Sports Center as Notre Dame plays host to seven western collegiate Conference Championships.

After a brief period of absence from the MCC, the track team has re-entered the conference along with men's soccer and baseball.

The meet, scheduled to start at 3:30 p.m. but lasting well through the evening, marks the first time the Irish have hosted a Championship meet since 1980.

Though it is the first meet of the season, the Championships should serve a valuable purpose for the Irish.

"Rarely do you run a conference championship the first meet out," said men's head coach Joe Piane. "But we'll find out what kind of shape we're in really fast."

Competing at the Championships will be Marquette, Detroit, Butler, Notre Dame and Loyola (Ill.).

Loyola, perennial rival of Notre Dame in cross country, is expected to field a strong team and challenge Notre Dame for the title, especially since the Irish top two distance runners, Dan Garrett and Ron Markezich, will not be running.

Not to worry, track fans, as Garrett and Markezich are not sitting out for any particular injury, but rather to give them a much-needed rest before embarking on a track season that will last into June.

"At the MCC cross country meet (in November), we didn't beat Loyola by a lot," said Piane, "but yet they're running all their guys, and they're going to double-enter runners in at least two events."

"We're anticipating a big challenge," continued Piane. "If just hope we can win without Garrett and Markezich."

The distance runners are coming off an excellent cross country season in which they finished ninth in the country. Both Garrett and Markezich earned All-American honors.

Junior Tom O'Rourke and sophomore Ryan Cahill are expected to lead the middle distance and distance runners. Also expected to perform are Robert Fern and Mike Drake.

In the sprinter division, the runners to watch are junior Van Searcy and sophomore Richard Culp. Notre Dame, however, is considered stronger in middle distance and distance than sprints and field events.

Sophomores John Cole and Jeff Smith are tops for Notre Dame in the high jump and long jump, respectively.

"Though this is not a high pressure meet, Notre Dame never likes to lose to Loyola," said Tom O'Rourke. "It's a kind of a pride thing."

"We don't know exactly how good we are," said Ryan Cahill, "but if we can do well in the sprints and field events we can surprise Loyola."

"Anyone for a chorus of 'Happy Trails?'"
Haysbert leads Irish to women's hoop victory

By FRANK PASTOR
Sports Writer

Freshman Comalita Haysbert came off the bench to score 17 points and pull down 10 rebounds in Notre Dame women's basketball team's victory over Butler. "I thought that was the best half we played all year," said Irish coach Muffett McGraw. "I think we're beginning to find our offense." Haysbert paced Notre Dame with 12 first-half points, splitting senior Dondria Toney. She was also instrumental in the Irish transition game, tearing down seven first-half point guards Karen Robinson and Carol Elliot in stride with crisp passes.

"Comalita had a great game," said McGraw. "She really played well tonight." Haysbert led four Irish players who scored in double figures. Robinson scored 14 points, Krissi Davis poured in 12 and Sara Liebscher added 10 points and tied for the team lead with 10 rebounds. Notre Dame opened up another 29-point advantage early in the second half when Annie Schwartz scored off a beauty feed from Robinson.

Dame reeled off 15 consecutive points to take a commanding 25-12 lead which they would never relinquish.

Irish host No.14 Orangemen

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Assistant Sports Editor

Notre Dame basketball coach Digger Phelps probably has taken a look at the Big East Conference standings lately, but he's not about to be fooled by them.

Syracuse, his team's opponent in a nationally televised contest noon Saturday at the Joyce ACC, lost three straight games and is the current resident of the Big East basement. Though the Orangemen are last in the Big East, they still are ranked 14th in the country with a perfect 13-0 non-conference record and a 14-4 overall mark.

"They were awesome early in the season, and right now they're struggling with that," said Phelps. "Syracuse still has a team with Final Four potential." The Orangemen have lost at Pittsburgh, then rebounded with a win over previously undefeated St. John's. The Orangemen have become Big East also-rans.

The Orangemen started the season on a fast, winning the season-opening Big Apple NIT with victories over LaSalle, Wisconsin, Indiana and Southern. After a 12-0 start that saw Syracuse ranked as high as third in the nation, the Orangemen have become Big East rivals' favorite upset victim.

Syracuse opened its Big East schedule with a loss at home to Providence. The Orangemen closed out the season with a 90-66 win over previously undefeated St. John's. The Orangemen have lost at Villanova, St. John's and Connecticut in their last three games.

Douglas, a pre-season All America, has been bothered with a pulled back muscle while playing the last couple of games. The 6-foot guard, who ranks fourth in the country in assists, is listed as questionable against the Orangemen.

"When he's healthy, Syracuse is healthy," said Phelps. "If you take Douglas out of the game, offensively the Orangemen are just a different basket ball team. That's why two losses have had more to do with his injury than with Syracuse and their style of play."

The list of talented players on the Syracuse roster certainly doesn't end with Douglas. Center Derrick Coleman leads the Orangemen with 12 rebounds per game and also is averaging 17.4 points a game. Forward Stephen Thompson's 17.5 scoring average ranks second on the team to Douglass' 17.8 average.

Matt Roe, a 6-foot guard and three-point specialist, has a 12.8 scoring average and is shooting 45-88 from beyond the three-point stripe this season. Billy Owens, one of the most highly sought high school recruits in the country last season, has earned a starting spot and averages 11.7 points and 7.1 rebounds per game. "To beat Syracuse, you've got to be very physical on the boards," said Phelps. "You keep going down the personnel and they are an excellent basketball team."

The two teams swapped several lead changes but Notre Dame went on a 17-5 run to cut the Orangemen lead to 67-50 with just under eight minutes remaining in the game.

"I was also instrumental in the Irish transition game, tearing down seven first-half point guards Karen Robinson and Carol Elliot in stride with crisp passes. The Orangemen have lost at Pittsburgh, then rebounded with a win over previously undefeated St. John's. The Orangemen have become Big East also-rans.

The Orangemen have lost at Pittsburgh, then rebounded with a win over previously undefeated St. John's. The Orangemen have become Big East also-rans.

"We lost our intensity in the second half," said McGraw. "We just didn't have that fire."

With the victory, Notre Dame improved its record to 18-2 and 7-0 in the Big East. The Irish also have beaten the Orangemen three straight years. "They're a very different basketball team," said Phelps.
