Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said he was certain that the man had a gun, said that even the threat of a weapon should have made her very cautious.

According to a White House statement, the administration opposed direct economic aid as recently as last July at the economic summit of seven industrial nations in Houston.

But, Fitzwater said of the Soviets, "They have sent ships to the gulf. They have been supportive. President Gorbachev has made some strong public statements" of support for the U.N.-backed trade embargo against Iraq. He said Gorbachev's words "have a political impact in the world of countries that have formally been aligned with the Soviet Union that is very hard to measure, but one which we know is real and has been very helpful."

Furthermore, Fitzwater said, the United States is "willing to talk" with the Soviet Union about a longstanding Soviet proposal - revised on Tuesday by Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze - for a Middle East peace conference.

The conference, which the United States long has opposed, would seek to resolve all conflicts in the region, including the Arab-Israeli dispute.

Meanwhile, the White House announced that President Bush would address a joint session of Congress next Tuesday night after returning from his week-end summit with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. Bush's topics, aides said, would include the summit and the gulf crisis.

According to a White House statement, Bush had brought up the idea of the joint session appearance earlier in the day in conversations with House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., and Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine.

"Speaker Foley extended an invitation to the president on behalf of both chambers," the statement said.

White House aides said that the speech would deal primarily with the Persian Gulf crisis but that Bush would also give lawmakers a rundown on his session in Helsinki with Gorbachev. In pre-summit comments, White House officials seemed to be going out of their way to praise the Soviets.

Fitzwater said he was certain the issue of Western economic aid to Moscow would come up at Sunday's summit. The administration opposed direct economic aid as recently as last July at the economic summit of seven industrial nations in Houston.

But Fitzwater said of the Soviets, "They have sent ships to the gulf. They have been supportive. President Gorbachev has made some strong public statements" of support for the U.N.-backed trade embargo against Iraq. He said Gorbachev's words "have a political impact in the world of countries that have formally been aligned with the Soviet Union that is very hard to measure, but one which we know is real and has been very helpful."

Mugging hits bar-hoppers

By MONICA YANT

Walking the stretch between Bridge's and Club 23 was always a normal activity for "Susan" and her friends.

Getting robbed at gunpoint was not.

"Everyone walks the route," she said, "they think it's safe because you can see the other bar at the end."

It wasn't safe August 26, when Susan, an ND student, and three of her friends were attacked on Francis and South Bend Avenues at 2:30 a.m. by a man she described as black with a large build, and who "was holding something that looked like a gun."

Susan and five of her friends were walking between the two bars when the man appeared from behind some trees. Since two of the girls had raced ahead of the group, only four were left to face the attacker, she said.

"I saw him from the corner of my eye," she said. "He grabbed my friend, pointed what looked like a gun at her, and said, 'What do you think of this?'"

The attacker took the wallet from the first victim, Susan said.

"He then approached Susan. He ripped off my necklace and grabbed my wallet," she said.

According to Susan, the attacker ordered the third girl, saying, "Gimme everything you got." The fourth victim had her wallet ready when he approached her, Susan said.

The attacker fled on foot with about $25 in cash, miscellaneous identification cards, keys, and a bank card, according to Lt. Norval Williams of the South Bend Police Department.

Although Susan wasn't positive that the man had a gun, she said that even the threat of a weapon should have made her more cautious.

"If there had been other guys with him, we would have been in a whole lot of trouble."

Cityline information network

ND to be linked up with local Cityline information network

Cityline, a local 24-hour telephone service, recently announced the addition of new Notre Dame recordings which provide information about upcoming campus events.

Sponsored by the South Bend Tribune and WSBT radio stations, this service provides students and community members with information on more than 10,000 different topics.

These subjects include special events such as movie listings, concerts, and football game times. Students can also gain access to doctor or dentist listings, local and national weather forecasts, and stock quotes, which are updated approximately every half an hour. Interested students simply have to dial the number 674-0900 to get into the system.

Then a computer operator will provide a menu, and the students can dial directly into the category of his choice by a 4-digit touchtone system. These topics each contain up to three minutes of data on the subject of his choice.

Joe Cassidy, director of Student Activities, said, "It will make it easier for students to access information about social events."

In the past, students needing specific information were forced to listen to answering machines and wait for "five or ten minutes before they found out the information they'd initially called for."

Cityline Manager Anita Glenn anticipates "probably three to four thousand calls a month," in the future. She believes it will be beneficial to Notre Dame students because it will save time and "eliminate a lot of unnecessary calls to LaFayette Student Center. We have 20 lines open, while they (Student, Activities) only have one."

This idea was initially brought to Cassidy by Glenn, who suggested the program in an effort to expand on a pilot program used last year at Saint Mary's College. Glenn offered to expand on the Saint Mary's service, which handled approximately five to seven hundred calls a month, and Cassidy agreed to lend his support, because it "looked like a great service."

On August 28, Glenn upgraded our system and added new topics, such as what's hot and what's not, horseshoes, joke of the day, and trivia lines. We revisited in advance on tape and the transitions went very smoothly."

Glenn welcomes all suggestions for the improvement of this new system. She can be reached in her Chicago Tribune office at 233-6161, extension 228.
The Year of Women needs broader focus

Once again this University has decided to broaden the perspective of its students by dedicating the whole year to a particular issue and this year it is women. As a woman, and especially as a gender studies concentrator, I ought to be thrilled that the university is opening itself enough to spend an entire year dealing with issues that are particularly close to my heart, but I'm not. I think that the Year of Women is an attempt to rethink the year's theme as a broadening of awareness of the student body.

I have to say that the whole idea is that this year is just a superficial and temporary problem to remedy. I think that the university ought to try to focus more on the students-year one is a year that I think the university ought to try to focus on students, they ought to try to focus on the student body rather than on students.

The objection I have to the whole idea is that women's issues will follow the path of cultural diversity and the family to become just an appendage of society. Women's issues are really only relevant to less than half of the Notre Dame student body.

If awareness is the goal of the university, it should choose a topic that every person can relate to to this campus. Women's issues are really only relevant to less than half of the Notre Dame student body. Let's face it, no matter how liberated and understanding a guy may be, the Year of Women really does not apply to him.

Cultural diversity was broad enough to encompass all types of people, as was the Year of the Family. Although the last two years have not lived up to the year's promise, I am hoping that the ideas that women's issues will follow the path of cultural diversity and the family to become just an appendage of society will appeal to the student body.

I applaud the university's attempts to raise the consciousness of the student body. However, the Year of Women is an all-encompassing context that is not the proper place to do this.

Pope John Paul II on Wednesday urged forgiveness and reconciliation in Burundi, a central African nation with a history of tribal warfare and repression of Roman Catholics. He also said the AIDS virus, which has ravaged Africa, is a moral issue that calls for changes in sexual behavior. The church condemns the use of condoms to check the spread of the deadly disease. The pope said the church has a duty to assist AIDS sufferers with health care and moral support. "Those people often tend to close themselves in an anguished silence," he said.

An extract from test tubes can hamper reproduction of the AIDS virus within infected cells, suggesting a possible new approach to treating infected people. In test-tube experiments, the extract worked in the fuel tank on Wednesday. The decision was made after hundreds of thousands of people thought the university ought to strive to focus on students, they ought to try to focus on the student body rather than on students. The object was to raise the consciousness of the student body as a whole.

The university hopes to raise the consciousness of its students by focusing this year on women's issues. This is an excellent idea, especially in view of current state of male-female relations on this campus, but the Year of Women is an attempt to rethink the year's theme as a broadening of awareness of the student body.

Brain communication gene found

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists report they have cloned a gene that helps brain cells communicate, a step that may lead to improved schizophrenia drugs and earlier diagnosis of some brain diseases.

The finding may someday let doctors diagnose schizophrenia and Parkinson's disease before symptoms appear, said researcher Allen Dearry.

That could allow earlier treatment with greater chance of success, he said.

The gene tells brain cells how to make a protein structure called a dopamine receptor.

The receptor sits on the surface of brain cells and receives a chemical messenger called dopamine that brain cells send one another.

The newly cloned gene is for the so-called D1 dopamine receptor. The gene for the other kind of dopamine receptor, called D2, was cloned in 1988.

The cloned gene has for the so-called D1 dopamine receptor. The gene for the other kind of dopamine receptor, called D2, was cloned in 1988.

The new work is reported in Thursday's issue of the British journal Nature by three teams of scientists.

Dearry, of the Duke University Medical Center in Durham, N.C., said the discovery may lead to a test to detect very early cases of schizophrenia or Parkinson's disease by revealing receptor abnormalities.

Parkinson's is a potentially disabling condition that can include a tremor, rigidity and gradual loss of spontaneous movement.

Further work also may pave the way for better drugs to treat psychosis, the loss of touch with reality seen in schizophrenia, Dearry said.

Scientists may be able to distinguish different variants of the receptor, and design drugs to act only on these variants that affect psychosis while avoiding variants that produce side effects, he said.

The new work is important because it allows new studies of the D1 receptor, commented Dr. Arnold Friedhoff, a psychiatrist and director of the Miller-Hausner Laboratories at the New York University Medical Center.

Friedhoff said that in many areas of the brain, the D1 receptor stimulates the brain cell to make a key substance called cyclic AMP while the D2 receptor inhibits production. Existing anti-psychosis drugs appear to work by blocking the D2 receptor, thereby promoting cyclic AMP production, he said.

Perhaps new drugs aimed at the D1 receptor instead could produce the same effect with fewer side effects, Friedhoff said.

Most current standard anti-psychosis drugs include a risk of this side effects as tardive dyskinesia, a syndrome of involuntary movements that can affect the mouth, tongue, arms, leg or trunk.

Dearry's group included scientists at Duke and the Howard Hughes Medical Institute Laboratories there.

Hussein urges Arabs to fight West in 'holy war'

(AP) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on Wednesday urged Arabs to rise up in a holy war against the West and former allies who turned against him, and said world trade sanctions are imperiling the lives of Iraqi children.

An American citizen, meanwhile, was reported shot in Iraqi-occupied Kuwait but details were sketchy.

The State Department said Wednesday night in Washington that it received a report an Iraqi soldier fired on an American who was trying to avoid capture, adding, "We have no information on how serious his injuries might be."

Iraqi troops have been rounding up Westerners in Kuwait since Iraq invaded and seized the small oil state on Aug. 2. Embassies in Kuwait have been ordered closed and diplomats transferred to Baghdad.

Western women and children detained in Kuwait and Iraq trickled out in small groups Wednesday, leaving behind hundreds who lack permission to depart. Iraq, criticized for blocking releases with red tape, said it was doing everything it could to expedite departures.

Although Washington says its troops are deployed to defend the Saudis, the recent moves increase the offensive capabilities of U.S. forces.

President Bush indicated Wednesday the United States has not ruled out an offensive role, telling lawmakers back from the Gulf that if sanctions do not succeed, "we will review our options."

Secretary of State James Baker was headed for the Middle East, where he said he planned to discuss with U.S. allies a proposed new regional security structure for the Persian Gulf.

BCAC to be more active

By DANNIKA SIMPSON

The Black Cultural Arts Council (BCAC) announced plans to become more active in the Notre Dame South Bend Community at its meeting Wednesday evening.

One of the goals Co-President Tony Smith announced is to become more involved with the South Bend community. The club will be working with the Upward Bound program. Two days a week they will tutor underprivileged high school students who are interested in going to college. The tutors will work one on one with students and try to keep them interested in higher education.

In addition, a program will be started to provide positive role models for high school students. College students will be matched with high school students who are in need of positive role models. The college students will be available to listen to the students needs and will try to help them with problems they may encounter.

The BCAC will also work with the Big Brother/Big Sister program of South Bend. The officers would like to give something back to the South Bend community and think these programs are a good way of doing so.

The BCAC wants to become more involved with the Notre Dame community. They will work with the Student Senate in hopes to address areas of minority student concerns. They will act as a support network for all minority students and plan to become more visible in the Notre Dame community. They want to be known for more than the annual fashion and talent show.

The BCAC also voted to change the name of the organization. Member’s feel that a name change will more clearly define the goals they have set for this year.

Death squads shooting children

LONDON (AP) — Death squads are shooting children dead in Brazilian cities at a rate estimated at least one a day, Amnesty International says.

The proliferation of homeless children, many of whom turn to crime to survive, has led to an increase in murders by death squads partly manned by off-duty policemen, the worldwide human rights organization said in a report to be published Thursday.

It spoke of hundreds of such killings, cited Brazilian rights groups for the estimate of a death a day and said there were also many cases of children being beaten, tortured and mutilated by policemen on duty.

The organization reminded President Fernando Collor de Mello of his pledge June 22 to stamp out the abuses, in which he said: “We cannot be and will not again be a country cited as violent in reports by Amnesty International.”

It said an Amnesty delegation met Collor last month and asked for “immediate, concrete action” to stop the killings.

The report cited the case of three boys picked up in Rio de Janeiro by military police last month on suspicion of trying to break into a store. It said they were made to play Russian roulette, and a 13-year-old, Leandro Cardoso da Silva, was shot “in the head and dumped outside a hotel by police. He later died in hospital.”

“You children in Brazil are treated with contempt by the authorities, risking their lives simply by being on the street,” the report said. “Their most basic rights are trampled on by the very people who should safeguard them.”

Non-smokers still face risk

BOSTON (AP) — Non-smokers who grew up with smoking parents face double the usual risk of lung cancer, according to a study that provides new evidence of the dangers of secondhand smoke.

The report estimates that 17 percent of all lung cancer in the United States among people who never smoked cigarettes results from their exposure to smokers during childhood and adolescence.

"Here is another piece of evidence that smoke from other people's cigarettes is harmful to your health. This is the first finding that indicates that exposure early in life may be particularly important," said Dr. Dwight Janerich of Yale School of Medicine, who directed the study.

The Environmental Protection Agency estimates that about 25,000 of the more than 150,000 new cases of lung cancer annually occur among non-smokers, and 40 percent of them, or 10,000 people, never smoked. If the latest estimate is correct, this means that about 1,700 cases each year are caused by childhood exposure to other people's cigarette smoke.

"It makes a strong case that exposure to secondhand smoke as a child increases your risk as an adult. This is quite convincing," commented Dr. Stanton Glantz of the University of California, San Francisco.

The study, published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, was based on a survey of 191 non-smokers in New York state who were diagnosed with lung cancer during the early 1980s. Researchers calculated their lifetime exposure to secondhand smoke and compared it with that of healthy non-smokers.

The researchers added up each person's "smoker-years." This is the years they lived in a house multiplied by the number of smokers there. For instance, someone who lived at home for 18 years with two smoking parents had exposure of 36 smoker-years.

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianian motorists pay the nation's 13th lowest rate for auto insurance, averaging about $454 a year, the Alliance of American Insurers reported Wednesday.

A major reason for the moderate rate is that Hoosiers have 69 percent fewer auto-related lawsuits and 39 percent fewer car thefts than drivers in most states, said company President Franklin Nutter.

"The system in Indiana seems to be working well," said Nutter, speaking at the annual meeting of the Insurance Institute of Indiana. "The cost of auto insurance may be a major issue in some states, but it shouldn't be in Indiana," Nutter said there is a misconception that people pay a large chunk of their household incomes on car insurance.

However, Hoosier car owners pay just 1.9 percent of their budgets on auto premiums while spending 1.1 percent on life insurance and 1.6 percent on health insurance, Nutter said.

By comparison, Indiana residents spend 25.6 percent of their annual budget on housing, 16.7 percent on transportation and 15.1 percent on food, he said.

New Jersey has the nation's highest auto premiums, a steep $1,100 on average, primarily because it has the nation's highest number of cars per square mile, Nutter said.
Washington, D.C., ranked second with an average annual premium of about $879.

Sparingly populated Nebraska has the nation's cheapest auto insurance, averaging about $336 a year.

To lower Indiana auto premiums even more, Nutter suggested being careful when buying a car because newer, more expensive automobiles or ones with fewer safety features are more expensive to insure. He also suggested raising de-ductibles, insuring all household cars under the same policy and keeping a clean driving record.

Steve Williams, president of the insurance institute, said Nutter's figures agree with a finding by the State Motor Vehicles Issues Committee, which reviewed Hoosier auto premiums this summer and found last month that no changes were necessary.

Nutter heads a national trade association representing 170 property and casualty insurance companies.

LONDON (AP) — Before she died in January, Dorothea Allen destroyed family papers and letters and tore the date and place of birth from her passport. She left more than $2.8 million in cash, no traceable next of kin, no will, no birth Certificate, no marriage certificate, and a growing list of claimants to her fortune.

So far, 31 people have come forward, claiming to be heirs of the woman known in British newspapers as "the vanishing lady."

By law, claimants have 12 years to prove they are blood relatives. If they fail, the fortune goes to the state treasury.

Treasury lawyers ordered the sale of her effects, including mink coats, a 1972 Rolls-Royce Corniche and a 1964 Daimler, jwel-y, paintings, furniture, silver and other trappings from a glamorous past that by some accounts included a trip across the dance floor with Fred Astaire.

The sale, conducted Tuesday by Sotheby's at her 300-year-old home, added another $1.3 million to the estate. The home itself, in the village of Sutton-under-Brasles 90 miles northwest of London, is expected to fetch another $1.3 million when it is sold.

According to Sotheby's, the latest claimant to come forward is Wilfred Kluber from Baden-Baden, West Germany, who says his grandmother was Mrs. Allen's sister.

Kluber told Sotheby's that his grandmother's maiden name was Farquharson, and that
Mrs. Allen was born in 1901.
His letter has been passed along to the treasury, Sotheby's said.

The Times of London said another claimant is Merilyn Horton of Cleveland, Ohio. It reported that Mrs. Horton said her great-grandfather was a Scottish immigrant named Farquharson.

FROM THE TIMES
Students must seize chance to participate

In their campaign last spring, Student Body President Rob Pasin and Vice-President Fred Tombar said the students were their top priority for the coming year. This fall, Pasin and Tombar have made a concerted effort to carry out the theme of their campaign: "Students first!"

The first Student Body Address tonight in the Center for Continuing Education, will give students a long-awaited opportunity to voice their opinions to their leaders. Students are strongly encouraged to attend the address—as contributors, as well as listeners.

Pasin and Tombar are hosting the event, which will be open to all students. The address, as well as the question and answer session which will follow, exemplifies the students' increased student input. Communication, however, is a two-way street. Just as Pasin and Tombar are making the effort to communicate with the students, the students do their part by attending the lecture, asking questions and raising their voices heard.

Notre Dame students have a right to know what is happening on campus. Along with that right comes the duty to contribute and actively participate in discussion and debate. Passive complaining will accomplish nothing.

One of comma is heard most frequently on campus is the administration's alleged failure to consult the students on important decisions. A perfect example of this is the change in the alcohol policy at SYRIs two years ago. Most of the student body was irate because they felt their opinions were ignored when the change was affected.

Pasin and Tombar are trying to foster student involvement in light of these complaints. For their efforts to be successful, the students must respond. If the students wish to be treated like mature, thoughtful individuals, they must seize this opportunity to prove themselves.

Pasin and Tombar are making a concerted effort to keep the communication lines open between students and student government. To achieve this aim, they have installed a telephone hot line for student complaints, and have also scheduled dorm visits to personally consult with residents of each hall. Tonight's Student Body Address is also an important step toward this end.

The student leaders are making a visible effort to serve the students. It is in the student body's best interest to respond.

U.S. seeks out uses for military might

By Enrique Dussel

Iraq's invasion of Kuwait cannot be legitimized by any means as no military intervention can. Latin Americans, especially, can understand the feeling of the Kuwaiti people after so many U.S. interventions in the last century.

In my opinion, the present situation in the "Gulf crisis" and the massive deployment of U.S. troops in the region point to several remarkable situations in the U.S. (and also at the University of Notre Dame).

1) It appears that, in the 1980s, U.S. society has been very susceptible to a special mixture of nationalist-populist-religious-military-white male-discourse of the White House and most of the national mass media. In these days, some even try to make obnoxious comparisons between the U.S. invasion in Panama and the one in Kuwait. The former is justified by the U.S. as a legitimate national security problem and resulted in U.S. troops "placing" a new (U.S. friendly) government, while the "naked aggression" of Iraq, led by a crazy man similar to Hitler, has to be condemned strongly.

2) The "innocent help" of the U.S. in Panama killed around 4,000 Panamanians. The quick and massive military reaction of the U.S. in the Gulf, once one considers the one hundred-plus direct U.S. military interventions in Latin America alone in this century and the recent recurrence of an emphasis on the "autonomy of the nations" and the "sovereignty of states," cannot have any credibility at all and seems to be nothing more than an open hypocrisy.

3) Far more important, and sadly for all "Bamboos," the U.S. is no longer economically able to lead a massive intervention or war, as it did in Vietnam. The U.S. hegemony seems to have accepted a new international labour division; it intervenes militarily, and the affected nations pay the costs (the most European and Panamanian nations (and Japan have already accepted)). The U.S. military might become for already in an international mercenary troop, doing all the dirty work other nations will not do.

4) Far more serious is the fact that the present "Gulf crisis" might become a personal issue. Bush in the next few months. It seems to be the case that a military solution is not now possible—either in Kuwait or in Iraq. How will Bush react to the increasing pressure of the U.S. population if more than 50,000 soldiers will have to stay in the region and no immediate "actions" are taken (especially in the case of the hostages)? Isn't a military action going to be necessary to reassert Bush's reputation, to justify the costs and deaths in accidents?""

4) Did the Bush Administration calculate the risks of sending troops to Saudi Arabia before the U.N.? A long military presence of the U.S. in the region might have significant effects. How long and how many soldiers will have to stay, even if Kuwait is "recovered"? How will the Arab population feel if their holy places (Mecca, Medina) are invaded by foreign (non-believing) soldiers?

5) In this decade, the U.S. will face an increasingly Islamic fundamentalist movement in the Gulf region and in Asia. This movement will be radically hostile to U.S. interests and "superbly" armed by the U.S. itself (as Norgia, an ex-friend of Bush, was). See, for instance, the cases of Iran, Iraq, Pakistan, Afghanistan (Mujahidin) and North Africa.

In this context, the U.S. war machine is working full time at high speed in all possible media, searching for all kinds of arguments to justify an unjustified military intervention in Iraq. After reading the newspaper or watching TV, one may experience this new "we-feeling". But let us face it: Believing in the "sovereignty of states" argument in the U.S. version is nothing more than naive innocence, which, while having devastating effects in other countries, is especially difficult to accept for an important part of the U.S. population—primarily the military forces themselves.

Saint Mary's to finish Fall Foray with luau

BETH KESSLER

The Hawaiian fiesta that is Saint Mary's Annual Fall Foray will come to a climactic close this Friday with a luau. The luau is sponsored by the Student Activities Board of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's and is open to all students.

The luau will be held on the steps of Haggar Hall at the University of Notre Dame at 8:30 p.m. on Friday, September 7. The event will be a joint ND-SMC luau. The theme of a Hawaiian luau adds an interesting twist. By having it early in the year it will allow freshmen to get involved, transfers to meet people, and upperclassmen to reacquaint themselves with fellow students.

Halstead described the luau as a "pre-party," suggesting that it would be a good place to start Friday evening before moving on to a more private party.

The luau is sponsored by the Student Activities Board of Saint Mary's and is open to all Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students. Halstead is optimistic about a good turnout and extends an invitation to all students. Halstead is optimistic about a good turnout and extends an invitation to all students.

The Spirit of Notre Dame

To rise stronger than ever after defeat;
To be gracious and proud, though we've been best;
To save a win with laughter and with whoops.
Yet, extending a hand to opposing troops:
To never forget, 'fore or after the game.
This is part of the Spirit of Notre Dame.

But it's more than nice guys in victory and loss.
Or 'membrance of grouto, dune, spire, and takes' moss.
It's giving to each hour that certain gliss.
Sixty fall minutes of the best in us.
It's the will to excel in all that we dare.
For Him and for her, whose children we are.
It's a force and a drive impelling us choose
Good over evil, though we seemingly lose.
It's a spark—fire—passed on and on.
By Notre Dame men, by father and son.
Oh, it's wondrous and awesome, this fire and this force.
This Spirit that inspires us, this eternal resource.
So cherish it dearly, more precious than gold.
And when dark hours gather, we'll turn up the flame
Of the glorious Spirit of Notre Dame!

Editor's Note: This was written by Paul A. Fish, a 1943 graduate of Notre Dame, and sent to Ara Parsegian six days after ND lost to USC.

Saint Mary's to finish Fall Foray with luau

To complete a week of activities labeled the Fall Foray, Saint Mary's has planned a joint ND-SMC luau. The event will take place on Friday, September 7, from 8:30 p.m. to 11:00 p.m. on the steps of Haggar Hall at Saint Mary's.

In the Hawaiian spirit lets will be given away, and food with a Hawaiian flare will be served. The area will be lit by torches, which will not only provide an appropriate setting, but should help deter the mosquitoes.

The main emphasis of the evening will be on dancing to the music of the Generics. Included in the activities will be a limbo contest. Organized by Amy Halstead and Wendy Kemp, heads of Special Cultural Activities for the Student Activities Board of SMC, the idea for this event came to them last spring. Halstead said they felt there was a lack of non-date dances on the ND and SMC campuses. She and Kemp wanted to provide a fun way for people to get together, dance and socialize, without the necessity of having a date.

The theme of a Hawaiian luau added an interesting twist. By having it early in the year it will allow freshmen to get involved, transfers to meet people, and upperclassmen to reacquaint themselves with fellow students.

Halstead described the luau as a "pre-party," suggesting that it would be a good place to start Friday evening before moving on to a more private party.

'The area will be lit by torches, which will not only provide an appropriate setting, but should help deter the mosquitoes.'

The luau is sponsored by the Student Activities Board of Saint Mary's and is open to all Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students. Halstead is optimistic about a good turnout and extends an invitation to all those who are interested in dancing under the starry skies of Indiana, and maybe allowing the imagination to wander a little into more tropical climes.

Special to the Observer

The Entertainer of the Year is on his way to Notre Dame. No, this is not a joke. Tim Settimi will appear on Friday, September 7, at 8:00 p.m. in Theodore's.

Settimi, voted 1989 Performing Artist of the Year by the National Association for Campus Activities, has performed his one man show "I'm OK—An Evening with Tim Settimi" with such diverse performers as Doc Severinson and Steve Martin, Willie Nelson, and Kenny Loggins, Conway, and Wendy Kemp, heads of Special Cultural Activities for the Student Activities Board of Campus Activities, will perform at Theodore's Friday at 8:00 p.m.

Above: Settimi has appeared in concert with Gloria Estefan, Doc Severinson and Steve Martin.

Left: Entertainer Tim Settimi, who was named 1989 Performing Artist of the Year by the National Association of Campus Activities, will perform at Theodore's Friday at 8:00 p.m.

Settimi's comedy-mime-roller skating show comes to Theodore's

Settimi began his live performance career as a street performer, appearing in such cities as Boston, Toronto, New York, Montreal and his native Chicago.

A current resident of Atlanta, Settimi's talents have translated well to television and movies, with appearances on "Comedy Tonight," "Showtime's "Atlanta Laff-O," and in the feature film "The Prize Fighter" with Tim Conway.

Settimi's current show combines mime, comedy, original music, memorable characters and athletic pratfall roller skating that delights all.

New work in progress for the most honored artist in the National Association for Campus Activities is a collection of theatrical interpretations of original music. The show, tentatively titled "Behind Bars," is a live music video, weaving a narrative through eight songs. To see more of this talented performer, be sure to catch his act at Theodore's Friday at 8:00 p.m.

ABC, when it realized Notre Dame would not be a part of the CFA package, devalued its entire five-game deal by an estimated $50 million, with the CFA teams losing $20 million would have gone directly to Notre Dame.

So, essentially, ABC’s $50 million cutback translates into what the contract believes is Notre Dame’s worth to college football. That’s some $12 million more than what NBC says Notre Dame football is worth. Hmmm. Just imagine if ABC and CBS joined NBC in the bagging talks last February were asked to start the bidding on Irish football. There’s not an auctioneer in the country who could have kept pace. A bidding war could have shifted the reported $38 million offer.

The obvious question arises: Why didn’t Notre Dame go for the whole enchilada by selling itself to the entire market?

“That’s not the way we function,” says Beauchamp, who is considered the bad guy in this entire soap opera. “We’ve come to understand we’ll broadcast these games for many this many and much this much. Now CBS is coming up to us. We are not interested in allowing into a bidding war. We felt it presented ethical problems.”

So ABC and CBS still fry oil.

Members of CEA are aghast at the unbelievable wealth that the contract will generate for one school. And the University of Kansas announcements that they’ll play a two-game basketball series with the Irish. (Ney, they go our winter weekends)

But these people haven’t considered how much Notre Dame could have been offered.

He also fail to recognize that Notre Dame could have made similar contracts.

Think you’re the only guy on campus with a problem? You’re not. There is a problem, and it’s called Notre Dame. They have also has many of the touch spots and ground broken, that has been McEnroe’s trademark.

McEnroe’s sweeping serve kept Wheaton off balance, sometimes reaching for the court, most of the night, and his brilliant passing shots and volleys have to work to infinity the foot-4 Wheaton.

Sampas, battered so badly in the first three sets that the Irish could’ve opened a conference win in 1985, will next take on Florida Pavos, a 19-year-old who serves as hard as McEnroe, and also has many of the touch spots and ground broken, that has been McEnroe’s trademark.

McEnroe, Sampras win Open matches

NEW YORK (AP) — John McEnroe, lashing improbably into the U.S. Open semifinals, toyed with the talent of the new breed of power hitters, and Ivan Lendl fared against a teen that he taught too well.

McEnroe, 31, played like the master of old in Sunday’s 7-5, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 victory Wednesday night over David Wheaton, a 21-year-old giant with a giant with a powerful serve that could match the talents of the four-time champion.

McEnroe treated Wheaton as if he were a partner, teaching him with drop-shot volleys, passing shots, and thundering serves with a flick of the wrist.

The seeded McEnroe, who hadn’t reached the semifinals here since he reached the semis in 1985, will next take on Pete Sampras, a 19-year-old who serves as hard as McEnroe, and who also has many of the touch spots and ground broken that have been McEnroe’s trademark.

Wheaton’s sweeping serve kept Wheaton off balance, sometimes reaching for the court, most of the night, and his brilliant passing shots and volleys have to work to infinity the foot-4 Wheaton.

Meanwhile, his star quarterback, Charles Thompson, is putting the finishing touches on a book of his own. Thompson, who is currently serving a two-year prison term on a conviction of conspiracy to distribute cocaine, documents the widespread presence of illegal drugs and firearms in players' dormitories in the forthcoming "Down and Dirty: The Life and Crimes of Oklahoma Football." Switzer has repeatedly said that he puts no stock in anything Thompson has to say about his stay at Oklahoma, calling him "a sociopath, a criminal". Furthermore, Switzer claims Thompson's book was written simply to make money.

At least he's not going on a promotional tour.

Foreign captives warned not to try escaping Iraq

(AP) - Iraq tightened the screws on Thursday, warning that anyone trying to leave without permission could face life in prison. The Soviet Union raised the possibility of a Kremlin support for sending a U.N. military force to the Persian Gulf.

Saddam Hussein committed several billion dollars toward defeating the enormous cost of the U.S. forces protecting the kingdom's oil fields from possible Iraqi aggression, U.S. and Saudi officials announced.

U.S. officials said the Saudis would, at a minimum, pick up all fuel, water and transportation costs for the 60,000 American troops now in Saudi Arabia. Earlier this week, Baker told Congress the U.S. presence would cost about $6 billion by year's end.

Both U.S. and Saudi officials declined to provide a specific deployment plan. Egypt, too, said it was beefing up its small gulf contingent.

At the United Nations, diplomats said U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar planned to send an envoy to occupied Kuwait to meet with diplomat whose embassies are surrounded by Iraqi troops, and with trapped foreigners, Baghdad would have to give its consent for the visit.

The State Department again blasted Iraq for its treatment of foreign nationals, including the shaming of an American in Kuwait who was trying to avoid capture. Department spokesman Mark Dillen called Iraq's behavior "outrageous."

Washington and Moscow, meanwhile, scrambled to prepare for the weekend superpower summit they hope will bring a break in the nearly 5-week-old crisis.

President Bush said the United States was determined to force Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw from Kuwait, which Iraqi troops overran Aug. 2 in a dispute over land, money and oil.

"We will not stand by while one country devours another, an unthreatening country whole," Bush said at a Kansas fund-raiser. "Our cause may not be easy, but it will always be right."

In a surprise move, Bush said he would make a statement for broadcast to the Iraqi people, saying he saw "a real opportunity" to explain the U.S. view. Baghdad had offered to broadcast an interview with Bush, but the White House said the president would tape a statement instead.

Statements by the Iraqi president, which White House wags call "Saddamathons," have received ample air time in the United States, and the Bush administration was reportedly irritated about this.

Word that Moscow might support a U.N. military force in the gulf came from Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gruzinov. He indicated Mikhail Gorbatchev may discuss the idea with Bush at summit Sunday in see GULF / page 6

Stud Gov't opens year with address

By BETSY PUNSLAN

The creation of a 24-hour space in the basement of LaFortune is expected to materialize soon, according to Student Body President Rob Pasin and Vice President Fred Tombar in their first Student Body Address last night.

"We worked on it this summer for a while," said Tombar of the 24-hour space. "We hope this will become a reality sometime this semester, but at least by next semester."

Student Government also worked this summer on the development of a lecture series, according to Pasin, who was aided by Dr. William Sexton, vice president of University Relations. Fifty invitations were sent to various speakers and, thus far, Student Government has confirmed engagements with such notable figures as CBS White House Correspondent Leslie Stahl, former Arizona governor Bruce Babbitt and HUD Secretary Jack Kemp.

Pasin and Tombar want to improve communication between the student body and Student Government. Student Government newsletters would be distributed in the dorms in the hopes of creating a government "more receptive to the needs and concerns of the student body," according to Tombar. Pasin is also currently working on an Observer column in an effort to maintain close ties with the student body, and he hopes to utilize other forms of campus media for this purpose as well.

Student Government has instituted a suggestion line, nick-named "the FRED-line," as a way to improve communication with the student body, according to Tombar, who has been receiving about 20 calls a day.

Pasin noted the need for a complaint procedure that would bring individual student complaints directly to Student Government. The new procedure would allow students to file complaints in the dorms, which would then be brought by the dorm president to the Student Government Legal Department for review.

As promised in their campaign last year, Tombar said emergency phones and added lighting in the parking lots are projects he and Pasin noted as installed. "The University's working on it and it will happen as soon as possible. It's just a matter of University bureaucracy."

In other related security matters, Pasin said Student Government is considering extending SafeWalk to other areas around campus, as well as extending the Weekend Wheels shuttle service to off-campus locations.

In response to a question regarding Notre Dame's gay and lesbian community, Pasin responded, "Notre Dame is a Christian community and ideally should be loving and accepting of all its members."

Last night's address was the first of three anticipated for the 1990-1991 school year. Pasin said he hopes the open forum format will encourage student participation so that Student Government can be held more accountable to students."
INSIDE COLUMN

Shedding light on the topic of parking

Question: What gives off the most light in the D2 parking lot?

Answer: A full moon.

Until the administration decides to put more lights in D2, it looks like the man on the moon will assist. Accent Editor be the only person watching over the students who have to walk through the poorly lit parking lot at night.

For those people who might not be familiar with this particular parking lot, D2 has lights set up around the perimeter of the lot, but these aren’t powerful enough to light in the center of the lot—where all of the cars are parked.

The parking lot is so dark that it is difficult for students to even find their car, and it’s a long time before the administration doesn’t feel like adding a few more security guards who wouldn’t hurt either.

The University’s Safework program is a step in the right direction towards increasing student safety, but the parking lots are so dark at night that I doubt even the bravest safeworkers would want to trot through D2. Students shouldn’t have to add a can of mace to their keychains because the administration doesn’t feel like adding a few more lights in the lots.

Something tells me that this University has not enough money to put up more lights in all of the campus parking lots. As the number of on- and off-campus attacks escalates, the administration should become increasingly aware of the problem of poorly lit parking lots and do something to rectify that situation.

The problem of insufficient lighting in the parking lot has gone on for an unnecessarily long time. What has to happen before the administration decides to do something about this #1 safety problem? I certainly hope it doesn’t take another attack in the parking lot to get the administration to do something that should have been done a long time ago. This University needs to “lighten up” in more ways than one.

Drug lord can be extradited despite new policy

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Despite the government's offer to stop extraditing drug kingpins, Colombia's senior cocaine kingpin still would be sent to the United States for trial, a top government official said Thursday.

Pablo Escobar, head of the Medellin cocaine cartel, would be sent to the United States unless he turns himself in and confesses all his crimes, said the official, who is involved in policy and decision-making. He spoke to reporters on condition of anonymity.

The Bush administration cautiously endorsed the new policy.

"If the government and people of Colombia are now able to enforce their own laws against drug trafficking — prosecuting, convicting, and incarcerating these thugs — so much the better," Attorney General Dick Thornburgh said in a statement from Washington.

But he warned that "if the so-called extraditables fail to take advantage of this opportunity to surrender ... we will continue to support Colombia's effort to arrest and extradite them to the United States for trial."

President Cesar Gaviria modified a year-old policy by announcing Wednesday that cocaine traffickers who surrender to Colombian authorities will not be extradited to the United States.

Gaviria said the decision, which came in the form of an official decree, applies to those who surrender, not those captured by policy.

"If Escobar were captured today, he would be extradited," said the official who spoke Thursday.

He said Colombia would not allow the new measure to become a "joke" in which major drug criminals confess only minor crimes to avoid extradition.

"If Pablo Escobar surrendered but failed to confess all of his crimes, he would run the risk of being extradited," he added.

The government hopes to convince medium- and lower-level drug traffickers to surrender and cooperate with authorities, he said.

Officials blame the Medellin cartel, which Escobar heads, for killing about 500 Colombians the past year, including three presidential candidates.

Thousands of others have died in fighting between rival drug gangs and violence by right-wing death squads financed by drug traffickers.

During the past year, the Medellin cartel has been demanding an end to extradition, the fate it fears most.

In repeated statements, drug traffickers have offered to turn themselves in to Colombian judges, in an apparent attempt to persuade the government to end extraditions.

The Medellin cartel in July declared a unilateral cease-fire in its terrorist attacks, apparently hoping the new administration would end extraditions. Gaviria was inaugurated Aug. 7.

The official said it was necessary to show the Colombian people that the president is seeking solutions based on the country's own justice system.

Total reliance on foreign courts saps people's confidence in Colombia's institutions, he added.

Gaviria's predecessor, Virgilio Barco, undertook extraditions to the United States a year ago, after drug traffickers declared war on the state.

Extraditions are controversial in Colombia because many people believe sending citizens to face trial abroad is an insult to national pride.

However, Colombia's justice system has so far failed to keep any major trafficker in jail. Drug lords often bribe or threaten officials into letting them go free.
Bush will appear on Iraqi TV, but on own terms, spokesman says

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — President Bush will accept Saddam Hussein's offer to broadcast a message to Iraq, but only on his own terms. Bush's spokesman said Thursday the president will make a tape in lieu of an interview with an Iraqi TV crew.

"It's a real opportunity," Bush said of Saddam's offer to televise the U.S. leader's comments. Bush's spokesman said the president had "a very distinct message" to give the Iraqi people about American reasons for the massive military buildup in the Persian Gulf.

Iraqi Ambassador Mohamed al-Mashat said in Washington that "of course" Iraqi TV would air Bush's message "in its entirety without editing. Here you edit, in Iraq we do not edit.

Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Bush's address would be eight to 10 minutes long. "We will have a whole package for broadcast on Iraqi television, and then we'll have a State Department interpreter who will provide the interpretation some way" into Arabic, Fitzwater said, adding that the tape will be released generally.

On another topic, looking ahead to this weekend's superpower summit, Bush said he will use the meeting not only to discuss the Persian Gulf with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev but to press for a quick resolution to strategic arms talks.

Before embarking on a one-day political trip to Kansas and Florida on Thursday, Bush spoke by telephone with a number of world leaders on the Gulf situation and his upcoming meeting with Gorbachev. They included President Hafez al-Assad, Turkish President Turgut Ozal, French President Francois Mitterrand and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, the White House said.

He also called United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to thank him for his unsuccessful try at resolving the Gulf crisis in talks last week in Iraq.

Bush also met Thursday with Israel's visiting foreign minister, David Levy, in Washington. Naj al-Hadithi, director general of Iraq's Information Ministry, said in Baghdad that an Iraqi television crew was ready to go to Washington to interview Bush for a broadcast on state-run television.

Fitzwater said that wouldn't be necessary — "we'll produce it ourselves.

"Although we have not heard from Iraq directly, we accept their offer of a broadcast to the Iraqi people. The president will tape a message to the Iraqi people in the next few days which will be provided to the Iraqi information minister," Fitzwater told reporters accompanying Bush on Air Force One.

Bush has said he wished he could have the media access in Iraq that Saddam has had on U.S. television. The Iraqi president's statements and appearances have been broadcast widely, many of them on live and unedited CNN reports.

"The president has a very distinct message that he wants to give to the people of Iraq about our purpose for being in the Gulf. He thinks this is a good opportunity," Fitzwater said.

On a separate matter, Fitzwater said that there is no new economic package for the Soviet Union in the offering, although the Sunday summit meeting in Helsinki will offer a chance to talk about "technical assistance."
Judge keeps bond for suspect in UF murders

SHARPS, Fla. (AP) — A judge Thursday cited bizarre behavior as a reason to uphold a $1 million bond on an assault charge for a young man suspected in the slayings of five college students in Gainesville.

Homicide task force investigators were searching the 18-year-old's Gainesville apartment and car for clues to the slayings. But police cautioned he is only one of eight leading suspects, and his brother said he's being made a scapegoat.

Because of the unusually high bond, Edward Humphrey has been in the Brevard County jail since Aug. 30 on a charge of battering his grandmother.

"I see before me a very disturbed individual," Circuit Judge Martin Budnick said at the bail-reduction hearing at the jail. "I see a great deal of acting out ... neurotic or psychotic behavior."

Jail officer Emily Glaab testified Humphrey described himself as dangerous and "a savage," threatened a female inmate, and called himself "John" and warned "John doesn't take no prisoners."

Brevard State Attorney Norm Wolfinger, arguing for the high bond, said: "The fact remains he is a suspect in the Gainesville murders and he knows that."

Public Defender J.R. Russo objected, and the judge agreed he couldn't set a bond based on a case Humphrey hasn't been charged in. However, the judge said he would be doing "a disservice to the community" if he allowed Humphrey to go free.

Budnick ruled that Humphrey is a danger to the community. But he indicated he would consider another request for bond reduction and wanted to hear medical testimony about Humphrey's mental condition.

Russo did not comment afterward on whether he would seek another hearing. He said he was preparing for the trial on the aggravated assault charge, tentatively scheduled for October.

Humphrey's grandmother testified she didn't want to press charges and would welcome Humphrey back into her home, where Humphrey's mother also lives, in Indiana.

"I want it dropped ... definitely," Elna Hlavaty, her right cheek and right eye badly bruised, said as Humphrey watched.

She said she didn't fear her grandson, although she had been told police repeatedly.

She said she couldn't remember anything about the night of the incident other than that she hurt her right side when she fell on a concrete floor. The 79-year-old Hlavaty protested she was old and ill and couldn't answer any more questions from prosecutors.

Sheriff's Deputy Douglas Hammack testified she told him the night of the arrest that she feared Humphrey would beat her again. Humphrey started banging his head against his patrol car when Hammack put him inside, the deputy testified.

Hammack said he had gone to the grandmother's home five or six times on disturbance complaints and was told Humphrey was refusing to take medicine to control mood swings.

He testified on one visit he had Humphrey remove a knife from the front seat of his car and lock it in the trunk.

Besides Humphrey's apartment, detectives searched his grandmother's home and his black Cadillac. Authorities said the grandmother's home was unoccupied during the search because the family was at the hearing.

George Humphrey, a University of Florida senior, charged that his younger brother is being made a scapegoat and that the press is sensationalizing the killings.

"Ed didn't do it. Ed didn't do it. He's not capable of it," Humphrey told reporters in Sharps.

NDASA announces Africa Week

By SARAH VOIGT
News Writer

Africa Week, a first annual series of academic and artistic events scheduled on campus from September 9-14, was organized by the Notre Dame African Students Association (NDASA) to discuss and celebrate African culture.

According to Christophe Kougnaizonde, president of the NDASA, "Africa Week coincides with one of the goals of Notre Dame, which is intercultural diversity, a dialogue between different cultures. We want to encourage this, to provide a forum for issues about Africa."

Kougnaizonde believes that Africa Week will satisfy important needs on campus. "This week will help Africans assert their own culture and combat homelessness for their homeland," he said. "It will also promote stronger awareness about African issues."

Kougnaizonde said that the NDASA first conceived of Africa Week as an attempt to recreate the enthusiasm for Africa unity observed in Africa on May 2.

The events scheduled for Africa Week include the following:

- A panel discussion entitled "Recent Political Developments in Southern Africa" will be held in the Engineering Auditorium on September 12 at 7 p.m.
- A discussion entitled "The Crisis of the Post-Independence African State" will be held in Theodore's at LaFortune on September 13 at 7:30 p.m.
- A closing reception with special African dishes, music and dance will be held in Stepan Center on September 14 at 9 p.m.

Cincinnati (AP) — A judge must decide whether an art gallery and its director broke obscenity laws by exhibiting five sexually graphic Robert Mapplethorpe photographs, a judge ruled Thursday.

Hamilton County Municipal Judge David Albanese ordered jail and a five-yearimum penalty of six months in the exhibition of obscenity. He said the charges were filed April 1990.

In his order Thursday, Albanese rejected defense arguments that the obscenity charge should be dismissed because state obscenity law exempts legitimate art displays.

"This argument combines facts, affirmative defenses and issues of credibility. This court will not pretry the case on these issues," the judge said.

Each charge carries a maximum of five years in jail and a $1,000 fine for Barrie and a $5,000 fine for the Contemporary Arts Center.

Albanese also granted a prosecutor's request to let jurors see only the five photographs that depict sadomasochistic sex acts when considering the obscenity charge.

Prosecutors also have to prove that one is obscene to win a conviction, the judge said.

"The court believes the retrospective is a vehicle for displaying the five SM photographs," he said.

Defense lawyers contend the 175 pictures in the exhibition — mainly portraits and pictures of flowers — aren't obscene when considered as a group.

"I'm disappointed in the ruling. I think the court is incorrect," said Barrie's lawyer, H. Louis Sirkin.

Sirkin said he wouldn't know how Albanese's decision would affect his case until he reviews the judge's ruling.

"It certainly doesn't help us," Sirkin said.

The charges were filed April 7, the day the exhibition opened to the public. The exhibition closed May 26, after 81,000 people had visited the gallery.

The child nudity charge is based on separate shots in the exhibition of a boy and a girl with their genitals exposed.

The Mapplethorpe exhibition opened Aug. 1 at the Institute for Contemporary Art in Boston. On Wednesday, a court clerk in that city refused a request to file obscenity charges.

Marc Mezibov, the lawyer for the Contemporary Arts Center, asked Albanese whether he was aware of the Boston ruling.

Mezibov said he believes it means the pictures have artistic value and would be immune from obscenity charges.

Albanese indicated he had not read the ruling. He cautioned, however, that Massachusetts courts may not apply it.

Bridge blocked in Mohawk dispute reopens after 2 months

MONTREAL (AP) — The Mercier Bridge linking Montreal to its south-shore suburbs opened Thursday for the first time following an eight-week standoff between armed Mohawks and police.

As army pipers played, hundreds of cars and trucks drove onto the bridge from suburban Chateauguay, through the Kahnawake Mohawk reserve and past armored personnel carriers in the early morning mist.

Commuters had started lining up their cars an hour earlier, horns honking impatiently as they waited for the army to wave them through.

"It's about time," one man on his way to work at a Montreal refrigerated warehouse told a radio station. "The government should never have let this happen in the first place."

The bridge normally handles about 70,000 vehicles during the daily rush hour. It was barricaded by natives from the Kahnawake reserve after provincial police staged an abortive attack on a Mohawk barricade at Kahnestake near Oka, Quebec, on July 11 in which an officer died.

The bridge closure led to violent demonstrations by south-shore commuters, including an incident last week in which a white mob hurled stones at a convoy of Mohawk women, children and invalids escaping the reserve.

The stage was set for the reopening when barricades by Kahnawake came down last week after an agreement was reached between the army and Mohawks.

But in Kahnestake — where the Mohawk deadlock began over a land dispute — soldiers spent Wednesday firming up their positions around the last Warrior stronghold.

The deadlock at Oka began when provincial police stormed a barricade the Mohawks erected to stop the town's plans to expand the local golf course, saying the property in question was part of their ancestral land.

The Discussion Groups sometimes have a topic or theme, but people are always free to talk about whatever they are feeling.

The Student Discussion Group will be meeting weekly, starting this Tuesday night. A Faculty/Staff Discussion Group is now forming.

Environment center opens in Budapest

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Hungarian President Arpad Goencz planted a tree Thursday to mark the opening of an international environmental center to help Eastern Europe cope with its widespread pollution problems.

Proposed by President Bush when he visited Hungary in July, the Regional Environmental Center is an independent organization for training and information on energy efficiency, public health and regional cooperation on preventing environmental problems.

It is designed to provide data on environmental issues, but not to get involved in political decisions in Eastern European countries, said Lee Pasewark, director of its project development team. Peter Hardi is the executive director.

"The opening of this center today is only the latest in a remarkable series of events that history will record as the revolution of 1989," William Reilly, former administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, said in an opening speech.

Eastern European countries are struggling with the results of a communist regime that for years suppressed freedom of expression.

Antiquated factories central to their economies still spew tons of waste into the air and water. Many forests are damaged, if not destroyed, by acid rain.

Reilly said Wednesday that the center was a "way of providing legitimacy, involvement" for Eastern European environmentalists who had been previously suppressed.

Half of the $10 million needed to start the center was donated by the United States. The European Community gave $2.5 million; Hungary $800,000; and the Netherlands, Austria and Canada $1.5 million total.
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA said Thursday it will replace the fuel pump that likely caused its latest failure to get astronauts back in space and try again in mid-September to launch Columbia.

NASA Administrator Richard Truly said a new pump will be installed this weekend. If that seems to correct the problem, a fourth launch attempt will be made to launch the shuttle with an astronomical observatory early in the week of Sept. 17.

"It’s not a 100 percent guarantee. But it’s the one shot we have to get the Astro mission airborne" before Discovery’s scheduled flight with the Ulysses satellite in October, Truly said.

The unit is bolted in and can be replaced easily, said launch director Bob Sieck. Crews cannot enter the compartment until Friday because propellants remain aboard, preventing a new pump from being installed until Saturday.

On Wednesday, NASA called off its third attempt to send Columbia on a mission to study some of the hottest objects in the universe with the $150 million Astro observatory.

Thursday's early morning launch was scrubbed after hydrogen flooded into the rear compartment. Officials were uncertain which one might be leaking or whether there were other holes. The pumps are part of the plumbing in the rear of the shuttle, where pipes range in diameter up to 17 inches. They are directly in front of the huge engines and are accessible through side doors.

"We’re not talking about a large leak. We’re talking about an extremely small leak," said Forrest McCartney, director of Kennedy Space Center. "It’s very elusive and very frustrating."

"It is a real booger to try to find and isolate," shuttle boss Robert Crippen said.

If a new pump does not correct Columbia’s leaks or the launch is delayed too long, the mission will wait until after Discovery’s flight with Ulysses, a satellite being sent on a five-year journey to explore the sun’s polar regions. Discovery must lift off between Oct. 5 to Oct. 23 to take advantage of the proper planet alignment.

"Ulysses is our first priority and we will not compromise that," said William Lenoir, head of NASA’s space flight program.

"My first reaction was frustration," said program scientist Ed Weiler. "But my next thought was, ‘My God, I’m glad they stopped, some of my friends are aboard’.

lasting friendships start with best buddies program

By Cecelia Burger

Mary is a friend of mine. There are many things I can tell you about her. For instance, she is a black female in her early thirties. She likes movies and music. She likes to get books to read from the Library. And she has an especially fond of Pizza Hut pizza, Kentucky Fried Chicken, and strawberry ice cream. Mary is friendly but quiet when you first meet her. When she warms up, however, her personality starts to take on a irresistible to resist. Obviously, Mary is a very special person to those who know her. But there is something about Mary which describes her would be incomplete without; Mary is severely retarded and handicapped.

Mary and I were paired together through Best Buddies, a program sponsored by the Kennedy Foundation which works on a one-to-one basis. Upon seeing her for the first time, it was apparent that she is disabled. After getting to know her, it was quite enlightening and surprising to realize that she is also very able. This occurred the moment I stopped looking at the handicap and began to look at the person beyond the handicap. Some would say that Mary is special, and I agree wholeheartedly. But Mary is not special in my eyes because she mentally retarded or handicapped, but because of the feeling of friendship and caring which we share, regardless of our differences.

Our friendship has been one of fairly rapid development. In the beginning when I would go to see Mary, I would have to initiate all of the conversation.

'Ireport in the morning....' I would say to her, and she would reply, 'I arrived at 7:45.' This would carry on for a while until Mary would say something, and the conversation would begin. Not only did she get me started, she also taught me a great deal about the handicapped, the mentally retarded, and the values of people. The concepts of fairly rapid development. In the beginning when I would go to see Mary, I would have to initiate all of the conversation.

Sometimes it was like a police interrogation. I had trouble getting responses, and I didn't know if I was talking "above her level of understanding," or perhaps she just found me boring. I feared that a normal pattern of authoritative figure and dependent was quickly forming. I decided to stop asking so many questions. When Mary and I would go to the movies or some other place, we would ride in the car, listen to music and just enjoy each other. I asked one or two questions and then paused for a time, waiting for a response. Little by little, Mary became more comfortable with me and I with her. She stopped being so uncomfortable about asking me for help or telling me she couldn't do some things because of her handicap. It is, in turn, felt more at ease with her handicap and asking about her abilities like the distance she could walk, if she could go up stairs, or if she took the bus to work. She ran.

When I said I would. Mary's presence in my life has had an immense impact on my views of mental retardation, the handicapped, and even the basic meaning of the word "friendship." At first, I did not know to expect, and I was a little apprehensive about working with Mary. I had never had much contact with the mentally retarded. However, my relationship with Mary has dissolved many of the fears I had.

My views of challenges, and of people in general, have also been influenced. Mary faces challenges and difficulties in daily life and survival. So much of what is automatic for me creates problems for her. She really has accomplished a tremendous amount. She has worked hard and deserves dignity and respect like anyone else. Instead, she lives in a world where many look down on her and patronize her, focusing on what she can't do rather than what she can.

I have also learned about the value of people. So many things about Mary are innate in the human condition. She feels both pain and pleasure, satisfaction and dissatisfaction, approval and disgust. She has ideas and opinions. She laughs and cries and gets angry. She experiences fear and doubt, but she also has her own little successes just like everyone else. Most importantly, she loves and accepts, and desires love and acceptance.

Mary is mentally retarded. She is also handicapped. She doesn't fit into what most of society may classify as normal. She has limits. Beyond all the labels and stereotypes is a learning, loving, breathing individual who has as much human value as anyone does, and she wants very much what other non-handicapped people want out of their lives. Her intelligence and abilities are limited in some respects, but that is part of Mary; they are only two factors that shape her as an individual.

Part of friendship is accepting the limits of your friends and cherishing the parts which are truly beautiful and valuable. Yes, Mary is my friend, she is special, and she has taught me the true meaning of friendship. I think the friendship Program is an excellent idea which benefits both participants. The mentally retarded person gets a chance to be socialized, integrated, and experience some normalization of activities with non-handicapped people. The non-handicapped person gets the chance to work with a mentally retarded person and develop a relationship, realizing that such people are not really different in the aspects of human value which really matter.

13 year history that they have tapped the charts. Reed believes a wide variety of music equals success. “We try to go from real classics, late 1960s and early 1970s, to the more recent rock. But even our current stuff has to fit the rock and roll style,” he says.

Special promotions also cater to the different audiences. The older crowd, primarily day listeners, hear DJ Billy Dee’s “Rock and Soul Cafe” in the lunch hour. Reed says that caller requests during this weekday program “range from Motown to traditional rock.”

Conests geared toward the younger crowd promote new artists by offering free CDs to certain callers. Occasionally, a bar that advertises on WAOR will donate tickets to special events for the station to give away.

The “Rock Party Weekends” is a new station program that puts three songs in a row by the same artists. According to Reed, this has significantly “boosted the reputation of the station.”

In an attempt to communicate more personally with all of their listeners, WAOR frequently takes the station on the road to community events, grand openings of businesses or other events. The popular, full time DJs also broadcast live from these locations.

By combining great rock and roll with a unique personal touch, WAOR has apparently found a good formula for success.
Although South Bend has two top 40 radio stations and one hard rock station, sometimes the need arises for a variety of music: something you can listen to while studying or relaxing without getting sick of repetition.

Sunny 101.5 fulfills that need by providing a mixture of songs. In the words of Doug Hawkes, program director for Sunny 101.5, the music is a golden mixture of both the best of the old and the new. In more technical radio lingo, it's programming is adult contemporary, with a large bulk of the audience between the ages of 25 and 39. Yet this is no Barry Manilow or Neil Diamond marathon station, nor is an air wave playing heavy metal or rap. Sunny 101.5's format, instead, ranges from the Beatles to Elton John.

Along with its regular music, Sunny 101.5 also showcases four special programs. Every weekday there's the popular "Lunchtime Gold" with Jack Heichert. From 12-1 p.m. classic rock and great oldies are sent out over the airwaves. For five minutes during that hour, usually 12:20-12:25, Heichert tosses his audience's knowledge of rock trivia. In 'Name that Lunchtime Gold', he plays the first few seconds or notes of an oldies song and the right caller (#12, for example) with the correct answer wins a prize. "The show is a lot of fun. Jack is a hometown boy, so he has a great knowledge of the city," commented Hawkes. "The show has a lot of audience participation, and Jack loves requests. He really tries to thoroughly research all his rare requests."

On Saturday evening from 7 to 11 p.m. there's "Super Gold" with Mike Tanner. Broadcast live from the West Coast, it presents a national phone-in request program. Sunday evening there are a couple of programs to listen to while studying at the brace. From 6-9 p.m., it's "Cruisin' America" with Count Boodle, and at 9 until 12 a.m., "Live from the Sixties" with the Real Don Steele. "Live from the Sixties" usually highlights one particular year in the decade and then plays all the great songs of that year—nothing but the major hits. He doesn't play "Born to be Wild" and "Light My Fire" every hour like other stations.-rock programs tend to do. Obscure songs and novelty songs are also given their fair share of the program. Don Steele also tries to make the listener feel as if they're back in time, with facts and trivia from the particular year.

"We try to have a whole bunch of little things going on at the same time, instead of one big promotion," Hawkes commented. "Actually," he continued, "our ratings have been pretty good of late. We like having a lot of audience participation and we're glad that we've developed a great audience. And we're, of course, very happy to be in the hometown of University of Notre Dame."

U93 is no longer a Top 40 station. Before the fans of Mark Durocher, Nicky 93, and the like rush to change their dials to another station that plays the hot hits of today, it must be made clear that U93 has not changed its format, simply the title of the format.

"Top 40" has become passe in radio circles; the correct name is contemporary hit radio, or CHR, according to Jack Swart, the Radio Manager of WNZU 93.

The station is currently enjoying a run as the top-rated radio station in the overall area, as well as in several key demographic groups. Arbitron, the ratings system U93 subscribes to, rates them number one in the 18-49 age group, with a 17.7 share of the audience, and also number one in the 18-34 group with a 19.5 share.

These numbers are based on the average percentage of listeners tuned in to U93 during the hours of 6 a.m. to midnight, seven days a week. Swart says there are a number of reasons the station is so successful.

First among these is the type of music the station plays. The playlist is selected by the program and music directors, who are influenced by requests from listeners and from sales in local record stores. The biggest hits are placed on the playlist in heavy rotation for a period of 12 to 13 weeks, at which time their rotation is diminished. A song is taken off the playlist anytime from one to one and a half years after its first appearance.

Because of the various tastes of its listeners, the station plays various styles of pop, including soul, hard rock, and rap, if it has crossover appeal.

The popularity of certain disc jockeys also contributes to the station's success. According to U93's overall strategy, the more high profile, energetic DJs are featured during the morning and afternoon driving time. The morning show, headed by Durocher, also boasts a stable of popular characters in a comic format.

Special programming on weekends includes Rick Dees' Weekly Top 40 on Saturdays mornings, and America's Top 40 on Sunday mornings, as well as Sunday evening's live line, a syndicated call-in show featuring various artists.

Perhaps the main factor that leaves U93 fans glued to their stereo, however, is the extensive call-in giveaway program the station utilizes. Both independently and in conjunction with sponsors, U93 gives away South Bend Sox tickets, concert tickets, and restaurant gift certificates, as well as larger prizes such as trips, stereo systems, and merchants' giveaway packages. Recent promotions included the $10,000 Key Song and the Endless Summer features.

WNZU is affiliated with the University and expresses this by following university policy on such things as the advertising it accepts for airplay. Swart says the station wishes to "reflect the same basic message as that of the University." The station promotes itself mostly through advertising on TV's Channel 16, and through billboards in the area.

As to the competition provided them by similar stations such as ZT104, Swart replies that U93 was the first station of its format in this area, and that gives it an advantage over the others. He states that U93's flow of air talent is stronger and that they are in touch with the community better than any of their competition.

With the air of one in command of the situation, he says simply, "We just keep beating them."

Replacing the 'old Lie' with a new lie

Shortly before being killed in action in 1918, the English war hero Wilfred Owen finished an anti-war poem which was as truthful as a poem can be: "If I could hear, at every jolt, the blood/come gurgling from the frost-corrupted lungs/Obscene as cancer.../My friend, you would not sit with it in high zest/To children ardent for some desperate glory/The old lie: Dulce et decorum est/Pre patria mori."

The "old Lie" began with Homer, writing in the Iliad: "A glorious death is his/Whose for his country falls." Homer probably didn't believe it was a lie, or he wouldn't have written it. Hemingway was so contemptuous of the "old Lie" that he tried to destroy the myth: "They wrote in the old days that it is sweet and fitting to die for..." He didn't believe it was a lie, or he wouldn't have written it.

War there is nothing sweet nor reason." Are you willing to agree, have a right to celebrate the "Year of Being Woman," because "every year so far has been the year of men." Even in the real world, it isn't true to say that white males always have their backsides in a tub of lather. The real truth is that in this generation of emerging minorities, men are taking turns with the women in being the underdogs.

Hemingway replaced one "old Lie" with another lie when he says, "You will die like a dog for no good reason." Has Hemingway replaced one "old Lie" with another lie when he writes, "You will die like a dog for no good reason." doesn't mean they have a right to abort babies taking up space in their wombs like a house guest, for those innocents didn't invite themselves to life's feast. Is it sexist of me to say this? I'm ready and willing to be a neutral corner, while the battles are being fought for the soul of mankind? Maybe there's a middle ground between the "old Lie" that says it's sweet and glorious to die for the Fatherland, and Hemingway's cynicism, "You will die like a dog for no good reason." Christianity tells us that the greatest love one can possess is the act of laying down his life for his friends. Aristotle Cemetery would be a national embarrassment if we conclude that all the great sacrifices of the war dead were made "for no good reason." We should be able to agree among ourselves that war is hell without replacing the "old Lie" with Hemingway's half-truth.

At Notre Dame, celebrating "Year of Women," we should be able to spend time dispelling the myth that men are superior without replacing it with another myth. Eliot's Beckett asked us that the last temptation is the greatest treason: "to do the right deed for the wrong reason." We shouldn't be tempted to think that Notre Dame owes the ladies the "Year of Women," because "every year so far has been the year of men." Even in the real world, it isn't true to say that white males always have their backsides in a tub of lather. The real truth is that in this generation of emerging minorities, men are taking turns with the women in being the underdogs.

How could it be otherwise? If the President decides that the politics of liberation mandate him to appoint a woman to the Supreme Court, Sandra Day O'Connor's stand-in will be nominated to fill the vacancy, even if Thomas Jefferson is waiting in the wings. Sandra Day O'Connor's stand-in may be an inspired choice, gifted in doing her job well, and everyone will applaud the President's choice. Jefferson may be de­corum est, and not a lie. It's my business to celebrate the "Year of Woman." I hope the time will not be taken up with pope-bashing. Women, I'm willing to agree, have a right to control their own bodies. That doesn't mean they have a right to abort babies taking up space in their wombs like a house guest, for those innocents didn't invite themselves to life's feast. Is it sexist of me to say this? I'm ready and willing to be a neutral corner, while the battles are being fought for the soul of mankind? Maybe there's a middle ground between the "old Lie" that says it's sweet and glorious to die for the Fatherland, and Hemingway's cynicism, "You will die like a dog for no good reason."

Red Sox in flux over Clemens' shoulder injury

BOSTON (AP) — Roger Clemens of the Boston Red Sox was reported "much more comfortable" Thursday as he underwent hospital tests for a painful right shoulder.

Dr. Arthur Pappas, the Red Sox team physician, said pain was gone and "swelling had subsided significantly."

"There are no encouraging signs and he's more comfortable, but that doesn't necessarily correlate with what's happening inside his shoulder," Pappas said.

Pappas, an orthopedic specialist, said that while there are "optimistic signs" he had to wait until the results of tests become known, probably on Friday.

Clemens, who has a 20-6 record and leads the major leagues with a 1.98 earned run average and 204 strikeouts, underwent extensive tests at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center.

Clemens took X-rays and a Magnetic Resonance Imaging procedure done.

Pappas virtually ruled out any rotator cuff trouble and said Clemens problem is "more likely" to two tendons in the front of the shoulder.

performance in the Buffaloes' 31-27 overtime loss Saturday couldn't have helped his chances. Hagan is an option quarterback in the mold of Tony Rice and, for that reason, he won't be able to impress the Heisman voters with his passing marks.

Junior quarterback Detmer of Brigham Young, USC sophomore Tod Martinich and Miami senior Craig Erickson are the best of a strong contingent of quarterback Monday as he waited until the results of tests become known, probably on Friday.

The 1990 Heisman field lacks a solid running back candidate of the Barry Sanders variety, but Marinovich and Chris Young, USC a Magnetic Resonance Imaging study should call psychiatric said that while there are virtually ruled out any shoulder trouble and said Clemens problem is "more likely" to two tendons in the front of the shoulder.

"I just came and did what the mandate of the university was - which was not to win national championships, not to finish first in the country, not to win the national championships, not to put the mandate of the university on the line," Holtz said. "I want to win this.

But Holtz did win.

After a 5-6 opening season, Holtz led the 1987 team to an 8-4 mark and an appearance in the Cotton Bowl. He followed that with a perfect 12-0 mark in 1988 and the national championships. Holtz never came and said "I want to win this.

Lou speaks out

On football: "Football is an extension of life. Everything that you're going to face in life in the years to come is involved in football. You have some goals, you have some direction. You've got to develop your skills, your talent, your abilities. You've got to work exceptionally hard. It's a game where you need other people. Your future or your success depends on others. You can be a great leader but if the people around you don't get you, if you can't deploy your talents, it's useless. And if you do all this, you will not get the recognition you think you deserve. You want them to give it to somebody else. You don't get the promotion to the first team."

On winning and losing: "You have heartaches and you have disappointments. Things don't go well and you lose. You don't necessarily have a lot of friends. You have to live with the pain for your own future. And when you win, you always have all kinds of people rejoicing and all of a sudden you find that that's not really what's important in life or in football."

On the volume of mail he receives: "We spend half of our time opening mail about speaking requests. I am not a speaker. I am a coach. I can't imagine going anywhere that the volume of mail I get would diminish. If I became a malarky, I wouldn't handle as much mail as I do now."

On pressure: "I do not feel pressure to win - none. There's never been anybody from the administration who has said that we have to win this game. I like to win and I'm sure they're disappointed when we don't win. Pressure is going to be a big exam when you haven't studied. I feel no pressure to run the program and our players reflect the standards that Notre Dame values and cherishes. We just do the best we can and try to take care of ourselves."

On criticism and accusations: "It seems that the more successful you have, the more situations like that. I hate it because you have blood and issues on your downtown. You have to look at yourself and say, 'Did I do the right thing?' If the answer is no, you just have to go. If you answer me, you have to ask what you could do to improve that."

On real pressure: "When you're 3 and the ball turned down your request to re-mortgage the team, you've got a crop in the field, you've got six hungry young men and your wife ran off with the drummer, you'll understand that's got to be a reliance to you, some determination, something to get you through tough times."

On a comparison: "I'm a part-time participant. I do not see a comparison. You do something to experience what it's like. You can do it once and experience it a thousand times, instead of paying on the suits watching TV, go do something."

Holtz's future at Notre Dame is in line for football tickets.

It was before the much-hyped tunnel incident at Notre Dame Stadium in 1988 and the national championship in 1988. Holtz led the 1987 team to an 8-4 mark and a second-place finish in the country, not the mandate of the university.

"People said we lacked discipline and that we were a bunch of thugs," Holtz said. "You look at it and you say, 'I can't change what they said.' You look at it and see if there is any truth to it. There was no truth that we had thugs on our team. Sometimes, they make bad people, but they're great people."

The tunnel incidents were just a small part of the off-field problems Holtz has faced in the past two years. There have been suspensions of key players, allegations of widespread steroid use among Irish players, accusations of recruiting violations and even charges of telephone misuse.

At times, it seems like Holtz wants to lash out at the critics. At other times, it seems like he realizes the problems come with the territory.

"We were 5-6 and we had no problems," Holtz said. "When we were 1-8, we had a few problems. In today's age, whatever can be done on Notre Dame, oh, I don't know. You just have to ask those people. I have no idea why things happen, how they happen."

"The only thing I can honestly say in my heart is that we've always had the right intentions and done the right things. I can honestly say that if Notre Dame fired me tomorrow or if Notre Dame fired me tomorrow or if somebody shot the toxic center at all times and in all ways I tried to uphold the mandate that was given to me when they hired me."

Early Thursday morning many members of the sopho­more class had waited all night in line for football ticketsth Holtz showed up with doughnuts and a pack of cigarettes at the crowd. "I'll be here when you gradua­ate whether you like it or not," he said.

Holtz's future at Notre Dame has been the subject of great debate since the Irish won the national championship in 1988. The National recently re­ported that Holtz had expressed interest in the vacant Atlanta Falcons coaching job, a position eventually filled by Jerry Glanville. The reports linking Holtz to other jobs are about as common as the pro­blems and criticism that seem to follow the Notre Dame team. "I cannot see myself coaching anywhere else but going on anywhere else," Holtz said.

Holtz's biggest admission that coaching has changed him over the years is that he is not the same coach who took over at William & Mary in 1969. "Coaching when you first start is the big games, the ex­citement, the TV shows, the book," he said. "You're younger and you think, 'It would be great to someday have some­body express my name in the same sentence with Bear Bryant and Woody Hayes.'"

"But then, it's really the asso­ciation with people. It's not be­ing their friend or their buddy, it's setting the standard and then showing them how they can reach it. Yet, if you don't have a firm commitment to being the best that you can be, you're doing them a disservice. If we're going to play football.
Coast Conference finals, defeating NCAA co-champion Virginia along the way. Junior forward Clint Carnell and junior George Dunn are the cornerstones of Duke.

Berticelli’s positive frame of mind has already worn off onto this Notre Dame team. “It’s a test,” said junior goalkeeper Peter Guili. “We played well (in an exhibition) against Indiana, and I think we can be confident we could play with Top 20 teams.”

Senior co-captain Paul LaVigne thinks the Irish have become focused. “If our intensity level is key,” he said. “What you do in practice is what you do in games, and we’ve had good intensity levels in practice.

The road doesn’t get any easier for the Irish after Friday’s game with the Blue Devils, as Notre Dame will face another strong ACC team in North Carolina State on Sunday.

The Wolfpack, ranked 17th in the nation by Soccer America, have two wins so far in the ’91 campaign, against the same Jacksonville and UNC-Greensboro teams beaten by Duke. N.C. State’s attack has proved dangerous this season, propelling the Pack to a combined 11-1 score in their two victories.

N.C. State was 8-8-1 last season, respectable considering the strength of the ACC, and returns eight starters off that team. Stars for the Wolfpack include All-ACC midfielder Dario Brose, as well as forward Henry Gutierrez and goal-keeper Peter Guili, who played in every single minute of competition last season.

The Irish aren’t looking past the Blue Devils at the Wolfpack, though.

“N.C. State is equal, if not tougher than Duke, but we want to take one game at a time,” Guili said. “We’ll think about State after Duke.” Berticelli is confident but cautious about his team’s chances. “We can be competitive,” he said. “We need to do that stuff.” His comment drew laughter from reporters.

In truth, Miami’s reputation has improved since Erickson became coach last year. He has cracked down on nonsense and has warned the Hurricanes to stay clear of disparaging remarks about opponents.

The combination that Miami players wore when they arrived at the Fiesta Bowl in 1986 are all but forgotten.

We’d be winning games and people would say, ‘They’re just a bunch of trash-talking whatever.’ We try to stay away from that stuff, and I think we’ve done a pretty good job of it.”

At BYU, the bad-boy image contrasts with school rules that prohibit students from using tobacco, alcohol or caffeine. Cougars coach LaVell Edwards said fights such as the one last Saturday happen once in a while. Billini said he and his teammates are football players, not angels.

Saint Mary’s volleyball

Saint Mary’s Sports Editor

The Saint Mary’s volleyball team made its debut Wednesday night, sweeping St. Xavier College in straight sets, 15-13, 15-11, 15-9.

“St. Xavier is traditionally a strong opponent. This was a good first win for us. It gets the season off to a positive start,” says coach Sue Medley.

Sophomore Karen Lorton led the Belles with 22 kills, 15 digs and eight blocks. Senior co-captain Katy Killiles was second in kills with ten, and led the team in digs, with 16 and service aces, with seven. Freshman Michelle Martins totaled up 37 assists for the Belles in addition to her four kills and 13 digs.

Despite their impressive victory Wednesday night, the Belles realize that they face a challenging season. Having been promoted from the ranks of the NAIA division to the NCAA division three, the strength of their schedule has been upgraded significantly.

“We realize we have a lot of work to do before we get to where we want to be. The strength of our schedule is very tough this year. We’re working with a lot of different line-ups because of injuries. So we’re not settled into any starting line-up,” Medley said.

However, the Belles have four returning starters. Killiles (167 kills, 48 assists, 34 service aces, 232 digs, 13 blocks, 96.6 service per-}

NOTHING HELD BACK

Coral Gables, Fla. (AP) — Defensive tackle Russell Maryland has coined a label worthy of boxing promoter Don King for Saturday’s game between football heavyweights Miami and Brigham Young.

“Nasty from the East meets Nasty from the West,” Miami’s Maryland said with a chuckle.

The top-ranked Hurricanes travel to Utah for their season opener bearing a tradition of verbal intimidation — on-the-field taunting and off-the-field boasting.

Brigham Young, though it is a Mormon school, has been accused in recent years of playing dirty.

“They’re religious and everything,” Maryland said. “But I guess they’re human, too. They’re just like us in a sense.”

The 16th-ranked Cougars opener last Saturday at Texas-El Paso did nothing to improve their image. A 30-10 victory was marred by a bench-clearing brawl in the third quarter and the ejection of star halfback Matt Belling.

“I don’t expect that to happen with us,” Miami coach Dennis Erickson said, “because we need to do that stuff.” His comment drew laughter from reporters.

In truth, Miami’s reputation has improved since Erickson became coach last year. He has cracked down on nonsense and has warned the Hurricanes to stay clear of disparaging remarks about opponents.

The combat fatigues that Maryland players wore when they arrived at the Fiesta Bowl in 1986 are all but forgotten.

“It’s taken a lot of kind of clear the image that we had,” senior tackle Mike Sullivan said. “It’s something that a lot of people got tired of here. We’d be winning games and people would say, ‘They’re just a bunch of trash-talking whatever.’ We try to stay away from that stuff, and I think we’ve done a pretty good job of it.”

Andre Agassi put on a show of flashy and psyched to the max, blast-away tennis to set up a Thursday night and gave fur­

Grand Slam, chewed up Soviet Becker in the nals. It was never more so than at the end of the first set with and throughout the second. Agassi took a 4-2 lead in the first set with a forehand deep in the corner on game point that whizzed by Cherkasov as if it were a rocket. Agassi took particcular pleasure in that shot, gazing at it in admiration before striking backhand winner at baseline.

As Agassi then broke Cherkasov with an assault that had the Soviet sprinting frenetically from side to side, desperately chasing balls and finally hitting them wide or into the net, Agassi finished the set with a service winner to take the game at love.

It was more of the same in the second set and Agassi kept his power strokes. I think the best in the world," said Cherkasov, a 20-year-old born on the Fourth of July.

Slosar, teamwork and mentally focusing on the game.

Everybody has the talent (in college)," said Slosar. "You really have to focus on the mental part of the game. It's not high school where you can rely on talent alone. Being smart and using your mind is what put you above the rest."

Jennifer Slosar certainly has what it takes to become the best. She won four letters in volleyball and was a second-team all-state selection her senior year at Mercy High School in Birmingham, Michigan. She also excelled in basketball and golf, earning three and four lei­ res, respectively.

"I just have a love for athletic­sand Slosar. I've played basketball all my life. Volleyball still a new sport to me and I'm still learning. It's something different. It's a lot of fun, but a lot of work, too. It's a lot different from basketball, especially the conditioning."

Jennifer's talent certainly runs in the family. Her father John Slosar played basketball at John Carroll University.

"My Dad's been my biggest inspiration," Slosar said. "He doesn't really know volleyball, but he's always been my mental couch. He really understands." Slosar basically had her pick of the crop coming out of high school. She had scholarship offers for basketball but none of the schools appealed to her. Her decision came down to the University of Michigan (which also offered her a golf scholarship) and Notre Dame.

"Michigan had a really good engineering program too, but nothing beats the tradition of Notre Dame. The community spirit is great here. My recruiting visit told me where I wanted to be."

All yes, yet another loss for Michigan at the hands of the Irish.

Slosar is making a good adjustment to the college game. "The game moves much quicker at this level. Teams like Stanford and Texas are strong teams. It's boom, boom, boom. The play West out is much quicker than in the Midwest. I'm still getting used to it, but it doesn't come all at once."

Jennifer is making tremendous progress," said Lambert. "She's really coming into her own. Her defense is improved and her passing is better. She's starting to hit like we expected her to hit. When she's on like she was against Washington State (18 kills), we can just get the sideline and keep giving her the ball to score."

Again, like most varsity athletes on this campus, Jennifer is never satisfied.

"There's not one part of my game I don't need to work on. It's mostly a matter of being consistent. I love to hit, but even that needs work."

Still, this looks like it could be the year for Jennifer Slosar. She played 22 games as a freshman and 62 as a sophomore. She was second on the team last year with a 2.69 kill average (137 total kills). She had some of her best games against teams in the Top 25. She had 16 kills and four service aces against Illinois (ranked seventh this year), as well as 16 kills against Kentucky and 15 against Texas-Arlington.

"I'm really excited about this year," Slosar said. "We have a tough schedule, but in order to be the best you have to play the best. Everyone on the team feels that way."

Unfortunately, Slosar won't be in action for the Irish this weekend. She has been plagued by shin splints in the last few years, but after an unusual amount of pain, a bone scan yesterday revealed a stress fracture in her right ankle.

"That's not what she needed right now" Lambert said. "We don't know when she'll be back."

Slosar on the other hand, has direct ideas.

"I'm being fitted for a brace. I won't play this weekend but I'm looking to play in the Big Four Tournament (Sept. 14-15)."

Women's soccer squad flies south for weekend

By DAVE DIETEMAN

The Notre Dame women's soccer team takes to the skies this weekend as it flies south for matchups against Top 20 opponents Duke and UNC-Greensboro.

The Irish off for sunny North Carolina at 8 a.m. Friday morning in order that they may have ample time to gear up for a Saturday showdown with Duke at 1 p.m. and a Sunday meeting with Greensboro at 1 p.m.

Could this simple plan fly down, win, fly home? Not quite. The Irish are in for two hard-fought games this weekend.

Duke, which was ranked 20th in Division I in the most recent NCAA poll, recently trounced fifth-ranked William and Mary (at William and Mary), raising Duke's record on the young season to 0-0. In their first game, the Blue Devils handedly dispatched Mercer 6-0 at Duke.

"Duke is scary," noted Irish head coach Chris Petrucelli. "They have lots of firepower up front, and they are solid at every position. Mary Pat Rosenthal, the daughter of Notre Dame Athletic Director Dick Rosenthal, is a tough fullback for Duke. We definitely have to be aware of her when we're taking corner kicks.

"But of course, she is only one of many talented players. It's a difficult situation to go to their place, both because they are playing well now and we have a young team. Similarly, UNC-Greensboro, Petrucelli's alma mater, has been in the Top 20 of Division II each of the past three years.

"Greensboro is a young and talented program," explained Petrucelli. "They are at a point where they have lots of freshmen playing, while we have lots of seniors playing. Again, they will be difficult to beat. The hardest part is that we have to play them the day after we play Duke."

Yet the Irish, who tied Wisconsin 1-1 at Wisconsin (an easy feat) in an exhibition game, are 1-0 on the regular season after a 5-1 victory over Northeast Missouri State last weekend at Alumni Field. In short, Notre Dame is ready to play.

"We are excited about the opportunity to play two of the better teams in the country," continued coach Petrucelli. "We're really looking forward to this trip."

"One thing you must know, though, and it is very important — our attitude is not just that we are making a trip. We are going down there to win some games. We are planning on winning two games. We are not going down there to get beaten."

"I'm also looking forward to returning to Greensboro," added Petrucelli. "I won two games there last year."

The Fighting Irish, who scored two goals in Notre Dame's season-opener, are a junior midfielder, but is a sophomore for purposes of eligibility.

"As a team, the Irish are nursing several injuries right now. Senior forward Mimi Saha suffered a muscle pull against Northeast Missouri, while junior sweeper Molly Lenmon is day-to-day status with a pulled muscle. Jennifer Kwiatkowski, a freshman sweeper, is slightly backed-up by Molly Lenmon, has tendinitis of the knee, a problem aggravated by extended running. Saha, whose playing status is doubtful for Saturday and possible for Sunday, will be replaced by freshman Andrea Sobajian.

"The injuries are starting to stick up for us," lamented Notre Dame coach Petrucelli. "We've got several players out with minor injuries. Also, having Mimi injured creates a situation where we will be young in our experience as well as our age. Now, we have almost no experience. This is a tough situation for the other players. But I certainly think that we have people who can fill in and that they are all capable of playing. Still, we can't afford to have too many injuries."

"As far as the season is concerned, we need to be encouraged with the way we are playing now. Things are starting to come together, especially where the attack is concerned. Our defense is solid the whole way, but our defense does not have as much time to develop as an attack. These are the type of games you must play to develop national competitiveness."

"Playing ranked."

Thus, despite the injuries, youth and inexperience, the Irish remain confident as their showdown with destiny draws near.

Holtz finds happiness at ND
Irish coach enjoys having 'the worst job in the country'

By GREG GUFFEY
Sports Editor

A few days after the Sports illustrated article appeared accusing Notre Dame of widespread steroid use in its football program head coach Lou Holtz received a phone call from one of his fraternity brothers at Kent State.

"He said 'You've got the worst job in the country,'" Holtz said. "He said 'you're in the worst profession you could be in.' We were right in college. You sure aren't very smart."'

"Now I don't know whether he was trying to be funny or what. One thing was obvious - he was glad he had his job and I had mine. But I told him, I'm in the greatest profession in the world and I'm at the greatest place in the world."'

As he enters his fifth season at Notre Dame, one gets the impression Holtz has ultimately found happiness in the most pressure-filled position in the nation.

While dealing with steroids, suspensions and pre-game fights, Holtz has managed a 37-11 record in four seasons at Notre Dame - much of that concern evaporating with the recent exodus of 11 of 16 starters from a team that was too tough."'

"We could have won them all. We just don't tell people who went through the Battle of the Bulge that it was too tough."'

Even though he stuck with it, Holtz was never a great athlete. He was good enough to earn a tryout as a fullback, but he was never a truly great athlete. He played two seasons at Kent State and was injured his junior year.

"My mom always prays that God would make me a good athlete," Holtz said. "He never did. I wanted to be involved in the big games, the excitement. Not always, though. Sometimes I need to be a little more cautious.

"I never really came here with any big expectations," Holtz said. "You're in the greatest profession in the country and I'm at the greatest place in the world."

Volleyball to host Invitational

The women's volleyball team hopes this weekend is as good as last weekend was bad. After dropping their first three matches of the year, the Irish host the Notre Dame Invitational at the Joyce ACC Friday and Saturday.

Notre Dame takes on Evansville at 8 p.m. on Friday. Saturday it's back to the court early with a 10 a.m. match against Saint Louis and then a 3 p.m. match with the Bronces of Western Michigan University.

"I have no idea what to expect from these teams," said head coach Art Lambert. "We played Western Michigan last year, but they lost everybody and they have a very young team that is very good."

"Hopefully playing better at the end has given us some momentum," Lambert said, "but the level of competition will be far higher than against Dayton."'

"We practiced really well this week," agreed junior outside hitter Jennifer Slosar, one of last weekend's bright spots who was sidelined this weekend by a stress fracture in her right ankle.

"My mom was pretty upset after last weekend. We know those teams were very beatable. We could have won them all. We can really be an excellent team this year. It's just that so far the work in practice and the game has not translated into the numbers we expected.

"We can make the NCAAAs if we pull together. Everybody has to work all the time. We have to focus and put our minds to it.

"There are two things that are firm beliefs of Jennifer and myself. One is, if we pull together, we can make the NCAAAs. And two, if we pull together, we can win the conference and be national champions."

Irish to play two in Carolina

By RICH KURZ

New head soccer coach Mike Berticelli is about to experience two more firsts at Notre Dame - his first regular-season road trip and his first match with a Top 20 opponent as the coach of ND. The Irish travel to Durham, N.C., to participate in the Metropolitan Life Classic, where they will face 10th-ranked Duke tonight, and 17th-ranked N.C. State on Sunday.

Notre Dame soccer fans had some cause for concern throughout much of last Saturday's opener versus Dayton, as the Irish were something less than sharp. Much of that concern evaporated after a Notre Dame scoring blitz that ultimately gave them a 5-1 overtime victory. At least it did in the mind of Coach Berticelli.

"Hopefully playing better at the end has given us some momentum," Berticelli said, "but the level of competition will be far higher than against Dayton."

Tonight the Irish will face a team that has already notched two wins against quality opponents, as Duke is only the latest on a schedule that includes Jacksonville and the University of North Carolina - Chapel Hill earlier this season.

Ismail leading candidate for Heisman

By FRANK PASTOR
Associate Sports Editor

There used to be an unwritten rule in college football that the Notre Dame Heisman Trophy candidate would not be awarded underclassmen.

But with the recent exodus of juniors into the NFL, the senior Heisman Trophy candidate is now quickly becoming an endangered species.

This year is no exception as six underclassmen, including two quarterbacks, are considered strong favorites to win college football's most prestigious individual honor. It is conceivable that all five invitations to the Heisman presentation in New York's plush Downtown Athletic Club could go to underclassmen.

Leading the pack is Notre Dame's queen Ismail, widely considered the most exciting player in the country. Ismail returns to coaching the Irish as he coaches the team, it's just that so far our expectations are not to kick the ball anywhere near him.

Texas A&M's explosive senior running back, Darren Lewis, may be Ismail's most worthy rival for the award. Lewis ranked for 969 yards and 31 touchdowns last season despite struggling through an early-season slump. A return to the 1988 form, in which he gained 1,692 yards and 23 touchdowns in last year's Michigan game, have been placed under strict orders not to kick the ball anywhere near him.

Ismail's versatility knows no bounds as he has utilized in much the same way as former Irish standout and Heisman Trophy winner Tim Brown, seeing action at fullback, running back, and kickoff and punt returner.

Not one to waste time, Ismail began gathering admirers with his special teams play during his freshman campaign. Notre Dame's 1988 National Championship season was awarded the NCAA statistical title for kickoff returns despite failing two returns short of the number needed to qualify. The NCAA awarded him the title because his 36.1-yard average was still higher than the average in the country even if returns of zero yards were averaged into his total.

Now a junior, Ismail returns as a consensus All-American and The Sporting News's number-one preseason candidate for the Heisman. However, the one factor standing between Ismail and the Heisman Trophy is ironically, the football.

Nothing impresses the Heisman voters more than statistics, so Notre Dame must throw the ball more often in Ismail's direction if he is to attain the numbers expected of the most outstanding players in college football. Plus, opposing kickers, such as Ismail's two touchdown returns in last year's Michigan game, have been placed under strict orders not to kick the ball anywhere near him.

Leading the pack is Notre Dame's Queen Ismail, widely considered the most exciting player in the country. Ismail returns to coaching the Irish as he coaches the team, it's just that so far our expectations are not to kick the ball anywhere near him.
