Hugo leaves at least 14 dead

Associated Press
SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Hurricane Hugo's 125 mph winds pounded Puerto Rico Monday after ripping across other islands in the eastern Caribbean, leaving at least 14 people dead and tens of thousands homeless.

The National Weather Service said Hugo, the most powerful storm to hit the region this decade, slammed into the eastern tip of Puerto Rico and skirted the northern coast before nearing the west-northwest toward the edge of the Dominican Republic and the Bahamas.

Late Monday, Puerto Rico Gov. Fernandez Colón said he would ask President Bush to declare the island a disaster area "after a tour showed at least 27,000 people were made homeless by the storm.

Colón and Police Superintendent Ismael Betancourt said there were no immediate reports of hurricane-related deaths but that poor communications across the island prevented any definitive reports on damages or casualties.

Hugo is expected to hit the northeastern coast of the Dominican Republic, which shares the island of Hispaniola with Haiti. Civil defense authorities in the Dominican Republic declared a state of emergency and the country's four international airports were closed.

Rob Sheets, director of the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla., said Monday evening it's still too early to tell if Hugo will strike the U.S. mainland.

"About two days from now, three days from now, it'll be out in the Bahamas, and about Wednesday, we'll be making decisions as to whether or not we need any (hurricane) watches or warnings for anywhere along the U.S. coast," he said.

Sheets said forecasting models indicate the hurricane will travel in a northwesterly direction for several hours and then "our best hurricane computer projection models indicate that it will turn back" toward the U.S. mainland.

At 9 p.m. EDT, the center of the hurricane was near latitude 19.8 degrees north and longitude 67.1 west, about 110 miles northwest of San Juan, according to the National Weather Service in Florida.

Almost 40 companies to be represented at Industry Day

By JANICE O'LEARY
Staff Reporter

Industry Day, sponsored by the Joint Engineering Council (JEC) and the Society of Women Engineers (SWE), is being held on Sept. 20.

According to Collene Templin, vice president of SWE, Industry Day consists of two parts. In the first half of the day there will be a job fair held on the first and second floors of the Fitzpatrick Hall of Engineering from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The fair provides students with the opportunity to give companies their resumes. Almost 40 companies will be represented, more than any other year, Templin said.

The job fair will be "focusing on engineering students, but everybody's welcome," she explained.

The second portion of Industry Day includes a mixer at 6 p.m. following by a banquet at 6:30 p.m. in the Joyce ACC.

These events are solely for engineers as registration was required, Templin said.

Guest speaker, Joe Rancourt, of Boston's Bancroft Consulting, will talk on "Creative vs. Linear Thinking." Also attending are Dean Marley and Dean Michel.

Students are seated with a preferred company related to their major, Templin said. One hundred twenty students are expected to attend the banquet.

There will be one company per table, usually 2 or 3 representatives from that company, and approximately 5 or 6 students.

This arrangement allows the students to get a closer look at certain companies and to discover what they are looking for, according to Templin.

The companies represent all fields of engineering, and also a few outside of engineering. They include: IBM, Ford, General Motors, Proctor & Gamble, and others.

ND male shot near bar

South Bend teen will face trial

By KELLEY TUTHILL
Student Staff Reporter

Anthony Darden, 19, of South Bend, is scheduled to go to trial next month facing charges of a Class C felony for allegedly shooting a Notre Dame student on June 24.

Darden is going to trial because of a joint investigation between Notre Dame Security and the South Bend Police Department.

According to Charles Hurley, assistant director of Security, the shooting occurred at 1:25 a.m. in front of Bridget McGuire's Filling Station. Two students, Michael Huffman and Steven Crounse, drove separate cars to Bridget's that evening.

Hurley said Crounse arrived at Bridget's first and as he went inside he said he noticed a large group across the street. According to Hurley, Crounse "did not think much of it at the time."

Huffman arrived a moment later and said one member of the group threw a bottle at him. Crounse came out of Bridget's and found a group of 15 around Huffman, said Hurley.

Two other students were with Huffman and Crounse and they went into Bridget's to call the police, said Hurley.

Crounse assisted Huffman, said Hurley, and punches were thrown. "One individual pulled out a handgun and fired what we believe to be four shots. One missed Huffman and Crounse was shot three times. He was shot once in the leg and twice in the stomach," said Hurley.

Shortly after police arrived the crowd began to disperse, said Hurley. He said Crounse was taken to the hospital and police searched for the suspects.

Hurley said he spoke to Tom Treanor of the South Bend Police Department's homicide division. Hurley said that although Treanor is a competent investigator, he is very busy with other cases.

Hurley said he spoke to Treanor and was able to essentially take over the case. Hurley said Dennis Neveur of Notre Dame Security worked on the case as well.

"We felt it was very important to get the case solved before the students returned," said Hurley. Hurley said he was optimistic about solving the case because there was a large number of suspects.

As this was a violent crime to an individual and one we believed to be unprovoked, we wanted to be sure the people responsible were charged," said Hurley.

He said the investigation involved working in the local neighborhoods and developing suspects. Whereas there was a large number of youths involved Hurley said it was difficult to pin down who actually was responsible for the shooting.

"We did not have all of the concrete facts to go on," said Hurley.

Hurley said he was able to use the records of the South Bend Police Department. He said the detail to the investigation came when Crime Stoppers received three different calls about the crime.

The male who was charged as an adult and Hurley said a Class C felony could result in up to 5 years in prison and a $10,000 fine. Three years can be added for aggravating circumstances.

The others in the group who ranged in ages from 14-17 have been assigned.
A woman construction worker in Cairns, Australia filed a lawsuit Monday claiming she was fired because her good looks distracted the men on the job. She said she had been fired for having sex on the job. "It is my fault? I shouldn't get the sack because men can't keep their minds on the job," said 24-year-old Tanya Graovac, who was fired by the City of Cairns Human Rights and Equal Opportunities Commission. Ms. Graovac, who was dismissed in July, told the court that she had "special attitudes" and suggestive remarks from male workers but that she was not prepared to accept being fired for being too good-looking.

One of Italy's leading museums has called the external auditor to halt an invasion of woodworms, officials said Monday. The Borghese Gallery, located in Villa Borghese Park near the Piazza del Popolo, will be closed Sept. 26 to Oct. 10 for extensive woodworm extermination, said Luigi Conti of the Ministry of Culture. Actor Efrem Zimbalist Jr. of "The FBI" television series, tested Monday in Charleston, S.C., N.C. that the FBI board of direc­tors, on which he once served, was little more than a rubber stamp for television evangelist Jim Bakker. "It was called a board of directors, but at no time did it operate like one," said Zimbalist. Asked if he recalled approving a $390,000 bonus for Bakker, Zimbalist said, "Oh no, oh no."

Zsa Zsa Gabor kept her lip buttoned Monday regarding her trial on a charge of slapping a policeman, telling a beat reporter that further comments about the case could lead her into "trouble under gagging order," Miss Gabor told re­porters at Beverly Hills Municipal Court, where her trial began its second week. She has been suffering a mild respira­tory condition," Brown said. Mrs. Bush was "resting comfort­ably" Monday afternoon, Brown said.

‘No kickbacks’ with Mich. tix

By SARA MARLEY
Senior Staff Reporter

The results of a Student Union Board investigation into alleged misconduct during the distribution of student tickets for the football game against Michigan were announced at Monday’s Student Senate meeting.

SUB manager Sala Singh concluded that kickbacks were offered in return for identification cards to enter in the lottery ticket, as was alleged in a letter which appeared in The Observer on Sept. 12.

The letter’s writer alleged that SUB members entered i.d.’s into the lottery with the intent of giving kickbacks to the card’s holder should the student win tickets.

According to Student Body President Matt Breslin, “No kickbacks were planned. Approximately ten i.d.’s were entered without the person actually coming into the office. None of the tickets won. It was an unfortunate incident, but it was not as serious as the incident two years ago.”

Singh also said that the hotel portion of the ridrop package had to be cancelled due to a communication with the hotel. Those tickets were sold on a first-come, first-served basis and the students who purchased the package were provided with a game ticket and bus trip to Ann Arbor.

Thomas Halischak, academic advisor and concurrent assistant professor of English at the University of Notre Dame, has been appointed executive officer and coordinator of the Gender Studies Program in the College of Arts and Letters.

Halischak graduated from Bowling Green University and obtained a master’s degree there before earning a Ph. D. in English from Notre Dame in 1982. Her dissertation topic was the history of feminist literary criticism. From 1982 to 1984 she was assistant professor of English at the University of Colorado in Colorado Springs, teaching courses on women’s literature and serving on women’s studies and women’s-lecture committees.

She returned to Notre Dame in 1984 to teach courses on gender in literature and to serve as an academic advisor. In 1987, Halischak served as moderator for a special lecture series titled “Feminist Criticism: The Literary Virtues of Re-reading.”

The College of Arts and Letters’ Gender Studies Program was instituted last year. In addition to sponsoring a variety of lectures and seminars examining gender in societal relationships, the program is responsible for a 15-credit interdisciplinary Gender Studies concentration which draws faculty and course offerings from most departments in the College.

We are family!

Notre Dame has proclaimed academic year 1989-90 to be the YEAR OF THE FAMILY. What family? Yours? "No," Ward and June and Wally and the Beaver, or Eddie's family (did he really have one?)?

The stated purpose of the Year of the Family is to focus and reflect on the family from a number of perspectives, including communication, celebration, deliberation, education and action.

One of the most quickly developing new areas of growth in the mental health field is the area of family systems. It can be particularly relevant to dysfunctional and shame-based family systems.

Our first view of life and our frame of reference for the world comes through what's being taught, shared and encouraged to develop what the field calls "shame:" the lack of "clearly marked ego boundaries." That means members have the right to appropriately say "no" as well as "yes" without being shamed, to the well being of each other member's growth to full, functional family doesn't exist. Maybe not anywhere.

It's not hard for anyone to see a family anywhere," said Hurley. He said the suspect probably got the gun in a burglary or through the black market. "There's far too many hundreds of thousands of people in particular the possession of the wrong people." Hurley said he does not think the incident was gang-related.

Hesburgh helps expose South African murder

By BRADLEY GALKO Staff Reporter

President Emeritus Father Theodore Hesburgh exposed a secret murder by the South African-backed police of that nation’s spy working on a commission that investigated political conditions in the southwest African country of Namibia in August.

"The really big thing we did," said Hesburgh, "was put the finger on the Kevoorst." The Kevoorst is the South African-backed commando troop until, explained Hesburgh, that is part of the Namibian police force.

According to Hesburgh, they severely killed a former leader of the South West African People’s Organization (the leading opposition party in Namibia in the middle of the night.

The arrest and incarceration of the Kevoorst was largely the result of the actions of the Commission on Independence for Namibia, of which Hesburgh is a member. The commission includes other such dignitaries as Congressman Howard Wolpe (D-Mich.), former ambassador to the United Nations Donald Henry, and former attorney general and secretary of defense Elliot Richardson.

The Commission is a project of the Lawyers’ Committee for Civil Rights Under Law, which is Washington D.C.-based group of lawyers, explained Hesburgh. He was one of 12 observers drawn from the commission who traveled to Namibia in August to assist the United Nations and Namibia in their progress toward the establishment of a freely elected government this November.

Hesburgh said the commission is attempting to resolve the "problems of an election, a constituent assembly after the election, and the writing of a constitution."

"We traveled the whole country," said Hesburgh, "and visited anyone who had any thing to do with this election." Political parties, local officials, U.N. officials, unions, media, and local residents were among the groups that Hesburgh said the observers spoke with.

"The big problem... was to get these people (Namibian citizen registered because 60 percent of them are illiterate)," said Hesburgh. He said a further obstacle to voter registration was a government requirement of birth or baptismal certificates for registration.

"These people weren’t born in hospitals," explained Hesburgh, "they were born out in the bush," but he added that pressure from the commission caused the government to real real the birth certificate requirement.

"To get all those people registered is a big job," said Hesburgh. However, he felt that 70 to 80 percent could be registered through the commission’s use of mobile registration facilities.

Hesburgh explained that the job of the commission is two-fifths. "First, to get everyone registered and that’s largely been done," he said, "second, to get a free election." He added that there are a lot of obstacles fighting them... "but I suspect we’ll get some of those changed."

"To help insure a free election," Hesburgh said, "we insisted (to U.N. and local government officials) that both political parties be there all day long during the voting process and present when the votes are counted."

He said, "We also insisted on a separate verification and counting (of votes)." Verification is done by matching voter thumb prints due to high illiteracy, explained Hesburgh, a very lengthy process. However the initial counting of votes could be done in each voting district, he explained, thus speeding the process and cutting down on the likelihood of tampering of the results, adding credibility to the election.

"For more than a decade, Namibia (also known as South West Africa) has been the scene of a war between the occupying forces of South Africa and guerrillas of the South-West Africa People’s Organization (SWAPO)."

South Africa’s occupation and administration of the country has been declared illegal by both the U.N. and the International Court of Justice. Currently, a U.N.-supervised cease fire is in place.

I love New York credit card supported by assemblyman

Associated Press

BUFFALO, N.Y. — When shopworn "charge it," a state lawmaker wants them to say "I love New York" at the same time.

An "I Love New York" credit card could raise money for the state, boost state pride and promote tourism, says Assemblyman Robin Schimminger, who is promoting the idea.

The card would work in the same way any major credit card operates and would have competitive interest rates. But the cards would be embossed with different tourist attractions said Schimminger.

"For example, a card issued in Niagara Falls would have a picture of the famous falls, and a card issued in New York City would have the Empire State Building, Schimminger said.

"This is a way to raise millions of dollars in revenue without taxing taxes," he said Monday.

Ky. teen takes classmates hostage

Associated Press

McKEE, Ky. — An armed teen-ager apparently acting out the scenario to a Stephen King novel stalked into King novel stalked into a high school classroom and took 11 classmates hostage Monday.

After a daylong standoff, he released them all and was taken into custody, police said.

The hostage-taker was identified by police as Dustin Pierce, a 17-year-old senior at Jackson County High School who was described as a good student.

Police said they were unsure what charges would be lodged against Pierce. He was taken to a juvenile holding center in the Clay County Jail in nearby Manchester. McKee is a town of 230 people about 50 miles southeast of Lexington in the Appalachian foothills.

"He was unbalanced," said state police Detective Bob Stephenson, who negotiated with Pierce throughout the day at Jackson County High School.

More funds for education unlikely Governors seek more 'flexibility' in spending

Associated Press
WASHINGTON — Most governers are not expecting a commitment from President Bush to shell out more federal dollars for the nation's schools, two leaders of the National Governors' Association said Monday.

NGA President Terry
Branstad of Iowa and New Mexico Gov. Gary Carruthers, chairman of the Education Commission of the States, said most of the 50 governors attending the education summit next week in Charlottesville, Va., will seek mainly to loosen the stranglehold of federal rules and regulations. Branstad and Carruthers are Republicans.

Admitting that money is a sensitive issue that few can agree on, Branstad said, "I think there is a feeling that there is considerable amount of money being spent on education. We want to spend it as wisely as possible."

"We want to make sure that when the federal government does provide money to states and local school districts it provides enough flexibility to meet the needs of those local students in the schools," he said.

Branstad said Bush already has indicated a "willingness to do some more in helping 'at-risk' kids and programs like the Head Start programs."

"The main focus of this will not be on additional dollars but there will be discussions about it," Branstad said of the summit. "There are some governors who do feel strongly about it and other governors feel that is not a major area."

"I'm not coming to the summit to ask the president of the United States for more fedeeral dollars," Carruthers said.
"I think that's wrong. I think there's a lot of things that can be done without asking him for those federal dollars."

"I'm certainly not asking the president to reduce those fedeeral dollars he say now, either," added Carruthers. "But there are things that can be done with deregulation that can free up money that can be more properly utilized in the states."

For example, Carruthers suggested that Medicaid, the government health care program for the poor, "become the principle responsibility of the federal government and education continue to be the principle responsibility of the state government."

According to Branstad, "Our hope is that the summit will help us focus attention of this nation on the critical issues of education and will help us draw the support of the American people for some of the most important and pressing chalenges that we face."

"The key to the future will be goals that we establish in this coming year," he added.

SUB clarifies football ticket controversy

Dear Editor:
The Student Union Board lasses its daily decisions on a single criterion: what will best suit the needs and wants of the Notre Dame student body. In the case of the Michigan ticket lottery, conducted last week by our organization, we believed that the students were fulfilling this criterion. The lottery was spread over two days to ensure that all students would be able to enter; ticket numbers were recorded, and student ID was required; and finally, if chosen, the student would be required to pick up the tickets in person with their ID and ticket stub. In light of the comments expressed over the view of students and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, we encourage the actions of the individual to be respected.

retrospect, our system did allow a loophole that we did not foresee, and we sincerely apologize for any inconvenience we may have caused.

As we review our procedure for the lottery, we identified the primary problem as being a misalignment of equity. The procedure was implemented and adjusted to accommodate the interests of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and honestly as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the following: Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, Executive News Editor, Viewpoint Editor, Sports Editor, Accout Editor, Photo Editor, Saint Mary's Editor, Commentaries, letters, and columns are available to all members of the community and the free expression of varying opinions on campus, through letters, is encouraged.

It takes two to raise a child

Dear Editor:
The misogynous editorial cartoon which appeared in Sept. 14, "You’ve come a long way baby... and so has your baby" is disgusting. It blames working women for the deplorable situations of latchkey children and those with alcohol and drug problems. It shows women awkwardly fulfilling their role in society. It suggests the place of a woman is at home while the men make decisions and are the breadwinners.

Amazingly, the figure of the father is carelessly absent. Have we forgotten it takes two to make and raise a child? Men and women are equally responsible for the well being of their children. It is only when we understand that men have to participate actively in child rearing that we are going to correct the injustices perpetuated against our most precious resources: the children.

Recycling preserves nature's beauty

Dear Editor:
The opening of the 1989-1990 school year represents the start of a whole new tradition at Notre Dame—recycling. Thanks to the efforts of dedicated students and the support of the University administration, collection bins for aluminum cans have been placed in all dormitories and most classroom buildings on campus. Only the start of a program which will eventually collect newspapers, glass, cardboard, computer paper, and plastics, this program relies on your continued cooperation for its success.
The containers for cans are on all floors of most campus buildings. Please place only empty aluminum cans in these bins. A student representative will soon be available in every dorm to answer questions, promote your dorm's participation, and coordinate all volunteers. But you don’t have to volunteer to help us out. All we ask is that you walk a few extra steps to the nearest collection bin. Help maintain the cardboard containers, and be considerate of the efforts of your fellow students.
The entire Notre Dame community can take pride in this program for it signifies a strong commitment to promoting resource conservation and social responsibility. As politicians and world leaders come to grips with looming environmental problems, such as global warming, the shrinking of the ozone layer, the CFC's, chemical dumping, and our national problem of landfill shortages, we as concerned individuals can 'do our part'. For instance, recycled aluminum takes 95 percent less energy to produce, and whole forests can be saved through recycling paper products. In 1986 enough energy was saved through recycling aluminum to light Pittsburgh for six months, yet enough aluminum is thrown away in one year to replace an entire commercial airplane fleet. By recycling our waste we can reduce the emissions of greenhouse gases, thus becoming part of the solution to a problem that threatens to wreak havoc with climates, growing areas, economies, and third world development.

Remember this is our recycling program, one that is establishing an important tradition with implications far beyond our campus. Your response so far has been fantastic and we are optimistic about the future of the "Recycle" Irish"—our campus wide recycling program. In the weeks to come we will keep you posted on where to bring other recyclable for collection as we progress. Till then, be happy and join the "Recycle" Irish.

ND women's golf places in top 10 of ISU Invitational

BY JOHANNA KELLY
Sports Writer

The Irish proved as good as their word this past weekend as they placed 10th out of 20 teams at the Illinois State Women's Golf Invitational this weekend.

"We finished about where I thought we would," said Irish coach Tom Hanlon.

After the first round on Saturday, Indiana University led with a score of 315, the hosting team, Illinois State, held second place at 328, and the Irish earned the ninth slot at 343.

In final action on Sunday, Indiana took first place with a team total of 620 and Northern Illinois University placed second with 646. The Irish finished with a score of 684 and took 10th place.

"The scores were very high overall," remarked Hanlon.

In the individual competition, the Irish fared well with Roberta Bryer placing 34th with a score of 169, Allison Wojnas taking 99th with 170, Kathy Phares placing 47th with 172, Joanne Kerkez taking 50th with 179, and Heidi Hansen finishing 58th with 181.

Individual honors went to Debbie Leue of Indiana University, who scored 153, as the defeated teammate Shannon Hardesty in a tie-breaker.

The Irish’s next match will take place in Indianapolis and the Irish are confident that they will do well.

"I'm pretty much pleased with our performance this weekend," Hanlon said.

The victory reduced Chicago's magic number to eight. Any combination of Chicago victories or St. Louis defeats totalling eight will give the Cubs the division crown. The second-place Cardinals trail the Cubs by five games. Montreal is fourth, seven games back.

Saint Mary's tennis finishes second in own invitational

BY CHRIS BACON
Sports Writer

The Saint Mary's tennis team placed second overall in this weekend's Saint Mary's Invitational.

The Belles ended the tournament with a total of 37 overall points, receiving four second-place, four third-place and one fifth-place finishes. Butler University placed first overall with 51 total points. Of the seven teams that competed, Saint Mary's was the only division three team.

"I felt that we played very well in this tournament. The teams provided good competition. We are a NAIA-3 and NCAA-3 team. The rest are NCAA-1 schools and all of their girls are on scholarship. Because we did so well, it indicates that we can do well against other schools that don't have as strong programs," said Belles Coach Charlene Szajko.

"I think it's great to play Division-I schools in the tournament. It gives us great practice," said junior co-captain Sarah Mayer.

In the singles competition, senior co-captain Jennifer Block placed second in the number-one singles category, after losing a close third set. 6-1, 2-6, 5-7, to Butler University.

Mayer placed second in the number-two singles competition after losing 2-6, 6-7 (7-9 tie breaker).

In doubles competition, Block and Mayer defeated Akron in a pro-set, 8-6. They placed third in the number-one doubles category.

Koscielecki and McDonald placed third in the number-two doubles category after losing in straight sets to Butler, 1-6, 3-6.

Mayer and Kloepfer placed second in the number-three doubles category after losing to Akron in straight sets, 4-6, 1-6.

"The girls did very well and they played up to their potential. We are a very young team, but we have the talent and I think we can go far with this team," said Szajko.

The Saint Mary's soccer team extended its winning record to 5-0-0, after defeating Tri-State University, 8-0, and Wheaton College, 1-0, in last week's action.

The team headed to Tri-State University on September 13 for a match that belonged solely to the Belles. Saint Mary's offense continually challenged the Tri-State goalie, getting off 21 shots, eight of which produced goals.

"We exhibited superiority the entire game," said senior Mollie Meehan, one of seven players to score in the Belles victory. Sophomore Kelly Freligh had two, freshman April Brok, junior Trish Troester, senior Kathy Revane and sophomores Janet Libbing each had one. Greer Gilliland had a goal and an assist.

Saturday's game proved to be more of a challenge as Wheaton College came into town with a perfect record and the two undefeated teams battled for the right to stay that way. In the end, it was Saint Mary's coming out on top as freshman Kristin Crowley blasted home the winning goal in the last three minutes of the game, with the assist from Trish Troester.

"It was an evenly matched game," said Troester, "but I feel that we dominated and it showed right at the end of the game."

The Belles look to continue their winning streak on Wednesday, September 20 against Hope College, at home. On Saturday, September 23, the team will travel to the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee in hopes of spoiling the UWM homecoming game.

ND men’s cross country downs Georgetown 33-22

BY MARY GARINO
Special to the Observer

The Notre Dame men’s cross country team proved that they could still run with the top teams in the nation by defeating Georgetown 33-22 on Saturday in rainy weather in Maryland.

Notre Dame apparently did not make an effort. Coach Joe Piane and Donahue lloyas did not put up a three.

Through the first half of the race, three Notre Dame runners ran in a group with four Georgia runners. At this point, the race was up for grabs but the Irish had a strong second half to take the top three spots.

The Notre Dame men’s soccer team climbed above the 500 mark with its third straight win Sunday, blanking the Marquette Warriors 1-0 in Milwaukee, Wisc.

Tom Connaghan’s goal with just 2:50 left in regulation gave Irish goalkeeper Danny Lyons all of the offensive support he needed as he recorded his first shutout of the season and the 14th of his career.

Lyons only needed to make 4 saves against the Warriors who fell to 3-2-1 on the season. Consequently, it is not too surprising that he gave the defense much of the credit for keeping Marquette scoreless.

"The defense played really tough," Lyons said. "It was probably our best defensive performance of the year. They had a couple shots but they were all wide, really. I didn’t have to do a whole lot."

Lyons, unsoaped, by successful, stayed late for practice yesterday. "Danny always stays late," says Irish coach Donnis Grace. "He’s a real workaholic, and you can’t deny him a thing. Marquette didn’t test him too much, but if they did, Danny Lyons would have stopped them."

Both Grace and Irish co-captain Rufe Behre indicated that they are confident that Notre Dame will continue to shut out opponents.

It’s time to start our sting of shutouts, Behre said. "We wanted to shut out Marquette and sure enough, we shut out Marquette. If we shut people out, we’re not going to lose."

But to win in soccer, you need to score goals. Despite holding the Warriors in check, Lyons had to wait until the 87:10 mark to gain a lead. Tom Connaghan, who just missed a goal when he blasted a shot off the crossbar in Notre Dame’s previous game against Detroit, scored the game-winner for the Irish.

"Tom Connaghan has never done much up top for the forward position," says Grace. "But he is very, very dangerous from his midfield position. I would really hate to coach against Tom Connaghan right now."

Next up for the Irish is another NCAA CWCC match on the road. Grace’s crew will travel to Chicago on Wednesday to meet the Loyola Ramblers. The Ramblers currently hold a 3-2 record and have several key players returning from last year’s team.

Senior goalies Jim Ambrose and Brian Cose have combined for 18 shutouts in their careers with Loyola and will anchor an experienced defense. Sophomore halfback Landon McElwan and senior forward Paul Smith will attempt to bunt against the Irish defense and knock the ball past Lyons.

Loyola coach Ray O’Connell is a Notre Dame graduate and a close friend of Grace, who is concerned about playing against this game on the road. "We’re very dangerous at home," says Grace. "The last three times we’ve played at Loyola the games have gone into overtime."

"Playing Notre Dame is one of their biggest games of the year," adds Lyons, "They’ll def-itely be looking for the upset."

The Notre Dame men’s cross country team, led by Mike O’Connor, talked, and Ryan Cahill, on his heels, tallied its third consecutive victory over Georgetown last weekend by outscoring the Hoyas 33-22.

Some of the Irish sports teams had a rougher weekend than the football team.

The overmatched women’s cross country team fell to Georgetown 17-46. Georgetown grabbed eight of the top ten places, including the top three spots, with Hoyas Chrissy Constantine taking first overall with a time of 17:55 for the 5.000 meter course.

"The meet was a disaster," said Irish head coach Tim Donahue. "Notre Dame is one of the top teams in the country, and we’re just not at that level right now. We were pretty much overmatched."

Notre Dame had two finishers, Lucy Nosral and Teresa Lemanski, in the top ten. Nosral took fourth with a time of 18:40, while Lemanski placed tenth, finishing in 19:23. Other top 15 finishers for the Irish were Wendy Murray, 12th, and Amy Blasing, 15th.

"All the girls ran pretty much what they were capable," said Connolly. "Lucy (Nosral) ran really hard — she’s a talented runner and a really good competitor — she doesn’t back down from anybody. Amy Blasing also ran well for her first race."

"It was a disappointing painful loss," Connolly remained optimistic about the rest of the season.

"We’ll definitely continue to improve through the season," said Connolly. "If you don’t keep improving then there’s no sense in going through the season."

The Irish will open their home season with the National Catholics, which will take place Sept. 24 and then host the Notre Dame Invitational on Oct. 6 and Marquette on Oct. 21.

Northfield twins verbally commit to ND basketball

Special to the Observer

Joe and Jon Ross, identical twins from Northfield High School made a verbal commitment today to play for the Notre Dame basketball team during the 1994-95 season.

The high school seniors, who led Northfield to a 23-2 record last season before losing to Marion in the regional final, signed the NCAA letter of intent on Nov. 24.

Jon averaged 18.8 points per game, while Joe averaged 14.9 and 6’4” are expected to be the backbone of the squad this winter.

Jon, 6-foot-9 1/2 and 210 pounds, shot 58 percent from the field and 59 percent from the free throw line, while averaging 8.1 rebounds. His brother, who stands a half-inch shorter than Jon and weighs a slimmer 205 pounds, shot 63 percent from the field and 62 percent from the charity stripe while averaging 8.3 rebounds per game.

"The family is to be complimented the way they have handled the recruiting," said Northfield coach Steve Miller Jr.

Both Ross twins have been recruited by quality schools such as Loyola, Purdue, Vanderbilt and Northwestern. But other schools offered them a game in the atmosphere at Notre Dame.

"Sometimes as coaches we tend to be critical of these decisions, but academically I believe they made a smart decision. Athletically, you can only project and time will tell."

The Notre Dame men’s cross country team shutout Marquette Sunday 1-0 to bring its record to 500 for the season. Tom Connaghan tallied the lone Irish goal in the waning minutes of the game to give the Irish the victory.

We’ve had trouble there in the past, so we don’t see this one to be easy at all."

Grace did a lot of experimenting during the Marquette game. Forward Danny Sheehane in particular may have been a bit surprised, as he played most of the game in the backfield.

Grace was pleased with the results of his efforts, though, saying they worked to his team’s benefit.

"We’ve had a total of only 13 more contest appearances to break the all-time record held by former Irish goalie John Milligan. Lyons has made 47 appearances this far in his ca-Ree."

Midfielder Steve LaVigne continues to lead Notre Dame in goals and scoring.
