Czechs denounce police’s brutality
30,000 call for govt to resign

PRAGUE: Czechoslovakia (AP) — About 30,000 demonstrators Sunday denounced police brutality and demanded that the government and top Communist officials resign. Authorities arrested 10 dissidents but left the marchers alone.

The government denied reports that police killed a student in bloody clashes Friday, when hundreds were beaten, tear-gassed and attacked by dogs in the largest demonstration in 20 years.

Sunday’s rally began with a few thousand protesters gathering on downtown Wenceslas Square, but the crowd grew to 30,000 as demonstrators reached Narodni Street, where white-helmeted riot police beat demonstrators Friday.

“Don’t let them murder you!” the crowd chanted. They also chanted such slogans as “Write Truthfully,” “Paper Unions,” and “Jakes to the Trotz.”

Miloš Jakes is the hard-line leader of the ruling Communist Party and, unlike most East bloc leaders, has resisted reforms orchestrated by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

About 2,000 demonstrators split away and crossed a bridge over the Vitava River in an apparent attempt to reach the hillside presidential residence. Police did not interfere in the protest. (see CZECH/ page 4)

Tens of thousands continue to protest in East Germany

DRUSDENG, East Germany (AP) — Tens of thousands of protesters in at least eight cities braved icy winds Sunday to keep the beat on the Communist leadership, despite open border openings and the election of a reform-minded Cabinet one day earlier.

Nearly 3 million East Germans crossed into West Berlin and West Germany between Friday and Sunday, the second weekend since the government opened borders to the West, border police said. Most were just visiting for the day.

Ferry service across the Elbe River, which forms part of the border, resumed Sunday at Hitzacker, about 80 miles southeast of Hamburg, for the first time since April 25, 1945.

In other changes, the official ADN news agency reported that the roles of the party and the government in East Germany’s armed forces will be separated.

Also Sunday, an opposition leader said his pro-democracy group would hold a convention next month to establish itself as a formal political party.

Wolfgang Schnur, in an interview with West Germany’s ARD television network, said his Democratic Awakening opposition group will meet Dec. 16-17 — the same time the Communist Party will be holding a special session in East Berlin to look at further leadership changes.

Communist chief Eugen Kreutz assured East Germans in a televised interview late Sunday that he will fight for political reforms. “If the party is of another opinion, then they should find another general secretary,” he said at his East Berlin home.

ADN said 50,000 people participated in Dresden’s first officially authorized protest rally. Other estimates of the crowd size ranged up to 100,000.

“Lord don’t forgive them because they knew what they did,” said one banner in the southern city, making a biting play on words from Jesus Christ’s agony on the cross.

In East Berlin, thousands participated in an unauthorized march from the Alexanderplatz square to Parliament, calling for sweeping reforms and abolition of the Communist Party’s guaranteed monopoly on power.

Parliament on Saturday confirmed a reform-minded Cabinet of Communist Premier Hans Modrow and created a committee to study possible constitutional changes, including dropping a law guaranteeing Communist Party dominance.

TV takeoff
Students performing in “Black Images,” a presentation sponsored by the Black Cultural Art Council, do a parody of the Arsenio Hall Show on Saturday night.

Vigil for slain Jesuit priests tonight

BY JOHN O’BRIEN
News Writer

A mass and a candlelight vigil will be held tonight to raise awareness of the slaying of six Jesuit priests in El Salvador on Thursday.

According to Father Joseph Ross, rector of Morrissey Hall and one of the event’s organizers, there will be a mass in the Alumni Hall chapel at 5 p.m. to remember the six priests.

At 9:15 p.m., there will be a prayer service in the Pasquerilla West Chapel followed by a candlelight procession to the Grotto and back, said Ross.

Ross said that the priests’ killing was one of the most outrageous incidents in a country where “the level of violence is extraordinary.”

The priests, along with their housekeeper and her daughter, were killed and mutilated by armed men who stormed into their house at a leading University in San Salvador on Thursday.

Among those killed were Ignacio Ellacuria, rector of José Simeon Canas Central American University, and vice-rector Ignacio Martín-Baró, the country’s leading expert on polls and polling procedures. Also killed were four other priests, all educators, a servant and her 15-year-old daughter.

Ross said that he doubted the Salvadoran government’s assertion that the victims were murdered by leftist forces posing as members of right-wing death squads in an effort to frame the government. “It’s about as likely as me going to the moon,” he said.

The section of San Salvador where the killings happened is under extremely tight security and thirty uniformed men could not just move around freely, he said.

“They keep saying they’re [the priests] so-called leftists and they’re on the side of the devil,” Ross said. “If that’s true, why would the leftists kill them?”

According to published reports, the extreme right has far more than a decade accused local Jesuits and their university of fostering subversive ideology.

Ross said that the priests were killed because they advocated two dangerous issues in El Salvador: literacy and land reform.

“The majority of land is owned by a small group of people and mentioning land reform is a dangerous thing,” he said, adding that the priests’ position regarding land reform has earned them the label of “communists.”

“Literacy in a country like El Salvador is also a dangerous idea because once people learn to read and write, they want more of a share of the power,” he said. “The government, however, doesn’t want that to happen.”

According to Ross, Salvadoran President Alfredo Cristiani, if not responsible for the killings, is still a member of the ARENA party. “Its founder is...
Guys are on their own now with laundry

Rumor has it that the underneath and load departments at L.S. Ayres, Hudson’s, and Penney’s were the places to be this weekend. Apparently many of Notre Dame guys were replenishing their stock after St. Michael's Laundry burned down Thursday night.

For the first time since I’ve been at Notre Dame I am very glad that girls do not have the option of doing laundry. Notre Dame is finally being punished, either by God or some feminist group, for its chauvinistic ways.

At least Phyllis Diller is definitely not a suspect — she probably feels women should not willingly accept guys’ laundry and do it free.

Actually, for those of us who have the time, this is a great entrepreneurial opportunity.

Unfortunately, I think the guys realize that we will take them for everything they are worth, so we will be seeing many men in our already overcrowded laundry rooms.

For those guys who naively entrusted all their laundry to St. Michael’s and have never done laundry before, here are some tips:

• Despite the popular myth, all of your dirty laundry cannot go into the washing machine at one time.

• Unless you are very fond of wearing pink, do not wash anything red with anything other colored.

• Do not put fabric softener in the dryer; otherwise you might be walking around with a sock clinging to your shirt.

• If you are very fond of wearing your knees on your favorite jeans.

• Don’t forget to put fabric softener in the dryer; otherwise you might be walking around with a sock clinging to your shirt.

• Unless you want to revive the once-trendy “floodies,” don’t put all your jeans in the dryer, especially if they’re new.

• If you’re not alone, or if you’re alone but feel like you’re in the majority, put your own clothes in the dryer. This means that it should not be used to get the dirt out of the knees on your favorite jeans.

• When deciding how much detergent to put in, always remember that the Robby Bunch when Peter put in too much soap and flooded the laundry room.

• A nice fake, call Miss Kitty Dukakis. Maybe the destruction of St. Michael’s isn’t so bad after all.

Who knows? This crisis could really unite males and females on campus. It could be just what the University is looking for. It may be the start of a new trend: laundry room bonding.

Throughout the entire author’s and not necessarily those of The Observer.

A show of “Black Images” will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Library Auditorium by the Black Cultural Art Council. Song, poetry, dance, and skits relating to African Americans will be included.

A veiled countdown for launching the shuttle Discovery at Cape Canaveral on Thanksgiving Eve with five astronauts and a secret spy satellite began Sunday as noon even though workers at the pad were several hours behind schedule in doing final checks and dosing up the shuttle over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe, said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

A veiled countdown for launching the shuttle Discovery at Cape Canaveral on Thanksgiving Eve with five astronauts and a secret spy satellite began Sunday as noon even though workers at the pad were several hours behind schedule in doing final checks and dosing up the shuttle over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe, said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

Thousands of flag-waving Spaniards demonstrated in downtown Madrid on Sunday to send lawmakers a message that they will not tolerate any curbs on abortion rights. A crowd estimated at 4,500 people held a worship service at the Indiana War Memorial downtown.

The oldest, most faraway object yet found in the universe has been discovered by astronomers in Pasadena, Calif. It is a star-like body called a quasar about 14 billion light years or 82 trillion billion miles from Earth. "We are now seeing an object as it was a bit over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe," said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

Kitty Dukakis was away from the hospital this weekend expected to spend time with friends, after being hospitalized two weeks ago when she swallowed some rubbing alcohol. Mrs. Dukakis left New England Deaconess Hospital in Boston on Friday night. “She will be back and forth to the hospital for further treatment,” said her husband, Thomas F. "Tip" O'Neill, a Democrat from Massachusetts.

A show of “Black Images” will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Library Auditorium by the Black Cultural Art Council. Song, poetry, dance, and skits relating to African Americans will be included.

A veiled countdown for launching the shuttle Discovery at Cape Canaveral on Thanksgiving Eve with five astronauts and a secret spy satellite began Sunday as noon even though workers at the pad were several hours behind schedule in doing final checks and dosing up the shuttle over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe, said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

A veiled countdown for launching the shuttle Discovery at Cape Canaveral on Thanksgiving Eve with five astronauts and a secret spy satellite began Sunday as noon even though workers at the pad were several hours behind schedule in doing final checks and dosing up the shuttle over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe, said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

The oldest, most faraway object yet found in the universe has been discovered by astronomers in Pasadena, Calif. It is a star-like body called a quasar about 14 billion light years or 82 trillion billion miles from Earth. "We are now seeing an object as it was a bit over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe," said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

A veiled countdown for launching the shuttle Discovery at Cape Canaveral on Thanksgiving Eve with five astronauts and a secret spy satellite began Sunday as noon even though workers at the pad were several hours behind schedule in doing final checks and dosing up the shuttle over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe, said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

The oldest, most faraway object yet found in the universe has been discovered by astronomers in Pasadena, Calif. It is a star-like body called a quasar about 14 billion light years or 82 trillion billion miles from Earth. "We are now seeing an object as it was a bit over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe," said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

A veiled countdown for launching the shuttle Discovery at Cape Canaveral on Thanksgiving Eve with five astronauts and a secret spy satellite began Sunday as noon even though workers at the pad were several hours behind schedule in doing final checks and dosing up the shuttle over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe, said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

The oldest, most faraway object yet found in the universe has been discovered by astronomers in Pasadena, Calif. It is a star-like body called a quasar about 14 billion light years or 82 trillion billion miles from Earth. "We are now seeing an object as it was a bit over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe," said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

A veiled countdown for launching the shuttle Discovery at Cape Canaveral on Thanksgiving Eve with five astronauts and a secret spy satellite began Sunday as noon even though workers at the pad were several hours behind schedule in doing final checks and dosing up the shuttle over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe, said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.

The oldest, most faraway object yet found in the universe has been discovered by astronomers in Pasadena, Calif. It is a star-like body called a quasar about 14 billion light years or 82 trillion billion miles from Earth. "We are now seeing an object as it was a bit over 1 billion years after the beginning of the universe," said astronomer Maarten Schmidt of the California Institute of Technology.
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is likely to impose conditions on further U.S. aid to El Salvador, if the embattled Central American country's President Alfredo Cristiani fails to demonstrate by January that he is firmly in control, Sen. Christopher Dodd said Sunday.

The Connecticut Democrat, who is chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on Western hemisphere affairs, said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that he doesn't favor any immediate move to cut back aid in the wake of last week's slayings of six Jesuit priests in El Salvador.

"I see no action being taken over the next several days, prior to adjournment," he said. "So this period between the end of November and January, when Congress reconvenes, will be a critical period."

Dodd said that "if President Cristiani demonstrates that he can regain control, that he's not going to allow the death squads to operate, then I think you minimize the possibility of reducing aid.

However, he said, if Cristiani is not in "political control" by January, "there will certainly be some conditionality placed on that aid when Congress comes back."

Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla., interviewed on the same program, said about the killing of the priests that "President Cristiani has already come forward and said he thought that was a barbaric act, that there should be investigations. He asked for assistance." The slayings came during the biggest offensive mounted by leftist guerrillas of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front during the 10-year-old war. Fighting has raged in the capital of El Salvador and throughout the country since it was launched a week ago.

Mack said that "I think we ought to be concentrating on what in fact the guerrillas have been up to. Their intentions, I think, were clear — to try to decapitate the Cristiani government. This is an act of desperation, I believe."

U.S. support of El Salvador could be cut
Protest continued from page 1

munist rule.

Krenz was quoted by a West German newspaper as saying Honecker is one of those under investigation by a parliamentary commission. Just outside the capital, about 30,000 Communists met in Frankfurt an der Oder, 3,000 in Schwerdt and 2,000 in Neustrelitz. The official agency said "thousands" protested in Karl Marx Stadt but did not give a more precise crowd estimate for the march there or in East Berlin.

At least some demonstrators were cool to the idea of unifying the two Germanies, a subject of much debate since East German borders opened Nov. 9.

Czech continued from page 1

munist rule.

Krenz was quoted by a West German newspaper as saying Honecker is one of those under investigation by a parliamentary commission. Just outside the capital, about 30,000 Communists met in Frankfurt an der Oder, 3,000 in Schwerdt and 2,000 in Neustrelitz. The official agency said "thousands" protested in Karl Marx Stadt but did not give a more precise crowd estimate for the march there or in East Berlin.

At least some demonstrators were cool to the idea of unifying the two Germanies, a subject of much debate since East German borders opened Nov. 9.

Czech continued from page 1

munist rule.

Krenz was quoted by a West German newspaper as saying Honecker is one of those under investigation by a parliamentary commission. Just outside the capital, about 30,000 Communists met in Frankfurt an der Oder, 3,000 in Schwerdt and 2,000 in Neustrelitz. The official agency said "thousands" protested in Karl Marx Stadt but did not give a more precise crowd estimate for the march there or in East Berlin.

At least some demonstrators were cool to the idea of unifying the two Germanies, a subject of much debate since East German borders opened Nov. 9.

Czech continued from page 1

munist rule.

Krenz was quoted by a West German newspaper as saying Honecker is one of those under investigation by a parliamentary commission. Just outside the capital, about 30,000 Communists met in Frankfurt an der Oder, 3,000 in Schwerdt and 2,000 in Neustrelitz. The official agency said "thousands" protested in Karl Marx Stadt but did not give a more precise crowd estimate for the march there or in East Berlin.

At least some demonstrators were cool to the idea of unifying the two Germanies, a subject of much debate since East German borders opened Nov. 9.
WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Sunday he was planning to cut Pentagon spending next year because "the likelihood of all-out conflict between the U.S. and the Soviet Union ... is probably lower now than it's been at just about any time since the end of World War II."

"You can't watch the events unfold in Eastern Europe, the development of governments headed by non-communists, the possibilities of free elections, of opposition parties, and not believe that that will have some long-term impact upon the security situation in Europe," Cheney said in a television interview.

Cheney's assessment that the Soviets were cutting military spending and that further U.S. defense reductions were acceptable, marks a shift from his position of as recently as two weeks ago, and appears to be based on recent analysis by the Central Intelligence Agency.

"Given the changes that we see today in Eastern Europe, I think it's possible to contemplate the possibility over the next few years that we may, indeed, be able to reduce the level of our deployments in Western Europe," Cheney said on the ABC-TV program "This Week With David Brinkley."

The Soviets have reduced their spending on conventional arms, Cheney said, but continue to modernize their strategic nuclear force and have "a long way to go to clean up their act in the Third World."

He said the Soviet Union was in part to blame for the guerrilla offensive in El Salvador because Moscow supports Cuba and Nicaragua, two nations the Pentagon has accused of aiding the Salvadoran rebels.

Cheney said he would forward his recommendations on the defense budget to President Bush in early December, about the time the president is hold his first summit with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. The budget package will be sent to Capitol Hill in January, said Cheney.

The decision to plan for the cut was driven at least in part by the perception that the Soviet threat was diminishing and in part by the U.S. budget crunch.

Cheney has maintained that Soviet military spending has risen by 3 percent annually from 1985 to 1988, and that Pentagon spending has fallen 11 percent.

Cheney predicted the axe would fall on programs that were popular with members of the Congress, and that some military bases would be closed, a prospect that in the past has aroused opposition from congressmen whose districts would be affected.

"What I've done is asked the services to get back to me with what I think are estimates of how much we would spend and what we would spend it on given realistic assumptions about how much money we'll have," he said.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Cheney said on Tuesday he was marking signs the government's pledge to end racial segregation of beaches and public amenities could lead to conflict as well as recrimination.

A right-wing politician says the move will fuel a "spirit of rebellion" among whites opposed to integration. And liberals are questioning the government's sincerity following a Cabinet minister's comment that "sensitive" facilities such as health clinics, swimming pools and camping grounds might remain segregated.

The initial reaction to President F.W. de Klerk's announcement Tuesday was generally positive, with the predictable exception of the far-right Conservative Party.

However, de Klerk's pledge that the Separate Amenities Act would be scrapped as soon as possible was undercut the next day, when Provincial Affairs Minister Hernus Kriel said the repeal might not occur in the upcoming parliamentary session.

Kriel said there was uncertainty in the Cabinet about how to deal with "sensitive areas" and suggested that some facilities, including swimming pools, might be reserved solely for the use of local residents.

Since residential areas are racially segregated, this would effectively maintain the whites-only status of swimming pools in white areas, even if the Separate Amenities Act were repealed.

Tian van der Merwe, chairman of the anti-apartheid Democratic Party, said Kriel's remarks suggested de Klerk's announcement may have been little more than a publicity stunt.

"The government is showing it is sensitive to racial obsessions and that it is unable to do away with apartheid," he said. "It is contemptible."

Kriel said the governing National Party did not want to move so fast that racial conflict resulted.

"This is a transitional phase," he said. "If something goes wrong during this phase, it could seriously retard the reform process.

"However, right-wing whites already have signaled they are ready for confrontation. They include Johan Posthuijn, mayor of the Conservative Party-controlled town of Mossel Bay, who wants to keep the local beach off limits to blacks.

"I want to warn the government that there is beginning a spirit of rebellion amongst the whites throughout South Africa," Oosthuisen said in a defiant statement after de Klerk called for immediate opening of all beaches.

Oosthuisen complained that the government was threatening court action against white officials who resisted beach integration while taking no action against the lawful South African Communist Party's call for black opposition rallies.

"The Conservative Party is ready, as always, to protect the rights of whites, come what may," the mayor said. He suggested that National Party members were, for the first time, "grasping the full implications of the government's re- form program" and might decide to defect.

CHENNY: Less defense spending needed

SPRINGTIME IN LONDON: 1990!
MARCH 9 - 18

Tour includes all of the following for one low cost:
* Round trip TRANSFERS: Airport - Hotel.
* 8 NIGHTS: The Royal National Hotel - all rooms with private bath & continental breakfast.
* 7 day London Regional Transport Visitor Travelcard.
* Full Day Guided Tour: Stratford-on-Avon and Oxford
* Experiences: Guided Tours to Assist with theatre bookings, shopping, sightseeing

Total Cost per person: $975.00

Call SEVEN SEAS TRAVEL, South Bend, for details 232-7995 (call today)
ND grad student opens copy shop in basement of LaFortune Center

By JEFF SWANSON
Business Writer

Since October 30th Notre Dame students have no longer had to go off campus to fulfill their copying and printing needs. Located in the basement of the LaFortune Student Center, The Copy Shop has been providing these services.

Owned and operated by graduate student T.J. Foley, the shop has a fascinating array of self-serve copiers, a facsimile machine, binding services and a state-of-the-art full service photocopying machine which makes ninety-two copies a minute while it staples and collates. In addition, the shop will service printing needs through a local printer.

"We cater to the last minute-type customer," Foley said. "A lot of people who work here at the university think that if they need a lot of copies they will have to pick them up tomorrow, but we will do them right away if they need them now."

Foley said that the stapling feature of the full service copier can be a real life saver if someone needs a lot of copies of a paper for their next class. "Stapling by hand can take a long time," he said. Foley was given permission to rent the space by the University. Through a bidding process, Foley and his idea for a copy shop were selected. The University saw a need for a printing service. However, in the service of printing a four page document, Foley was given permission to rent the space by the University.

Foley explained that student groups need a printing service, but a lot of students need a copying service. By charging six rents a copy on three self-serve copiers, which Foley claims make better copies than other copiers available to students on campus, he believes that students will respond. There are always people waiting to staff at The Copy Shop to deal with any problems that may arise with the copiers. Foley, an '89 graduate of Notre Dame and presently a graduate student enrolled in Notre Dame's four year M.B.A./law degree program, researched the local market in South Bend for copying services. "We try to be competitive so people don't have to go off campus to do copying," Foley said.

In addition to the copying service, the shop sells supplies ranging from highlighters to computer disks. Foley also hopes that The Copy Shop will become a center for students to purchase course packets designed by their professors. A lot of his business so far has come from professors who believe that this sector will continue to grow.

The Copy Shop has seven employees, excluding Foley, who help the staff shop during the thirty-one hours that it is open each week. Foley said that business has been going well since the shop's opening but has had to put a lot of work into getting started and maintaining it.

The Copy Shop has seven employees, excluding Foley, who help the staff shop during the thirty-one hours that it is open each week. Foley said that business has been going well since the shop's opening but has had to put a lot of work into getting started and maintaining it.

Seniors Terry Cover takes advantage of one of the several self-serve photocopy machines available at the newly-opened Copy Shop in the LaFortune Student Center.

---

Beyond euphoria: What events in Berlin may truly mean

In 1955, as a GI stationed in Germany, I looked back on the tour through East Berlin—riding the U-Bahn transit system—without giving the Soviet Union the precints that were falling conspiratorially to deep paranoia economically with the city's Western sectors.

Economics has not changed; everything, we were told; things were "fairer" under socialism. Berlin had six years later, again in Europe, I watched the Communist occupation in what should have been the ultimate proof of their failure: erecting and burning. The whole people from tasting freedom. It has taken the West more decades to realize at least temporarily, the threat of being tied to the Socialists and to move to a better life. Yet now, as Europe moves into the wake of thrilling successes that would have seemed fantastic only a few weeks ago, it may be timely to step back from the understandable fearful enthusiasm to assess these changes may really mean. Three thoughts occur.

(1) The cold war is over yet.

Of course we wish it were; we always do. Since the death of Stalin, each change in the Soviet Union has stirred wild hopes...but wildflll analysis— that our "military-industrial complex" can now be safely disarmed, freeing resources for more compassionate uses. This yearning to retire into peaceful isolation plays in a profound historical American yearning, which the Soviets have often seemed to understand (and exploit) better than we do ourselves.

And so, in this latest installment of what has been a continued Soviet policy of alternating "freeze" and "thaw," we are told, as we always are, that this time is different. Let us hope it is true. But meanwhile we must deal with reality (1) despite the new flurry of excitement about a possible reduction of Soviet arms spending to "only" 14 to 16 percent of gross national product, this is still dramatically above the U.S.S.R.'s. But even if Mikhail Gorbachev sticks to his (largely redundant) goals, his own future is uncertain in a country where military power is already crumbling, and (c) Soviet misfortunes in Eastern Europe, likely to continue as Central America and the Caribbean continuesicas. Some reduction of U.S. arms spending is fine, in the works, and will surely contribute to a climate of economic nirvana in which we no longer maintain a strong world defense posture to thwart a dream of world that does not yet exist.

(2) Berlin is dead.

For the past two generations, students in this country have been taught that free markets were outdated and that governmental redistribution, a la Marx, was the wave of the future. Some wave! With every continent wherever capitalism and socialism have had an authentic competition. Adam Smith has wiped the ground with Karl Marx.

The superiority of economic liberty and opportunity is scarcely up for debate on either side of the iron curtain today. Nineteenth-century class-war ideology is on the run from Berlin to Birmingham, from Budapest to Bombay; one of these days it may even be up to rout in Washington, D.C.

(3) The U.S. role should be friendly but realistically disarmed.

We cannot afford an American Solution to every problem, even if we could obtain it. Ironically, though, many who previously denigrated U.S. involvement on the Continent are demanding now that we Real East Europe with truce. Such demands mark the principles by which we have prospered and prevailed. If the last wants to move truly and fully to a market economy, it will not have to beg for U.S. investment; it will merit it. Similarly, Third World countries that have profited cynically by playing one superpower against another may find that such posturing must henceforth be replaced by a more genuinely open economy.

To the extent we have been able to influence events, we have done so primarily by maintaining a strong defense and nurturing a demonstrably better economy—the genie that finally squeezed East Europe into the conclusion and it needed peace and freedom if it hoped to compete.
Divestment wreaks havoc on South Africa

The annual divestment debate has started again at Notre Dame. There was a panel discussion recently in Grace Hall and I have heard that rallies, letter writing campaigns, and other activities are presently being discussed. As we confront the divestment issue again, we must keep one central question in front of us: "Does divestment promote justice in South Africa?"

Divestment, simply stated, is refusing to hold stock in companies that do business with or in South Africa. The rationale behind divestment is that companies facing massive divestment campaigns in America will cut their ties with South Africa. This, in turn, puts economic pressure on the South African government, forcing it to take steps toward ending apartheid.

The first part of the divestment equation worked well. Dozens of companies pulled out of South Africa. General Motors, Kodak, Coca-Cola, and IBM are just the biggest names. Sources of smaller companies have left too. In fact, well over a billion dollars of American investment in South Africa has been dumped or removed since the divestment campaign really got off the ground in the early 80s.

True, you may not always understand who actually contributes to the exodus, but American divestment efforts were at least partially responsible.

Unfortunately, this was a hollow victory. The flight of American companies was not followed by a crumbling of apartheid. According to American political, diplomatic, and economic pressure, has actually gotten worse during the past decade of divestment. When the ANC was banned, the United Democratic Front, and Congress of South African Trade Unions were banned.

Staff of Lewis Hall extends gratitude

The staff of Lewis Hall would like to extend our sincere thanks to all the members of the Notre Dame community who donated their time and support during the fire at St. Michael's Laundry. In particular, we would like to express our gratitude to the staff and residents of P.E. P.W. Brown Phillips, Farley, Knot, and Siegried Hicks, who opened their doors to local residents, as well as members of the Notre Dame Fire Department and Notre Dame Security, whose professionalism kept the situation under control.

We also wish to express our thanks to the residents of Lewis Hall for their cooperation recently that "Sanctions, divestment, and disinvestment are doing nothing but turning South Africa into an economic wasteland." The head of the Zula nation (the largest tribe in South Africa and Inkatha (the oldest and, according to the Economist, largest anti-apartheid group in South Africa), Chief Gasha Buthelezi, was even less diplomatic. He said, "To hell with divestment!") Apparently, the only place divestment remains popular is America.

Opposing divestment is neither popular nor easy. Opponents of divestment are regularly accused of greed, insensitivity, and even racism, but if Notre Dame really wants to promote justice in South Africa, it must resist the call to divest.

Rick Acker is a second-year law student and is a regular Viewpoint columnist.
AIDS myths approach epidemic proportions

By Kevin Smart

The headlines blare the news: "LGBTQ+ Individuals in the U.S.kers: the rebels, who are active in local community groups in an umbrella organization called the Fifishielded by Mainz. An 18-year-old from Front Line Relief, seized cavities in several cities, infiltrated significant casualities on government troops, and even attacked the rebels of El Salvadoran President Alfredo Cristiani. A byproduct of these attacks in urban areas, of course, included injuries, death and homeseness for hundreds of civilians.

Clearly the rebels know that civilians would be in the crossfire during their offensive; in fact, this type of maneuver was a deliberate tactic. Marxist-leftist revolutionary forces for years have used the presence of noncombatants, both as a shield and as a weapon.

How, you may ask, can the people be used as a weapon? Interestingly, within the literature of the typical opponents faced by Marxist revolutionaries, Westerners and "liberators" have moral standards, if they are found guilty of kidnapping. The rebels will be hurt by attacks on rebel positions, there will be at least second thoughts about launching such attacks.

The best way to combat this sort of action is to recognize and bring out such a brutal strategy. Thus, the current fascination and not-so-subtle weeping by American media over civilian deaths in the El Salvadoran fighting plays right into rebel hands. Make the war barbaric enough (after all, anything is moral if it advances the "revolution"), and there will inevitably be pressure on the other side not to quit—and concede to the rebels' victories, which must ultimately mean final victory.

Thus far, however, the El Salvadoran attacks appear to be intentional, and it is possible that it will have the will to survive. What is even more interesting to observe is the attitude of the American military. "Strategic" is the right word. The recent article "Engaging civilians" in the American military publication is a clear indication of just what it is that is seriously wrong with the military's attitude.

To my knowledge, it is not even planning to engage the problems caused by civilian deaths. Of course, this is a terrible thing, and anyone guilty of this heinous crime should be strongly punished. But, it is ridiculous to extrapolate this type of action to all guerrillas just because they are marrying civilians.

First of all, this claim is completely illogical. What is the difference between a woman working forty hours per week as a nurse or a physiologist or forty hours per week as a nurse? I think this is completely illogical. It is a great asset when raising a family, but how is a career in teaching more flexible than a career in advertising? And, shouldn't the father share the responsibility of raising a family, and therefore also have to be responsible to get a job with flexible hours?

Second problem with this claim is that writing, housing, teaching, and nursing are fine for some, but what if a woman has an educational engineering or law, or has a natural flair for coaching basketball or stand-up comedy? Is it to ignore that the writer is a woman? This is completely illogical. Women are not being treated as second-class citizens. Is it to ignore that the writer is a woman? This is completely illogical. Women are not being treated as second-class citizens.

Dear Editor:

I am writing to express my disagreement with the view of the editor of the April issue of "Science," which states that "disastrologists are increasingly in demand." This is a complete misunderstanding of the current situation. The demand for disaster management experts is actually declining, not increasing, due to improvements in technology and better forecasting methods. It is important to recognize that the role of a disastrologist is not only to predict disasters but also to prepare and respond to them effectively. Without proper planning and resources, the impact of disasters can be significantly reduced.

The editor's view seems to ignore the dynamic changes in the field over the past decade. With advancements in science and technology, the ability to forecast and mitigate the effects of disasters has greatly improved. This has led to a shift in focus towards proactive disaster management strategies and away from reactive approaches. Consequently, there is a growing emphasis on education and training for professionals in this field.

Dear Editor:

I read with interest the recent article on "Psychological Counselling and Treatment of Hormonal Imbalance" in your journal. The article highlights the importance of psychological support for individuals with hormonal disorders. It emphasizes the role of therapists in providing tailored interventions that address the emotional and psychological challenges associated with these conditions.

The author, Dr. John Smith, discusses various therapeutic approaches, including cognitive-behavioral therapy (CBT) and mindfulness techniques. These methods aim to help patients manage symptoms such as mood swings, anxiety, and depression, which are common in hormonal imbalances.

The article also mentions the role of nutrition in hormone regulation. A balanced diet, incorporating antioxidant-rich foods and reducing processed food intake, can significantly impact hormone levels.

Overall, the article provides valuable insights into the multifaceted nature of hormonal imbalance and the importance of integrating psychological and dietary interventions for comprehensive care.

Dear Editor:

I would like to address the issue of children's exposure to violence. The recent news reports on acts of violence in schools highlight the growing concern among educators and parents regarding the safety and well-being of students.

It is crucial to implement comprehensive strategies to prevent and address these incidents effectively. This includes enhancing security measures, providing mental health support, and promoting a positive school environment. Collaborative efforts between schools, law enforcement, and mental health professionals are essential in creating a safe and supportive learning space for all students.

Moreover, it is important to educate both students and adults about the impact of violence and its prevention. This can be achieved through workshops, seminars, and interactive programs that foster understanding and empathy.

In conclusion, addressing violence in schools requires a multifaceted approach involving various stakeholders. By working together, we can create a safer and more nurturing educational environment for all.

Barbara Morgan, School Counselor School, Nov. 19, 2019
The setting is El Salvador. February 1977, the time of elections. Snipers, guerrillas, and the military are preventing the common people from reaching the polls, from celebrating Mass, in public, and everywhere signs announce, "The elections have been stolen from us." Into this delicate situation, filled with division and uprisings, steps Archbishop Oscar Romero, a moderate bookworm, a middle-of-the-road guy. He won't rock the boat, or invite the people, or call for governmental reform. Oscar Romero, someone nice and safe, both for the Church and the government. Wrong. Oscar Romero was not "safe," he was a fighter against injustice, poverty, suffering, and a believer in the Salvadoran poor. He was also shot while celebrating Mass on March 24, 1980 for doing precisely that.

The film, "Romero," now showing at University Park East, traces Romero's story from his appointment as Archbishop of San Salvador to his death. "Romero" is a powerful, gripping film. From scene one, it is violent, and the violence- neither gratuitous nor fictional—never stops. It is real. It happened, and the violence depicted in the film happened still. But the film, like its title character, has its gentle moments, too, which show Romero's intimate relationship with the Salvadoran people. In one particularly moving scene, Romero, having just mourned the death of his friend, Father Grande, at the hands of a death-squad, asks a young woman who has come to him for help. "What do you think I should do?" "It's so bad here," she says, "someone has to take a stand."

Romero does, and his transformation from quiet, cautious priest to activist of conviction is portrayed superbly by Raul Julia. Julia, best known for his starring role in the film "Kiss of the Spider Woman," accepted one-seventh of his usual salary for his starring role. According to producer Father Elwood Keiser, "In a very real way, he became Oscar Romero."

Julia's portrayal of the Archbishop is powerful precisely because it is so believable. Romero was not a superhero. When he leads the people past armed soldiers to repossess a church that the militia has occupied, he is terrified. He gets impatient and tired. He gets angry, he loses his temper. He is deceived and lied to. He is often wrong. And yet, he is a hero. Not just in the eyes of those who supported him, but at the start. In the film's most powerful moments, a guerilla-supporting priest, who originally hated Romero continues to him and eventually learns to respect and support him.

Archbishop Oscar Romero, assassinated on March 24, 1980 while celebrating Mass, leads his followers past armed soldiers in the new movie, "Romero," now playing through Thursday at University Park East.

CINDY PETRITES
Accent writer

CBS hopes 'Major Dad' turns into a major hit

Elizabeth to the concert.
The conversation between the two men is hilarious. Mac needs the favor but doesn't want to "owe" Holowachuk a favor in return. The major manages to turn the situation around and makes it seem like he's doing the lieutenant a favor instead. Later, Mac states that there's no need for Holowachuk to ever repay him because that would start an endless chain of favors for another. "Before you know it," Mac says, "you're delivering a eulogy for someone you don't even like."

Holowachuk agrees. "Got it, Sir. I do you a favor and you make my life a living hell." Everything seems to go smoothly until, at the concert, Elizabeth gets a crush on Holowachuk. Polly freaks out at the thought of her daughter being a slave to a sex-crazed Marine. Mac assures her that the lieutenant isn't interested in Elizabeth. "Why do I give you the good news?" Polly asks. "And you wait outside her window to catch her when she jumps."

Mac brings the predicament to Holowachuk's attention. The lieutenant immediately recognizes the problem as a result of the famous Holowachuk "twinkle." He explains it's a certain look in his eyes that women can't resist. "Doesn't work on me, Sir," he says.

"Except on cousin Dwight."
When Holowachuk goes to Elizabeth's room to handle the problem, he begins by telling her, "Do me a favor. Look me in the eyes while I'm talking." "Like after he tells her she's nice," Elizabeth asks. "Then why are you coming here to give me the 'I like you, but not that way' speech?" he replies. "Because I like you... not that way."

The whole situation finally sorts itself out, but not before Elizabeth pulls a prank. Still concerned about her daughter's well-being, Polly enters the room where Holowachuk and Elizabeth are talking. The daughter greets her mother by saying, "It's too late, Mom. I'm pregnant." The performances on "Major Dad" are well-done. McNair and Reed are quite talented and work well together. The premise also adds an interesting twist to the traditional family sitcom set-up, while the writing is fresh and witty. ABC's "Power Tuesdays" have become unbeatable sources of quality comedy. With shows like "Major Dad" added to its already strong Monday lineup, CBS is well on its way to "Power Mondays." "Major Dad" is a funny and unique comedy, probably one of the season's best. "Major Dad" is a major hit.
SPORTS BRIEFS

Don Grimm will be the guest on Sportstalk tonight from 8 to 9 p.m. on WVFI-AM 640. Don is a native of Westmoreland County and went to the University of Miami.

Don is looking for Aerobic Fitness USA trainers. He will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall Cafeteria.

Wanted: Aerobic Fitness USA trainers.

INTERHALL FOOTBALL equipment will not be taken at the NVA office. The next return date will be after Thanksgiving.

Lost: A necklace with charms that was lost after a football game at 7 p.m. on Sunday, November 15.

NOTICES

CLASSIFIEDS

LADIES DIVISION is looking for Aerobic Instructors and part time Fitness Instructors. Call 234-1159.

TYPING AVAILABLE.

TYING To see papers/reports/letters/resumes Pic-n-Save delivery available. 277, 1314 10am.

FIND LOST/FOUND.

FIND: WATCH IN THE HAWTHORN PARKING LOT. Call Dorothy at 229-6640.

Lose ND eng. Call at 280-5520. Please.

Lose camera with charms too. Please return to Stephanie @ 284-4493.

FIND: NO ACAD EXCELLENCE T SHIRT IN TOWN FALLING ON NOV 6.

FIND: OJ SIMMONS FOUND. LA FORTUNE. Please call his father.

FIND: LEFT BILL. Pic-n-Save delivery available. 277, 1314 10am.

The Observer accepts classifieds every business day by 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Notre Dame office, 314 LaFollette, and from 12:30 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the Main office, Hagey Hall, or the Sports Illustrated office.

TOP TEN REASONS TO GET TO KNOW BETTER.

1. They are handsome. 2. They are adorable. 3. They are cute. 4. They are funny. 5. They are cute. 6. They are cute. 7. They are cute. 8. They are cute. 9. They are cute. 10. They are cute.

Once you get to know them better, you'll see that they are really quite a good bunch. So don't be afraid to ask them out on a date. After all, you never know when you might find your perfect match.

—The Observer

Happy Thanksgiving!

The Observer
Browns tie Kansas City 10-10 to stay atop AFC Central

(AP) - Surprise! Nick Lowery misses three field goals in the final seconds Sunday.

Surprise! A great day for the Bears: The Packers win in their first visit to Candlestick Park in 15 years and the Buccaneers win at Soldier Field for the first time since 1979.

"We blew it," Cleveland defensive lineman Michael Dean Perry said after the first tie of the NFL season, 10-10 with Kansas City.

Actually, Lowery blew it for the Chiefs. He began the season as the second-most accurate kicker in history, but missed twice with four seconds left in regulation and missed again with three seconds left in overtime.

"This is a tough stadium to kick in," Lowery said of muddy Cleveland Stadium. "The last kick in overtime was like trying to kick out of a sand trap."

The Browns, with their first tie since 1973, stayed on top of the AFC Central at 7-3-1. Kansas City, led by former Cleveland coach Marty Schottenheimer, is 4-6-1.

Packers 21, 49ers 17

Don Majkowski scooted eight yards on a quarterback draw for the go-ahead score with 11:55 to play, his second touchdown run.

The Packers (6-5) stopped a six-game winning streak by the 49ers (9-2).

Bucs 32, Bears 31

Tampa Bay beat Chicago twice in a season for the first time. The visiting Buccaneers (14-7) rallied after Mike Tomczak's third touchdown pass in the final 4:27 for the Bears (6-5).

Igwebueke's fourth field goal of the game ended a five-game losing streak for Tampa Bay that started after a victory over Chicago Oct. 8.

Eagles 10, Vikings 9

Randall Cunningham's deflected pass turned into a 3-yard touchdown to Cris Carter with 2:32 remaining and Philadelphia won at home.

Minnesota's Herschel Walker returned the opening kickoff 93 yards for a touchdown. The Eagles rallied to win with their first offensive touchdown in eight quarters. Both teams are 5-5-1.

Rams 37, Cardinals 14

Jim Everett passed for 308 yards, including a pair of touchdown strikes to Henry Ellard, and Los Angeles routed Phoenix at home.

The Rams, who picked off three other passes, led 24-0 at halftime.

Colts 27, Jets 10

At Indianapolis, Jack Trudeau passed for 255 yards and a touchdown and Eric Dickerson became the first runner this season to gain more than 100 yards against the Jets.

Dickerson, bothered most of the season by a sore hamstring, rushed for 131 yards and one TD, his second highest rushing total of the season.

Dolphins 17, Cowboys 3

Dan Marino completed his second "Hail Mary" pass for a touchdown this season and Miami went on to win in Dallas.

Lois Zendejas missed a 53-yard field goal attempt on the final play of the game for the Cowboys (10-10).

Sammie Smith's 1-yard TD run early in the fourth quarter helped the Dolphins (7-4) overcame a 14-10 deficit.

Giants 15, Seahawks 3

Phil Simms threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Howard Cross on the game's opening series and New York held Seattle in check at the Meadowlands.

Oilers 23, Raiders 7

Warren Moon threw two touchdown passes and Houston took advantage of three interceptions and two fumble recoveries to beat visiting Los Angeles.

The Oilers (7-4) won their third straight game for the first time since 1985.

Steelers 20, Chargers 17

Pittsburgh's offense, held without a touchdown for nine quarters, moved 91 yards and scored on Merril Hoge's 1-yard run with 6:17 remaining as the Steelers won at home.

Rod Woodson also scored on an 84-yard kickoff return for the Steelers (5-6). Jim McMahon threw two touchdown passes to Anthony Miller for San Diego (4-7). The teams began the game as the NFL's worst two offenses.

A MEMORIAL MASS WILL BE OFFERED

AT FIVE O'CLOCK THIS AFTERNOON

IN THE CHAPEL OF ALUMNI HALL

BY REV. EDWARD A. MALLOY, C.S.C.

PRESIDENT, UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME

FOR THE SIX JESUIT PRIESTS AND TWO WOMEN

MURDERED LAST THURSDAY IN EL SALVADOR.
By MARY GARIN
Observer

Both Notre Dame swim teams came close to tying their personal bests in Saturday's meet with Wisconsin with a double dual meet. The meet was so close that the last seconds decided the meet.

In the Irish effort, head coach Tim Walsh said of his team's performance. He singled out Brian Rini, who had two victories, and Tom Penn, who helped the Irish 400-yard relay at the first event of the meet.

The Irish needed some key factors to pull off the win. The Irish needed Zorich or some kind of bigger bodies Saturday night as the bigger St. Cloud players put some tremendous hits on the smaller Irish. Notre Dame held their own in that respect, but St. Cloud State registered an 8:2 win.

The Huskies broke out of the gate quickly and scored three goals in the first 10 minutes. The Irish cut the lead to 3-1 by the end of the period as the streaking Kevin Patrick took a pass from David Bankske at 13:45 and slid it into the net. The Irish needed to get the first goal of the second period, but St Cloud St. struck early at 3:43 of the period. Madison made the initial save on Jordan Wingate, but Herm Fimega was there to poke in the rebound.

The Huskies extended the lead to 5-1 at 16:14 when Leonard Etsn's slapshot bounced off Madison's shoulder and into the net. Sterling Black scored the other Irish goal in the third period.

Overall, Schafer was happy with the split for the weekend. "We had a very emotional effort last night, and tonight we couldn't muster that same emotion," said Schafer. "For the weekend, our effort was accomplished and lesson learned. As we play against top Division I teams more, we have to remember it's a two game effort."
continued from page 16

After Penn State's next drive resulted in a 38-yard field goal early in the second quarter, the Irish reached the end zone again. Rice and Watters opened the series with runs of 17 and 19 yards, respectively, and Watters went 12 yards around right to give the Irish a 14-10 lead.

"I thought we rose to the challenge," said Holtz. "They scored, and we came back and scored. And then we did it after a fumble two plays later, and Stain Smagala, who led the Irish with eight tackles, recovered a Gery Collier fumble two plays later, and Notre Dame went 14 yards for the score, making it 28-10. Rice faked a handoff to Raghib Ismail and leaned back from the 3-yard line for the score.

"I was going to play both quarterbacks," said Paterno. "They both had practiced well. Their experience on the line made it pretty well. We didn't tackle the line very well. That's where experience made a difference.

Notre Dame again answered a Penn State score with points of its own. The Irish moved 84 yards in a drive that consumed more than six minutes and ended in a Bill Hackett 22-yard field goal that put the Irish up 31-17 with 13:13 left in the game.

The Irish added another field goal in the fourth quarter as Watters' 34-yard scamper down the sideline set up a 19-yarder from Hackett.

Penn State scored once more, with a series of Thomas carries setting up a five-yard touchdown pass from Bill to Terry Smith. After missing a two-point conversion, Penn State trailed 34-23 with 4:31 to play.

The Lions' attempted onside kick failed to go the required 10 yards, and the Irish ran most of the clock on a 44-yard drive that ended with a Pat Fellers fumble on the Penn State 4-yard line.

By that time, the Irish already had wrapped up their first win at Penn State since 1912 and were looking ahead to a huge contest next weekend.

"Every time we travel, we're going to see people wanting to upset the number-one team," said offensive guard Tim McGann. "I don't agree with him on that count. The general assumption after our films, our backs hardly get through when we've needed to. They've always come through when we've needed them." Holtz echoed the Rocket's comments.

"In all the big games, the offensive line has come through for us," said the senior fullback. "If you look at our films, our backs hardly get through until two to three yards past the line of scrimmage.

Notre Dame's starting linemen averages more than 270 pounds per person. But the Irish benefitted most from their experience on the line.

Holtz said early in the week that he was concerned about Penn State's defense because the Lions could throw so many different fronts at an offense. That's where experience made a difference.

Guards Tim Grunhard and Tim Ryan, center Mike Held and tackle Dean Brown all played together on the line last year, with tackle Mike Brennan the only first-year starter.

"Penn State showed a lot of different fronts, and if you didn't know what the person next to you was thinking, you'd be lost," said Grunhard, who is a lot between Held and Brown. "I knew exactly what Dean and Mike were thinking."

That kind of experience also makes a line ready for any defensive strategy.

"We've seen about any defense possible," said Brown. "I'd be interested in seeing another defense because, frankly, I think we've seen just about everything."

Said Watters: "They're seasoned veterans, and they play it. They make calls on the field, make checkoffs, they know what they're doing and are just very businesslike."

Even Penn State's Blair Thomas, a pretty good tackle in his own right, could sense the Irish dominance on both lines as he watched from the sideline.

"Our defense didn't play well today," said Thomas, "but you have to give our offensive line a lot of credit for the holes they were making for their running backs and quarterback. You have to give Notre Dame credit for a lot of things they did today."
By RICHARD MATHURIN
Sports Writer

There is a new champion in women's interhall football, as Howard defeated defending champion Lewis 14-7 to garner the 1989 crown. The game remained close throughout, with the outcome decided in the final minute.

On their opening drives both teams played cautiously, sticking to their running games. Lewis put together an impressive drive on their third possession. Sophomore running back Colleen Danaher had a 20-yard run and tight end Sue Lippa added two receptions to move the ball down to the Howard 4-yard line.

Then a surprise call caught Howard off-guard. Center Christine Wallmeyer executed the center sneak to perfection and ran 20 yards for the score. Lippa added the extra point to give Lewis the early 7-0 lead.

On the ensuing kickoff, freshman Marianne Hagerty did a great impression of another Irish kick return, by flying for a 60-yard return down to the Lewis five yard line.

"We try to do that every time—we go with the blocks and see where Marianne Hagerty describing her run. Running back Becky Miller appeared to score on the next play, but the touchdown was wiped out by an inadvertent whistle. Miller would not be denied, though, and ran it in on the next play. Howard went for the two-point conversion, but Miller was stopped this time.

It remained a defensive battle into the second half, but Howard scored on its second possession of the second half. Again, Hagerty was in the middle of it, sweeping down the side line for a 20-yard reverse for the touchdown. The score was set up by an 18-yard run by Howard again. When Howard went for the two-point conversion, but this time Miller dived in for the score giving her team the lead at 14-7.

Lewis looked to strike right back on the next series. Two runs by Danaher and an 18-yard reception by Lippa brought the ball down to the Howard 10 yard line. After three running plays, Lewis had the ball at the two yard line. Down by a touchdown with only 3:30 remaining, they needed a touchdown and went for it on fourth down. A quarterback shift was set up and quarterback Lynn Arnold scored what appeared to be the game winning touchdown. Unfortunately a Chicken was flagged for illegal motion and the score was wiped out.

The ball was moved back to the seven for the game deciding play. Arnold faked back and floated a pass to Lippa in the end zone of the coffin, but the ball was just out of her reach, falling harmlessly to the ground.

"We figured they'd pass on fourth down," said Howard coach Tom Zidar on the deciding play. Howard took over on downs and proceeded to run the clock out by giving the ball to Miller.

"We came up with the big plays when we needed them. We had the linebackers blitzing all game to stop their run up the middle and it worked," said Hardar on his defensive strategy.

Lewis captain Jill Beth Hayes was gracious in defeat, saying; "They were a really good team and deserved to win, but I think our team tried their best and they gave their all, never giving up."

"It was really a team effort. Sheila Keenan, Marianne Hagerty, and the offensive line really played well, but we're really pleased with everyone's effort," said Zidar of his winning team.

Howard defeats defending champions Lewis 14-7 for IH title

By DAVE DIETEMAN
Sports Writer

On an ice cold November afternoon at Notre Dame Stadium, in front of hundreds of rowdy fans, Alumni (6-1) topped Cavanaugh (5-1) 14-6 to seize the 1989 men's interhall football crown.

On its first possession, Alumni drove 65 yards in 13 plays, thanks largely to the running abilities of tailback Dave Ludwig, and scored when fullback Mark Boss swept around the right side into the end zone. Lewis found out, who did not play in Alumni's 7-0 loss to Cavanaugh during the regular season, then added the two-point conversion, giving the Dogs an early 8-0 lead.

Turnovers hampered the offensive efforts of both teams. On the third play from scrimmage, Cavanaugh quarterback Chris Fox had his first pass of the game intercepted, giving the ball inside the Cavanaugh 40 yard line. However, the Dogs were unable to capitalize on the miscue, as Mark Boss fumbled the ball just out of his reach, giving Alumni the ball deep in Cavanaugh's backfield.

This time it was the Crusaders who failed to capitalize, as they were forced to punt. Alumni then took over at its own 30 yard line, traveling 70 yards in five plays for its second touchdown. Alumni quarterback Jim Passinault, hit tight end John Carella, setting up and quarterback Lynn Arnold who ran the ball for a 30 yard touchdown and a 14-0 lead at halftime.

However, Cavanaugh was not to be written off, as they rambled 65 yards in six plays. Slashing runs by Trent Slavin and Marty Kelly set up a Cavanaugh first down, 40 yards out, when quarterback Chris Fox hit a streaking Roger Tzik, putting Cavanaugh on the board. The swarming Alumni defense held on the two-point conversion, preserving the lead at 16-6.

The rest of the contest was a defensive struggle, as both quarterbacks were sacked a combined total of four times.

Neither team was able to run the ball with consistency, due not only to the slippery field conditions, but also to the tremendous efforts of both teams' defensive lines. Turnovers were a problem, as both teams were intercepted in the end zone.

Both teams wrapped up highly successful seasons, as Cavanaugh won the Leaky Leagie title, with Alumni placing second.

"We didn't do anything different," said Alumni captain Urban Gilligee. "We took the pressure off ourselves by scoring early, and that put the game out of reach from behind. We played as a team, just like we've done all year. Consistency has really been the key to our success."

On the Cavanaugh side, coach Ken Cotter stated that "It would have been nice to have won for the seniors but our offensive coordinator Dave Forster and I agree that Cavanaugh has proven itself by getting this far."

Alumni IH champions with 16-6 win

Alumni intercepted a pass from Cavanaugh's quarterback Chris Fox to give Alumni the ball on the 40 yard line. Alumni could not convert the turnover for points but held on to win the championship 16-6.

Hoosiers win 103-91 over Soviets

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Freshman Chris Reynolds scored six of his 13 points in a decisive second-half spurt Sunday, helping No. 14 Indiana defeat Ohio State 103-91.

Indiana led only 76-74 with 8:42 to play, but outscored the Buckeyes 29-17 over the final 10:10, capping the surge when Chris Lawson made two free throws to give the Hoosiers an 89-76 lead with 4:32 to play.

The Hoosiers, 0-7 on their current tour of the United States, pulled within 94-99 on a 3-pointer by Valteri Tikkonen with 1:56 to play but could draw no closer.

FRESHMAN LAWRENCE Funderburke led Indiana's balanced scoring with 19 points and Pat Graham, another of the Hoosiers' eight freshmen, had 16. Matt Nover, who was red-shirted last year and has four starts against the Soviets, Calbert Cheaney, another freshman, had 12 points each.

Defenders Guards Vsetra and Jan Stokel. The Stokel scored 25 points each for the Soviets and added 23.

The Soviets, who won on a forfeit when Coach Bob Knight was opened with three technicals in 1987 and then refused to allow his team to play the second half, opened a nine-point lead in the first half with the help of two technicals called against Knight.

Indiana trailed 19-18 after a backcourt by George Retso with 13:06 to play. Knight was then called for back-to-back technicals and four seconds apart and Sokk made all four free throws as Indiana then got the ball out of bounds and Sokk made two more free throws after he was fouled by Reynolds with 12:49 to play.

The Soviets went on to lead 27-18 on a layup by Tikkonen, but Indiana rallied to tie the game at 33 on a 3-pointer by Pat Leary and held a 45-44 halftime lead on another Leary 3-pointer at the buzzer.

The Hoosiers, who open their regular season at home against Miami of Ohio on Saturday, took the lead for good 77-76 on a Leary free throw with 7:04 to play.

What Can An MBA Degree Do For You? With an MBA degree from Ohio State you can bring you greater opportunities, income, and career challenges. Our nationally recognized MBA program offers no prerequisites. We enroll both businesses and nonbusiness majors. And many of our graduates have gone on to jobs with established leaders like IBM, Goldman Sachs, AT&T, and Procter & Gamble. For a free brochure about our programs, please write or call:

Director, MBA Programs
The Ohio State University
112 McCorkle Hall
1775 College Road
Columbus, OH 43210-1399
614-292-8511

As an MBA degree from Ohio State can bring you greater opportunities, income, and career challenges. Our nationally recognized MBA program offers no prerequisites. We enroll both businesses and nonbusiness majors. And many of our graduates have gone on to jobs with established leaders like IBM, Goldman Sachs, AT&T, and Procter & Gamble. For a free brochure about our programs, please write or call.

Director, MBA Programs
The Ohio State University
112 McCorkle Hall
1775 College Road
Columbus, OH 43210-1399
614-292-8511

The Observer / Monday, November 20, 1989

The Observer / Monday, November 20, 1989
LECTURE CIRCUIT

Monday, November 20

7:30 p.m. Lecture, "Moral Language and the Writer's Responsibility," Barry Lopez, Visiting Welsh Professor of American Studies. Main auditorium, Center for Continuing Education. Sponsored by CCE and Dept. of American Studies.

Tuesday, November 21

2:30 p.m. Lecture, "Developing Research Libraries in Latin America," William Jackson, Professor of Library Science, University of Texas, Austin. 131 Decio Faculty Hall. Sponsored by the Kellogg Institute with the University Libraries.

MENUS

Notre Dame menu

Pot roast a la mode
Grilled sole
Olympian sandwich

CALVIN AND HOBBES

"I've got it again, Larry . . . an eerie feeling like there's something on top of the bed."

WILBUR AND WENDEL

Congratulations to Breen Phillips and St. Ed's

Winners of Notre Dame's Greek Week

Applications are now being accepted for

Campus Entertainment Assistant Commissioner

Pick the up at the secretary's desk, 2nd Floor Lafortune
Applications due Monday, November 27
Irish overpowers Lions 34-23 first win in Beaver Stadium

By STEVE MEGARGEE

Rice, Watters dominate despite cold

Irish hockey scored a real victory Saturday to demonstrate a couple of reasons why the team even existed. The Irish defeated Penn State, 3-2, in the opening round of the Big Ten tournament at the PAL.

What happened was that the Irish outscored Penn State 3-2, and they did it in a convincing manner. It was a great victory for the Irish, who have struggled all season, but it was also a great victory for the university of Pennsylvania hockey program.

Assistant Sports Editor

ND hockey splits with Huskies over weekend

By MIKE KAMRADT

Sports Writer

For the almost 1,200 fans who came out to see the game, it was a thrilling 3-2 victory. The victory was keyed by some opportunistic offense, a solid, tight-checking defense and outstanding goaltending.

"This was an extremely big win for us," said Irish head coach Rich Schaefer. "I'm extremely proud of the effort of our players tonight. It took us 3-2 to a second period, and although they had a good defensive set with good puck movement, they couldn't manage a goal. The Irish continued to control their own blue line and maintain good offensive pressure through the early stages of the period.

The Irish were finally able to break the ice at 14:33 of the period. The Irish were on the power play when Tim Kuehl sent the puck to David Hankoske along the right boards. The sophomore center then sent a perfect pass to Pat Arndt streaking up the slot, who then slipped the puck past the goalie on the left side.

The score stayed at 1-0 the rest of the period, and the Irish took a 1-0 lead into the third period. The Irish had a power play less than one minute into the second period and although they had a good offensive set with good puck movement, they

1-2.8 yard rush, Notre Dame gained 6.0 Saturday.

Rushing touchdowns: Penn State had allowed only two touchdowns on the ground all season. Notre Dame had four rushing touchdowns Saturday.

Points: The most Penn State had allowed this year was 17 against Alabama. Notre Dame put 34 on the scoreboard.

One-hundred-yard rushers: Nobody had rushed for 100 yards in a game against Notre Dame this season. The Irish had two backs go over the century mark.

The most telling statistic came in the amount of rushing yards Notre Dame garnered against the Lions. The Irish ran for 425 yards, more than any Penn State opponent in history.

"I wouldn't expect to run for many yards on the Irish," said Irish coach Lou Holtz.

Rice ran for 141 yards on 26 carries, with Watters as Notre Dame's first 100-yard rushing duo in a game since 1984. Baglibero "Ruckus" Ismail added 84 yards on nine carries while fullback Anthony Johnson, doing most of his running inside on short-yardage situations, gained 45 yards on 15 carries.

Irish offensive line clears the way for 425-yards rushing

By STEVE MEGARGEE

Associate Sports Editor

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. - This was supposed to be the week when the Notre Dame rushing attack finally would meet its mark. After racking up a total of 100 points against lightweight opponents the past two weeks, the Irish were facing the best defense in the land Saturday. Notre Dame entered the weekend with the nation's best scoring defense, allowing just 9.2 points per game.

Evidently, the opposition's statistics have no effect on the Notre Dame rushing game. The way the Irish offensive line and runners dominated Saturday's 34-23 win at Beaver Stadium, it looked almost as though they were playing Navy or Southern Methodist again.

"I knew if we would continue the trend that it would be tough, and we were really going to have to tighten up," said Irish tailback Ricky Watters, who rushed for 128 yards on 16 carries with a touchdown. "But the offensive line did a great job blocking. We ran for three holes and would have to make a choice.

A look at Penn State's defensive numbers for the season and Notre Dame's rushing stats for the game reflect the Irish dominance on offense.

Yards per carry: Penn State had been allowing just 2.8 yard per rush. Notre Dame gained 6.0 Saturday.

Rushing touchdowns: Penn State had allowed only two touchdowns on the ground all season. Notre Dame had four rushing touchdowns Saturday.

Points: The most Penn State had allowed this year was 17 against Alabama. Notre Dame put 34 on the scoreboard.

One-hundred-yard rushers: Nobody had rushed for 100 yards in a game against Notre Dame this season. The Irish had two backs go over the century mark.

The most telling statistic came in the amount of rushing yards Notre Dame garnered against the Lions. The Irish ran for 425 yards, more than any Penn State opponent in history.

"I wouldn't expect to run for that many yards on the Irish," said Irish coach Lou Holtz.

Rice ran for 141 yards on 26 carries, with Watters as Notre Dame's first 100-yard rushing duo in a game since 1984. Baglibero "Ruckus" Ismail added 84 yards on nine carries while fullback Anthony Johnson, doing most of his running inside on short-yardage situations, gained 45 yards on 15 carries.

We were executing the things we were trying to do." Notre Dame answered that score with a 65-yard touchdown march, as Rice skirted five yards around the right end for the tying score.

see LINE / page 13