Senate debate over racially offensive remarks goes on

Verbal complaints are not a satisfactory method of combating faculty who make racially offensive remarks, said Rob Price, president of the Black Cultural Arts Council at the Student Senate meeting yesterday.

Presently, all complaints to the provost’s office are verbal, and often no complaints are on file for a specific faculty member because the complaints are not in written form, said Price.

In regard to a recent incident Price said, “We wanted to meet with the provost and with the professor to discuss this issue... so that they could be aware of what was happening. The provost told us that we can’t make that move because this professor has no file. Our point was, you have no method of complaint, no form so that we can get complaints in his/her... the procedure is no procedure basically.”

“I think that there should be something where we are conscious of exactly what to do, where to channel our complaints,” he added.

Student Senator Sigi Loya, who is working with minority club presidents, said they would be drawing up a proposal for the provost on this issue.

The presentation of a proposal to the administration for a security escort service was approved at the senate meeting.

The proposal will be presented to the director of Security Rex Bakow this week and Student Activities will be contacted about the proposal to busing the service in LaFortune.

A student, Melissa Pena, the student who drew up the proposal, hopes to meet with the administration within the next week to receive their approval.

If the proposal is approved, the procedure involves “more personal attention for the students,” Lanzinger said. He also hopes that the reorganization will provide a closer interaction among the faculty.

The department’s main goal is “to achieve bilingual competence” through language instruction, and to then build on that knowledge with a focus on literature, Lanzinger said.

Associate Professor and Chairwoman of the romance languages and literatures department JoAnn Della Neva stated that her first goal is to “really improve lower-level language courses.” She has instituted a video-oriented French class and would like to expand the concept.

She also stresses communication and improved speaking ability.

Della Neva stated that her second goal is to improve and expand the graduate program by offering a graduate degree in Italian next year.

Since the titles of the new department include languages, each department is emphasizing the importance of what the program is about,” Della Neva said. It is only through reading the great works of a language that you can improve upon your understanding and skills in that language, she added.

The German and Russian languages and literatures department will be having an inaugural AT&T Visiting Scholar lecture series about Russian and German literatures, as is the romance languages and literatures department.

The classical and oriental languages and literatures department is also sponsoring an inaugural lecture series bringing...

Pope John Paul II began a visit to the world's most populous Moslem nation Monday with a message of friendship and assurances that his Roman Catholic flock was loyal to Indonesian interests. The Catholic community is one of the largest minority groups in Indonesia, and Pope John Paul sought to make clear that Catholics were no threat to the archipelago's unity. "I have come as a friend to all Indonesians, with a great respect for all the people of this democratic nation," he said.

NATO on Monday began a month-long naval exercise in the eastern Mediterranean that includes forces from Spain and France. Spain and France, which are not part of NATO's integrated military structure, are joining the "nation" maneuvers last month in the western Mediterranean that includes forces from Spain, France, and the United Kingdom. The exercise is not considered to be a threat to the war-torn region.

On January 19, 1989, the office of New York state Comptroller directed the treasurer to sell bonds to pay off a $1 billion debt. The action was taken to comply with a state constitution provision requiring the state to maintain a balanced budget. The treasurer had the authority to sell the bonds under a clause in the constitution that allows the state to sell bonds when necessary to pay off a debt.

An explosion and two bomb threats closed school in Anderson High School on Monday. Students were sent home after an explosion occurred inside the school during second period. Officials said no injuries were reported.

The interviewee who has done his homework will be ready for kidney punches like this and respond in the following manner. "I'm not a member of your family, but I was a student at a school in your town 10 years ago. I'm sure someone over there must have seen me, so I thought I'd let you know that I was there. I'm just a friend, and I don't want you to get upset about it. I just thought you should know that I was there."

The interview experience begins as soon as you receive a happy letter from a prospective school or company offering you a job. If you must, read a guide and send the_pg. 14

Associated Press

PANAMA CITY, Panama—The army major who led the unsuccessful coup against Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega was buried Monday and opposition leader Guillermo Endara ended a 19-day hunger strike in the same day.

Several reports have said an enraged Noriega personally shot Maj. Moises Giroldi, 38, to death minutes after the coup attempt against the Panamanian leader ended a week ago.

Giroldi's relatives said he was shot once in the neck and twice in the chest. His mother, Eloisa, cried, "They murdered him," and flung herself on the coffin.

The major led an uprising Oct. 3 and captured Noriega, who commands the Panamanian military and controls the government, but gave up when loyalists counterattacked while U.S. troops looked on from a few hundred yards away.

Officials of the Panamanian Defense Forces said eight officers and two sergeants were killed. They have not explained the circumstances or responded to reports that some were slain after surrendering.

Endara ended his fast and entered a clinic to "normalize my body's system." A medical bulletin said his "consecutive process was excellent and his conversation coherent," but he was suffering "from progressive debilitation.

The opposition leader has urged Panamanians to delay paying taxes and utility bills and to shun the government lottery and casinos, on which the government has depended for much of its revenue the past 18 months.

The United States has applied economic sanctions against Panama since federal grand juries in Florida indicted Noriega in February 1988 on charges of drug trafficking and money laundering.

Noriega claims all efforts to oust him are part of a U.S. plot to retain control of the Panama Canal after 1999, when it is to be turned over under treaties signed in 1977.

At a news conference, Endara said he felt his hunger strike was a success. He said the opposition did not approve of the coup because it represents "Noriegism without Noriega," not a movement toward democracy.

Capt. Leon Tejada, another rebel, was buried at the same small red stone church over the weekend. "He had one bullet wound in the right temple," said Tejada's mother, Elise, who was at the church again for Giroldi's burial.

About 100 people attended the funeral Mass for Giroldi.

Anti-nuclear activists try to ground shuttle

Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.—Anti-nuclear activists at the planned launch of space shuttle Atlantis began Monday as NASA headed for a court showdown with anti-nuclear activists seeking to stop the flight because of its plutonium-powered payload.

If a federal judge approves, Atlantis is to blast off at 5:15 p.m. Thursday with five astronauts who are to dispatch the Galileo spacecraft with its 1-ton clear generators on the start of a 6-year journey to Jupiter.

A band of 25 protesters demonstrated Monday at the Kennedy Space Center, playing out a mock death scene, and vowed that if they are turned down by the court, they will sit on the launch pad if necessary to halt the launch.

Attorneys for the space agency and the activists agreed that the court should hear the case, but they are the only ones to say they are not worried about the plutonium-powered payloads, which began Monday as the court, it has been suggested, is to hold a trial.

"We're going to count down to a launch on Thursday unless we are told to stop," NASA test director Ron Phelps said Monday as the countdown got under way. He described Atlantis as in "terrific shape."

The astronauts assigned to the mission flew here Monday from their training base in Houston for final flight preparations. All five have said they are not worried about the plutonium flight because it is not a "near problem."

"My family is going to be down there watching the launch, as well as other people that I love, and so I'm not concerned about it; I feel it's safe," said Ellen Baker, one of the crew members.

U.S. university reopens in Beirut

Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon—Hundreds of students returned to campus Monday when the American University of Beirut reopened after being closed for six months, its longest shutdown since the sectarian civil war began 14 years ago.

"The whole family's back," said Radwan Mawlawi, spokesman for AUB, the alma mater of the Arab world's elite and once the most admired university in the Middle East.

The cafeteria was packed with students, who hugged each other and renewed friendships. Others jammed the campus post office, checking their accumulated mail.

Mawlawi said the campus was hit several times by artillery fire, causing "extensive damage...that has now been repaired."

"Everything's in place. The faculty and students are here," he said Syrian troops and Lebanese police in red berets checked student ID cards at the three gates of the tree-lined campus overlooking the Mediterranean in Moslem west Beirut.

"Beirut's life is throbbing again now that the university has reopened," said a policeman who strolled through the campus.

Nawal said he was not known how many of the 5,000 students returned on Monday. Ghada Sheib, a Shiite Moslem architecture student, said, "I'm very happy to be back. This is my life last year."

Many students and other residents of Beirut share her doubts about the durability of a cease-fire that began Sept. 22.

University announces scholarship endorsements

The Notre Dame Rhodes and Marshall Committee has announced their endorsement for Rhodes and Marshall Scholarships.

Endorsed for Rhodes Scholarships are Mary Brown, a psychology major; John Farley, a government major concentrating in the international relations program; Wendy Kinkopf, a biology/biochemistry major; and the Honors Program.

Endorsed for Marshall Scholarships are Matthew Grayson, an engineering major; and David Hartt, a business major.

M. David Slaughter, an economics/PPF major, has been nominated for both the Rhodes and the Marshall Scholarships.

HUD spent $35 million on last day of fiscal '88
Associated Press

WASHINGTON— Federal HUD officials approved $35 million in loans on the last day of fiscal 1988 in an apparent rush to spend the money before it was transferred to another program, according to auditors and agency documents.

Most of the Section 312 multifamily housing loans were approved despite incomplete applications or processing, according to auditors who alerted the department's general counsel to the questionable loans. The auditors told the government was legally bound to fund projects underway at the close of the fiscal year.

"Where commitments were made they were honored, but (HUD) will not be making conditional commitments in the future," said Housing and Urban Development spokesman Jack Flynn.

Section 312 multifamily housing loans totaling more than $40 million were approved in the final month of fiscal 1988—about 100 million dollars for the entire fiscal year— including $3.5 million on Sept. 30, 1988, the final day of the budget year, according to HUD records.

During that eight-hour work day, 107 loans ranging from $15,000 to $6.1 million for a conversion of a Spokane, Wash., hotel were approved, the records show.

A subsequent review of HUD records by The Associated Press found that 130 loans totaling $40.8 million were approved in September 1988, all but 23 of them, totaling $5.5 million, on the final day.

New chair to command endowment for the arts
Associated Press

WASHINGTON— The National Endowment for the Arts, shaken by a conservative furor over subsidizing "obscene art," is getting a new chairman this year, according to auditors who monitored the department's general counsel to the questionable loans. The auditors told the government was legally bound to fund projects underway at the close of the fiscal year.

"We are not the nation's official pornographer, and it's important that the country know that," said John Frohnmayer, a 47-year-old lawyer from Portland, Ore., who takes command of the beleaguered arts endowment today.

Nonetheless, some members of the cultural community are expressing fear that the bitter controversy over the endowment's role in financing controversial art might undermine future support for bold, innovative—and unpopular—arts ventures.

The worst political crisis in the NEA's 24-year history began earlier this year when conservative members of Congress were outraged to discover that $45,000 in endowment funds had been used to support two exhibitions they found offensive.

One featured works by the late photographer Robert Mapplethorpe that included homoerotic and sadomasochistic themes and pictures of nude children. The other show, by artist Andres Serrano, featured a photograph of a crucified baby submerged in a container of urine.

In a surprise move, Jesse Helms, R-N.C., won Senate approval of his sweeping proposal to prohibit spending federal funds on "obscene and indecent" art or any work that "denigrates, dehumanizes or reviles" anybody on the basis of race, creed, sex, handicap, or national origin.

His amendment to the arts endowment's $171 million appropriations bill caused a furor in the arts community, and it remains to be seen how Senate-Senate negotiators finally produced a compromise last week that contains a watered-down version of the Helms proposal.

The legislation, awaiting action by President Bush, would bar government financing of works that "may be obscene" and lack "serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value"—the Supreme Court's 1973 guideline on obscenity.

The NEA chairman, however, would retain authority to make final decisions on the artistic merit of grant applications.

DRINKGod DRINKS GOD

"I was trying to drink God out of the bottom of a bottle. If I would drink enough, I'd have done it." That is a paraphrase of a statement made by Bill Wilson—one of the founders of Alcoholics Anonymous. While looking for a mode of transport for our journey into the world of the spiritual, alcohol came to be seen as the metaphor for their spiritual quest. For Bill Wilson, Bob Smith and millions of other alcoholics, alcohol became their spiritual thirst, but most of us have not found healthy ways to satisfy that thirst.

As the Notre Dame community celebrates Alcohol Awareness Week (October 8-15), it might be of value to investigate some of the spiritual aspects of alcohol consumption. Approaching the topic from the point of view of persons most seriously affected, we can conclude that many members of the Notre Dame community don't like themselves as they are or don't like what they feel much of the time or want others to see them in ways other than as they are. Alcohol becomes merely because we are thirsty or because we like the taste.

The bad news side of the task force statement on Notre Dame's alcohol problem is that alcohol plays in the life of the university community in detrimental to its health. If any of the above reasons for drinking are true, we can conclude that many members of the Notre Dame community don't like themselves as they are or don't like what they feel much of the time or want others to see them in ways other than as they are.

The good news might be that the Notre Dame community has a strong desire to move beyond itself. In other words, many people at Notre Dame have a great spiritual thirst, but most of us have not found healthy ways to satisfy that thirst.

For Bill Wilson, Bob Smith and millions of other alcoholics, alcohol came to be seen as the metaphor for their spiritual quest. They were indeed attempting to drink the meaning of life out of the bottom of a bottle. So are we. Alcohol becomes a mode of transport for our journey into the world of the spirit. When we use alcohol as a proxy for the spiritual journey, what feels like fulfillment under the influence really is a great emptiness which cannot be felt because of pleasure's own narcotic effect.

As a whole, drinking is a process of moving from self and into a relationship with God as God becomes understood. It is a way to do things we otherwise wouldn't do or even think of doing, but want to do.

We have a desire to go somewhere beyond ourselves. As a result, he became a drunk or a slob or a friend. His marriage was in jeopardy. He was suffering ill-health emotionally, physically and spiritually.

As he began a process of recovery (with the help of his co-founder, Dr. Robert Smith), he began to realize that there was a great possibility that rather than estranging him from his quest, alcohol was leading him to a process of accomplishing it. The more he admitted how unmanageable his life became because of alcohol, the more rigorous his journey became because of alcohol.

The good news might be that the Notre Dame community has a great spiritual thirst, but most of us have not found healthy ways to satisfy that thirst.

Americans win Nobel Prize

Two cancer researchers to share $469K

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO—Two University of California cancer researchers won the Nobel Prize in medicine Monday and immediately reapied the perquisites of success: box seats at the National League baseball playoffs.

"We're off to the game — just got tickets," a jubilant J. Michael Bishop said shortly after he and Harold Varmus learned that they had won this year's prize.

The 50-member Nobel Assembly of the Karolinska Institute, Sweden's largest and oldest medical university, cited Bishop and Varmus for their discovery that cancer genes in certain viruses are altered forms of normal animal genes.

The research helped scientists understand how cancer begins, and it "widened our insight into the complicated signal systems which govern the normal growth of cells," the assembly said.

Varmus called the research a "cornerstone in understanding the genetic mosaic of cancer."

"The basic idea that we helped establish is that cancer has its origins in genes that normally do us some good. But after they become abnormal through mutation, they cause a role in cancer," he said.

The two scientists are colleagues at the University of California School of Medicine in San Francisco. They originally published their prize-winning findings in 1976.

Bishop said winning the award was "surreal," while Varmus said it was startling when the telephone began ringing at 4 a.m.

"We just assumed one of the grandparents had some trouble, so we were frightened," he said.

But his alarm quickly turned to elation, especially when the $469,000 award — to be split between the two — began piling off in unexpected ways.

When reporters swarmed to his home early in the morning, Varmus said he only wished he could use the Nobel money to buy tickets to the sold-out championship game between the San Francisco Giants and the Chicago Cubs at Candlestick Park.

A short time later, he received four free tickets compliments of the San Francisco Examiner, University of California spokesman Robert Sanders said. Bishop already had his own tickets.

At a news conference at the University of California Medical Center, Bishop and Varmus were optimistic about the practical applications of their work. This helps understand the nature of cancer and possibly some aspects of the AIDS virus.

But they were cautious about forecasting a cancer cure in the foreseeable future.

"This is just another step in what's a long journey," Bishop said. "It's very difficult to predict when a full view of the cancer cell will be at hand."

Although Varmus stressed that he and Bishop "stand on the shoulders of those who came before us," at least one scientist said he resented carrying their weight.

Dr. Dominique Stehelin, a French researcher who carried out experiments overseen by Bishop and Varmus at San Francisco in the 1970s, said it was "very unfair and rotten" that he wasn't included in the prize.

"I did the work all by myself, from A to Z," Stehelin told the French news agency Agence France-Presse.

Bishop and Varmus called Stehelin's work "crucial" to their research, but referred questions about the prize to the Nobel committee.

"We didn't nominate each other," Varmus said.

"You may know you're in the running, but nevertheless, there are a lot of other good people in there too... It's a shock," said Varmus. dressed casually in blue jeans and a red and white striped shirt, and a light beard that was apparently the result of a hasty shaving job.

Varmus, 49, who once hoped to become an English professor, said he abandoned his studies of 17th century literature to attend medical school.

He said he switched fields after writing that learning writer Gertrude Stein had enrolled at Johns Hopkins Medical School after being told that "medicine opened all doors."

Gradually, he discovered he enjoyed being in the laboratory more than the clinice, and his research career began, he said.

That total wealth would come just short of bailing out the nation's failed savings and loans over the next 30 years, the cost of which was estimated at $2.2 trillion, but he had to back out before the telephone began ringing at 4 a.m.

The list appears in the Oct. 23 edition of Forbes and is based on estimated holdings as of Sept. 8.

The typomotory of Forbes' ultra-rich was a 63-year-old male with $1.4 billion in the bank, with a net worth of $672 million last year, more than the gross national product of Lesotho, Forbes said.

The list contains 346 men and 54 women; 159 inherited their wealth; no one from Maine, North Dakota or Alaska qualified; Yale had 22 of the richest, Harvard and 17 and the University of Pennsylvania 12; the 45 with master's degrees in business had an average net worth of $895 million, while the 10 high-school dropouts had an average of $544 million.

About 20 percent, or 82, of those listed live in or near New York City, with Los Angeles second at 27 and San Francisco third at 19.

Nuclear plant operator did not heed warning

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—The operator of the Rocky Flats nuclear arsenal plant near Denver knew as early as 1984 that dangerous levels of plutonium might have accumulated in building air ducts but failed to inform his superiors, a former employee said Monday.

James Stone, a utility design engineer at the site from 1980 to 1986, said he raised the probability of such plutonium deposits as early as 1984, and he would pose — with Rockwell International Corp., which operates the plant under an Energy Department contract — “They said we cannot afford to clean it,” Stone said in a telephone interview.

Stone’s suspicions of a buildup of plutonium residue in the ventilation system at Rocky Flats was borne out by a team of independent investigators who disclosed in a report to the Energy Department last week that such plutonium deposits raised “a real possibility” of an accidental nuclear chain reaction at Rocky Flats.

The accidental nuclear reaction could release lethal amounts of radiation to plant workers. The independent investigation team was appointed by the Energy Department in July by Energy Secretary James Watkins, reported finding 11 pounds of weapon-grade plutonium in a pipe that served as an exhaust ventilation duct at one of the plant’s main buildings.

The amount of plutonium residue was more than enough to cause an uncontrolled nuclear reaction under certain circumstances but was not an immediate danger to the public or the workers because it was not escaping from the site, the investigators said. Rockwell had insisted prior to the investigation that no plutonium was accumulating in air ducts at the plant.

The investigation was conducted by a team of nuclear experts from ScienceTech Inc., an Idaho Falls, Idaho, engineering and management company. The probe raised many questions about the safety of Rockwell’s operators and suggested that such a buildup would have violated all safety concerns out of fear of retaliation.

Motorola, president of ScienceTech, said in a telephone interview that he had verified that Stone had warned Rockwell about the plutonium deposits.

Rockwell last month announced it was withdrawing from Rocky Flats because of a disagreement with the Energy Department over recent tests of possible criminal acts in connection with the site and other plant operations. An Idaho company, EG&G Inc., last Friday signed a contract to take over Rocky Flats on Jan. 1, 1990.

Stone said he realized the probability of plutonium deposits in the ventilation system in 1984 while he was helping to plan a renovation of Building 881, a former site of uranium and plutonium processing that now is used as a laboratory and computer center. Stone said Rockwell did not act on his advice that the hundreds of feet of stainless steel ducts be cleaned or changed in any other way to remove any plutonium buildup.

“It wasn’t part of the original scope of their work so they weren’t going to do it,” he said, even though Rockwell possessed the technical capability to test for the presence of plutonium residue in the ventilation system.

Roger Mattson, a vice president of ScienceTech and leader of the Rocky Flats investigation, said in a telephone interview that his group found 11 pounds of plutonium in the ventilation system of Building 771, where plutonium is processed in gloveboxes. Rockwell shut down several of the gloveboxes during the investigation in last and began taking steps to correct the problem, he said.

ScienceTech vouches for UFO landing in park

MOSCOW — It was a close en­counter of the Communist kind.

The Soviet media, unleashed by the Kremlin’s policy of glass­door openness, feels free now to hype incredible sto­ries that seem more at home in the supermercantile tabloids of the West.

Recent examples have in­cluded other accounts of sightings of abominable snow­man-type creatures, and a tale about a space yachts who goes into a trance and flies about the cosmos. A rash of myths and ESP-artists also have in­vaded state TV.

In Buffalo, N.Y., Paul Kurtz, chairman of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal, commented: “We’re extremely skeptical of this claim. It’s not April Fool’s Day.”

There’s many. There are teams of researchers, led by a small robot, Tass said.

Hungary Communists elect centrist leader of old party

Associated Press

BUDAPEST, Hungary—The ruling Hungarian communist party that earlier changed its name and embraced democratic aspirations elected the centrist leader of the old party on Monday to head a slate of reformers in the new one.

Zeno Nyers, president of the Hungarian Socialist Party, told reporters Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev was the first to congratulate him.

"Gorbachev conducts very fast diplomacy," a tired but elated Nyers said. "They gave me his telegram within two hours of my election."

He was named president in closed session after key reformists reluctantly shelved some of their reservations about him to avoid a possible split.

Spokesman Emil Kimmel told state TV the congress also elected a 25-member National Steering Committee, the new party's executive leadership and successor of the communist party Politburo.

Delegates said reformists reluctantly shelved some of their reservations about him to avoid a possible split.

Florida Rep. who is a doctor gets heat for abortion ruling

The state Supreme Court last week cited the state privacy law to strike down a 1986 statute requiring minors to get parental consent and a abortion to uphold a woman’s unrestricted right to abortion in the first trimester, and emphasize individual privacy rights in abortion decision-making.

The governor acted within weeks of the U.S. Supreme Court’s July 3 ruling upholding Missouri state restrictions on abortions, making Florida the first state since then to call a session devoted to abortion.

At Saturday’s demonstration, Graber said several of his police officers for abortions, were justified by a 200-strong crowd and others were scared away. Graber says he performs two or three abortions a week and only as part of his practice.

IRA claims responsibility for shooting

Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland—An attacker pulled up in a car and fatally shot a 28-year-old man in another vehicle Monday, police reported. The outlawed IRA claimed responsibility.

Police said Thomas Gibson was shot several times as he sat in his car in the village of Kilrea. They said the gunman opened fire at point-blank range from a car that pulled up alongside Gibson’s.

The Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility in a statement delivered to news organizations. It said Gibson had worked for the Ulster Volunteer Force, an outlawed Protestant paramilitary group that frequently is an IRA target.

Downtown Radio, a Belfast station, said the Protestant group denied Gibson was a member. Police said he was not connected with security forces.

Hundreds of thousands of Hong Kong residents have protested the army attack in Beijing, and several groups have been formed to work for democratic change in China. China has called the groups subversive but Hong Kong’s British-appointed governor has refused to ban them.

Mac is what you make it
Azerbaijanians and Armenians surprised that people in both republics couldn't put out glasnost, which were warmly received in other parts of the Soviet Union. But unfortunately, there is no alternative. Russia and the United States of America, which are highly respected. But for a long time, we have been shunted. I mean a prosperous future. But you can't fool all the people all the time. There was a time in the Ukraine when even the recipe for a cake had to be approved by officials in Moscow. Then people realized that this was absurd, and they became furious. I guess the more days that pass, the wiser (or more sober) we will become. Finally, we will rush to the point which far-sighted people have already seen. I mean a prosperous Ukraine within the Union of sovereign republics.
The march was attended by people of all ages and from many groups, but also by many homeless from other cities. This fact, according to Notre Dame participant Dave Twoh, was one of the most positive aspects of the march. "It was neat to think that these homeless people were marching for a program that they shared with the homeless of Washington."

Another student, Jeanne Ballott, called the march "an incredible experience."

The emotion felt by such a national call to action was enhanced by the large number of different people participating for the same cause. "There were a lot of groups represented with many individual causes," she said, "but they were all united for one reason."

The march occurred at a time when most experts now estimate the number of homeless Americans at 3 million, with families representing the fastest growing sector of the homeless population. Today, the nation's capital is experiencing the largest increase in homeless families.

"Housing NV is an organization that at the start of Ronald Reagan's first term, the U.S. spent $7 on defense for every $1 spent on housing. Today, the ratio is $44 to $1. Furthermore, since 1980, Budget Authority for all federal housing assistance programs has been cut by more than 75 percent — from $32 to $7.5 billion a year."

These are the types of statistics that the Housing NV coalitions of over 200 organizations hopes to change.

Islanders beat Canucks 5-2; Bruins down Canadiens 2-0

Associated Press

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — The New York Islanders scored four times within five minutes in the third period and rallied to beat the Vancouver Canucks 5-2 Monday.

Goals by David Volek, Doug Crossman, Brent Sutter and Alan Kerr wiped out a 2-1 Vancouver lead.

Vokok, who assisted on two other goals, tied the score when he batted in a rebound at 14:06. Crossman and Sutter scored on power plays and Kerr added an empty-net marker to complete the comeback. The Islanders had lost their first two games of the season.

Patrick Flatley scored the other New York goal and combined with Vokok and Sutter to form the most dangerous attacking unit.

Vancouver scorers were Petri Skriko and Paul Reinhart as the Canucks dropped to 1-2.

In the third, New York fired 19 shots at Vancouver goalie Steve Weeks, who kept the Canucks in the game until the last five minutes. New York finished with 30 shots on goal, while the Canucks had 27 shots on Glen Healy, who made several difficult saves during the scoreless opening period, most of them during two Vancouver power plays.

Vancouver scored 33 seconds into the second when Skriko’s long shot from inside the blue line handcuffed Healy.

The Islanders picked up the tempo in the second and were rewarded at 5:28 when Flatley converted a pass from Vokok.

The play was started by a sharp headman pass from defenceman Jeff Norton in the neutral zone.

Reinhart gave the Canucks a 2-1 lead at 5:59 of the third.

Bruins 2, Canadiens 0

Cam Neeley and Randy Burridge scored in the first period and goalie Reggie Lemelin earned his ninth NHL shutout as the Boston Bruins edged Montreal Monday night for their first regular season victory over the Canadiens since Feb. 4, 1988.

Lemelin, making his 1989-90 season debut, had 24 saves as the Bruins improved their record to 2-1 while handing Canadiens their first loss in three starts.

The Bruins, 0-7-1 against Montreal last season, peppered goalie Brian Hayward for his first goal a split second before he was

Lemelin protected the shutout with saves on three long shots while Montreal pressed a man advantage late in the second period.

Then he made a half dozen outstanding saves while the Bruins were shorthanded again after Neeley was penalized at 12:55 of the final period.

seven alternate players in the 19-4 rout. Another plus to come out of the weekend is that on Sunday the Irish will have six players trying out for the Irish national team. Bob Graham, Wally Maloney, Mike Smiggen, Jim Dudley, Brian Lomastem and Sean McNamara will attempt to make a team that will compete against other select sides from Midwest states in a tournament in Pooila III the following weekend. This weekend the team will take three teams to Kalamazoo to play on a mixed club of older, bigger forwards for the remainder of the season.Quick backs. This will be a real challenge for us," predicted Smiggen. "They beat us last year, and they have a really good organization with quality players.

The Boxing Club will have their Novice Tournament this Friday at 4:30 p.m. in the North Dome of the Joyce ACL. The novice tournament is to teach them techniques and to get them experience at a smaller level so that the Bengal Bouts don't feel new to them.

There will be 24 fighters competing in the tournament and all are anxious to get on the canvas and show what they have. Many of the fighters have discovered there is much more to boxing than meets the eye.

"We came out flat," said club president Mike Smiggen. "We weren't as up as we should have been. Purdue got a 4-point try minutes into the game and won on a try minutes into the game and won. We're stagnant right now, and we played our best game yet finding ourselves as a team. Against Indiana last week (a 3-1 loss), but we haven't built on it; we haven't gone any further as a team.

Indeed the Irish do have the personnel and potential to be a top twenty team. They have shown flashes of brilliance against the nation's best teams this season. But we've come together more as a cohesive unit and play consistently well. The Irish soccer team believes it can definitely achieve its goal of qualifying for the NCAA tournament.

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J., — Eddie Anderson returned an interception 87 yards for a touchdown Monday night to lift the Los Angeles Raiders to a 14-7 victory over the New York Jets in Art Shell's debut as an NFL head coach.

Shell, 42, is the first black head coach in the league since 1925. He replaced Mike Shanahan, who was fired last Tuesday after the Raiders got off to a 1-3 start. The Raiders showed little spark for much of the game. However, they made big plays after the Jets’ key players, who fell to 1-4-1, 3-1 at home. Los Angeles didn’t even need star running back Marcus Allen, who strained his right knee in the third quarter, in lifting their all-time best prime time record to 27-6-1.

After the lightning opener Monday — the first scoreless one in the NFL this season — the teams woke up for 9 1/2 minutes.

Los Angeles needed only two plays to go ahead in the third quarter. Vance Mueller ran 19 yards on a fake to the Raiders’ 27, then Jay Schroeder hit Mervyn Fernandez on a 13-yard pass to the 5. Fernandez eluded Bobby Humphrey and Erik McMillan in the secondary, streaked down the right sideline, then cut toward the middle to reach the 1-yard touchdown on his only reception of the game. It was the sixth straight game that Ter­nandez had gotten into the end zone — he is averaging 23.3 yards on his 18 catches this season.

The Jets came right back, overcoming the errors that vic­timized them in the first half. They beat us last year, and they have a really good organization with quality players.

"We've been working on getting them in boxing shape," explained club president Doug Biolichini. "The purpose of the Novice Tournament is to teach them techniques and to get them experience at a smaller level so that the Bengal Bouts don't feel new to them.

There will be 24 fighters competing in the tournament and all are anxious to get on the canvas and show what they have. Many of the fighters have discovered there is much more to boxing than meets the eye.

"I've learned that boxing isn't just a sport where two people just pummel each other," said the senior defender. "It's a lot more mental preparation than I expected where two people just pummel each other because you have to know when to throw the right combination at the right time."

Each fight will be three rounds. The weight classes will go five rounds. All of the fights will weigh 210 lbs.

"We are a long way from finding ourselves as a team. We're stagnant right now," said the senior defender. "I felt we played our best game yet against Indiana last week (a 3-1 loss), but we haven't built on it; we haven't gone any further as a team.

It's a long road left. We have a lot of games to play, Augusyt said. "If we start off with good game against Akron and build on it, don't see why we can't move on and make the NCAA tournament."

"We're really a great team. We had some chances in the first half and felt good that we were still in it," said Augustyn in assessing the game. "In the second half, our offense took over."

With the conclusion of the weekend games, the Irish remained winless in their last five games. In the down south, the Irish have discovered there is much more to boxing than meets the eye.

Athletics riding high after winning bid to ’89 World Series
Oakland building ‘dynasty’ as they claim AL pennant

Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Ever so slowly, when people talk about the Oakland Athletics, they say: “potential dynasty.”

The A’s won the American League pennant in 1988 after a stretch of 21 consecutive wins. It was the second straight season as much as anything we’ve won in the past two decades, said outfielder Rickey Henderson on Sunday in Toronto. The A’s played well, hitting .310 as a team.

Henderson also expressed his excitement about the A’s chances in the World Series. “I’m ready to go and win it,” he said.

The A’s are the first repeat pennant winner since the New York Yankees won back-to-back titles in 1998 and 1999. But they’ve been playing well in the last couple of months, having won 20 of their last 25 games.

Outfielder Rickey Henderson of the Oakland Athletics is one of the main reasons the A’s are garnering a reputation as a dynasty. Henderson was a catalyst for the A’s when Jose Canseco, Mark McGwire and Dennis Eckersley were missing from the lineup due to injuries and he helped the A’s become the first team in 11 years to win consecutive pennants.

Athletics worth the wait for loyal fans

Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — The Oakland Athletics missed a flight from Toronto and didn’t expect many fans to welcome them home early Monday after winning the American League pennant.

But they were surprised. At least 600 enthusiastic fans were waiting at Oakland International Airport when their heroes appeared shortly after 3 a.m. Some fans had waited several hours for the team.

“I want to see those A’s come out at 5 p.m. and turn negative into positive,” La Russa said.

Dave Stewart, the winning pitcher in Sunday’s 4-3 victory at Toronto, also showed it by showing up early Monday. He arrived with his wife and daughter.

“Our fans carried or wore A’s paraphernalia to show their support over Oakland’s second straight AL pennant, the first team to accomplish that feat in 11 years,” Stewart said.

Harry Legrande, of Antioch, wore a bright gold wig, an A’s jacket and T-shirt and rang a cowbell with a team logo. He arrived at 10:30 p.m.

“My wife thinks I’m nuts,” Legrande said. “I’m a diehard A’s fan. I think the team is more with it this year. It came too easy for them last year.”

Gladys Stout, who said she was in her 70s, arrived with her granddaughter and great-granddaughter.

“I want to see those A’s come in,” said Stout, who wore an A’s cap and golf-ball sized gold earrings with an A’s logo. “They’re just what we want to see.”

At sports clubs in the Oakland area, people celebrated, hoping for a way for fans of the San Francisco Giants, whose fourth game in the National League playoffs began an hour after the A’s victory.

The Giants also won, and on Monday they tried to beat the Chicago Cubs and win the National League pennant, creating a Bay Bridge World Series.

Some patrons at Metree’s Bar and Grill in Alameda were less than thrilled Sunday night about the possibility of a Bay Bridge World Series. Some’s Barry Bonds and the Giants won the Series, they would suffer endless razzing from co-workers or relatives who root for San Francisco.

The Notre Dame men’s golf team is in first place in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference Golf Championships after 36-holes of play Monday at the Weatherwax Municipal Golf Course in Middletown, Ohio.

The Irish have 601 thus far in the 54-hole tournament, as they hold a healthy lead over second-place Xavier, who stands at 616 and Dayton and Miami are in third and fourth place with 627 and 630 points, respectively.

Notre Dame is led by Mike O’Connell, whose 73 and 73 put him one stroke behind of Xavier’s Jeff Lancaster at 148.

His teammate Pat St. John, who had led the pack after the first round of play, dropped into third place with rounds of 74 and 76 for a two-round total of 150.

Irish golfers Paul Nolte and Dave Regnier are tied for fourth with 152 going into today’s final 18 holes of play.
Mark Grace of the Chicago Cubs and his fellow first baseman Will Clark of the San Francisco Giants were stawrasts on their squads during the National League pennant race decided Monday by the Giants 3-2 win. Both teams have club records as Grace hit .647 with one homer and eight RBIs and Clark tallied two singles and eight RBIs to hit .647.

SAN FRANCISCO — Rick Reuschel, the hard-throwing righthander of the San Francisco Giants, put an emphatic end to suggestions that his arm might be tired.

The 40-year-old right-hander, chafed by the Chicago Cubs in Game 2 of the NL playoffs, pitched like a master to win Game 5 Monday and give the Giants their first National League pennant since 1962.

Pitching on three days' rest after giving up four hits in two-thirds of an inning, Reuschel held Chicago to seven hits and an unearned run through eight innings to win 3-2.

He also proved he can be counted on by the Giants when the Bay Bridge World Series begins Saturday at Oakland.

"He had a big monkey to shed today, and he went out there and proved why he won over 200 games," Giants pitcher Mike Krukow said. "The pressure was on him, and he absolutely dealt. He pitched out of jams all day long. It was a day of pinching his common sense and keeping his arm in line with the way he mixed speed."

Reuschel, a 6-foott-3, 240-pounder who sports a beefy belly, jowls and a small mustache, is a quiet, bookish leader. He rarely gets excited by victories and never worries about losses.

He wasn't particularly upset about the Giants' loss. As usual, he took the attitude that he went to work, did his job and couldn't be blamed because the ball didn't go where he wanted it or that the Chicago batters hit it.

He also didn't worry about suggestions by writers and Giants manager Roger Craig that perhaps his arm was tired after going 17-8 during his first major league seasons. Craig has a .304 career average with 309 homers and 352 RBIs. This season, he finished second to Tony Gwynn in batting with a .333 average.

"I would have liked to win the batting title, but I'm here and Tony's not," Clark said.

As a rookie for the Cubs last season, he hit .296 with seven home runs — all on the road.

He led the Cubs with a .314 average and hit 13 homers with 79 RBIs. Clark and Grace are also among the best defensive first basemen around.

"It's been exciting to watch them go at it," Chicago manager Don Zimmer said. "Mark knows he's not where Will Clark is right now, though."

Reuschel outpitches Cubs to help Giants

"This is a highlight," said the oft-quoted Craig, who lost a game for the Giants in his previous playoff appearance against St. Louis two years ago.

"I had no idea it could feel this good. I think I deserve a little bit of celebration. It's been a long time for us." Craig said.

Reuschel said that before the game he gave little thought to his Game 2 shellacking.

"There was no problem (going out and starting Game 5)," he said. "It was a piece of cake. I've done it too many times in my career."

He also didn't think he pitched much differently this time, except for keeping the ball down a little more. But his teammates could sense a difference, even before he took the mound.

"You could tell when Big Daddy was out there," Giants slugger Kevin Mitchell said. "He was throwing his best stuff. I know he's got that big clubhouse earlier. He always is. But you know he's there and he's going to be there. It was nice to see he was going to throw a good game. Big Daddy was so calm out there."

"He's been doing it all year, ever since we've had him (since 1987). You can still do it," said Giants president Al Rosen. "He always gives you great stuff all the time."

When they get to him, they get to him very, early. If they don't get to him early, it's all over. He just knows how to pitch. He keeps coming at you with his high speeds, breaking balls. He knows all about it."

The first jam Reuschel escaped was in the first inning when he gave up two singles. But he struck out Andre Dawson to end the threat.

The only run Reuschel gave up was an unearned one in the third, and a simple flip of the script, the Cubs might have prevented that.

Irish soccer programs have ups and downs over weekend

Men’s squad loses, ties to fall to 5-5-2

BY CHARLIE POLLARD
Sports Writer

The Chicago Cubs were not the only team of local interest to suffer on the West Coast this past weekend. The Notre Dame men’s soccer team came home from the highly regarded Santa Clara Metropolitan Life Classic without a win. However, the trip did not produce entirely negative results.

Friday night, the Irish tied California State/ Los Angeles 0-0 in overtime and then lost the game. On Sunday though, host Santa Clara University overpowered the Irish for a 4-0 victory. In the process, the Irish watched their record fall to .500 at 5-5-2.

The Irish could have won Friday’s game. They had the better scoring chances throughout the game. Their overall team defense was outstanding as well. The Irish managed nineteen shots on goal, their second highest output of the season, yet not one found the Cal. State net. Freshman Kevin Pendergast led the way with five shots on net.

Towards the end of the game, especially in the two overtime periods, the high level of intensity led to numerous fouls on both sides. Five yellow card warnings were issued in the game to add to the 54 fouls whistled against the two teams.

Giants win NL pennant with 3-2 win over Cubs

Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO—Thanks to the ultimate Thrill from Will, the National League is just beginning for the San Francisco Giants and the Bay area.

Clark’s bases-loaded single with two outs in the eighth inning gave the Giants a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs and the National League pennant Monday, setting up a Bay Bridge World Series starting Saturday night at the Oakland Coliseum.

Clark, in one of the greatest postseason performances ever, set an NL playoff record with 13 hits. In a .672 batting average and 24 total bases and was voted the series’ most valuable player. His single to center off Cubs reliever Mitch Williams gave the Giants their first pennant since 1962, four games to one.

“I just try to hang in there,” "I feel like I’m going to get a hit every time up. Just like Richy (Henderson) did for the A’s."

“Macht is a gamer. He’s come in all year and gotten people out. I fought off a few tough pitches before his big hit. "I feel like I’m going to get a hit every time up. Just like Richy (Henderson) did for the A’s."

The Cubs, though, fought until the end. With two out in the ninth inning, Giants reliever Steve Bedrosian gave up three straight singles and ran before retiring Ron Kittle on a ground to second.

Cubs manager Don Zimmer, who was fired and guessed several times in the series for not using a pitcher, is respected — and Clark — once too often.

Starter Mike Bielecki, who allowed only three hits in 7 2/3 innings, walked pinch-hitter Candy Maldonado, Brett Butler and Robby Thompson with two outs in the eighth to load the bases. Clark, who had eight RBIs in the series, then did what has come to be expected.

"Don asked me how I was and I thought I could get Thompson," Bielecki said. "I just got tired, so that I pushed the ball up a bit. I think the key to that inning was Candy Maldonado. I threw some good pitches on the corners but he was able to hit them."

The best move, "Zimmer said, "and I hope they go on and win the Series."

Clark scored eight runs and finished with a 1.200 slugging percentage.

“I hated to see Will Clark up there,” Cubs first baseman Mark Grace said. "He buried us the whole series."

It was yet another disappointing loss for the Cubs, who have not won a World Series since beating Detroit in 1968 and have not even been to one since 1945.

"Don did a tremendous job with this club," Craig said of his longtime friend. "They shouldn’t be too disappointed."

They had a great year."

The Cubs had a 9-23 record in spring training, and most observers picked them for fifth or sixth in the NL East. It was the 16th NL pennant for the Giants since the World Series started in 1903, with 16 coming when the team played in New York. The Giants last won a World Series in 1954 when they swept Cleveland.

It was the first time the Giants have clinched a title of any kind at Candlestick Park and set up the first “Subway Series” since 1956 when the New York Yankees beat the Brooklyn Dodgers in seven games.

Our teammates were great and so were the Bay area fans," Clark said.

Women’s team 7-6 after Miami shotout

BY COLLEEN HENNESSEY
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women’s soccer team raised its record to 7-6 this weekend by handily defeating Miami of Ohio 3-0.

The Irish, led by assistant coach Neil Schmidt while head coach Devlin Craig accompanied the men’s team to California, took an early lead on two goals from sophomore Valerie Zibilis. Miami was unable to recover, and freshman Denise Chabot’s first half goal added insurance to Notre Dame’s shutout victory.

“We basically just dominated everything,” said freshman Margaret Jare. "We kept control and everyone got to play.”

Finishing remains a problem as the Irish defense continues to struggle to convert shots into goals.

“We didn’t test their keeper at all,” Jare said. "We certainly could have scored a lot more."

Notre Dame returns to Krause stadium tonight at 7:30 p.m., this time as host to Tri-State, the first in a four game home-stand that includes RSI, Alma and St. Mary’s.

“They’re small colleges, but a lot of work has been put into women’s soccer in the past few years, and they have strong programs,” said Jare.

Four teams stay unbeaten in IH football action

BY DAVID DIETEMAN

The third Sunday of men’s interhall football was a day that could have historical ramifications, as four teams remained undefeated, the first playoff spot was clinched, and a stunning performance was turned in by a marching band.

In Parsnell League action, powerhouse San Francisco Giants continued its winning ways, blanking Flask in seven innings with a face-mashing, stingy defense, as starting pitcher Robby Allard turned in a storybook performance, as did cornerback Jim O’Flaherty and linebacker Jeff Abbot.

“Happy to be winning,” Grace said of his opponents scoreless in their first three games, and at 3-0, shares the top spot in the Big Thorn division with the Off-Campus Crime, also unbeaten.

Off-Campus shattered the Dillon Big (1-2) early, recurring a first half punt for a 7-0 lead. However, Dillon tied the game before the half, and led 10-7 midway through the second half. Yet it was the Crime who stole the show, recovering a fumbled snap on the Dillon punt and cashing it in for six more points, seriously dampening the Big Red’s playoff hopes.

Meanwhile, in the Leafy League, Lavaughan (3-0) continued its winning ways, clinching the Leafy eight interhall playoff spot with a 7-0 victory over Alumni (1-1), in front of throngs of fans and a marching violin. On the second punt from scrimmage, as “Conquest”
