Malloy elected to commission

Will revise Vatican document

By JOHN O'BRIEN
Senior Staff Reporter

University President Father Edward Malloy was elected to a 15 member commission created by a world congress of Catholic educators.

The commission, which was created in order to assist in revising a proposed Vatican document on the Church and Catholic universities, will study the fourth draft of the document before returning to Rome in September when the congress reconvenes.

"The idea of this interim commission was to carry over the spirit and deliberations of this meeting into the next stage so that what we talked about wasn't lost in transition," Malloy said.

Of the 15 members of the commission, three are from North America. Joining Malloy are Father Joseph O'Hare, president of Fordham University and Sister Sally Furay, president and provost of the University of San Diego.

"The Schema on Catholic Higher Education," as the document is called, was first proposed in 1985 by the Congregation for Catholic Education. According to Malloy, the document is "supposed to address the question of the role of Catholic higher education, the relationship between the institutions and the local bishop and national groups of bishops, the role of various component parts like the theology department, or the way that science and technology are approached."

After the document was proposed, it received critical reviews from American Catholic bishops. Malloy said that these earlier versions didn't properly assess the experience

ND profs await tenure decisions from Univ.

By JOHN O'BRIEN
Senior Staff Reporter

Editor's note: This is the first part of a two-part series on the Notre Dame tenure system.

Professors, too, will be feeling added pressure during the next two weeks as tenure decisions are handed down. The worry: The determination who will receive tenure began in September and as the Provost's office releases the decisions this Friday.

The issue of tenure is significant for many young professors because receiving tenure will make them a permanent member of the Notre Dame faculty.

According to the 1988 University of Notre Dame Faculty Handbook, tenure is "a permanent purpose in the protection of academic freedom." The Faculty Handbook defines "serious cause" as "dishonesty, professional incompetence or continued neglect of academic duties, regulations or responsibilities, conviction of a felony, continual serious disrespect or disregard for the Catholic character of the University; or causing notorious and public scandal." The document on the Church and Catholic Education, which was created in order to assist in revising a proposed Vatican document on the Church and Catholic universities, will study the fourth draft of the document before returning to Rome in September when the congress reconvenes.

"The concept of tenure came up precisely so there is a safeguard for this," said Rakow.

Once a member of the teaching and research faculty receives tenure, they cannot be removed from their faculty position without "serious cause." The Faculty Handbook defines "serious cause" as "dishonesty, professional incompetence or continued neglect of academic duties, regulations or responsibilities, conviction of a felony, continual serious disrespect or disregard for the Catholic character of the University; or causing notorious and public scandal." The concept of tenure came up precisely so there is a safeguard for this, Rakow said.

Colleges play a role in math education reforms

For a lot of freshmen, a major cause of stress during their first year at Notre Dame and Saint Mary's is the math courses they take. Many students, especially those who have not taken math in high school, are surprised to find that the college math courses are significantly more challenging than those they took in high school. As a result, many freshmen are required to take remedial math courses during their first year to improve their math skills before they can enroll in the advanced courses they need to succeed in their major.

Knights expected to reapply

By SARA MARLEY
Senior Staff Reporter

The Notre Dame chapter of the Knights of Columbus, suspended by the Office of Student Affairs last October, has not yet reapplied for club status, but is expected to next fall, said Father Peter Rocca, assistant vice president for student services.

"We will be active again in the fall," said senior James Harrington, who was asked to be acting Grand Knight of the chapter by the Office of Student Affairs in conjunction with the State Council.

The chapter will exist on a probationary status for three years, said Harrington.

The building, which was locked last October 3, will return to the organization Rocca said.

According to Harrington, who will return for a fifth year, elections for officers will be held in the fall.

"There is the agreement that any of those who served as officers within the last two years will be ineligible to be officers," said Rocca.

Harrington told Observer reporters at the time that the suspension came about "primarily because of internal difficulties and also a clarification of relations between the local Knights of Columbus, the University and the Supreme Council." Also in a previous interview, Rocca said the Knights may reapply for University recognition as a new organization through the Office of Student Activities at the beginning of the 1989-90 school year.

Joseph Cassidy, director of student activities, said, "I haven't heard anything from them at all. I anticipate they will reapply." The Office of Student Activi -

Public dissatisfied with Exxon's handling of oil spill

Associated Press

Consumers, environmentalists and politicians in scattered cities joined Tuesday in a one-day "Boycott Exxon" campaign over its huge oil spill in Alaska and over rising gasoline prices in the industry in general.

State attorneys general in the Northwest and U.S. senators from Nebraska called for a federal investigation of why gasoline prices have risen sharply since the March 24 Exxon Valdez spill.

"We are beginning the war of words and actions against any oil company that doesn't understand its responsibility to protect the environment," said Massachusetts state Sen. Carol Amick at a boycott rally in Boston.

J. Surette, executive director of the Bay State Gasoline Retailers Association in Billerica, Mass., said his group surveyed dealers Tuesday but found that it was too early to assess the impact of the boycott.

Surette accused Exxon Corp. of "obvious negligence" but said it was unfair for consumers to vent their anger at dealers, most of whom are small, independent businessmen.

Consumer activist Ralph Nader said in Washington that Exxon "should not be allowed to forget" the Alaskan spill and that a boycott was the way to send a message to the oil giant.

Nader joined representatives from several environmental and consumer groups in accusing Exxon of failing to be prepared for the spill and not rapidly responding to the accident that has fouled hundreds of miles of Alaska's coast.

Consumer groups in Alaska and New York state also asked consumers to join the boycott.

Exxon issued a statement calling the boycott unjust, and added: "Exxon believes in the basic fairness of the American people and is confident that they will see Exxon's employees, dealers and owners as victims of human error, not as an institution that should be discriminated against for an accident that occurred while we were doing our job."

Concern over tight gasoline supplies for the summer driving season escalated following the Alaska oil spill and an explosion at a North Sea oil rig. Crude oil prices have risen more than $7 a barrel since January.

Since the Exxon Valdez accident, gas prices have increased an average 10 percent nationally, while the Pacific Northwest saw surges as high as 25 percent in less than a month, said Marla Rae, executive assistant to Oregon Attorney General Dave Frohnmayer.

McFarlane to visit ND this fall

By RON SEVERINO
Staff Reporter

Former National Security Advisor Robert McFarlane will speak at Notre Dame next fall as part of a "Foreign Policy Week" sponsored by Student Union Board, according to SUB Ideas and Issues commissioner Tony Lang.

The week, which is scheduled to occur Sept. 14-19, will include a debate between College Republicans and College Democrats Sept. 18 followed by McFarlane's speech Sept. 19, said Lang.

McFarlane, a former Marine lieutenant colonel who was implicated in the Iran-Contra affair in 1987, will speak on "where the United States stands on the international scene," according to Matt Reuter, SUB's Ideas and Issues assistant commissioner.

The Ideas and Issues Commission, which sponsored speeches by Phillip Agre, Vladimir Posner and Phil Donohue this past year, is set up "to increase intellectual activity outside the classroom," said Reuter.

The topic of the debate between College Republicans and College Democrats will deal with "what the new U.S. security policy should be with the new world conditions as they exist today," said Reuter.

Japan's growing influence in the world and Russia's less bellicose nature suggest a need for a new U.S. security policy, said Reuter.

Tyson's letter to involved members in October stated that guidelines would be amended to show the Knights as under the supervision of Rocca.

Harrington said no new constitution has been drafted nor does he anticipate one. The Knights will also appoint a new moderator/chaplain in the fall.

Tenure

Some faculty members, however, are offering tenure immediately upon coming to the University. "When we bring in a faculty member from another institution, many things have to be done to ensure tenure is granted. Otherwise, they wouldn't come," O'Meara said.

During the final year of the probationary period, tenure procedures begin. If the faculty member resigns, he or she becomes permanent member of the faculty. If, however, tenure is denied, the faculty member is allowed to teach at the University for one more year.

"This extra year is given so they can look for another position, but we say that it is easier to find other positions in certain disciplines. "Of the 1986, however, it will be easy to find another position in any discipline," he said.

The tenure decision procedures take place, a package is created for each faculty member being considered. The package is made up of three main components:

First, a biography of the faculty member is assembled. It includes information on the person's educational background, what articles he has published, where he has worked, where he has given public lectures, and other notable contributions to the person's discipline or to the University," O'Meara said.

The second part of the package is made up of letters of recommendation based on the person's published articles. In September we send out requests for these recommendations along with copies of what this person has published to scholars throughout the country. These people write candid descriptions of what they've read," O'Meara said.

The final part of the package is made up of the minutes of the meetings of an elected committee from the person's department and the department chairman. This committee discusses the tenure proposal.

"The committee examines three components of the person's qualifications: the person's teaching ability, scholarly work and their service to the University," O'Meara said. The committee determines the strength of a person in three ways:

Teacher-Course Evaluations: The committee evaluates all of the person's TCES to get an idea of students' feelings for the person.

Reputation of the Individual: The committee looks at how the person is perceived by other members of the department and the university.

"The chairman of the department and the dean of the college will know if there is a teaching problem with an individual."

Affiliations: "In some departments, members of the committee go in one at a time to view the person's teaching," said O'Meara.

After evaluating the person's teaching ability, the committee looks at the person's scholarly work. The committee "as-sesses the letters of recommendation on the person's scholarly abilities and then assesses the articles themselves," said O'Meara.

Next, the committee examines how the person has been of service to the University," O'Meara said. When the professors have completed the evaluation, the committee votes on the person.

Regardless of these decisions the package is sent to the Provost's office in mid-February. By the beginning of February, O'Meara has received 60 or 70 packages.

Next, the deans of all four colleges, the dean of the Freshman Year of Studies, several vice presidents at the University and O'Meara meet to examine all of the packages.

O'Meara said that all of the members of this panel vote on each package. "Thus, the Dean of the College of Business votes on the packages from the other three colleges and the Law School and vice-versa," he said.

After the vote, there is a five-week period in which any questions are clarified. "Sometimes problems come up, something's missing perhaps, we then have about five weeks to find out what's missing and to clarify the picture on an individual basis.

Finally, the complete package is presented to University President Father Edward Malloy. Malloy examines all of the packages and makes the final decision. This decision is the one which will be mailed out on Friday.
Security

Rakow said that if parents plan to come to the hospital, security will help to arrange transportation for building a tunnel, said Rakow.

Since the computer thefts on campus, security has made several recommendations for various events, ranging from security devices. Security has followed-up on some of the recommendations, said Rakow.

Rakow said security is investing the false identification production on campus. As it is a felony to produce fake ID's, campus police is working jointly with other law enforcement agencies on this project, said Rakow. As for any arrest for using a fake ID, Rakow said security passes on the arrest information to the Office of Student Affairs, said Rakow. The arrest reports are public records, according to Rakow.

Bookbag thefts from the dining hall were a problem this year, said Rakow. He said security has tried surveillances, yet he said it's difficult to tell if a person is picking up his or her own bag. "It's an area we need to get involved in," said Rakow.

He said that presently there's a student issued for people from town who stole books and cashed them in. Some theft is from the outside, said Rakow, but some is from within. Security has tried to "brainstorm" a solution, said Rakow. He did say that bicycle theft has been pretty good this year.

Vandalism to cars parked in University lots has been a problem again this year, said Rakow. "It's a hard crime to detect," according to Rakow. He said that car vandalism usually comes in streaks. Although officers patrol the lots, it only takes a few minutes for damage to be done and an of-cer can easily miss the crime by minutes, said Rakow. Many vandalism crimes are committed by juveniles, according to Rakow. He also said that security will "never alleviate the problem entirely."

"The Oak Room was a hard issue," said Rakow. He said it was very popular up until a certain time of night. Rakow said that vandalism was prevalent on football weekends. He added that doors were kicked in, a sink was torn off a wall, there was theft of food and sometimes unattended patrons abused staff.

Three hundred more citations were issued this year as security officers expanded their role to traffic enforcement. Speed is checked by radar on Douglas, Juniper, Oak, and Angela, said Rakow. Traffic is important, said Rakow, as security is trying to "keep the campus pedestrian."

Rakow said that security received a grant from the state of Indiana from a drunk driving

The future
In the beginning of the year there was much talk about chunnel," according to Rakow. Rakow believes that a tunnel would cause a security risk, especially for females. As for an overpass in South Bend that is historically not used. "People will take the shortest path," said Rakow. "This does not say that I am not concerned," said Rakow.

Talk about a 24 hour lounge almost always includes concern over the security risk. Rakow said he would have no problem with a 24 hour social space on campus as long as security was "on the front side of the decision."

In the future, Rakow predicts that shuttles to parking lots could be necessary. With the new construction on Green Field and the new ROTC and band buildings near Loyola, Rakow believes that student parking will be extended past the stadium near Alumni Senior Club and past Stepan on the opposite side of campus. Parking garages might also be an option, said Rakow. He added that security will be asked for input when new lots are planned.

Ford offers incentives to graduating students

By TIM O'KEEFE
Senior Staff Reporter

Ford Motor Co. is offering incentives to graduating college students, including a $400 cash allowance and pre-approved credit.

Anyone earning a bachelor's or post-graduate degree between Oct. 1, 1989, and Jan. 31, 1990, and who is buying a new Ford or Lincoln-Mercury car is eligible for the cash allowance, said Harmon. The assistant manager for public affairs. He added that the $400 is in top of any other incentives offered by Ford other dealers. It would have to be received as a direct payment or applied to a down payment. The buyer does not have to wait for a rebate to arrive.

The other major part of Ford's program for seniors, said Harmon, is a pre-approved credit.

"Many college graduates don't want to use their parents as a cosigner when buying a new car," said Harmon. For those who qualify, no co-signature is necessary, and there is no down payment necessary. If the car is "within limits," said Harmon, which depends on the job the graduate wants to have. Not all jobs qualify for all types of cars. If someone who was going to work as a teacher wants to buy a Lincoln, they might not make a down payment.

Graduating students do not need to show proof of income to qualify, as long as they have a job that will start within 20 days of the college's closing.

General Motors and Chrysler have similar programs, said Harmon, although he said that there were more limited in scope. Ford was the first to institute this type of program for graduates, and it has been in effect since 1987.

Vehicles must be purchased or leased from dealer stock by Dec. 31 or factory ordered by Oct. 1. Individual dealers have information on those who qualify, and those wanting more information may call the program's toll-free number: 1-800-321-1587.

New Disney theme park opens

Associated Press

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. - Disney-MGM studios unveiled its $400 million theme park, which is more the nostalgic to its version of Hollywood's golden era and a world that never was and always will be.

Eisner told the crowd: "It's the beginning of a great adventure. In Florida, there will be a world where dreams come true, a world where dreams are possible."

"We wanted to be first and beat the crowd but never expected things to happen so quickly," said Allan Gutierrez, 37, as he and his wife, two daughters and father-in-law strolled into the park.

"It's incredible," said Mary Gutierrez, 37, about their back-to-back appearances on national television and meetings with a gang of Hollywood stars attending the grand-opening ceremony.

Disney officials would not disclose attendance figures, but at least 15,000 were expected for opening day. Most attractions were closed because Disney executives hoped to attract 3 million to 5 million visitors a year.

The grand opening followed a star-studded weekend of parties and previews for 3,000 journalists and family members, including thousands of other invited guests.

Some 40 movie and television stars, plus the Saturday night gala and paraded down the park's Hollywood Boulevard in a convertible.

Among them were Bette Midler, Lauren Bacall, George Burns, Audrey Hepburn, Whitey and Kevin Costner. The park's star was opening a new park, Eisner announced another project - a second nighttime entertainment attraction to be called Disney Boardwalk. It will have restaurants, retail shops and nightclubs reminiscent of Atlantic City in the 1920s and 1940s. Boardwalk is expected to open in 1992.

The amusement is nostalgic and the architecture is art deco, similar to oldtime Miami and the newly restored South Miami Beach area.

Disneys, in addition to the two-hour backstage tour, include The Great Movie Ride, which tells the story of Mickey Mouse, and the new project, Winged Victory, the new project, Winged Victory, which is based on the oldtime film of the same name, switched to the opening of another sight, the recognizable name of one of its proclamations.

More and more companies have been hedging the advice of management philosophers like Drucker, who contended the world's growing political fragmentation and accelerating economic integration, concluding that "a global strategy is appropriate to our times."

In the 21st century, the last thing a corporation's image may tell you is where is their chief executive lives. It has often, from the CEO's point of view, a darned good thing.

Aggressive action provides solution to apartheid

Dear Editor:

I read Kevin Smant's column (The Observer, April 25) with great interest, for he was making an argument that I have likewise been making for quite some time. I, too, see a great deal of similarity between the situation in South Africa and other repressive governments throughout the world. South Africa does not have a monopoly on immorality, and there is no reason to single it out for special treatment. However, my final conclusion is somewhat different than Smant's: to paraphrase his "lesson to South Africa," declare yourself tomorrow a Marxist state, and the U.S. will make a commitment to forge a solution.

Historically, the U.S. has responded aggressively, or at least supported aggressive responses, to governments that behave in ways that we consider unjust. In Nicaragua, a government that the U.S. considers oppressive holds civil liberties captive and violates human rights. They violate the central tenet upon which we founded our own country and the rights which we consider to be unalienable. In response, the U.S. supports the Contra rebels who have been favorably compared to our own founding fathers. If apartheid in South Africa is very similar, but our response is not. An opposition government holds civil liberties captive and violates human rights. They violate the very premises upon which we founded our own country and the rights which we consider to be unalienable.

In response, the U.S. supports the anti-apartheid movement in South Africa to eliminate a grotesquely unjust form of government, a commitment the U.S. is unwilling to make. Does anyone really believe that sanctions will work or that Coca-Cola would pull out of South Africa if it were not profitable? Can maintaining a voice in South Africa cost the university anything? The specific goal of the Anti-Apartheid Network is not to end apartheid or push the Congress to impose sanctions against South Africa, although we would certainly like to see these things happen. Our goal is to persuade the University to act in accordance with Christian values.

Secondly, I would like to address Mr. Smant's interpretation of our reason for opposing the University's investments in South Africa. While his interpretation sounds very nice psychologically, it is very untrue factually. We don't oppose the University's practices for posterity. We are opposed against a surrogate parent. We do so for two reasons: 1) We believe apartheid is morally wrong and 2) We feel investing in a nation which practices apartheid is morally wrong and inherently contradictory to Notre Dame's Christian values. We oppose the University's investments in the large black majority, that of the South African revolution that could be won. And we could feel good about it.

Anti-Apartheid opposes morally wrong practice

Dear Editor:

I read Kevin Smant's April 25 column, I would like to point out that he has entirely missed the point of the Notre Dame anti-apartheid movement. He has tried to diminish the evils of apartheid by bringing up other states which practice such repression, and receive as much attention on campus.

The reason that apartheid receives so much attention at Notre Dame is that the University does not invest in these other repressive nations as it continues to do in South Africa.

Pool tournament deserved more coverage

Dear Editor:

I am writing in regards to a 100-89 final match. "Minnesota MCAT's," as he is known to the University, LaFortune, delighted the many that watched the final match.

While The Observer devoted its sports section to the ongoing basketball tournament, it failed to recognize the final match of a tourney which had been proceeding for weeks. It would not have taken much effort to cover a pool match in the same building as The Observer's offices.

We hope The Observer will make some effort during the little exposure he deserves. God knows pre-meds can use the help.

Chinese students lead fight for democracy

By Liang Zhu

Recent Chinese political history dictates that the death of a senior political leader could bring about demonstrations. This is true for China's politics.

In the past year, memorials in honor of Zhou Enlai, former Chinese Prime Minister for more than two decades, were turned into anti-government riots, now known as the "Tiananmen Incident." The death of Mao Zedong in September 1976 marked the end of the disastrous 10-year "Cultural Revolution." Again, the death of Hu Yaobang who helped the South Bend Center for Health had a profound impact on the political situation and stimuli of change.

Actually, Hu's death can be seen as both a natural consequence or as a political excuse for the latter students. China is a technocrat society; the death of a substantial leader can cause a considerable uproar in a few individual persons. However, under a totalitarian system, this is the way people reflect on the political situation and stimuli of change.

At the same time, the current situation of the student unrest can also be considered as a logical and understandable one. The signs of this are common in sad moments and anger to Hu's "soul of China." At the same time, the current situation of student unrest can also be considered as a logical and understandable one. The signs of this are common in sad moments and anger to Hu's "soul of China."

By the death of former Communist Party leader, Hu Yaobang who was widely regarded as China's top intellectual, the Chinese students are going to create a demonstration to boycott the United States. The reason I write this letter is to try to help them think about some of the things that are happening in the world.

Dear Editor,

As a graduating senior I often find myself looking back on my college years offer us a unique opportunity to make sense of all that we have been through. The last four years have been full of challenges and rewards, and I am grateful for the experience. I have been able to do this in the spirit of open and honest communication.

The reason I write this letter is not to recall good memories, but to reflect on some of the lessons I have learned in my life. I think that putting condom dispensers in the Commons was an attempt to save lives, it does not make sense to compare condoms to knives, bullets, or drug needles. For people who do have sex, whether they are from capitalist economic theory or Marxist ideology, who are the most responsible for the events? I would like to attribute the incentives to Chinese Government and political prisoners, who were sent to Fang Lizhi for his advocacy of human rights and social justice. The illegal pro-democracy demonstrations in the capital have at least attracted the attention of about 100,000 people at their peak. Student leaders are planning to send a joint committee of 250 demonstrators to boycott the US. I do not know if the student leader was talking about the experience of 1986-87 student demonstrations or about the present situation. The demonstrations were a failure, not because we were

Dear Editor,

The death of Hu Yaobang, one of China's most respected intellectuals, has sparked a wave of student demonstrations across the country. The students are demanding more freedom and democracy. As a senior political leader could bring about demonstrations, this is true for China's politics.

In the past year, memorials in honor of Zhou Enlai, former Chinese Prime Minister for more than two decades, were turned into anti-government riots, now known as the "Tiananmen Incident." The death of Mao Zedong in September 1976 marked the end of the disastrous 10-year "Cultural Revolution." Again, the death of Hu Yaobang who helped the South Bend Center for Health had a profound impact on the political situation and stimuli of change.

Actually, Hu's death can be seen as both a natural consequence or as a political excuse for the latter students. China is a technocrat society; the death of a substantial leader can cause a considerable uproar in a few individual persons. However, under a totalitarian system, this is the way people reflect on the political situation and stimuli of change.

At the same time, the current situation of the student unrest can also be considered as a logical and understandable one. The signs of this are common in sad moments and anger to Hu's "soul of China." At the same time, the current situation of student unrest can also be considered as a logical and understandable one. It's been a week now since we lost our favorite red head. Nothing has really changed in our lives, but something is definitely missing. Lucille Ball was part of America, and now she's gone. We lost more than a comedian; we've lost a legend.

Lucy didn't have a medical degree, but her prescription to cure us of our problems was as effective as any doctor's. She could bring emotions out of people that no one could. She defined laughter and established the situation comedy. Her contributions to society may not have been as groundbreaking as a cure for polo or a vaccine for smallpox, but they were just as effective and irreplaceable.

Born August 6, 1911, Lucy had anything but an easy life. She spent the next two years learning to walk again. This is only one example of the determination that would be the key to Lucy's success.

After a series of movies, Lucy starred in "I Love Lucy" with her real life husband Desi Arnaz. The show was a ratings wonder and may never be surpassed as television's greatest comedy. The show lasted six years (1951-57) and helped to establish Lucy's later series "The Lucy Show" (1962-68) and "Here's Lucy" (1968-74). All three shows ranked in the Nielsen top ten regularly, indicating Lucy's tremendous popularity.

Through Lucy, it was possible to go home again, and again, and again—to her home, a funny, warm place where our problems didn't seem quite so bad. Her zany antics and wide smile touched us in a way only Lucy could. She had the talent and genius to bring humor out of any situation and help us all to truly enjoy life.

Perhaps the loss has such a heartwrenching because, with Lucy's death, we lost part of the family. To millions worldwide, Lucy was a family member. Like a mother or sister or aunt, she could speak to us in a caring, funny way that made our problems seem insignificant.

Moreover, this day and age of hiding one's self from the world, Lucy was one person we allowed to get close enough to touch us in a precious way.

Lucy received a great number of fan letters. In fact, one of the most moving images of Lucy came during a recent awards presentation. Lucy's daughter, Lucie Arnaz, sang "I Love Lucy" aboard a ship. In tears running down from her eyes, Lucy mouthed the word "wow," perhaps in much the same way we mouthed it when we heard the news of her passing on. Now that she's gone, we can't help but wonder if the awards really expressed the love and appreciation we felt for her.

In spite of this sentimentality, there is a comfort in the fact that Lucy will live on through reruns, her own creations. Prior to "I Love Lucy," shows were televised live.

Depeche Mode—live

JOHN LANE

Depeche Mode has just released a new live album entitled 101. Recorded in June of 1988, it is surprisingly good. Being a synthesizer-dominated band, one might think that Depeche Mode would not sound very good live, but this isn't the case with 101.

Despite some rather dreary lyrics, the band is highly charged and emotional on 101. Vocalist David Gahan screams out and pleads for the crowd to join him in singing the chorus on a number of songs. The music, which is remarkably clear, complements the vocals. The keyboards are vibrant and the drums, powerful. All of this makes for an excellent live album.

There are twenty songs on 101, the majority coming from the recent albums Music For The Masses and Some Great Reward. "Stripped" and "Never Let Me Down Again" are particularly powerful tracks. Depeche Mode also performs the older classics "Just Can't Get Enough" and "Everything Counts."

The one drawback of 101 is that no new songs are introduced. Many bands, such as U2, put previously unreleased songs on their live albums, if for no other reason than to increase consumer interest. Depeche Mode could and should have done this on 101. Nevertheless, it is a terrific album and a pleasant surprise.

Ure's 'Answers to Nothing,' a welcome change

A LLEEN E GRO(active account holder)

Answers to Nothing, the second release by Midge Ure (formerly of Ultravox), is definitely worth a listen. It is by no means a loud rocking album, but is also far from boring. Ure's distinctive voice makes every song a pleasure.

The lyric content of Answers to Nothing is a welcome change from the present Top 40 rambling. Ure addresses such topics as the empty words and promises of the world's leaders, the mess that the world has made for itself, and relations with South American countries. Ure reflects on these subjects not with despair but with a sort of sad awareness.

The first release from the album, "Dear God," is one of its best songs. It sums up the feeling of the album as a whole as if not better than the title. Ure asks if "there is anyone out there" to hear his prayer for a "worldwide religion," and "peace in a restless world." It is a consciously stirring song "Sister and Brother" is spurred by the incredible voice of Kate Bush. For those who don't know her by name, she sang the duet "Don't Give Up" with Peter Gabriel. The music on Answers to Nothing is nothing spectacular or out of the ordinary, but it does enhance Ure's voice and lyrics, which dominate the album.

Nothing will not be pleased at all. Others who can recognize good singing and songwriting will love it.

Allen's grand slam, five RBI prove to be the difference

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Sports Writer

Tom Allen isn't known as a power hitter, but when Notre Dame (19-12) barely escaped with a 15-14 victory against Valparaiso at Jake Kline Field on Tuesday, his grand slam and five RBI suddenly came in very handy.

Four of those RBI came in the third inning, when the freshman Allen smashed a grand slam over the rightfield fence that brought Notre Dame within one run of the Crusaders at 12-11.

Allen's slam was part of a wild seven-inning game that took over two hours to play the first three innings. A doubleheader was scheduled, but since the first seven-inning game took over 3 1/2 hours, there was not enough time for the second game.

In the top of the sixth inning, the score was tied at 14 when hot-hitting Pat Pesavento singled to left. After Allen flew out to center, Dan Peliter threw him to second. Joe Binkiewicz drew a walk, loading the bases, and Cory Mee brought him in with a sacrifice fly to left. After the Crusaders had batted in the third, Valparaiso was

The Irish are also suffering from new injuries. Senior Mike Mosher suffered a sprained ankle on a force play in the first inning, and had to be taken out of the game. When he will return is uncertain.

The Notre Dame staff remains to be unavailable for duty because of the injury he received on a play at the plate against Xavier on Sunday.

"Injuries are what's concerning me most," said Murphy. "It's tough to tell about the progress of this team right now because of injuries and exams."

One Irish hitter who is definitely making progress is shortstop Pat Pesavento, who had three more hits on Tuesday to raise his hitting streak to 12 games. He also scored the winning run, getting on base with an opposite-field base hit.

"I've been seeing the ball really well and I've been taking pitches," said Pesavento. "As a leadoff batter, I get to see a lot of pitches, and I can't just jump on the first one all the time. When I wait for my pitch and hit it to the opposite field, I'm on."

Pesavento is most certainly "on," as he hit two singles to the opposite field Tuesday and has 15 hits in his last 21 at-bats.

In the first inning, with Valparaiso leading 2-1 and Dan Peliter on first base, freshman Joe Binkiewicz blasted a 2-2 pitch with two outs over the rightfield fence, making the score 3-2 in favor of the Irish.

Junior Tim Manning of Valparaiso countered Binkiewicz with a two-run homer of his own in the top of the second, giving Valparaiso a 6-2 lead. After the Crusaders had batted in the third, Valparaiso was

Burks’ homer lifts Red Sox over struggling Twins

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Ellis Burks hit a three-run homer in a four-run eighth inning to lead the Boston Red Sox to a 4-2 victory Tuesday night over Minnesota, handing the Twins their ninth loss in 10 games.

Burks’ home run off reliever Jeff Reardon negated a strong performance by Minnesota starter Fred Tovler, who carried a no-hitter for 5 2-3 innings.

Rich Gedman began the decisive rally by singling to left against Tovler and gave way to pinch runner Marty Barrett. Sam Horn, pinch hitting for Jody Reed drew a walk against reliever German Gonzalez, 2-1. Wade Boggs singled to score Barrett. Reardon relieved Gonzalez and retired Ed Romero on a grounder to first. Burks followed with his fifth homer.

every game. I roll down my socks and put gum in them. And I hate ducks. I am always running away from them.’

But really, why did The Observer select Rice as Notre Dame’s most outstanding male athlete? The most obvious reason is that he was the leader of the 1988 National Championship team, yet there is more behind the selection. The Woodruff, S.C. native was 46 percent of Notre Dame’s entire offense, throwing for 1175 yards and running for an even 790 yards. Even more impressive is the fact that Rice bounced back from a very shaky 5-21 passing performance in his first two games to complete 360 of his passes. Moreover, throughout the season Rice was forced to go head-to-head with such collegiate stars as Steve Walsh, Rodney Peete and Major Harris. And how could this scatter-arm, option-rooted quarterback make sure his team had more points on the scoreboard at the end of the game? Whatever the reason, he did. Didn’t all the comparisons bother him?

“No, I knew I didn’t have to compete with them, our defense did,” said Rice. “Each week another name came up but our defense said that I was going to be the star of the game.”

And what a star they made of him? The gum-loving Rice came up for the Irish when they needed him the most. In the first “game of the century” of the season against the Miami Hurricanes, Rice completed eight of 16 passes for 195 yards including a nine yard touchdown pass to Braxton Banks waiting in the end zone. In the first half of the unbeaten with the Trojans of USC, Rice threw for 91 yards on five of nine attempts and tore up the Coliseum grass for 86 on 13 carries.

But Rice saved his best day for last against a hillbilly squad from John Denver’s favorite state. Against West Virginia, connected on seven of 11 attempts for a career-best 213 yards, including two touch down throws.

Looking back over Notre Dame’s season, the team’s highlights seem to be Tony Rice’s highlights. Who can forget Rice’s 55-yard throw from the depths of USC’s end zone to the “Rocket”? And the 65-yard run around USC’s No. 7, Mark Carrier, in the second quarter will be forever etched in the minds of Notre Dame faithful. And, one can’t forget the vintage Rice 31-yard scramble on the first play of the Fiesta Bowl. So, there it is. The 1988 Moose Krause award recipient has been revealed and about the only thing that it will surrender its mantlepiece position in the 1989 Heisman Trophy, maybe.

The Blue Demons of DePaul put an end to the softball team’s seven-game winning streak by taking a doubleheader from the Irish. Notre Dame slipped to 29-22-1 after losing both games.

The Irish offense was not turned on in game one; only three of the runs were earned. Irish pitching committed two costly errors in the second inning and the Demons put four runs on the scoreboard. Linn’s record against the Irish slumped to 0-2. Earlier in the season, she was injured and suffered a 9-1 beating at the hands of DePaul.

The Irish defense was not operating in full gear and the players could only muster four hits in the first game. DePaul pitcher Sharon Coleman effectively shut down the Irish. The Demons were sloppy on defense, making four errors, but Notre Dame was unable to capitalize and never scored. "We were disappointed with the first game," said Head Coach Brian Boulac. "Their pitching gave us a lot of trouble, but the important thing is that we are moving forward." "Defensively, we made some errors in the second inning that really cost us," he continued. "The second inning was a nightmare."

The second game did not start out with much promise for the Irish. With senior Barb Mooney pitching, DePaul rapped out three hits for two runs. Mooney settled down and retired the next seven batters she faced until the fourth inning, when DePaul added two more runs to take a 4-4 lead. Notre Dame had a big opportunity to score in the sixth inning but with the bases loaded and no outs, Laurie Sommerlad hit into a double play and Rachel Crossen grounded out for the third outs. The Irish saw two more opportunities in the seventh, once again loading the bases. With two out, pinch hitter Tammy Goodwin knocked a single into left field, driving in a run. But Goodwin was tagged out in a run down between first and second while a run scored for a 4-4 final.

Mooney pitched a respectable game, with four earned runs on six hits. The Irish offense managed six hits overall, with freshman Ruth Kimak hitting 3 for 5. Kimak was 3 for 7 on the day. Boulac was happy with the way his team played against DePaul (38-18), one of the best teams in the Midwest. "We stayed in contention in both games," Boulac said. "We played a good softball team. This is the type of team that we have to play and beat, and we’ll get stronger and better." Notre Dame will not get a break in their schedule until the start of the season on Thursday. The Irish continue at home today against North Central College at 4 p.m. NCC, another Chicago based team, has the potential to give the Irish some trouble. "Fundamentally, it’s a sound team," Boulac said. "They have an outstanding pitcher who has carried them through their first-round series. It will be a good challenge."

On Thursday, Notre Dame will face Valparaiso, who split a doubleheader with the Irish earlier this year.

MacInnis, Flames shutout Blackhawks, 3-0 in Calgary

Associated Press

CALGARY — Al MacInnis assisted on goals by Jamie Macoun and Joe Nieuwendyk and led a defense that held Chicago to nine shots Thursday night with a 3-0 victory over the Blackhawks.

The game was every bit the mismatch that the teams’ regular-season records suggested it would be. Calgary, which poured 39 shots on Blackhawks goalie Alain Chevrier and Darren Pang, led the league with 117. Chicago’s 66 points were the fewest of the 16 playoff teams and the fewest of any Stanley Cup semifinalist since Pittsburgh’s 64 in 1979, when teams played four fewer games than the current 80 games.

The Blackhawks never tested Flames goalie Mike Vernon, who made 19 saves in recording his third shutout of the playoffs. Vernon was aided by a defense that allowed 23 regular-season goals, second best in the league.

Game 2 is Thursday night here. Seeking its second trip to the Stanley Cup championship series, Calgary is 9-0-1 against Chicago since last losing to the Blackhawks on Feb. 23, 1986. The Flames have won seven straight against Chicago at the Saddledome dating back to March 22, 1987.

The Flames, who beat Vancouver in the seventh game of their first-round series and then swept Los Angeles out of the Smythe Division finals, have won six straight games.

Chicago, which didn’t gain a post-season berth until the season’s final game, had won eight of 11 games in upsetting Detroit and St. Louis in the Norris playoffs, as Chevrier played brilliantly. He was outstanding against Vancouver, making 32 saves before being replaced by Pang with 11:11 to go.

Take off with low fares.
Female Athlete and Coach of the Year

Karen Robinson (So.)
Robinson, a 5'9" point guard, led the Irish in scoring with 12.5 point per game and in assists with 184 in 32 games.

Janice Hynes (Sr.)
The senior captained the women's fencing team and finished sixth in the NCAA with an overall season record of 30-6 (.833 winning percentage).

CeCe Cahill (So.)
The sophomore led the Notre Dame women's tennis team with a 7-4 record in open NCAA and 12-4 overall in the No. 1 spot.

Male Athlete of the Year

Dan Pellier (Jr.)
An academic All-American as a sophomore, Pellier is having a banner year on the field. He has led the Irish through the 1989 season with a .453 batting average, a .520 on-base percentage and is slugging .747. He has reached base in all but two of 47 games, scoring 54 runs. He has struck out only seven times in 170 at-bats and has a .988 fielding percentage.

Ron Markeszich (Sr.)
He beat the NCAA qualifying time in the 10,000 meters by 33 seconds, setting a Notre Dame record and running the fastest time in the past two years. He also finished eighth in the team competition at the NCAA cross country meet as the Irish took ninth place in the country.

Waller

Lambert led the Notre Dame volleyball team to its first NCAA Tournament appearance ever and its third consecutive 30-win season.

Sixteen where they eventually fell to the then fourth-ranked Illini before finishing the season ranked 15th—the team's highest ranking ever.

She finished among the nation's best blockers, was chosen as the team's MVP this season, made the AVCA's All-Region team and only missed being Notre Dame's first volleyball All-American because her statistics were never delivered to the NCAA.

With or without the All-American title, though, Waller's skills have not been overlooked as several teams have expressed interest in recruiting her to play overseas.

"After missing All-American, this totally lifts my spirits," said Waller, "but I'm content with the improvements I've made since freshman year and if I decide to play in France later I'll have new goals to strive for.

Always the optimist, Waller is satisfied with waiting out future plans and passing out the credit for her achievements to everyone but herself.

"I owe everything to my fellow players," said Waller. "The team really deserves the award, not me, because an individual is nothing without a team and without my teammates I could have never gotten to where I am today."

It took Galileo 16 years to master the universe.
You have one night.

It seems unfair. The genius had all that time. While you have a few short hours to learn your sun spots from your satellites before the dreaded astronomy exam.

On the other hand, Vivarin gives you the definite advantage. It helps keep you awake and mentally alert for hours. Safely and conveniently. So even when the subject matters dull, your mind will stay razor sharp.

If Galileo had used Vivarin, maybe he could have mastered the solar system faster, too.

self on the same level as those past Irish legends.

When asked what it felt like to be named head coach at Notre Dame, Holtz once responded:

"I'm 5-feet, 10-inches, weigh 132 pounds, was not a good ath­lete, speak with a lisp and appear afflicted with a combina­tion of scurvy and beriberi. What do you think it feels like to be named coach of Notre Dame?"

Yes, Holtz is humble. That's more noticeable than his physique, lisp or lack of ath­letic ability.

He's also established himself as one of the top coaches in the nation--no matter what he says. "I want to see everything, and he has an ability to see the perfect picture of what the problem is in preparing for a game," says former Irish co­ach Ara Parseghian, who calls Holtz the Friday before every game. "Every week his total concentration is on nothing more than the next opponent."

His work with the 1988 Fight­sing Irish already has earned him Coach of the Year honors from Football News and CBS Sports.

Of course, Holtz would not name himself as high as Coach of the Week. "I didn't come here to be a hero or to prove I could coach; I already knew I couldn't," he quips.

"I thought Lou would have Notre Dame back in a major bowl after three seasons, and he did it in 1987," said Parseg­hian after the Irish earned the Cotton Bowl bid with their 8-3 season in 1987. "He proved me wrong, but none of his ac­complishments surprise me."

It did not take long for the Notre Dame players to realize why Parseghian was such a staunch supporter of Holtz for the head coaching job.

"He (Holtz) never says, 'Well, you can be beaten if you don't do this and this,'" says tailback Mark Green. "He always says, 'We can beat them if we do this and this.'"

Holtz does not watch practice from the film tower; he gets right in on most plays, and is known for giving his quarter­backs a hard time in practice to prepare them for the pres­sure of game day.

"There's no question who's in charge," Rice says. "Here's this little old man who has con­trol over me. His voice really carries."

For three years at Notre Dame, Holtz's main rule has been winning.

And this season it was en­forced to perfection.

Wish your friends a happy birthday with Observer advertising.

DETROIT'S MORRIS IN 0-6 SLUMP, OFF TO WORST START IN HIS CAREER

Associated Press

SEATTLE -- The '6' looks misplaced, like someone put it on the wrong side of the ledger opposite Jack Morris' name. But the only thing misplaced is Morris' ability to win. The winningest major league pitcher in the 1980s is still looking for his first victory of 1989.

Morris, 0-6, began the year with 156 wins in the decade. He is the only pitcher with at least 15 wins in each of the last seven seasons. But this season has been a disaster.

"For Morris to be 0-6 is like a .300 hitter going 0 for 36," said Seattle's Alvin Davis, who drove in the winning run with a seventh-inning sacrifice fly as the Mariners defeated the Tigers 5-4 Monday night.

"Sometimes, you get a start like that." Seattle had 10 hits off Morris in 6 2-3 innings and overcame a 3-1 deficit with one run in the fifth and three in the seventh.

Seattle had 10 hits off Morris in 6 2-3 innings and overcame a 3-1 deficit with one run in the fifth and three in the seventh.

Davis, who led Seattle with a single, double and game­winning RBI, has lost none of his respect for the veteran right-hander.

"He mixed his pitches well early and had good pop on his fastball. He showed us his forkball early, and that's what we got on later," Davis said.

Morris, who is off to the worst start in his career, became the first Tiger pitcher since Ted Gray in 1963 to lose his first six starts of the season.

The pilgrimage of Jack Morris to the 1980s, has yet to get a win in 1989, as he is off to the worst start in his career. He is 0-6 thus far in the season.

The Observer
Rice, Peltier, Waller take Moose Krause awards

By BOB MITCHELL
Sports Writer

Move over Fiesta Bowl MVP Trophy, the three covers of Sports Illustrated, and the North South Team MVP Trophy. There is a new award on the mantlepiece for Anthony Eugene Rice—it is three covers of Sports Illustrated and the 1988 Moose Krause Male Athlete of the Year Award won by The Observer sports staff.

Yes, five months after Notre Dame rightfully claimed its No. 1 spot in collegiate football, quarterback Tony Rice can add another award to his resume.

And who would have thought this from a quarterback who lined up under the guard instead of the center in his first major collegiate game appearance. The 1986 Award winner who never “thought I would be at college” joins the like of Notre Dame folk legends, Tim Brown, David Megargee and Allen Pinkett. I bet you never thought you would capture this award, did you Tony? Yes, Tony dreams do come true.

Why did The Observer choose Rice? Why don’t we start off with the those reasons that did not play a role. Reason No. 1—Not because Rice keeps chewing gum in his socks during every game. Reason No. 2—Not because Tony Rice does not care for ducks like his teammate Chris Zorich.

"Before games there are cups of chewing gum in the locker room, and I try to be the first one to the gum," said Rice. "I am a gum freak. I chew gum and meditate before every game."

"Tony dreams do come true. Yes, I used to think Valparaiso was just some school in Indiana. But although Holtz now has pulled off the same feat Rockne and Leavy accomplished in 1919, winning the national championship—"I don’t know what will."

When he was chosen to replace Gerry Faust at the Irish helm after the 1985 season, Holtz met with a team that had little confidence after its 5-7-1 loss at Miami. In three years, he turned it into a team that recorded the first 12-0 season in Notre Dame history.

Holtz is a disciplinarian and a comedian. But most of all, Holtz is a winner. "If somebody had an assignment to mold a Knute Rockne and a Frank Leahy, they couldn't have done a better job than Lou Holtz," says Athletic Director Dick Rosenthal. "He is Notre Dame.

But although Holtz now has pulled off the same feat Rockne and Leavy accomplished in 1919, winning the national championship—you’ll never hear him put himself out in the record books."

Holtz wins but Murphy, Grace, Lambert follow

To a group of freshmen in the winter of 1986, Lou Holtz was the man who was making them wake up at 6 a.m. to work out. "I wish he'd just tell me what it takes to win football games," senior Mark Green said of the workouts that soon became known as "puking all over the place."

"Those days were hell," Green continued.

"Guys puking all over the place. If that’s not going to bring a team together, I don't know what will."

When he was chosen to replace Gerry Faust at the Irish helm after the 1985 season, Holtz met with a team that had little confidence after its 5-7-1 loss at Miami. In three years, he turned it into a team that recorded the first 12-0 season in Notre Dame history.

Holtz is a disciplinarian and a comedian. But most of all, Holtz is a winner. "If somebody had an assignment to mold a Knute Rockne and a Frank Leahy, they couldn't have done a better job than Lou Holtz," says Athletic Director Dick Rosenthal. "He is Notre Dame.

But although Holtz now has pulled off the same feat Rockne and Leavy accomplished in 1919, winning the national championship—you’ll never hear him put himself out in the record books."

In their heparin, Murphy and Grace, Lambert followed Holtz and did well in the 1989 season.

"I just feel honored to get the award with so many greatness, let's here," said Waller. "It even seems funny to be mentioned on the same page with people like Lou Holtz and Tony Rice."

"I'm just a little ol' volleyball player," Waller said.

Good riddance and Go Redskins.

Opponents deserve accolades too

Peltier, Markezich, Heck close in running

Chalk up one more accolade for perpetually peppy senior volleyball player, Mary Kay Waller.

The 4-6 middle blocker from Lawrence, Kan., whose steady play—and smiles—led the Notre Dame volleyball team to its best season ever, has been chosen this year's Moose Krause Female Athlete of the Year recipient by The Observer's sports staff.

Waller, known more for her skill at the net than for intimidating scowls and a volatile temperament, made her mark on Notre Dame's squad by cheerfully hitting, blocking and serving her way into the record books.

This season she led the team—the North South Conference—with a hitting percentage of .383 on 161 kills and 1.7 total blocks per game. She recorded a hitting percentage over .400 on six occasions this year, had 12 kills on 13 attempts and no errors for a school-record .323 hitting percentage and was named to the all-tournament teams four times—at the Westvaco-Michiana Invitational, the Holiday Inn University Park Classic, the Saluki Invitational and the Golden Dome Classic, where she earned MVP honors.

And Waller leaves as the team's all-time leading blocker, after recording 144 block assists and 186 block solos while topping the books with service aces as well, tallying 116.

So have these accomplishments gone to Waller's head? No, far from it.

"I just feel honored to get the award with so many greatness, let's here," said Waller. "It even seems funny to be mentioned on the same page with people like Lou Holtz and Tony Rice."

"I'm just a little ol' volleyball player," Waller said. "I will think Waller had graduated from the Holtz Notre Dame self-deprecation."

But Waller can afford to let the record speak for itself.

Since becoming part of Irish head coach Art Lambert's first recruiting class and finishing her freshman year 12-21, Wal­ler has helped propel the Irish.
