Over 150,000 protest for more freedom in China

Associated Press

BEIJING: More than 150,000 students and workers calling for democracy pushed through police lines Thursday and marched cheering and singing through central Beijing in communist China's biggest protest ever.

Workers by the thousands joined the students, giving them pep talks and bread in their strongest act of support in 11 days of protests.

Beijing residents escorted the students on bicycles and hailed, and tried to shield them from soldiers and police, who had issued harsh warnings against marches.

But the security forces were unmoved, and although they pushed fiercely against advancing students in a vain effort to halt their march, they did not use other force against them.

There was no immediate information on any injuries in the crush.

The march turned instead into a jubilant procession. For more than 15 hours, the students marched through streets and under overpasses jammed with thousands of applicants for jobs.

High-rise dwellers leaned from their windows to watch, store clerks stood in their doorways and the patients of one hospital emerged in blue-and-white-striped pajamas.

The march was the biggest and most dramatic action yet by Beijing students in their campaign for sweeping democratic reforms, including a free press and an end to corruption.

In Washington, the State Department called for restraint on the part of Chinese authorities and hoped the demonstrations would remain peaceful.

"The United States believes in and supports the right of peaceful assembly, including peaceful protest and the freedom of expression," department spokesperson Margaret Tutwiler said.

Even before the march ended, the government announced it was willing to hold talks with the students "at any time" if the students return to their campuses and "adapt a calm and reasonable attitude."

Beijing Vice-mayor Liu Peng is too old to rule, most students say their campaign is not anti-government and they only want the leaders to do their job better and respect human rights.

Teacher course evaluations given mixed ratings by profs

By CINDY PETRITES

Staff reporter

Editor's note: This is the second of a two-part series on Teacher Course Evaluations. Notre Dame professors found written student evaluations "very helpful" but gave mixed ratings to the computerized TCE's, according to a student survey of eight professors from four different colleges.

While all the professors acknowledged the importance of student input, many were dissatisfied with the TCE's format, uses, and student attitude toward them.

"The problem is that there's not much interest on the part of the students," said Associate Dean of the College of Science, Jeremiah Freeman. "Students don't see the consequences their actions can have. They can do a lot of damage to a young person's career."

Student apathy was a common complaint among the professors, who acknowledged that many students regard TCE's as "just another routine," a way to get back at teachers they don't like, a chance to get out of class early, or even a joke. Upon examining some TCE results, one professor noted that some students had marked every question in the column, "No improvement is needed," or "Major improvements are called for," without examining the individual questions. This decreases TCE effectiveness as a diagnostic tool.

The computerized forms give the professor a good idea about the general tone of a class, but little guidance on how to improve specific areas," noted Robert Williamson, associate dean of Business Administration.

The ambiguity of some questions on the TCE form was another cause for professor concern. Regarding the question, "When asked questions does the instructor satisfy the student?" some teachers argued that answering all student's questions is not always a good thing, if even possible. In most philosophy classes, for example, it is the instructor's goal to stimulate questions with no see TCE / page 8

Religious task force will examine ND spirituality

By KELLEY TUTHILL

University President Father Edward Malloy has appointed a committee of faculty, administration, students, and faculty members to the "Task Force of Evangelization, Pastoral Ministry and Social Values.

The committee will be chaired by Father Richard Warner, who said the committee will attempt to examine the Catholic ministry on campus and how it affects students, faculty and staff. The committee will look into the effects that the ministry has on non-Catholic members of the community.

While not every see how "social awareness is promoted, developed and integrated."

According to Warner, the committee would also like to see how people who deal with the issues of social and religious ministry work together to achieve common goals. The quality of services offered to the community will also be examined.

Sophomore Lisa Mackett was appointed to work on the task force committee. She said that, "they (the administration) want to get a feel for how students express their religious values." This summer Mackett plans to do some independent work on the project.

There are so many areas that could be examined, said Mackett, yet she would like to concentrate on the way that students personalize their faith. Information from other Catholic universities will also be researched, said Mackett.

"It's a really diverse committee," said Mackett. She said that it is an honor to be asked to serve as a member on the task force.

Father Gerald Lardner, rec-tor of Grace Hall, was also appointed to the committee. He said that the ministry in the halls is very important at Notre Dame.

When people think of campus ministry, they often think only of the Office of Campus Ministry, said Lardner. He would like to examine the other places where ministry takes place on campus.

The Center for Social Concerns, the Counseling Center and the residence halls are all examples of places where ministry takes place at Notre Dame, said Lardner. His job in the dorm is primarily as a minister, not as an administrator, said Lardner. The terminology used to describe ministry on campus is an example of the need to examine.
Graduating seniors made freshman feel at home

And so I cried, “No, stop!” but she continued to peel off my clothes, layer by layer...

Now that I have your attention, let me begin this column with a couple of housekeeping matters. The school year is here. Finals are so close you can smell them.

Four kids were over at my house on Thursday evening. I was planning on having them over for dinner, but since they were going to be up until 3 a.m. writing their term papers, I thought it would be best to let them stay over night.

I invited them over to my house and made them a big dinner. We had pasta, meatballs, and garlic bread. After dinner, we all went into the living room and watched some TV. We laughed and joked around for a while, and then I realized that we had been at my house for over two hours. I suggested that we all go to bed early, and everyone agreed.

The next day, I woke up early to make breakfast for the four kids. We had homemade pancakes with syrup, bacon, and coffee. After breakfast, we all went to my room and started doing our homework. I helped them with their papers, and we all had a great time.

It was a great day, and I was happy to have my friends over. I think we all learned a lot from each other, and I can't wait to do it again.

Florentine Hoeker
Assistant News Editor

WIFI-AM 640 activities are available in Suite 200 LaFortune and are due by 5 p.m. Monday.

Campus Activities Night applications are now available in the Student Activities Office, 315 LaFortune. All clubs and organizations who wish to participate in this event must submit an application and a bill for expenses by April 30. All expenses will be paid at 100%. The event will be held on May 1 at 7 p.m. in the Student Union Center.

Zero Year Reunion '89, a free picnic for all seniors and graduate students hosted by the Notre Dame Alumni Association, will be held at the Senior-Alumni Club on Saturday from noon to 3 p.m. 3111 required.

The movie “Jean de Florette” will be shown at the Alumni Auditorium tonight at 7:30 p.m. followed by a Circassian reception in the South Lounge of Walsh Hall.
Ethics in business
focus of FCA talk

BY MAURA LONG
News Staff

Jim Early, a 1976 Notre Dame graduate and co-founder of the first Notre Dame chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, spoke Thursday at a chapter meeting on "Christian Ethics in Business.

According to Early, "there are two human problems that cause unethical behavior: greed and fear." These "unhealthy motives" both involve money, the desire to accumulate it and the fear of not being successful.

Early said most people are subject to unethical behavior when they are concentrating on short term rewards rather than on the big picture.

"The ethics of Christ are the highest ethics," Early said, for Christ lived a perfect human life as seen in the New Testament.

"With his (Jesus') life in me there is a possibility for a way of high ethical standards to come out through me in business," Early said.

Early concluded that "ethics is good business" because the greatest long term reward is for God to judge you as being successful.

Bill Freeman, editor and writer for "The Christian" monthly magazine, addressed the meeting on "The Secret of the Christian Life.

"The secret is simply that "Jesus Christ himself is the Christian life," said Freeman.

According to Freeman, the question one must ask is "if Christ is the secret, what is my relationship to him?" A relationship in which Christ lives in you, not outside of you, is the ultimate way to know God, said Freeman.

The biggest obstacle to knowing God, Freeman claims, is the confidence in one's self that they do not need the Lord.

Don't drink and drive
A public service message from The Observer

is accepting applications for the following paid positions:

Ad Designers

For more information, contact Shannon Roach at 283-2608 or 239-5303

'Compra the Month
of Our Mother

Marian Devotion at the Grotto
Sunday April 30, 1989 6:45pm
Marian Hymns Rosary Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament
Sponsored by the Knights of the Immaculata

Lecture concludes series on diversification at Saint Mary's

By KRISTENE M. KRUCZEK
Staff Reporter

In the final speech for the 1989 Justice Education Convention Series at Saint Mary's, Joe Incandela urged that the title "Concluding Reflections" does not imply the work toward diversification is over.

An assistant professor of Religious studies, Incandela explained, "Diversity is not only beneficial but necessary if Saint Mary's attempts to be true to Christian convictions that founded it and sustain it."

Incandela added that diversification is the responsibility of the entire community—student, faculty and administration—and that pointing fingers just divides the campus over the issue, making progress very difficult.

There is a possible danger with the "all-responsible" attitude, he added. "Christian ethicist, Reinhold Niebuhr, argued that moral behavior comes easier to individuals than it does to groups."

Incandela explained that individuals could find it easier to be unjust in a group because of the attitudes of those around them.

"Sacrifice," he added, plays a major role in diversification, in that individuals must be willing to sacrifice "self-interests" for someone else. Recognizing the need for diversification could involve going against the norm, said Incandela, and thus, result in sacrifice.

"Group prejudice may occur through various forms of subtle discrimination," said Incandela. He explained that although subtle discrimination is not "malicious" it is the most destructive because it is more difficult to pinpoint than overt oppression, he added.

Diversification might make people uncomfortable at first, he said, but confrontation with the unfamiliar can foster "virtuous" individuals. Incandela explained two possible explanations for why more diversity has not been accepted.

One reason, he said, might be that diversified students were not at Saint Mary's because they lacked qualification. Incandela added, "more reasonably," however, they were excluded due to reasons that had nothing to do with their ability.

These reasons were false as assumptions of what was the essence of Saint Mary's, which were founded on a kind of "desire for comfort, incompatible with Christianity." Incandela urged, "desires for comfort, incompatible with Christianity." Incandela urged that diversification without limits, on the other hand, could lead to "a lack of identity, standards and values." But, he added, the diversification of a community establishes individual identity and, "the educational mission of the intellectual and moral formation of young people is treating students as members of a community dedicated to justice."

South Korean protest

A student leader armed with a loudspeaker leads a chorus of students chanting as an effigy of President Roh Tae-Woo is set on fire Thursday at Yonsei University in Seoul. Elsewhere in South Korea, thousands of striking workers clashed with riot police in four cities.

By KRISTENE M. KRUCZEK
Staff Reporter

According to Freeman, the monthly magazine, addressed the meeting on "The Secret of the Christian Life."

"Jesus Christ himself is the Christian life," said Freeman.

According to Freeman, the question one must ask is "if Christ is the secret, what is my relationship to him?" A relationship in which Christ lives in you, not outside of you, is the ultimate way to know God, said Freeman.

The biggest obstacle to knowing God, Freeman claims, is the confidence in one's self that they do not need the Lord.

Don't drink and drive
A public service message from The Observer

is accepting applications for the following paid positions:

Ad Designers

For more information, contact Shannon Roach at 283-2608 or 239-5303

'His the Month
of Our Mother

Marian Devotion at the Grotto
Sunday April 30, 1989 6:45pm
Marian Hymns Rosary Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament
Sponsored by the Knights of the Immaculata

Lecture concludes series on diversification at Saint Mary's

By KRISTENE M. KRUCZEK
Staff Reporter

In the final speech for the 1989 Justice Education Convention Series at Saint Mary's, Joe Incandela urged that the title "Concluding Reflections" does not imply the work toward diversification is over.

An assistant professor of Religious studies, Incandela explained, "Diversity is not only beneficial but necessary if Saint Mary's attempts to be true to Christian convictions that founded it and sustain it."

Incandela added that diversification is the responsibility of the entire community—student, faculty and administration—and that pointing fingers just divides the campus over the issue, making progress very difficult.

There is a possible danger with the "all-responsible" attitude, he added. "Christian ethicist, Reinhold Niebuhr, argued that moral behavior comes easier to individuals than it does to groups."

Incandela explained that individuals could find it easier to be unjust in a group because of the attitudes of those around them.

"Sacrifice," he added, plays a major role in diversification, in that individuals must be willing to sacrifice "self-interests" for someone else. Recognizing the need for diversification could involve going against the norm, said Incandela, and thus, result in sacrifice.

"Group prejudice may occur through various forms of subtle discrimination," said Incandela. He explained that although subtle discrimination is not "malicious" it is the most destructive because it is more difficult to pinpoint than overt oppression, he added.

Diversification might make people uncomfortable at first, he said, but confrontation with the unfamiliar can foster "virtuous" individuals. Incandela explained two possible explanations for why more diversity has not been accepted.

One reason, he said, might be that diversified students were not at Saint Mary's because they lacked qualification. Incandela added, "more reasonably," however, they were excluded due to reasons that had nothing to do with their ability.

These reasons were false as assumptions of what was the essence of Saint Mary's, which were founded on a kind of "desire for comfort, incompatible with Christianity." Incandela urged, "desires for comfort, incompatible with Christianity." Incandela urged that diversification without limits, on the other hand, could lead to "a lack of identity, standards and values." But, he added, the diversification of a community establishes individual identity and, "the educational mission of the intellectual and moral formation of young people is treating students as members of a community dedicated to justice."
Pravda publishes confessions of failure by party members

Associated Press

MOSCOW—Pravda on Thursday published seven pages of admissions by Communist Party officials that their failures had led to embarrassing losses in parliamentary elections and damaged the people's faith in their leaders. The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Soviet space station empty for first time in over two years

Associated Press

MOSCOW—The Soviet Union ended an era Thursday when three cosmonauts returned to Earth, leaving the Mir space station's weight to 100 tons, officials said.

"I think it's a great day. We hope it will allow scientists a chance to review scientific data, complete work on two unfinished station modules and give ground controllers vacations, space officials said last week."

"Vremya," published by party members generally are kept secret, called it "not a double touchdown."

"There is a double touchdown. The apparatus landed, then jumped from the ground and were turned over several times. In general, the blows could be felt. Probably the bruises will remain," Volkov said.

"Euphoria," published by party members generally are kept secret, called it "not a double touchdown."

"There is a double touchdown. The apparatus landed, then jumped from the ground and were turned over several times. In general, the blows could be felt. Probably the bruises will remain," Volkov said.

His remarks and those of President Mikhail Gorbachev and 19 other speakers dominated Pravda, the party's official newspaper.

"People feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

"Euphoria," published by party members generally are kept secret, called it "not a double touchdown."

"There is a double touchdown. The apparatus landed, then jumped from the ground and were turned over several times. In general, the blows could be felt. Probably the bruises will remain," Volkov said.

"Euphoria," published by party members generally are kept secret, called it "not a double touchdown."

"There is a double touchdown. The apparatus landed, then jumped from the ground and were turned over several times. In general, the blows could be felt. Probably the bruises will remain," Volkov said.

Volkov said people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism.

The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Volkov said.

The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Volkov said.

"Euphoria," published by party members generally are kept secret, called it "not a double touchdown."

"There is a double touchdown. The apparatus landed, then jumped from the ground and were turned over several times. In general, the blows could be felt. Probably the bruises will remain," Volkov said.

Volkov said people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism.

The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Volkov said.

The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Volkov said.

The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Volkov said.

The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Volkov said.

The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Volkov said.

The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Volkov said.

The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Volkov said.

The officials, speaking at a meeting of the party's policymaking Central Committee, said the 29 million-member party is in danger of losing its unity and hold on the Soviet people.

"The people feel uncomfortable, alarmed, have lost their optimism," said Moscow Mayor Valery Saikin, who lost in the March 36 elections. "Various generations of people, separate social layers and even regions are quarreling among themselves."

Volkov said.
Shuttle launch will carry Venus probe

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. - Five astronauts tracked a perfect countdown Thursday as technicians prepared the shuttle Atlantis for a midafternoon launch on Friday. The mission will propel NASA's "Magellan" probe to Venus and revive America's deep-space science program.

"After an 11-year gap in the planetary program, we're anxious to get started," said John Gerbershe, Magellan project manager.

Officials described the countdown as the smoothest of four since the Challenger disaster. The change of high winds provided slight concern as NASA looked forward to lift-off in an unusually tight launch window that opens at 2:14 p.m. EDT and lasts just 23 minutes.

Magellan, ready for its 15-month flight to Venus, "is 100 percent healthy and ticking along," said Leonard Fisk, NASA chief scientist. "We're ready to go fly," said Richard Truly, who heads the shuttle program and is the incoming NASA administrator.

Thursday's early, third soviet launch from Cape Canaan­ eral, leaving the Mir space sta­tion unattended for the first time since April 1987. Two of the cosmonauts had been in space for five months, the other for eight months.

Atlantis' cargo is the Magellan spacecraft which has a radar system powerful enough to pierce the dense sulfuric acid clouds of Venus and send back radar images of the surface. The mission costs $550 million, not including the $225 million cost of the four-day shuttle flight.

Magellan's radar images, relayed to Earth and enhanced by computer, should reveal details as small as 100 yards across, about the size of a foot­ball field. That is 10 times sharper than previous pictures of the planet.

Stephen Saunders, Magellan project scientist, said the radar images could help scientists understand how Venus was formed and might provide an answer to the puzzling question of how Earth and Venus evolved so differently even though they were almost identical when the solar system formed 4.6 billion years ago.

The Magellan deployment is scheduled 6 hours 18 minutes after lift-off, with astronauts Mark Lee and Mary Cleave conducting a countdown from inside the space shuttle.

An hour after the release, a rocket is to fire to hurl the 7,600-pound unmanned probe on a 400-day journey to Venus, a complex trip that takes Magellan one and one-half times around the sun before it interleaves its target planet.

The Atlantis crew also includes commander David Walker, pilot Ronald Grabe and mission specialist Norman Griffith. Leavy is the only one who has not flown on a previous shuttle mission.

Spending cutbacks and delays forced by the 1986 Challenger disaster have required NASA to use the rundabout approach to Venus. The trip could have been made in four months under better circumstances.

The first American planetary mission since 1978 will mark the beginning of a busy year for NASA's planetary program. "In Autumn, the Voyager spacecraft will fly by Neptune and in October we'll launch Galileo (from the shuttle) to Jupiter," Gerbershe said.

SUMMER EMPLOYMENT

In the next few weeks, the number of college students who enter the workforce will greatly exceed the number of college graduates available to the labor market. The college generation is 20 years old and each of us must take advantage of time against us and each of us will be striving to make that passage to the professional work force a success.

Don't waste your summer working low-paying retail type jobs. MIDWEST SUMMER CO-OP offers you the opportunity to earn $5 an hour while you study and live on a campus nestled in the picturesque Pocono Mountains.

The College of Duquesne Center for Social Concerns

FoodShare FoodShare FoodShare FoodShare

Our Guarantee!

For every summer position listed with the Midwest Summer Co-op, MIDWEST SUM­

MER CO-OP guarantees the student a full-time job while on campus.

The College of Duquesne Center for Social Concerns

FoodShare FoodShare FoodShare FoodShare

Our Guarantee!

For every summer position listed with the Midwest Summer Co-op, MIDWEST SUM­

MER CO-OP guarantees the student a full-time job while on campus.

FoodShare FoodShare FoodShare FoodShare

Our Guarantee!

For every summer position listed with the Midwest Summer Co-op, MIDWEST SUM­

MER CO-OP guarantees the student a full-time job while on campus.

FoodShare FoodShare FoodShare FoodShare

Our Guarantee!

For every summer position listed with the Midwest Summer Co-op, MIDWEST SUM­

MER CO-OP guarantees the student a full-time job while on campus.
Girls are complaining of a SATs biased against losing scholarships, self-esteem and access to good colleges due to biased test questions that could easily be changed or omitted, a researcher said Thursday in releasing a study of the November 1987 SAT, and pointed 23 questions of the total 145 in which one sex did at least 10 percent better than the other. As a result, four females would be identified as specific questions that create a gender gap.

For the verbal section, she said an example of a male-biased question would be "Dividends are to stockholders..." with the answer being "as royalties are to writers." A question favoring females would be "Love is to requite..." with the answer being "as attack is to retaliate."

The major purpose of the SAT is to predict first-year college grades. However, Rosser said studies show that females earn higher average grades than males in both high school and first-year college classes. Rosser said ETS has a bias-screening process but does not make its results available to researchers or the public. She said her study is the first to identify specific questions that create a gender gap.

WASHINGTON- Girls are losing scholarships, self-esteem and access to good colleges due to biased test questions that could easily be changed or omitted, a researcher said Thursday in releasing a study of the Scholastic Aptitude Test.

Phyllis Rosser said she studied the answers turned in by 100,000 students on the November 1987 SAT, and pointed 23 questions of the total 145 in which one sex did at least 10 percent better than the other. Boys did better in all but two, she said.

"These questions are tipping the balance. As a result, four years of high school achievement go down the drain. They're wiped out by a three-hour test," said Rosser, whose study was paid for with federal money under the Women's Educational Equity Act.

The SAT written by the Educational Testing Service is taken by 1.5 million students annually, 52 percent of whom are girls. In 1980, average female scores were 13 points lower than male scores on the verbal section of the test and 43 points lower on the math. The major purpose of the SAT is to predict first-year college grades. However, Rosser said studies show that females earn higher average grades than males in both high school and first-year college classes. Rosser said ETS has a bias-screening process but does not make its results available to researchers or the public. She said her study is the first to identify specific questions that create a gender gap.

For the verbal section, she said an example of a male-biased question would be "Dividends are to stockholders..." with the answer being "as royalties are to writers." A question favoring females would be "Love is to requite..." with the answer being "as attack is to retaliate."

The major purpose of the SAT is to predict first-year college grades. However, Rosser said studies show that females earn higher average grades than males in both high school and first-year college classes. Rosser said ETS has a bias-screening process but does not make its results available to researchers or the public. She said her study is the first to identify specific questions that create a gender gap.

For the verbal section, she said an example of a male-biased question would be "Dividends are to stockholders..." with the answer being "as royalties are to writers." A question favoring females would be "Love is to requite..." with the answer being "as attack is to retaliate."
Reward offered in UK for capture of baby-food spikers

Associated Press

LONDON- Two of Britain's leading food manufacturers offered a £100,000 reward Wednesday for information leading to blackmailers who have put glass shards, pieces of razor blades, thumbtacks and caustic soda in baby food.

H.J. Heinz Co. Ltd. and Cow and Gate Ltd. offered the joint reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the culprits. The companies said they received blackmail demands but would not elaborate.

Since April 7, 28 incidents of tampering involving baby food have been reported, including 11 on Wednesday, the government said. At least three people have suffered minor injuries.

Scotland Yard said it was co-ordinating a nationwide police inquiry.

"It is difficult to imagine the twisted minds that could mount such a vicious attack on defenseless babies," Home Office Minister John Patten told the House of Commons. He said the government pledged to resist "all attempts at consumer terrorism."

The victims so far are a 4-month-old girl in Oxford, who cut her mouth on a piece of razor blade, and two mothers cut by glass hidden in jars of infant food. None required hospital treatment.

London's Daily Mail reported Wednesday that blackmailer-appearing suspects were trying to extort money from supermarkets and food companies.

It said several major supermarket chains had received threats.

General: Army recruits not coach potatoes

Crosby on Wednesday, also said the Army was not softening its training, but rather is "smarter than I came in."

"The performance is better when the body gets a chance to recuperate," he said.

Running and jumping during the third week have been found to contribute to stress fractures among recruits, the Army has ordered drill sergeants to minimize the running of recruits during the third week of basic training, when studies show, many training injuries occur. His directive was partly based upon the findings of Col. Margaret De Benedetto, a physician who has studied training injuries.

De Benedetto, attending a local training conference with stronger, more capable and have greater protential than the soldiers that came in the Army when I entered the Army in 1954," he said. "They are bigger, more capable and have greater protentional than the soldiers that came in the Army when I entered the Army in 1954." Army

Army

"It is an exciting group and a worthwhile project," said Lardner. He said that the report will be "very comprehensive, very well thought out and challenging to the University community.

Members of the Task Force on Evangelization, Pastoral Ministry and Social Values are David Farrell, professor of philosophy and theology; Father Joseph Carey, assistant director of financial aid and rector of Dillon Hall; Lawrence Cunningham, professor of theology; Sister Mary Curran, director of religious education for the Office of Campus Ministry; Father Thomas Gugan, associate rector of Sacred Heart Church; Sister Mary Jane Griffin, rector of Howard and Mark Hall; Mark Herro, associate professor of electrical and consumer terrorism."
A Naval honor guard from the USS Iowa prepares to fold the U.S. flag after it draped the casket of fallen sailor Tung Thanh Adams during funeral services at Arlington National Cemetery Wednesday. Adams was one of 47 sailors who perished during the explosion aboard the ship.

TCE continued from page 1

clear answers, Williamson said.

Another question which professors found ambiguous was, "Do the examinations adequately assess student mastery of course material?" Some exams, said biological sciences professor Karamjit Rai, require students to go beyond memorization and apply concepts. Students unprepared to do that tend to feel such exams are unfair and to rate them negatively on the evaluation forms.

This raises another area of concern for instructors: whether students can be accurate judges of teacher performance. Especially in engineering and science courses, students often have no way to judge teacher performance or course texts. "They have no basis of comparison," said Freeman.

With no way to judge, students run the risk of mistaking good personality for good teaching, and rating good but less entertaining professors harshly on the TCE's. "If a teacher can be 'popular' or 'interesting,' how does that translate on the TCE?" asked Rai. Moreover, in courses which are particularly subject-oriented, professor creativity is limited by the course material constraints.

Several professors supported changes in the TCE's to address these problems. Many felt having different TCE forms for each course would be one way to make TCE's more specific. This would eliminate most 'not applicable' responses and allow instructors to concentrate on their own areas of concern. Many also favored the establishment of a student review panel to examine the current TCE's and make suggestions for change. If students had more input into the TCE process, they would probably take them more seriously, teachers thought.

Professors gave written student evaluations much higher marks on the whole. Professor of Afro-American literature Erskine Peters considered the written evaluations so important that he did not finalize his decision to teach at Notre Dame until he had seen the Notre Dame students' TCE's. Like most professors, Peters finds the written evaluations more helpful than the computerized TCE's in determining how future courses will be taught. One year when Peters received a TCE requesting more student participation, Peters instituted class reports to guarantee every student a chance to speak in class. "That one student was responsible for changing the entire methodology of the course," he said.

All professors surveyed felt that though TCE's have some weaknesses, they are still an important guarantee of instructor accountability and source of student input. Said Rai, "The TCE is not always the most meaningful exercise, but after all is said and done, it is educational."

Suprisingly, Bush focuses on controlling guns and drugs

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—To no one's surprise, President Bush moved quickly to fulfill his campaign promise of strong efforts against the illegal drug trade. But to almost everyone's surprise, he also seemed determined to combat the ports of assault rifles and talked of possible federal controls.

Drugs and guns have highlighted the domestic policy of the first 100 days of the Bush administration, including an emergency plan to combat drug-related murders in the District of Columbia.

A lesser problem and a sudden crisis put the spotlight on other domestic areas in the 100 days that ends Saturday, as the Republican leader moved carefully in many other policy matters.

Bush sent a major proposal to Capitol Hill to deal with the savings and loan crisis left from the Reagan years. Congress is grinding away on the bailout bill, estimated to cost $207 billion over 10 years. And then the Exxon Valdez ran aground, pouring oil from the giant tanker into the water and polluting the Alaska shoreline.

The administration came in for criticism for not moving fast enough to try to halt the environmental damage. Bush eventually dispatched Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner and other top U.S. officials to deal with the cleanup.

But the president made clear from Inauguration Day that dealing with the drug problem was at the top of his agenda.

"This scourge will stop," Bush declared, adding that it was "the most obvious" area "in which we as a society must rise united and express our intolerance."

The president named William Bennett the nation's drug czar, and charged him with the task of coordinating the fight.

But almost immediately Bush's fight against drugs raised another tough issue, gun control.

With drug dealers killing each other at a record pace in the nation's capital with semiautomatic assault-style rifles, the link to the drug trade was clear. But then a man walked into a school yard in Stockton, Calif., and opened fire with such a weapon. Five children were killed that January day.

Bush, a lifelong member of the National Rifle Association, vowed for the first six weeks in office that he opposed any ban on the rapid-fire assault-style rifles.

He maintained that stance even though his wife, Barbara, said The Associated Press just two weeks after her husband's inauguration that she fears guns and thinks assault weapons should be banned.

Blessed with a growing public outcry against the weapons, Bush relented a bit.
Tyson caught doing 71 mph in a 30 mph zone

Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. — Heavyweight boxing champion Mike Tyson received a speeding ticket accusing him of driving 71 mph in a 30 mph zone, police said.

Officers pursued Tyson late Wednesday night as the boxer, in his 1989 Lamborghini, raced against a friend on a four-lane avenue. After a brief chase, police caught up with Tyson and the other driver, 22-year-old Mark Johnson of Albany, when they pulled into a parking lot.

“We asked them for their license and registration,” said arresting Officer George Maloney. “They didn’t have much to say. He (Tyson) said he just arrived in town.”

Tyson, 22, and Maloney were both charged with speeding and were scheduled to appear in Albany City Court on May 9.

Pro-choice rally

About 800 pro-choice marchers made their way down Peachtree Street in downtown Atlanta Wednesday to a rally for abortion at the State Capitol steps. They called for the U.S. Supreme Court to uphold laws legalizing abortion.

Quayle praises Australia’s military

Associated Press

MELBOURNE, Australia — Vice President Dan Quayle celebrated strong U.S.-Australian relations Thursday and in particular praised Australia for its military defense efforts.

Quayle, on his second day in Australia, flew here from Canberra, where he told a press conference the United States would like to see its friends in the Pacific pick up more of the tab for defense at a time when Washington is restraining its military budget. But he praised Australia for its efforts to enhance security.

“Australia has been a very, very good partner in the alliance and has taken national security to its heart,” Quayle said.

In Melbourne, he attended a black-tie dinner marking Australian-American Friendship Week, an annual event to honor the allies’ joint effort in the Battle of the Coral Sea in 1942.

Noting that he was born in 1947, Quayle said, “I’m the first vice president to be born after World War II.” But in the tradition of the Coral Sea battle, in which the allies repulsed the Japanese, Quayle said, the two countries “must continue a relationship that is dedicated to keeping peace in this region.”

He did mention one dispute between the two countries, over U.S. subsidies to wheat growers in an export enhancement program that the Australians contend hurts their sales in foreign markets.

Quayle said he discussed the issue with Prime Minister Bob Hawke on Wednesday. “Believe me, I’ve heard about our trade policy and export enhancement program and in no uncertain terms not only from the prime minister but others,” Quayle said.

“It is still my belief that U.S. trade policy is not hurting Australia,” he said.

He said the United States has made “every effort” to see that Australian markets are not hurt when third countries are involved in grain trade.

Quayle said the subsidies are not designed to hurt Australia. Instead, his aides have said they are aimed at countering subsidies that the Europeans place on their grain.

Despite its own subsidy program, Quayle said the United States is dedicated to free trade.

“Our objective is to have free trade. … Our objective is to knock down barriers.”

Before leaving Canberra, Quayle visited the Tidbinbilla Space Tracking Center, a joint operation between the Australians and NASA, the American space agency.

Quayle, who is chairman of the National Space Council, made a brief telephone call to astronaut Charles Bolden in Cape Canaveral, Fla., to discuss preparations for the space shuttle launch, scheduled for Friday.

“We hope and pray everything goes well,” Quayle told Bolden.

The shuttle will carry in its payload a satellite to study Venus. The staff at the Australian facility will track that satellite.
Addition of condoms to Commons defies logic

Dear Editor:

Let me announce a new addition to the Commons, what was once one of my favorite bars. It's a condom, for only one dollar in quarters, available in both the mens' and womens' restrooms. (Les Eyre, O.F.) I look forward to the day when we have needle dispensers for drug addicts, or maybe free bullets for murder victims who are going to kill each other anyway, and knives can be so unnecessary and painful. I talked to the owner about it. He said that although others had complained as well, it was basically a business decision on his part. I would think a businessperson recognizes that when customers complain, it usually means a few less beers will be sold.

Thanks anyway. I'll take my business elsewhere.

Les Eyre
Off-campus

April 7, 1989

LETTERS

Racial incident shows need for police to improve

Dear Editor:

For the last 10 years I have lived in the Northeast Neighborhood in the vicinity of the Notre Dame apartments. This neighborhood is very important to me even though there is much unrest here.

On Saturday, March 11th some of my black friends invited me, a white friend from across town to a private 'get together' across the street from my house on Corby St. They knew that we are Christians so we understood this could be an open door to share our faith. About 10-15 that night we went across the street to locate this gathering. We did not see or hear anybody on the phone in the house until the ones who had invited us opened the door to the house in front of us and waved us in. We immediately noticed that it was quiet and dark inside with maybe forty or fifty young black people. We had spent about 20 minutes getting acquainted with everybody when our attention was distracted to the front door. About eight white policemen with about five squad cars were in front of the apartments. The officers were at the door demanding to be let in. The renter of the house told them she did not have to let them in since they had no search warrant.

They then forced her to open the door or else. She opened the door. Several white policemen came in cursing and using racial slurs. They demanded that we leave in three minutes. My friend, who is black and older than I, challenged the policemen, asking what they were doing up to. They refused to acknowledge him, intimidating and ordering everyone to clear out. Then a 15-year-old Jerome Steed was wringing his cord around his boom box. The policemen had come in and arrested him. Jerome told them he needed just a little more time to get his things together, so he was not afraid of them and that furthermore they had not have a search warrant. This got the officer so angry that he grabbed Jerome by the hood of his jacket and threw him out front door and down the steps. Three more policemen then pounced on him, crushing him to the sidewalk. They beat him on the head with their sticks and then handcuffed him. My friend and I were appalled. We started making our way back to my apartment in the house. The police could go crazy on us as well.

As we were walking we began talking with another man from the gathering. Han son Austin, a 25-year old. We parted to go in our separate directions, three officers rushed past us and took Hanson by the neck, subduing him in the same fashion as Jerome. Both young men were sent to the county jail. After securing bond the next morning Jerome went to St. Joseph Hospital to be checked for a possible concussin.

A few weeks later I accompanied them to their hearing where they then told their actual charges: "resisting ar­rest" and disorderly conduct. doorway in mind that they were never declared to be under ar­rest until they were read their rights.

That evening my friend and I went down to the police sta­tion to get some answers. We were told that someone two doors away on Corby St. had called in complaining of a 'loud' party. We found out later that this was perhaps nothing more than a crank call. It seems a lady who was living in a different party was jealous that many more people had showed up. She had invited us to the party she had invited us to the party and not protected. We, the citizens of this com­munity, are the ones who lorded over and served properly. They will be abused and taken advantage of.

It's my responsibility before God to inform you of these events. I am not a racist but I have heard first hand. But this I realize is not without risk. My friend and I took this story to the Board of Public Safety, which oversees the police. The story appeared on one evening newscasts and in the South Bend Tribune. After my friend and I took this story to the public he received a phone call which consisted of two words: 'You're dead.'

The phone caller proceeded to quote racists. My friend has tried to assure me that there is nothing to worry about, that this is a groundswell of public outcry and they are planning to bring an end to this alarming situation.

Peter Heldon
ND Class of '78
April 24, 1989

GARRY TRUDEAU

"No one worth possessing can be quite possessed.

Sara Teasdale

DOONESBURY

P.O. Box Q, Notre Dame, IN 46556 (219)239-5303

page 10

1989-90 General Board

Managing Editor

Editor-in-Chief

Chris Dornery

Business Manager

Rich Janzen

East: News Editor, Mark Guthatcher

Viewpoint Editor, Dave Bridge

Bid Manager, Sharron Roach

Sports Editor, Cindy Kelly

Access Editor, John Stau

Photo Editor, Roger Davis

Controller, Anne Underhill

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the opinion of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately as possible. The opinions expressed are those of the following: Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, Executive News Manager, Viewpoint Editor, Sports Editor, Opinion Editor, Photo Editor, Commentator. Articles and the whole book are free expression of varying opinions on campus. Through editors, is encouraged.

EDITORIAL

Notre Dame needs co-ed housing

A recent survey of students conducted by The Observer showed that over seven out of ten students would like to see some form of coeducational housing at Notre Dame.

Notre Dame went co-ed in 1972, but problems still exist between the sexes. Now is the time for the University to try out coeducational housing. One aspect of campus life which inhibits a healthy relationship between the two sexes is the fact of single-sex dorms. The segregation of sexes into all-male and all-female dorms creates an unnatural division between them. Coeducational housing would not cure the problem of relations between the sexes; it would, however, be a step in the right direction.

Notre Dame currently has coeducational housing in its foreign studies programs. It has worked overseas, and it would work here. A four-year trial period for coeducational housing, with two dorms on north quad and two dorms on south quad to transfer to become co-ed, would be the best way to start. Such housing should be single-sex by floor or section (depending upon the layout of the dorm).

Students would be allowed to place their names in a lottery, by class for the available spaces in these dorms. No student would be forced to live in a coeducational dorm if he or she did not wish to.

One necessary consequence of the establishment of coeducational dorms would be the reassessment of partials.

The University made the first step in trying to improve relations between males and females on campus in 1972, with the move to allow female students to enroll. Now is the time to make the next big move: create a system of coeducational housing.

Viewpoint would like to occasionally highlight quotes from faculty members, students and readers. So if you or someone you know says something intellectually stimulating, brilliantly funny, or clearly controversial, send the quote to Viewpoint, P.O. Box Q, Notre Dame, Indiana 46556.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"No one worth possessing can be quite possessed."

Sara Teasdale

Downtown Commons defies logic

Dear Editor:

Let me announce a new addition to the Commons, what was once one of my favorite bars. It's a condom, for only one dollar in quarters, available in both the mens' and womens' restrooms. (Les Eyre, O.F.) I look forward to the day when we have needle dispensers for drug addicts, or maybe free bullets for murder victims who are going to kill each other anyway, and knives can be so unnecessary and painful.

I talked to the owner about it. He said that although others had complained as well, it was basically a business decision on his part. I would think a businessperson recognizes that when customers complain, it means a few less beers will be sold.

Thanks anyway. I'll take my business elsewhere.

Les Eyre
Off-campus

April 7, 1989
Abortion: Cruel killing of the innocent

By Patrick D. Murphy

Pro-Life advocates have one primary argument against abortion that abortion advocates can neither deny, nor answer, and cannot, address squarely.

Premise 1: Abortion is the killing of an innocent, living human being.

Premise 2: Killing innocent, living human beings is wrong.

Conclusion: Abortion is wrong.

The raw fact is that abortion kills an innocent, living human being. Abortion kills. Before an abortion a living fetus exists, after an abortion a fetus is dead.

The fetus is innocent. He or she (not "it" is possessive) is acted upon by others. The fetus is innocent, living human being.

Abortion advocates simply evade the central questions of abortion. Is killing a fetus wrong? Is the fetus an innocent, living human being? Instead, they talk about every life processes...what, the "right of privacy", the death penalty, choice, Constitution, women's rights.

Abortion is not about overpopulation; it is an abortion is going to save a starving child in Africa or lessen overcrowding in In.

Abortion is not about rape or incest; having an abortion is not going to change the fact that a rape or incest has occurred or that the pregnancy was the result of rape or incest. Abortion is not about children or child abuse; loving families can continue to help every single child of every family. Abortion is not about economics; what prices life.

Abortion is not about Roe v. Wade. Abortion still kills innocent, living human beings, just as it did before the 1973 Su.

Premise 3: The fetus is a human being. The fetus is a human being. Right to life...no one has the power to extinguish the lives of (a fetus) is.

Premise 4: Abortion is murder. Abortion is murder. The fetus is not simply a "potential person". It is a human being. When a fetus is acted upon by others, it is being killed.

Premise 5: Abortion is the killing of an innocent, living human being. "The right to life", what is the right thing to do? The right to life is not going to change the fact that a rape or to use cocaine. Abortion is not about Roe v. Wade. Abortion kills innocent, living human beings, not guilty murderers like Ted Bundy. Abortion is not about choice; no one has the right to choose to act upon an innocent, living being, no more than one has the "right" to choose to commit murder, steal, kill, or commit any other crime that is not easily conquered, but it is conquerable.

By the way, I started to make a monetary contribution, and yes, I cracked down and bought a pair of plaid pants.

By Julie A. Pietras

"I'm too young to be an alum you might say, or "I just got used to this place. I can't think of leaving yet." The fact is that I was a good one, I wanted to share it with you alumni to be, to let you know what's available for you after you leave South Bend and how you can get involved.

Most of you have probably been exposed to your local Notre Dame clubs though a student send-off or some type of special event on campus. These local alumni clubs offer so much more than you've seen up to this point. Notre Dame has one of the strongest Alumni As.

Apartheid Week educates about the South African government, its relationship to the African government, and many more. How can it be conducted and what concurrent pre-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

The Observer has done a disservice to the Notre Dame community by not providing the University with a variety of ways to become involved with community service projects. Young alumni can also serve as members of the Notre Dame community as well as a variety of other committees in the club. If you are headed out this way after graduation, feel free to contact club president Jim Kenney, or myself, Julie Pietras, to get more information. If you can see the local Notre Dame clubs have a lot to offer. In San Diego, for in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,

I would like to clarify the in-

Dear Editor,
South Bend pizza hits the spot

STEPHANIE SNYDER

Frequent Writer

What type of food do most college students spend money on? What type of boxes continually litter the dorm hallways? What type of food goes great with beer? The answer to these questions is obvious: Pizza.

If so much moneys (and stomach space) is spent on this Italian-American concoction, it would be beneficial to provide students with a few alternatives to the old favorites such as Domino's, Pizza Hut, and Little Caesar's. These not-as-well-known alternatives include Bruno's, Rocco's, and Noble Roman's. Each of these pizza joints are "all down and enjoy your meal" restaurants that serve other Italian entrees, sandwiches, and alcohol as well. The first, Bruno's, creates not only great pizza, but also an extremely comfortable atmosphere. Being decorated with unique paintings, Italian flags, and other Italian influenced art, momentarily transports one out of South Bend's culture.

 issued by South Bend's oldest Italian restaurant, Bruno's, Sunny Italy Caffe richly deserves both its longevity and its multitude of loyal patrons. Upon entering the bustling yet warmly inviting dining room, you will immediately sense that Sunny Italy is the epitome of the classic "family-style" Italian restaurant. On the front of the menu is written, "To us, cooking is an art and we're very proud of the fact that our recipes have endured through many generations." Indeed, everything here is carried out with such grace and effortless style that one can easily understand why Sunny Italy is filled to capacity on a weekend evening.

Traditional red and white tablecloths cover the tables, and the dining room walls display unobtrusive yet eye-catching landscapes. The lighting is intimately dim without making it impossible to discern the contents of your meal. The patrons appeared to be an array of college students, families, and older couples who have been returning since it opened in 1951. It would seem that cleanliness, and pleasant, efficient service are the basic tenets of Sunny Italy's entrepreneurial philosophy. Garden salads accompany every dinner, which range from about $5 to $9, but can be ordered with alla carte dishes for a nominal charge. Unspectacular greens are handsomely dressed with Sunny Italy's own creations. Appetizers include a hearty antipasto, which features a noteworthy selection of meats and cheeses, or splendidly grilled, thick slices of garlic bread if you just want to whet your appetite. Although the selection of entrees at Sunny Italy emphasizes pasta, there are endless possibilities with meatballs but with sausage, mushroom, or olive oil and garlic sauce as well. The sausage sauce was generously laden with spicy chunks of meat, and the hint of garlic and onion provided a flavorful but not overpowering complement.

Mostaccioli is the pasta of choice at Sunny Italy and can be ordered with an equally appealing variety of sauces. The ravioli is plump with fresh fillings and may be ordered in half portions with a side of garlic sauce (which tastes homemade) to form a some­what blended with the tomato sauce (which tastes whipped). Their toppings are fresh, or I have welcomed it voraciously.

In addition to pasta dishes, Sunny Italy serves a few seafood entrees, the most al­luring of which is the shrimp scampi. The chef's masterful touch with spices should en­sure that the excessive lemon flavor often encountered will be tempered to perfection. The seafood dishes range from about $8 to $13, and can be ordered with a plate of spaghetti. The scallops, shrimp and sautéed scallops are some of the salt caviar- cinti cavored sounding and is quite reasonably priced.

Although our food was flaw­lessly prepared and ex­emplarily spiced, the portions could have been a little larger for the price. One superb bar­rel of edibles, each of which falls under $2. They are all homemade and fea­ture cannoli, bisticci tortoni, and spumoni among the offer­ings.

Our waitress, who was thoroughly professional and amiable, allowed us to wake up and after dinner and provided us with as much free coffee as two coffee lovers could possibly drink. No one seems to be in a hurry to leave Sunny Italy and the staff ensures that you are not intimidated by the large menu before you feel fully satisfied.

In spite of the crowds, both dining and waiting to be seated, the proprietors seem to have mastered their art. Nobody is left waiting for an inordinate amount of time, yet nothing appears rushed either. If the patrons during our visit are any indication of its popularity, Sunny Italy is no secret to the South Bend community. Perhaps to be an excellent choice the next time you hunger for an Italian meal.

MOVIES
"Married to the Mob"
Engineering Auditorium, 8, 10:15 p.m.
"Jeez, Sister"
Annenburg, 7:30 and 9:45 p.m.

MUSIC
Center Street Blues
Billy Sticks Nicks & the N's & Out's performing at 9:30 p.m. Admission is $4 or free with dinner.

CHICAGO
Edie Brickell
& the New Bohemians
8 p.m. at the Arie Crown Theater, McCormick Place
Shaking Family
& the Eisenhower's
7 p.m. Cover is $6. Cabaret Metro at 3730 N. Clark.

MOVIES
"Big"
Engineering Auditorium, 8 and 10:15 p.m.

MUSIC
Center Street Blues
Tamsley Ellis performing at 9:30 p.m. Admission is $4 or free with dinner.

CHICAGO
Fire hose, Screaming Trees, and Dos
Starts at 7:30 p.m. $10 admission. Cabaret Metro at 3730 N. Clark.

MUSIC
The Collegium Musicum
Sponsored by the University of Notre Dame Department of Music at the Annenberg Auditorium, 4 p.m.

CAMPUS
South Quad Picnic & Jam Festival
Statehouse Blues Band, Youth in Asia Calcutta Rain, Life is Elsewhere. Each band will play for an hour starting at 2 p.m. in front of the Rock.
I felt excited and scared when I got ready to hit the bars in Chicago. Last Friday, I felt both a sense of silly loneliness and of pitiful loneliness. I was out of my environment.

Normally my forays into Chicago take me to dark, passion-filled blues bars. These are bars where you know no one’s name and you don’t really want to. For this road trip, however, I gave in to the “Rush Street” mentality and prepared myself for an expensive night of bar hopping with Chicago’s best. The evening began at Poet’s, which is located at 5 W. Division St. This bar was probably quite typical for the whole Division St. menagerie. The decor was something between post-modern iridescent funk and cheesy Ivy league snobbery. Neon lights existed side by side with dark wood paneling. Somewhere in the foggy depths of my mind I remember a mirror lined dance floor clashing beautifully with something very strange. I don’t really remember much about the fact that they served two-for-one Kronies speciality drink, complete with several bottles of liquid, (tea, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronies specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.

For some silly reason, I left Kronies and returned to Division St. and a bar called She-Nangans. By this time it was late and the crowd was gone small! There also didn’t seem to be much alcohol in their kamikaze mix. Not to be daunted by my failure at Bootlegger’s, I left Division and headed to Kronies at 18 E. Bellevue. I knew the short walk was worth it when I saw a woman do an upside-down margarita. To begin, she lay back on the bar and had four differ at bottles of liquid, (tequila, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She then sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronies specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.

I felt scared when I got ready to hit the bars in Chicago last Friday. I knew the short walk was worth it when I saw a woman do an upside-down margarita. To begin, she lay back on the bar and had four differ at bottles of liquid, (tequila, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She then sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronie’s specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.

For some silly reason, I left Kronies and returned to Division St. and a bar called She-Nangans. By this time it was late and the crowd was gone small! There also didn’t seem to be much alcohol in their kamikaze mix. Not to be daunted by my failure at Bootlegger’s, I left Division and headed to Kronies at 18 E. Bellevue. I knew the short walk was worth it when I saw a woman do an upside-down margarita. To begin, she lay back on the bar and had four differ at bottles of liquid, (tequila, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She then sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronies specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.

For some silly reason, I left Kronies and returned to Division St. and a bar called She-Nangans. By this time it was late and the crowd was gone small! There also didn’t seem to be much alcohol in their kamikaze mix. Not to be daunted by my failure at Bootlegger’s, I left Division and headed to Kronies at 18 E. Bellevue. I knew the short walk was worth it when I saw a woman do an upside-down margarita. To begin, she lay back on the bar and had four differ at bottles of liquid, (tequila, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She then sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronies specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.

For some silly reason, I left Kronies and returned to Division St. and a bar called She-Nangans. By this time it was late and the crowd was gone small! There also didn’t seem to be much alcohol in their kamikaze mix. Not to be daunted by my failure at Bootlegger’s, I left Division and headed to Kronies at 18 E. Bellevue. I knew the short walk was worth it when I saw a woman do an upside-down margarita. To begin, she lay back on the bar and had four differ at bottles of liquid, (tequila, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She then sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronies specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.

For some silly reason, I left Kronies and returned to Division St. and a bar called She-Nangans. By this time it was late and the crowd was gone small! There also didn’t seem to be much alcohol in their kamikaze mix. Not to be daunted by my failure at Bootlegger’s, I left Division and headed to Kronies at 18 E. Bellevue. I knew the short walk was worth it when I saw a woman do an upside-down margarita. To begin, she lay back on the bar and had four differ at bottles of liquid, (tequila, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She then sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronies specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.

For some silly reason, I left Kronies and returned to Division St. and a bar called She-Nangans. By this time it was late and the crowd was gone small! There also didn’t seem to be much alcohol in their kamikaze mix. Not to be daunted by my failure at Bootlegger’s, I left Division and headed to Kronies at 18 E. Bellevue. I knew the short walk was worth it when I saw a woman do an upside-down margarita. To begin, she lay back on the bar and had four differ at bottles of liquid, (tequila, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She then sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronies specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.

For some silly reason, I left Kronies and returned to Division St. and a bar called She-Nangans. By this time it was late and the crowd was gone small! There also didn’t seem to be much alcohol in their kamikaze mix. Not to be daunted by my failure at Bootlegger’s, I left Division and headed to Kronies at 18 E. Bellevue. I knew the short walk was worth it when I saw a woman do an upside-down margarita. To begin, she lay back on the bar and had four differ at bottles of liquid, (tequila, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She then sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronies specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.

For some silly reason, I left Kronies and returned to Division St. and a bar called She-Nangans. By this time it was late and the crowd was gone small! There also didn’t seem to be much alcohol in their kamikaze mix. Not to be daunted by my failure at Bootlegger’s, I left Division and headed to Kronies at 18 E. Bellevue. I knew the short walk was worth it when I saw a woman do an upside-down margarita. To begin, she lay back on the bar and had four differ at bottles of liquid, (tequila, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She then sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronies specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.

For some silly reason, I left Kronies and returned to Division St. and a bar called She-Nangans. By this time it was late and the crowd was gone small! There also didn’t seem to be much alcohol in their kamikaze mix. Not to be daunted by my failure at Bootlegger’s, I left Division and headed to Kronies at 18 E. Bellevue. I knew the short walk was worth it when I saw a woman do an upside-down margarita. To begin, she lay back on the bar and had four differ at bottles of liquid, (tequila, triple sec, lime juice and sour mix,) poured into her open mouth. She then sat up, swirled the contents of her mouth around, and swallowed with a satisfied smile. Desiring to partake in this exciting ritual, I too did an upside-down margarita. Though expensive at $3, this was Kronies specialty. Kronie’s was smaller and more intimate than the other bars and had much more personality. Whether you go there for upside-down margaritas, nasty hot chicken wings, or for their “DJ with no dance floor,” you’ll enjoy yourself.
Aging curmudgeons and how they grew

There is no end to the stories of aging curmudgeons, and how they grow. In the Naked City, there are eight million curmudgeons flourishing like the prophets who leave their message written on the subway wall. I am an aging curmudgeon myself; what is more, I'm a clerical curmudgeon, and nobody can be more tiresome than that. Sufferance, as Shakespeare you want to understand the generation gap which is disrupting the Church. I'm telling you of my life and times as an emerging curmudgeon, hoping it will serve you as a landmark in your Catholic education.

"Your old men shall dream dreams," wrote the prophet Joel. "And your young men (and women) shall see visions." I take that to mean that all of us, as Christians, have a hold on the truth. Here in academe, where an exchange of ideas is going on, on the grass-roots level, neither the young or the old should want to claim to be infallible in his or her grasp of the truth. Why, then, when we argue, do we sound intolerant, wanting to make those who disagree with us sound like fools?

"When I was one and twenty, I heard a wise man say, "Give crowns and guineas, but not your heart away. . . ." When I was young and twenty, I was in my salad days as a Catholic, green of judgement, intolerant of the follies of the world.

In those days, I relied heavily on the triumphalistic texts that the apologists loved: "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.

And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven. . . ." At age 83, I'm much more at peace with the faith, and those Bible verses now remind me of a young man's ranting and raving, in his determination to be right with God. I'm happy believing the words of our Lord in His discourse at the Last Supper: "Let not your hearts be troubled. . . . In my Father's house are many mansions. . . . If a man love me, he will keep my words, and my Father will love him, and we shall come unto him, and make our abode with him. . . ."

Could words so beautiful be anything but truthful? I accept Jesus as the shepherd of the world. I believe He is from God because His gospel is so powerful.

On your way to becoming an old man mellowness sets in. If you're lucky, you keep believing what it was like when you were a young man seeing visions. Visions--which refer to things in the future that are not yet, or imaginary things that have never been--are good. But now that I'm older, I judge that dreams are sensitive in listening to an old sheep. I was pushed out the door as a Catholic, just as I have always needed a night-light to sleep by. That's why I dislike fools who will not listen because they have all the answers I will ever need, so they tell me, even in matters that are highly questionable.

The Catholic Church has been full of the know-it-alls since Vatican II. If there were too many of them, the prospects for old age would be pleasant for the few who could then retire with dignity as elders, instead of being pushed out the door as curmudgeons.

Believe it or not, the vision I have of all of you--as the young and the beautiful with dreams of inheriting the earth--always stay fresh. That is why Darby O'Gill and I have always said we didn't love you.

Father Robert Griffin
Letters to a Lonely God

might say, is the badge of all my tribe. Hath not a cur­mudgeon eyes? Hath not a curmudgeon hands, organs, senses, affections, passions? Fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means as any younger Christian is? The grand truth of the matter is, if you blow affectionately into his withered ear, the aging curmudgeon in search of human understanding--no matter how tedious he is as a curmudgeon--will not turn into a curmudgeon, deep into bitterness and self-pity. I ran scared of becoming a dyed-in-the-wool curmudgeon. At my age, I'm in the last phase of the moon as a chaplain living among students. "Twilight and evening bell! And after that the dark!" I wouldn't want you to think I'm whimpering, for I have more grace under pressure than that. I'd like to warn you of this, being unaware of yourself--being unaware of what you should say, or do with your life--is the prerogative of only the young. I'm not ashamed to say that all my life long, I've been unsure of myself, just as I have always needed a night-light to sleep by. That's why I dislike fools who will not listen because they have all the answers I will ever need, so they tell me, even in matters that are highly questionable.

The Catholic Church has been full of the know-it-alls since Vatican II. If there were too many of them, the prospects for old age would be pleasant for the few who could then retire with dignity as elders, instead of being pushed out the door as curmudgeons. Believe it or not, the vision I have of all of you--as the young and the beautiful with dreams of inheriting the earth--always stay fresh. That is why Darby O'Gill and I have always said we didn't love you.

BOSTON

Are you coming to Boston this summer? The Notre Dame Alumni Club of Boston welcomes you to the land of the Red Sox, Celtics, The Freedom Trail and the most exciting nightlife in the Northeast! We offer social events, community service opportunities, help with job placement and just plain fun! Look for our table at the SENIOR PICNIC and talk with Club Treasurer Brian Gallagher and Club Vice President John Rudser or you can contact the Club at P.O. Box 887, Boston, MA 02103

See you in Boston!
Laundry
continued from page 24
hand-delivered a wake-up call to Adwork's Wednesday.
Adwork's won't let it be that close again. It will sting the Bees early and win 11-14.
Coach's vs. Minahoonies:
This will be the best game in the quarterfinals. Minahoonies is a team with new life after that 30-28 victory in the Round of 32, while Coach's is a team with as many identities as Flotsam.
Either Jay Hayes or Ned Bol-car will play in place of Lou Holtz Friday, but it doesn't matter because of one man—
Jim Dolan.
Murphy's Bar vs. Fugitive
Guys Final: This will be the finals for Fugitive Guys. With all five players, Murphy's is unbeatable--until the semifinal Round that is. Murphy's by five.

"T" in Team vs. Malicious
Prostitution: Malicious
Prostitution, second entry from Notre Dame's law school, was expected to dominate for much of the tournament, and it's lived up to expectations. No "T" in Team is a team of a lot of people with its team-oriented approach, but it doesn't have the size or experience to upset with Malicious Prostitution.
Chalk one up for the law students, 21-17.
Murphy's Bar vs. Fugitive
Guys Final: The Observer has been criticized for its tendency to bookstore coverage on teams with football players. But Murphy's Bar would not be anywhere if it had failed to center its Bookstore coverage on teams with football players. But Murphy's Bar
would not be anywhere if it had done this early in the tournament against the Good, the Bad and the Laundy. Murphy's will be ready to go this weekend.

In the semifinal round,
Minahoonies will give Adworks a run for its money, but it will have to play flawlessly on of-Fugitive Guys. With Andy Beck and Van Dyke, Malicious
Prostitution will need to rely on its experience, but Murphy's will counter with depth and balance. Experience wins, 24-22.
In Saturday's semifinals, the depth of Adwork's will too much for Coach's. Dolan still gets the MVP and Mr.
Bookstore, though, after he scores 12 in a losing cause. Ad-work's by three.

it's just something about being the top seed and the defending champs that turns people against you. Maybe they deserve it because of the Hollywood-style pre-game dunking (Where did Ricky Watters come from?) or maybe the fans are just jealous of not being able to do it. At any rate, it will shape up Sunday.
Adwork's will jump out early and quiet the crowd with a 5-1 lead, but will not roll at the title.
Malicious Prostitution is too good to let that happen. Malicious Prostitution will rally to win, 21-18.

The Observer / E.G. Bailey
Bookstore action concludes this weekend.

Bees
continued from page 24
off what would undoubtedly be the biggest upset of the tournament. Adworks will run away from the Bees, 21-15.
Coach's vs. Minahoonies: Coach's is one of those teams that doesn't really impress you at first, but somehow finds a way to win in the second half. Its big gun is Jim Dolan, but his teammates have had trouble

The Observer / E.G. Bailey
Bookstore action concludes this weekend.
Federal judge resigns from case related to Rose

Associated Press

CINCINNATI — A federal judge in Cincinnati on Thursday from a case involving an Ohio bookmaker linked to mobsters and sports figures. The judge had been presiding over the case and had stepped down for reasons of personal ethics.

The move came as a surprise to many in the legal community, who were not aware of any specific ethical concerns related to the case.

The judge, who could not be reached for comment, had presided over the case since it was filed in late 2018.

The case involved a bookmaker who was linked to organized crime and had made illegal bets on various sporting events. The judge had been presiding over the case for several years, and it was expected to continue for months to come.

The judge's move was met with mixed reactions from the legal community, with some praising the judge for his integrity and others questioning his decision.

The case is expected to continue under the direction of a new judge, who will be appointed by the court.

The move comes as a blow to the legal community in Cincinnati, which has been reeling from a series of high-profile ethics cases in recent years.

The judge's resignation is expected to have little impact on the case, as it will be handled by a new judge who will be appointed by the court.

The case involves a bookmaker who is accused of making illegal bets on various sporting events. The judge had been presiding over the case since it was filed in late 2018, and it was expected to continue for months to come.

The judge's move was met with mixed reactions from the legal community, with some praising the judge for his integrity and others questioning his decision.

The case is expected to continue under the direction of a new judge, who will be appointed by the court.

The move comes as a blow to the legal community in Cincinnati, which has been reeling from a series of high-profile ethics cases in recent years.

The judge's resignation is expected to have little impact on the case, as it will be handled by a new judge who will be appointed by the court.

The case involves a bookmaker who is accused of making illegal bets on various sporting events. The judge had been presiding over the case since it was filed in late 2018, and it was expected to continue for months to come.

The judge's move was met with mixed reactions from the legal community, with some praising the judge for his integrity and others questioning his decision.

The case is expected to continue under the direction of a new judge, who will be appointed by the court.

The move comes as a blow to the legal community in Cincinnati, which has been reeling from a series of high-profile ethics cases in recent years.

The judge's resignation is expected to have little impact on the case, as it will be handled by a new judge who will be appointed by the court.
Scott Terry won his third · 8DXE5/ill5=== Greg Maddux outdueled over the Baltimore White a seven-game win streak snapped on Wednesday.

Athletics 9, Orioles 4
OAKLAND, Calif.-- Mark McGwire hit two home runs and Dave Henderson homered and tripled in the go-ahead run in the seventh inning Thursday as Oakland rallied to beat Baltimore 9-4. The Athletics, who had their seven­game winning streak snapped the night before, came back from an early 3-0 deficit and then broke a 3-3 tie with six runs on eight hits in the seventh.

Cubs 1, Dodgers 0
CHICAGO-- Greg Maddux outdueled Orel Hershiser and Gary Varsho drove in his first run of the season with a fifth­inning triple Thursday as the Chicago Cubs beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0 to snap four-game losing streak.

Jackson off to another fast start
Associated Press
KANSAS CITY, Mo.– For the third straight year, Bo Jackson is sizzling in spring training.

"In the first two months before he got hurt last year, he was the best player we had," said Kansas City Royals manager John Wathen, "we can only keep him healthy."

Hot starts have become the hallmark of the muscular Heisman Trophy winner who is a running back for the Los Angeles Raiders when he is not still learning his trade as a major league outfielder. Jackson's first 28 at-bats in 1987 produced 14 base hits, including one spectacular night against Detroit when he had a grand slam and a three-run home run.

He finished April that year with a .224 average and 15 RBIs, but Jackson is on pace to reach 100 RBIs and 100 runs in 1988.

Jackson refused to talk about his fast start but Jackson is on pace to reach 100 RBIs and 100 runs.

 зататити сегмент

Pittsburgh-- Carmelo Martinez hit a grand slam and Ed Whitson allowed six hits over eight innings as the San Diego Padres beat the punchless Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1 Thursday night to complete a three-game sweep.

The last time the Padres swept a three-game series in Pittsburgh was Aug. 1-3, 1980. San Diego beat the Pirates to two runs in the series, winning the other games 1-0 and 3-1.

Yankees 3, Royals 2
KANSAS CITY, Mo.-- Tommy John allowed two runs in eight-plus innings for his 288th career victory and Dave Righetti got out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth as the New York Yankees beat the Kansas City Royals 3-2 Thursday night.

Cardinals 10, Giants 1
ST. LOUIS-- Scott Terry won his third straight game and went 3-for-3 with a three-run home run as the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the San Francisco Giants 10-1 Thursday.

Angels 10, Tigers 3
ANAHEIM, Calif.-- Claudell Washington drove in four runs with a homer and single Thursday night as the California Angels beat the Detroit Tigers 10-3.

Jackson refused to talk about it, but Jackson is on pace to reach 100 RBIs and 100 runs.

He refuses to talk about it, but Jackson is on pace to reach 100 RBIs and 100 runs.
Purdue quarterback transfers

Associated Press

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Brian Fox, who became Purdue's starting quarterback as a 17-year-old freshman last year, said he will transfer to a school in his home state.

Fox started the final eight games in Purdue's 4-7 season and came out of spring practice this year as the No.1 quarterback for the 1989 season. But Fox said he had been considering leaving Purdue for two months but decided to stay for the spring and at 6-5, 215, I feel I can realize my potential better in a pro-style, drop-back offense,” said Fox.

“It’s a high-powered offense, no doubt about it, and one that is good for the team. But it’s not the best for me,” Fox said of the new offense that features the quarterback throwing more on the run behind a moving pocket. “I just don’t feel comfortable in it.”

Fox told the Indianapolis Star one reason he came to Purdue was the “tradition of drop-back, pro-style offense which they’ve been running for so many years.”

He said he had been considering leaving Purdue for two months but decided to stay through the end of spring drills to see how he would adjust to the new offense.

“I don’t see how he thinks the offense can be bad for him,” Akers said. “He had a great spring. He threw 417 passes, had one interception and threw 19 touchdowns in competitive drills. So I just don’t know.

“Like most teams in the country, you have more trouble protecting a straight drop-back passer. We’ve got to do more moving the pocket and play-pass just for protection purposes. You’re seeing that at every level,” Akers said.

Fox, of Orlando, Fla., said he intends to transfer to a school in his home state.

Purdue quarterback Brian Fox (16) has announced his intentions to leave the school. Fox, who led the Boilermakers to a 4-7 record last year, hopes to return to his home state and play for Miami, Florida or Florida State, which all won bowl games last season.

Missey Linn led the way for the Irish again by pitching a complete game, giving up only three hits and striking out eight. She raised her record to 19-13 and has a chance this weekend to become a twenty game winner.

The hitting star for the team was outfielder Rachel Crossen, who was 2 for 4 and scored two runs. Crossen has raised her average considerably in the last few games after struggling earlier.

“She started out hot, but then I think she started forcing it, as she tried to hit the ball. She’s been hitting well lately, though,” Boulac stated.

Megan Fay and Marie Liddy also performed well for the Irish. Both players had singles and two RBIs. The team rapped out eight hits all to­gether, but left twelve players on base.

“We hit better against better pitching,” Boulac noted. “The real good pitchers still give us some trouble. But we’ve got to be prepared to hit against any kind of pitching.”

Notre Dame has won its last three games after losing five in a row over the weekend at the DePaul Tournament.

The Observer - Suzanne Pich

You need rich parents to get a car for graduation.
Irish baseball splits with Chicago State

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame baseball team split a doubleheader Thursday at Chicago State. The Irish host MCC rival Xavier in a pair of doubleheaders this weekend at Jake Kline Field.

Flyers win to force 7th game

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA - Tim Kerr and Derrick Smith each scored twice as the Philadelphia Flyers beat the Pittsburgh Penguins 6-2 Thursday night and tied their NHL playoff series at three games apiece.

The Flyers and Penguins meet Saturday night at Pitts­burgh for the Patrick Divi­sion title. The winner advances to the Stanley Cup semifinals, beginning Monday night at Montreal.

The Canadiens reached the semifinals with a 4-1 victory over Boston in the Adams Division final.

The Penguins had taken a 3-2 lead in the series Tuesday night when Mario Lemieux, the league's top scorer with 85 goals and 199 points, scored from the right of the crease. Quinn faked a shot and passed to behind the net by Mark Howe. Kerr's second goal came at 10:22 on a deflection of a shot from just inside the blue line by Mark Howe.

Then, the Penguins got a bad misplayed as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. Cunneyworth followed his shot off the boards to beat goalie Ron Hextall, who mis placed it as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. But the Flyers struck back twice as the Philadelphia blanked the Penguins 6-2 Thursday to stay alive and force a seventh game in the Patrick Division finals.

Flyers 6, Penguins 2

The Penguins had taken a 3-2 lead in the series Tuesday night when Mario Lemieux, the league's top scorer with 85 goals and 199 points, scored from the right of the crease. Quinn faked a shot and passed to behind the net by Mark Howe. Kerr's second goal came at 10:22 on a deflection of a shot from just inside the blue line by Mark Howe.

Then, the Penguins got a bad misplayed as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. Cunneyworth followed his shot off the boards to beat goalie Ron Hextall, who misplayed it as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. But the Flyers struck back twice as the Philadelphia blanked the Penguins 6-2 Thursday to stay alive and force a seventh game in the Patrick Division finals.

Flyers 6, Penguins 2

The Penguins had taken a 3-2 lead in the series Tuesday night when Mario Lemieux, the league's top scorer with 85 goals and 199 points, scored from the right of the crease. Quinn faked a shot and passed to behind the net by Mark Howe. Kerr's second goal came at 10:22 on a deflection of a shot from just inside the blue line by Mark Howe.

Then, the Penguins got a bad misplayed as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. Cunneyworth followed his shot off the boards to beat goalie Ron Hextall, who misplayed it as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. But the Flyers struck back twice as the Philadelphia blanked the Penguins 6-2 Thursday to stay alive and force a seventh game in the Patrick Division finals.

Flyers 6, Penguins 2

The Penguins had taken a 3-2 lead in the series Tuesday night when Mario Lemieux, the league's top scorer with 85 goals and 199 points, scored from the right of the crease. Quinn faked a shot and passed to behind the net by Mark Howe. Kerr's second goal came at 10:22 on a deflection of a shot from just inside the blue line by Mark Howe.

Then, the Penguins got a bad misplayed as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. Cunneyworth followed his shot off the boards to beat goalie Ron Hextall, who misplayed it as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. But the Flyers struck back twice as the Philadelphia blanked the Penguins 6-2 Thursday to stay alive and force a seventh game in the Patrick Division finals.

Flyers 6, Penguins 2

The Penguins had taken a 3-2 lead in the series Tuesday night when Mario Lemieux, the league's top scorer with 85 goals and 199 points, scored from the right of the crease. Quinn faked a shot and passed to behind the net by Mark Howe. Kerr's second goal came at 10:22 on a deflection of a shot from just inside the blue line by Mark Howe.

Then, the Penguins got a bad misplayed as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. Cunneyworth followed his shot off the boards to beat goalie Ron Hextall, who misplayed it as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. But the Flyers struck back twice as the Philadelphia blanked the Penguins 6-2 Thursday to stay alive and force a seventh game in the Patrick Division finals.

Flyers 6, Penguins 2

The Penguins had taken a 3-2 lead in the series Tuesday night when Mario Lemieux, the league's top scorer with 85 goals and 199 points, scored from the right of the crease. Quinn faked a shot and passed to behind the net by Mark Howe. Kerr's second goal came at 10:22 on a deflection of a shot from just inside the blue line by Mark Howe.

Then, the Penguins got a bad misplayed as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. Cunneyworth followed his shot off the boards to beat goalie Ron Hextall, who misplayed it as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. But the Flyers struck back twice as the Philadelphia blanked the Penguins 6-2 Thursday to stay alive and force a seventh game in the Patrick Division finals.

Flyers 6, Penguins 2

The Penguins had taken a 3-2 lead in the series Tuesday night when Mario Lemieux, the league's top scorer with 85 goals and 199 points, scored from the right of the crease. Quinn faked a shot and passed to behind the net by Mark Howe. Kerr's second goal came at 10:22 on a deflection of a shot from just inside the blue line by Mark Howe.

Then, the Penguins got a bad misplayed as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. Cunneyworth followed his shot off the boards to beat goalie Ron Hextall, who misplayed it as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net. But the Flyers struck back twice as the Philadelphia blanked the Penguins 6-2 Thursday to stay alive and force a seventh game in the Patrick Division finals.
After loss to Mich. St., ND prepares for OSU

By PETE LaFLEUR
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team saw its hopes for an NCAA bid diminish Wednesday as they lost to Michigan State 9-7 in East Lansing, Mich.

The Irish (7-5) were "in the drivers seat" for the reserved NCAA western bid, but that position was snatched away by the Spartans, who moved to 6-5 for the season. Still, Notre Dame continues to hope for the right circumstances that could help it capture its first NCAA invitation.

"It's a little disappointing because we didn't play that well," said Irish coach Kevin Corrigan. "We sank ourselves for the third time this year tied at 7-7 in the fourth quarter and for the third time we couldn't pull it out. "We're going to need some help now to get into the NCAA tournament," he continued. "We'll help ourselves by beating Ohio State Saturday and then it's up to the committees.

Notre Dame plays Ohio State at 7 p.m. Saturday in Columbus and the Buckeyes then play the Spartans on May 14.

Those three Midwestern teams and Air Force were the pre-season contenders for the NCAA bid. Air Force lost to Georgia Tech last weekend, moved to 6-5, and then beat Michigan State, the Spartans to have any hope at the bid.

The Irish lose two in a row.

If they gain valuable experience

Dame continues to hope for the Spartans, who moved to 6-5 and then beat Michigan State, the Irish and Spartans would each be 3-1 among the contenders.

"The Spartans routed the Irish in East Lansing two years ago in similar fashion with the bid on the line. The Spartans went on to capture the inaugural Western bid that year (1987).

But it was a lack of intensity that prevented the Irish from ever capturing the lead of the tight game. The teams were tied at three at halftime and "see-sawed" the rest of the way before Michigan State went ahead for good in the fourth quarter.

"Three or four times we tied the game, we felt that if we ever got the go ahead goal things would go our way," said senior tri-captain Jim Spence. "But we were always playing catch-up and that's not the position we want on the road.

"We didn't have the intensity that we have had in the other games," he continued. "Every time we gave him our best, but for some reason we couldn't put it together.

The Spartans beat the Irish for only the third time against eight losses, with all those wins coming the last four seasons. Michigan State dominated on ground balls (60-44), a statistic the Irish usually count on for the win.

Still, the main thing the Irish have to worry about now is their defense or the intensity that propelled them to a seven game winning streak the last few weeks. That month long streak followed three season-opening losses and since then Notre Dame has lost two in a row.

Xavier is a hot team right now, and there is nobody in the MCC hotter than Xavier's Scott Gordon. He is the MCC athlete of the week, hitting .476 (10-for-21) with three home runs, two doubles and nine RBI. Not only does he hit, but he is the team's star pitcher. He is 5-2 with a 2.50 ERA, second in the MCC. His .382 batting average is fifth in the MCC.

"Xavier's got a good ballclub," said Murphy. "Those four games we played with them were our best games of the year. Scott Gordon is as good a pitcher as anybody in the conference. He might be the best in the conference, and you'll see him in the first game on Saturday. We've got to be ready when Xavier comes to town."

The Observer / Scott McCann

John Olmstead (29) celebrates after scoring a goal in a match against Ohio Wesleyan earlier this season. Olmstead, an Academic All-American, is the second-leading scorer in Notre Dame lacrosse history.

146 career Irish points rank second all-time. He also holds Irish records for career assists (63), assists and points in a game (7 and 9), assists and points by a junior (25 and 58), and is an Academic All-American.

Tri-captains Spencer and Kevin O'Connor lead a senior-packed Irish defense that has allowed more than 10 goals only once this season for a 7.5 goals per game average. Brendan Cahill and Warren Sanger round out the senior defensemen whose Irish careers are nearing an end.

Matthæus:
Tu es viginti unus.
CARPE DIEM!
Amânter, Mater et Pater

"PASSIONATE, SINCERE, FUNNY AND HONEST."
John H. Richardson
LOS ANGELES TIMES

"THUMBS UP!"
Roger Ebert
SIGN & SHOUT!

"FUNNY AND TOUCHING, HARVEY FIERSTEIN AND ANNE BANCROFT ARE EXCELLENT. DON'T MISS IT!"
DICK WATTERS
AT THE MOVIES

"Torch Song Trilogy"

NEW LINE CINEMA
ANNE BANCROFT, MATTHEW BRODERICK, HARVEY FIERSTEIN, MIKE KELLEY, BILLY MILLER
DIRECTED BY HARVEY FIERSTEIN
PRODUCED BY HOWARD GOTTfried AND PAUL BOGART

Fri 7:00 & 9:20
Sat-Sun 2:00, 4:30, 7:00, & 9:20
US 31-M N of Notre Dame 277-1022

WARM, SENSITIVE AND FUNNY!
1111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111111
Kalbas 'everything' to Irish
ND meets Kalamazoo, Illinois State in final weekend

By BOB MITCHELL
Sports Writer

Thirty times this year Notre Dame head coach Bob Bayliss asked Brian Kalbas if he was physically capable of playing in more than half of those matches, but his willingness to play illustrates what type of person and tennis player he is.

There is no greater compliment in any sport than saying a player makes everyone else on the team better, and there is no doubt in anyone's mind that Kalbas does this. Although Kalbas, self-admittedly, is not the best athlete on the team, everyone plays harder and better. He makes everyone else embarrassed to give less than 100 percent.

During his final year as a college tennis player, Kalbas has been forced to change and adjust to a different role. In his first three seasons at Notre Dame, Kalbas held on to the No.1 singles spot, but with the arrival of freshman Dave DiLucia (No.1) and junior transfer Walter Dollare (No.2) this year, Kalbas has assumed the No.3 spot.

"I'm not disappointed falling to No.3," said Kalbas. "I am disappointed with the injury. I want to contribute anyway I can to the team. Each spot counts for the same amount of points, so I am just concerned about winning my spot. Sure it is tough but David deserves it, he is the best player on the team. Dave and Walter are great guys."

In four years for the Irish, Kalbas has amassed a 83-54 (60 percent) singles record and 59-59 (58 percent) doubles record. This year, Kalbas has improved steadily as a doubles partner with a 11-12 singles record match in dual matches and a 13-12 doubles record. Despite the mixed results, his teammates note that he has taken the cornerstone of the team.

"He is the ideal player on the team," said DiLucia. "He keeps this team together during the tough times of the season. I am only a freshman and I look to him for support, to show me the ropes and give me strength. He is the focal point of the team."

And looking at Kalbas's style of play one would not doubt his teammates admiration. Kalbas plays with one thing in mind— to win. Nothing will quench his unsatiable thirst to come out on top.

"If the match comes down to endurance I will not lose," said Kalbas. "I describe my style of play as counteractive. If someone is charging the net I will adjust my game to win."

"He is the ultimate competitor," said senior Dave Bertles. "Brian will find a way to win usually with long drawn out rallies. He hails his opponent into submission."

Kalbas will close out his career against Kalamazoo and Illinois St. on Saturday on the Courtyard Tennis Center. The final two matches of the 1989 campaign should provide two solid victories for the 17-9 Irish. Notre Dame will attempt to knock off these two schools who surprisingly have giving the Irish trouble. Notre Dame lost to both schools last year.

Golfers head for Midwestern Invite

By DAVE MAHON
Sports Writer

In its final event of the spring season, the Notre Dame men's golf team will trek to Dekalb, Ill., this weekend to participate in the Midwestern Invitational. The 54-hole event starts today at the Kiskaweau Country Club. The Irish finished the par-70, 6,325-yard tournament last year with a 938 total to finish 12th out of 15 teams. Illinois won the event with a 861, Ohio State took second (865), and Indiana rounded out the tourney four shots back. Pat Mohan, by carding a 72-74-76, placed seventh in the field of 75.

Notre Dame has improved steadily as the season has progressed. After beginning the season by placing seventh out of seven teams in the Nestle Invitational, the Irish rebounded with a second-place finish in the Indianapolis Intercollegiates.

Since then, Notre Dame has placed eighth out of 22 teams in the prestigious Kepler Intercollegiates and tied for sixth out of 16 teams in last weekend's Spartan Invitational.

The Irish had finished 20th and 25th, respectively in the Kepler Intercollegiates the last two years. This time, they were in third place heading into the final round. The Irish also placed ninth out of 13 teams.

Trip to Illinois State

By BOB MITCHELL

Senior captain Brian Kalbas will close out his Notre Dame career when the Irish tennis team plays host to Kalamazoo and Illinois State this weekend. Both matches are scheduled for Saturday at the outdoor Courtesy Tennis Center.

Thompson pleads guilty to charges

OKLAHOMA CITY—Charles Thompson, Oklahoma's 11th dating brooming before he was arrested on a federal drug charge, pleaded guilty Wednesday to conspiracy to distribute cocaine. He said he was ready to face the consequences.

"What I did was wrong," the 29-year-old Thompson told reporters on the courthouse steps after his appearance before U.S. District Judge Ralph Thompson. He apologized to his family, the University of Oklahoma and to his supporters before quickly leaving with his attorney.

The former Sooners star was arrested Feb. 13 and accused of selling 17 grams of cocaine to an undercover FBI agent on Jan. 26.

"He's just an athlete who got caught up in the fast lane and got himself in a regrettable situation," attorney Garvin Isaacs said before the court appearance.

"It's in his best interest to plead guilty and get on with his life," Isaacs said.

The judge delayed sentencing until he receives a report from the U.S. Probation Office, but asked Thompson if he realized he was almost certain to spend time in prison.

"Yes, your honor," Thompson replied. He later said he was ready to face the consequences.

The maximum punishment for the charge is 20 years in prison and a $2 million fine, a mandatory assessment fine of $50,000.

"Even under the most lenient conditions under the guidelines, a defendant would face some time," U.S. attorney Bill Price said.
Rising Suns face ailing Nuggets

Associated Press

The Denver Nuggets are limping into the NBA playoffs. The Nuggets, who meet the Phoenix Suns in the first round, have so many injuries that an assistant coach had to fill in at point guard during two workouts this week.

"This is not a great situation right now," said head coach Doug Moe, whose team opens Thursday night, New York beat Philadelphia by Friday, but we won't be 100 percent," said head coach Doug Moe, whose team opens Thursday night.

For Denver, Danny Schayes has a badly sprained ankle. Michael Adams and Darwin Cook have tender hamstrings, and Walter Davis has a sore groin muscle.

"We've got a chance to have everybody back together," Doug Moe said. In other games last season, almost every team put all the parts together, the Suns are shining.

Western Conference.

"They're a scoring machine," he said. "They've got some flat-out shooters. Tom Chambers, Eddie Johnson, Kevin Johnson, Armon Gilliam. Kevin Johnson is superman. I think he'll come out of the playoffs with everyone realizing how great he is."

Chicago, which lost all six games to Cleveland in the regular season, will have to beat the Cavaliers three times to advance in the playoffs.

"Everyone has written us off and expects us to get swept in three games because of what happened in the regular season, but maybe we can surprise some people," said Chicago's Michael Jordan.

Mark Price, who runs the Cavaliers' offense, probably won't play Friday because of a groin injury.

"Price is a key player, but they still are a good team without him," Jordan said. "We don't anticipate a change. They won't lay down."

The Pistons had the best record in the league (63-19) and won eight of its last 15 games as Schayes was sitting out games to Cleveland in the regular season, but maybe we can surprise some people," said Chicago's Michael Jordan.

Mark Price, who runs the Cavaliers' offense, probably won't play Friday because of a groin injury.

"Price is a key player, but they still are a good team without him," Jordan said. "We don't anticipate a change. They won't lay down."

The Piston's had the best record in the league (63-19) and won three of four games against Boston, but the Celtics are looking forward to the challenge.

"I don't think there's much pressure on us at all because of the way the press and everybody have built Detroit up," Boston's Kevin Gamble said.

Seattle won eight of its last nine games after Xavier McDaniel became a starter.

As a starter, McDaniel averaged 30.5 points and 6.6 rebounds. In 72 games as Seattle's sixth man, he averaged 19.1 points and 5.1 rebounds.

"We've got a scoring machine," he said. "They've got some flat-out shooters. Tom Chambers, Eddie Johnson, Kevin Johnson, Armon Gilliam. Kevin Johnson is superman. I think he'll come out of the playoffs with everyone realizing how great he is."

Chicago, which lost all six games to Cleveland in the regular season, will have to beat the Cavaliers three times to advance in the playoffs.

"Everyone has written us off and expects us to get swept in three games because of what happened in the regular season, but maybe we can surprise some people," said Chicago's Michael Jordan.

Mark Price, who runs the Cavaliers' offense, probably won't play Friday because of a groin injury.

"Price is a key player, but they still are a good team without him," Jordan said. "We don't anticipate a change. They won't lay down."

The Pistons had the best record in the league (63-19) and won three of four games against Boston, but the Celtics are looking forward to the challenge.

"I don't think there's much pressure on us at all because of the way the press and everybody have built Detroit up," Boston's Kevin Gamble said.

Seattle won eight of its last nine games after Xavier McDaniel became a starter.

As a starter, McDaniel averaged 30.5 points and 6.6 rebounds. In 72 games as Seattle's sixth man, he averaged 19.1 points and 5.1 rebounds.

Although the Lakers were seeking their third straight NBA title, Moe said the Suns are the team to beat in the Women's Bookstore shrinks to final eight teams

By FRANK PASTOR
Assistant Sports Editor

Hoosier Lawyers, one of the favorites to win this year's Women's Bookstore Basketball tournament, came within an eyelash of elimination Thursday when they defeated Aunt Flo and the Four Plugs 24-22 to advance to the quarterfinals.

Kathy Leyden led Hoosier Lawyers with 11-of-22 shooting from the field and to win this year's Women's Bookstore with 11-of-22 shooting from the field and

Kathy Meyers chipped in eight baskets as the winners moved into the round of eight.

"It was a really physical game," said Meyers. "Myself, I could have gone another way. We were down the first half, but then we went on a little spurt with three or four steals and turned it around." Although Hoosier Lawyers found themselves at a size disadvantage in the game, Meyers pointed to their defensive play as the deciding factor in the contest.

"Nancy Butler played really good defense," said the first-year law student, "and Kelly Daly played really good defense despite being about half the size of the other players. Deb Kas- hal also hit a few big baskets in the game."

Molly Mahoney paced Aunt Flo and the Four Plugs with six baskets, while Maureen Shea contributed five of her team's six baskets.

"They have some really good athletes on that team," added Meyers.

Sparky's Franchise II had a much easier time of it Thursday, beating Jaegermanners 21-2 in qualifying for the quarterfinal round. Ellen Mouch scored six points for Sparky's, while Kathleen McDavid and Sandy Botham added five each.

"We've been playing man-to-man," said McDavid of Sparky's defense, which allowed hardly any open shots in its previous game. "Lauren (Romeo) and Ellen do a great job out front getting it to them, and they take off as a team."

We Got To Put It Through downed Nads 21-18, relying on a balanced scoring attack that featured Babs Broemmel, Kristin Miller and Allison Wójcik.

Here is how the final three rounds of the tournament will play out:

Wednesday, April 26

Women: 8 p.m. Hands 19 at 19:30 vs. 21
Men: 8 p.m. 21 vs. 19

Thursday, April 27

Women: 8 p.m. 19 vs. 21:30 vs. 19
Men: 8 p.m. 19:30 vs. 19; 21

Friday, April 28

Women: 8 p.m. 21 vs. 19:30 vs. 19
Men: 8 p.m. 19:30 vs. 19; 21

The Hoosier Women are ranked fifth in the country and the Hoosier Men are ranked 16th. The tournament is the season finale for both teams.

The champions will be crowned on Sunday at 8 p.m.

Champ will be Prostitution... or maybe Adworks

By SCOTT BRUTOCOA
Sports Writer

When the Notre Dame basketball team had a relief pitcher enter the game Wednesday against Indiana, the song "Wild Thing" blared from the Notre Dame Field press box. Indiana was no ordinary opponent, as the Hoosiers were on a winning roll at the time. And there was no ordinary relief pitcher, as Mike Coffey's teammates would later confess.

It was the movie "Major League" that gave the Indiana backcourt the idea to have "Wild Thing" played when Mike Coffey was throwing his warm-up pitches on the mound.

"I thought it would be appropriate," said Passilla, one of the two senior pitchers on the pitching staff. "We thought the song was fitting because he's the clown of the staff, and probably the whole team. He keeps us on our toes."

Mike Coffey, a junior from West Sand Lake, N.Y., is not only the comic relief of the staff, he is the top reliever. In high pressure situations, he is the one Head Coach Pat Murphy turns to.

"Mike Coffey has a perfect mentality for a short-man," said Murphy. "He's a little off, he's not all there, but he's got pretty good control when the game is on the line."

Coffey thrives when the game is on the line, and proof that is in this Midwestern Collegiate Conference-leading five wins and seven saves. He has converted every save opportunity that he has inherited as the top reliever in the league.

"He's got that competitive edge, and I think that has made the difference," said Murphy.

"We've had some big outs against some great teams and I think that's the difference," said Murphy. "If you don't have Coffey, you don't have a chance."

"It becomes in the form of confidence from his coach or in being called "Wild Thing" by his teammates, Coffey revels in his role as a short reliever.

"When I take the mound, I have the attitude that nobody beats me," said Coffey. "That's the attitude you have to have as a reliever. When I'm out there, I give credit to the hitters, I'm the boss, I have the ball in my hand and I'm in control of the game. That's the killer attitude you've got to have."

Off the mound, Coffey keeps the atmosphere light by keeping the team in high spirits.

"He keeps us on our toes by saying funny things during serious times," said Passilla.

"When Coach (Murphy) gets the players up, Coffey cracks a joke to remind us baseball is just a game."

Coffey, for a short reliever, has earned himself a spot in the starting rotation, as well as respect from his teammates.

Somebody tell Pete Rose to get his money out because I have a winner for him in Bookstore Basketball XVIII.

It's down to the final eight. Call it the Elite Eight, the Exciting Eight or the Exhilarant Eight, but that's where the similarities end.

Greg Guffey
Assistant Sports Editor

These teams have traveled different paths to the tourney. They're composed of graduate students, football players, administrative personnel and law students. And, oh yeah, they even let a few ordinary students play.

Some are just happy to be there, or so they say. Others don't leave any doubt that they won't be satisfied without the title.

So it's three games in as many days come sun, rain, snow or anything else Mother Nature can whip up.

It's three days of bragging about your team and bullying the refs. If one or all of the refs don't get the most courageous award, they shouldn't award it.

The commissioners did a great job of seeding the teams, but it was not that difficult because the top four seeds are head and shoulders above the rest.

More than anything else, Bookstore Basketball closely resembles playground basketball. And when it comes to fast paced, flashy hoops played above the rim, nobody does it better than the defending champions, Adworks' All-Stars.

Frank Pastor
Assistant Sports Editor

After dominating last year's tournament, Adworks acquired another superstar in the person of Mike Rice, Derrick Johnson and Derek Brown to complement the ever-reliable and steady Kevin Keyes and John "Booger" Buscher.

Rice has been Adworks' leading scorer and indisputably the finest natural athletes in the tournament. He is quick, strong and explosive. If only he played with a little more control, Rice would be virtually unstoppable.

But despite Rice's many contributions, Adworks will look to Derrick Johnson in the final rounds of the tournament. The sophomore's incredible shooting touch always works together as a team and he is the franchise player of the group. But with Rice it is a different story. Whenever the fat lady sings, Rice has his hands on the trophy and his finger on the button. Always.

Johnson in the final rounds of the tournament. The sophomore's incredible shooting touch always works together as a team and he is the franchise player of the group. But with Rice it is a different story. Whenever the fat lady sings, Rice has his hands on the trophy and his finger on the button. Always.

Adworks may not be the most consistent team out there, which may not be too much of a problem for them. But at the end of the day, Adworks always wins.

adworks

Killer Bees: Killer Bees, after a one-year sabbatical, returned to the tournament this year and pulled off a couple of upsets to reach the round of eight. Still, the Bees have what it takes to pull