Panama coup forces seek safety in U.S.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Some of the military forces involved in the failed coup attempt in Panama have been flown by the United States to the United States, U.S. officials have been invited to seek political asylum, the Bush administration said Tuesday.

The State Department said 42 Panamanians have been admitted on humanitarian grounds. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the group included "coup members and their families."

The group is believed to include Adela Benilla Giroldi, widow of the coup leader, Maj. Moises Giroldi. She was accompanied by members of her family.

Capt. Javier Ilicana, believed to be the highest-ranking participant in the coup to escape capture, was reported to be in the United States.

Citing concerns for their safety, Fitzwater refused to identify any of the refugees. He said the mere publishing of their pictures in a newspaper might result in their deaths.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service is prepared to review applications for political asylum if such requests are made," State Department spokesman Margaret Tutwiler said.

She said the Panamanians are being processed by the Catholic Conference, which provides assistance to refugees and people given asylum. U.S. officials in Miami are debriefing them.

Meanwhile, the Pentagon said there had been discussion and confusion among the coup leaders and an argument about whether the rebel Panamanian ruler Manuel Antonio Noriega, who survived the uprising, should be turned over to the United States.

Pentagon spokesman Peter Williams said it was clear that coup leaders had not identified Gen. Noriega as the person they wanted to be turned over.

"You have someone who was one of the topmost political figures. Well, we ought to turn Noriega over to the United States. He has to prevail, and he leaves. And he communicates (to the United States) that the people holding Gen. Noriega still have no intention of turning him over to the United States," Williams said.

"There was never a request for us to come and get him, they never offered him to us," the spokesman said.

Meanwhile, Fitzwater acknowledged at the White House that he had been pressed last week by saying U.S. troops were deployed in Panama at two key points merely to safeguard Americans and to protect the Panama Canal. In fact, the United States had been asked by the rebels to station the forces to block reinforcements for Noriega.

Fitzwater said he had not been aware of the actual facts when he made his original statement. Likewise, Fitzwater also had said the United States was involved in third-party contacts with the rebels before the coup, when in fact U.S. officials were in touch directly with Giroldi.

Nevertheless, Fitzwater defended the administration's handling of the matter.

E. Germany may loosen stance

BERLIN — Communist opposition leaders in Berlin and talks were expected soon in Lisbon in the first sign of a shift in the East German government's hard-line stance, news reports said Tuesday.

Prominent Lutheran official Hans Otto Furian meanwhile said in East Berlin that the Communist Party "must give up its grip on total power."

Also in East Berlin, pro-democracy activists said at least 500 protesters arrested in Dresden were freed and released soon, but Mandela will remain in prison, President F. de Klerk reiterated his hard-line position.

Conflicting reports also emerged on Tuesday as to whether the Lutheran Church had taken up a dialogue with the central government or whether the talks remained on the local level.

West Germany's ZDF television network, quoting high-level church sources, said talks about the unrest "had begun with central officials in the East German government. It did not elaborate or identify the participants."

ZDF said talks between Berlin and pro-democracy activists also are set to begin Tuesday.

"There is a fundamental lesson to be learned," de Klerk said. "We are all going to be greatly endowed with the power of the people."

Whether the Lutheran Church is to go into full-scale pro-democracy movement.

"In this respect, there is a fundamental lesson to be learned," de Klerk said. "We are all going to be greatly endowed with the power of the people."

S. Africa to release 5 prisoners in 'spirit of reconciliation'

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Five other African National Congress leaders jailed 25 years ago with Nelson Mandela are being freed unconditionally soon, but Mandela will remain in prison, President F. W. de Klerk said Friday.

They are among eight age, length of jail, de Klerk said would be released to "contribute to the spirit of reconciliation which is present in our country."

Mandela, who is at the heart of many black South Africans as their leader, was told of the proposed releases in advance. Murphy Morobe, spokesman for the banned United Democratic Front anti-apartheid alliance, was with Mandela at his home on the Victor Verster prison farm, north of Cape Town when the releases were announced on state television.

"Mr. Mandela told me that he greatly enjoy his sleep tonight after all his efforts to secure their release," Morobe said, and quoted Mandela as saying in South African: "The people are going to be greatly embarrassed by the authorities and who are coming out of jail."

Morobe and a few other black anti-apartheid leaders were at the Mandela house, including Zindzi Mandela, wife of Man­ dela's close friend, and ANC leader of Pan African Freedom, 77-year-old Walter Sisulu. They held an impromptu two-hour party until 10 p.m.

Cassiem Saloojee, a member of the group, read a statement from Mandela, 71, saying "My release is not an issue at this stage." Saloojee added: "His deepest concern is that all the other comrades be released."

The release had been expected as a condition for Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain to use at the forthcoming Commonwealth summit in December.

The release was seen as a sign of willingness Tuesday to talk with pro-democracy activists. But East German leader Erich Honecker reiterated his hard-line position.

On Wednesday, de Klerk is to meet in Pretoria with three of the most prominent black South African clerics: Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu; the Rev. Allan Boesak, president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches; and the Rev. Frank Chikane, general secretary of the South African Council of Churches.

They have said they want to contribute to the Commonwealth conference whether the government changed. On Wednesday, de Klerk said he had met with moderate blacks, including leaders of tribal homelands whom the African National Congress re­ jected, had "carried special weight."

The Supreme Court turned away free-speech arguments Tuesday and allowed the use of a federal racketeering law against 26 anti-abortion protesters in Philadelphia. The court let stand a summary judgment for the state of Pennsylvania against the operators of an abortion clinic in that city. The litigation strategy has proved troubling to some abortion rights advocates, who fear that political organizers will be labeled "racktoreers" and be financially liable for nothing more than expressing their views.

The flow of elderly to the South and West is economic good news for the states where they move, report two researchers who foresee increased competition among Sun Belt states to lure retirees. An empty-handed spending on housing, food and other goods provides a multimillion dollar boost to the economies of the states, says Charles Longino of the University of Miami and William Crown of Brandeis University.

A Christian couple and their eight children who fled religious persecution in the Soviet Union have become the targets of death threats, vandalism and a cross burning in their new home in Westville, Ind. Members of the family aren't sure if they can fight for their freedom, as they are fighting for their home and their freedom against the forces of Satan and the church of Satan, says Rev. John Doe of the Westville Church of Satan.

With a luncheon featuring Vice President Dan Quayle, the University of Notre Dame is the latest university to convene the first session of the University of Notre Dame. According to the U.S. News & World Report, the University of Notre Dame is one in four of the college seniors polled did not know that Christopher Columbus discovered America in 1492 — they didn't even get the correct century.

This month, from listing the other statistics in the article, but I think the message should be quite clear: we are not fast becoming a nation of diong dongs. It sounds funny, when you think of all those college students pointing to the Pacific Ocean when asked to place it on the map of the United States and saying it's the Atlantic Ocean, but it's really quite scary.

Maybe those statistics don't apply to students at Notre Dame as much as they apply to students at other universities. It's too bad that the education system is so corrupt, and we will be in the minority. It's rather embarrassing that the generation before us are going to refer to all of us as a generation of bohets.

So what is to blame? A lot of people blame the government — if only the president would put less emphasis on weapons and more emphasis on education, our children would be brighter. This is true — but it won't solve everything. President Bush could improve the education budget tenfold and there would still be kids in this country who think that Ronald Reagan and Richard King started the Protestant Reformation.

So what can be done to prevent another generation of ignorant people? In my opinion, a good education is like a triangle: you need three sides.

One side of the triangle is the teacher. If a student is doing poorly in school, the teacher should hold the kid back one year until he knows enough to go on to the next grade. Allowing an illiterate fifth grader to proceed to the sixth grade is not going to make things easier for the student; the kid will just get further and further behind and eventually give up on ever learning how to read and write. A teacher ought to be able to recognize problem students early and help them out instead of sending them through the system like products on a conveyor belt.

Another side of the triangle is the parents. Parenting is a full-time job and it's a lifetime commitment. If parents don't know that their own children can't read or write, our national teachers are responsible for nothing.

World Awareness week activities focus on China

The Notre Dame Student Government Intellectual Life Commission kicked off its first in a series of World Awareness weeks this week with its focus on China.

In cooperation with the Chinese Friendship Association and the Chinese Student Solidarity Union, the Student Government is sponsoring Chinese Awareness Week throughout this week.

On Monday over 100 people attended the showing of "The Last Emperor" at the Hesburgh Memorial Library with comments from Professor Mia Wong Buschman of Indiana University, South Bend.

A lecture was held Tuesday night by Wenjuan Guo, senior editor of the Chinese Central Television, and Notre Dame Professor Xuan Gao. The lecture was on "Manifestations of Themes of Confucianism and Chinese Literature in Chinese Society."

Tonight at 7 p.m. in the Montgomery Theatre, Professor Peter Moody and Kwan Kim will discuss the events leading up to and including the prodemocratic student uprising in China. The lecture is entitled "The Last 10 Years of Political/Economic Reform in China."

Professor Shaozi Su of Marquette University, currently exiled from China, and Lu Li, a student leader and hunger striker of the prodemocratic movement who is now on the Chinese Government's wanted list will lecture on "Tiananmen Square and the Future of the Prodemocratic Movement."

Friday will conclude the week with a Chinese meal at the Blue Room in the North Dining Hall. Father Hesburgh will deliver a speech about his experiences with U.S./Chinese relations.

"Limited reservations must be obtained from the Student Government secretary on the 2nd floor LaFortune."

Charlie Maher who has helped originate and plan the idea of having various student awareness weeks at Notre Dame says he expects about 3 focus weeks a semester, each to be for specific regions in the world covering issues that include the politics, economics, history and culture pertaining the the region.

Commenting on Chinese Awareness Week, the first focus week, Maher said, "I'm really impressed at the turn-out so far. It's been fantastic."

A skit performed by the theatrical group Irish Accent and members of Irish Insanity has also been planned before the evening's pep rally.

Irish Insanity constructed the horse to boost spirit and attendance at the pre-game pep rally. "Pep rallies have generally turned into an alumni event," said Straub. "We thought the horse was a perfect opportunity to get people over there again."

The horse will be stationed around campus throughout the day, and from 6:15 to 6:30 p.m., it will travel around campus picking up students to attend the pep rally. The Leprechaun may "pop up" somewhere along the route, Straub said.

An HPC project, the Quarter Mile, will also be a part of the festivities October 20. From 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., one mile of tape will be spread between Dillon Hall and The Hesburgh Notre Dame Bookstore to collect money for the United Way.

Students are asked to stick their quarters and other change on the tape. HPC hopes to collect a mile of quarters for the charity.

The establishment of the Hall Spirit Award was announced by Dwayne Hicks, of the Alumni Association. The '85 grad initiation will be on honor to a senior from each dorm who best represents the spirit of Notre Dame.

The senior will be chosen in each hall from a ballot of students chosen by the dorm's judicial board. Sticks stressed that the award is not a popularity contest. "It's an award for the social person in each dorm who has helped make it a better place," he said.

John Lubrano, general manager of Theodore's, requested HPC's assistance in improving the dance club's image. By soliciting suggestions from each dorm, Lubrano feels the club can better accommodate the wishes of the student body. "I need a mechanism for bringing these suggestions to me," he said.

Also speaking at HPC was a representative from SUB, who outlined Greek Week, which will take place November 7-11. Men's and women's dorms will be paired for the contest, which includes a fun run and team-oriented games. Movies, such as Animal House and Revenge of the Nerds, will be featured.

Tonight's Family Focus, "Alcoholism in the family," will take place at 8 p.m. Pangborn Hall. Alcohol and Drug Education Coordinator Carolyn Kelly will speak and present a video of family situations involving alcoholism.

Observer classifieds will be accepted from 9am-3pm M-F at the Observer offices, 314 LaFortune.

defamation campaign against the GDR (East Germany) and other Socialist states," the East German news agency ADN said.

Honecker's statement ap­ ppeared to signal a willingness to crush dissent, if necessary, despite the Leipzig and Dresden leaderships' willingness to talk with opposition groups.

Manfred Bilde, deputy director of the Lutheran Church Federation, earlier Tuesday denied a West German radio report that said high-level talks had been held between church leaders and government officials in East Berlin.

But he said: "working groups" did exist on several levels to discuss the current situation. He did not elaborate, adding only: "We're not sleeping.''

Christof Ziemer, the superintendent of Dresden's Lutheran Church, said topics discussed were election reforms, travel restrictions and release of those arrested during demonstrations.

The events in Leipzig and Dresden were the first significant sign of any breakthrough in the country's hard-line stance.

privately the process can take from an hour to two weeks.

According to the president, "all relevant factors were brought into consideration, including the fact that most of these prisoners had already served many, many years of their sentences and are already advanced in years... A favorable climate currently exists in which the release can take place." The most prominent prisoner on the list is Bizana, who ran day-to-day operations of the ANC as its secretary-general in 1949-54, when the government ordered him to resign.

He was sentenced to life in June 1964, along with Mandela and other leaders of the ANC's internal military wing, for sabotage and plotting the overthrow of the white government.

Mandela already had spent two years in prison.

Mandela's other co-de­ defendants to be freed are Ahmed Kathrada, 60; Andrew Man­ geni, 63; Elias Motsoaledi, 65;
and Raymond Mhlaba, 69.

Wilton Mkwayi, 66, who briehly took command of the ANC military wing, Spear of the Nation, after Mandela's co-de­ defendants were arrested in July 1963, is to be released from a life term he received after a separate trial in 1964.

De Klerk's announcement also named Oscar Mphetha, an 80-year-old, partially blind disabled veteran who was arrested in July 1968, and spent most of his five-year prison term in the hospital and was due for release next year.

Mphetha, the country's oldest political prisoner, was the ANC leader in Cape province and, during the appeal of his terrorism sentence in 1983, was elected a co-president of the United Democratic Front.

The judge said he did not want to send Mphetha to prison but that the Terrorism Act, since repealed, required it.

No information was immediately available on the eighth man to be freed, Jaffa Masemula.

Two other co-defendants of Mandela, Dennis Goldberg and Govan Mbeki, were freed previously.

Goldberg, the only white convicted in the trial, was deported in 1985.

Mbeki was released two years ago in what the government said was a test case for the possible release of Mandela. He was banned from speaking in public, talking to the press or leaving his hometown, even though the government had said his release was unconditional.

In the fall of 1965, I went off to the University of Notre Dame in search of a graduate degree. What I discovered was an institution engaged in an self-destructive struggle with its own mortality. I was not alone in my observations, as the student body had contracted all the characteristic symptoms of the 1960's. The "establishment" was vilified. Free love was celebrated. And, for some reason I can't quite recall, the basics of hygiene were sparagued and felt into alarming disfavor.

Students fail to test the University's authority

Dear Editor:

Female priests fulfill Church values

Dear Editor:

Women of the altar?

Dear Editor:

Notre Dame's homosexuals should 'come out', speak up and be proud they 'are ND too'

Why is it that at Notre Dame no one ever seems to question the authority of the administration, when the administration allows so many things to happen that shouldn't?

I have thought of three exceptions that do not care and yet should.

Take, for example, the class of many upper, level classes. We pay $14,000 every year and the provost should realize that we should not have to put up with having more than 20 or at most 30 in our 400 and 500-level classes. The ideal would be to have only 10 or 15 in a class; to have 50 to 60 students in an upper level course is not acceptable to the teacher and to the student because there is no interaction on a personal level.

This interaction is vital to a student's education. My favorite classes are ones in which I can personally relate to the teacher. It is a class more enjoyable and it forces me to work harder because I do not want to disappoint the teacher whom I also consider my friend.

At JUPLI when a class gets too big they simply hire another teacher. One may argue that Notre Dame does not have the resources, but I believe that we can afford it. Under the same provost, the University could focus its attention away from construction of new buildings to financing the salaries of more teachers. Having more teachers would cause the class sizes to decrease.

If there is a space problem for the increased number of new classes, then take some of the money that the University receives in donation and build another dormitory. This would be immediately beneficial to all. Classes would be more intimate, fun, and challenging.

We should vocalize our complaints because our silence allows the provost to continue his policy.

Another example can be seen in the University Food Services run by William Hickey. Aside from the inexcusably low rating it received for its health standards and flexible meal plan, I only eat two meals a day, yet I am charged for three. I have heard the argument that the price avenger was getting a good deal, but that is not the point. The point is we as students have no control in determining something as inconsequential as a meal plan. What happens to the student who eats in the cafeteria only once a week? But just to reiterate, how is it fair to him?

One final example is the Notre Dame Hammes Bookstore. I have not done a scientific study on price differences between Pandora's books and Notre Dame's, but I have looked at a few to see if there is a difference, and there is.

First of all, of course, "Firmament of Time" by Loren Eiseley is priced by Notre Dame at $6.95. If you take off the bookstore's price sticker you find the publisher's price is under a dollar.

In the summer of 1969, many of my fellow homosexuals at Notre Dame were revolting and rebelling against the administration. We were challenging the administration and yet the administration was really not irritated.

We lived our lives and letting our families know.

We were not perfect humans. Some may argue that I knew the rules before I got here and I should have gone somewhere else. But just to reiterate, how is it fair to him?

Too many students passively sit back and allow the administration to get away with it.

The central question is not why Notre Dame is as it is, but why doesn't anyone do anything about it?

Some may argue that division to dictate policy that is not always fair. Where is the free thinking that is supposed to occur at a university?

This applies to the Church. While it is strictly a church issue, it affects the University too.

Across the nation today, people are stepping out of hidden lives and letting their families know simply to be themselves. They do not care that they have previously been kept hidden.

As part of Notre Dame, we are not expected to do the same. We are not expected to reveal our personal lives and to be proud and perhaps a little bit, be accepted for who we really are without being known as gay persons.

As far back as they can remember, many gay people recall their feelings and emotions being比起 when they were children and believed they were going to hell by themselves as gay persons.

Many celebrities, sports heroes, presidents, popes and other public figures have come out in conformity with the expectations of society, gotten married, divorced, alcoholism, or suicide.

However, I have been told that I am a different species. To acknowledge my true feelings and try to lead a life in conformity to my true feelings and try to lead a life in conformity goes.

LEGAL PROCEDURES without BOUNDS

South African security police given unlimited authority to detain political opponents

The reality of Section 29 is that it is a cruel and barbaric procedure which attempts to inflict the greatest punishment to enemies of the regime.

Even children, such as these from the Crossroads, can be potential victims of Section 29.

Detention under Section 29 permits the South African government to silence protesters and critics of apartheid in a quick and efficient manner, all in the guise of "legal" proceedings. The reality of Section 29 is that it is a cruel and barbaric procedure which attempts to inflict the greatest punishment on enemies of the regime. The Security Police is given unlimited discretion during interrogation proceedings, and, simply stated, they are ruthless.

Enormous pressure is placed on the detainees, including psychological and physical torture, intimidation, coercion and assaults. Dehumanizing and degrading treatment is the norm, such as lengthy interrogation and months of solitary confinement. Furthermore, under Section 29, access to family, friends or even a lawyer can be denied if accused. It is a grand scheme to break the mental and physical faculties of the detainee and ultimately to produce information which can be used against him at his trial. It is not surprising that a very high number of detainees under Section 29 eventually sign "confessions" which are then admitted in court.

The tragic aspect of Section 29 is the fact that it is in effect every day. Detention is a constant threat to those South Africans who wish to become involved in the struggle against apartheid. An individual simply cannot become too outspoken or too politically active due to the threat of governmental retribution and Section 29. This is one fundamental barrier to political organization and mobilization of the black South Africans. Also, inherent in the system is a basic mistrust of those you do not know extremely well. Government informers inflate an enormous array of social and religious organizations and they are eager to expose any suspected "enemies of the state" to the Security Police because they are rewarded handsomely. The fear of informers reaches every level of society, and I witnessed the effects during one of my visits to a colored township. After sitting in during a youth group meeting of teenagers, I noticed the participants were not enthusiastic about answering some of my questions, specifically those relating to the government and the South African Defense Force. Afterward, the group leader explained to me that probably at least two or three of the children were informers, so the other children had to be very careful not to say anything which may later incriminate themselves.

During my visit, I became intimately aware of the evil of detention at a personal level. Mr. Ngconde Balfour, a staff member of the Provincial Church at which Archbishop Tutu presides, was coming into work at St. George's Cathedral in February of this year. As he approached his office, four men with guns jumped out of a van and proceeded to force him into the vehicle against his will. Luckily a fellow staff member had witnessed the event or Mr. Balfour would have simply disappeared as so many black South Africans. In any event, Mr. Balfour has remained in detention since that day and he has not yet been charged with any crime.

Walker’s future with Dallas shaky

Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — The Dallas Cowboys had an open "fire sale" on running back Herschel Walker while NFL owners met several miles away Tuesday trying to pick a new commissioner.

Agents Peter Johnson and Ralph Cindrich were considering a restructuring of Walker's $1 million per year contract as part of the price for him leaving the Cowboys.

Coach Jimmy Johnson met with Cindrich for two hours at the hotel where the owners were meeting Tuesday afternoon, but avoided reporters by taking a fire escape out. He barked a terse "No comment" when asked if there was anything new about the possible Walker trade.

"The ball's in Herschel's court now," a Cowboys' source said. "It's up to him to make a deal."

The NFL trade deadline is next Tuesday.

The Minnesota Vikings have dangled two No. 1 draft picks, several other high picks and two starters as trade bait.

Mike Lynn, general manager for the Minnesota Vikings, was in Dallas for the NFL meeting and also pursuing a trade with Cowboys' owner Jerry Jones.

Jones had meetings scheduled with Lynn and Walker's agents.

"It's difficult to think of the Dallas Cowboys without Herschel Walker but we can't close our eyes and ears to anything that might help the club," Jones said. "I'll be in touch with his agents today."

Johnson said the winless Cowboys would prepare for Sunday's game with the San Francisco 49ers as if Walker would be in the lineup.

"Herschel Walker is a fantastic running back and can do what he wants to do," Johnson said. "If he wants to stay here, I want him to stay here."

Walker said he wasn't sure where he would be on Sunday.

"I've been happy in Dallas but if it happens, it happens," he said.

Johnson said he hoped the Walker trade talk didn't distract from the 49ers.

"I don't think it will be," Johnson said. "I've been around more distracting things than this. We can't use this as an excuse. We've just got to start blocking and tackling and maybe we can win some games."

Johnson added, "Just when we think things are difficult, then they get more difficult with San Francisco in town."

The Cowboys are last in the NFL in total offense and Darryl Clark, the listed backup to Walker, has yet to carry the ball this season.

"We've had a lot of problems installing our offensive and defensive schemes," Johnson said. "Also, what makes it harder is that we are trying to do it with a team that hasn't been all that successful in the past."

Farley downs Lewis

By RICHARD MATHURIN
Sports Writer

The Women's interball foot-bball season is reaching the crucial part of the season and the playoff picture is taking form. Highlighting this week's play were the women of Farley who knocked off 1988 champions from Lewis.

"We wanted to revenge last years semifinal loss," said Farley defensive captain Connie Boyden, after her team shutout of Lyons 1-0.

Farley used a ferocious defense and a well timed passing game to win the most pivotal game of the season so far.

Freshman Kathryn Anne Baumel's second half touchdown sealed the win for the Finest, who remained undefeated.

Superstar running back Kristy Alkidas scored the only touchdown in Breen Phillips 8-0 win over Badin. Captain Mary Beth Roveda attributed the win to, "balance on both offense and defense." The Blitz also remained undefeated but will have to wait until the playoffs for a showdown with Farley.
Lyons moved its record to 4-2 with a 3-0 victory over Siegfried. Michelle Richards and Debbie Mitchell both cared touchdowns for Lyons, and Natasha Gaul had two interceptions.

The game marked the return of Lyons quarterback Liz Holtz from injury.

"We're looking forward to rematches with Breen Phillips and Farley in the playoffs," said Lyons captain Liz Nolan.

In other action, Tomi Otey returned a punt 60 yards to set up a score and had an interception to lead Walsh to an 18-8 victory over Tooley. Liz Toohey, Colleen Stepan and Jeannie Trezvant all scored touchdowns for Walsh in the win.

Mihalko

Mihalko earned a monogram for his backup role at fullback in 1988 and then went on to earn the Hering Award as the most improved Irish offensive back during '89 spring drills. This year Mihalko will take on a much greater role for the Irish. He has carried 5 times for 20 yards, including 3 rushes for 10 yards against Stanford. He also had a six yard reception against the Cardinals. Mihalko sees this year as another step up the ladder.

"I take pride in my blocking," said Mihalko. "I have a size advantage so that's what the team needs, that's what I'll do.

Running Back coach Jim Strong agrees that Mihalko is a fine blocker.

"Ryan takes a lot of pride in what he's doing," says Strong.
"He finds his landmarks and makes good sight adjustments.
He's fundamentally sound, but the key to blocking is attitude." Ryan Mihalko certainly has the right attitude. Coach Strong not only sees Ryan Mihalko as a good football player, but a good person.

"As a player, he's relentless," said Strong. "He's physical and absolutely intense all day in practice on every play. When we get freshman in and we want them to develop the correct work habits, we tell them to go watch Ryan Mihalko.

That, ladies and gentleman, is what has made Ryan Mihalko a factor for Notre Dame and will continue to him a great player."
Miami Hurricane’s QB’s may share duties for the No. 2 team

Associated Press

The Hurricanes play San Jose State on Saturday. A bye precedes the Miami-Florida State showdown Oct. 28. The coach is hoping that Craig Erickson will be healthy and able to face the Seminoles.

"In my mind that’s what we’re shooting for. But we really won’t know for a couple of weeks."

The quarterback had surgery to repair the knuckle fracture one day after the injury and had the hand placed in a brace. Therapy has begun to decrease the swelling.

The Chicago offense struggled at times in the 3 1/2 games in which the strong-armed Erickson has played. His statistics include 75 completions in 146 attempts for 980 yards, with eight touchdowns and six interceptions. Erickson’s rating is 118.8; Torretta’s is 144.6.

"Craig’s the No. 1 quarterback,” the coach said. "He earned it over a long period of time, and he has played well. He has improved through the season.”

"Torretta, a 19-year-old redshirt freshman, did not seem inclined Tuesday to stir controversy at quarterback.

"I must have a valid theory. I would hope the coach would have enough confidence to put me back in,” Torretta said. "I can understand that.”

Erickson isn’t the Hurricanes’ only talented freshman quarterback. Bryan Fortay, one of the nation’s most heavily recruited prep quarterbacks last winter, made his collegiate debut in the second half of the Cincinnati game.

"I didn’t impress myself too much,” Fortay said Tuesday after reviewing film. "I looked like a freshman. I was tentative and nervous.”

The Hurricanes may have a battle on their hands in the quarterback controversy if the situation is right. Torretta has a 2-0 record for the No. 2 collegiate team in the country.

The Notre Dame men’s golf team retained their Midwestern Collegiate Conference Golf Championship title this week. The Irish traveled to the University of Cincinnati Municipal Golf Course in Middleton, Ohio to compete in the two day event.

The Championship was a three-round tournament which included 36 holes of play on Monday and 18 holes of play on Tuesday. The Irish’s five-man line up consisted of six-year senior Pat Mohan, freshman Joe Dennen, junior Paul Nolta, sophomore Mike O’Connell, and freshman Dave Rignier.

On Monday, the Irish finished with a overall combined 601 score which gave them a healthy lead over opponents Xavier, Dayton, and Marquette who were second, third and fourth, respectively.

The Irish placed fourth in the tournament’s top four positions at the conclusion of the first day’s play. Mike O’Connell led the Irish in first place with a 75-73 while teammate Pat Mohan held third with a 74-76. Paul Nolta and Dave Rignier tied for fourth with combine scores of 152.

On Tuesday, the Irish continued their consistent play and finished with a 322. Paul Nolta finished first for the team with a 79 followed by teammates Pat Mohan 80, Dave Rignier 81, Joe Dennen and Mike O’Connell 82.

The overall individual scores for the three-round tournament were Mike O’Connell 230; Pat Mohan 230; Paul Nolta 231; Dave Rignier 233, Joe Dennen 236. The Irish finished out the tournament with an overall team score of 923 while Xavier finished second with a 927 and Dayton and Detroit tied for third with 942.

The Irish are now setting their sights on the Buckeye Fall Classic which will be held this coming weekend at Ohio State University.

Mihalko’s role to increase for Irish

By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

There’s an old saying that the only two things that are constant are that you’ll die and that you’ll pay taxes.

Look at the Notre Dame Football Guidebook under fullback Henry Mihalko and you'll see the Irish may have two straight shutouts and their sixth win in a row, but they have been frustrated by Susie Zilvitis, Bands along with Redmayn Culver to provide the Irish with an opportunity to end that streak.

The old saying holds true once again as the situation has changed drastically since Notre Dame won the National Championship last year. Braxton Banks is out with a knee injury and Rodney Culver has done most of his playing at halfback behind Ricky Watters. That means that Ryan Mihalko will continue to play a bigger and bigger role for the 1989 Irish in their quest to repeat as national champions.

Women’s soccer down Tri-State with 10-0 win

By DAVID DIETEMAN

On a cold and windy October evening, the Notre Dame women’s soccer team sped past the Tri-State Women of Troy 10-0, registering their second straight shutout and their sixth win in a row.

Senior co-captain Joy Sislock opened the scoring at 5:47 of the first half, beating Tri-State goalkeeper Linda Hamilton on a cross from right wing Susie Zilvitis. The swarming Notre Dame attack quickly forced another score, as senior co-captain K.T. Sullivan found the net at 6:04 of the first half, with an assist by junior forward Mimi Suba.

Freshman midfielder Marianne Giolitto then got into the act with a goal at 15:30 of the first half, raising the Irish tally to 3-0. Again, the Women of Troy managed to withstand the Irish onslaught, but at 25:29 of the first half, freshman Jean Keaveney scored her second goal of the game, this time on a penalty kick.

But yet again, the Tri-State Women of Troy, exhausted by frequent substitutions on the part of the Irish, frustrated the Notre Dame assault for what may have been the Irish’s only score of the game.

The Irish locked down the defense and put the game out of reach for Tri-State with goals by Mozart, Zilvitis and Keaveney.

Thank God for the Cubs! Baseball is better off with them

I sat there and watched grown men pour champagne over each other’s heads and tried to make some sense of it all. To figure out what it meant in the larger context of life.

The San Francisco Giants had just eliminated the Cubs in the 1986 World Series against the Chicago Cubs. It was a series in which the Cubs were supposed to win.

Why does He get their hopes up—three times in a row—then let them down? Why does He let a kid named Ryne Sandberg get his hopes up and then not deliver? Why does He let a ball roll between his legs in the 1986 World Series against the Chicago Cubs and then not deliver?
