Lithuania must back down, letter says

MOSCOW (AP) — Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis said Thursday he will carefully study a proposal from President Ronald Reagan of the United States for the Baltic republic temporarily to suspend its independence drive.

Landsbergis said the letter from French President Francois Mitterrand and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, delivered to Lithuanian representatives in Moscow, said such a suspension could lead to talks with the Kremlin "so that the current crisis ends in a solution acceptable to all parties.

Also Thursday, Vilnius Radio reported Lithuania will begin food rationing May 1. The republic of 3.8 million people is struggling under an economic embargo imposed last week by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev to break its independence movement.

Landsbergis himself was confronted Thursday by activists protesting his crackdown in Lithuania. During his visit in an industrial city in the Ural Mountains, demonstrators raised a huge banner that called him a "political hypocrite."

Landsbergis described the letter from Mitterrand and Kohl as "a step forward toward the realization of Lithuanian independence," said parliamentary spokesman Ed Tuskenis, speaking by telephone.

Lithuania wants an immediate dialogue, Landsbergis said, and "is termination of the Soviet economic blockade against Lithuania would lead the Soviet leadership of this dialogue."

The leadership of Lithuania, greatly appreciating this act of goodwill on the part of two noted leaders, will carefully study this letter's proposals, the statement added.

Tuskenis said Landsbergis viewed "as positive" that the letter from Kohl and Mitterrand did not mention revoking Lithuania's March 11 declaration of independence. The letter discussed temporary suspension of some decisions by the Lithuanian parliament.

The letter from the French and German leaders came two days after President Bush said he would put off sanctions against Moscow for bringing economic and military pressure against Lithuania.

Kremlin authorities on Monday urged Lithuania to suspend for two years its declaration of independence.

But Rep. Charles B. Stenholm, D-Texas, who has refused to revoke the declaration, the Baltic republic's leadership has always been willing "to discuss the timing and the form of independence, whether or not that's a year or two," Tuskenis said after talking to Landsbergis.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some service officials plan to cancel purchases of the C-17 long-range transport plane and the Advanced Tactical Aircraft at the Pentagon as part of President Bush's $34.8 billion defense cutback.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney on Thursday called for slashing Pentagon plans for the B-2 stealth bomber and other sophisticated aircraft, citing a diminishing Soviet threat.

Cheney, pressed by congressional Democrats to cut military spending in response to rapid changes in Europe, testified his blueprint would trim $2.4 billion from President Bush's $37 billion defense budget for 1991 and would save $34.8 billion through 1997.

In addition to cutting the proposed number of B-2 bombers from 132 to 75, Cheney said he intends to cut the planned number of C-17 long-range transport planes and the Advanced Tactical Aircraft and delay purchase of the Air Force's Advanced Tactical Aircraft.

The chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., commended Cheney for "coming to grips with some things he clearly needs to come to grips with" but said he didn't go far enough.

Glaring analysts' testimony one day earlier on the internal problems in the Soviet military as well as U.S. intelligence reports predicting instability in the Soviet armed forces, Cheney's plan "is based on an unrealistically pessimistic view of the Soviet threat."

Cheney later presented his plan to the Senate Armed Services Committee, where the panel's chairman, Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., asked the secretary high marks for his efforts but declined to adopt the program totals.

Nunn was puzzled, however, by Cheney's ability to reduce aircraft programs without final figures on the armed forces.

The Simpsons and the Family of the Year

This is the year of the family, and what family best exemplifies the average American family than the Simpsons? None if you ask me! And if you don’t care, stop reading this column. The Simpsons are IT! They’ve gone through a complete turn around in the depiction of the family. They used to be sick and tired of seeing these over-loving families like the Huxtable’s or the Bradys. The only true but instant rewatching shows were the Simpsons. Lisa Eaton

Chief Justice William Rehnquist rejected a final appeal Thursday to delay start-up of the Seabrook, N.H., nuclear power plant in a decision that could save the state money. That money could then be used to improve other services, officials said. A final version of the report is expected next week.

Panelists discuss ways to add diversity to Catholic worship; emphasize group prayer

By JESSICA ZIEMBROSKI

The role of diversity in the setting of Roman Catholic worship was the subject of a panel discussion in Grace Hall on Thursday when select panelists discussed the issue of innovation in the liturgy.

Panelists included Archbishop Eugene Marino of Atlanta, Fr. Fernando Cheri, Fr. Bode Alarau of the Archdiocese of New Orleans, Eileen Bernstein, director of Notre Dame’s Center for Pastoral Liturgy and two scholars of African American liturgical concerns. The discussion included the manner in which the panelists thought a gospel liturgy should be celebrated and all agreed that it was in prayer where all the panelists participated. The question of the extent to which the Bible should be used in the mass was presented.

Fr. Abram discussed the possibility of using more interpretation as opposed to strictly reading the Bible when preaching, and having a close family atmosphere within the service. Also he stressed the importance of thanking God as being a further part of the liturgy.

Mass was celebrated in Stupin Center on Wednesday by Archbishop Marino and a collection was taken for the Sister Thea Bowman Foundation. Bowman died March 30, a few days after she had been named the 1990 recipient of the University’s Lastare Medal. Her support of black Catholic education was brought up and ideas for its improvement were discussed.

Gumbleton quoted Pope John Paul II, saying that militarism is “clearly hurtful to the poor.” It maintains an imperialistic monopoly over the goods (the United States) has amassed for the United Nations, and it can lead to war.

Most of the time we will be organizing in such a way that the poor will be killing the poor,” said Gumbleton. The fighting will be an attempt to maintain the status quo, which favors the “slaves of possession” in our “civilization of comfort,” he said.

“An opportunity for dramatic change is present,” said Gumbleton, in reference to the end of the Cold War. For Notre Dame to take advantage of this opportunity, he suggested a three-part proposal.

Notre Dame should take a leading role in ending the arms race, come up with alternative economic conversion proposals, and “disassociate itself clearly, dramatically, and completely from the militarism of this country,” by eliminating the ROTC program, he said.

Happy 19th Tony Van Es

Gumbleton explained that the five Jesuit priests who were killed in El Salvador were in the midst of supervising a plan to transform the Jesuit schools in Central America into schools “for the poor.” He challenged the Jesuits working in United States institutions to strive towards the same transformation.

“This is a milestone event in North America,” he commented. He expressed a hope that Notre Dame might be able to “transform our earth into us close to the kingdom of God as possible by playing a strong part in the attempt to end the arms race and unjust militarism in the United States.

The University of Notre Dame needs to take a leadership role in the attempt to end the arms race in the United States, according to Bishop Thomas Gumbleton.

The most dramatic step which Notre Dame could take to express its disapproval would be to eliminate its ROTC program, said Gumbleton, auxiliary bishop of Detroit and president of Pax Christi USA. Its existence is evidence that Notre Dame is supporting the unfair status quo in the United States, a “corporate sin,” according to Gumbleton.

The pro-life march in Washington D.C. will prove that opinion polls suggesting Amer­ican pro-choice are deceiving the public, according to Thom Gill, publicity chairman of St. Joseph County Right to Life.

St. Joseph County Right to Life will sponsor a bus trip to Washington D.C. for the April 28th "Rally For Life" which is an event that is expected to draw hundreds of thousands of pro-life supporters from throughout the country, Gill said.

A bus will leave South Bend at 10 p.m. today and arrive in Washington D.C. at 11 a.m. on Saturday. The march is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. and the bus will return to South Bend at 7 a.m. on Sunday.

The rally is being sponsored by John Willke, president of National Right to Life. More than 800 coordinators across the country are organizing their local areas to participate in the rally.

Speakers scheduled for the rally include Cardinal John O’Connor, James Dobson, president of Focus on the Fam­ily, pro-life centers; pro-life organization; Congressman Henry Hyde; and Willke. In ad­dition, Mother Teresa of Calcutta will join the marchers if her health permits," Gill said.

He predicted a slip in the years in which the new systems will be deployed.

Cheney said his proposed cut-back would lower the projected cost of the B-2 program from $75.4 billion to $61.1 billion. But he said building fewer planes would drive up the cost of a single plane from about $530 million to more than $800 million.

"We are in fact looking at targeting requirements," Cheney said, noting the obvious change in what would be deemed targets in Eastern Europe since the collapse of the Warsaw Pact.

Cheney said he intends to cut the number of B-2 aircraft to be purchased in the next fiscal year to two planes, from five currently proposed at a cost in the fiscal 1991 budget of $5.5 billion. And the maximum number of planes to be built during peak years of production would be reduced to 12 instead of 24, Cheney indicated.

Conservatives on the House panel suggested that Cheney’s plan for the B-2 will help the program survive on Capitol Hill.

"It could make it more palatable to members on defense," Rep. Ike Skelton, D-Mo., said following the hearing.

Rep. Robert Davis, R-Mich., said Cheney has given Republicans "a very dependable position."

study said the agencies have not carried out testing since 1981.

The report said both agencies generally support the GAO’s conclusions and cite lack of funding and staff for their failure to enforce the labeling rules. Violators may be fined up to $10,000 for each instance.

Joe Koach, executive director of the 60,000 member Service Station Dealers of America, said he was "deeply chagrined because this broad-brushes the integrity of America’s gasoline marketers."

Legitimate dealers would not risk their franchises with major oil companies by cheating, and the organization supports stringent enforcement against octane cheats, Koach said.

David Morehead, spokesman for the Petroleum Marketers Association of America, said there have been scattered reports of cheating but it is "absolutely deployed in the industry."

Nearly half of the states conduct their own octane tests, and mislabeling has been minimal where testing acts as a deterrent, the GAO study said.

But in seven non-testing states visited by GAO investigators, problems were found, mainly at the distribution and retail levels, the report said.

In 1989 Michigan tests conducted primarily in Detroit, 51.9 percent of stations had inflated ratings averaging 2.3 octane points, and in Los Angeles 52.6 percent had mislabeled an average of 2.2 points, the report said.

In 1988 tests conducted by Oregon officials, 21.8 percent of samples were mislabeled and in Tennessee 23.2 percent, the GAO said.

States that test generally consider any mislabeling of one-half point or more in the octane rating as a significant violation, the GAO said.
Insect repellents recalled for effects on lab animals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two major brands of insect repellent and scores of others are being pulled from store shelves because an ingredient used for decades to damage reproductive organs and cause tumors in test animals, government regulators said Thursday.

In all, 200 brands of insect repellent, including Off and Cutter’s, use the ingredient 2,4,5-T and 2,4-D, the unholy twin of Agent Orange, as an additive to repel flies that bite, said Al Heier, a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency.

About 25 percent of all insect repellent sold in the U.S. use the additive, known industrially as R-71 although that name does not appear on the label of any consumer product. The labels, instead, carry the long technical name, Heier said.

The manufacturer, McLaughlin Gormley King Co. of Minneapolis, provided the government with test results showing that the additive caused “adverse reproductive effects, ovarian atrophy and decreased fertility, or tumors,” in laboratory rats and mice, Heier said.

“These are the preliminary effects; the studies aren’t completed,” he said.

“The company has voluntarily canceled their registration on this product and informed all the users,” Heier said. “They did the responsible thing.”

Cancelling the registration means the company is asking for revocation of its license to produce or sell a pesticide.

Two of the major users of the additive are Cutter and Son Co. of Racine, Wis., which makes Off, and Mills Co. of Chicago, producer of Cutter’s, Heier said.

Both are notifying retailers to take the products off their shelves.

Sixty-five other companies also produce repellents using R-71 under a variety of brand names.

Colombian presidential candidate assassinated

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A man on a suicide mission pulled out a submachine gun on a crowded Colombian Jefferson Thursday and assassinated a presidential candidate before firing himself in a blaze of pistol fire from bodyguards.

A drug trafficking group called the Extraditables claimed responsibility for shooting former leftist guerrilla chief Carlos Pizarro and said his name was picked in a drawing, the radio network Caracol said.

The group, mainly from the Medellin cocaine cartel, said other candidates will be killed until traffickers are pardoned.

Pizarro was the fourth Colombian presidential candidate to be assassinated in the past 31 months. Drug traffickers have blamed him for the murder of his predecessor.

An anonymous telephone caller said the names of three other presidential candidates were in the death lottery and that another candidate will die.

Passengers screamed and dashed out of their seats as submachine gun fire broke out eight minutes after the Avianca Airlines Boeing 727 left Bogota’s El Dorado international airport, the pilot, Capt. Fabio Manevar, said.

The plane, on route to the Caribbean coastal city of Barranquilla, where Pizarro was to campaign, returned immediately to Bogota.

No one else on the plane was hurt.

The killer, 25-year-old Alvaro Rodriguez, apparently retrieved the submachine gun from an airplane bathroom, Manevar said.

He told Caracol Rodriguez went to the restroom at the back of the jet shortly after takeoff, then returned and took his seat two seats behind Pizarro.

Minutes later he stood up and whipped out the weapon from his black leather jacket. Leaning over a passenger in the row in front of him, Rodriguez pointed the gun at Pizarro’s head, about a foot away, and opened fire. Police said only Pizarro was hit.

Eight bodyguards accompanied Pizarro on the flight. Caracol quoted an unidentified campaign worker accompanying Pizarro as saying:

It was not immediately clear how the submachine gun was smuggled onto the plane. Air passengers boarding at Bogota are frisked and their belongings are searched. However, it is normal for presidential candidates to be bodyguard, even on passenger flights.

Caracol said in an unofficial report that five bullets smashed into the window near Pizarro, but none penetrated the skin, laminated plastic.

The plane carried 91 passengers and a crew of six, an Avianca spokeswoman told The AP.

Chamorro faces crisis because of Sandinista army

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Violeta Chamorro encountered a political crisis in her first full day in office Thursday for allowing the Sandinista army to fight a nine-year war against the Contras. Chamorro also announced plans to deportelize the army and reduced their numbers, with about 100,000 soldiers, it is the biggest in Central America. Her transition team explained that her decision to retain Humberto Ortega and other Sandinista security officials was a temporary one.

Thursday, activists said. One banner called the reformist president a hypocrite. Besides the public protests, Gorbachev arrived to a less visible threat — potential friction within the Communist Party. He expressed alarm that a dozeon local party members quit the Politburo to join, the opposition newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda, according to Moscow, the official news agency Tass reported.

Unocal reduces smog

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Unocal Corp., joining a growing coalition of oil companies, with clean air ideas, announced Thursday it would offer discounts to buy 7,000 older gas-eating cars in an effort to reduce smog in the Los Angeles basin.

Unocal has allocated $5 million to purchase the cars, which must be at least 20 years old, and scrap them, said Richard Stegemeier, Unocal's chairman and chief executive. The plan would eliminate an estimated 6 million pounds of pollutant gases, he said.

Owners would be offered $700 apiece for the locally registered junkers, Stegemeier said.

"We want to take the heaviest polluters off the road and hand them over to a scrap yard, which will shred and recycle the metal," Stegemeier said.

Unocal executives noted that pre-1971 vehicles pollute from 15 to 30 times more than 1990 models, with about 410,000 such jalopies and bombs registered in the region. The program is scheduled to begin June 1.

A spokesperson for Unocal's California air quality agency voiced support for Unocal's program, which was seen by one industry analyst as a growing trend of "greening" among oil companies.
Contact with Hubble Telescope is re-established on second attempt

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Ground controllers cheered after re-establishing contact Thursday with the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope through its main antennas. An attempt six hours earlier had failed.

"I'm pretty relieved, I must say," said AI Boggess, Hubble project scientist at Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

Applause erupted at Goddard's Space Telescope Operations Center when the high-speed contact was made Thursday afternoon.

Controllers sent information to the telescope about its location, and "this basically improved the telescope's knowledge where it was, what its position was," said Goddard's Dave Drachlis. They also widened the radio beam to cover a larger area around the two high-speed dish antennas.

"We have confirmation that we have achieved communications with the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite through the high-gain antenna system," Drachlis reported.

The antennas are the primary communications links for relaying scientific information to the ground.

Controllers' lack of experience with the new satellite was part of the problem, Boggess said.

"This probably won't be the last time we have a problem," he said. "We'll keep working at it until we have all these things that need to be done, done. We'll get them right."

The problem began Thursday morning when engineers tried pointing the two high-speed antennas toward two widely-separated TDRS satellites without success. Two low-speed antennas were working fine, but Boggess said they would be "excruciatingly slow" for sending data.

There had been a communications outage with the telescope earlier. It lasted only 45 minutes and was due to human error.

In addition, one of four "rate gyro's," wheels whose spin maintains the telescope in a stable position, was disconnected by an automatic system for a region engineers were unable to explain immediately. But it was restored later and the stability of the satellite was unaffected.

The problems won't delay the schedule for putting the telescope into use, said Jean Olivier, Hubble deputy project manager at Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala.

"Now we have to do an analysis to make sure we understand just what part of it worked and whether there are things we have to do differently in the future to make it continue to work," Boggess said.

Senate refuses to cut Panama aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate late Thursday rejected an effort to cut the aid President Bush is seeking for Panama and use it instead for a variety of domestic programs.

Senators left the $420 million Panama aid intact when, on a 51-48 vote, they defeated an amendment by Appropriations Committee Chairman Robert Byrd, D-W.Va.

The Senate then labored late into the night as it tried to deal with dozens of proposed amendments, but prospects appeared remote for quick approval of the overall aid bill, which included $300 million for efforts to cut the alien presence of Nicaragua.

"Chamorro's term may expire before we get the aid down there," said Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan.

The bill still faces a veto threat from President Bush, who opposes a provision that would allow the District of Columbia government to use local funds to pay for abortions for poor women. Such payments have been banned for the past two years.

Byrd had proposed to slash Panama aid to $300 million and use the largest chunk of the savings for cleaning up Department of Energy nuclear plants. Other money would have gone for sanitation in Indian housing, agricultural disasters and a nutrition program for women and children.

Capitalizing on the general unpopularity of foreign aid in Congress, Byrd cast his amendment as an effort to make charity begin at home.

Interviewing Skills Workshop

Need Practice with interviewing while earning $50 as an interviewee?

Come join us for our Interviewing Skills Workshop, June 18-22, July 23-27, or August 20-24 at our Center for Professional Education in St. Charles, Illinois. We are looking for students to participate as practice interviewees with our professionals who are developing their interviewing skills.

As part of this one-day seminar, each Andersen Consulting recruiter will conduct 30-minute practice interviews with three different students. Each interview will be videotaped followed by a critique of the interviewer and interviewee. In addition to the practice interviews, a class will be conducted that covers the interviewing process, from resume writing to evaluating job offers.

The ideal candidates for this workshop are engineering, computer science, business, and M.B.A. students entering their last year of school next fall.

The workshop will take place each business day listed above from 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Participants should plan on arriving at St. Charles between 6:00 p.m. and 8:00 p.m. the evening prior. We will provide you with overnight accommodations and meals at our Center in St. Charles. Participants will be paid $50 for services as a practice interviewee.

If you are interested in participating, please forward a cover letter, resume, and the date you would like to attend by May 1, 1990 to:

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union reached basic agreement Thursday on an economic pact that would normalize trade relations between the two superpowers for the first time in nearly a half century, a senior U.S. negotiator announced.

U.S. Deputy Trade Representative Julius Katz said he expected the agreement would be ready for signing at the May 30-June 3 summit between President Bush and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

The agreement would clear the way for the Soviet Union to obtain significantly lower tariffs on its products sold in America while expanding opportunities for U.S. companies to do business in the Soviet Union.

U.S. officials have predicted that trade between the two countries could double or even triple over the next three years with a new trade agreement. Private economists doubt that assessment, given the numerous troubles plaguing the Soviet economy.

Last year, trade between the countries totaled $5 billion. U.S. export sales, which totaled $4.3 billion, reflected primarily grain shipments. Soviet sales in this country, totaling $703 million, included petroleum and consumer items such as vodka and furs.

While Bush and Gorbachev both made a new trade accord a top priority at their Malta summit meeting last December, conclusion of the pact had been jeopardized by the Soviet crackdown in Lithuania.

After a debate within the administration on whether to cancel the economic talks as a protest, Bush announced Tuesday that he had decided against imposing economic sanctions on the Soviets at the present time.

Katz, who headed the U.S. bargaining team, said negotiators still needed to work out the wording in four relatively minor areas. He said he believed those issues could be cleared up within the next few weeks.

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Supreme Court on Thursday ordered the eviction of Jewish settlers who stirred an international protest by moving into a building in the Christian quarter of Jerusalem's old city.

Officials of the Greek Orthodox Church, which owns the building, were dissatisfied because the ruling allows maintenance workers and 20 guards hired by the settlers to remain until a lower court resolves the tenancy dispute.

The church argues the settlers are in the building under an illegal sublease. It said it would close all Christian shrines in the Holy Land on Friday to protest the presence of the 150 armed settlers.

The Jewish settlers moved into the 72-room St. John's Hospice on April 11. The action brought protests from Christian clerics, Palestinian Christians and Moslems, the U.S. State Department, pro-Israeli lobby groups and the government of Greece.

The Netu David settlement in Jerusalem was seen as part of a new settlement drive by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, the hawkish leader of the right-wing Likud Bloc who was chosen Thursday to form a new government.

The State Department called the Netu David settlement "an insensitive and provocative act." The U.S. government opposes all settlements on land Israel captured in the 1967 war, saying it is an obstacle to peacemaking with the Arabs.

The walled Old City is divided into Moslem, Christian, Jewish and Armenian quarters. Each sector contains holy sites and shrines, and the slightest changes in thestatus quo have historically led to violence.

Campus date rape should be publicized at ND

Dear Editor:

I recently received a University survey on male/female relationships at Notre Dame. As someone who has experienced these relationships here for four years, I share the University's concern. Unfortunately, I cannot take the administration's efforts to address the problem seriously because of the way in which it deals with the worst instances—date rape.

For those who do not know, rapes do occur at Notre Dame. I know people who have been involved with date rape, and others who have witnessed it. Some have either raped or been raped. Date rape happens at all large, academic institutions. Many share Notre Dame's approach of covering up instances of rape to preserve their image. Many people here would probably say it is not even a problem at Notre Dame—because we do not hear about them.

By covering up date rape at Notre Dame, I refer to the University's preference to keep date rape incidents as quiet as possible and deal with offenders in their own way (which, at worst, might have a person dismissed from Notre Dame for "disciplinary reasons").

By covering up date rape—not reporting specific instances to student publications such as The Observer or filling in information from publications the University creates—the University creates the illusion that date rape does not happen here. Women are discouraged from reporting date rapes if they think it is a simple instance at Notre Dame; men who know it happens are encouraged to commit the violent act, especially men whose date rapes went unreported.

Publicly admitting when a date rape has happened, and showing that the offender has been punished severely—especially if he is a student—sends females the message that reporting a date rape will make a difference, and a message to males that the violation will be punished. The only thing that should be kept secret in a date rape is the identity of the victim. Until the Office of Student Affairs and the administration show that they value the individual rights of female students at Notre Dame more than the University's image, date rape will continue to be a problem at Notre Dame, and male/female relations will suffer.

Rampant homophobia represents ignorance and bigotry

Dear Editor:

I have spent several hours at attempting to write a calm, reasoned and logical response to comments I have heard at Notre Dame. I finally gave up and decided to confront face to face the anger I feel—anger which has been in me for what seems a lifetime. I am tired of the rampant homophobia of this campus (and country and culture), and of the systematic and relentless efforts of the self-appointed guardians of morality to impose their "lifestyle" on the whole of creation.

I would like to be able to say that I am indifferent to the ravings of homophobic individuals who are quick to point out the mistakes of others and yet who themselves are "repulsive" or "disingusting" (or, in the more refined, if less honest, words which usually make their meaning clear) the "morally unacceptable," or "homosexual," or "unchaste." Unfortunately, it's not quite that simple. As Alva Lewis' sad but revealing letter illustrated (The Observer, April 9), it is not that easy for a reprieved minority to develop a positive self-image in the face of continuous putdowns, both overt and subtle. One way to begin to do so, however, is to develop an awareness of and appreciation for the achievements of those who have come before us.

Unfortunately, the level of ignorance regarding homosexuality is astounding. This is probably always the case when dealing with socially sanctioned prejudices and hatreds, but is made worse in our case by our near invisibility (How many Notre Dame students operate under the false belief that they don't know any gay people? Maybe close to 90 percent! Ten percent are aware of the fact that they know at least one! Few people, gay, straight, or bisexual, know about the achievements of gay people—neither of the accomplishments of those who have achieved greatness according to the usual worldly standards, (and who were often forced to remain in the closet in order to be accepted in this hostile environment); nor of the lives of the many individuals who managed to remain true to themselves and to live dignified and honest lives despite the odds.

The only stories we are likely to hear are of those whose lives have been damaged in some way, and these stories are usually told to reinforce negative stereotypes rather than to increase understanding or to bring change. As the history of the struggles of various racial and ethnic groups makes clear to us, a knowledge of a people's history is very important in the struggle to build a more just world. Maybe that's why Mr Dell'Acqua seems so anxious to deprive us of it.

How ironic that Dell'Acqua should justify his attempt to ban our freedom of speech by arguing that GLND/SMC's ads are analogous to those of a group who might want to use The Observer's pages to propagate racism. Our writings are much more analogous to those brave individuals—Catholics and others— who stood up in the not-so-distant "past" when overt verbal attacks on racial minorities were not only socially acceptable, but socially required of all those who wanted to maintain their social standing in white society.

But I am also true to the belief that the black problem turned out to be a problem of white racism, just as the 'woman problem' turned out to be male sexism, so the 'homosexual problem' is really the homophobia of many heterosexuals who just won't grant God the right to a more pluralistic creation. It's bigotry, pure and simple.

MOVIE PICKS

The 1988 hit "Die Hard" is set in an international airport where special forces, led by a maniacal former U.S. military officer, attempt to intercept a Central American drug dealer. Their plans are thrown slightly out of whack when McClane arrives. This should be good, but hopefully this will be the last one—it could turn into a "Rambo"-type series, and America could be viewing "Die Hard 6: Please Die This Time!"

The 1988 hit "Young Guns" has already led to a television series, and now it has a sequel aptly titled "Young Guns 2." Three out of the eight actors from the original return, including Emilio Estevez as William H. Bonney, a.k.a. Billy the Kid. Christian Slater and Alan Ruck (Cameron in "Ferris Bueller") are two of Billy's new gang who will be familiar faces. "You can't pick a winner where the original left off! Billy and his fellow rebels are now on the run.

What could prove to be one of the best horror films of the summer is "The Exorcist III: Legion." This is supposedly the official sequel to "The Exorcist"—the first sequel was not written by the author of the original, but this one is. According to the writer, the demon goes on forever, but how, and in what form?

This film starts right where "The Exorcist" ended—a demon has cast itself into the body of a young priest. The film has elements of a detective story, a theological puzzle and a study in terror. The men who worked on "Star Wars" and "Raiders of the Lost Ark" are on the production team, so the effects should be great.

Andrew Dice Clay is the new filmmaker's favorite for the summer. He will have his own concert movie, and it is "The Adventures of Ford Fairlane" he is cast as a private investigator who works in the music industry world. It is a comic thriller that boasts a star-studded cast: Wayne Newton, Prescilla Presley, Robert Englund ("Nightmare on Elm Street"), Vince Neil (Motley Crue), Sheila E., and even Tone-Loc makes a cameo appearance.

After the death of a rock singer, Clay becomes involved in a maze of corruption, double-crosses, blackmail and murder. "Ford Fairlane" was directed by the man responsible for the fourth and most profitable entry in the "Elm Street" series, "The Dream Master," so a quality film can pretty much be expected. Arnold Schwarzenegger returns to the screen in "Total Recall," directed by Paul Verhoeven, who did "Robocop." It is set in 2084 A.D. and is an action comedy of self-discovery. The heartthrob movie of the season will probably be "Air America," with Mel Gibson and Robert Downey, Jr. These two are renegade pilots with the world's most secret airline, Air America, whose motto is "anything, anywhere, anytime."

"Flatliners" tells the tale of five medical students who play with a life-after-death experiment and become individually faced with the sins of their past. The cast includes Keifer Sutherland, Julia Roberts ("Pretty Woman") and Kevin Bacon.

The movie industry probably has a few other potential blockbuster that they are keeping under wraps until the last minute. There should be enough good movies to keep people busy when they get tired of the sun and the beach.
Elite Eight begin quest for Bookstore XIX title

Griggs keys Just Chillin’ over Senior Bar; other top seeds advance to final weekend

By GREG GUFFEY
Sports Editor

Just Chillin’ is hot. The 14th-ranked seed knocked off third-seeded Senior Bar 21-19 Thursday afternoon to advance to the Final Eight.

Griggs scored nine points for Just Chillin’, a team with few big names and even less recognition before Thursday’s victory.

“It really wasn’t an upset,” Griggs said. “We were just unheard of before the game. It was the best game that we’ve all played.”

Said teammate Joe Fulton who scored two hoops. “We thought they (Senior Bar) were one of the better teams in the tourney. We also felt we were underrated. We played together well as a team today.”

Just Chillin’ might have to play the remainder of the tournament without big man Kevin Rael, who hurt his ankle in Thursday’s win. Rael scored three points against Senior Bar.

Just Chillin’ will play Remember It’s Beaver in today’s quarterfinals in a game that should be wide open.

“Our confidence is there,” Griggs said. “In basketball, who knows what can happen?” Remember It’s Denver downed Clockwork Orange 21-16 behind the seven points of Greg Gumbert. Bob Kinska and Jody Martinez added six baskets each for the winners.

“I think our defensive intensity has kept us in every game,” Gumbert said. “I think we can play with anyone because of our defense. We ran our offense well today, but we’ve got to make more than one pass against the man-to-man defense.”

Martinez, who works in the catering department at Notre Dame, is a force inside for Remember It’s Denver. He was one of the leading rebounders in NAIA as a senior at Bethel College last season.

Malicious Prostitution continued its quest for a second consecutive title with a 21-15 victory over Fast Break.

Joe Scott scored six points to lead a balanced attack for Malicious Prostitution, while Jim Flynn tossed in five hoops.

Adworks, probably the strongest challenger to Malicious Prostitution’s title, got an easy 21-16 win over Shoot Or Get Off.

Dorsey Levens scored seven points to lead Adworks, and Kevin Keyes and Cedric Figaro added five baskeis each.

“I think we played OK,” said Jim Dolan, who scored two points for the winners. “We didn’t play great defense. We threw the ball away a lot. We have to get fundamentally sound basketball.”

Expresso Pizza will play Adworks after winning 21-18 over Malicious Prostitution.

Kevin Warren hit 10-of-21 shots to key Expresso, and Mark Granger scored four points. Pete Digiovanni scored nine hoops in a losing cause for The Gauchos.

Jake Kelchner hit 6-of-12 shots and Eric Jones hit 5-of-9 to pace Tequila White Lightning to a 21-13 victory over Rubber Cement II. After Rubber Cement II took an 11-9 halftime lead, Tequila White Lightning controlled the second half.

Dorsey Levens scored eight to key Soul Sonic Force in a 21-14 triumph over The Hawk Who Never Dies. Martin Somerville added six points for the winners.

Sweet Scotty P and the Dwarfs edged C.J.’s Pub 21-19 behind the six points of Phil Rauen. Former Notre Dame standout Scotty scored five hoops for the winners.

Untamed Lyons upset Hoosier Lawyers; varsity athletes dominate other contests

By CHRIS COONEY
Assistant Sports Editor

In what was quite possibly the last Bookstore game ever recorded, Untamed Lyons upset fourth-seeded Hoosier Lawyers 30-28 in women’s Bookstore action Thursday.

The game was lasted over an hour and a half, pitted part of the ’interhall team from Lyons Hall against a squad of law students favored to repeat last year’s trip to the Final Four. With only Kathy Leyden returning for the last year’s team, Hoosier Lawyers had to contend with a balanced attack from a Lyons team that has had extensive experience playing together.

“We had a lot of talent together before and it showed,” said the Lawyers’ Kathy Baron, a former Notre Dame varsity player and co-captain of the 1984 team. “All five of the girls are solid players and they did a superb job of handling it to their girls inside.”

With the game tied at 21-all, the two teams volleyed the lead back and forth in the 80-degree heat until a free throw by sophomore Meg Hobday clinched the win. Theresa Zombek paced the Lyons attack with nine points and 18 rebounds.

“We were just a little more well-rounded than they were,” said Ms. Nelligan, a former Irish walk on who contributed seven baskets and eight boards to the Lyons’ effort.

Untamed Lyons next plays the Meta M strategically, who won via forfeit, 9-4, over 4 Girls who Lick To Scour From Behind and One Under 4’8”, after a player on 4 Girls severely sprained her ankle.

In the battle of the Saint Mary’s students, four members of the Belles varsity squad matched up against one another. Heavy B and the Girls earned yet another upset as they downed seventh-seeded Lesbian Weapon 21-17.

A burst by Heavy B at the beginning of the second half spurred the comeback from a 10-point deficit. Heavy B must now face 5 Girls Who Just Do It, the second seeded squad of defending champion Sandy Botham. Five Girls defeated 4 Dunks and a Dunk 21-10 the number one seed, Fast Break, used that exact weapon in the only true blowout of the day. They trounced We’re Guess 21-2.

“We like to get the ball out and run it and we don’t spend a lot of time setting up plays,” said Fast Break’s Mary Simon.

In almost exact opposition to that style, Fast Break’s opponents in the quarterfinals, Hey Lopko, What’s That On Your Neck? won their game by utilizing set plays retained from their Interhall championship.

The team, which defeated Chickens Have Lips 21-14, consists entirely of members of the Breen-Phillips squad that currently reigns as Interhall champions.

In Thursday’s other games, C.J.’s Cats beat Shoot to Kill 21-8 and Murray’s Madness downed 3 to Bounce and 2 for the Boards 21-10. Cathy Emigholz and Mia Teneteborn paced third-seeded C.J.’s with eight and seven points respectively. Murray’s won its game by taking advantage of its opponent’s foul trouble, sinking eight free throws in the second half.

Quarterfinal action begins today at 4 p.m. on Stepan Courts 7 and 8.

Men's Bookstore Basketball XIX will continue today on the Bookstore courts beginning at 4 p.m. The finals are set for 3 p.m. Sunday.

Throughout Bookstore Basketball XVIII, Adworks All-Stars dodged accusations that they bullied officials, not through verbal or physical abuse, but rather by their presence alone.

The tables turned on Adworks Sunday afternoon at Stepan Center when they met Malicious Prostitution and its touring entourage in the tournament final. Adworks was whistled for an unseemly number of first-half fouls, sending claim to the championship in a tournament that began nearly a month ago with 672 teams vying to be No. 1.

Down the stretch, Malicious Prostitution looked to the hot Scott, whose jump shot never strayed from its intended path to the hoop. Scott was clearly the deciding factor in the game and was rewarded for his outstanding play with the tournament MVP award.

Adworks should win in convincing fashion

The Bookstore commission- ers picked Adworks to win this year's title. An upset before the finals might put Malicious Prostitution in the championship, but they can still score from inside and outside.

Keyes Keyes has been as dominant as anyone in the tournament. He can also shoot the jumper from the outside, which gives Adworks an added dimension.

The Championship: Sonic Force vs. Adworks - Sonic Force won their game Thursday on eight points of VanDyke's making it to the final eight because of their speed, but they won't make it to the finals this year. Sonic Force has no real weakness. Their aggressive defense and versatility both inside and out make them a tough team.

A repeat final between 5 Girls and Malicious Prostitution's star third title in as many years. Two other former varsity athletes, Missy Byrne and Rachel Hall, join Jill Bolin on a team still waiting to jell. Sharpshooter Bodensteiner, who leads the team in scoring, claims today is do-or-die for 5 Girls.

The main question for 5 Girls is how they'll respond to the team's controlled offense. Fecko is away with ankles, so the team will miss her passing and finishing. For the rest of the team, Sullivan's smothering defense should prevent Anya Prostitution's key buckets for the rest of the tournament. And getting back into the tournament's top eight will be a challenge for the old players.

That matchup's winner will play the victor of the semi-finals. The championship will be a clash between the best game of the tournament and the best game of the season. And it will be a battle of two teams that know each other very well: 5 Girls and Malicious Prostitution.

The final four teams should always include 5 Girls and Malicious Prostitution. When they played, it was a battle of two teams that knew each other very well. And the match between the two teams was one of the most exciting games of the tournament so far. The first game was won by Malicious Prostitution, but the second game was won by 5 Girls. This will be a battle of two teams that know each other very well.

Bones are the main attraction of this unique Rome museum

JOHN BLASI

Overseas column

Rome, Italy—There are some sculptures in Rome that are perhaps more haunting than Michelangelo's Pieta. The artist has not used paint, nor has he sculpted in stone. His medium is slightly less common—the bones of the dead. Bones of skulls, thigh bones, and pelvic girdles form geometric designs on the walls and ceilings of these galleries. Some form symbols of the sacraments, while others represent the bones of the owners in their traditional garb. In the first gallery, three skeletons appear together in clothes that could have come from the friar found at the entrance to this "attraction."

Located right off of the posh Via Veneto under the Church of the Immaculate Conception, this cemetery for Capuchin friars houses the bones of some 4,000 friars whose remains have been artistically arranged into various geometric patterns on the walls and ceilings of this eerie crypt.

The bones of these friars date from 1528 to 1870, and the first floor of the cemetery was brought from Jerusalem during the Crusades by the orders of Pope Urban VIII. Unfortunately, the creator of this gruesome work is unknown.

As one walks into the cemetery, a grey-bearded friar, humbly dressed in what resembles a burlap sack tied with a bit of twine, will ask for a small "donation." The wise tourist will give these humble gatekeepers a few coins.

These friars are pretty shrewd, though. They seem to charge admission based on how rich the visitor appears—I saw them charge one Japanese family 1,000 lire per person. There are three "galleries" of designs, each with its own particular theme which is explained by the multilingual signs on the walls outside the works. Signs everywhere prohibit flash photography, and it seems slightly macabre to take pictures of the bones in a cemetery. Pictures are for sale near the entrance, though.

Although the bones in the crypt have been lying here for at least 100 years, and the whir of irrevocable tourists on their 100-sites-per-day trips crowd the cemetery, a doubtful odor pervades the place. The stacks of bones stare back hauntingly as visitors walk down the narrow corridor behind the other tourists. The children squawk, and the bones seem to scream back at them. There is something truly morbid about the place. Visitors feel as though they are reveling in death, as if one were watching one of those "Faces of Death" movies that feature horrible accidents that occur during the filming of movies and newscasts.

The last gallery has the remains of Princess Barberini on the ceiling of the arch. She holds in her skeletal hands a sickle and balance, as a grisly reminder of human mortality. On the wall beneath her, there is an inscription surrounded by rows of skulls and pelvic girdles reminding all passersby of their pitiful fates. It reads, We were once what you are; now we are what you will be.

As the vacant eye sockets of the ghastly Princess stare back, an icy terror grips the visitor's previously indifferent heart. Her eyes bore through the back of the soul as one walks out behind the bustled family of tourists and sees a new group entering this sepulchral scene.

Latin Americans express selves with music, dance and comedy

MANUEL ESPINO

Tonight the Notre Dame chapter of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) will be hosting the first annual Latin Expressions Talent Show. Just what exactly is Latin Expressions? It is sort of a cross between the International Festival, Black Images and the Latin Expressions Talent Show promises to be lots of fun. Latin Expressions, as the name implies, deals with the Latin American aspects of song, dance, comedy and drama. Though several acts aim to make fun of the stereotypes of the Latin Americans, a serious undertone exists throughout the program.

Twenty acts have been approved to perform, so the show will last close to two hours. Headlining the show will be Rachel Cruz, guitarist and singer, who will dazzle the crowd with her beautiful voice, just as she has before at Grace's Coffeehouse.

In addition, another Coffeehouse performer, John Kennedy, will sing a few Chilean folk songs. Also, various comedy and dramatic skits will be performed, with the topics ranging from the typical Latin American disciplining process to the reenactment of the miracle of our Lady of Guadalupe in Mexico.

There will also be Latin American singer impersonations and recitation of Latin American poetry. Notre Dame's Folk Dance Group and several students will perform their version of the Lambada.

The Latin Expressions will be in the Library Auditorium at 7 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the LaFortune Information Desk and at the door, at a cost of $2. So if a little variety interest you, come try a little Latin American culture.
The Church of the Latter-day Narnians is only a few hours old as I write this; however, the date when religion first came to Narnia cannot be figured out on any calendar known to our subspherical sun.

The Narnian religion centers on Aslan, the Lion King, son of the great Emperor-Beyond-the-Sea. How do you worship a lion? According to the Chronicles of Narnia, he requires a lot of stroking, but you may not get that close to him, unless he calls you to be a visionary. As Aslanians, we can start the liturgy by singing, "What a Friend We Have in Aslan," and then make up the sacraments as we go along.

"What's wrong with the Catholic Church," you well may ask. Nothing at all, pray partner, except that it's shop-worn and shell-shocked. Christianity carries too much excessive baggage for my taste, and it's starting to look shabby, like a second-hand limousine that you'd be willing to trade in for a Volkswagen.

If you want to be intolerant, you can call me a backslider, but I have had a religious experience. Last night, I visited our local incarnation of Stonehenge, in search of peace. While waiting for Darby O'Gill to wet on the spotlight, I remembered Cardinal Newman's telling us that "Don't make things so easy." And then make up the experience. Last night, I visited our American Stonehenge. There we could install the wardrobe made from applewood mentioned in the title of the first Chronicle, "The Witch, the Lion, and the Wardrobe." Since it served as the gateway through which the children first entered Narnia, it could now be used as a door through which the converts must go in order to join the Church, as though this were a rite of initiation necessary for salvation.

If Narnia is true and real, perhaps all the other fantasies we tell the children about are more than what we perpetrators while reading them to sleep, and I intend to stop looking down my nose at "Alice in Wonderland" and "Through the Looking Glass." However, I wouldn't dream of reading Tolkien's "Lord of the Rings" in search of a faith to deliver the whole land from an insatiable Winter. We will be behind all the stories of our lives; and when it is time, he will appear again in our world to wind it up, calling all of his creatures where I'm sure desire is to live in his country.

"I believe in a God who fulfils the breath of Aslan... and that one day we will pass through the door of death into "Chapter One of the Great Story," which no one on earth has read, which goes on forever, and in which every chapter is better than the one before. Is this profession of faith, then, superior to the Christian Creed? Faith partner, it is the Christian Creed reformed in Narnian imagery. But perhaps we could subscribe to it as dogma for a faith-walk that leaves Jesus behind until this silly season in the Catholic Church's history is over and gone, and the dear bashed Bride of Christ has had some rest.

I'd willingly suspend my Catholic beliefs, and trust the poetic whimsy of Narnia to save me, if it would get the Church off the ropes, and into a central corner, for as long as it takes her to bless herself.

At the twilight that ends Narnia, the stars fall from the sky. Dragons and dinosaurs eat all the trees of the forest until there is nothing left but endless rock. The sea rises, and so does the dried red sun. The moon rises to a position where the sun can absorb her. Then Time, as a giant, squeezes the light out of the sun, and all that is left is ice-cold, total darkness.

There is a judgment scene in which all living creatures must pass before Aslan and look into his face. Those who look at him with hatred disappear into the darkness of his shadow. Those who look at him with love in their faces are allowed to enter Aslan's country.

Please come with me through the Shadow Lands to the heart of Narnia, which awaits us on the other side of death's door. Through the eyes of the children, you can see the New Narnia from here. Through the way you can join the Church of the Latter-day Narnians is by becoming a child of Aslan yourself.

Michael Stonebreaker and Demetrius Du Bose, both enjoying outstanding springs, comprise the Gold linebacking corps. Hard-hitting cornerback Rod Smith and free safety George Poorman will start in the defensive backfield.

Outside linebackers Scott Kowalkowski and Andre Jones, returning starters from last season's Irish team, will bring some outside quickness to the Blue defense. Inside linebacker Donn Grimm will line up behind defensive tackle Bob Dahl. Strong safety Greg Davis and cornerback Todd Lyght will try to shut down the Gold passing attack.

Flankkicker Billy Hackett will play for the Gold team, while Jim Sexton will handle the punting duties. Craig Heinrich will fill both roles for the Blue squad.

Saturday's game will mark the sixth scrimmage of the spring for the Irish, more than the usual amount.

"We got in a lot of scrimmaging this spring, but we couldn't find a rhythm," Holtz said in summing up his impressions of the spring. "We got a lot done, but we've also got a long way to go.

"We'll just have to wait and see where the dust settles."

NOTES: All proceeds from the Blue-Gold game benefit the Notre Dame Club of St. Joseph Valley Scholarship Fund. Advance tickets are available at Gate 10 of the Joyce ACC Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tickets cost $4 for adults and $2 for youths 17 and under...Tickets purchased at the gate on Saturday cost $5 and $3...All Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students will be admitted free with identification at gates 15 and 16...All Irish players will be available for photos and autographs from 12 noon until 1 p.m. on the Notre Dame Stadium field.
Track team travels to Drake, Hillsdale

By SHANNON FAY

The Notre Dame men’s track team has already qualified seven athletes for post-season competition and it is hoping to continue its success this weekend.

The Irish will divide into two squads as half of the team travels to Des Moines, Iowa, for the Drake Relays, while the remaining head north to the Hillsdale Relays in Hillsdale, Michigan.

Although the split may serve as an obstruction to the team’s success, Coach Joe Plaxe is looking at it with an optimistic attitude. He sees the division as an opportunity for individual athletes to contend against the best possible competition in their respective events.

Ryan barely misses sixth no-hitter

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Nolan Ryan was too good for his own good, and it cost him his sixth career no-hitter.

First baseman Rafael Palmeiro said, “I throw a high percentage of my curves for strikes, then I have a high percentage of strikeouts,” Ryan said after he set a club record.

The one hit was just a fluke, going back to my left, turned to the right, and I just tripped. “I saw the replay after the game, I almost killed myself, but I decided not to.” Ryan (4-0) didn’t blame Palmeiro.

“We had a great assessment of his stuff,” Ryan said. “I had great stuff tonight.”

When I throw a high percentage of my curves for strikes, then I have a high percentage of strikeouts,” Ryan said. “That’s why he tripped.”

They are the one hit. The one thing went against him: the ball went back to my left, turned to the right, and I just tripped. “I saw the replay after the game, I almost killed myself, but I decided not to.” Ryan (4-0) didn’t blame Palmeiro.

“The ground was soft out there from all the rain,” Ryan said. “It was a routine play. I went back to my left, turned to the right, and I just tripped.”

“I was trying to hit the ball up the middle and it just shot off the other way,” he said. “Ryan had a great curve.”

Paine also has high expectations for the four-mile relay and distance relay teams.

“We have struggled with some nagging injuries over the past few weeks but I expect the kids to start coming back and really doing well. If we’re healthy, we should really have some good performances this weekend,” he said.

Women face Butler in finale

By BARBARA MORAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women’s tennis team will face its final opponent of the season in a match against the Bulldogs of Butler University today at 3:30 at home.

Irish coach Jay Louderback expects a solid match from the Bulldogs, who finished third in last fall’s MCC competition. Although the Irish took first in the MCC tournament, Louderback was cautious about underestimating his foe.

“We’re very aware of the coach. They have four or five seniors, so they’re a veteran team. We hope we win, but you never know. They’re not bad at all.”

The Butler competition will mark the return of Irish top seed Tracy Barton, who has been sidelined with an elbow injury for a month. Barton has been practicing since Easter, but has not competed for fear of further injury.

The match is also the last for the team’s two seniors, captain Alice Lohr and Resa Kelly. Louderback praised the two in their performance during the season.

“The season has helped us out a lot this season,” said Louderback. “Tina will be the injuries we’ve had this season, she’s come in and played very well.

“Tina is hoping to play just about everyone [tomorrow], and both seniors will be playing very well.”

The end of the season marks the beginning of the NCAA tournament selection. Although the tournament does not begin until May 14, seeding for individuals will start next Monday.

“The Irish are hoping to secure a bid for Tracy Barton. Louderback thought he might gain a bid for Barton, as sure of her chances in being chosen.

“I don’t know,” said the coach. “I can’t really say now. Voting is going to be tight on the regional level, and tight on the national level. All we can do is hope for the best.”

Rice continued from page 24

- Perhaps Rice and Harris will take some consolation in the success formerly Irish quarterback Joe Theismann and Houston Outsters signal caller Warren Moon enjoyed in the NFL following periodic stints in Canada.

The NFL draft isn’t always the ultimate authority when it comes to rating football talent. But then again, neither is the Heisman Trophy voting.

...What does Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz think about Rice being snubbed by the NFL?

"I think he’s going to go real high because he wasn’t consistent as a passer," said Holtz. "In the three years he’s been here, you’re better off not to draft him because he’s probably going to go to the Canadian League.

"There are a lot of high-

Richard" picks that don’t pan out," said Holtz. "I hate to think he would let his self-

Confidence ride on someone who’s not always right."
ND softball battles Belles, Warriors

By MICHAEL MALODY
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame softball team try to improve on its 29-14 record when it hosts three games this weekend.

The Irish will welcome the Belles of Saint Mary's at 4 p.m. Saturday and the Lady Warriors of Marquette for a doubleheader starting at 1 p.m. on Sunday, all at Alumni Field.

Saturday's "cross-lake classic" against Saint Mary's, added to the Irish schedule due to the rain-cancellation of an early-season contest with Temple, promises to be an intense battle, according to head coach Brian Boulac. Due, in large part, to the success of the team up to date, Boulac explained, "They are going to try to show us that they can compete."

The heat of the burden will be in the hands of Staci Alford and Moisy Linn, the axes of the Irish pitching staff. Alford, a freshman out of Baton Rouge, Louisiana, boasts a team leading 1.39 ERA. Linn, a sophomore all-balled pitcher, is in a close second with a 1.44 ERA. Between them, they account for 26 of the team's 29 victories.

Offensively, the Irish will depend on the power of juniors Kathryn Vernetti, Megan Fay, and Rachel Crossen, as well as that of sophomore Amy Folsom. The foursome has accounted for five of the six Irish home runs and more than half of the team's runs batted in. Vernetti will start at first base, Fay and Crossen in the outfield, and Folsom behind the plate.

Sunday's doubleheader matches the Irish against MCC for Marquette. The Wisconsin-based Lady Warriors were absent from last weekend's conference tournament, won by the Irish.

Depending on the amount of action Alford and Linn face on Saturday, coach Boulac could go to his bullpen, where freshmen Erin Kelly and Ronny Alvarez provide an ample supply of depth.

Sophomore co-Captain Ruth Kinak, along with fellow classmate Laurie Sommerlad, anchors the middle infield for the Irish. Lisa Miller, Sheri Quinn, Casey McMurray and Susan O'Connor, all freshmen, are also expected to contribute to the Irish line-up.

Lemieux gives Chicago a 3-2 series lead over St. Louis

CHICAGO (AP) — Jocelyn Lemieux's first playoff goal started the big flurry that led the Chicago Blackhawks to victory Thursday night, but he couldn't remember how it happened.

Lemieux's breakaway goal was followed by scores from Troy Murray and Steve Thomas within a span of 2:16 to give the Blackhawks a 3-2 victory and a 3-2 edge in their best-of-7 Norris Division final series against the St. Louis Blues.

"It was a reaction play," Lemieux said, "I can't remember how it happened. I went in and the puck was right there. I've got one of the worst goals on my Mac."

The spurt was all the offense the Blackhawks needed as rookie goalie Ed Belfour took care of the rest. Making his second successive winning start against the Blues, Belfour had to turn back only 18 shots, including seven in a scoreless final period.

Thomas drew a game misconduct for slashing Steve Tuttle at 10:21 and the Blackhawks' penalty-killers went to work. Chicago kept the St. Louis power play incheck for all but 48 seconds of the five-minute penalty when Hull scored at 14:33 to cut the lead to 3-2.

Men's golf to play in Kepler Invite

By STEVEN WALSH
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's golf team travels to Columbus, Ohio this weekend to compete in the Robert Kepler Invitational tournament. It will mark the 16th straight appearance in the Kepler for the rapidly improving Irish. The teams and golfers are very optimistic about this year's tournament because of the team's recent progress.

Last year, the Irish recorded a team stroke total of 939, their lowest 54-hole score ever in the Kepler. That was good enough for eighth place, their highest finish in the invitational since 1980. That performance combined with last weekend's good showing in the Akron Invitational have given the Irish reason to be upbeat about this weekend.

Women will golf in Boilermaker Classic

By FRANK BARLETTA
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's golf team will wrap up its spring season this weekend at the Boilermaker Invitational at Purdue University.

The tournament, consisting of 36 holes on Saturday and 18 on Sunday, will mark the first time the Irish have participated in this established tournament since gaining varsity status last year.

The team is hoping to make up for its last-place finish at the Indiana Invitational three weeks ago. Head Coach Tom Hanlon has been working with the team at the Elcona Country Club, which Hanlon says is a difficult course comparable to the one at Purdue. Hanlon is confident that his team has improved enough to finish respectably this weekend.

Although the field at the Boilermaker Invitational includes Big 10 powers Purdue and Wisconsin, the field is "not as strong as the one at Indiana-Bloomington three weeks ago," said Hanlon.

The team will be led by junior Courtney DiLucia and Wallace which is ranked eighth in the nation and is in hot pursuit of an NCAA tournament bid.

Irish to play in television spotlight

By FRANK BARLETTA
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's tennis team will host two opponents and a television audience on Saturday as Drake visits for an 11 a.m. match and Marquette will take on the Irish immediately after the end of the Drake match.

SportsChannel America will televise the number one singles and number one doubles matches of the Drake contest on a tape delay basis. The date and time of broadcast has not yet been determined.

"We're still a young team and I think we'll finish in the top five of this weekend. If we're at our best, we could be in contention to win it," Hanlon said.

Hanlon hopes to get strong efforts from four of the team's six members if the team is to make a respectable showing. The doubles teams will be led by DiLucia dropped five places to number one singles and number one doubles matches of the Drake contest on a tape delay basis. The date and time of broadcast has not yet been determined.

Irish lacrosse will host Ohio State
ND must defeat Buckeyes to keep tourney hopes alive

By DAVE DIETEMAN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame lacrosse team continues its quest for an NCAA Tournament bid as it faces off with Ohio State Buckeyes this Saturday at 4 p.m. at Moose Krause Stadium.

The Irish, who suffered a painful road loss to the Battling Bishops of Ohio Wesleyan in their last outing, stand at 5-5 this season, must faces off with a team that continues its quest for an NCAA bid.

This is a big game for us," said Notre Dame head coach Kevin Corrigan. "Ohio State has a good, young team, and they match up well with us. We know how good they can play. We've got to prepare ourselves to play the best game of the season. We've got too much at stake right now. It's time to put up or shut up."

Ohio State returns 26 lettermen from last year's squad, which was only 5-9 but managed to even up the lifetime series with Notre Dame at 5-5. In a 7-5 win over the Irish in Columbus. This year, the Buckeyes have been led by junior tri-captain Mike Avery, who averages in excess of four points per game.

The Irish will be looking for several players to key their attack. Senior attackman Brian McHugh, who is currently sixth in the Notre Dame lacrosse all-time scoring list, is a potent threat, averaging nearly 2.5 points per game. McHugh is complemented by sophomore attacking sensation Mike Sullivan, who, with 29 assists, needs one assist to set a new ND record for assists in a season.

Sullivan has also set the records for points by a sophomore (46), assists at home (seven), and points at home (nine), in addition to tying the records for points in a game (nine) and assists in a game (seven). In addition, Sullivan scores at a pace of 3.5 points per game, and is seven goals short of the Notre Dame record for goals by a sophomore.

Beyond McHugh and Sullivan, the Irish offense is driven by a strong of talented attackers and midfielders. Senior co-captain midfielders Dave Carey and Mike Quigley have each scored an average of nearly two points per game, in addition to garnering more than their share of ground balls.

Two other midfielders who have provided a pleasant punch to the Irish offense are freshmen Brian Mayglothling and Ed Lamb. Mayglothling and Lamb are the fifth and sixth highest Irish scorers this year, and Lamb's 11 goals is the best by a Notre Dame midfielder. Also, Mayglothling, whose nine assists are the most ever by a Notre Dame freshman midfielder, and Sullivan, need only six more assists to set the Notre Dame season record for assists by a freshman.

The Irish may also count on senior attackman Mike Sennet and freshman attackman Bo Perriello for extra offensive support. Sennet has tallied 10 goals and three assists this season, while Perriello has added six goals and three assists.

The Irish defensive corps is also a force to be reckoned with. Defenseman Pete Gillin has scooped up an amazing 61 ground balls this season while frustrating opposing offenses. Behind Gillin and his defensive mates are goalies Chris Parent and Tom Duane. Parent, who has started eight games and appeared in nine, has a save percentage of .537, while Duane, through five starts and eight total appearances, has a save percentage of .530.

"We're always optimistic," stated Irish tri-captain Kevin Corrigan. "We approach every game expecting to win, and we have to play like that all week if we are going to do it. We certainly have the will to win, but it's important that we take care of business this weekend."

NOTES: The match with Ohio State has been dubbed "Lax on the Beach." Featured at the promotion day will be a disc jockey, with beach music beginning one hour before game time, and a Frisbee accuracy contest at halftime (B.Y.O.F.). Irish football team will hold annual spring Blue-Gold game
Holz predicts scoreless tie

By FRANK PASTOR
Associate Sports Editor

Lou Holtz looked down intently and patted at the ground with his left foot, muttering over the question put to him following Tuesday's intramural scrimmage.

"What will Saturday's Blue-Gold game be like?" After-discussing several ideas, Holtz finally settled on an answer that put the first 19 spring practice sessions into perspective. He raised his head, smiled and said, "a zero-zero game."

The defense dominated Tuesday's scrimmage, Notre Dame's final tuneup before its 60th annual spring football finale (1:30 p.m. at Notre Dame Stadium). Fifteen lost-yardage plays, including six sacks, fixed the Irish defense down the field, but in the wrong direction.

Holtz complained about the lack of timing and execution on the offensive line, dropped passes and sloppy play from the receivers, a lack of experience and leadership at quarterback, and "too many people playing on (the offensive) side of the ball."

Yet the smile came as a sign of reassurance for the Irish offense which Holtz spent the majority of Tuesday's session studying as an offensive that will have to come together as a unit if Notre Dame is to imitate its remarkable 24-1 record in the annual Blue-Gold game.

Quarterback Bert Miler is the only offensive starter to be named by Holtz after the first 19 practices. He will line up behind center John Lohmann for Notre Dame's offense.

Miler will have a talented cast of receivers to throw to, including flanker Frank Naghub, "Rocket" Ismail, fullback Grigg and tight end Derek Brown. Ricky Watters, who was moved to split end at the beginning of the spring, will share time in the backfield with fullback Kenny Spears.

"It's nice to see him back," said Holtz. "He had a real good day." Holtz said. "He's the best receiver we have."

Mike Kamradt will quarterback the Gold offense, backed by center Gene Mcguire, tight guard Mirko Jurkovic and tight end Rod Brown. Ricky Watters, who was moved to split end at the beginning of the spring, will start at tailback for the Blue squad. Watters will be joined in the backfield by fullback Rod Colver, who will return from a knee sprain to rush for 121 yards on Tuesday.

"Is he a starter?" Holtz, asked. "He is a starter."

Jake Kelchner will quarterback the Blue offense, backed by line centers George "Boo" Williams can dominate the line. Watters will be joined in the backfield by fullback Rod Colver, who will return from a knee sprain to rush for 121 yards on Tuesday.

"He's got a lot of great tools," said Holtz, "but somebody like Zorro (nose tackle Chris Zorich) or (defensive tackle George) 'Boo' Williams can dominate the line."

Strange, then, that Zorich and Williams would end up playing in the same line, as the two seniors-to-be are anchor Gold defensive line which also features tackle Justin Hall. Dorsey Levens and John McGuine, tight guard Mirko Jurkovic and tight end Rod Brown. Ricky Watters, who was moved to split end at the beginning of the spring, will start at tailback for the Blue squad. Watters will be joined in the backfield by fullback Rod Colver, who will return from a knee sprain to rush for 121 yards on Tuesday.

"Do you think he's a starter?" Holtz asked. "He's the best receiver we have."

The defense dominated Tuesday's scrimmage, Notre Dame's final tuneup before its 60th annual spring football finale (1:30 p.m. at Notre Dame Stadium). Fifteen lost-yardage plays, including six sacks, fixed the Irish defense down the field, but in the wrong direction.

Holtz complained about the lack of timing and execution on the offensive line, dropped passes and sloppy play from the receivers, a lack of experience and leadership at quarterback, and "too many people playing on (the offensive) side of the ball."

Yet the smile came as a sign of reassurance for the Irish offense which Holtz spent the majority of Tuesday's session studying as an offensive that will have to come together as a unit if Notre Dame is to imitate its remarkable 24-1 record in the annual Blue-Gold game.

Quarterback Bert Miler is the only offensive starter to be named by Holtz after the first 19 practices. He will line up behind center John Lohmann for Notre Dame's offense.

Miler will have a talented cast of receivers to throw to, including flanker Frank Naghub, "Rocket" Ismail, fullback Grigg and tight end Derek Brown. Ricky Watters, who was moved to split end at the beginning of the spring, will share time in the backfield with fullback Kenny Spears.

"It's nice to see him back," said Holtz. "He had a real good day." Holtz said. "He's the best receiver we have."

Mike Kamradt will quarterback the Gold offense, backed by center Gene Mcguire, tight guard Mirko Jurkovic and tight end Rod Brown. Ricky Watters, who was moved to split end at the beginning of the spring, will start at tailback for the Blue squad. Watters will be joined in the backfield by fullback Rod Colver, who will return from a knee sprain to rush for 121 yards on Tuesday.

"Do you think he's a starter?" Holtz asked. "He's the best receiver we have."

Draft shows that NFL, NCAA play different game

Last weekend's National Football League draft sent a clear message to the NCAA: You can't do the same game we do.

How else can one explain the near omission of two of last season's five Heisman Trophy finalists from the two-day draft in New York?

Quarterbacks Major Harris, a 12-round selection of the Los Angeles Raiders, and Tony Rice, who was not taken at all, represent the height of the college game, yet neither was considered ready for the NFL.

The draft dealt a serious blow to the notion that college football is nothing more than a breeding ground for professional football players.

Harris finished third in the '89 Heisman vote, which recognizes the most outstanding player in college football. Rice came in fourth in the final tally. But the best the college game had to offer simply was not good enough for the NFL.

Rice led Notre Dame to a 28-3 record and the 1988 National Championship in his two-plus seasons as a starter. If not for last season's Miami loss, Rice very well may have won the Heisman based on his winning reputation alone.

But would he have been drafted even then?

Harris reviled a dormant West Virginia program and led it to two straight bowl appearances, including a shutout at the national title in the 89 Fiesta Bowl against the Irish.

The Mountaineers lost both of those bowl games, but suppose they didn't. With a national title under his belt, would Harris move up very far in the draft?

No team was willing to risk even a late-round pick on Rice, while Los Angeles made Harris the 317th of 331 players taken. NFL clubs opted instead to take lesser-known players in a draft whose talent pool was more shallow than those in recent years.

According to NFL scouts and draft experts, neither had the "tools" to make it in the NFL. The knock on Rice was that he could not fit into an offense requiring a drop-back, pocket passer. Harris was an erratic passer whose lack of height and speed concerned NFL scouts.

The biggest rationale given for not taking either Rice or Harris in the mid-to-late rounds of the draft is that both had considered playing north of the border and therefore would be wasted picks. Harris had already talked to British Columbia of the Canadian Football League. Rice travelled to Saskatchewan this week to speak with team representatives.

Irish baseball team to meet Titans
By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

Things will only get tougher from here out for the Notre Dame baseball team.

After sweeping four from Chicago State this week, the Irish (29-9) travel into a lion's den this weekend and meet the Detroit Titans (7-5 in MCI).

If one throws into the mix the regular season, so they know they're up against a quality team. "They lost a pitcher one hitter, and it's their force," said Irish coach Pat Murphy.

But teams have to keep the intensity of the rivalry doesn't escalate to the point of last year's two bench-clearing brawls.

The hitters have gone through a resurgence as of late in raising the team average to .272. One of those leading the charge for the Irish is freshman DH and pinch hitter Adam Maisano. Maisano is hitting .429 with 3 HR's and 17 RBI. As the DH Wednesday, Maisano was 3-for-4 with 4 RBI. In the second inning of the first game, Maisano launched one into the stratosphere with a 420-foot home run.

"That was a bomb," stated Murphy. "It was the pasta, though. His mom sent up some pasta that day."

"The day before I was swinging at a lot of pitches," said Maisano. "Coach wants me to keep swinging as long as possible. I have to hit him, but he said sometimes you have to wait for your pitch."

On that homer I waited and got a fastball."

Maisano, who hails from Atlanta, Georgia, is without a question a hitter. From the posters of Jose Canseco and Don Mattingly that adorn his wall to himself, it is evident Maisano knows a good deal about what it takes to be a great hitter.

"Adam was a hitter from day one," stated Murphy. "I've got a great left hand and power. He's done a super job as a pinch hitter and filling in at DH. But even more than that he's a great person. He's got great work habits and he's a pleasure to coach."

Maisano certainly has made the most of his opportunities. In his first official at-bat for the Irish, he hit a pinch home run against Dayton that turned out to be the game winner. Now, Maisano is becoming a guy the team looks for to get the big hit.

"That game was a great situation. The team really wanted to win. I love to be counted on like that. It feels really good to contribute. I knew I could hit, but I wanted to help the team with it. I love to pinch hit with guys on base. I'm a lot more comfortable with runners in scoring position."
