Earth Day ’90 Green Pledge used to increase awareness

By KEVALENE RYAN

The Earth Day ‘90 Green Pledge, part of an international effort to increase ecological awareness, is a contract in which individuals promise to support the environment economically, politically and monetarily.

Available through Environment Canada’s (EAC) representatives in each dorm, these pledges ask students to actively participate in the world-wide struggle to deal with the “seven universal crises” that confronts our planet today.

"The main purpose of the Green Pledge is to impress upon the individual that their actions can make a difference," said James Dailey, president of the EAC.

The actual pledge requires that each person let their renewed environmental consciousness shape how they act, purchase, vote and support. They promise to attempt to adopt a lifestyle as if every day were Earth Day. This includes employing such measures as recycling waste, conserving energy, saving water and using efficient transportation.

The “purchase” element of the pledge involves an increased awareness of those manufacturers’ products that are harmful to the environment and corporations that fail in their ecological responsibility.

As it is difficult to target such detrimental actions, such literature as "Shopping for Better World," by the Council on Economic Priorities, is available to consumers to provide a comprehensive analysis of those products and companies that offer the greatest environmental protection, said Ted Oberstar, campus co-ordinator of the Green Pledge project.

The “vote” and “support” component deals with the individual’s ability to dictate their wishes to the local and federal governments. They pledge to support only those candidates that demonstrate a concern for the environment. This applies also to legislation that is ecologically essential, such as the Clean Water Act and the Clean Air Act.

As of today, over 900 pledges have been collected and sent to San Francisco, the national headquarters for the Earth Day ’90 project. On Sunday, April 22 a press conference will be held where a globe with the names of each pledge will be unveiled. Several million names are expected to be inscribed on the globe, said Oberstar.

A similar movement is taking place in over 100 foreign countries, each with their own form of the Green Pledge. All are similar, however, in the overall objective of a heightened awareness of the danger our world is facing environmentally, he said.

Father David Tyson, vice president for Student Affairs at Notre Dame, has been named the 18th president of the University of Portland.

The decision, effective July 1, was made Tuesday by the University’s Board of Regents.

“The Board of Regents is ex­ erited by the prospect of continu­ ing the University’s tradition of excellence under Father Tyson’s leadership,” said Chairman William Robinson.

“Father Tyson’s experience as a tenured associate profes­ sor and university administra­ tor...demonstrates his commitment to higher education,” said Robinson.

Tyson has been vice president of student affairs at Notre Dame since 1984. Prior to that, he served as executive assistant to then-president Father Theodore Hesburgh.

Tyson admitted, however, that it will be difficult for him to leave Notre Dame. Going to Portland will be an adjustment, he said, as his family lives in the Midwest.

He said he plans to be back to visit Notre Dame and might return during the football season providing he is able to "get tickets through the alumni lot­ tery.

During the first week of April, Tyson said he visited the University of Portland for in­ terviews, one of his many trips to the campus. "It is a beautiful campus," with many trees and flowers, similar to the Notre Dame campus, according to Tyson.

The new job will be a chal­ lenge for him and for the first year he said he will be "more of a student." The University of Portland recently completed a 185 page self-study, similar to Notre Dame’s PACE report.

Bush promises ‘response’ to Moscow action

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush warned Tuesday of "appropriate responses" if Moscow imposes announced cuts in fuel supplies to Lithuania, but also said he does not want to damage superpower relations.

"I want to be sure anything we do is productive," Bush said. "There’s been dramatic change in the world and I don’t want to inadvertently take some action that would set it back."

The Soviet government said it had ordered drastic cuts in natural gas supplies to Lithuania on Tuesday, followed by cuts in oil and gasoline on Wednesday. U.S. officials said they could not confirm any slowdown.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, and Minority Leader Bob Dole, R­ Kan., met with Bush at the White House and said later that the United States has an array of economic steps it could take against Moscow.

A testimony in defense of Dan Quayle

For some reason, nobody likes Dan Quayle. Americans seem to spend a great deal of energy criticizing the Vice President, and I think the high time that someone took a stand for ol' Danny. After all, he has a lot of good qualities—though the ungrateful American public has been overlooking them.

For example, Danny has a great golf game, a quality few men possess. Golf is a tough sport, and to truly excel at the game, one must have the strength of a lineman and the stamina of a marathoner. The fact that the FBI has bestowed Quayle with the code name "scorecard" stands as a testament to his prowess in this sport of sports.

Now a few people have been getting down on Quayle for his "lack of participation" in the Vietnam War. These critics somehow forget that Dan spent a couple of traumatic years in the National Guard defending the Hoosier State from the ravages of the enemy. I'm willing to bet hard cash that not one of them will shed a tear over the border while ol' Deadeye Danny was on watch.

Dan has also been unjustly ridiculed because he fumbled a few lines in some obscure speeches. Just because he thought the slogan the United Negro College Fund was "It's a terrible thing to lose one's mind, or not to have one," is no reason to think less of him. After all, you cannot expect the Vice President to memorize the motto of every backwater organization that pop's up. Next to the public, an American public will probably expect poor Danny to memorize the whole Pledge of Allegiance.

And the cruel public even mocks his international diplomacy. They laughed when Dan expressed a wish to have studied Latin, so couldn't give Diamond Dan a thumbs-up? The public is behind the podium, at the marketplace, behind the podium, at the counter of every backwater organization that pops up. The public is behind the podium, at the marketplace, behind the podium, at the counter.

An earthquake measuring 6.4 on the Richter scale on Tuesday struck China's far western border with the Soviet Union, an area affected by ethnic unrest in recent weeks. The State Seismological Bureau said the quake hit West Inner Mongolia near Ulanqab Uygur Autonomous Region at 10:59 a.m. Tuesday, the official Xinhua News Agency reported Wednesday.

The rise in property values along the shores of once-filthy Lake Erie proves that the cost of cleaning up environmental problems brings economic returns, a leading scholar said Tuesday. Bringing that home to Indiana, Rep. Jim Jontz, D-Indianapolis, agrees the Midwest will benefit in the long run from the high initial cost it may pay to reduce sulfur dioxide emissions from power-generating plants as proposed under current clean air legislation working its way through Congress. At least a $2 return from $1 investment in cleanup costs can be expected.

creased consciousness, the Green Pledge also requests individuals to include a donation. This money goes to defraying the cost of Earth Day propaganda. All surplus funds are then sent to the Catholic Relief Services where they, in turn, direct the funds towards various environmental projects. According to Oberstar, pledges are still available for interested students to help to attain EAC's goal of 2,000 signatures and $800 from the ND/SMC community.

In addition, he stated that this project was designed to be more than just a petition. The names and addresses of the pledges will be compiled for lobbying purposes and become a tool to promote favorable environmental legislation.

on Friday gave Lithuania 48 hours to repeal several laws backing its March 11 declaration of independence. He said if Lithuania refused, the Soviet government would impose an embargo on goods that otherwise could be exported for hard currency.

Lithuania depends on Moscow for oil and gas, the Soviet Union's biggest earners of hard currency.

A telegram sent to Lithuania's gas authority Tuesday said: "Implementing the orders of the government of the Soviet Union and those of the state gas concern ... supplies of natural gas to the Lithuanian Soviet Socialist Republic will be sharply reduced from the 17th of April."

The telegram was signed by an official named Modernyuk, identified as the acting general director of the Soviet Union's western gas network.

The text was broadcast on official Lithuanian radio, monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp. in London.

Western reporters have been barred from Lithuania to report on the political crisis since last month.

Speaker Alexandras Abisalas read the telegram to the Lithuanian Supreme Council legislature. Lawmakers met to discuss a response to Gorbachev's ultimatum.

Tass news agency reported that in opening the discussion, Landsbergis said the Lithuanian pro-independence moves were "irreversible," although Lithuania will search for a dialogue by all possible means, through various channels.

President Bush said in Washington the United States was "considering appropriate responses" if Soviet economic threats against Lithuania were implemented. But he also said he did not want to damage superpower relations.

"I want to be sure anything we do is productive," Bush said.

Landsbergis asked Bush on Tuesday to make it clear to Gorbachev that an economic embargo on Lithuania would be an act of aggression, but he declined to say if he thought Bush should cancel a planned Washington summit with Gorbachev in June.

The ten-member presidential search committee, chaired by Regent David Grove, named two finalists, and the candidates were interviewed by the search committee, alumni, faculty, students, senior administrators, administrative deans, staff, and the University's religious community, said Clifford.

The search committee then reviewed individual and group evaluations of the finalists, and made its recommendation to the Board of Regents for approval.

Arthur Schultz, who has served as acting president at the University of Portland since October, will resume his position of executive and financial vice president, Clifford said.

Father Michael Himes stressed the importance of religious belief when combined with critical intellectualism. This was the second in the "Last Words" lecture series in response to the question, "If you knew you were going to die tomorrow, what would you say tonight?"

I swear will have to be no. I've never had the wisdom or courage to do it. I am convinced that God can be glorified by giving partial answers quite satisfyingly. While I go to confront this question, what I wish for you is that the next generation of believers and critical intellectuals is that, you are called to go on a quest for truth, it may not seem better to rest and that the quest may toss you into God's arms."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush called for more research "to sort out the science", of global warming Tuesday, but ran into a storm of criticism at an international White House conference from Europeans who argued for action.

"Gaps in knowledge must not be used as an excuse for worldwide inaction," declared Klaus Topfer, the West German environmental minister.

Bush said he hoped the conference, attended by representatives from 19 nations, would prod international research and inject economic issues into the debate over the "greenhouse" effect.

"The president called for re-examining some of the scientific uncertainties and economic implications before making a commitment to specific pollution controls to deal with possible gradual warming of the Earth."

"Top-level environmental policies that ignore the economic factors—the human factors—are destined to fail," he said, maintaining anew that some scientists are in wide disagreement over the impact of modern pollutants on the temperature of the globe.

Many of the European participants, especially the West Germans and the Dutch, said the conference agenda was narrowly arranged to prevent open discussions of policy aimed at dealing with global warming.

"Topper suggested the German delegation would pursue such discussions, adding, "The way to deal with the situation requires immediate, determined action."

Similar views were expressed by members of other delegations, including Dutch and French officials.

Discussions about further research and economic considerations should "not distract us from taking action on carbon dioxide stabilization now," Hans Alders, the Dutch environment minister, told the conference during a closed session.

"We needed Love Canal before hazardous waste was Studied. We needed a dying River Rhine before water waste was treated. My country has decided to learn the lessons from the past and act on global warming now," Alders told the delegates, according to a transcript released by the Dutch delegation.

"I know there's a debate raging out there," Bush said in his welcoming remarks to the delegates, all Cabinet-level ministers involved in environmental, economic and scientific issues. But he said he was confident that more research and examination of economic factors before action to curb carbon dioxide—"as carbon dioxide"—"is the way to go."

At back-to-back news conferences later in the day, senior White House officials and leaders of the European Community sought to play down the extent of the discord at the conference and said the day's sessions had produced "a considerable " common ground" on the need for additional scientific and economic research.

Europeans lash out at Bush for environmental 'inaction'

New 'radicals' in Moscow run city

MOSCOW (AP) — The radicals running the Moscow city council discussed getting rid of the giant bust of Lenin from their meeting hall Tuesday, then spent their lunch hour at an anti-corruption rally next to Red Square.

That was only the beginning for the new dominant force in city hall, which wants to turn the capital of communism into an experimental economic zone where the free market reigns and foreign cash flows freely.

"We'll be trying to bring to a program of the privatization of the economy," said Lev Balshov, a member of the Democratic Russia bloc that took 49 percent of the 495 council seats in an election in March.

The key figure in the economic revolution brewing in this city of 9 million is Gavriil Popov, an outspoken economist and lawmaker whom the council is expected to elect mayor Wednesday.

Popov, rotund and steely haired, has pushed for free-market concepts to replace the Soviet planned economy. He plans are laid out in Kommersant, a new business newspaper with a decidedly capitalistic slant.

Proclaiming that under Popov's administration Moscow's reforms would far outpace the country as a whole, it said the city would "become a testing zone for economic reform," and lashed the way for less-progressive areas.

The newspaper listed among plans being worked out by the Democratic Russia bloc's "Group on Urgent Measures":

—moves to free the private businesses known as cooperatives from a tangle of regulations.

—Incentives to attract foreign capital "on an unprecedented scale for Moscow," including easing rules on long-term leasing of buildings and allowing firms to pay in part with services to ease city problems.

—a virtual free market in agricultural produce.

—a "visiting card" system that would allow goods in Moscow to be sold only to Moscovites with proof of residence.

—takeover and redistribution of some Communist Party property and sell-off of some government property.

The program aims to heal Moscow's deplorable state with an injection of what Kommersant calls "commercial activity," and what most would call capitalism.

There has been no Kremlin reaction. The city is largely independent when it comes to funding.

Radicals are banking on being able to do more to change the economy. They say President Mikhail Gorbachev, who began instituting reforms after coming to power in 1985, is increasingly oriented toward a market economy.

Moscow clearly needs help, as evidenced by its deplorable state.

"Public transport works badly, the housing program is on the point of breaking down, the health system is in a depressing state, the list of food and goods shortages is lengthening, the ecology is getting worse, financial prospects are unclear and the crime rate is growing."

But the new council's first session, which began Monday, raised doubts about how effective it would be, despite the Democratic Russia bloc's plans.

Legislators goggled down for hours in procedural wrangles typical of Soviet bloc parliaments.

Most of these people are activists," said Boris Kagarlitsky, a sociologist and member of the socialist faction in the Democratic Russia bloc. "They can't tell the difference between a public rally and a council session."

With such inefficiency in the council, "the prospect for Moscow is a disaster," Kagarlitsky said. "There are two possible outcomes — either chaos or catastrophe within six months. They'll have problems with electricity, with food shortages, and probably the city can go bankrupt."

Members of the "Moskva" or Moscow bloc, which unites 95 council deputies who basically follow the Communist Party line, also predict dire days for the city under the radicals.

Vladimir Gruzdev, of the Moskva bloc, said many feared the city would return to "early, uncontrolled capitalism," and lose the social guarantees of communism.

Members of the Democratic Russia accuses Moskva deputies of planning to "substitute" their reforms, and Moskva members accuse Democratic Russia of wanting to use them as scapegoats and "saboteurs" when the reforms fail of their own accord.
Gene found linked to alcoholism

CHICAGO (AP) — Researchers say they have pinpointed for the first time a gene that may make people prone to alcoholism, adding weight to the argument that alcoholism is a disease and not a moral weakness.

Government scientists called the finding “proving and promising,” even if it requires more study, but a leading investigator in the field declared it was impossible to say an “alcohol gene” had been identified.

The researchers reported in Wednesday’s Journal of the American Medical Association that they found a particular gene—on a chromosome previously linked with alcoholism to be far more common in alcoholics than in non-alcoholics. If verified, the finding would represent the first specific identification of a genetic root for alcoholism.

Alcoholism, which affects an estimated 18 million Americans, tends to run in families, and previous studies of families and of adopted twins have suggested that environment and genetic factors contribute to the disorder. Scientists exploring possible genetic factors have previously implicated three chromosomes as possibly having a role, but no one before has isolated any gene on those chromosomes as likely culprits, the researchers said.

Chromosomes are threadlike structures comprised of thousands of individual genes, the “fingerprints” of DNA that carry each cell’s hereditary blueprint. A person’s traits are determined by the nearly 100,000 genes in each cell.

The gene pinpointed in the new study has two alternative forms, each of which produces one form of a type of nerve cell called the dopamine D2 receptor, believed to play a key role in experiencing pleasure.

The researchers looked at both forms of the receptor—the “A-1 allele” and the “A-2 allele”—in brain matter from the cadavers of 70 subjects, 35 alcoholics and 33 non-alcoholics.

“We found a very high association of the A-1 allele with alcoholism and a very high association of the A-2 allele with non-alcoholism,” said Dr. Ernest P. Noble, a co-leader of the study and director of the Alcohol Research Center at the University of California, Los Angeles.

The A-1 allele was present in 69 percent of the alcoholics, but only in 20 percent of non-alcoholics, the researchers reported.

Such a high correlation was surprising, given that alcoholism comes in a number of forms and is almost certain to have a number of causes, the researchers said.

“A large majority of alcoholics in the present study had experienced repeated treatment failures in their alcoholic rehabilitations and the cause of death was primarily attributed to the chronic damaging effects of alcohol on their bodily systems,” the researchers wrote.

It is possible the A1 allele is associated with a particular sub-type of virulent alcoholism in which the person fails to respond to treatment, they wrote.

Jerusalem Court upholds eviction of Jewish settlers

JERUSALEM (AP) — A Jerusalem District Court panel on Tuesday upheld an order to evict 150 Jewish settlers whose move into the Arab Christian quarter of the Old City has fueled anti-Israeli protest.

The settlers immediately appealed the decision, but it was rejected by the same District Court in a hearing before a single judge. In that hearing, Judge Ruth Otr ordered the settlers to evacuate the building by Wednesday morning, army radio said.

Jerusalem Police spokesman Uzi Sandori said police were studying the court decision.

The settlers said they plan to appeal the eviction order to the Supreme Court. They also said they would not resist police attempts to evict them.

“Of course we will not resist the police,” said one settler who identified himself as Doki. “But there is no reason for them to come tomorrow.”

Early Tuesday, a three-judge panel of the District Court convened nearly four hours behind closed doors before issuing a ruling that accused the settlers’ lawyers of “an improper use of procedures, to say the least.”

The judges ruled that the stay of the eviction notice granted Friday by a single District Court judge was improperly obtained. “We invalidate it,” the judges wrote.

They took the unusual step of assessing court costs of $3,000 to the settlers’ lawyers, apparently for attempting to thwart the Israeli legal system.

Judge Vardiuzmiz Zailrer presided over the three-judge panel, which also included Judge Shalom Brenner, who on Friday stayed the eviction order.

The ruling said the settlers’ lawyers, in asking Brenner for a stay, had failed to mention another judge turned down a separate request for a stay hours earlier.

“The judges have canceled the stay. They (the settlers) must be evicted,” said Aravam Sechachukov, a lawyer for the Greek Orthodox Church.

Court says religion doesn't authorize illegal drug use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court said Tuesday there is no constitutional right to take illegal drugs, such as peyote, for religious reasons.

Dissenting justices said the 6-3 ruling permits religious opposition of Indians and perhaps others with unorthodox views.

The court ruled that Oregon officials may deny unemployment benefits to two fired drug counselors who took small amounts of peyote, a cactus "button" containing the hallucinogen mescaline, in Indian religious ceremonies.

Justice Antonin Scalia, writing for the court, said it "would be courting anarchy" to let a few do what is illegal for everyone else.

"We have never held that an individual's religious beliefs excuse him from compliance with an otherwise valid law prohibiting the conduct that the state is free to regulate," he said.

But Scalia said states may allow religious use of illegal drugs.

In fact, many states and the federal government already permit use of peyote in religious ceremonies.

In other rulings, the court:

• Made it more difficult for employers to withdraw recognition of a labor union representing striking workers after new employees are hired to break the strike. The justices, voting 5-4 in a Texas case, reinstated a National Labor Relations Board policy against presuming the new employees oppose the union.

• Ruled 9-0 in a case from Illinois that lawsuits charging employers with violating a key federal anti-bias law may be filed in state as well as federal courts.

In the peyote case, Justice Harry Blackmun wrote a stinging dissent that said the court reduced religious freedom for Indians to "an unfilled and hollow promise."

Inflation rate highest since 1982

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices, fueled by sharp increases in clothing, housing and medical costs, shot up 0.5 percent in March to push inflation to the highest level since 1982, the government said Tuesday.

Private economists saw the unexpectedly brisk advance in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index as a discouraging sign that inflation was not retreating as they had hoped.

The inflation rate is "dangerous and potentially devastating for financial markets, pushing the yields on bond prices up as investors demanded more insurance against inflation threats. Stock prices retreated but recovered somewhat later in the day."

In another economic report Tuesday, the government said industrial production rose 0.7 percent in March, reflecting a rebound in auto production. It was the second consecutive strong showing and provided evidence, some analysts said, that the slump in American manufacturing may finally be coming to an end.
Racial stereotypes thrive upon blatant ignorance and denial

Dear Editor:

I was deeply perturbed by a recent article that I came across entitled, "Reflections of Misogyny." (The Observer, April 9). Besides writing the article as if she is an observer of the minority community rather than a member, she perpetuates the same stereotypes that she is so desperately trying to escape.

First of all, by reading the article, it seems that Lewis has a serious identity problem. In her opening paragraph, Lewis states, "The only problem I am participating as a black student was being called "nigger" by people who wouldn't realize that I wasn't really black. After all, I was an intelligent person who had always integrated with whites."

Well, if Lewis is not "really" black, then what is she? And what does it have to do with being intelligent? Ignorance comes in all colors. Lewis goes on to describe herself as "a white person trapped in a black body"--trapped, meaning held captive, inhibited. The only person trapped within Lewis is her African American identity, which is being held captive by ignorance.

Secondly, I was disturbed by Lewis' use of the term "black militant" in her reference to the African-American community here at Notre Dame. Why is it that when we, as African-American people, choose to voice our grievances or discuss issues pertinent to our community, we are considered "militant"? Don't other racial ethnic groups come together and discuss similar issues (i.e. Jews, Hispanics and Native Americans)?

In her final paragraph, Lewis states that she has finally learned to realize that she is black and that she now realizes that importance of black pride. She attributes her "sudden" realization to the Notre Dame education she received outside the classroom. The Notre Dame community is but a minute aspect of the total world community. One cannot possibly grasp the importance of black pride by observing another community in such a short period of time.

When she steps out into the real world, Lewis will not have to remind her of her race; she will automatically know by thearrera she receives. It is theSame with all, or none of these people were homosexual. Famous, successful people throughout history have engaged in homosexual acts, and their prestige in no way legitimizes a morally questionable action. Can others look to such "positive" role models as Edgar Allan Poe, Richard Barrymore, Dwight Gooden and Eric Clapton? Do they make their victims acceptable? They do not, and Calvin Heilin cannot make homosexuality legitimate.

I noted the conspicuous absence of such figures as Rock Hudson and Liberace, who died as a result of their homosexual activity. Are these figures so embarrassing to the homosexual community that they would as soon forget them? Again, perhaps cannot make a wrong right.

This ad is typical of the illigal, insinuating campaign by the homosexual community to cow us into thinking that their practive are not as normal, productive existences.

This argument, and the advertisement, have several flaws. To begin with, I am sure that I am the only person to wonder whether persons such as Eleanor Roosevelt, Susan B. Anthony, and James Dean were homosexual. We must question the authority, as well as the objectivity of the Gay book of Lists. What proof is there, I wonder, that Susan B. Anthony was homosexual? I fear that these people have been considere homosexual based on circumstantial eviden. Can it be that Anthony is consideredlesbian because she was a feminist? Or Whitman because he was a poet? I feel that the homosexual community was too eager to find prominent figures and in "outing" them, to use their own terminoloyology.

Yet it is irrelevant whether all or none of these people were homosexual. Famous, succsessful people throughout history have engaged in inappropriate acts, and their prestige in no

Reform efforts neglect Africa’s poor masses

By S.P. Udayakumar

Citing the Indian example, David Cortright, while speaking on a related topic last month, outrightly rejected the unification that Africa might require: "In fact, Africa is a continent with unending potential for economic growth in a era of Western expansion and liberalization." He believes Africa's poor masses of both its own kind and its people. But the opportunity was snatched and staged a peaceful and magnificent revolution in their respective counties. But thought of Africa. Neither the West, nor the East, nor the rest of the world has ever paused to ask whether affirmative action's impact has been negative.

In the case of Eastern Europe, the elderly question is, Are Western governments and statespersons make little effort to tell the people about their communal and to transcend the boundaries of their own minds. Instead, some leaders play on these differences to create divisions among the people for political gains.

Almost all the countries of Sub-Saharan Africa are wise among their non-party political systems, those of difference is rare, but the other has two groupings of repression, military dictatorship and mass-organized opposition. Even the current wave of protests often meets tear gas, bullet, and army tanks.

Calling for an end to township warfare between rival political parties, Nelson Mandela appeared at a massive rally in Durban: "Take your guns, your knives and your minds, and throw them into the sea." He called for the "apartheid apartheid" and "national peace" to the anti-ANC Zulu Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi's call for "one party to the people, the police and the army."

Africa needs even more coercion to prevent the masses in a proper functioning of the society and human solidarity. Non-violent struggle alone can bring about change in the African states, who have unnecessarily spilled blood for decades.

Walruses, writer's block, and politics

NOTRE DAME (API) - The University of Notre Dame announced today that ENORMOUS WALRUSES RULE THE EARTH! RUN FOR YOUR LIVES!

Please remain calm. The above bulletin was merely a test. Enormous walruses do not, I repeat, do not, rule the earth. This was only a test.

WASHINGTON (API) - WALRUSES CANNOT DIE! ESCAPE WITH THEIRS STILL! TIME!

Please ignore that last bulletin. It appears there is some sort of problem with the AP wire. We are looking into it and will have it resolved shortly.

NEW YORK (API) - WALRUSES CONTROL THE MARKET. THEY ARE EVIL. YOU MUST DESTROY THEM BEFORE THEY BECOME TOO POWERFUL!

Again, to repeat: walruses do not rule the earth, and even if they did, they can't type, so they couldn't very well have taken over the Associated Press, now, could they? It's just a silly urban legend. Relax. Nothing can go wrong.

If you've been reading this column you're probably thinking one of those four things:
1) "Geez, why am I still reading this column? Is the person who turns me on really that boring?"
2) "This writing is so perfect that it must have been exactly what I was thinking! Is this guy psychic or what?"
3) "How long before the nice men in the white coats put the guy who wrote this stuff in the coat with the funny sleeves and cart him away to the big house with the soft walls?"
4) "Good God, this guy has absolutely no idea what to write about."

And I'm here to tell you that I've never had an idea for today's column. And that central, guiding theme taurou which flows through four thousand characters of solid, hard-hitting comedy is based is... um... walruses. Yeah, walruses. Ahem...

A peaceful-loving animal, the walrus is a sea creature which, by the way, bears more than a passing resemblance to our government professor. No, ha ha, just kidding! Excuse me for a moment, I need to reflect briefly in prayer. (Dear Lord, please don't let my government professor be reading this. Or if he is, please allow him to have a terrible sense of humor and give me an "A" on my paper because he so enjoyed my column. Amen.)

Speaking of professors, if I were a professor, I think, I'd once, I'd make my class turn in a 20 page paper on some obscure topic, and then I'd have some fun marking them. I'd take the papers from the class and write nothing on them, not even grades. Then, on the front page in red Magic Marker, I would write, in huge letters:

"NO!" Then I would hand the papers back. Um... excuse me again. (Dear Lord, if my government professor is reading this, please don't let him get any ideas from the preceding paragraph. Amen.)

All right, so maybe this walrus thing wasn't such a good idea after all. Look, I'm under a lot of stress — I had a lot of work to do over Easter; so I took it with me, thinking I'd get it done on the plane. I always do this. It never works. So here I am, writing this thing for "Lion Taming" and, for the love of me, I can't think of a walrus. I'm not in therapy at the present time, but I'm sure this must mean something.

Did you ever have one of those tunes... Hey! You there, sucking down that Cage's Crunch like a human dustpan. I'm talking to you! You ever have a song going through your head, maybe just one line, over and over again? And the only way to get rid of it was to actually sing it out loud? Well, I was able to finally find out why walrus problem wouldn't go away, and it'd pop up suddenly in one of the middle of my government papers. "The American political system, balanced among the exerectors... WALRUSES... You get the idea; it's not exactly the kind of impression I was trying to give someone who controls the fate of my GPA. So I had to write about walruses somewhere. They, nobody forced you to read this, did they? Like I'm so sure nothing like this has never happened to you! Geez, get off my case!

Junkies continue introspective music with 'The Caution Horses'

THE success of the Cowboy Junkies' cover of Lou Reed's "Sweet Jane," and the greatness of The Trinity Session, the Junkies' first album, was due to their stark, mysterious, compelling approach. The music was sparse, the vocals ethereal and removed. Lead singer Margo Timmins, along with her brothers Michael (guitar) and Peter (bass), and bassist Alan Anton, created songs of lonely desolation as bleak as anything produced in the Eighties. It is a striking record that is centered around several excellent cover tunes the likes of the Velvet Underground, Patsy Cline and Hank Williams.

The Caution Horses, their newest album, has only two covers; the bulk of the writing is by Timmins. The addition of four new members was a good idea, especially with the inclusion of wonderful mandolin and harmonica player Jeff Bird. This album is a song cycle focusing on the eminences and nihilism of the everyday life of a heartbroken person. This theme is explored throughout the album, from the opener, the Sun Comes Up, It's Tuesday Morning," a catalog of the lonely, humdrum events in the life of a woman who has recently been abandoned by her lover, to the apocalyptic (though understated) finale, "You Will Be Loved Again.

The tendency to be overwhelmed by over-stress can be amusing at times, however, especially during the first half of the album. A reference to legendary reedman John Coltrane in the opening number and an inappropriate cover of Neil Young's "Powderfinger" mark an unexpected record. It wasn't in "Out Come the Freaks" and U2, in the version of "Bullet the Blue Sky" have already gone too fast. The name-dropping phrase by mentioning Coltrane in songs that have little to do with him — Cowboy Junkies would do well to stick with what they know.

Timmins' lyrics also tend to be heavy-handed, a fault shared by such contemporaries as Michelle Shocked, Indigo Girls and Tracy Chapman. Those singers always tend to exaggerate their lyrics, as if the listener isn't going to understand them if they are more subtle. Lyrics such as "it's the kind of night that's so cold, when you spit it freezes before it hits the ground" scar this album with their ugly bluntness.

When the approach is elegant, graceful and suggestive, the Junkies hit the hardest. A woman of love is jessoubt about among the songs brilliantly and mysteriously: "in Mariner's Song," Margo has left her lover and searches for him everywhere, longing for a resurrection of her love, while in "Rock and Bird," she lament," I offered you my endless skies / you countered with hoods and chains," and seeks an escape. This song I sing will be the last / to be inspired by your memory."

The songs alternate between a chronic-depressive acceptance of doomed suffering ("Thirty Summers") and "You Will Be Loved Again," and an unrealistic visions of transcendence ("Witches") and "Escape Is So Simple.") The terrible turmoil at the core of these slow ponderings is the choice of whether to try and move on (she passes up a chance for a new love in "Where Are You Tonight," or to surrender to her damnation: She drinks herself senseless in "Escape Is So Simple") and in "Witches," she has an hallucinatory experience of paining a class of sorceresses who "dance in the moonbeams, ride the night wind / make love to the dark- ness and laugh at man's sins."

Mary Margaret O'Hara's "You Will Be Loved Again" in the album's final song, and it shows the Junkies in fine form. O'Hara's original version is jumbled and confused, a fascinating fusion of avant-garde jazz and folk-rock. The Cowboy Junkies have focused O'Hara's chaotic vision into a set chord progression—a poigniant, minor key which sets off Margo Timmins' fractured, tiny voice perfectly.

The entire album is summarized in this song: the uncertainty as to whether love is salvation or damnation, the possibility of final happiness or utter misery, and the paradoxical beauty within the horror of lost love serve as vehicles for the introspective music and distintive vocal stylings of the Cow- boy Junkies, a band with a courage and ability far surpassing that of their fellows in the neo-folk revival.

DAVONT, Ohio (AP) — Peter Rose's future hinges on the outcome of an Internal Revenue Service investigation and the public's reaction to it, the pub­licist for the former Cincinnati Reds manager said Tuesday. "Everything is on hold while we wait for the outcome of the IRS investigation," said Red Sox President Dan Duquette. Rose resigned last September after she was charged with tax fraud.

Piasek made her remarks in response to questions at a meeting of the Dayton-Miamit Paper Trade Association.

Last May, a grand jury con­vened in Cincinnati to look into whether Rose declared all of his income from horse show and memorabilia sales and all of his gambling winnings on his tax returns.

Piasek said Rose has been waiting patiently for the investigation to continue, but he is now being asked to work for Rose last September after she was approached by his attorneys. She said she spends about half of her time out of town.

Piasek said she is "troubled" by recent news coverage of the IRS probe, since she said the IRS has published reports from the grand jury investigation.

Some of these leaks have been accepted as a result of the media's interest in the story. When did the pressure to get to the story become too much for the IRS and the Public Relations Society of America?

Another personal legal right?

Piasek said she helped Rose decide last October how to publicly divulg­e that she had been secretly seeing a psychia­trist for the past year.

"He wouldn't meet in the same room with me," Piasek said. "It was just ridiculous, something out of "Mission Impossible." So we wanted to buy the house to the forefront as soon as possible so we could have a little privacy in this ridiculous obvious secrecy.

Piasek had few words for those using the traditional principles of jour­nalism not to be in the way.

Foreman comeback continues with victory

STATELINE, Nev. (AP) — Former heavyweight champion George Foreman pummeled the ample belly of overmatched Mike Jameson, bloodied his face, and knocked him out in the fourth round Tuesday night to stay on track for a title shot.

Foreman, slow and plodding but still much quicker and sharper than Jameson, ended the bout at 2:16 of the fourth with a left hook that dropped Jameson in a heap in his own corner. Earlier in the round, Foreman knocked Jameson's mouthpiece out for the third time in the fight, and opened a deep, ugly gash over his left eye that led to a brief halt while the ringside doctor checked the damage.

Jameson was breathing hard from the body blows and had blood dripping down his face when referee Mills Lane began to move in, apparently intent on stopping the fight. Before Lane could intervene, Foreman hit Jameson with the left hook to end it.

"I can take a good punch," Jameson said. "But by God, he hit me harder than anyone, even Mike Tyson. He hits you with those hands, it's like a wrecking ball coming at you."

Foreman knocked out Jameson's mouthpiece twice in the third round and dropped him to one knee with a right-left-right combination to the head in the only other knockdown of the scheduled 10-round bout.

Neither lean nor mean, and now just a slow fighting machine, Foreman weighed 266 pounds against the 233-pound Jameson.

Foreman, who claims to be 41 though fight records list him as 42, is enjoying life in his second ring career.

He had another easy payday at Caesars Tahoe, reportedly earning $200,000, to buy a little more equipment for his Houston youth center and gain a bit more credibility for a challenge title.

Jameson appeared to be a perfect setup: an ex-barroom bouncer from Cupertino, Calif, who hadn't fought in three years and had a modest 17-14 record with six knockouts.

His claim to fame was working as Tyson's sparring partner, a job that testified at least to Jameson's bravery and resilience. When fighting for real, Tyson knocked out Jameson in five rounds in 1986, the first of six straight losses before Jameson quit the ring.

Ironically, his last ring appearance was a two-round exhibition in Brazil in 1987 against Jimmy Young, the same fighter who beat Foreman in 12 rounds in Puerto Rico a decade earlier and sent him into retirement and the religious life.

When Foreman started his comeback 21 fights ago, in 1987, he had two goals — to get his boys club out of trouble and to win the heavyweight title again.

The accomplished his first goal and has a chance for the second, with a possible stop first to pick up several million dollars fighting Tyson in the fall.

Notre Dame women’s tennis team swept by Wolverines

Sports

The Notre Dame women’s tennis team dropped its record to 14-8 with a disappointing 6-0 loss to the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor last Thursday. The Irish faced the Michigan squad without the services of top player Tracy Barton and fifth seed Kristy Doran. Both players have been out for several weeks with injuries.

Although Irish coach Jay Louderback felt that the absence of the two figured into the loss, he cited other reasons as being responsible for the defeat.

“Not having those two in there hurt us, but we just didn’t play real well,” said the coach. “We played hard but not real well. We mentally lost some close first sets, and then had let-downs in the second sets.”

“They have a good team, they’re really solid all the way down. They just outplayed us; it’s okay, but on the road it’s rough.”

The Irish have only three home games this weekend, as they will head to Illinois to take on Indiana State and Illinois State on Saturday.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State basketball players weren’t motivated to study under former coach Jim Valvano unless their playing time was threatened, the school’s interim chancellor said Tuesday.

Larry Monteiith, addressing the school’s Faculty Senate for the first time since Valvano was removed as coach less than two weeks ago, said Valvano’s teams in the 1980s also relied heavily on academic exceptions.

Monteiith had undertaken an internal investigation of the men’s basketball program after he was named interim chancellor in September 1989, replacing Bruce Poultou, who resigned amid controversy surrounding the Wolfpack program.

Valvano, who coached the Wolfpack for 10 years, stepped down April 2 after university and school booster officials agreed to pay him more than $600,000.

The basketball program was placed on two years’ probation by the NCAA in December after players received cash and items of value in exchange for tickets and shoes.

“Probably the most disheartening part of my review was to know that when eligibility was the issue, most players could pass the course work required to remain eligible,” Monteiith said, reading from a statement he also delivered to the school’s Board of Trustees several weeks ago. “Clearly, many of these young men could make progress toward a degree but were not motivated or guided to do so.”

Monteiith said academic performance of the basketball team also declined after the Wolfpack won national championships in 1974 under Norm Sloan and 1983 under Valvano.

The special meeting lasted about 30 minutes and reporters weren’t allowed to ask questions. Only a handful of questions were asked by faculty members, who had requested that Monteiith report back to them after his speech to the trustees, who voted 9-3 last month to oust Valvano.

“We need help from the coach, the assistant coaches, from tutors … to force these young men to understand the value of our university and the importance of making progress toward a degree,” Monteiith said.

Monteiith gave no specific academic records, but said performance under Valvano and Sloan was “extremely poor.”

“I don’t know if I can say I’m disappointed about the lack of effort,” Monteiith said.

Larry Monteith, addressing the school’s Faculty Senate for the first time since Valvano was removed as coach less than two weeks ago, said Valvano’s teams in the 1980s also relied heavily on academic exceptions.

Monteiith said the school would now try “to heal its wounds.” He said problems centered around admissions, academic performance while at N.C. State, and progress toward a degree.

“The problem with poor academic performance in men’s basketball has a history dating back to the mid-to-late 1970s,” he said.

Monteiith said Sloan, who coached N.C. State from 1967-80, and Valvano were interviewed by school administrators many times during the past two decades and said they would not rely on academic exceptions.

“However, in the 1980s, a majority of the Freshman recruited were, in fact, academic exceptions,” he said. “It was not a surprise that a majority were suspended or dropped out.”

Linebackers prepare to lead Irish

By FRANK PASTOR Associate Sports Editor

Much of the attention surrounding the Notre Dame football team this spring has focused on the return of senior Linebackers coach Gary Darnell. As a result, much of the discussion has been about how the Irish will return to solidify the middle of the defense.

The Irish return three starting line backers from a year ago, plus a third last season's second-highest tackler, a 1988 Butkus Award finalist and several talented sophomores.

"We've turned the corner as far as what we can be," said defensive coordinator and line backers coach Gary Darnell following Tuesday's practice, the 16th of the spring season. "We now know what direction to go." The Irish defense Darnell refers to is forward, meaning his line backers will attack opposing ball carriers instead of moving laterally to scan the offense and field before committing themselves.

Stonebreaker, a consensus All-American and Butkus Award finalist in 1988, returns to take advantage of a "(Michael's) progress shows us..." season's second-highest tackler, who split time with Jones at the 16th of last season, also led the team in sacks with four.

"Outside linebacker is a good position for us," said Darnell. "We have some outstanding guys out there right now, and some of the younger guys can do the job as well."

Those younger guys include sophomores Erik Simien, Shawn Smith and Karl McGill, all who have seen extensive action this spring. Simien is expected to be back up Kowalkowski at rush end, while Smith and McGill, who tallied 34 tackles last season, also led the team in sacks with four. "Outside linebacker is a good position for us," said Darnell. "We have some outstanding guys out there right now, and some of the younger guys can do the job as well."

"If the pieces fit together well enough," said Darnell, "we'll see how much they (the line backers) do fly around out there. We'll see how many guys have that fanaticism, how high it is and how long they can sustain it."

"We want it so they can barely breathe."
NEW YORK (AP) — Third baseman Howard Johnson's two-out throwing error in the 13th inning allowed two Chicago runs to score, ending a 2-2 game and giving the Cubs the victory over the Mets in the NL East standings.

The teams combined for 22 hits and eight stolen bases in the longest game in the majors this season. The Mets left 11 bases loaded in the third, ninth and 10th innings and stranded 18 runners, 10 in scoring position.

Chicago got the winning run for Paul Asaasencher (1-0) in the 11th when Joe Girardi singled with one out Jeff Innis (10-1), stole second with two outs and continued to third on catcher Orlando Mercedo's throwing error. After Jerome Walton walked, Ryne Sandberg hit a ground out to Johnson, who fielded it cleanly but threw wildly past first base for his second error of the game and the Mets' fifth.

Sandberg's RBI grounder put Chicago ahead 6-5 in the 11th. Mike Marshall led off the bottom of the ninth with a walk and was advanced to third on a fielding error by Jim Davenport before being thrown out on a Dan Bautch safety. After a Danapilis walk, Mike continue the ball and threw to third. The Mets' fifth.

The Indians had taken a 2-0 lead behind former Royal Roy White and Strikeout's single to left Kansas City rallied past Cleveland (AP) on Saturday.

Kevin Wickander replaced Olin (0-1) and struck out Jim Bresch. But Stillwell batting average dropped against the Indians.

The Cubs' first run of the game came in the sixth when Kevin Seitzer doubled and George Brett walked with one out. Steve Olin replaced Black and surrendered an RBI single to Bo Jackson.

The Irish added two more in the seventh after Kevin Shannon hit a shot into the sixth and another partner in the seventh. The Boilers scored single runs against the seventh and ninth innings.

Sinnes stated. "We've made the routine stops and the routine plays to this point."
ND track team enjoys nice weather and fast times at Stanford Invitational meet

The Irish track team spent Easter break traveling to Palo Alto, Calif., to face a class field, including the likes of Nevada Reno, Long Beach City College, and host Stanford. Joe John Doyle of the 1990 Stanford Track and Field Classic.

Senior co-Captain Yan Seery, though suffering from jet lag, managed to collect yet another victory. Tony Smith threw the discus 118 feet nine-inches, and sophomore Bill Dauphinais finished the 5000 meters in 14:36.64, a personal record.

Highlighting the distance events, freshman John Cole finished the 5000 meters in 14:30.59, one of the top ten marks in Irish history, in only the second time competing at that distance. He is coming off a very successful cross-country season, in which he qualified to compete in the Junior World Championships. "That (qualifying for the Junior World) gave me confidence," he remarked. "I'm optimistic, but I still have no idea what I can do." With more experience, and a tougher mental attitude, he feels that he can improve in the event.

On a similar high note, freshman J.T. Burke placed in the 1500 meters with a season best 3:52.1. The Portland, Connecticut, native was ranked as number one in the nation in the 1500 meters out of high school last year by Track and Field News.

"Overall, it was a great meet," Head Coach Joe Plane recalled. "All of our athletics teams were represented. I was particularly impressed with the amount of personal records. It was a good performance.

Oakland council votes to rescind Raider offer

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Oakland City Council Tuesday night tentatively approved rescinding a $428 million plan to return the Raiders football team to its city of origin.

However, the council's 6-0 vote also approved reopening of a round of talks to lure the Raiders from Los Angeles.

The issue wasn't on the agenda, according to Supervisor Don Perata, who is looking for enthusiastic students to fill the following positions:

saying that if the deal "isn't dead, it's dying." Alameda County Board of Supervisor Don Perata said he, too, saw the petition drive as a sign of the community's renewed interest in the deal," said a spokeswoman for the mayor's office. That vote will have to take place at the next meeting after it is on the agenda, a move required under the state's open meeting law.

"This morning I had two conversations with representatives of the Raiders," Mayor Lionel Wilson told the council.

The mayor said he wanted to "attempt to arrive at some kind of resolution" with all parties including those who opposed the plan.

The arrangement negotiated during the last 14 months was undone mainly by an end run of petitions to place the football pact before Alameda County voters.

Wilson announced Monday that he would ask for the vote.

No rest for Blackhawks or Kings

Gretzky-less Edmonton usually gets its offensive thrust from veterans Mark Messier, Glenn Anderson and Jari Kurri but Mark Lamb had two game-winners against Winnipeg, one in overtime, and set Kurri's game-winner in Game 6.

Still, Los Angeles, which dispatched Toronto in five games, could have first string goalie Curtis Joseph back from a bruised shoulder for the series against Chicago. Otherwise Vincent Ribeaud gets the call. The Blues' offence rides the broad shoulders of Brett Hull, who followed as record-breaking regular season with five goals and five assists in the first round against the Maple Leafs.

Blackhawk goalie Mike Milen, who opened the season with St. Louis and wound up in Chicago after a pitstop in Quebec, had an up and down opening series against Minnesota. He played well for votes in Games 5, 6 and 7. But poorly and was pulled in Games 1 and 4. But Presley and Roenick both had two goals and Greg Gilbert produced four against the North Stars.

Two of the Chicago Blackhawks put a squeeze on one of the Minnesota North Stars during Sunday night's game. The Hawks won 5-2 to advance to the Norris Division finals versus the S. Louis Blues starting tonight.

A similar high note, freshman J.T. Burke placed in the 1500 meters with a season best 3:52.1. The Portland, Connecticut, native was ranked as number one in the nation in the 1500 meters out of high school last year by Track and Field News.

The Mayor said he wanted to "get the Raiders to leave Los Angeles" and return to the city's lease in the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum Stadium.

Wilson told the council. "This isn't dying," said a spokesman for the mayor's office. That vote will have to take place at the next meeting after it is on the agenda, a move required under the state's open meeting law.

Irish hurlers enjoyed success over the Easter Holiday, as they led ND to key victories.

Top-eight sweet Scotty P. and the Dwarfs made its Bookstore Basketball debut on Steep Courts yesterday, but was forced to struggle to a 22-16 win over UNLV as its biggest star was missing from the lineup.

Scott Paddock, a former center for Notre Dame, missed his first Bookstore game because he went to Chicago to see the Bulls play the Boston Celtics. Rosemount Mike Messaglia filled in for Paddock, but didn’t take a shot in the contest.

“They were pretty quick, but the weather hurt us, too,” sweet Scotty P.’s Marty Falkenberg said of his squad’s first round opponents. “They played a tight zone on us, but we were eventually able to get it inside and score some easy baskets.”

If sweet Scotty P. is going to make a run at the Final Four, most of its points will probably come inside. Besides Paddock, who is 6-9, sweet Scotty P. boasts three players who are 6-4 and one who is 6-3.

“Our whole offense will revolve around Paddock, obviously,” Falkenberg said. “Today, though, the key was the outside shooting of Phil Bauzen.”

Bauzen led sweet Scotty P. with eight points.

Five Vermin Who Have Lived Yet to See the Second Round won its first Bookstore game after three years of disappointment by a score of 21-14 over Acta. Sanctions.

FiveVermin’s Kevin Corazon said that he was glad to finally win because his team had been unfortunate enough to meet up with a ranked team in each of the past three years.

“We feel awesome,” Corazon said. “We feel we’re ready to go to the Final Four now that we have our first win under our belts. As for Adwords, bring them on, we’re ready for the best teams in this tournament.”

Top 32 seed Just Chillin’ had its first real problem yesterday against The Beaver Cleavers yesterday, but managed to record a 21-14 win. Just Chillin’ was playing without 6-6 center Kevin Rule, so 6-3 Ray Griggs and 6-3 Rick McGillicuddy took charge inside and scored seven points each.

“We have to play better than we did today to continue advancing,” said Dave Clof of Just Chillin’. “We need to do some practice after we get our whole team back together.”

Perhaps the most unusual game of the day featured Palmer’s Boys, who braved the elements to face Mom Always Said Don’t Play Ball in the House while wearing only underwear.

Falkenberg said of his squad’s win over the Screaming Midgets From Air Force, both outspoken and successful, “Our team with the most legitimate claim to the national championship. Fantasy? Probably. Tradition alone might prohibit this dream situation from ever happening. But there has been some discussion among the football elite along these lines.

At the College Football Association’s annual meeting last June, there was enough interest in the postseason championship to have a committee formed to study the bowl structure and determine if there could be improvements made in its execution. The prospect of a national championship postseason game was included in the items of discussion for this group.

Thus the CFA Postseason Review Committee was born. Notre Dame’s own Dick Rosenthal was a member of this eight-member junta, which also included Georgia’s Vince Dooley and John Clume from Air Force. Both outspoken critics of the recent Irish-HBC football package. Presumably they all plowed aside efforts to gather together properly to discuss the best interests of collegiate football. The commission met during the football season to discuss various issues about the postseason system. To indicate that these members were not a radical band of howl flag-burners, they decided that a 16-team playoff system introduced at the去了 the tax confiscation.”

“The process was one of the constructive kind of review of postseason football,” said Rosenthal. “We were there to determine what could be done on the part of schools and on the part of the bowls. The meeting was discussionary in nature.”

Irish win 3 out of 4 over weekend

By MIKE KRAMARD

Last year was the most successful year in the history of Notre Dame baseball. The squad won 48 games (including wins over Miami and Texas), won the MCC, and went to the NCAA playoffs. They might have to win more than 48 this year as there will be no automatic bid from the MCC this year because the NCAA consolation conference isn’t desiring.

Last Thursday’s 14-2 shellacking of the Purdue Boilermakers could help down the road. It’s a good win,” said Irish coach Pat Murphy. “We beat a Big Ten team quite badly. We have to continue to play like that, but it’s going to be tough with the injuries.”

The Irish lost two starters, Eric Danapilus and Joe Binkiewicz, in Monday’s 2-0 win over Xavier. Freshman rightfielder Danapilus leads the team with a .404 average. He’s second in steals (16) and home runs (2) as well as third in RBIs with 14. Binkiewicz has raised his average to .250 and also has two homers with 16 RBIs. In addition, he’s won two games as a pitcher. Murphy is confident his team will pull through the next week or two in good shape.

“Anytime adversity hits this team, this bunch of guys finds a way of getting it done,” said Murphy. “Bink has been a tremendous part of it all. He’s a unique kid. He feels he’s got no obstacle he can’t overcome. He’s a blue collar player who wants the ball handed to him in the big situation.”

Against Purdue, the Irish got help in the first inning when they jumped to a 4-0 lead in the first inning. Danapilus started things with a walk and then stole second. Eddie Lund reached on an error, and Danapilus went to third with Danapilus going to third. A wild pitch scored “Dino” and moved Lund to third. Danapilus scored Lund with a single and came home on Mike Rokits’s two-run blast.

The Irish put the game away with five in the third. Lund opened with a walk, went to second, and scored on a single and advance to third on a groundout.}

Scotty Paddock, obvisously, “Falkenberg said. “We were eventually able to get it into the mercy of sports reporters and they put all grudges aside to gather together in brotherly unity to discuss the best interests of collegiate football.
