Students abroad won't vote in student elections

By FLORENCE DEFRANCIS
Senior Staff Reporter

Student senate this week voted to support the decision of the Ombudsman Commit­tee, which ruled the possibility of foreign studies students voting in student body elections unfounded.

The decision came after the Senate met with Victor DeFrancis, a member of the OBUD executive commit­tee, who presented the issue for senate support.

The controversy originated earlier this week when former student body president and vice president candidates proposed that all overseas students' votes had not been counted before the winners of the student body elections were announced. The problem, according to DeFrancis, is that many overseas students' votes had not yet been counted.

The Ombudsman Committee ruled that only the votes of students who were registered in the state of Maryland could be counted. The decision was made after a hearing on the issue and was upheld by the full Senate.

The decision to not allow overseas students to vote in student body elections was made in order to avoid the possibility of fraud and to protect the integrity of the election process.

The life of a mediocre fitness swimmer is not a happy one.

First stars of Pee Wee Blue at the Y.M.C.A. and one-time, eight-and- under city-birthrate state law to institute myself as the life of a pool with people who through some accident of birth have developed limbs instead of fins and scales to sweat the chlorine and humiliating the rest of us.

Oh, I can't remember either learning to swim or not being able to swim. I was a good bath during my formative years and probably had the potential to become a "real" swimmer.

A few things interfered. Like sleep. I could never get into getting up in the dark (at least eighty percent of the time in South Bend) to plunge into a cold pool and get kicked in the face for a few hours.

Then my Olympic dreams were dashed, and I was washed up at age twelve.

Conforming to the age old adage, I could not, so I learned to teach. I spent years pursuing my Lifesaving and my Water Safety Instructor certifications from the Red Cross so I could devote my time to the next generation of dolphins, flying fish, and future dropouts like myself.

During this period I consolde myself and explained away my lagging times by saying I had to work on a "safety" routine rather be concerned about base results.

Then came the aero-bics revolution. I had long ago foresworn jogging, running, and most forms of -ing. I decided to try out this new exercise. I jogged up and down a pool at the St. Ed's pool. The Observer.

PROBLEM:

A Notre Dame student and a S. Mary's student have flights to catch at O'Hare Airport in Chicago. Assuming they both want to enjoy every minute of Easter break, what modes of transportation should they use to get from South Bend to O'Hare?

- 1) car
- 2) commuter flight from Michiana Regional Airport
- 3) United Limo

SOLUTION:

City traffic, tolls and parking charges clearly make traveling by car an inefficient answer. And while "1)" may seem to be a good solution, remember that any kind of delay in South Bend could mean missing flights at O'Hare. Or, worse yet, a cancelled flight (South Bend could mean... well, let's just say it could be a nightmare.)

Answered "2)" congratulations! Not only is United Limo the most reliable mode of transportation to O'Hare, it is also the fastest, most convenient and most enjoyable option for students - the LD Minicircle. This results in no hand-up or maxation of the students' enjoyment.

Why learn this lesson the hard way? If you need to get to O'Hare, count on UNITED LIMO. We'll get you there. Call 674-6993 for schedule and reservations. Or call your travel agent.

Marine officials said they had no immediate word on what caused the crash. Little of the helicopter was left but charred pieces of wreckage. Yonhap, the South Korean news agency, cited South Korean military officials as saying the helicopter exploded in the air and burst into flames before slamming into the ground. The report said the helicopter appeared to have a problem in its engines.

A Seoul newspaper, the Kook min Ilbo, quoted a farmer who saw the crash as saying two helicopters were hovering about 350 feet above the ground when one suddenly turned upside down and plunged into a creek. About 10 soldiers leaped out of the helicopter as it hit the ground, the report said.

Investigators were sent to the crash site to try to determine what happened, but no quick results were expected, the Marine spokesman said.

It was the second fatal crash involving a Marine helicopter in South Korea in four days. All four Marines aboard a CH-46 helicopter were killed Friday when their craft crashed in a rice paddy on the east coast.

Marine investigators are still trying to determine the cause of Friday's crash.

Both helicopters were taking part in annual "Team Spirit" exercises involving about 200,000 South Korean and U.S. troops.

"It's a very tight race," said Julie Robertson, treasurer on the Ferguson ticket that will oppose the Coffey ticket in the Class of 1992 run-off. "We're anticipating a tough campaign but we're looking positively towards it and we're excited for it," she said.

"I'm really pleased with the voter turnout," said Fricker. "I've heard in past years it's been around 50 percent. We had 1,300 out of about 1,800 vote this year, which shows the class in general seems to care about the election," he said.

"It was a very amicable campaign," said Victo DeFrancis, of the Ombudsman Executive Committee. "I didn't hear about problems with slanderers as I did last year."
Dear Editor:
I was sorry to read in the March 2 Observer that at least some Notre Dame students completely misunderstand the purpose and goals of an honor code, although the misunderstanding is not entirely their fault. An occurrence that people belong to one another, are part of one another, care about one another and are responsible to one another is in trouble. Lying, cheating, and stealing is self-destructive behavior as well as being destructive of community life; to allow a brother or sister to persist in patterns of dishonest behavior without doing something about it is to abdicate our responsibility to serve one another.

This is not, to be sure, the way that the world around us understands honesty. The world is more concerned about the damage done to itself by those who lie, steal, or cheat. A member of a community bound by an honor code, however, should be more concerned about the damage done to himself or herself by a person who lies, steals, and cheats and be willing to speak the truth to that person: you, my brother or sister, are embarked on a course that will ruin yourself and hurt your friends and associates. I am sorry to hear that some feel that Notre Dame is not and cannot be a place of honest behavior without doing something about it is to abdicate our responsibility to serve one another.

I teach at an inner-city high school in the middle of downtown Newark, New Jersey, whose student body is overwhelmingly minority and lower-middle class. We have no locks on our lockers, classrooms are open and, in general, we are always left lying about. We have an honesty code in the school, but it is the code that nothing is ever stolen and no one lies or cheats; Far from it; we are all too human for that! It does mean that our attention is focused on helping one another and trusting one another—not on security. It also demands a great deal of trust between students, faculty and administrators; trust that both adults and students are left with and the best interests of those who need help. We do, by the way, work very hard most of the time feeling hypocritical about supervising students. I am sure that while I am trying to be a mature adult, a holy monk and a good priest, the fact that I have an abbot and a headmaster over me is not hypocritical either, but keeps me more honest than I might like to admit even to myself.

The same is true for the students. A student of one of our peers who spent a year at a very prestigious and mostly white upper-class prep school was shocked at the amount of absolutely unchallenged dishonesty that occurred there. He observed that the school surely reflected the society they were part of while our school models the way society could be; not perfect but trying. Surely Notre Dame can do the same. It is for trying to be the best that we can be, not for the succeeding, that we are held accountable. Even thinking practically rather than idealistically, I wonder how many careers are stalled because a person's character rather than his or her competence is doubted.

Anything that hurts my brother or sister hurts me" is the basis of our Honor Code. I encourage and challenge you to keep at the task of developing a community where people in trouble (through substance abuse and drinking, lying, cheating, and stealing) will find the active and concerned help they need to live a healthy and mature adult life. Even more, however, the sharing of the "squealer" then we are all in trouble. The way, since "Honor Code" is such a freighted and misunderstood term, we call ours "The Covenant.

Landry leaves his mark on Cowboys

Dear Editor:
On Tuesday, Feb. 28, 1989, I read an article in The Observer about Tom Landry being fired from the Cowboys. Having lived in Dallas for a few years, that was all I heard about: how superb Landry really was. He had coached some of the best men in the NFL, such as Tony Dorsett, Roger Staubach, and Danny White, among others. When I finished reading the article, I was very disappointed and angry, and most of it was directed towards Jerry Jones' decision. I really did not understand how he could even consider firing such a suave man and coach. After all, Landry did lead the Cowboys to five Super Bowls (even though they won only two). His composite during a game made many other coaches envious of this altruistic man. It was his splendid talent that directed the Cowboys to be called "America's team."

Tom Landry had been Dallas' coach for 29 years. Most of us could not even stay at a regular job in the business world for that long. Also, he was 64 years old and probably planning on resigning soon anyway. I would like to have seen Landry on the sidelines longer because I had always enjoyed watching Cowboys games, knowing that he, my favorite coach, was on the sidelines. But when I heard the news, I realized that all good things must come to an end.

Even though this decision did not please me, I will still be a loyal fan to my Cowboys team. Regardless of who will be coaching the Cowboys from now on, I will always remember them as Landry's team. And he will always be number one in my heart when it comes to choosing the best coach in the NFL.

FoodShare faces hunger crisis

Dear Editor:
While many spent their break skiing on the slopes in Colorado, or sunbathing in Mexico, as a member of the FoodShare program, we spent our week in New York City coming face to face with the horror of hunger and homelessness in this country. On March 9, the FoodShare program was presented with an award by the Campus Outreach Opportunity League for being an outstanding project. The award was presented on the eve of COOL's fifth national conference at Fordham University. We would like to congratulate all the members of FoodShare and the dining hall workers, who certainly deserve this award, for their help in serving eighteen thousand meals in the past year.

Twelve thousand college students from various parts of the United States joined together to unify the commitment of college students to social services. During the four-day conference, students realized the desperate need for action and change. They shared ideas, hopes, dreams, and frustrations that come from trying to make a difference in a country with two million homeless people, a half a million of which are children.

We all know the facts and the numbers. But very few actually see the faces. This weekend, we saw their faces. We would like you to see them yourself. Too bad that each one of us, they need to be noticed. Noticed as people with emotions and needs other than housing and clothing.

At the conference, college students came to the realization that in the United States there should be no cause to see people in such a hopeless condition. All in attendance agreed that it is the responsibility of college students nationwide to stop the suffering in our own backyard.

We hope to see the students of Notre Dame join in this fight. Notre Dame was admired by many at the conference for their dedication to community service as broadcast on national television during the Fiesta Bowl. The Center for Social Concerns is by far one of the most successful college community service organizations across the country. We would like to express our gratitude for their endless assistance with FoodShare and their countless other programs. With their help we were able to get college students to take action against homelessness and other issues, every student at Notre Dame should endeavour to get involved in community service.

MUSIC IN REVIEW

FYC’s latest: worth the wait

JOHN LANE

accent writer

The Fine Young Cannibals have released a new album entitled The Raw and the Cooked. FYC fans, who have waited three years for the band’s second album, will be delighted to know that The Raw and the Cooked is as good as FYC’s fantastic debut album.

Two aspects of the album stand out. The first is the increased use of piano and keyboards in at least half the songs, including a terrific drum intro to the title track. The guitars are alternately spidery and slamming and the bass, a three instrumentals on the album, all outstanding due to the lead guitarist, who is only referred to as “Dr. Mike.”

The weirdest lyrical turns come on the album’s last song “Fantastic Disaster,” which comes off as a grungy Stones-like workout. The song begins like this: “Comedy Tragedy — What does it mean? When Shakespeare arrives at the crime of the..." The second is the way the music sets up the vocals. Former English Beat members David Steele and Andy Cox do an incredible job of bringing together vocalist Roland Gift with their stunning music. In this area, the band makes a significant improvement over their debut album.

There are ten songs on The Raw and the Cooked. Catchy tunes like “Love Me, Then” and “Tell Me What,” “Don’t Look Back,” and “It’s OK” are the heart of the album. These songs keep the band’s pop image. Slow songs like “I’m Not The Man I Used To Be” and “As Hard as It Is” are in the mold of past songs “Can’t Care More” and “Funny How Love Is.” These songs allow Gift to show to his vocal delivery, yet dynamic. FYC also gets funky with “She Drives Me Crazy” and “Don’t Let It Get You Down.”

The two best songs, however, are “Ever Fallen In Love,” which shows the band’s capability for powerful and intense music, and “I’m Not Satisfied,” which reveals the depth of the band’s lyrics.

Overall, The Raw and the Cooked is an excellent album. It is a must for all FYC fans and strongly recommended to anyone else.

Squires’ blend of classic rock

KEVIN WALSH

accent writer

The Squires’ new album, Farm True House, continues in the tradition of its debut EP, The Barrail Oracle. The group’s sound is Midwestern American rock, two guitars, a bass, and a drum. The guitars are alternately spidery and slamming and the drums are lead singer John Ferroni’s confident, assertive Mick Jagger-like vocals, creating a pretty classic sound.

“Clowns” poses the musical question: What if the Beatles had taken acid before their first album “[A Lot of Acid].” Despite all this, it isn’t psyche-delic at all, just strange. The music is simple and catchy, like “Love Me Do,” but the lyrics include references to “worldwide pow- pow!” and “black and blue frems.”

“Forever Never” is an instrumental take on Led Zeppelin-meets-the Beach Boys, crunching guitars over “la-la” back-up vocals. There are three instrumentals on the album, all outstanding due to the lead guitarist, who is only referred to as “Dr. Mike.”

The Squires’ new album is a talented one. Anthony Addabbo (“Loving”), Pat Crowley (“Dynasty”), George Deloy (“Days Of Our Lives”), Andrew Masset (“Days Of Our Lives”), Kelly Rutherford (“Loving”), and Nancy Sorel (“One Life To Live”) are all soap opera veterans. The cast of “Generations” is a talented one.

“Generations” will reflect the most important family issues of today and tomorrow. Each of the three generations portrayed in the series is a product of a specific time and place, and thus, cope with different situations in very different ways. In this way, the characters on “Generations” are doctors (practically a cardinal sin for daytime soaps). Instead, the show will feature the goings on at law firms and universities.

The cast of “Generations” is a talented one. Anthony Addabbo (“Loving”), Pat Crowley (“Dynasty”), George Deloy (“Days Of Our Lives”), Andrew Masset (“Days Of Our Lives”), Kelly Rutherford (“Loving”), and Nancy Sorel (“One Life To Live”) are all soap opera veterans.

ND picks '89 captains
Special to The Observer
Quarterback Tony Rice, fullback Anthony Johnson and linebacker Ned Bolcar have been voted tri-captains of the Notre Dame football team for the 1989 season. Bolcar, who also served as a tri-captain on this past year's national championship team, is returning for a fifth year in 1989. The Phil- lipsburg, N.J., native was the team's fourth leading tackler in a back-up role last season. Rice, from Woodruff, S.C., led the Irish in rushing with 775 yards and nine touchdowns while completing 52 percent of his passes for 10 touchdowns and nearly 1,400 yards. Johnson, a South Bend native, finished with 303 yards.

Sixteen is 'sweet' for Carlesimo and Knight in tourney

Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz.—Eighth-ranked Indiana and 11th-ranked Seton Hall are where they hoped to be at this stage of the season—in the "Sweet 16" of the NCAA tournament. They also are on a collision course.

The Hoosiers and Pirates, winners of their first two games in the West Regional, meet Thursday in the West semifinals at Denver.

Indiana, 27-2, advanced by beating Texas-El Paso 86-56 Sunday, while Seton Hall, 28-5, defeated Evansville 87-73.

"We've lasted longer than 48 other teams," Hoosiers coach Bob Knight said. "We got past 48. We got 16 left. We're as far as we can be right now."

Seton Hall coach P.J. Carlesimo said his team, which was the Big East Conference runner-up this season, already has gone farther than expected.

"We think we're as good as anybody in the tournament," Carlesimo said. "That's not to be arrogant. You have to prove it, but we felt we could make it to Denver."

The Pirates used their usual mix of balanced scoring and tough defense in beating Evansville, which nearly erased a 60-42 deficit and got within 74-73 only to be held scoreless for the final 5:06.

"We're a confident team," said Carlesimo, the two-time Big East Coach of the Year. "Sometimes that's bad. But the guys don't think they're going to lose. The constant is defense. There aren't too many teams that let an 18-point lead get away and be hanging by your fingernails and come back, but this team's been doing it all year."

Seton Hall made its first NCAA tournament appearance last year as the West's No. 8 seed at UCLA's Pauley Pavilion. The Pirates beat Texas-El Paso 80-64 in the first round before losing 84-80 to Arizona in the second.

This time, Carlesimo said his club could go all the way.

"I like our chances," he said. "We felt we were good enough to come here and win two games. We felt we were a legitimate No. 3 seed. You get past the first weekend and you're down to 16 teams. It's a crapshoot now."

"I think we've been a Top 10 team all year. We've played a tough schedule and shown we can play with anybody. The kids know that. We're good and they know it. If we win two more games, we'll talk more about it."

However, the Pirates have to get past Big Ten Conference champion Indiana, which also combined balanced scoring and tough defense to win its second-round game.

"It'll be interesting to see how far they go," Texas-El Paso coach Don Haskins said. "You got to play defense better than we did against a team that shoots that well. I don't know if there's a better perimeter shooting team in the country than Indiana. There's not a guy on that team who can't shoot the ball."

"Seton Hall will certainly be more physical than we were and Indiana is not going to be able to get the ball off the boards as easily as they did against us. I think that'll be a good game."

Indiana has a 412-136 record in 18 seasons under Knight.

Irish baseball rides pitching to quickest start in 26 years

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO

The men's baseball team took on Duke, St. Bonaventure, and North Carolina A&T over the weekend in Durham, N.C., and returned with a record of 10-4, its best start in 26 years. Although the Irish did not turn in a sparkling performance against Duke, beating the Bonnies and being rained out against North Carolina A&T, they can boast that it has never had a better record since 1963 when that squad began the year 11-3 and went on to finish 19-11, receiving an invitation to the NCAA tournament.

"Every time we 'accomplish' something like that (the team's record), it means a whole lot to me because I've got so much love and commitment to this program," said Irish head coach Pat Murphy. "I could only say he was 'fairly' pleased with Notre Dame's performance, in which it beat Duke 5-4 and St. Bonaventure 5-2 on Saturday and lost to Duke 8-2 on Sunday. The game with North Carolina A&T was called because of rain in the fourth inning with the Irish leading 2-0, one inning before it would have been official. "I feel we could have won every game we played," said Murphy. "I think there was definitely a letdown on this trip as compared to the second week in Florida, and I don't know if I should be overly-concerned or if that's just part of the game that you can't have a great week every weekend."

"The problem was our approach offensively," continued Murphy. "It wasn't the fact that we're not good offensively, but in battling the pitching I don't think the hitters were thinking of what their role was and executing. I think they were just swinging at the ball."

The Irish pitching was a different story. Notre Dame got strong starting pitching performances in each of the three games. In the first game against Duke, senior Erik Madsen went seven and a third innings to win the game, improving his record to 3-0, striking out four and walking one. Against St. Bonaventure, senior Mike Pio­vot did the same thing by going seven and two thirds innings, scattering eight hits and giving up two runs.

Even in the game against Duke on Sunday, in which the Irish were bombed by a potent Duke offense, starter Brian Piotrowicz lasted six innings, yielding eight hits and three runs. "There's no way we could have won that game," said Murphy. "He got off to a bad start, we didn't hit for him, and we didn't give him a chance to see BASEBALL, page 9"

Scoring woes plague lacrosse team in weekend split

By PETE LAFLEUR

The Notre Dame lacrosse team emerged with a split at the weekend's Penn State Tournament, losing to the host team Saturday before beating Purdue Fort Wayne. And according to Head Coach Bill Anderson, the Irish were thoroughly dominated.

"Every time we played, there was no doubt who was better than us. We were worse than we thought we were on the field," said Anderson.

The scores were 3-15, 6-15, 4-15 in favor of Indiana-Purdue Fort Wayne. And according to Head Coach Bill Anderson, the Irish were thoroughly dominated.

"Every time we played, there was no doubt who was better than us. We were worse than we thought we were on the field," said Anderson.

The 19-13 loss to the Nittany Lions came after a slow start, but the Irish were able to overcome a 5-1 deficit at the half and come back to win 16-13.

"We didn't play as well as we needed to," said Anderson. "We struggled with turnovers, and we couldn't get the ball back into our hands."

Despite the loss, the Irish were still able to take home the title of Atlantic Coast Conference Champions.

"I'm proud of our team," said Anderson. "We've come a long way since the beginning of the season."

The Irish will now turn their attention to the NCAA tournament, where they will face off against a tough pool of opponents.

ND Volleyball Club shakes off big loss

The Men's Volleyball Club ended its toughest stretch of the season Friday night against Indiana-Purdue Fort Wayne, which is currently 110 in the country among various programs, in less-than-fashionable style.

The scores were 3-15, 4-15 in favor of Indiana-Purdue Fort Wayne. And according to Head Coach Bill Anderson, the Irish were thoroughly dominated.

"They had an intimidation factor against us," said Adrian VanOosten. "We are still trying to play against all these top programs."

Once again, Andrew Sullivan led Notre Dame with eight kills, which locks him into his current average. Otherwise the Irish had no outstanding statistics to speak of.

On the other hand, Notre Dame played very well on a recent trip to California, winning two out of three games. In their first match of the road trip, the Irish took on Portland State and came out on top 15-11, 16-14 and 15-11, in one of their better matches of the year.

"It was a good loss for Notre Dame, considering SDSU is an established varsity program in the heart of California, volleyball's No. 1 state. Senior Mike Shimota played out of this world with eight service aces and numerous assists to Irish hitters. Sullivan led Notre Dame with 22

Schwartz makes move inside 6-3 junior forward gives NIT-bound Irish lift off bench

By CHRIS COONEY
Sports Writer

Anne Schwartz is not your typical 6-3 forward.

Unlike many other basketball players with her height, Schwartz does not see herself as an aggressive threat underneath, and instead prefers shooting from the perimeter.

"I see myself as more of a finesse player," says Schwartz, who is a three-time All-P econom ALMA major, "and I would rather shoot from the outside."

Schwartz has made it to the outside shot. Last year, although an injury allowed her to play only 12 games, Schwartz was third on the team with a .588 field goal percentage.

This year, however, Schwartz has had to take on a更大 shine to contribute at the post position, while also providing a scoring threat off the bench when her team needed it.

The transition has been difficult at times for the Aphrodite Arbor, Mich., native.

"As a freshman, I played outside all the time," commented Schwartz. "But this year we have lots of good shooters so the team needs me to play both inside and outside. It was hard to get used to all the shaving and rough play at first, but I'm gradually becoming a better rebounder and getting more comfortable underneath."

Despite junior Dave Carey's goal's in the first quarter, the Irish were unable to find the net the rest of the game as Penn State moved out to a 5-1 halftime advantage. The loss gave Notre Dame their first 0-3 start in nine years of varsity play. But the Irish were able to bounce back the following day, breaking out of a 7-7 halftime struggle to beat Lehigh 19-8.

"I think everyone has got to be pretty excited that we won. It was a pretty big lift for the team," said senior tri-captain John O'Malley. "Nobody likes to start 0-3, but I think we're improving every game and so it's not that big of a problem."

The Irish again showed a balanced scoring attack as six different players combined for the 10 goals. O'Malley led the Irish scoring with two goals and two assists while Carey and freshman Chris Nelson each chipped in two goals.

Junior Bob Lynn came off the bench to score two crucial late goals for the Irish.

"We saw in the Lehigh game that you have to be careful not to let the other team score more than us," said O'Malley.

Mike Passilla, who pitched Notre Dame to a victory against St. Bonaventure this past weekend, and the rest of the Irish staff have been sharp early this season. Notre Dame, at 10-4, is off to its best start in 26 years.
