BERLIN — Riot police at­tacked demonstrators in East Berlin on Sunday, driving thou­sands of protesters from a pro­reform rally at a church and from a sit-in on a major av­enue, witnesses reported.

A number of people were in­jured and at least 30 people were detained in the police ac­tions Sunday in East Berlin, witnesses said. No official re­ports were given.

Paramilitary troops and po­lice with attack dogs forced demonstrators into sidestreets as the protesters shouted: “We want freedom!” and “No vi­olence!” It was the first time in- siding residents held candles in their windows in support of the demonstrators.

Hundreds of people were ar­rested during demonstrations in the capital and five other major cities Saturday, which marked the communist coun­try’s 31st anniversary.

About 5,000 people had been in or near Gethsemane Church during a pro-democracy vigil and an estimated 2,000 people staged a sit-in on the nearby Schoenhauser Allee after au­thorities blocked them from joining the church vigil, wit­nesses said.

Thousands of the activists left the church area after suc­cessful negotiations between church officials and police to begin letting the demonstrators through police lines, witnesses said. Many then joined the protesters on the Schoenhauser Allee.

However, police moved in to drive demonstrators into sidestreets several times, beat­ing many of them with trun­cheons and clubs and using trucks with steel-mesh barriers in front, witnesses said.

A middle-aged man who watched the action from his apartment window said: “It’s getting worse and worse. Someday soon rocks and Molotov cocktails are going to fly.”

East Germany accused the Western news media of encour­aging Saturday’s protests. It is the latest in a series of dozens of Western journalists who have been arrested in the East Berlin from the two-day visit of Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev that ended Saturday. The demonstrators were told to leave the city when their visas expired at midnight Sunday.

Hundreds of injuries were re­ported as police swinging trun­cheons repeatedly charged demonstrators in East Berlin on Saturday and early Sunday. Police punched, kicked, beat and dragged the protesters away, and roughed up Western journalists covering the demon­strations.

At least one Western re­porter, Sunday Times of Lon­don correspondent Peter Millar, was detained for six hours.

The biggest demonstrations were the largest since a work­ers’ uprising was put down by Soviet forces in 1953.

Gorbachev’s reform policies have made him popular among many East Germans and protesters championed his name and called for his support.

Despite the growing unrest and the exodus of thousands of East Germans to the West, East German leader Erich Honecker said during talks with Gor­bachev Saturday that he would not recognize the hard-line course.

Also Sunday, a group of dem­onstrators said they had formed a Social

HUNGARY’s communists termi­nate their party

But amount of change is unclear

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Communists at a historic congress have proclaimed their party’s death and the birth of a Socialist Party aspiring to Western democratic ideals — but the difference between the old and the new remains unclear.

A document approved over­whelmingly by the congress Saturday terminated the Com­munist party — called the Hun­garian Socialist Workers Party — and proclaimed the Hungar­ian Socialist Party in its succes­sor.

It will be the first time a War­saw Pact Communist party formally terminated its exis­tence. The move was part of preparations for the first free national elections in 41 years.

Instead of the usual masthead proclaiming Nepszabadsag the central paper of the Hungarian Socialist Worker’s Party, the Sunday edition simply identified it as a “socialist pa­per.”

Although the congress docu­ment sought to define idealog­ical and practical differences between the old and the new party, its language appeared over what that really meant.

Party Chairman Rezso Ny­ers, true to his role as a mod­erate, said the document served “the rebirth of our party as a new left-wing Socialist Party.”

Student escort service proposed

By SANDRA WIEGAND

The proposal suggests that student volunteers be available as security escorts on Sunday through Thursday nights be­tween 7 p.m. and 1 a.m. at no cost to students.

“Students would be available for an immediate escort from anywhere on campus. Escorts would be dispatched from ei­ther the security office or a more central location, such as LaFriere Student Center.”

Junior Gina Mahony, who drew up the proposal, said that she had been involved in the security office and driven around campus police.

According to Mahony, each escort will be paid $6 an hour, once every week or two for about 3 hours each night. She said that each escort will receive about an hour of training and will be armed or trained as a camping police.

“I’m going to try to make it as an information gathering service,” she said. “I’d like to see it de­velop into paid positions, though.”

Two atomic generators were packed aboard space shuttle Atlantis at Cape Canaveral on Sunday, as NASA prepared for a Thursday launch that anti-nuclear activists vow to block legally or physically. The generators, each containing 24.7 pounds of radio-

The nation's jobless rate was pushed to 5.3 percent in September, due to the largest decline in payrolls at auto plants and other factories in nearly seven years, the government said Friday in a report showing unexpected softness in the economy. Events for the homeless that took place on Saturday in Washington, D.C., included 92 Notre Dame students and nearly 500 Hoosiers. The rally attracted 200,000 to 300,000 people. Demonstrators gathered around the Washington Monument chanting, "What do we want? Housing! When do we want it? Now!"

Bush administration admits it prepared to seize Noriega in coup

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration was preparing covert action to seize Panamanian leader Gen. Manuel Noriega during a coup attempt last week but the uprising collapsed before the plan could be executed, top officials said Sunday.

President Bush made the decision near the end of a failed coup Tuesday, and the order was conveyed to the commander of U.S. forces in Panama, Gen. Maxwell Thurman, said Secretary of State James Baker and Brent Scowcroft, the White House national security adviser.

"The message that was sent was that if there were an opportunity to do this, without risking bloodshed and significant loss of American life, and to do so without open military involvement, then he was free to go ahead," Baker said on the NBC-TV program, "Meet the Press." Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said that at the outset of the coup, he told Thurman to be prepared to use peaceful means to take custody of Noriega, but the chance never came.

"After the Panamanians had contacted us and told us ... that they had Noriega but that they would not give him to us, I made it clear that our commander on the scene was authorized to get him if he could, without using military force, and that he should develop an option or a plan to use military force to get him," Cheney said on the CBS-TV program, "Face the Nation."

"We never made the decision to use military force, which would have involved going in against the rebels and taking Noriega from them. I never thought that was a very good idea, but we told him to be prepared in case he got the order to do so. Shortly after that, the coup fell apart," said Cheney, "so we had to do that, and outside the area where U.S. troops move and exercise, that have been the covert exercise of military force, perhaps into a fire fight, to block them in the heart of a heavily populated area," Scowcroft said.

Noriega has told reporters that he was never in custody and "the last thing he has said was that, no, he was never there," said Scowcroft.

Throughout the coup, said Scowcroft, the administration was in "the fog of war. . . . You are operating without a full deck of intelligence information."

Changes will be made to avoid a repeat, he said, but did not spell out what steps were planned.

Noriega moves to gain people’s support

Associated Press

PANAMA CITY, Panama — Gen. Manuel Noriega moved Sunday to gain the backing of the Panamanian people following an attempted coup, thanking them for "support that reinforced" his leadership.

A small group of officers and troopers of Panama’s Defense Forces tried to oust Noriega Tuesday but the revolt was crushed by loyalists.

Sunday’s editions of the government-owned La Republica newspaper were filled with pictures praising Noriega and pictures of the general, commander of the Defense Forces. One headline read, "A general with nerves of steel."

A message from Noriega was broadcast on nationwide television and radio, and the end of an editorial on a military news program.

In his message Noriega thanked Panamanians for "the demonstrations of moral and spiritual support that reinforced the position of MAN (Manuel Antonio Noriega) and of his men in the critical moment when the fate of Panama and its national liberation movement were at stake."

"Those who think that the cause will fail if one man falls are mistaken," he said.

Noriega has accused the United States of backing the failed coup.

Washington has applied political and economic pressure in an effort to oust Noriega since February 1988 when he was indicted in Florida on drug-trafficking charges. Noriega says the indictments are part of a U.S. plot to relegate on the treaties to turn the Panama Canal over to Panama at the end of the century.

The news program’s editorial declared, "We have a general for tough times commanding our troops."

It said more "surprise attacks" could be in store and added, "We won’t be caught with our guard down."
Hard-liners in Hungary say that Communist Party not gone yet

Associated Press

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Hard-line opponents of reform said Sunday that the national Communist Party, dissolved by delegates to a party congress, still exists and its fate must be decided by its entire membership.

Congress delegates on Saturday voted to dissolve the party, saying “its history has ended.” The Communist Party, officially called the Hungarian Socialist Workers Party, is to be replaced by the Hungarian Socialist Party, according to the congress resolution. Reform leaders said the new party would be similar to Western European socialist parties.

It was the first time in the Soviet bloc that the leadership of a Communist Party has decided to dissolve the organization. The move represents an attempt to draw support for multiparty national elections scheduled for June at the latest. But a ranking Communist conservative defied his party’s decision. Former Politburo member Janos Berecz said Sunday the old party remains in existence until its entire rank-and-file decides on its fate.

Berecz, ousted from the party by reformers several months ago, said, “The membership still has to decide, and if the majority or a large section of the membership decides that they are members of the Hungarian Socialist Workers Party, then I am with them.”

He spoke in an interview on state television and did not elaborate.

Another conservative, Robert Ribanszki, said he would organize a plebiscite among the 720,000 members of the old party to allow them to declare their party affiliation.

“The decision made yesterday was a great step backward in the history of the Hungarian left-wing movement,” said Ribanszki. “It’s not the Leninist principles that were wrong but the way they were implemented.”

The hard-line Janos Kadar Society, named for Hungary’s former leader, announced plans to found a new Communist Party. Politburo member Janos Barabas suggested the courts may have to decide.

Janos Barabas, a reform member of the Politburo, was asked if the new Socialist Party could be considered the legal successor to the Communist Party and he said the courts may have to decide.

Some legal experts at the congress told reporters the new party was the legal successor because it was “a child of the congress — the old party’s most authoritative body.”

The new party has invited into its ranks all members of the old party who agree with its principles. The new party’s platform backs parliamentary democracy with competing parties and components of private ownership in the national economy.

Vice Premier Peter Medgyessy urged the successors of the dissolved Communist Party to stop interfering in government business as Hungary prepares for its first free elections in 41 years.

Medgyessy told reporters he would like to see a “government of experts” run the country until the elections.

that the congress had managed to bury the repressive Leninist past and create a party in the Western democratic tradition.

Asked if the Hungarian Socialist Party was truly new, he told reporters Sunday: “I don’t see the signs of that, although I honestly would have welcomed it.”

Since the congress opened Friday, radical reformers have insisted that orthodox Communists would have no place in the new party.

But members of the old party also members of the new party, at least temporarily. “I am not convinced that the so-called cleaning (of ranks) that is necessary actually has happened,” Medgyessy said.

Premier Miklos Nemeth, a key reformer, told the congress that any new party would have no room for “those with blood on their hands” from past Communist excesses.

Membership is not automatically transferable. The position paper said those wanting to join the new party would first have to state their intentions in writing.

But drastic language that would have barred Communist conservatives was watered down out of fears the majority would reject the document. The paper stated instead that the new party wants to “call in its ranks all those who agree with its platform, agree with its ground rules.”

Such ambiguity has resulted in the unusual development of former Politburo member Janos Berecz — among the most vehement opponents of reform — asking to join the new party Saturday, just hours after he declared himself ready to be “laid to the staks” for his Communist beliefs.

Nyers, whose moderate views make him the most acceptable candidate for the post of party president, told Berecz he was welcome. It was a graphic demonstration of the new party’s difficulties in breaking with the past.

Berecz later confounded conference participants by declaring he wanted the issue of a new party put to the vote among all members of the old party. He said in the meanwhile, he would remain a member of the old party.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — The son of the late singer Bobby Darin is suing McDonald's Corp. for $10 million, alleging the restaurant chain used his father's name and sound-alike style in the "Mac Tonight" commercials.

The suit, filed last week in Los Angeles Superior Court, charges that the television ads infringe on rights to Darin's name and voice and the song "Mack the Knife." The commercials feature a computer-generated image of a smiling, quarter-inch-tall, seated at a picnic table, waving at the hamburger.

The suit alleges the character's voice and gestures resemble those of Darin, who died in 1973 at age 37 of heart problems.

The suit was filed on behalf of Darin's son and only heir — the singer's 15-year-old son, and the Darin Testamentary Trust.

The suit seeks $10 million in punitive damages against the fast-food chain.

The singer's voice has been used in several other instances, including a two-minute commentary on ABC network's "Good Morning America" that aired in February 1988.

The suit notes that McDonald's has been paying $2 million a year for four years for rights to sing the "Mack the Knife" song.

Darin's estate said the use of his voice in the commercials will hurt sales of music that was left to his estate and prevent Darin's second marriage from being acknowledged.

The ones that enclose paid return envelopes, I mail back to them because that's what they want. No wonder our delivery of mail has grown.

A number of correspondents react joyfully to an Arizona reader's method of mailing correspondence: "I'm placing a copy of my correspondence in one of the postage-paid envelopes received in most of the mail I receive. Sometimes, I glue the envelope to the outside of the letter. The recipient knows to open the envelope, whereupon they are refund mailed."

I have read that the Postal Service is interested in third-class mail not paying its way, but helps to keep first-class rates down. Is it the same thing? If so, what is the Postal Service doing with the money it takes from third-class mail?

Consumers wage war on mail advertisers

Look out, you junk mailers who slyly pretend to know us better than you do. Beware, overly chummy commercial telephoneJos who think it's just a matter of time before you can call on our doorstep during our dinner hour. America is getting ready to show back.

That's my conclusion after watching a parade of absolutely first-class mail in response to my recent request asking for a list of form letters, advertisements from catalogues, at home watchers from people who used our first names even though they can't, graphically get them another.

No other subject has this year produced so much reader interest.

Among the things I discovered was that I told of a woman whose father died 20 years ago but still gets solicitations praising her husband's remarkable sense. She is apparently not unusual. Conside-er, for example, the case of Mrs. R.L.L. of Livermore, Calif., whose husband has been gone longer since Dec. 6, 1963, 3 before com-puters became as popular as typewriters.

Three years ago, she began to receive "all kinds of mail," but is not sure how the "mail keeps coming in," as her husband was always careful with the mail. She still "suffers" because, but not as much, because I used a few stamps to mail them back with the ret and up 11 comments on my mind today, when we're again the rare and wonderful period called the "golden wave.

She does her best to stop such mailings, she reports: "It is a very satisfying to mail stuff to them."

While an overwhelming majority of those responding expressed indignation at the fake palsy-mailout, some insist they've been getting from these perpetually rented and re-rented mailing lists. Mrs. B., of Deerfield, Ill., said he was "kind of sick of hearing everyone grips about 'junk mail.' You can have your named cleared off many lists through the Direct Marketing Association, headquarted in New York."

It's certainly true that people who run mail firms by mail—i do it myself occa-sionally, but not as often. But not all individ-uals would return postage-paid envelopes mi-nimize. Why? Because the form letters and the "mailing list" is getting more and more irritating. And it apparently does make things easier for the post office, as was concluded by D.R. D., of West Linn, Ore., a former postal employee: "The postal service claims third-class mail not only pays its way, but helps to keep first-class rates down. Fertilizer! It clogs the sys-tem... The issuance of a third-class mailing permit should be conditional upon the applicant's agreement to pay return postage on each and every piece marked "HUSH" on the front."

On the temporary help side, Mrs. H., a chief executive from Michigan who had published a magazine, said "I'll order mail again, it's very labor-intensive."

The health care industry is growing at just under 10 percent a year, said Geoffrey Golden of the Bain Group, a consulting firm for Baxter International, a ma-jor medical supplies manu-facturer in Deerfield, Ill. Baxter added 2,000 new employees in 1988, and Fenton said the payroll continues to grow this year. Revenue grew 10 percent last year, and sales were up significantly so far this year, he said.

Orders to the 6,000 to 7,000 hospitals Baxter supplies are increasing as an aging population requires more medical care. The fastest-growing new area of business for Baxter lies in the sale of "alternate" products, like intravenous solutions and dialysis items used at home and in nursing homes. Overall outpatient care is growing at the rate of about 20 percent annually, said Herron.

Anti-hazing campaign gains ground

Associated Press

An anti-hazing campaign aimed at countering the image of Greek rows as gin-soaked fraternities around the country are moving to eliminate hazing altogether in their organizations to complete educational membership programs.

The National Interfraternity Council, which represents fraternities at 900 college campuses, weighed in with an anti-hazing campaign of its own in September, stressing that the image of fraternity events, where suffering from hazing incidents that harmed pledges physically or psychologically.

“It's a concern for decreasing membership,” said Jonathan Brant, executive director of the Indianapolis-based council. “We’re just really fed up with the perception that hazing is a major issue in Greek organizations. We have grown steadily over the last decade.

Hazing has continued at some campuses this fall, including one notorious case at the University of Mississippi, where Beta Theta Pi pledges were abandoned on the same day leading presidential hopeful Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., announced a new anti-drug crackdown.

Congress thinking of pay raise, but quietly

Washington — While House leaders don’t like to publicly use the words “pay raise,” they are quietly shaping a scenario where Congress can vote to increase its pay with bipartisan accord and the blessing of President Bush.

But many fraternities are still facing the fall of injures in the last decade nationwide.

“I really don’t think you can form any sort of loyalty to a house without pledging,” said Steve Goldsmith, a sophomore who initiated last month into Alpha Epsilon Pi at Penn State University.

Letter from China last word before massacre

Dear Editor:

This letter came from the capital city of China, only one day after the establishment of martial law in the area, two weeks before the Beijing massacre. Xian Ming, the writer, is one of my good friends and a college professor in Beijing. I was deeply influenced by his strong emotion and the sense of responsibility to our motherland when I read his letter. The good intention of the people are so clear in his letter that any lie created by the Chinese government can never confuse me. Since June 4, I have not received a word from him, I feel silent. It is, of course, not the end of the Beijing event. Chinese people may still have a long way to go, but they are just, they definitely will be the final winner. The letter was translated by Cheng Gang Zhu.

May 18, 1989

Xian Tong and Xiao Wei.

Hi, how are you? I got your letter three or four days ago. For three several days, the whole city of Beijing has been in a state of overflowing enthusiasm with people from all walks of life venting their indignation and the sense of responsibility to our motherland. The petition mainly came out and talk to the students' elements for negotiations. The first round of negotiations on April 29 did not even bother to come out and talk to the students. So, the Student Association of Colleges and Universities in Beijing decided to walk out of classes city-wide starting April 24. The insensible blockade set up by the armed police and finally converged in Tiananmen Square demanding that the government apologize for its editorial article and to open negotiations. The first round of negotiations on April 29 did not achieve anything. Following another massive demonstration on May 4, the government agreed to the students' elements for negotiations, but didn't say anything more about the specific time and arrangement for the talks.

Yesterday afternoon, the city of Beijing witnessed an unprecedented demonstration. It was impossible to count the number of people there. Some reports estimated several millions. In the marching crowds are the workers, high-school students, bank clerks, employees from governmental departments and from the press. Many senior professors, university presidents and well-known writers came out to support the students by joining the demonstration.

The scene was so tremendous that what I have told you here is just a sketch. Meanwhile, similar demonstrations also erupted in Shanghai, Nanjing, Guangzhou, Wuhan and other major cities in support of the students. Soon after the student movement started, the 38th Army was brought into the peripheries of Beijing and has stationed there in readiness for a crackdown. It is said that the 38th Army refused to carry out the command to suppress the students. I hope that there will have been some satisfactory outcomes by the time you see this letter. I will keep you posted of any new developments.

Good luck,

Xian Ming
The hills may be alive with the sound of music, but the orphanage is alive with the sound of sarcasm. Just as the Von Trapp family had seven children, the orphanage has seven orphans; however, the similarities end there. Sister Kate clings to every mountain and fords every stream, but the "dream" she finds is a nightmare.

From the creators of Mr. Belvedere, "Sister Kate" airs on NBC Sundays at 7 p.m. Stephanie Beacham stars as the title character, Kate, who was given her role in Dynasty, stars as April's date begins to turn the orphanage into the perfect home. They are treated to a sampling of ancient skeletons... is my preferred way of dealing with people," says the 20th-century nun.

One episode features the love life of Erin Reed, one of the orphans in this episode. In this episode, a new character makes a play for April's date. Embarrassed by her present situation, April doesn't tell her date she's an orphan. Together, the team of seven turn the orphanage into the perfect home. They even pay two bums to play April's parents. All goes smoothly until Sister Kate arrives.

April tells her acquaintance that Kate is her housekeeper. "We let her dress up as a nun on Sundays," says April. Sister Kate bites the forked tongue and plays along with the scenario, which gradually turns disastrous. April's date begins to force himself upon her. Luckily, the children either. In another scene, Neville (Joel Robinson), another orphan tries to sneak out of the orphanage by hiding behind a picture of the Pope. April's parents. All goes smoothly until Sister Kate arrives.

Giants assume commanding lead

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Heartbreak has always seemed to follow the Chicago Cubs. On so many occasions, Allie Reynolds and Williams was the heartbreaker.

While Will Clark and Mark Grace unwound in the visitors' clubhouse in Chicago last month, the Giants were celebrating their 1-0 walk-off win over the Cubs, Williams won the game.

Williams pumped up the crowd, including a tie-breaking, two-run homer in the ninth inning, and the Giants defeated the Chicago Cubs 6-4 to take a 3-1 lead in the National League playoffs.

"They pitched me in all night and that one was just off the plate," said Williams. "I went to the plate with no fear." The Giants have nine home runs in the four games. During the regular season, San Francisco hit five homers in 12 games against Chicago.

"The Cubs are fighting for their life and hopefully we won't have to go back to Chicago," said Clark. "We're getting the clutch hits." The Cubs blew a 2-0 lead in the 1985 playoffs to San Diego, and have not been to the World Series since 1945.

Coughs, colds hurt
ND women runners
By BARBARA MORAN
Sports Writer
Hampered by colds and coughs, the Notre Dame women's cross country team placed a disappointing sixth in Friday's Notre Dame Invitational, placing only one runner in the top 20.

A strong Ohio University team took first place in the 10-team field with a score of 51. Ohio had four finishers in the first 10 and was led by Tracy Meyer, who took seventh place.

Filling out the top five were University of Wisconsin at Oakshill with 68 points, University of Western Ontario at 75, Edinboro at 92, and Hillsdale at 115.

Interestingly, Wisconsin beat Western Ontario despite having only one finisher in the top 10, while Western Ontario captured the top three individual honors, with Bill Pursley taking first place in 17:35.8.

The first finisher for the Irish was Lucy Nusrola, who placed 18th. Nusrola was the only Notre Dame runner who placed in the top 20, but was followed closely by teammates Therese Lemanski in 27th and Amy Blaising in 32nd.

"We would have liked to have been in the top five, so we were a little disappointed," said Connelly. "It was kind of a letdown after last week's race fifth in the National Catholic."

"It was just one of those weeks," he continued, "I had a feeling going into the meet that that we weren't going to run as well as we could. A lot of the girls had colds and sore throats. Lucy Nusrola had been sick all week and was coughing and hacking before the race - she didn't run as well as she could have. Therese (Lemanski) and Amy (Blaising) ran well. They've both been running very consistently this season.

The Irish have a week off before they take on MCC rival Marquette on October 21. Coach Connelly plans to take advantage of the time to prepare his team for the coming meets.

"We're going to use the time to get healthy and train real hard," he said. "In two weeks, we'll be ready for Marquette."

Irish men fall to Central Michigan
By MARY GARINO
Sports Writer
It was one of those teams from Michigan that came back to haunt the Notre Dame men's cross country team again at the Notre Dame Invitational.

Michigan teams have dominated the Invitational in recent years, capturing the title for the last four seasons. The loss this year was especially painful.

The Irish came in second by only two points, losing to Central Michigan 75-77.

"It was disappointing," said Irish head coach Joe Piecz. "Any number one team could run better, but no one guy is to blame."

Senior captain Mike O'Connor was the top finisher for Notre Dame, crossing the finish line in eighth place with a time of 24:36 over the five mile course at Burke Memorial Golf Course.

He was followed by freshman J. T. Burke, who placed ninth.

Burke and junior Pat Kearans (17th) were the two Irish runners that O'Connor praised for running solid races.

But he said the rest of the team was not running up to par.

Saturday's match riding the crest of an easy, but sloppy win over Michigan's victory.

"We're going to have to be at our best for a .462 hitting percentage and a team-high three block assists before making the difficult transition into the setting slot and recording 14 assists in just one game.

"We played down to their level," said interim Irish head coach Jim O'Connor, "we played like the rest of the team's sporadic play. "We felt we could beat them and turned it on when we had to, but we know we're capable of playing better.

The two victories lift the Irish to 5-9 on the season and may give some confidence to the Irish going into two difficult showdowns next weekend against Illinois State and defending national champion Texas at home.

"The play of the team per se has been great," Lackert said, "but the blocking is the best it's been all year. But next weekend we go to Chicago and we're going to have to be at our best if we want to win.

Think of your best friend.
Now, think of your best friend dead.
Don't drive drunk.

The Notre Dame defense battled Stanford quarterback Steve Smith's attack throughout Saturday's game. Cardinal on or inside their own 20-yard line, Stanford had a total of 19 yards on four punt returns. Hentrich also kicked three PATs and two fourth-quarter field goals. Stanford kicker John Hopkin's field goal to open the scoring marked the first time the Irish had trailed in a game since the Rice contest, a span of seven games.

"We just had a few problems, and we couldn't get together and play together," Irish quarterback Tony Rice said. "We'll come out next week and we'll have to play better." "We can't play this way against Air Force," Holtz said.

"Nobody's been able to stop them yet."

Irish respond to challenge of Stanford passing attack

BY THERESA KELLY

Palo Alto, Calif.—No one told Notre Dame about the change in the schedule Saturday. The Irish expected Stanford. What they got was an aerial assault.

Notre Dame won the thriller 27-17, but Stanford quarterback Steve Smith gave the Irish fits, never letting up on an aerial attack that included 10 completions in 16 attempts for 282 yards.

"We knew they were a passing team," said Irish free safety Pat Terrell, "but this was something we couldn't predict. In the secondary, you just have to hit them as soon as you can and let them know who hit them." Terrell's two interceptions late in the tense fourth quarter helped the Notre Dame overcome the Cardinal passing attack and a penalty-marred performance by the Notre Dame offense in a 17-2 consecutive victory and raise their record to 5-0, Stanford 1-3-1.

With 8:14 to play, Stanford got to within one touchdown of the Irish, 24-17, and held on defense to force a punt. The Cardinal started from its own 20, and had the momentum and the crowd behind it. Smith looked to throw down the left sideline to Scott Ischelman, but Terrell picked him off, effectively dashing Stanford's hopes for an upset of the top-ranked Irish.

"If he was pressured, their quarterback had a tendency to look right at his receiver," Terrell said. "I'd just read in his eyes and where he was going. We all just got out there and did the job. When it's a big play, you just do what you can. It's not doing anything different, it's getting the job done."

The Irish followed Terrell's interception with an 18-yard field goal by Craig Henting, making the score 27-17. The Cardinal had one more shot, but again Terrell picked Smith off, this time with a return of 42 yards with 1:01 to play.

When the game was on the line, the Notre Dame defense was true to the test of Stanford's aerial attack.

"In reality, I think the defense only gave the ten points," Irish head coach Lou Holtz said. "That's pretty good against a team that throws the ball like that. They came out and did things we hadn't anticipated."

The Irish offense was inconsistent, completing only 296 yards against a Stanford defense that was surrendering an average of 312 per game.

"They contained the run very well," said Irish quarterback Tony Rice. "We had to force it up. I just hope next week we can play better, more consistently."

"It was not one of our better performances," Holtz said. "Give Stanford credit. Stanford is a good, solid football team. If we can't control the line of scrimmage with our offense, then we don't have an offense. I think we should have started to throw the ball sooner, but to get pounded like we did on defense, and face seventy passes, and have that many penalties and still win, then it tells you something."

Raghib "Rocket" Ismail gave the Irish offense a necessary spark midway through the third quarter. Stanford's first drive in the second half resulted in a two-yard touchdown pass from Smith to Ed McCaffery. Stanford, trailing 14-10, went for the tie. Smith's pass fell incomplete, but pass interference was called on the Irish, and the Cardinal made good on the second try as Tom Vardell plunged past two, tying the game at 14.

For the first time since the Michigan game, the Notre Dame opponent made the mistake of letting Ismail return the ball. He broke through the coverage on the left hashmark, then headed for the endzone down the right sideline. Kevin Scott of the Cardinal had the angle on Ismail and knocked him out of bounds at the Stanford 13. The 66-yard return resulted in an Anthony Johnson touchdown four plays later to give the Irish a lead they would not relinquish.

"There was something on the sideline when it got to be 14-all. When the score was tied and the crowd got in the game, I think it was a good play," Terrell said.

Irish free safety Pat Terrell delivered the knock-out punch swiftly when they had the Irish on the ropes early.

But whether by strategy or by chance, Notre Dame was tiring the Hurons and saw its opportunity to strike in the third game after collapsing the score at 4-4 and outlasting Eastern Michigan after an endless exchange of sideouts.

They had been a sleepy giant slow to wake up despite the numerous kills showered on them by the Hurons' Roxanne Munch, who finished the night with 25 kills. But the Irish were able to wrestle the momentum from an obstinate Eastern Michigan squad in the third and fourth games and then crush the fagged and frustrated Hurons in the fifth.

"For the first time, we played like we would do whatever it took to win," junior outside hitter Tracey Shelton said. "We started out slowly again, but you could feel the team come together. We came out of the third game and we knew that we had struggled too hard for that win to give up."

"We finally played like we're capable of playing and didn't let anything get in our way. We knew we weren't going to give up until we'd won."

Shelton was one of the reasons the Irish could afford to have that attitude.

Her match-high 27 kills, two service aces and 11 digs established Notre Dame on and off the net and sent the previously 10-3 Hurons running for cover. Shelton got some help from fellow outside hitter, freshman Alicia Turner, whose 26 kills, three block assists and 13 digs helped rally the Irish from the near-loss.

Freshman middle hitter Jessica Fiebelkorn drove 16 kills into floorboards, while picking up 11 digs defensively and she combined with sophomore Chris Choquette to form a human wall defensively.

A meager audience of 178 witnessed the Notre Dame volleyball team engage in hand-to-hand combat as it beat the visiting Hurons of Eastern Michigan in five arduous games, 6-15, 7-15, 16-14, 19-17, 15-2.

It took as though the Hurons would deliver the knockout punch swiftly when they had the Irish on the ropes early.
