Phone registration on hold for spring

DART (Direct Access Registration by Telephone) will not be initiated for this spring’s enrollment, as further testing of the system is needed prior to student use.

register has many duties, page 4

The system will be tested thoroughly this summer with plans to register students by phone next Oct. for the Spring 1990 semester, said Daniel Winicur, dean of administration and registrar.

"I was willing to try the system this semester, but I was not willing to take the chance that something would go wrong," said Winicur. "We don’t want the students to be guinea pigs."

Bush lobbying hard for Tower
Associated Press

WASHINGTON- President Bush launched a full-court press Tuesday to salvage John Tower’s nomination, meeting privately with a dozen swing Democrats and wavering Republicans in hopes of persuading them to back his choice for defense secretary.

"We want the students to be back in the classroom," Bush said he did not know whether he could win over senators who have indicated opposition to Tower, saying only that "I hope so."

But with Tower sitting on his seat in the Cabinet room, the president said he had not heard anyone “challenge this man’s knowledge and his ability.”

"He’s the best to do the job, that needs to be done," Bush said. "I don’t believe that anybody should be pilloried on a little testimony."

The administration’s efforts suffered a setback when Republican Sen. Larry Pressler of South Dakota announced he was "very much leaning against" confirmation and urged Tower to withdraw before a vote.

"I think that he may very well be doing him (Bush) a favor in this case," said Pressler, who said he was fearful that Tower would not be capable of cleaning up the Pentagon procurement system if confirmed.

Bush said he did not know whether he could win over senators who have indicated opposition to Tower, saying only that "I hope so."

But with Tower sitting on his left in the Cabinet room, the president said he had not heard anyone “challenge this man’s knowledge and his ability.”

"He’s the best to do the job. That needs to be done," Bush said. "I don’t believe that anybody should be pilloried on a little testimony."

Daley wins Chicago mayoral primary
Associated Press

CHICAGO- Richard Daley, son of the legendary boss of Chicago politics, defeated Mayor Eugene Sawyer in a Democratic primary Tuesday and took a giant step toward the City Hall office his father held for 21 years.

Daley built a commanding lead with overproning support from predominantly white wards. Although Sawyer, the city’s second black mayor, ran up impressive margins in his own strongholds, he was hampered by a lower turnout among blacks than whites.

With 67 percent of the city’s 2,911 precincts reporting, Daley had 386,950 votes or 65 percent to Sawyer’s 206,345 votes or 34 percent. Three other candidates divided the remaining votes.

If Daley wins the April 4 general election and claims leadership of the nation’s third-largest city, it would mark the first time a white has ousted a black mayor in one of the country’s major cities.

Zahm triumphant in Iceberg Debates final
By KATHY RYAN
News Staff

Zahm defeated Stanford last night in the final round of the Iceberg Debates held last night in the Library Auditorium.

Dean of the Law School David Link, chairman and spokesman of a panel of five judges, announced a vote of 3-2 in favor of Zahm after what he called a "very close debate."

Zahm defended the negative side of last night to the improvement of that country’s system of upholding the human rights of its citizens. Zahm held that cutting economic aid to Latin American countries hurts the needs of the people in those countries while increasing the number of dissenters and creating political unrest.

Stanford stressed the importance of the U.S.’s public dissociation from oppressive governments. Their argument was based on "an ethical power imperative logically synthesized with driving American principles."

University President Father Edward Malloy presented Zahm’s team with $500 for the dorm’s general fund and plaques for individual team members. Stanford was awarded with a second place prize of $250 for the dorm’s general fund in addition to trophies for each team member.

"I was pleased. Turn out was good, as was audience participation," said Father Malloy. He also commented on last night’s debaters’ ability to defend sides opposite to their own opinions.

Father Malloy added that the debates were intended to improve intellectual life in the middle of winter and felt they accomplished this goal. He hopes the program can be sustained in further years.

Chairman of Iceberg Debates Joe McKenna, rector of Sorin Hall, was equally pleased with the success of last night’s debates. "I think it pays tribute to the quality of the Zahm and Stanford teams. They are railing politicians with a great deal of flair and ability to think on their feet. Let’s look out for them in ten years time," said McKenna.

February: A time to complain, but not to act

February must be the time of the year. That time when everyone has nothing better to do with their time in some warm, white, and wool room or that time of year, much less in a manner than imperils freedom of expression," said Randy Harrison, operations manager for the easy listening station.

"VXTZ does not believe it's appropriate to support in any way this type of international terrorism, nor do we believe in the concept of apartheid in any way, much less in a manner than imperils freedom of expression," said Steven Stevens, the president of the station.

It seems as though February at Notre Dame brings out the worst in people. It's true that compared to the football season there is nothing to do on weekends and that this is compounded by the frigid lake-effect weather but February isn't all bad. It is!

We've complained about Sports Illustrated's sexist swimsuit issue, the lousy food in the dining hall, the closing of the 24-hour Out Room, WP dull, weird, hell, we've even complained about the complaints (this column included).

I don't know why February effects everyone so. Maybe it is the dourness of the month, maybe it is the weather or maybe it's a let down after the football season. Who can say for sure?

For whatever reason it is strange that all the months of the year, we pick February to complain in. It is almost like national complaining month.

The interesting thing about all of the whining we as students have been doing for the past 28 days is that in the midst of this onslaught of complaints there has also been a considerable amount of apathy. (Here comes my complaint).

Most everyone on campus thinks Notre Dame is one of the most aesthetic places on earth. We complain about this constantly.

They all want someone else to take the initiative and change the attitudes around campus. "Notre Dame stinks, I wish there was something to do on weekends," is just one example of this attitude.

Don't get me wrong. There are some students who make an effort to make a difference, but the majority of students are like a friend who lives next to me in the dorm. He is constantly telling me that The Observer should do this, and the other thing to fix things around campus. Someone should write about this teacher's lousy teaching," he'll tell me.

To some extent he's right. The Observer is hardly exempt, but he is really just trying to get someone else to do his work for him. He doesn't want to make an effort to write a letter to the editor himself. He wants someone else to do it for him.

Regrettably this friend is not alone. Student government is an effort to assist students with class selection, distributed course evaluation questionnaires to all the students on campus. About 400 students responded.

Students complain about classes, but when someone makes an effort to help, they decide not to assist in the process.

I am not sure why so few responded, but I'd say a large number of the respondents figured it wasn't worth their time. "Enough people will fill them out, they don't need mine," seems to be the pervasive attitude.

How wrong all these people are. Your response does make a difference. Take for example the student body election. Only 3,711 students voted in Monday's election. Of only 11 more people had voted for Matt Breslin there would have been a need for a run-off. In this instance ever seemingly insignificant vote would probably have made a difference in the final outcome.

Where does all of this leave us on the first day of a brand new month? Well, we have managed to voice a lot of complaints and get some dialogue this past month, but we have also complained about things without presenting an alternative we are willing to follow through on. Getting people to want to change something is a lot easier than actually getting them to change it.

Since February was the month of bashing and apathy, let's try to make March the month of acting and suggesting ways to change the system.

March is coming in like a lion, and hopefully we will go out like a lamb.

Garzia upgraded to good condition

Observer Staff Report

Saint Mary's Junior Ursula Garzia has been upgraded to good condition Tuesday afternoon following a car accident in which she was injured early Saturday morning.

Junior Michael Stonebreaker, who was the driver of the car involved in the one-car accident, remained in fair condition Tuesday, said a Memorial Hospital spokesperson.

Stonebreaker and Garzia were injured when Stonebreaker's car ran off the road on US 313 and struck a sign pole. Tests after the accident showed Stonebreaker had a blood-alcohol level of .157 percent. Indiana's legal intoxication level is 10 percent.

No decision has been made regarding punishment of Stonebreaker, said Associate Sports Information Director John Heisler. Heisler said Head Coach Lou Holtz had returned to campus late Tuesday afternoon and has not had a chance to review the accident.

Democratic Socialist speaks on poverty in U.S. from 50s to 80s

By DANNIKA SIMPSON

Michael Harrington, national co-chairperson of the Democratic Socialists of America, examined poverty in America from the 1950's through the 1980's in a lecture Tuesday night.

Harrington said that Lyndon Johnson's "unconditional war on poverty" in 1964 was underemphasized because of the Vietnam War. He did praise Johnson for "cutting poverty of the aging in half" by establishing Medicare and covering the elderly under Social Security. He also praised the Johnson administration for establishing job training and legal services for the poor.

Harrington said that poverty was an "integrated problem" in the 1960s and 70s, which affected blacks, whites and Hispanics. He also stated that before Johnson many of the elderly were poor because of lack of benefits to help them with their health and day-to-day living.

Harrington stated that, in contrast, the "new poor" are overwhelming the working poor. Many people who work have low paying "poverty part-time jobs without any kind of medical coverage." Many people have to take these part-time jobs after being laid off from previous jobs, he said, and they are therefore "sliding down the social ladder."

Harrington compared the U.S. system to Japan's, where "executives go to the same bathroom as employees" and workers "have lifetime guaranteed employment." He said that the U.S. should incorporate some aspects of the Japanese system into its own in order to make it more economically just.

Harrington said he thinks that we "can't have a war on poverty because the majority of Americans are not affluent."

He thinks that in order to solve the poverty problem we must "link the struggle against poverty in the U.S. to the struggle against poverty in the world" because it would be wrong to have an America that was just in an unjust world.

Harrington's lecture, which was held at the library auditorium, was sponsored by the Kellogg Institute for International Studies, the Government department, and student government.

Registrar handles many duties

By KELLEY TUTHILL
Staff Reporter

Registering all University students for next semester isn't the Registrar's only headache—the office also alloca classes, compiles the information in the course schedule booklet and sets the final exam schedule.

First preference for classes is awarded to the department whose building the room is in, said Daniel Winicur, dean of administration and registrar. "For example, a chemistry or physics class would have first preference for a room in Nieuwland," said Winicur.

"Then we look at the history. If one faculty member has taught in the room for years, we take that into account," said Winicur. However, if the room size and the type of room does not suit the class, it is unlikely the professor would keep the room, said Winicur.

The particular departments who sponsor the class decide the maximum and minimum number of students, said Winicur. There are several reasons why a particular class is awarded a particular type of room. "For example, a music classroom crunch" such as this occurs, the Registrar will go to a department that has several classes scheduled at that time and ask them to move some classes around, according to Winicur.

"Some departments like math and engineering historically get together to work out conflicts," said Winicur. Once the preliminary course information is back from the departments, it is entered into a computer, said Winicur. The course information is sent back to the departments for review before the actual course selection booklet is printed, said Winicur.

The departments offering the course also decide if a class is going to be registration by permission only, said Winicur. However, the departments are expected to meet the guidelines set up by the Office of the Registrar. "We ask for justification of why a particular class needs to be 'check-marked,'" said Winicur.

"We want to make sure that all students have access to classes," said Winicur. He added that the University is trying to cut back on the number of "check-marked" classes. For example, a music class that required an audition would have to be registration by permission only, said Winicur.

There are several reasons why the course schedule booklet may not specify a professor, said Winicur. The department may not have hired someone yet and consequently are unable to list a professor's name. The second possibility is that the department has yet to decide on a professor, said Winicur.

This spring's exam schedule was made up in the fall semester of 1988, said Winicur. The schedule is based upon the exam schedule from the year before, said Winicur. For example, this spring's schedule depends on when last spring's exams were held.

"We move the exam that was held on Friday last year to the first day this year," said Winicur. Every other exam is moved up accordingly.

The schedule is sent to the assistant and associate deans of each college, said Winicur. The deans look over the schedule and problems are discussed at a later meeting, said Winicur.

"At the meeting, the schedule is amended and if there are conflicts, we clear them up. But when one dean makes a change it affects the other," said Winicur. The schedule is also coordinated with Saint Mary's College, said Winicur.

The fall exam schedule is set up in the early summer, said Winicur. The courses offered must be known prior to scheduling exams, he said. Enrollment numbers are also important because there are few large classrooms that must be saved for large classes' exams, said Winicur.

This spring registration will begin on April 20 and the course selection booklet should be available after March 30, said Winicur.

St. Pat's, spring break focus of HPC meeting

By MAURA KRAUSE

Constitutional amendments were unanimously approved for the Student Union Board by the Hall Presidents' Council last night, and activities for Spring Break and St. Patrick's Day were also discussed.

The changes, approved first by the student senate, concerned the addition of a new article, creating a council composed of the student body president, the SUB manager, and the HPC chairperson. The changes will go into effect immediately.

In other news, Rich Daly, assistant director of alumni clubs, spoke to the council about the Alumni Association's spring break support program. Each year, the Alumni Association travels to the school-sponsored break location. This year, the association will travel to South Padre Island.

Students should bring a phone number for emergencies, however, "the Alumni Association will not be acting in loco parentis," said Daly. Additional campus information and support will be available in the SUB office.

Mike Hough, from SUB, brought to the council's attention the generous support of SUB-sponsored activities.

Following a campaign that many observers found tame by Chicago's raucous standards, turnout in the primary election was lower than expected, and black turnout was running about 10 percentage points behind white turnout, the Chicago Board of Election Commissioners said.

That allowed Daley to build up overwhelming margins on the predominantly white Southwest and Northeast sides. Sawyer was unable to overcome them with weakened support on the predominantly black South and West Sides. At the same time, the elections board said the number of Republican ballots cast totaled about 25,000—some 50 percent more than in the previous election.

Usually, a victory in a Chicago Democratic primary is enough to ensure victory in the general election. But this year could be different. The GOP primary took on unusual interest in the past week when former Democratic Alderman Edward Vrdolyak announced a last-minute write-in campaign against endorsed GOP candidate Herbert Soehn.

In early voting, Vrdolyak was running surprisingly strong outside the Far South Side, and he piled up write-in votes, or 42 percent, at South's 7,342 votes, or 45 percent, but some precincts were not immediately reporting the write-in votes. Businesses William Greentech and Kenneth Hurz split the remainder.

Because of the difficulty of counting write-in votes, the outcome of the Republican race might not be known before Thursday.

Adding further to the maneuvering, the two primary winners will face a third opponent in the general election-Timothy Evans, a black alderman who is mounting a third-party bid on The Harold Washington Party ticket.

Sawyer needed heavy black turnout in order to defeat the victories of the last Harold Washington, who became the city's first black mayor in 1983.

"Iceberg Debates overall are a testament that students can deal with some of the key issues of our day in an all student forum," commented McKenna.

McKenna hoped the debates raised awareness on campus of social justice issues. "The focus was not on debating the process itself, but rather we used debating as a very appropriate tool to get students to deal with some of these issues," he added.

McKenna expects the future structure of the debate to remain basically the same with some changes in the implementation. "The standing committee hopes the incoming student governments will invest similar amounts of time and effort into the Iceberg Debates."
Indiana House approves ‘beer baron bill’

Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS- The Indiana House approved the controversial “beer baron” bill Tuesday as opponents tried to rally beer drinkers to fight the measure.

Lawmakers voted 60-40 for House Bill 2055, which would permit breweries to establish exclusive territories for the distribution of beer. The proposal would replace a 10-year-old Alcoholic Beverage Commission rule banning exclusive beer territories.

H.B. 2055 now goes to the Senate, where opponents hope to defeat it.

Grant Monahan, president of the Indiana Retail Council, said his group probably will keep up an advertising campaign aimed at getting beer drinkers to call their lawmakers.

“If this bill had come down on Wednesday or Thursday, and the public had had a chance to have input, I think the vote would have been different,” said Monahan.

A group of retailers took out a full-page advertisement in The Indianapolis Star on Tuesday to argue against the bill, claiming it will boost beer prices substantially.

Rep. Marc Carmichael, D-Muncie, denied his bill would turn an industry upside down. He charged the rule was a deliberate attempt to shift sales of beer from one group of distributors to another.

The ABC rule has forced many local, family-owned distributorships out of business, said Carmichael, who left his job with a South Bend distributor after the rule was approved. If left unchecked, the rule could lead to creation of a few large distributorships that would control many brands of beer, he said.

Indiana now has about 80 distributors, compared with more than 200 when the ABC rule took effect, said Carmichael.

Carmichael argued that eventually that trend could force up beer prices by putting control of all brands in the hands of a few distributors. By contrast, he and other supporters of the bill claimed, competition among breweries would hold down beer prices if H.B. 2055 took effect.

However, opponents of the bill said it would force beer prices up immediately. Retailers couldn’t shop around for the best price for a brand but would be forced to buy it from the exclusive distributor for their area, opponents of the bill said.

“If all the outlets have to come to me to get the product, then I will call the shots,” said Rep. Donald Nelson, R-Indianapolis.

“There’s no question the price will go up,” said Rep. J. Jeff Hays, D-Evansville. He said a recent spot check in Kentucky and Illinois showed beer prices there 38 to 70 cents more per six pack than they were in Evansville.

All other states permit distributors to establish their distribution territories.

Other opponents claimed the bill was attempting to turn back the clock to a time when every community could support a beer distributor who had an exclusive contract.

MONTREAL- It appeared the French and English languages could live together in Quebec after separatist fervor abated nearly a decade ago, but the struggle resumed in December and French appears to have won.

New issues arise constantly, such as whether the inside of a bus is really outside for sign purposes, and the answer almost every time is that the signs must be only in French. The English-speaking minority, although disgruntled, appears to accept that the fight is going nowhere.

“Resigned is probably the right catchword,” said Donald Taylor, a psychology professor at McGill University.

Language is “a symbol of identity and it also is a resource that has associated power, status, and access,” he said. “So these apparently minor events evoke very fundamental feelings.”

Quebec was a battleground of culture and language in the 1970s between the 81 percent with French heritage and a minority with a cultural kinship to Ontario and the other English-speaking provinces.

Power shifted to the French-speaking majority in those years but the separatist tide ebbed after 1980, and with it the dispute over language, when Quebec voters rejected a sovereignty referendum.

Then came a ruling by the Supreme Court of Canada in December that a 1977 Quebec law requiring all signs to be in French was unconstitutional.

The court said French could be required but other languages could not be prohibited.

The provincial government, which has broader powers than state governments in the United States, overrode the decision with new legislation for the language signs.

Bill 178, as it is known, requires that all outdoor signs still be solely in French, but for the first time since 1977 allowed bilingual indoor signs.

U.S. economic growth slowest of last two years

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The economy grew at a lackluster annual rate of 3 percent in the final three months of 1988, the slowest pace in two years, reflecting a worsening trade deficit and the lingering effects of the summer drought, the government said Tuesday.

The Commerce Department said the slowdown in the gross national product, the total output of goods and services, was accompanied by a pickup in the inflation rate as food prices and the costs of imports both rose. While the 2 percent overall growth figure was unchanged from an initial report a month ago, economists labeled the new GNP statistics disturbing because of the weaknesses in trade, the speed-up in inflation and an acceleration of consumer spending.

"The shape of the economy looks worse than we thought," said David Wyss, senior financial economist for Data Resources Inc. of Lexington, Mass. "All the changes were in the wrong direction."

Economists were concerned because the new GNP report showed that the country's trade imbalance worsened even more than previously estimated during the fourth quarter as imports grew at an annual rate of 13 percent, swamping a 7 percent gain in exports.

recession expected by end of 1990, page 8

Consumer spending rose at a robust 3.5 percent annual rate, too fast given current constraints on production resulting from tight labor markets and high operating rates, economists said. The jump in consumer spending, which went primarily to big-ticket items such as cars, also showed that Americans' appetite for foreign goods is unabated.

"The surge in consumption pulled in more imports with the result that the deterioration in the trade deficit was worse than previously assumed," said Jerry Jasinowski, chief economist of the National Association of Manufacturers.

It marked the second consecutive quarter that the GNP trade deficit worsened and served to reinforce economists' contention that America's trade woes are a long way from being solved.

The fourth quarter figure was depressed by the lingering effects of last summer's drought. Without the drought effects, the economy would have expanded at a 3.1 percent rate.

On the inflation front, a GNP price measure that reflects changing consumption patterns rose at an annual rate of 5.3 percent in the fourth quarter, up from a 4.7 percent rate of increase in the third quarter.

In another economic report Tuesday, the National Association of Realtors said existing single-family home sales fell a sharp 7.4 percent in January to an annual rate of 3.63 million units. The median price of a home rose 3.2 percent to $85,500.

Soviet magazine says govt.'s political lies

Associated Press

MOSCOW - A prominent state-run magazine has scathingly criticized the Communist Party, accusing it of spreading "political lies" that have deceived the Soviet people for generations.

The unprecedented attack in the literary monthly Novy Mir also questioned the rationale of the 30 million-member party's legal monopoly on power, enshrined by the 1977 Constitution, and says genuine democracy is impossible until the party permits open dissent in its ranks.

Even in the franker atmosphere fostered by President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's campaign for "glasnost," or greater openness, such harsh criticism of Communist Party practices in an official Soviet publication would have recently seemed impossible.

The article, by widely known sociologist Igor M. Klyamkin, also hints at the central paradox of Gorbachev's blueprint for political change, by noting that Soviet "democratization" is taking place in a system where one party has declared itself society's sole legitimate ruler.

The criticism comes at a time when Soviets are preparing for their first national multicandidate elections.

WASHINGTON: The economy will grow substantially in 1989 with rising inflation and higher interest rates likely to top worries of business economists before the end of next year, the nation's top business economists predicted Monday. The National Association of Business Economists said a survey of its members found them slightly more optimistic about growth prospects for this year than they were three months ago.

But by Hodges numbers, the economists were still predicting that the real growth rate for the start of the next recession was 1960. Three out of four of the economists surveyed expected a new recession sometime in the next year or two, yet the number predicting a downturn in 1989 dropped from 48 percent to 35 percent in the latest survey.

Jay Woodworth, president of the association, said that economists were more optimist about growth around 1988. Because of signs that auto sales, retail spending and housing construction were holding up even with the increase in interest rates. "But if you ask the economists that feel this expansion is not at the end of its string yet. We probably wouldn't get a two-thirds vote or so to go," Woodworth, senior economist at Bankers Trust Co. of New York, said at a news briefing.

The survey was taken before the latest round of credit tightening on the part of Federal Reserve Board. Last Friday, the Fed boosted its discount rate, the interest it charges to make loans to financial institutions, to 7 percent. A hike in the discount rate is the most dramatic signal the central bank can send of its intentions to put higher rates to dampen an overheated economy.

The business economists expressed strong support for the Fed's inflation-fighting battle, with 70 percent expecting the board to boost interest rates further in 1989, perhaps to as high as 5.25 percent.

Woodward said the inflationary pressures, if not contained, would likely take their toll on the expansion, "It is the longest and lowest peacetime record of six years. "Inflation rates of 5 percent in the long run aren't high enough to be consistent with long-term growth and over time they would probably lead to a recession," he said.

The median forecast for growth this year, as measured by the gross national product, was a 2.5 percent estimate made by the business economists three months ago.

The economy grew at a year high of 3.8 percent last year.

The Bush administration has predicted a 3.5 percent growth rate for 1989. But some economists say the economy will grow only modestly in 1989 to a 2.3 percent rate, although this estimate is about one-half percentage point higher than most private forecasters.

The administration is counting on faster growth to bring in more revenues and help it cut its deficit without resorting to higher taxes.

On the question of interest rates, the economists were more optimistic about the week, with 70 percent saying the interest rates would be lower in 1989 than they were three months ago.

Woodworth said the rate would likely be 7.8 percent by the end of 1989.

The administration is forecasting a higher rate than the economists, projecting higher rates for this year, which also makes the deficit look like it will be a bigger problem on paper because it lowers government borrowing costs.

Small firms can profit by better college relations

Special to The Observer

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind.--Can small, high-technology firms benefit from better relations with universities and colleges?

A preliminary study of 200 high-growth firms says "yes," but the study indicates that universities and industry need to clarify their needs and expectations.

The study was conducted by two Purdue University researchers to gather data on how small firms develop and maintain relationships with colleges and universities. The study was designed primarily to look forward to more comprehensive investigation.

"The executives feel that universities need to be more practical in their research and more responsive to the needs of industry," says Greg Logan, assistant to the head of Purdue's Department of Computer Science and co-researcher for the study.

While executives place high priority on better relationships, they indicated little willingness to invest in improving those relationships, says Logan.

"Only eight of the responding firms have a full-time university relations coordinator. Only 48 percent of the respondents have an employee that is involved in university relations," he says.

"Our research and observations suggest that the college relations are in many cases small companies in a low priority position with extremely high turnover." the study concludes.

You're an ordinary working stiff in a big corporation. Suddenly, your boss starts talking as if we were the rich Uncles Ray and Bob.

"All right, you always wished you had. Out of the goodness of his heart, he tells you, he's going to give you and the rest of the labor force a piece of the action."

He means that of course this is real? And is it just that possible somebody along the way is getting ripped off?

Could be--even though there are stories of deals among major corporations to form ESOPs (employee stock ownership plans) that give their employees a stake in the business.

Companies like Texaco, Procter & Gamble, Polaroid, J.C. Penny, Avis, and Hospital Corporation of America have gone this route, swelling the number of ESOP plans to an estimated 8,000. ESOPs have always been a sort of tax dodge. Low-interest loans are made by an outside lender to a trust set up for a company's employees. The trust buys shares in the company and pays the money. But unlike other forms of borrowing, the company can use contributions to the ESOP (with these loans which are actually repayable) are considered 100% equity principal as well as interest.

The leading evangelist for ESOPs is San Francisco lawyer Louis Kelso, who made a major convert in 1973 of Sen. Russell Long, then chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Highly favorable tax laws were written. The idea was that it would help privately owned companies whose owners wanted to retire, and would give workers the opportunity to become capitalists, even on a small scale.

From the start, there were serious questions about using the tax code for this purpose. Congress has used most of the economic spectrum from Milton Friedman to Paul Samuelson, who denounced the plan as a loophole.

But perhaps the most serious objection was that ESOPs were making an implied promise to workers that they might be able to deliver. ESOPs look like retirement plans and have been launched mostly through the federal pension laws.

Congress, however, exempted ESOPs from key pension safeguards that could spell disaster for a floundering company.

In other words, instead of a pension plan based on sensible investment, workers, might be putting all their eggs in the basket and risk them all.

"And if that's us and people like us," she said, leaning forward to emphasize her point, "we are expecting their third child.

To control runaway inflation that reached 30.000 in 1988 and 70 percent in January alone, the government is firing the central bank can send of its dollars in an effort to control runaway inflation.

Indeed, when I pressed Kelso on this once, he acknowledged that he would not recommend ESOPs for "companies that are unsuccessful, companies that are unprofitable." He added jokingly: "It's no substitute for good management."

The new modern version of Heaven

Editor's note: The following fictional article is a satirical account which represents the author's personal views. Some time ago I had a very interesting experience during one of my late-night visits to the Grand. No sooner did I reach for my rosary beads than I was told that I had found favor with Heaven. I have been aware of some strange things happening in Heaven lately, and I'd like to take you on a look around. It seems that some nitwits have staged a coup, and are trying to destroy my son's Church. I'll give you enough of my rosary beads so that you can immediately find myself standing on a platform of clouds, underneath an arch with the inscription 'The Pearly Gates.'

Glenn Fogarty

with no apologies

A bespectacled man in a three-piece suit soon approached me, just as I was remarking, 'Boy, what an interesting job.' The man replied, 'Well, we liberal theologians are still debating whether this place actually exists or not. When we decide that it doesn't exist, then it will. Not a moment sooner.'

'Who are you?' I asked.

'Oh, believe me. You've heard of me,' he replied. 'I'm Fr. Charles Current. I'll be your guide to Heaven. You must be Mr. Fogarty, the bishop who approves all of Atheism.' He then told me that Atheism is such a grand faith. We liberal theologians have been toying with the idea of incorporating it into our Catholic theology, you know. We must be ecumenical!

'Well, uh...' I had no idea what to say.

'Let me show you around. You'll like our theology better. You've heard of the ?All roads lead to Rome!' We've completely rerouted Heaven's highway system. Now all roads lead away from Rome! Aren't we clever?'

Riding in a cloud-car with Fr. Current down Karl Rahner Boulevard, I was aware that I was perusing many of Heaven's new features. One could soon be a Genoa shopping mall, teeming with wonderful stores like 'Ray Huthenhausen's Anno-mart,' $1.98 Annum Spe­cial! Charlemagne's Ancient Bookshop,' and 'Liturgies R. Us.' There was even a multiplex cinema showing round-the-clock screenings of 'The Last Temptation of Christ' in every theatre, with free commentary from eminent theologians after each show. Fr. Current turned to me and said, 'Isn't it just wonderful? I bet you never thought Heaven was as good as this. No more ?New Jerusalem' stuff. There's my favorite store over there! It's called 'The Religious Super­market.' You can buy any doctrine or heresy you want there, provided that it isn't approved by the Vatican.'

'Can I even buy voodoo or paganism, and incorporate it into liberal theo­logy?'

'Oh, sure. I do that all the time. Their Shinto is especially tasty. I make my favorite dishes with the ?Shake & Bake' Religion mix. Just put the ingredients you want in a bag, shake, put it in the oven, and you have your own gourmet heresy! Last night I used some Manic­hacism, some Gnosticism, and some plain old Hedonism, mixed it with Ar­rogance and a dash of paprika, and voilà! Charles Current's new Canyon Institute!' Wondering where all the 'big' people in Heaven were, I began to ask Fr. Current a few questions:

'Ah, Fr. Current, where's this Jesus fellow, anyway?'

'Well, he's under guard in our new Schillebeekx Prison. Would you believe that he actually denied that that fine film was about him? Or that he wasn't actually a woman? He even sup­ports ?Humanite Valse! I suspect the guy's a Vatican agent.'

'Mary?'

'A big disappointment. Amazing woman. Al­ways trying to steal the glory from us theologians. By the way, I highly doubt that she was a virgin. '

'St. Paul?'

'Or a warmonger! A foe of peace and justice! We burned him at the stake the last week. No use for intolerant people like that.'

Soon thereafter, Current stopped the cloud-car, saying, 'Well, we're here.'

'Where?'

'Why, Red Square, downtown Managua! In honor of our favorite Mar­xist slave pen, of course. Liberation theology, you know. We're going to erect statues of the New Holy Trinity in the center of the square this week! Marx, Lenin, and Daniel Berrigan. Has a nice theological ring to it, don't you think?'

Suddenly a loudspeaker started blaring the message, 'Silence. This is Big Doubter speak­ing. Today, you shall think the thought You can be too loyal to the Pope. You can be to emphatic about the divinity of God.'

'Words of Wisdom,' Current said.

'Over there's our new Buddhist Temple, the centerpieces of our new Heaven. Ecumenism, you know. We have a Catholic chapel over here, for operative purposes. We only play one hymn. ?Non Serviam.'

'What does God have to say about all this?'

'God? We're not on speaking terms with Him, if we got involved with God, it would send a chilling effect over all theological innovation.'

'What a pity.'

'Would you believe that he actually had the audacity to say that He was being patient with us, but that He would be forced to discipline us soon? Dis­ciple the Third Magisterum? Never! I suspected He was a Vatican stooge all along.'

'Can I speak to him?'

'No, the Pope is too person to the person we've appointed to be God' In His place is the Lord of Liberal Theology. He is sitting on his high pedestal now!'

I asked Fr. Current to the pedestal and asked, 'What in the world are you doing up there, Herr Kung?'

He replied, 'Ah, yes. I was up on the air and look down on the Vatican from a superior standpoint. I answered, 'Well, I suppose it's better that you sneer at the Pope from a pedestal in the air than do it from the ground.'

Precisely. Only by dazing my mind in the heavens and mingling my rare thought with etherial air could I ever hope to achieve this境界境界境界.

I replied. 'Well, that's all very nice," and turning to Fr. Current said, 'I think I've had my fill of the new Heaven.'

'Rearen't you going to stay for our Freewill Hedonistic Lovefest? It'll be just like the 60's! Free abortions, too. Abortion isn't a black and white issue, either.

'I think I'll take my leave, Mary, if you'll do the honors!' Suddenly I found myself back at the groovy. Was I ever glad to be back at Notre Dame, a real Catholic place. Walking across campus, however, I noticed an announcement proclaiming 'This week! At Woodstock Hedonistic Lovefest? It'll be just like the 60's! Free abortions, too. Abortion isn't a black and white issue, either.

'Ah, there he is!'

Asst. Treasurer's job now open

Dear Editor:

We see and hear about the many activities offered by the student organizations on campus. However, most of us do not realize that our $55 student activity fee provides the fund­ing for many of the activities and the activities they sponsor. In fact, close to $400,000 is collected from the student activity fee and the student body trea­surer is responsible for budgeting this sum to the many organizations which rely on it for their operations. These include: student government, SUB, the class governments, each dorm and the Off-Campus Councils, and over 120 other clubs and organizations on campus.

Once the budgeting process has been completed in April of each year, the student body treasurer is responsible for maintaining an accurate record of all finances and dispersing the allo­cated funds to the organizations men­tioned above. The student body trea­surer serves on the Student Senate, the Student Union Board Steering Commit­tee (the monitoring board for SUB), the Student Business Board (the monitor­ing board for the student-run busi­nesses in LaFortune as well as Ad­works), and as chairman of the Student Senate Budget and Finance Committee, where it is the treasurer's duty to see that each eligible organization on campus receives funding for the follow­ing year.

If you are interested in sharing some of this responsibility, student govern­ment needs you. Each year in March, interested students are held to select someone to serve as the assistant student body treasurer. Applicants must be sopho­mores in the College of Business Ad­ministration. During the second semes­ter of the student body treasurer's junior year, he or she will serve as the assistant treasurer in a learning experience and be involved with the financial operations of student govern­ment. Then, on April 1, 1990, he or she will assume the role of student body treasurer. Thus, the person chosen will have the opportunity to serve under two different student government ad­ministrations.

As the current assistant student body treasurer, I would encourage anyone eligible to apply for the position. This past year has been both challenging and rewarding in helping me prepare for the future. Through this job, I have been able to gain practical experience and help make important decisions. In many ways, this job has been compara­ble to a summer internship. I have gained a greater understanding of busi­ness, leadership qualities, and experi­enced all the many joys of being an arrogance.

I am looking forward to sharing my experience with the new assistant trea­surer next year.

Applications for the assistant student body treasurer's position may be ob­tained in the Treasurer's Office on the second floor of LaFortune, between 12 and 4 p.m. this week. All applications are due this Thursday at 4 p.m., and interviews will be held after spring break. If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to stop by or call the Treasurer's Office, or to pursue this interest. The position of assistant stu­dent body treasurer provides a great learning experience, one which can only be built upon in the future.

Quote of the Day

I 'tried to tell them that this crisis will pass, that you have to keep moving forward.'

-Tom Landry (saying goodbye to the Dallas Cowboys after 29 years as coach)
The very next day this point became a vivid reality when we visited the home of a Great Britain's most over-optimistic and energetic priest, Fr. Mike Ivers. Fr. Ivers gave each of us the sense of the mission of this place. He was walking around with Jim McMurtry, they came across a lady who had just then been evicted from her house. Apparently there was a dispute over ownership of the house and the payment of property taxes. This is a legal problem that Fr. Ivers could not deal with himself, so he decided to call a lawyer he knew. Furthermore, it just so happened that a reporter for the Chicago Tribune was also on the tour. He asked the lady if she would like press coverage of what had happened to her. If the lawyers could not help her, possibly the power of public opinion could.

The situation was really a very strikes and Ben and all had been highly critical of the government was that being poor was being evicted, and it is possible the lack of respect shown for this lady is unacceptable no matter what the circumstances. The attitude directed towards her I think, may reflect a general overall attitude that landlords and the Chicago government take toward the poor. I found it very interesting to learn how important the Church can be.

When the lights dim and the audience hushes, only one sound invades the movie theatre— the steady "drip, drip" of water. The audience is overwhelmed by the intricate layers of rich sensory images presented in the opening scene of "Tap." From the outset of "Tap," in which Max Washington (Gregory Hines) dances with a frantic nervousness in his jail cell, you know that you have to like tap dancing to like this appropriately-titled film.

Max grew up a black kid in the ghetto with an extreme realist father, also a hard-working father, who has worked with dancers and boxers alike, colors the film with memorable dance scenes. The rhythm is contagious, transmitting the pulsating drama of life itself—the tap dance is life.

The hard edges of the real world are glazed-over, and extreme realists will object, but "Tap" certainly entertains. If you've had enough of reality— midterms, winter, bad SYR dates— surrender to the excitement of "Tap."

The humorous buoyancy of the storyline is reminiscent of "Designing Women," but "Tap" is a movie which will make you tap your feet as well as touch your emotions. The lengths Draisen goes to kidnap Jennifer Downing, daughter of Helen (played by Annie Potts) and Little Mo (Sammy Davis Jr.), her father, are now running the dance studio once owned by Max's late father. Little Mo sees in Max the possibility of realizing his dream of integrating tap and modern rock. Amy sees Max as a man she still loves, but isn't sure she can live with.

Although the story line holds its own, the truly outstanding aspect of "Tap" is the choreography. Henry LeTang, a New York native who has worked with dancers and boxers, colors the film with memorable dance scenes. The rhythm is contagious, transmitting the pulsating drama of life itself—the tap dance is life.

Writer/director Nick Castle merges two art forms, and is so successful due to the artistic capability of Hines, Davis, and Douglas. "Tap" is a movie which will make you tap your feet as well as touch your emotions.

Fearless in the line of duty, Detective Harry Crumb (John Candy) slips into a daring disguise in Tri-Star Picture's comedy "Who's Harry Crumb?"

When a student drops a glass or breaks a bowl in the dining hall, heads turn to look and scattered cheers break out. This occasional embarrassing moment may be funny to lookers. However, such an incident is funny only once or twice. One hour and a half of objects (often price-less ones) being destroyed becomes tedious. Unfortunately, this is exactly what happens in the new John Candy comedy, "Who's Harry Crumb?"

There does happen to be a plot somewhere among the debris of ruined living rooms and offices. Harry Crumb (John Candy) is the last "in a long line of great Crumb detectives." He is called in by the home office to solve the kidnapping of Jennifer Downing, daughter of multimillionaire P.J. Downing. The president of Crumb and Crumb, Eliot Draisen (played by Jeffrey Jones) calls Harry to take this case based on his belief that Crumb is hope-lessly incompetent. This is because Draisen is actually the kidnapper, trying to get $10 million dollars from Downing. By doing this, he hopes to convince Downing's wife, Helen, to leave her hus-bard for him and his new-found money.

Draisen's obsession with Helen (played by Annie Potts) allows him to overlook the fact that she is only con-cerned with money. What he does not realize, however, is that Helen is actually plot-ting, with her tennis pro boyfriend, to kill Downing for his millions. It becomes Crumb's job to wade through this mess of greed and deceit. He eventually does, through no fault of his own.

Candy, always willing to appear foolish to get a laugh, takes things too far in this film. In one visit to Downing's office, he gets bitten by a piranha and kills it, puts both his hands into a trayful of fish hooks, and destroys an antique model of a ship along with the glass case it sits in.

Not only is Crumb's clumsi-ness over-emphasized, but his considerable frame is of-ten taken advantage of for laughs. As one of his many subtle disguises, Crumb dresses as a jockey when he goes to the racetrack. He gets firmly stuck while talking on the phone in a booth designed for jockeys.

Ann Potts does a wonder-ful job as Helen Downing, the cheating, greedy wife. This role is so unlike the one she has on the TV series, "Designing Women," that it is fun to watch. The sight of her repeatedly smacking and berating her brainless boyfriend is hysterical. She plays the part well of a wo-man who really does not care what man she is with, as long as he has money.

Jeffrey Jones also makes the movie more enjoyable with his performance as Draisen. In this film, his obsessed character is some-what similar to the high school principal he played in "Ferris Bueller's Day Off." The lengths Draisen goes to so as to insure his future with Helen are unbelievable. His exterior look of a successful business executive amusingly contrasts with his inner sleaziness.

The promotions for this movie claim Crumb has "nerves of steel, body of iron, and brain of stone." The brain part quickly becomes apparent. Crumb never really tries to imitate the style of others such as "Airplane!" and "The Naked Gun." The humorous slapstick quality of these movies is nowhere to be found in "Who's Harry Crumb?" The only crumbs anyone should see are those found on dining hall tables.

Greetings in the line of duty, Detective Harry Crumb (John Candy) slips into a daring disguise in Tri-Star Picture's comedy "Who's Harry Crumb?"

Agents may be tried apart

Associated Press

CHICAGO—A defense attorney on Tuesday sought to have sports agent Lloyd Bloom tried separately from college negotiations over Northern Illinois athletic contracts.

Both men are accused of $200,000 in penalties to line up as college athletes as clients.

As a brief hearing, U.S. district Judge George Marovich said he would rule on the motion Wednesday.

Bloom and attorney Robert Golden to remove other cases because evidence is allowed.

Marovich indicated Monday that they might seek new charges or a new trial because the former attorney already faces counts of wire fraud, mail fraud, and embezzlement of college funds.

Bloom's attorney Anthony Valasek told Marovich Tuesday that they would instead seek only to submit the new evidence.

Gold said the evidence could cause him to remove himself from the case by requiring him to testify in Walters' defense.

Defense attorney Dan Webb said he wanted to have Bloom tried separately from Walters because the defenses could conflict with each other at the trial of the New York case.

Marovich set March 13 as the start of the two agents threatened the players with death if they tried to back out of the case in closing arguments.

The case is being closely monitored, attorneys for both sides, telling attorneys for both.

The case is being closely monitored by the NCAA because it involves the idea that professional athletes who are not employed by the leagues could have a faculty student-athlete status.

The NCAA has been considering the idea of allowing athletes to have the same work opportunities as professional athletes while still maintaining their NCAA eligibility.

A brief hearing is expected to begin next month, according to the NCAA.

Irish tennis faces challenges in southern California

By BOB MITCHELL

Sports Writer

"Make sure you bring your suntan lotion, bathing suit and a towel. "Oh yeah, bring a tennis racket or two, and maybe we'll hit around."

Although these aren't the exact words of Head Coach Bob Bayliss, the Notre Dame men's tennis trip to California will not be all relaxation. In between the fun and sun, the 11 Irish will stop in Westwood, Ca., and hit around with the No.1 team in collegiate tennis, UCLA on March 6. The following day, the streaking Irish will move over to Southern Cal's Marks Stadium to take on the court against the No.12 Trojans.

"The trip is a chance to continue to compete, to improve and to challenge ourselves," said Bayliss. "Yet it is something of a reward for a job well done so far this season."

Before those uphill battles, Notre Dame will hold over in La Jolla, Ca. to partake in the Pacific Coast Doubles tournament from March 5-6. At the La Jolla Beach and Tennis Club, some premier collegiate schools will enter doubles teams to fight for the crown. The Irish will enter four duos in the three day competition. Also, the PCD will acclimate the Irish to the outdoor setting of all four of its matches in California. "The Pacific Coast Doubles will give us a chance to compete at a high level," said Bayliss. "But it will ease the grind of dual matches."

To continue its Top 25 schedule, the Irish will combat the best that collegiate tennis has to offer when they take on the Bruins. Looking for the first victory against a Top 25 foe, Bayliss said No.1 Buff Farrow is the defending NCAA champions and currently the No.1 ranked team in the country.

"I'm not worried about the winning or losing," said Bayliss. "Win, lose or draw, we should be out there competing."

Regardless of the outcome of the UCLA contests, the Irish must hop over to the USC campus on March 7. The Trojans, who have 13 National Tennis Championships (second to UCLA's 15) boast of a No.12 national ranking. Continuing the legend of Wimbeldon champion and alumni Stan Smith is No.1 Byron Black. The 5-9 Zimbabwe native, ranked 27th in pre-season rankings, possess an incredible all-court style. Farrow and Black is probably the best outing that any Irish team can lose to an eastern school."

To conclude spring break, the Irish will take a trip to Midshipmen in La Jolla on March 9. Although unranked, Navy is a formidable foe that the Irish can not afford to take lightly. For Bayliss, the Navy matchup has specific significance since he coached there from 1970-1984 and holds the distinction of the only men's tennis coach not to lose to Army.

"They're not as match ready as we are but they are very anxious and dangerous," said Bayliss. "Navy has one of the best teams they've had in several years."

Schoendi enst, Barlick elected to Hall of Fame

Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — Former St. Louis Cardinals managing baseman Red Schoendienst and National League umpire Al Barlick were elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame Tuesday by the veterans committee.

Schoendienst played 18 years in the majors and retired after the 1965 season with 2,880 hits, 177 home runs and 1,101 RBI. He was a seven-time All-Star and helped the Cardinals win the 1967 World Series and the 1968 National League title.

Barlick, 73, is the last umpire from the pre-television era still alive. He worked his final game in 1980 and spent 39 years in the American League. He made his umpiring debut in 1948.

Keeping ND’s standards high

After reading last week’s issue of Sports Illustrated—an issue which focused on the complete lawlessness of Oklahoma’s football program—I was appalled at the depths to which college football has fallen. And, like every other student with a deep loyalty to a school, I tried to convince myself that no matter how badly the boys act at times, nothing they could do would bring that type of embarrassment to this school.

After all, isn’t this Notre Dame, home of all that is good and decent in the world?

Don’t the constant reminder of the Virgin Mary sitting on the Golden Dome watching over our every move prevent our players and students from defiling the school’s name with unseemly behavior?

None of us are that naive. But I didn’t think that in one week two of our football team’s most prominent athletes would play such a major role in dragging our university down to the level of such paragons of morality as Oklahoma, SMU, or Miami for that matter.

This is not the say that the actions by two players necessarily condemns the entire team or by extension the entire program. But we are in a sense responsible for the actions of our peers, especially in the case of two students.

Indeed Lewis, seemingly unmatched in our eyes, and Jerry Parks, shooting fellow, were both elected to the majors at age 25 in 1940.

One cannot help but wonder if the entire team was involved in this disgraceful act. It also brings into question the standards at Notre Dame University.

The veterans committee, which selects players passed over in the regular draft of baseball writers, has elected 119 members to the hall in 32 years. This year’s class will be announced later in the year.

Schoendienst and Barlick will be inducted on July 23 along with Johnny Bench and Carl Yastrzemski, who were elected by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

three-point bomb in a 7-0 run which the Rebels used to make up for a 20-15 deficit. Lewis scored the last eight points of the ball game.

Ellen Mouch of Lewis led all scorers with 15 points, while Cisccone and Marcie Powell had 8 each. Mangan finished with 14 for the Rebels.

The Rebels killed B.P. with their free throw shooting, hitting 15 of 20 attempts from the charity stripe, while B.P. hit 6 of 10.

B.P. coach Jeff Heilman said the Lewis man-to-man defense really hurt his team.

“We haven’t seen man-to-man defense in ages,” he said. “I can’t remember the last time we’ve had to play against a defense like this. We tried a lot of different things today, but we just have to figure out what works for Thursday.”

Lewis coaches Tom Zidar and Mark Laboe were obviously pleased with their team’s performance.

“I guess it helped us to play a couple of games in a row,” said Zidar. “We’ve got a lot better. The run we had at the end of the game against P.E. gave us a lot of confidence.”

“We’re scared to death of the B.P. inside game, though. Lora Mangan is a very good ball-player. We’re just scared to death to still be alive and playing in the championship game of this tournament.”

Indeed Lewis, seemingly undermatched in no matter who they play against, is an improbable finalist. But the Rebels’ shooting has been phenomenal throughout the tournament, and their quickness forces bigger teams into a lot of turnovers.

“We have to shoot the ball real well,” said Zidar, “because we don’t get a lot of offensive rebounds when we don’t shoot well, we’re not a very good team.”

Green-Phillips, on the other hand, has to take better care of the ball and make the most of his height inside to have a chance at becoming Interhall champions on Thursday. With Mangan and junior Vicki Ruth, the Blitz have the best one-two inside scoring punch in the league, and they will have to make the most of it to beat Lewis in the championship game.

“We’re going to hustle more and hopefully come back with the trophy,” said Fulling.

The pit in the Joyce ACC allowed Morrissey to run its offensive game as planned. With tonight’s game slated for a confined gym, both teams will have to adapt to the shooting conditions. As two different playing conditions will have been used, the winner of the final contest will be the true champion.
Canadian drug inquiry starts

Associated Press

TORONTO—The federal inquiry into drugs and athletics prompted by a disqualification from the Olympics of Canadian sprinter Ben Johnson resumed Tuesday with hints of startling testimony to come.

Commission counsel Robert Armstrong said he anticipates that athletes who will appear during the inquiry's review of track and field will admit to steroid use.

He said the extent of the admissions "probably" will be greater than ever heard anywhere before and he urged that no one be penalized for his candor.

Ontario Associate Chief Justice Charles Dubin, appointed by the federal government to investigate drug abuse in Canadian amateur athletics after the Olympic scandal last September, said there was merit to the observation and it would be considered at the proper time.

The commission has sweeping powers to summon and hear testimony but has no mandate to sanction. It could issue recommendations that could be followed by the Canadian Track and Field Association, however.

Appearing for what is certain to be days of testimony was Charlie Francis, Johnson's coach since the sprinter first came to the Scarborough Optimists Track and Field Club at age 15.

The coach, who detailed the accomplishments of his runners with a remarkably accurate recall, has not spoken publicly since Johnson was stripped of the 100-meter gold medal at Seoul after a positive test for anabolic steroids.

Francis said Johnson first came to the track club with his older brother, Eddie, in 1977 and showed little indication of becoming a world champion at that young age.

Johnson, now 27, was showing promise by 1981 and by 1986 was ranked No. 1 in the world in the 100 meters.

Francis offered detailed testimony of building his group of sprinters from four in 1976 to some 30 who garnered an impressive collection of national domination and international wins.

In his only comment on the Seoul scandal since September, he issued a brief statement last fall that suggested the sprinter's urine test may have been sabotaged.

"Such a test result defies all logic and, in my opinion, can only be explained by a deliberate manipulation of the testing process," Francis said in the Oct. 3 statement.

Irish lax starts up with Stony Brook

By PETE LaFLEUR
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team begins a new season when it faces off against SUNY-Stony Brook and Georgetown during spring break.

Led by first-year coach Kevin Corrigan and senior tri-captains John Olmstead, Kevin O’Connor and Doug Spencer, the Irish are looking to start the season off with victories at Ston Y. Brook and against the Hoyas at Seton Hall University in Hempstead, N.Y.

Preparing under an intensified practice and conditioning program, the Irish should be in the hunt for the NCAA tournament bid reserved for a "western" school. The Irish fell short of that goal the last two seasons, losing to eventual representatives Michigan State in 1987 and Air Force in 1988. This season many observers sense the Irish have their best shot.

"In the past we didn't know much about the bid because it was new," Olmstead said. "But now we know what it means, and for the first time we're going to grasp it."

Below is an overview of the '89 Irish, position by position:

All three starters return to form a unit that Corrigan says he has "a lot of confidence in." Juniors Brian McHugh and Dave Barnard lead the three freshmen. Senior captain Mike Salamon and sophomore Glenn Corrigan also return from a knee injury he suffered in the fall. He is joined by sophomore Mike Sullivan and freshman Mike O'Connor and sophomore Mike Sennett.

Last season the Irish boasted a balanced midfield group, one that countered the experience of four seniors with the youth of five freshmen. This season, however, the Irish have only three of those 13 players remaining. The oldest being junior Mike Quigley.

"On midfield we still run into some problems mainly because we tend to hurry things and that's not unusual for a young group," Corrigan said. "But I think we have a well-balanced midfield group. They're getting better all the time and I think that'll continue."

Quigley, the team's leader in ground balls, and sophomore John Capano, the team's top faceoff man, return to lead the young Irish midfield. They are joined by freshman Chris Nelson on the first midfield line. Sophomore Chris Rowley returns from a knee injury he suffered in the fall. He is joined by freshman Mike Sullivan and freshman Mike O'Connor on the second midfield line.

Beyond that, the Irish will use freshmen Doug Murray and Scott Muma on faceoffs while sophomore John Titterton and freshman Brian Schirf will be used in clearing and defensive situations.

Defence

The Irish return eight veterans on a defensive unit that is led by captains O'Connor and Spencer, who started every game last season for the 19-4 Irish.

"I think we've got nine defenders (including freshman Lance Scott) that can play. During the course of the year, you're going to have injuries and those nine players will be in a position to help us," Corrigan said.

"Also, if a player knows he doesn't have to pace himself and can go all out, it allows him to play looser and be a little more aggressive."

The strength of this year's team, Corrigan said, is in its depth. The defense loses only one of its experienced players. O'Connor and sophomore Dave Barnard specialize on man-to-man coverage while senior Brendan Cahill and juniors Mike Stevens and Jeff Salamon are noted for their physical play on the crease. Those five players should battle for starting spots throughout the season, although Salamon is slowed by a knee injury that sidelined him last year.

Spencer, meanwhile, is expected to see time running on the defensive middle line alongside sophomore Eamon McNaney and various freshmen midfielders. Senior defender Warren Sanger will also contribute on various key situations.

Goalie

Junior Jeff Glazier enters the season ranked fourth on the Irish all-times saves list and is backed up by freshman Tom Duane. According to Corrigan, both goalies are solid and can play well.

"Jeff had a bad game and a great game and he knows that," Corrigan said. "Tom played extremely well both nights. That's great because it means we have two guys we can count on.

Graduate Student Union

Call for Nominations for President and Vice President

Nominations for President and Vice President of the Graduate Student Union will be accepted until March 7th. These offices entail a stipend and are open to any enrolled graduate student. Nomination forms are available at the GSU office (307 La Fortune) or through department representatives.

Elections will be held at the next meeting of the Graduate Student Council to be held on March 21st, 1989 at 8:15 pm, in the Foster Room, 3rd floor, La Fortune Student Center. (Please note special time and place.)

All graduate students are strongly encouraged to consider the positions.

played first half, the Green Wave slowly faded in the second. The Manor converted on its fastbreak attempts and a few untimely Fisher turnovers led to a less than par performance in the final quarter. "Our defensive intensity was not as high as it should have been," said Fisher's Fulling. "We gave them too many open shots, which we can't do against a team with their shooting ability."

In tonight's game to decide the champions, both teams will stick with the same game plans that were used last night. "We'll try to run the break again and play a little better on defense," said Veltz. Fisher hopes to end the season with a single loss against eleven wins.

Irish, DePaul crash the boards

BY MARTY S'PRASEN
Sports Editor

Notre Dame basketball coach Digger Phelps knows his team has a lot of rebounding to do when it hosts DePaul tonight at the Joyce ACC.

"Out, the Irish will have to rebound from their collapse against Georgia Tech this past Saturday, in which Notre Dame blew a 17-point lead, gave up 60 points in the second half and lost 90-80. But more importantly for tonight's 8 p.m. match up, the Irish have to keep leapers like DePaul's 6-7 forward Stankey Brundy off the offensive boards. "They've got great athletes and they really pound the boards," said Phelps, whose 17-6 team ranks third in the nation in rebounding with a difference of more than nine per game. "Our concern is not letting them get the second and third efforts on offensive rebounds..."

DePaul has a rebounding margin of plus-five.

Dear Irish Items, I don't know what people could complain about. Basketball fans at the Joyce ACC, treated to exciting basketball, fast breaks, high scoring games and scoring in bunches. Dear Coach Phelps, I know what you're saying. Coach. At times even the Irish have played that way.
