Saint Mary's students chose to "steer in the right direction" and "ride with experience" when they voted for Kathy Catenacci in the ticket, the student body elections Wednesday. Saint Mary's student government for 1989-90 consists of Lisa Catenacci, student body president; Deirdre Milon, vice president for academic affairs; and Mary Beth Blajda, vice president for student affairs.

Catenacci's ticket defeated the McGowan ticket of Shannon McGowan for student body president Tuesday night. McGowan ran on a platform for vice president for academic affairs, and Ken Kinkopf, Bob McTamaney and Pat Russell, Tom Rask and Pat Russell, Tom Rask and Bob McTamaney for vice-president at Notre Dame debate Wednesday.

The election will be held February 27. "Most of all, we want to encourage the students to vote because, by voting, they voice their concerns on the problems facing the student body, and they are trusting that candidate to represent their concerns," said vice-presidential candidate Smith.

"It was a close race, just like I knew it would be," Catenacci said. "My ticket and I felt McGowan was extremely qualified and the students would have had a good president no matter how the results turned out.

Catenacci added, "We're ecstatic over our victory."
The Saint Mary's Student Senate, commissioner, reported that there was a 45 percent voter turnout.

"The only disappointing factor was that the majority of vote, so the majority of vote, will compete in a runoff election with the ticket that their voice their concerns on the problems facing the student body, and they are trusting that candidate to represent their concerns," said vice-presidential candidate Smith.

Lawmakers critique S&L bailout bill Bush proposes

WASHINGTON—In their rush to catch up to thrift industry fraud and mismanagement, federal regulators may have unknowingly hired some of the culprits responsible for the savings and loan debacle, The Associated Press has learned.

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board hired as many as 800 people a "high percentage" of them from failed S&Ls without performing background checks, government and industry officials said.

Two of them are now targets of criminal investigations. One is being prosecuted for alleged fraud committed last year at the Federal Savings & Loan Insurance Corp., the agency that insures thrift deposits.

The other has been transferred from a top regulatory job while the FBI pursues a probe requested two years ago when his old S&L went under.

Regulatory officials in Washington did not know about that inquiry, which had been launched in Dallas, when he was hired last year.

The bank board made 6,000 such criminal referrals to the FBI from insolvent thrifts, asking the bureau to look into specific transactions and individuals.

When employees of failed thrifts are hired as regulators, "that's a risk, sure," acknowledged bank board spokesman Bill Fulwider.

Still, he added, "The assumption is it's generally not their fault the institution went down. They understand the assets, and they have expertise that's valuable."

Most of the people hired to handle the billions of dollars' worth of property and loans seized from failed thrifts are honest, officials said. Yet they expect to find more bad apples. "I would not be surprised to see one or two instances of that emerging as the (Justice Department's) bank fraud task force proceeds," said U.S. Attorney Marvin Collins, who has been working on S&L fraud since the mid-1980s.

Added one longtime industry official, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, "I would imagine there would be one or two others when you hire 800 people. Maybe 80 or 50 or 30 people: some percentage that drops over the line... It will take a long time before it all gets out."

The collapse of the S&L industry is expected to cost some $100 billion to resolve. A large portion of that cost, officials have said, results from mismanagement and outright fraud by S&L executives.

Some criminal activity is still going on, Collins said. "Some people feel they can take advantage because the system is currently overloaded by investigations," he said. "We'll be very attentive to them."

Court: State not responsible for protecting abused child

Associated Press

WASHINGTON- The Supreme Court, ruling against a child who suffered brain damage from repeated beatings by his father, said Wednesday state officials may not be sued even if they negligently failed to shield people from abuse by others.

The 6-3 decision said public officials have no constitutional duty to protect those who are not in state custody. The court said there is no legal recourse even in the "undeniably tragic" case where officials were aware of the beatings but did not intervene.

The court killed a lawsuit in behalf of Joshua DeShaney, a Wisconsin boy who since age 4 has been profoundly retarded and is expected to remain institutionalized for the rest of his life.

Child welfare officials and the state were sued by Joshua's mother, Melody DeShaney, on grounds the boy was deprived of liberty without due process.

But Chief Justice William Rehnquist, writing for the court, said, "Nothing in the language of the due process clause itself requires the state to protect the life, liberty and property of its citizens against invasion by private actors."

"Because... the state had no constitutional duty to protect Joshua against his father's violence, its failure to do so... through calamitous... simply does not constitute a violation of the due process clause," he said.

In an unusual emotional dissent, Justice Harry Blackmun said, "Poor Joshua! It is a sad commentary upon American life and constitutional principles... that this child, Joshua DeShaney, now is assigned to live out the remainder of his life profoundly retarded and without an opportunity to sue the state.

Blackmun accused the court of "sterile formalism" for failing to grant Joshua and his mother an opportunity to seek damages from the state.

Justices William Brennan and Thurgood Marshall also dissented.

Rehnquist rejected arguments that the state had a duty to protect Joshua because it once had given him shelter and because social workers suspected he was being abused.

Duke takes Louisiana House seat

Associated Press

BATON ROUGE, La.- David Duke, a former grand wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, overcame two last-minute challenges and was sworn into the Louisiana Legislature on Wednesday as black lawmakers vowed to keep an eye on him.

Duke, 38, smiled broadly and is expected to remain in state custody. The court said there is no legal recourse even in the "undeniably tragic" case where officials were aware of the beatings but did not intervene.

Duke took the oath of office after surviving a lawsuit and an attempt by a lawmaker to deny him his House seat in a dispute over whether Duke lived in the district he represents. Duke was sworn into the Louisiana Legislature on Wednesday as black lawmakers vowed to keep an eye on him.

"I want to allay fears that I will be divisive or a problem in this great body," Duke told his new colleagues. "I truly believe when we took the pledge of allegiance this morning and we said 'Justice for all,' I believe in that for America."

"And I believe that discrimination is wrong and reprehensible when it is waged against anyone, black or white, in this country."

Duke, 38, smiled broadly and waved before Speaker Jim Dimos, who administered the oath, which followed an attempt by Rep. Odon Bacque to have the House investigate whether Duke lived in the Metairie district a year as required by law. Opponents have said Duke lives a couple of blocks outside the district.

Earlier Wednesday, John Treen, a 63-year-old Metairie homebuilder who fell to Duke's resolution was drawn up Tuesday for action on Friday by the GOP executive council.

Duke was accepted by the House Republicans as one of their own, despite a move by national party chairman Lee Atwater to repudiate him as a member of the GOP. An anti-Duke resolution was drawn up Tuesday for action on Friday by the GOP executive council.

Rutgers professor proposes idea for ND recycling project

By KATHLEEN CROOKS
News Staff

The possible cash benefits of recycling was the topic of a lecture Wednesday afternoon by Professor Ray Ching of Rutgers University.

Ching said the Rutgers recycling program has made a good deal of money for the University. "Notre Dame has literally got a gold mine in its trash bins," Ching said.

Ching gave information on how to set up a recycling program and how to divide up recyclable items. He also gave a summary of the monetary benefits of recycling.

Ching said the Rutgers program was started after mandatory recycling laws were established in New Jersey. The program calls for recycling of newspapers, aluminum, glass and excess food from the University dining halls. The waste is sold to various companies who, in return, provide the college with monetary and environmental benefits, Ching said.

In implementing a program, Ching said it is important to make the recycling bins convenient and "user-friendly."

"We can't force people to comply; we must rely on people's concern for the environment and peer pressure... factors like that," Ching said.

Ching also said that, in order to have a successful program, it is important to publicize it. "People can't respond to what they don't know about," Ching said.

Sophomore Lisa Mackett, head of the Environmental Action Team at Notre Dame, said Professor Ching's lecture was the first step the University is taking in a possible effort to institute a campus-wide recycling of cans, bottles, newspapers and cardboard.

Mackett said she in her research of recycling projects, she looked for a program that would best fit the needs of the Notre Dame community. She found the Rutgers program to be "unbelievably efficient," and so she contacted Professor Ching.

Mackett became interested in environmental issues after working on a class paper. She began doing more research on the subject and eventually formed the Environmental Action Team.

Mackett said that the program has gotten a good response so far. "It is only going to work if students wholeheartedly support it. The goal is not to set up a 2 to 3 year program, but to make this an ongoing process," Mackett said.

Mackett cited environmental concerns and monetary costs as reasons for implementing the program. "St. Joseph County has only one landfill left, and that will be full in 2 years, then what are we going to do?" said Mackett.

Bush travels to Japan for first presidential trip

Associated Press

ANCHORAGE, Alaska—President Bush today launched a five-day mission to the Far East, his first overseas trip as president. The White House said the journey might not generate quick headlines, but would demonstrate that "the United States is an Asian power."

Bush will also make a weekend visit to China and a 4-hour stop in South Korea.

Following the 7-hour flight from Washington, the president spoke to members of the armed forces at a airplane hangar at Elmendorf Air Force Base.

Although it is unusual for an American president to travel overseas just 33 days after his inauguration, Bush decided to travel to Tokyo to represent the United States on Friday at the state funeral of Emperor Hirohito, who died of cancer at the age of 87 on Jan. 7.

In prepared remarks in Alaska, Bush noted that Elmendorf was the first stop 18 years ago in a trip that made Hirohito the first emperor in Japanese history to set foot outside his homeland.

Bush said he would pay his respects in Tokyo, and added, "It is as well a measure of our respect for a valued ally and fellow democracy that I make this trip."

"At each stop," Bush said, "I aim to strengthen key relationships with our friends and partners in the Pacific region."

Meanwhile, however, the White House released a statement by Bush suggesting he was not interested in a U.S.-Japanese free trade agreement modeled after a U.S.-Canadian pact to eliminate all trade fees and import barriers.

Bush said that Tokyo and Washington agree on the need for multilateral and bilateral efforts to create a more open international trading system. "We will stress the multilateral approach," Bush said. "We are always open to new ideas, but in our view the key now is to work hard for the success" of international trade talks known as the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Bush's comment was made in a written response to questions submitted by the Kyodo news service. Typically, the responses are written by the National Security Council staff.

Observer endorses Breslin, Kinkopf

The Observer endorses the ticket of Matt Breslin for student body president and Dave Kinkopf for student body vice president. Breslin and Kinkopf's considerable experience and leadership in the student government structure set their ticket apart from the other three tickets. Breslin currently serves as junior class president, while Kinkopf served as sophomore class president and freshman advisory council president.

Experience is not always the most important determinant for positions in any organization. Breslin and Kinkopf, however, seem to be the most likely to continue the current student government's dramatic improvements in visibility, efficiency and intellectual concerns.

The Breslin ticket also shows the most complete knowledge of student government bureaucracy and the pragmaticism to meet student concerns.

In order to succeed, the leaders of student government will have to persuade the observers and the lace IS available.

Basketball craze hits campus

Dear Editor:

It has been brought to the attention of the Bookstore Basketball Committee that there are people outside Notre Dame and Saint Mary's, whether they are students, faculty or staff, that are not going to play in this year's tournament. We couldn't think of any reasons why someone would not want to participate in the largest basketball tournament in the world. So, we came up with the following top ten reasons why everyone should play in Bookstore Basketball this year:

1. It's more fun than make-your-own-burrito bar.
2. Elvis is playing this year.
3. You can get your team name censored.
4. Better chance of scoring at any SYR.
5. No minimum SAT requirement.
6. No experience necessary.
7. No drug testing.
8. You might play against football players. Oh, what a thrill!
9. We don't censor profanity in the "Hey" cheer.
10. You can do it in all kinds of weather.

On a more serious note, we hope that all of you will come out and play Bookstore Basketball this year. Last year's tournament consisted of 666 teams, and we would like to increase this year's pool to over 700 teams. All the games are played 4 p.m. on weekdays, so there are very few scheduling conflicts. Also, we are encouraging more faculty to play so that there will be more interaction outside of the classroom. Women are allowed to play in both men's and women's Bookstore Basketball, and all Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students, faculty, and staff are encouraged to participate in this, the 18th year of the tournament.

A few things are different than last year:

1. Only one football player will be allowed to play on the same team as a present or past NCAA basketball player.
2. A team may consist of more than five players:
3. Only five of those players may play in any one game, and NO ONE is allowed to play for more than one team in the tournament, or both the player and second team are disqualified.

There will be increased emphasis on controlling unsportsmanlike conduct of any sort.

Sign-ups are this Sunday, Feb. 26 in the Great Hall in O'Shaughnessy from 1-4 p.m. In addition, sign-ups are at Saint Mary's from 6-8 p.m. in the game room in hugger the following Monday, Feb. 27. If you don't have a full team, remember a captain can sign up and fill in the gaps later.

Faculty and staff may sign up in the Student Activities office in LaFotune Basketball between now and Tuesday.

Hope to see you on the courts.

Loss of shakes hard to take

Dear Editor:

Someone once said it's the little things that make life enjoyable. In my 37 years I have found that to be true more often than not.

Shortly after arriving here I discovered one of the mentioned "little things" about Notre Dame—milkshakes at the Pro Shop in the Rockne Memorial. I have been fortunate enough to sample milkshakes on four continents and a few islands and I can say with all honesty, those dairy delights at the Pro Shop were delicious.

Imagine my chagrin, shock, surprise, and even dismay when I learned the Pro Shop would no longer offer milkshakes. If this is progress, bring back the days of the horse and buggy. I know of a number of people, like me, are upset at this latest attack on our standard of living. Please give us a fair shake and bring back the milkshakes to the Pro Shop.

'Simon': focus on man and expression through music

JASON L. WINSLASDE, accent writer

Something new has hit the theatre scene at Notre Dame. An entirely student-produced, student-directed, student-written musical, "Simon," is running at Washington Hall on Feb. 22-25. This production displays many of the musical talents of Notre Dame students, from the lively cast to the music of Rob Meffe, the lyrics of Mark Costanzi.

Set in Shirley's Bar and Grill, the play centers around the regulars of the bar, the piano player, Simon (Stephen C. Wehmeyer), the suave but sexist bartender, Jeffrey (Paul Salvatorriello), Annie, the waitress (Stephanie Pile), the vulgar but lovable proprietor, Shirley (Mary Louisa Meehan), and the wonderful beer and food-loving patrons (a la Cheers' Norm and Cliff). James, Mortimer, and Max (played respectively by Bill Watterson, Lou LaGrange, and John McKeen).

The bar's world is disturbed by a beautiful stranger in the person of Emily (Jackie Bayliss). Of course, something develops between Emily and Simon, but they are unable to express their feelings. Emily falls in love with Simon's music, and Simon can only express himself through his music. Although on the surface, the show may seem like a typical boy-meets-girl, boy-can't-deal-with-girl musical, "Simon" is anything but this. A few twists presented in style and plot distance this original show from the usual musical.

Even though "Simon" is not typical, it has all the elements of a great, fun musical. The songs, besides being well written and lyrically constructed, range from uplifting group numbers to soulful self-reflection and the occasional love song. Throughout the show is the running theme of different characters singing their versions of a particular song, beginning with the introduction of characters in "My Piano and I are One." Especially noteworthy are the numbers "How Can We Win?", a statement of manhood in the war with women, performed by Jeffrey, James, Mortimer, and Max in a distinct barber-shop style, "Material Girl," the men's solution to all problems, "The Reporter," Simon's song of job description, and the beautifully nostalgic "Alone in a Crowd," featuring wonderful solos by Simon, Emily, and Annie.

The cast is delightful to watch, and all of the voices mesh well, especially the harmonizing of the male voices. The choreography is sparse but well done. Many intelligent statements are made regarding music, its expression, its relationship with love, and its function in life. The characters are well crafted, although some are not as developed as others.

Simon is a man trapped behind his piano and his music, while the other characters are stuck, but seemingly happy, with their monotonic lot in life. "Simon" is a delightful, enjoyable musical which hopefully will someday appear on the Broadway stage and delight many more audiences.

Jean Brodie' depicts the prime of ND/SMC theatre

CHRIS WELSH, accent writer

The best aspect of theatrical performances at any college or university is the opportunity that young, talented actors have to offer their own interpretations of already established characters. Such is the case in the current Notre Dame/Notre Dame's Mary's Theatre production of "The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie."

In 1969, Maggie Smith won a Best Actress Oscar for her portrayal of the title role in the movie of the same name. To her credit, Leisa Heintzelman makes the most of her turn at bringing Miss Brodie to life, as does the rest of the fine cast.

Jay Presson Allen's script, adapted from the novel by Muriel Spark, also concentrates on Miss Brodie's students and their development into young women as she encourages them to become aware of the world around them, and the many cultural attractions it has to offer. Unfortunately, the guidance that Miss Brodie provides is at odds with the best interests of the girls.

The cast performed as admirably as professionals by handling several flubbed lines and the opening night jitters. Heintzelman deserves special recognition for taking on a complex and demanding role around which the action of the entire play revolves. Her performance demonstrates moments of great insight, and her characterization is generally sound. There were moments, however, when she slipped into a predictable rhythm and cadence reducing her performance to more of a caricature.

The energy, enthusiasm, and emotional level of the cast led by Heintzelman elevates the entire production to such a level that observers were drawn into the play, and ultimately viewing became an experience shared by both parties. Special attention should also be given to both of the male actors. Denihan and Costanzi provided colorful supporting performances while never overshadowing the lead actress.

Of the girls who are taught by Miss Brodie, the roles of Monica and Sandy (as portrayed by Kristen Schumacher and Amy McFadden, respectively) were brought to life delightfully. The cohesiveness of the entire cast cannot be emphasized enough.

For all who intend to see future performances, the play moves through the continuum of time rather briskly with little notice given to the audience by the director. Perhaps if the flashback scenes that frame the usual version of the script had been retained, the ebb and flow of the entire production could have been preserved. However, none of these criticisms should be seen as anything but minor blemishes on the completion of an otherwise beautiful production.

ND track hosts premier field at Meyo’s Alex Wilson Invite

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Sports Writer

Saturday will mark the last home meet of the season for the Irish as Notre Dame plays host to the Alex Wilson Invitational at the Meyo Track in the Loftus Sports Center.

For some of those competing, it is a meet with “national implications.”

This meet will be the last chance for some athletes to qualify for the NCAA Indoor Track Championships, scheduled for March 10-11.

Included in this group are junior Mike Rogan, freshman Brian Peppard, sophomore Mark Lavery and senior David Warth, who comprise the two-mile relay squad.

When this powerful middle distance relay team steps onto the Meyo Track, it will be its last chance to qualify for the Indoor NCAA Championships, the feat the team has been working for all season.

“Basically this is it,” said Rogan. “This is what we’ve been pointing at all season long.”

Head Coach Joe Plano purposefully invited some of the best two-mile relay teams in the nation to attend, and he got just that.

Georgetown, Villanova, Penn State, and Loyola (Ill.) have all indicated that they will be attending the meet, and all these schools have excellent two-mile relay squads. All of these teams have the ability to qualify for the NCAA’s, Notre Dame included.

“This race has the potential to have a team come in fifth place and still qualify for the NCAA’s,” said Plane.

“Basically this meet is going to give us the opportunity to get some qualifiers for the national championships and IC4A’s,” said Plane. “For some kids it will be a tuning up meet.”

This relay event is not the only one with national competition on the line. Freshman Raqibh Ismail, for example, is just 0.3 seconds away from qualifying for the NCAA’s in the 1500-meter dash.

Ismail, however, will have another chance at qualifying next week when he runs the same event at the IC4A Championships (Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America) in Princeton, NJ, so he is not feeling any additional pressure.

“It’s hard for me to say how I’m going to do,” said Ismail. “I’m just going to do my best. If I make it, that’s great, but if I don’t, you know, there’ll be other times.”

Mike Rogan
NCAA’s,” said Plane. “This is the premier event. I don’t think there’s any event as deep.”

Another note regarding this meet is that senior All-American Dan Garrett will be running his first meet of the season in the 3000 meters. Garrett had been bothered with tendinitis throughout the season.

“We’re going to try to get Danny to qualify for the IC4A’s,” said Plane. “In fact, I’m putting (senior co-captain Ron) Markel in there for the first mile just to make sure Garrett stays on his tail.”

This meet is going to give us the opportunity to get some qualifiers for the national championships and IC4A’s,” said Plane. “For some kids it will be a tuning up meet.”

The Notre Dame men’s track team will host the Alex Wilson Invitational at Meyo Track in the Loftus Sports Center today. The meet will offer some athletes their last chance to qualify for the NCAA Championships.

Trip east next for women's swim team

By MARY GARINO
Sports Writer

Coming off a decisive victory at the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Championships, the women's swim team heads for West Virginia to compete in their first Eastern Intercollegiate Championships.

This is the second year that the meet has existed for women. It was created to parallel the men's meet as a way of recognizing the growing importance of women's swimming. The meet is also designed as a season-ending preview of the NCAA championships that encourage elite swimmers to qualify for the NCAAs.

"The meet creates a championship that encourages elite swimmers to qualify for the NCAAs," said Irish head coach Tim Welsh. "It's a full team championship also, which means we can bring a full squad."

Because this is Notre Dame's first year in attendance, Coach Welsh does not have any goals as far as the scoreboard is concerned. The team will mainly be concerned with internal goals.

"Our goals are internal-directed," Welsh said. "We want to finish the season with everybody swimming their best, and also reset as many university records and individual records as possible."

The Irish will be facing some powerful teams, including three teams that already faced Notre Dame earlier in the year, St. Bonaventure, Cleveland State and Villanova. Among the rest of the ten teams will be West Virginia, the host school, who would love to beat Notre Dame and avenge the Mountaineers Fiesta Bowl loss to the Irish.

Coach Welsh was quick to point out that even though the Irish are not planning any strategy to beat these teams, the meet will be very intense.

"These championship meets outweigh the dual meet season," he said. "Just because we don't have any external goals doesn't mean it's not going to be intense."

The training in the earlier part of the season was targeted at the three championship meets at the end of the year, the MCCs, the Eastern Inter­collegiates and the NCAAs. The Irish also have the added advantage of confidence from their success last week.

The Irish have another reason for wanting to do well besides resetting records. The better the team does, the better it looks for prospective students. One way recruits evaluate the program is by the performance in championship meets.

"We define ourselves for the rest of the world," Welsh noted. "The women's Eastern Inter­collegiates will take place Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The men's meet will be during the first week in March.

Boggs controversy continues

Former lover tells her side in upcoming magazine story

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. - The Boston Red Sox took in stride Wednesday their move from the sports pages to Penthouse and steamy revelations by Wade Boggs' former mistress about the sex lives of several players.

In the first of two Penthouse magazine articles, Margo Adams describes her four-year affair with Boggs and talks about the third baseman's unflattering views of other players.

Manager Joe Morgan discussed the article briefly in a closed clubhouse meeting before practice at spring training camp.

The Penthouse issue containing the article will be on sale next week. Advance copies were made available to several news organizations, including The Associated Press.

In the article, Adams says Boggs made a racist remark about teammate Jim Rice, was extremely jealous of New York Yankees first baseman Don Mattingly, and felt Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens acted like "Mr. Perfect."

According to Adams, Boggs said Rice "thinks he's white." Asked to comment on the story, Rice said, "I have not read it and I am not going to read it." Adams, who is receiving at least $100,000 for the story, also graphically describes the sex lives of Boggs and several teammates she does not identify.

Adams also detailed a number of Boggs' superstitions. She claimed he took 64 road trips with Boggs, purchased his clothes and avoided sex with him during the day because "Wade believes that sex weakens your legs, and he needs strong legs to play third base."
ND baseball travels south for a sunny season opener

By STEVE MEGARGEE
Assistant Sports Editor

An 18-game season-opening road trip for the Notre Dame baseball team, which will include stops in Florida and North Carolina, begins today with a tour of Texas.

The Irish begins its season today in San Antonio with a 4 p.m. game against Trinity. Notre Dame then heads to Austin to face third-ranked Texas Friday at 3 p.m., and returns to San Antonio for a matchup with St. Mary's Saturday night at 7:30.

Notre Dame is just fortunate to see an outdoor baseball field at this point. The Irish had been conducting their pre-season practices at the indoor Loftus Center.

"Loftus is an incredible facility, but it's still difficult to simulate a game situation," said second-year Irish coach Pat Murphy. "We need to get outside and play some games."

Trinity is a young team coming off a disappointing 5-31 campaign last year. The NAIA school dropped its first four games this year with losses to rival states Texas Lutheran, St. Mary's and Howard Payne.

Centerfielder Tommy Anderson leads Trinity in hitting with a .308 average. Centerfielder-pitcher Robert Burns, the only senior on the team, is batting .389 with 12 runs batted in and 56 total bases.

"Trinity was noted for its pitching 10 years ago," said Murphy. "They're rebuilding their program now.

"Coming in (to Texas) 9:30 at night and playing the next day will be tough, especially since we haven't been on the field yet."

Texas will provide Notre Dame with an extremely difficult early-season challenge. The Longhorns sport an 8-3 record that includes a three-game sweep of UCLA.

In other games this season, Texas has won two of three games from Arizona State, swept a doubleheader from St. Mary's and split doubleheaders with Texas Lutheran and Texas-Arlington.

"I can't spend too much time thinking about the opposition, but I hear they're something special," said Murphy. "You're talking about the ultimate road game, being in Austin. There will be about 8,000 Texas fans there and 125 Notre Dame fans."

Despite the Longhorns' high ranking, Texas coach Cliff Gustafson is not too impressed with his team's recent play. A loss to Texas-Arlington Tuesday particularly upset him.

"It was a curious game in that we had 16 baserunners and failed to score a thing," said the veteran Longhorn coach. "That's been our plight; we haven't hit well with men on base."

Righthanded pitcher Jeff Seale figures to start for Texas Saturday in his collegiate debut. The freshman turned down an offer from the New York Mets, who drafted him in the second round last spring, to attend Texas.

"He's an outstanding prospect," said Gustafson. "He's not a polished player at this time, but he has pretty good stuff."

Seale missed the first several games of the season after being suspended for disciplinary reasons.

After playing Notre Dame, Texas hosts second-ranked Miami in a three-game series from Saturday to Monday. The Sunday and Monday games will be televised nationally by ESPN.

St. Mary's, another NAIA school, currently holds a 3-6 record last year that included two wins over Notre Dame. The Irish split two games with St. Mary's during the 1987 season.

Senior Mike Passilla and the Notre Dame baseball team will open their season today under sunny skies. The squad has flown south for road stint against three teams, including third-ranked Texas.

Southwest Conference teams. Besides the doubleheader loss to Texas, St. Mary's has lost a doubleheader to Houston and split a doubleheader with Baylor.

"I haven't been really pleased with our hitting," said St. Mary's coach Charlie Migl. "Our pitching's been good. We have a long way to go, but I think we made progress with a win over a good team like Baylor."

St. Mary's posted a 36-15 record last year that included two wins over Notre Dame. The Irish split two games with St. Mary's during the 1987 season.

IH hockey playoffs approach

Off Campus beats Grace, Stanford earns playoff berth

By KEN TYSIAC
Sports Writer

The final games of the Interhall Hockey regular season provided an interesting glimpse of what the playoffs might be like. In the Blue Division, top guns Alumni and Stanford skated to a 2-2 tie which clinched playoff berths for both teams.

Meanwhile a 5-3 Off Campus victory over Grace in the battle for first place in the Gold Division assured the Crime of a playoff spot. Assuming Dillon beats Flanner later this week, Off Campus will be forced to battle the Big Red for the fourth and final playoff spot early next week.

Joe Levan scored on a two-on-one break early in the second half to give Grace a 2-3 lead, but John Kirk and Craig Carufel countered to give Off Campus the lead for good with goals 45 seconds apart. O.C. goalie John Krutzer then slammed the door on Grace, and Keating rounded out the scoring by completing his hat trick with an empty net goal with one second left.

O.C. coach Chris O'Grady is confident about his team's chances in the playoffs.

"We have the best players in the league. If we just play our game and get some breaks we should be tough to beat in the playoffs."

"We didn't play too well tonight," said Galis. "We got hurt by two fluky goals at the end. We'll have to just take it one game at a time now, but it's tough for us to play with less than two lines."

The other big story was Stanford's first Interhall Hockey playoff berth ever. Twice the Studs rallied from one goal deficits against Alumni, and soon after Bob Kuskie tied it at two goals apiece with 4 minutes left, Stanford went on the power play.

Alumni managed to hold Stanford scoreless when they had the man advantage, however, and goalie Hardie Tankersley had to make a big glove save in a goalmouth scramble to preserve the tie.

"I'm not AD there until April 1," Newton said.

Rose, contacted by The Dispatch before Wednesday's New Jersey Nets-Cleveland Cavaliers NBA game, was asked if he would be the candidate for the Kentucky job opened. Rose has been an assistant coach with the Nets since last summer.

"Until there is a position open, no one is a candidate because the job is still in the hands of the man who has it," Rose said. "My mother lives in Lexington and I have a lot of ties there. And that's no secret."

Report: Rose replacing Sutton at Kentucky

Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio- Kentucky coach Eddie Sutton will leave the Wildcats "in 10 days to two weeks" and will be replaced by former Purdue head coach Lee Rose, according to a source quoted in a published report.

The Columbus Dispatch, in its Thursday editions, quoted a source close to the Kentucky program as saying "Sutton is going to be told he's gone in 10 days to two weeks. The new coach is picked and it's Rose. He's (C.M.) Newton's choice for the job."

The Dispatch said its source had spoken on the condition of anonymity.

Newton will leave the Wildcats because the job is still in the hands of the man who has it," Rose said. "My mother lives in Lexington and I have a lot of ties there. And that's no secret."

Publisher refuses to release book incriminating NC State

RALEIGH--"Personal Fouls," a book about the North Carolina State basketball program under Coach Jim Valvano, will not be printed by Simon & Schuster because the book didn't meet its standards, the publisher said Wednesday.

Excerpts of the book, based on book jacket blurbs, were published in The News and Observer of Raleigh last month. According to the published story, the jacket listed allegations of improper gifts to players and grade changes. It also alleged that a player deliberately lost N.C. State's first-round game in the 1987 NCAA tournament to avoid defeat by drug use.

"I am very pleased with this decision and want to express my appreciation to Simon & Schuster for taking the time to conduct a careful and complete review of the manuscript," Valvano said in a written statement. "Now, I am hoping to turn my full attention and energies to the players of the North Carolina State basketball team and to the people involved in the operation of our Department of Athletics."

He has steadfastly denied the allegations made in the blurbs.

Pocket Books, a division of Simon & Schuster, said the decision not to proceed with publication of "Personal Fouls" was made after a review of the manuscript with Peter Golenbock, the author.

The publisher had been warned by the North Carolina attorney general to be sure of its facts. But Golenbock said in a telephone interview from his Connecticut home that he would "stand by my work and I am confident that 'Personal Fouls' will be published."

PROBLEM:

A Notre Dame student and a St. Mary's student have flights to catch at O'Hare Airport in Chicago. Assuming they both want to get to Milwaukee, would you need to get to O'Hare?

b) commuter flight from Michiana Regional Airport
c) United Limo

SOLUTION:

City traffic, tolls and parking charges clearly make traveling by car an incorrect answer.

And while "b" may seem to be a good solution, remember that any kind of delay in South Bend could mean missing flights at O'Hare. Or, worse yet, a cancellation. Both Bend could mean worse. let's just say it could be a nightmare.

If you answered "c," congratulations! Not only is United Limo the most reliable mode of transportation to O'Hare, it also offers the lowest fare and the most convenient departure/arrival point for the students - the ND Main Circle. This results in no hassles and maximization of the students' environment.

Why learn this lesson the hard way? If you need to get to O'Hare, count on UNITED LIMO. We'll get you there. Call 674-6993 for schedule and reservations. Or call your travel agent.

United Limo We'll Get You There IMPORTANT: Due to limited seating, we request that you make reservations at least 24 hours in advance.

ND basketball ready for Flyers

By GREG GUFFEE
Sports Writer

Just over a week ago, the Notre Dame women's basketball team turned in its best defensive performance of the season in a 78-34 victory over St. Louis. Since then the Irish have given up 206 points in two losses, lost sole possession of first place in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference and probably taken themselves out of post-season contention.

"I'm surprised and I'm disappointed," Irish coach Muffet McGraw said.

Notre Dame fell out of sole possession of first place in the MCC last Saturday with a 108-77 loss to Loyola. Both teams now sport 9-1 conference records.

The No. 3 Tennessee dealt the Irish their worst loss in the history of the women's basketball program Monday night. The loss dropped Notre Dame to 12-5 overall, 6-7 in non-conference games.

"In the Tennessee game, we packed in a zone because we couldn't really match up with them man-to-man," McGraw said. "They also really beat us on the boards. We just didn't play defense in the post against Loyola and didn't make the adjusting to Loyola.

Notre Dame hopes to get back in the win column tonight at Dayton. The MCC contest is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m.

At first glance, the Dayton might seem like the perfect remedy for Notre Dame's ills. The Flyers are 5-18 and 4-7 in the conference.

Lateley, however, the Flyers have turned things around, winning three of their last five.

Angry Irish knock off Buckeyes in the semifinal round of the Bengal Bouts.

That style nearly got both of the Flyers in trouble in the first round, as Stahl's punches found landing room very close to Boom-Boom's chin. One first-round punch, in fact, stood Stahl up, and the champ looked vulnerable for a time.

Roddy KOs Quinn; two champs upset

By TIM SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

It was the shot heard "round the world.

Or at least around the Stepan Center.

But in this case, the shotgun blast didn't start a war--it ended one.

Super-heavyweight Steve Roddy truly saw the whites of his eyes, but again the historical chronology was backwards.

Roddy saw the whites of the eyes after the shot, a direct result of his vicious first-round right-hand to Quinn's head, which ended the closing fight of last night's Bengal Bouts semi-finals.

Roddy's right hand propelled him to the finals of the 56th annual Bengal Bouts, along with 27 other fighters, who will fight to wear boxing jackets bearing the word "CHAMP."

One man who already has such a jacket, defending light heavyweight champion Vince Becklund, continued to contradict his "Pretty Boy" nickname, as he stopped yet another fighter before the third bell.

Maybe the nickname is a psychological play, because Becklund certainly has no problem with a hard-nosed fighting style that leads directly to the nose of his opponent.

Last night, Becklund faced off against senior John Flickinger, and "Baby Face" Flickinger had some success...for one round.

After dancing with Flickinger for one round and allowing one punch to go right in there and not fool him, Becklund opened the second round like a man on a mission.

That's all it took--the referee would not allow Flickinger to answer the third-round bell.

"Sean (Notre Dame boxing coach Sean McCormack) kind of motivated me," Becklund said of his powerful second round flurry. "He told me to go out and get 'em."

Becklund now must face a familiar obstacle in his quest for the crown senior Jeff Ripal. Ripal, who advanced to the finals earlier this week because of Kevin Smith's broken thumb, will be fighting Becklund for the third time in their Bengal Bouts careers.

There should be no surprises for either fighter, another returning champ who overcame a tough first round was Dave "Boom Boom" Bielchini. His opponent, Tom Stahl, held up valiantly to a barrage of Bielchini jabs and never went down.

"I didn't think I was going to beat him," said Bielchini, whose father was a Bengal Bouts champ in the 1960s. "I wanted to go right in there and not fool around."

It was a wild night at the fights Wednesday, as super-heavyweight Steve Roddy knocked out Dan Quinn and two champions, Chris Ballent and Bill Angnick lost decisions in the semi-final rounds of the Bengal Bouts.

see BENGALS, page 9

An Irish finally wins for Notre Dame women's basketball.

Just over a week ago, the Irish knocked off Loyola and didn't make the adjustment to Loyola.

After dancing with the conference, because Roddy truly saw the whites of the eyes, and his opponent, Tom Stahl, held up valiantly to a barrage of Bielchini jabs and never went down.

"I'm just glad we saved Natalie because she came into the match fresh," Gelfman explained. "The girls were chipping well and did a good job winning points at the net by coming in behind their service returns and poaching."

Gelfman also cited the play of the revised singles line-up. The Irish were leading 4-2 going into the doubles, even though they were all playing above their regular positions.

"Being without the number one player always hurts, but I thought Tracy Barton held up well in CeCe's spot. In addition to getting the win by default over Loyola, Barton teamed with Katie Cahill for a 6-4, 6-2 win. "We were playing very well but simply ran out of steam. Luckily, she had a chance to rest before the doubles and she came back to put us over the top.""
