Germany's communist leaders, who have previously opposed unification, expressed support for the event. The ceremony was attended by numerous dignitaries and was watched by the world as an important step towards German reunification.

The report recommends building of social complex

By BETSY PUNISALAN

Student Government is proposing the construction of a social complex within walking distance from campus in its Board of Trustees Report, which will be presented to the Board this Thursday.

The report states that the proposed complex would provide:

- A social space within walking distance of campus which would foster spontaneous, healthy social interaction.
- A place where student clubs, class governments, and residence halls could program informal events to enhance social life on campus.
- "A place to go" which would give students the feeling of belongingness as well as the benefit of close proximity and safety.

Senator approves Souter for Supreme Court appointment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted 90-9 Tuesday to confirm the nomination of Judge David Souter to the Supreme Court. The only dissenting vote came from liberals who fear he will oppose abortion rights.

The New Hampshire jurist was approved less than 2 1/2 months after he was tapped as President Bush's first nominee to the high court. It was too late put him on the court for the start of its session this week, but Souter, age 51, will probably participate in its rulings well into the next century.

The Supreme Court announced that Souter would be sworn in as the first item of business next Tuesday morning, before the court begins the second week of its session.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Martin Fitzwater said: "We're obviously very pleased that Congress confirmed this nomination. We think Judge Souter will be an outstanding justice for many years to come."

Fitzwater said Bush hoped to attend Souter's swearing-in. Souter watched the proceedings from a friend's law office in Concord, N.H.

"It's just exactly the kind of person with a broad background that we need on the Supreme Court," Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said as debate on the nomination began. "I think he showed that he is a person of fairness. He's willing to listen. He's a person of independence."

Senate Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph Biden, D-Del., said he supported Souter, but warned Bush that the path of the next nominee might not be so smooth if the president moves further to the right.

A minister who complained about simulated oral sex in an art festival performance said Wednesday he had met with the puppeteer and festival officials and was satisfied future shows won't be open to children. In a joint appearance with puppeteer Jon Ludwig and officials of Arts Festival of Atlanta, the Rev. John Norton said he acted hastily in contacting news organizations to complain about the Sept. 21 performance of "Zeitgeist," a show for adults that included puppets simulating oral sex. "My complaint was not with the performance itself, but with unaccompanied children having access to a performance with adult material," said the Methodist minister from Marietta, Ga.

Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi said Tuesday he turned down a meeting with Nelson Mandela because it would not stop brutal faction fighting that has killed hundreds of blacks. Mandela's African National Congress invited the conservative Buthelezi, chief of the Inkatha movement, and other leaders of black tribes to homelands to a meeting Friday to discuss violence that broke out Aug. 12 in black townships around Johannesburg.

Seattle is the best place in the nation to locate a business,elloowing out Atlanta for the top spot in an annual survey of corporate executives. About one-third of the 400 executives polled ranked Seattle as "excellent," citing quality of life for employees and the likelihood that economic conditions will improve during the next year. Seattle finished second last year behind Atlanta in the survey by the commercial real estate firm Cushman & Wakefield. Atlanta dropped to sixth this year.

Vice President Dan Quayle will be honored for his public service Oct. 26 by his alma mater, DePauw University, school officials said Tuesday. Quayle will receive the John and Sally McNaughton Memorial Award for Distinguished Public Service. He will deliver a convocation address to paper students and faculty during the university's alumni weekend. "At DePauw, we have a history and tradition of people graduating and going into public service," DePauw President Robert Bottoms said.

Whitewater Laboratories, which employs 700 in the Elkhart area, has announced it will shut down at the end of next year. The owner of the drug and cosmetic manufacturer, American Home Products, said Monday that excess capacity was causing the closure. Company officials said steps will be taken immediately to gradually phase out operations.

1990 Crop Walk will be held Saturday at 2:00 pm at St. Joseph High School. Students can sign up with dorm representatives or at the Center for Social Concerns. Money raised will go to Cathedral School in South Bend and around the world. All walkers are invited to attend the 11:45 am Mass at Sacred Heart Church before the walk.

The Hall Presidents Council discussed the National Coming Out Day for gays and lesbians Tuesday in response to the Student Senate resolution passed Monday concerning the event.

The HPC debated over how it should deal with the issue of the day, which will involve a variety of events aimed at increasing the awareness of the discrimination of gays and lesbians. The group was divided over whether the HPC should support or oppose the senate resolution, draw up a resolution of its own, or not address the issue.

The senate passed the resolution acknowledging October 11, 1990 as National Coming Out Day "in order to further the awareness of the discrimination, harassment, and violence suffered by gay and lesbian persons," read the document. Several members of the HPC pointed out that the resolution was too vague and too close to support of gay and lesbian activities and the council should not support the resolution but present another that represents the feelings of the Hall Presidents.

Others said that the resolution should be supported since it does not actually support gay and lesbian activities, but only the event and the end of the discrimination of gays and lesbians.

Another member pointed out that the event should not be addressed because it could lead to an increase in discrimination rather than a decrease.

The group plans to deal with the issue and with the senate resolution at a later meeting.

In other HPC news:

• Mike Morland announced that the Student Government Legal Department has developed complaint forms which allow students to mail complaints directly to the student government. The complaint forms should be available to students through hall rectors, SAS, and hall presidents this week.

• Joe Caissidy, Director of Student Activities, announced that the Notre Dame-Miami football game T-shirt will be available to students next week through dorm representatives. The shirt costs $6 for short sleeves and $8 for the long-sleeve version; all the proceeds from the sale of the shirt will benefit Zhengde Wang, an ND student critically injured in a hit-and-run incident last year.

• The HPC will once again sponsor the Quarter Mile fund raiser for the United Way, to be held on Friday outside the Notre Dame Bookstore. The event will allow people to tape change to a quarter-mile-long strip of tape.

• Ambassador Lorent Ruppe will speak as part of the Student Government lecture series tonight at 8 p.m. in Theodore's Ruppe. U.S. Ambassador to Norway and former Director of the Peace Corps, will discuss "From the Peace Corps to Norway to Notre Dame."

ND hosts conference about alumni community service

By MIKE SCARSELLA

Executives from twenty college and university alumni associations met from September 30 to October 2 at Notre Dame to discuss ways to increase community service involvement through their organizations.

Representatives from Princeton, Dartmouth, Duke, UCLA, and the Universities of Iowa and Indiana discussed the need for volunteer service as an integral part of alumni activity at the James Andrews Conference on Community Service last weekend.

Topics of the discussion included university involvement in community service projects and ways for alumni associations to encourage public service.

"We were working from the standpoint of trying to expose unknown concepts of community service to different universities of different sizes and geographic locations," according to Pete Pranica, assistant director of Alumni Clubs.

Wendy Hopkins, a representative from William's College, agreed, saying, "Size is irrelevant. A willing administration and a hardworking alumni association are needed to obtain one to one contact with the alumni."

A video depicting the community service performed by various Notre Dame clubs was presented at the conference. Examples of service projects accomplished through alumni clubs at the University include the improvements made to low income neighborhoods during Christmas in April, and the "Fresh Start" program, which offers free reconstructive surgery for people who normally wouldn't be able to afford it.

The video was used in conjunction with group discussions to provide a basis on which the representatives could build their own service programs. Pranica and Kate Sullivan, coordinator for the Notre Dame Service Program, led the discussions.

University President Father Edward Malloy was among those addressing the conference. John Kobara, executive director of UCLA's alumni association, and Thomas Morris, associate professor of philosophy at Notre Dame, gave a keynote presentation titled "Why Service? And More Importantly, Why Alumni?"

In addition to the speeches and discussions, the participants toured impoverished areas of South Bend to examine a variety of opportunities for community service.

VATICAN synod officials rule out discussion of celibacy

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The moderator at the worldwide synod of bishops said Tuesday there should be no debate on rules requiring priests to be celibate and forbidding the ordination of women.

The synod, an advisory body attended by more than 200 bishops, was called by Pope John Paul II to discuss the formation of Roman Catholic priests.

The monthlong assembly, which opened Sunday with a Mass in St. Peter's Basilica, began its official working sessions Tuesday.

The pope has made it clear he has no intention of changing the church position mandating priestly celibacy and an all-male priesthood. Brazilian Cardinal Lucas Moreira Neves, the synod moderator appointed by the pope, emphasized that these issues would not be up for debate at the meeting.

"Time is not sufficient to deal with certain questions, such as celibacy of priests, women priests, priesthood for married men," he told the assembly.

"These issues have already been dealt with in a definite way in other forums."

Some bishops, however, are expected to raise the question of how they can-persuade more men to become priests without abandoning the celibacy rule.

One of the reasons cited for the decline in number of priests is the requirement that they be celibate and forsake a possible marriage.

According to Miscamble, he attempted to restore to the Aborigines parts of the country that had been taken from them.

While progress has been made, Miscamble said that there are "no easy answers." He believes that it is important to recognize the impact of European colonization because "we will not succeed unless we simply recognize and begin to change the Aborigines today for their circumstances." He added that a greater effort must be made to prepare candidates for the priesthood.

In his speech, Moreira Neves, who is archbishop of Sao Salvador, Bolivia, said the group had sent letters to all the bishops' conferences represented at the synod to press for changes allowing ordination of women and married men.

Peeters said his federation is represented in 26 countries. Of the 400,000 priests in the world, about 90,000 are married, he said. The highest number is in the United States, with 17,000, followed by France with 10,000, Peeters said.

As part of the University's Multicultural Festival, Father Wilson Miscamble, professor of history and native Australian, spoke about his homeland with a particular focus on what he called "Australia's original settlers, the Aborigines."

While Australia is most often associated with "Crocodile Dundee, beer drinking, great beaches and weird animals," Father Miscamble's presentation dealt with the past history and present plight of the Aboriginal people of Australia.

The history of Australia, as it has been recorded in most textbooks, begins with its discovery in 1770 by Captain Cook who claimed the east coast of Australia for George III. But this was merely "the history of the dominant race; written for them, by them," Miscamble said.

According to Miscamble, only in recent years has an attempt been made to look at the Aborigines' own history spans 30,000 years before when the first members of the group arrived presumably from Asia.

By 1788, when the first British settlement arrived, there were an estimated 300,000 to 600,000 Aborigines scattered sparsely throughout the country.

Existing in small bands of largely extended families, Miscamble said, each of the individual groups established its own unique form of art and dance. "Their culture embodied the experience of thousands of years. They knew what worked in Australia."

According to Miscamble, the strong belief in their land as a living entity is common to all Aborigines. They put their natural world first and lived in sync with nature.

Miscamble quoted Pat Donson, the first Aborigine to be ordained a Catholic priest who, in describing the natural world, stated that, "It is something, and yet it is not a thing. It belongs to me; I belong to the land. I rest in it. I come from there."

Ironically, Miscamble said, it was these same beliefs in the land as a provider of physical needs and spiritual sustenance that placed the Aborigines at direct odds with the European settlers who believed in mastering the environment and sought to enclose and own the land.

After 1788, many if not all the Aborigines were, Miscamble said "dispossessed" from the land. Miscamble explained that the Aborigines lacked the cohesion and force to fight back against the advances of the British. Consequently, as two incompatible cultures came together in conflict, one was subdued and virtually destroyed.

Caught in what Miscamble called a vicious circle, the Aborigines were "ridiculed by whites; those that did seek to help were unable to reconnect the Aborigines with their past."

According to Miscamble, of particular significance to the Aborigines and their acquisition of rights and autonomy were the efforts of Edward Gough Whitlam, who later became prime minister in 1972. Whitlam was "as committed in the area of Aborigine land rights as a white politician could be" at the time. Most importantly, Miscamble said, he attempted to restore to the Aborigines the land that had been taken from them.

Former CEO of Girl Scouts talks to ND/SMC students

By BECKY RITZERT

Frances Hesselbein, using her experiences as the former CEO of the Girl Scouts of America, offered business students insights into becoming successful managers in today's changing world.

In a lecture titled "Managing in Today's Changing World," Hesselbein stressed the importance of being flexible as well as being goal-oriented as a manager of today.

"It is necessary to clarify your mission" as a manager, she said. Hesselbein said that managers must ask themselves questions to define what their business is, who their customers are, and what the customers consider valuable.

Hesselbein, speaking in the Hesburgh Auditorium, also emphasized that it is just as important to establish a mission when managing a not-for-profit organization such as the Girl Scouts. "The job market in the not-for-profit world is losing the image of being softer and lower paid," said Hesselbein.

She explained that since the non-profit sector is currently growing faster than both the private and public sectors, students should consider all three sectors when choosing their managing careers.

According to Hesselbein, change should always be viewed positively. She said that managers must "constant set new standards" despite the fact that it is often difficult to eliminate the "systematic tasks of old."

"The role of ethics in today's world of management. She said that managers need much help in understanding ethics, which should not be separated into categories such as business ethics or personal ethics. "It is an issue which is not debatable," she said.

In addition to her previously mentioned position, Hesselbein also serves as the chairman of the Board of Governors of the Josephson Institute for the Advancement of Ethics; she is the only female member of President Bush's Points of Light Initiative Foundation, and is the current president of the Peter F. Drucker Foundation for Non-profit Management.

The role of a manager is one thing that managers must ask themselves when managing a not-for-profit organization. "A manager must also consider the systematic tasks of old."

Hesselbein briefly addressed the rapid demographic change taking place, especially in the "multi-ethnic racial community, not as a threat, but as an opportunity."

Hesselbein also addressed methods which a manager may use when dealing with his or her constituents. "Don't push from the rear. Lead from the front," she instructed.

The role of a manager is one of a leader, she said, so the duties of a manager must be transformed "from managing things to leading people."

She again stressed the significance of people by saying, "You cannot put people in little boxes on a structure chart. I prefer concentric circles." Hesselbein said that viewing her organization while managing the Girl Scouts as those "concentric circles" allowed the staffs to be flexible as well as creative.

Dartmouth Review chief resigns over Hitler quote

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — The president of The Dartmouth Review resigned Tuesday after the conservative off-campus weekly drew fire for quoting Hitler in its masthead on a Jewish holiday.

"I will not be a part of this newspaper anymore — I am not an anti-Semite," said C. Tyler White, who is also a student at Dartmouth College. The newspaper is not funded by the college.

Student officials of the newspaper, which has previously been described as sexist, racist and homophobic, said the quote was put in by an unknown staffer without the authorization or knowledge of editors, one called it "subversive.

But White said the newspaper's official response failed to express the staff's regret or to assume responsibility for letting the quote be printed.

"The editor-in-chief has failed in his job, and now we all must wear the albatross of anti-Semitism because he won't take responsibility for the issue's contents," White said in a statement.

He is the third of the weekly's 24 members to resign because of the incident.

The edition distributed Saturday on Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement and Judaism's most solemn day, carried a quotation from Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf."

The passage inserted without attribution in The Review's masthead said:

"Therefore, I believe today that I am acting in the sense of the Almighty Creator. By warding off the Jews, I am fighting for the Lord's work."

Cheers and congratulations greeted the resignations at the Student Assembly office, where students stacked petitions bearing more than 2,000 signatures and planned a protest rally Thursday.

U.S. servicemen take down the U.S. flag in West Berlin, yesterday. The Ceremony was attended by the three western nations, marking the end of sovereignty and the start of unification.
CANTON, China (AP) - A hijacked Chinese jetliner careened into an airport, killing at least 127 people and seriously injuring 46 others, officials said. "The plane split the jets into pieces," said a Chinese man who witnessed the crash. "It was a horrible explosion. The whole sky went red and the air was a horrible explosion. The who witnessed the crash.

Western diplomats and witnesses provided conflicting accounts of the disaster and the resulting casualties. A Western survivor said there was a struggle in the cockpit of the hijacked Boeing 737 as it landed at Baiyun International Airport, causing the plane to careen into an empty Boeing 707 and a Boeing 757 full of passengers bound for Shanghai.

Other unconfirmed reports said two hijackers, Chinese men who wanted to force the plane to Hong Kong or Taiwan, exploded a bomb on the jet. A CAAC spokesman, Wang Chunfu, said only one Chinese man was responsible for the hijacking.

Wang told a news conference 127 people died in the crash and 46 people were seriously injured. He said 100 people, including the injured, survived.

Among those killed, he said, were foreigners and Chinese from Hong Kong, Macao and Taiwan. He declined to release further details.

Premier Li Peng went to the crash site near China's main southeast city and visited survivors at hospitals.

The accident was the worst publicly acknowledged air disaster in China. Previously, in 1982, a CAAC Trident crashed in the southern city of Guilin, killing 112 people. China rarely disclosed air disasters before the 1980s.

Although it was a domestic flight from Ziamen to Canton, at least two Americans were on the hijacked plane, U.S. Embassy spokesman Sheridan said. Erin Lynne Thomas of Oklahoma City, Okla., was hospitalized in good condition with a broken limb, he said. She reported a second American woman had been sitting next to her, but Bell said the second woman was missing.

An airport security officer, who only identified himself as Chen, said the pilot tricked the hijackers into believing they were leaving China, but the hijackers later realized it was the jet approached Canton.

The hijackers argued with the pilot, Chen said, the plane circled the airport for about 40 minutes, sideswiping the empty plane before hitting the 757.

"The plane was strapped in half like a match stick," said a Westerner who saw the crash scene. "All that was left of the fuselage was charred metal. It looked like a crematorium."

The conflicting reports on the number of people killed or injured could not be reconciled immediately.

Western diplomats said 104 people, including 10 crew members, were aboard the hijacked plane. Diplomats said they learned of only nine survivors, including an American woman.

At least 150 people were aboard the Boeing 757, the airport security official said. He said he believed "a large number" of people were also killed aboard that flight.

Tomohide Yamamoto, a businessman from Japan, said he was sitting in the 12th row of the Boeing 757.

"I think those who were sitting behind the 14th row couldn't have escaped from the plane," he told Japanese television. "Only those who were sitting in the front were rescued. After I got out of the plane, no one came out."

"I want to express the hope that the administration will not learn the wrong lesson" from the lopsided Senate vote on Souter, Biden said. A more doctrinaire conservative "could easily fall outside the sphere of acceptability," he said.

The court's spokeswoman, Torie House, said Chief Justice William Rehnquist would administer the oath of office in private at 9 a.m., and would administer the oath in a public ceremony in the court's ornate courtroom 15 minutes later.

The first major case in which he will participate will be a sex bias dispute that will be argued before the justices Wednesday, Oct. 10. At issue is whether employees may exclude women of child-bearing age — perhaps 20 million — from some hazardous jobs.

Bush calls for support for 'last best chance' federal budget plan with televised speech

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush asked Americans Tuesday night to support a $500 billion package of tax increases and spending cuts that demands sacrifices from all. "Everyone who can should contribute something," the president said.

Claiming rare unity with leaders of the Democratic-controlled Congress, Bush said in a 10-minute televised speech from the Oval Office that the package was written in "eight months of blood, sweat and tears — fears of the economic chaos that would follow if we fail to reduce the deficit."

"It is the best agreement that can be legislated now," Bush said of the compromise. "This deficit reduction agreement is tough, and so are the times."

Bush's address from the Oval Office was nationally televised, but his message was primarily aimed 16 blocks away: at Congress, where an initial vote on the plan may be held as early as Thursday.

Although the package generally has support among Democrats, lawmakers from Bush's own party — particularly in the House — have balked at its tax provisions. Bush himself had to abandon his "no new taxes" pledge in the face of the growing deficit. "I'm not, and I know you're not, a fan of tax increases," Bush said. "But if there have to be tax measures, they should allow the economy to grow, they should not turn us back to higher income tax rates and they should be fair.

"Everyone who can should contribute something. And no one should have to contribute beyond their fair share."

Bush pointed out that the agreement had been hammered out by a bipartisan group. "The Democratic and Republican leadership tonight all speak with one voice," he said, and he urged people to tell their congressmen they support the package.

There must be some way to avoid doing the same thing for the next forty years.

Life's been pretty good so far. You've kept moving— taken all the right steps along the way for the most part. And now you're ready for the biggest step.

The question is: which job? And will it have the potential to interest you for a whole career?

You've probably heard the story of the job applicant who said he was a shoe salesman with fifteen years experience. But there some way to keep challenging yourself in new and different areas?

Andersen Consulting offers you the opportunity to work on a variety of projects—with clients in a wide range of industries. We are the leader in helping organizations apply information technology to their business advantage. Every hour of every business day, we implement a solution to help one of our more than 5,000 clients worldwide.

What makes that possible is the quality of our people. And the quality of our training. We're known for both.

Because business and technology are ever-changing, we see training as a continuing process. And our $23-million Center for Professional Education in St. Charles, Illinois, is just one measure of our commitment. We train you for a career—not just a job.

Does the idea of forty years of knowing exactly what you'll be doing each week scare you? Then don't settle for that. Demand challenge and variety. Come talk to us and find out more about a career with Andersen Consulting.

Baker believes sentiment for action against Iraq growing

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretary of State James Baker said Tuesday night he found growing sentiment among the nations of the world for military action against Iraq to force a withdrawal from Kuwait.

"There is more of a willingness to consider some sort of an approach like that if it became necessary at an appropriate time," Baker said at a news conference.

"It seems there is a greater willingness to consider something like this than one would have expected a week ago coming into these U.N. meetings," he said after a week's consultations in New York with counterparts from other nations and other diplomats attending United Nations sessions.

But he stressed sentiments could change quickly, as in a day.

And he emphasized the Bush administration preferred diplomatic and political solutions to Iraq's annexation of Kuwait and seizure of the Persian Gulf emirate's oil fields.

Baker spoke at the conclusion of a two-day meeting of 35 foreign ministers to prepare for a European Security Conference summit meeting in Paris Nov. 19-21.

Asked if the United States had begun to draft a resolution in which the U.N. Security Council would authorize military force against Iraq, as reported Sunday by The Associated Press and Newsweek magazine, Baker replied:

"There has been no decision taken at the top levels of this government with respect to going forward now with respect to a particular resolution." However, Baker said, "it would not be prudent of us not to be giving some thought to what the various options are and how they would be implemented."

U.S. officials told the AP on Tuesday the "back of the envelope" drafting had begun by the United States, the Soviet Union and other governments.

The foreign ministers adopted a resolution condemning Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. The statement, proposed by the United States, called for an immediate and unconditional withdrawal.

The 12-nation European Community, meanwhile, approved nearly $2 billion in assistance to Egypt, Jordan and Turkey to compensate for economic hardships arising from the Persian Gulf conflict.

Italian Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis said the community would provide $660 million and member nations $1.32 billion.

The 35 ministers of the European Security Conference took several steps to strengthen the organization in preparation for a summit meeting Nov. 19-21 in Paris.

In an animated, hour-long session, all eight justices asked questions.

Solicitor General Kenneth Starr, the administration's top courtroom lawyer, acknowledged that many of Oklahoma City's neighborhoods are predominantly black or white, but said, "The school board has no realistic control over where people choose to live."

School board lawyer Ronald Day argued that a federal court's finding in 1977 that the city's schools were fully integrated — or "unitary" — freed the board from continuing focused busing and other court-ordered steps until all city neighborhoods are integrated.

Such residential segregation, Day said, "is a phenomenon over which this school board, indeed no school board, has control."
Administration requires gender diversity

As Saint Mary's editor of The Observer, I feel obligated to address recent letters attacking the president of the College, Dr. William A. Hickey.

I am very troubled by two letters written by Deven Marcuson concerning the qualifications of Dr. Hickey to serve as the leader of Catholic women's college. In Miss Marcuson's first letter (The Observer, Sept. 13), she claims that "the administration felt that the people moving in the selection process were female, a male was chosen based on his accomplishments and qualifications. No existing female candidate had devoted anywhere near the time and commitment to Saint Mary's and higher education Dr. Hickey did." Anyone who examines Dr. Hickey's past record would come to the same conclusion.

If Miss Marcuson is concerned about women moving on to graduate school or other postgraduate pursuits, perhaps she would be interested in a few of the curriculum changes for Saint Mary's. The days of the home economics major ended with Dr. Hickey. These changes have done more to improve the postgraduate image and accomplishments of Saint Mary's graduates than any other. Although Miss Marcuson seems to make light of it in her Oct. 1 letter, Dr. Hickey is a staunch advocate of women's education.

Dr. Hickey also established the Center for Spirituality which was specifically designed to provide an environment for women and men to research and publish on the evolving role of women in the church. Though Dr. Hickey is not a member of the clergy, he has gone to great lengths to promote spirituality at Saint Mary's. Miss Marcuson's concern that Dr. Hickey is not a member of the clergy seems inconsistent with her call for a president who can better empathize with Saint Mary's students.

I am quite sure the General Council for the Male, and Dr. Hickey still wins hands-down. I am quite sure the General Council for the female majority. The Board of Regents, which had been terminated. He did so to open more opportunities for Saint Mary's graduates. The days of the home economics major ended with Dr. Hickey. These changes have improved the postgraduate image and accomplishments of Saint Mary's graduates than any other. Although Miss Marcuson seems to make light of it in her Oct. 1 letter, Dr. Hickey is a staunch advocate of women's education.

Dr. Hickey also established the Center for Spirituality which was specifically designed to provide an environment for women and men to research and publish on the evolving role of women in the church. Though Dr. Hickey is not a member of the clergy, he has gone to great lengths to promote spirituality at Saint Mary's. Miss Marcuson's concern that Dr. Hickey is not a member of the clergy seems inconsistent with her call for a president who can better empathize with Saint Mary's students. I cannot imagine who would be less qualified to empathize with college women than a male member of the clergy.

Dr. Hickey's other accomplishments on women's education Miss Marcuson cites studies which call for greater number of female faculty members. She is obviously unaware of the fact that, for the first time, the faculty at Saint Mary's is more female than male. This fact, in addition to the statistics involving the numbers of female members of the administrators, faculty and Board of Regents, implies that there are ample positive female role models on our campus. Miss Marcuson points to studies by Dr. Elizabeth Tidball to affirm the need for a female president to serve as a female authority figure. Miss Marcuson did not follow up her research. If she had, she would have found that Dr. Tidball does emphasize the critical importance of female role models, but does not call for the exclusion of men in administrative hierarchy. Dr. Tidball calls for men and women to work together as equals, for the betterment of women. She also recognized that creating a "female haven" where only women interact and make decisions is not a true representation of the real world.

Yet another problem with Miss Marcuson's arguments involves her analogy between Gallaudet University and Saint Mary's. I have never equated being female with being handi­caped. It is precisely such an attitude that leads to the misconception that women are innately less capable than men.

When I started as Saint Mary's editor for the Observer, I sought to meet with authority figures in the administration and faculty. Dr. Hickey has done more to help Saint Mary's gain recognition and improve its image than any other member of the community. He has been more enthusiastic and cooperative than any female member of the community. He has pushed the faculty and administration to take an active role in enhancing the perceptions that Saint Mary's women have of themselves, as well as how we are perceived by others. He exhibits a love and concern for Saint Mary's that is truly unique.

I hope that when it comes time to choose a new president for Saint Mary's, instead of taking Miss Marcuson's faulty arguments into consideration, the community will reflect upon the accomplishments of Dr. Hickey and subsequently attempt to find a fitting successor whether he be male or female. I hope that day is very far away. When it does come, our community will realize what it will be losing. Great leaders are never appreciated until they leave us.

‘Dracula’ strikes O’Laughlin Auditorium tonight

CORINNE PAVLIS

"Dracula," Bram Stoker’s classic tale of horror, will be performed tonight by Ballet Theater Pennsylvania at O’Laughlin Auditorium at Saint Mary’s College. Tonight’s performance is the first in a series of three dance presentations Saint Mary’s will sponsor this year.

The concept of "Dracula" ranges from the "dawn of man" to contemporary times. Ballet Theater Pennsylvania’s version of Stoker’s vampire tale is based on the theme, "I have seen the evil and it is our­selves." The character of Dracula will be portrayed by two principal dancers to represent the character’s two dimensions. Dracula the Possessed, the darker of the two, represents the evil side of humanity. His counterpart, The Spirit of Dracula, symbolizes a brighter, more promising female facet of the play.

The production combines classical ballet and modern dance to present a psychological study of good and evil. Each of the twenty scenes is intended to represent a different image of the powerful Dracula. Scenes such as "The Healing" and "The Gates of Hell" set the stage for the climactic final scene, "The Catharsis," in which The Spirit of Dracula rises above the carnage of broken bodies on stage and flies off. Dracula the Possessed is left behind to cover the bodies with his enormous black cape.

The dramatic performance utilizes the music of Philip Glass, special lighting effects, Broadway set and lighting designs, and a dance company of twelve to present a romantic, frightening, and striking interpretation of the legend. Preceding "Dracula," the company will present its signature piece, "Bolero," which was recently filmed for PBS. This Spanish character dance fittingly features the music of Ravel. The piece is known for its sensual seductive rhythms which build slowly as new dancers take the stage leading to a scintillating finale. Later in the year Saint Mary’s will also sponsor "Fresh Tracks," a faculty and guest artist dance concert to be directed by visiting assistant professor Sue Cherry. The performance date is set for November 16. Next semester features the latest national tour of the Ballet Met Company.

Individual tickets for "Dracula," priced at $18 and $16, as well as a package of all three dance programs in the series are on sale at the Saint Mary’s box office. The office, located in O’Laughlin Auditorium, is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. Visa and MasterCard orders are accepted at 284-4626.

Jeremy Turner’s paintings and Dan Myers’ photographs are on exhibition currently at Saint Mary’s College in Moreau, Little Theatre and Hammes Galleries through October 12.

Turner, of the School of the Art Institute of Chicago, is having her paintings displayed in Moreau Gallery. The body of work is filled with information. The colors glow in a contrast that causes one to discover the content of the work.

The non-traditional perspective includes animal figures intertwining, stylized nude female figures stripped of any beauty, and stylized male figures finding satisfaction in themselves. " These paintings are for this particular period in history. They are meant to amuse, arouse, frighten their audience. But primarily to provide insight into the realities of our present society," explains Turner in her artist’s statement. She stylizes the female figure giving her neither beauty nor ugliness and paints her in a red-brown pigment with outside forces manipulating and changing her.

In a piece called "Master Race," one of these female figures lays strapped to a bed crying in pain while Barbie and Ken figures surround her, attempting to inject into her a solution of sperm—presumably the solution of utter perfection.

The painting’s bright colors attract the eye of the viewer; however, upon closer inspection of the piece, the coldness of the colors and the glazed looks on the faces and in the eyes of the figures bring out the reality of the painting.

Her other works can be viewed in the same way, in that in each there is a human truth as well as violence that comes through.

Dan Myers, a photographer who attended Southern Illinois University and Cranbrook Academy, has his works on display in Little Theatre and Hammes Galleries. He describes his work like this: "I, The pieces involve themselves with the shifting, unstable relationship between inside-outside, between what was real in the past and what was invented.

The photographs cause the viewer to study the blurry images of memories. All of the photographs are black and white, each with different images, yet each evoke the same response of wonder.

One in particular, titled "Real Events No. 1-9," includes a series of nine 4 inch by 6 inch framed images. Upon close inspection, each of them involves two or more individuals posing for the picture.

What makes these photographs interesting is that the artist has taken the image and manipulated it so that it is not as visible as it once may have been, iterating the artists thoughts on the mechanical recovery of memory and the reclamation of personal history.

Both of these exhibits are open during regular gallery hours: Tuesday - Friday 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon and 1:00 p.m. - 4:00 p.m., Saturday 10:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon, and Sunday 1:00 p.m. - 3:00 p.m.

Notre Dame club sports off to good starts this fall

With the 1990 fall semester in full stride, the sports clubs on campus are back in action. Club Corner has returned to help you to keep up with the teams. Several have been practicing since late August, readying themselves for competition.

...Rolando de Aguilar Club Corner...

The Sailing Club has been training since August for their season. Led by Watts Hughes and Dave Kraemer, the 1990 team has already participated in races as distant as New Haven, Connecticut. At the Anderson Regatta, held at Yale University September 1-2, the team faced several Eastern sailing powerhouse teams, and was relegated to the second division.

"It was a good experience to see what the real guys in the big leagues are like," Kraemer said. The team made an impressive showing at the Detroit Yacht Club during the weekend of September 22. Their second-place finish at the Midwestern Collegiate Sailing Association Sloop Championship qualified them for national competition in the spring.

This weekend, the women's team will travel to Annapolis to take part in the Navy Women's Interscholastic. An Notre Dame sailor will also be competing at the MSCS Singlehanded at Western Michigan.

The Rowing Club, training since the first week of September, is also enjoying a successful season. Traveling to Pittsburgh for the Head of the Ohio, the rowing team made strong moves. The women's crew picked up a gold medal in the Youth 8-woman shell, and a silver in the Heavyweight 4.

The men's team was also impressive, winning a silver medal in the Heavyweight 4, a bronze in the Heavyweight 8, and fourth place finishes in the Club 8 and Open 4. In the Open 4, the Irish, despite finishing fourth, still managed to beat the old course record.

Who's the underdog in this Miami, Florida State game?

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Florida State's opponent Saturday is a typical Miami team in many respects — fast, aggressive, skilled at throwing the ball, ranked in the Top Ten, but there is one important difference. This Miami team has lost a game.

"You know, it's usually us with a loss facing them," Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said Tuesday. "This is the first time I can remember facing them where they've lost a game in a long, long time."

Miami (2-1) was the preseason No. 1 team but dropped its opener 28-21 at Brigham Young. At the Harry Anderson Regatta, held at Yale University September 1-2, the team faced several Eastern sailing powerhouse teams, and was relegated to the second division.

This weekend, the women's team will travel to Annapolis to take part in the Navy Women's Interscholastic. An Notre Dame sailor will also be competing at the MSCS Singlehanded at Western Michigan.

The Rowing Club, training since the first week of September, is also enjoying a successful season. Traveling to Pittsburgh for the Head of the Ohio, the rowing team made strong moves. The women's crew picked up a gold medal in the Youth 8-woman shell, and a silver in the Heavyweight 4.

The men's team was also impressive, winning a silver medal in the Heavyweight 4, a bronze in the Heavyweight 8, and fourth place finishes in the Club 8 and Open 4. In the Open 4, the Irish, despite finishing fourth, still managed to beat the old course record.
Boston loses in 11, blows chance to clinch berth

BOSTON (AP) - The Boston Red Sox failed to clinch the American League East title Tuesday night and went the race down to the final day by losing to the Chicago White Sox 5-2 on Ozzie Guillen's two-out RBI single in the 11th inning.

Dennis Lamp (3-5), Boston's fourth pitcher, was unable to hold Chicago in the 11th after the Red Sox failed to score with the bases loaded and two out in the 10th against Dann Pall (3-5). Ellis Burks flied out to end the inning after an intentional walk to Wade Boggs.

With one out in the 11th, Ron Karkovice lined a single to left and took second on Robin Ventura's single to center. Scott Fletcher popped out but Guillen pulled a low-outside pitch into right field and Karkovice just cleared the right-field wall.

Toronto had to wait an hour or so to learn its fate until the Chicago White beat Boston 3-2 in 11 innings. The Blue Jays trail the Red Sox by one game with one left in the regular season.

The victory was No. 91 for Gooden, his second straight shutout and denied him win No. 6 for only the third time in his career.

The Chicago White Sox indirectly helped the Toronto Blue Jays Tuesday night, beating the Boston Red Sox who had a chance to clinch the title. The Bosox are still guaranteed a tie for AL East Championship.

Gooden lasted just 4 1-3 innings, his shortest outing since he pitched three innings in his second start of the year on April 14. He was working on three days' rest, one less than usual, in an attempt to get his second 20-win season.

"I have no regrets about this," Gooden said. "I thought maybe I'd look back over the winter or maybe two or three years down the road and say maybe I should have pitched.""

"It's like a hitter wants to hit 300 instead of .299," Mets Manager Bud Harrelson said.

Reds 3, Astros 2

CINCINNATI - Jack Armstrong pitched two perfect innings in his first start since Aug. 24, and Paul O'Neill slammed home a pair of runs as Cincinnati exercised its pitching staff in a victory over Houston.

Four Reds pitchers retiring the first 16 batters in order before Luis Gonzalez, doubled off Rick Mahler with one out in the sixth. The Astros managed four hits, all off Mahler, against six Cincinnati pitchers.

Isiah Thomas faces charges

DETROIT (AP) — A television reporter filed an assault and battery complaint against Isiah Thomas of the Detroit Pistons on Tuesday, saying the NBA All-Star choked him and threw him against a car.

Virg Jacques, a reporter with Detroit's WJBK-TV, said he didn't know what provoked the incident that differed from that given by Jacques.

Thomas has an unlisted telephone number and could not be reached for comment. But Pistons spokesman Matt Dobek on Tuesday night reiterated a version of the incident that differed from that given by Jacques.

Dobek said he learned from Thomas and James E. Edwards, who witnessed the confrontation, that Jacques followed Thomas out of the gym, and refused to let Thomas into Thomas's car.

After Thomas gained entry, Jacques stood in front of the car as Thomas tried to drive away, Dobek said.

"There were no punches thrown," Dobek said. "We don't think it's a big problem." Jacques, however, said he had followed Thomas out of the gym and was trying to get his own car when Thomas called to him.

"He said, 'Hey, come here, man. I want to talk to you for a minute,'" Jacques said. "He said, 'Forget it' and walked away.

Thomas then called Jacques over to his car again and "started shouting and put his hands around my neck and shoved me against a car. He was shouting. 'Get out of my face' and 'Get the hell out of my way,'" the reporter said.

Thomas then got into his car and drove away after shouting, "Get the hell out of my way, I'm going to run you down," Jacques said.

It's very exciting for us for them to come. The teams we play the rest of the year will be a notch lower than these guys," on the men's side, Notre Dame's Dave Biliac will have an overwhelming job when he is the top-ranked player in the nation, sophomore Johnathan Stark. Stanford's men's team includes three other players in the national top 10. "It's an excellent honor to to Stanford," said Bob Bayliss, men's tennis coach. "Their team is almost like a Cardinal champion. Besides Grailes champion. Besides Grailes."

"Our team is led by men's team finished third in the 1990 NCAA team championships. The Cardinal men's swimming team is led by world-record holder and NCAA Backstroke Champion Jeff Rosse. Other standouts are distance freestyle specialist Tim Welsh, who completed in this summer's Goodwill Games in Seattle. The women's team as a whole finished second in Texas in the 1990 NCAA team championships.

"The Stanford women's swimming team may be the biggest draw of the weekend, as Olympic gold medalist Janet Bayliss, women's coach. Their team is almost like a Stanford Champion, women's tennis. You'll find their apples are just a little below these guys."

I've never believed that one little computer could make such an incredible difference in my academic and life. I became a Macintosh convert in business school. At our computer lab I'd always find lines of people waiting to use the Macintosh computer, while other computers just sat there. So I had a choice: wait for a Macintosh, or come back at 6 a.m. to grab one before they'd be in five, ten, or fifteen years. That makes me feel great.

Phares helps women's golf

By JENNIFER MARTEN
Sports Writer

Ireland golfer Kathy Phares has proved to everyone that last year was not a fluke. The sophomore has continued her winning ways in the 1990 fall season. At the Irish Invitational this September, she was the second highest Notre Dame finisher and on a yardage pass for a victory. She was ready for the competition.

At the Illinois State Invite, Phares led the Irish with a 161 for two rounds which placed her eighth in the final individual standings. She also played two excellent rounds at the Spartan Invitational over the weekend, but did not place well due to a lowest Notre Dame scores at Hanlon. Phares posted the lowest Notre Dame scores at the NCAA's first collegiate tournament, and at the MSU Invitational. At the Franklin Invitational, she earned medalist honors after breaking a seven year tournament record with single round score of 73.

"Kathy is a very steady young lady and the consistent attitude and doesn't seem to get rattled. She's probably the most consistent player on the team right now and she keeps improving all the time," said Hanlon.

UNLV may get the chance to defend title

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The NCAA has agreed to reconsider its decision denying UNLV from defending its national basketball championship, university officials said Tuesday.

The NCAA's Infractions Committee will meet Oct. 21 in a special session in Chicago to review the ban it imposed in July on postseason play for the UNLV basketball team, university President Robert Maxson said.

Maxson said no promises were made to remove the ban, but called the decision to reconsider "a clear signal" the NCAA is willing to modify the sanctions.

"We're very pleased. We think this is a good sign for the university," said Maxson.

UNLV officials said they plan to offer the committee a list of different penalties, but did not specify what alternative sanctions they propose.

"We'll be trying to formulate ideas for alternative penalties right up until Oct. 21," University Counsel Brad Beek said.

"We've discussed virtually every idea possible."

But he acknowledged that one of the possible proposals would be for UNLV to ask coach Jerry Tarkanian to step aside during postseason play. Other contingencies include limiting recruiting or cutting the loss of some scholarships for the basketball program.

UNLV had been set to appeal the four-year ban before the NCAA Council when it meets Monday in Kansas City, but that appeal was postponed pending the reconsideration by the Infractions Committee.

Booke said UNLV has not waived its right to appeal to the NCAA Council if the Infractions Committee reaffirms the postseason ban.

The committee imposed the sanction July 21 as a final response to the Infractions Committee decision to review its original postseason ban.

Maxson said he expected committee members to come up with some ideas of their own about sanctions, but expressed optimism that UNLV would be successful in overturning the ban on postseason play.

"I think the clear signal is they're willing to look at some alternatives," Maxson said. "If they weren't, they wouldn't be flying to Chicago on a Sunday to hear us."

UNLV announced immediately after the July ruling that it would appeal the ban.

Maxson at the time called the penalty "a miscarriage of justice." And UNLV was being penalized twice for the same offense.

"We've appealed the one that stretched to four years," said Tarkanian that stretched to four years.

Tarkanian officials said they would appeal the ban. They're willing to look at some penalties, if they aren't fired up, and they wouldn't be playing.

"But praise for uncharacteristically high third round score.

"She was probably our best player last year and she is doing just as well this year," said Coach Tom Hanlon.

Last year, Phares posted the lowest Notre Dame scores at the NCAA tournament because of rule violations.

"We've decided several ideas with the NCAA, as the reason the Infractions Committee decided to repeat its original postseason ban.

If the Mets don't pay, Strawberry wants LA

NEW YORK (AP) — If the New York Mets want to keep Darryl Strawberry it will take more than big bucks. He wants some time to consider his options.

In his latest declaration, Strawberry said he won't know the bidding for his services is between the Mets and the Los Angeles Dodgers. That, of course, could change in a day or two.

He also stressed that the Mets front office better come up with a leadoff hitter, preferably a fellow free agent Vince Coleman.

"We've got a couple of guys around here who have to grow up," Strawberry said. "I'm not going to start naming names, but we've got guys that care too much about their own stats.

"I don't want to be around a team like that. I mean, us not winning this year is ridiculous. But it has to start with the front office. I've got to have a better relationship with them after all the negatives I heard this year."

General manager Frank Cashen and senior vice president Al Harazin traveled with the club to Pittsburgh with the intent of letting Strawberry know the Mets want him. Strawberry missed the final week of the season with a bad back and was on the bench Sunday when New York was eliminated.

"Obviously we do want to sign Strawberry," Harazin said. "We make a major effort to do that. Whether it's necessary to get the job done time today, that's where I'm in the middle of that lineup, I want to see what I can do with those kind of hitters around me."

Strawberry said he has ruled out San Diego — for now — and any team that plays on an artificial surface.

"They've got heart and pride," Strawberry said. "It's not like I'm just thrown into big matches now," she says. "It's not like I'm not thrown into top-notch teams like Stanford doesn't face Vitala."

"I've had a lot of experience. It's not like I'm just thrown into big matches now," she says. "It's not like I'm just thrown into big matches now."
Rini leads men's swim team against tough Cardinal

By KEN TYSIAC
Associate Sports Editor

Swimming laps at 6:15 a.m. is not for everybody. But for Brian Rini, tri-captain of the Notre Dame men's swim team, it is a way of life. Although he doesn't exactly enjoy it, Rini doesn't seem to mind his early-morning ritual too much.

"I'm used to it," says Rini, a senior from Chagrin Falls, Ohio. "If you do it a lot, it doesn't really bother you."

The practice has paid off for Rini. Last season he was the most valuable player on a team that went 12-1. He also holds Notre Dame records in the 500- and 1000-yard freestyle. As the Irish move forward, they are going to be expected to fill the gaps left by graduation. With such a young team, one might expect that Rini might be inclined to bear too much of a burden, but this is not the case.

"The freshman class is outstanding," Rini explains. "Every year the freshmen get better and better here because the program is expanding and improving. I really don't feel any pressure at all. I'm glad to be a senior and glad to be one of the captains, but I don't feel any added pressure. It seems that neither Rini, nor any of the other players feel any added pressure with Stanford, which finished third in last year's NCAA championships, last year, coming in this weekend. Instead, they are rather looking forward to it as an event.

"The meet is more of a weekend fare," says Rini. "We are looking to be good hosts and show that we are proud to swim for Notre Dame. It will be a great chance to meet people who are Olympic-caliber swimmers. We will also be hosting them-they'll be staying in our rooms, and that should be fun. Most swimmers get along with each other pretty well because they are the same type of people."

If they are anything like Rini, they don't mind swimming at 6:15 a.m. As long as it means that they will improve, they will get used to it.

A big challenge for Murphy and his coaching staff of Mike Gibbons, John Flanagan, Mike Moshier and Greg Hudson is in-stilling in this team a blue collar work ethic. In 1989 that was a lot easier because there weren't many scholarship or nationally rated players-just a bunch of walk-ons. But this year they have achieved. The Irish are getting some of the blue-chip prospects that Murphy wanted when he came here. "The 1989 most talented team we've had since I've been here," Murphy says. "Some of the sophomores have great years last year. We just had a meeting about the sophomores. That comes from laziness and lack of preparation. They're going to have good years because they prepared and worked hard."

While pitching staff, with a nucleus of four sophomores, is the strongest and a key aspect of the Irish squad. "They're still maturing," said Murphy. "They don't have the innings yet to be accomplished pitchers like (Brian) Piotrowsicz."

Dave Sinnen (2-9), who led the Irish with a .273 average in E.R.A with a 1.55 mark, anchors the staff. Although he was not short of outstanding statistically, Murphy acknowledges there's more to the game than stats.

"Sinnen has so far go to," he said. "He has not, so far, had full practices, so he will continue to play major roles."

"Everyone talks about Sinnen and Lebby, but Walania can be just as good as anyone in the staff," said Murphy. "The same goes for (senior) Tony Liversi."

They'll start finding out how he works hard," stated Murphy. Senior shortstop Mick Cos returns to stabilize the infield. Always a solid fielder, Cos had his best offensive year last season as he hit .290.

"He's the only kid I've had for four years so it's a good experience to see how much a player can improve with time," explained Murphy. "When the game's on the line he'll make every play."

With those and a plethora of other fine players the Irish could be in for a big year. They'll start finding out how big Thursday night.

Crispy, Stud? HAPPY BIRTHDAY!!!
Lyght practices, says he can play against Stanford

BY FRANK PASTOR
Associate Sports Editor

When the subject of Notre Dame's defense is brought up, it inevitably comes out in two parts:

There is the front seven, which regrouped in the past two weeks, limiting Purdue and Michigan State to a combined 141 yards rushing, enough for the 253 yards it allowed Michigan in the season opener.

"The secondary is our biggest area of concern at the present time," said Head Coach Lou Holtz, whose team meets Stanford Saturday at 12:08 p.m. EST in Notre Dame Stadium.

While the rest of the team breathed a sigh of relief following Saturday's 37-11 Irish victory over Purdue, the secondary came under fire for surrendering 354 yards through the air to Boilermaker quarterback Eric Hunter.

Holtz himself has termed the biggest obstacle for the defensive backfield. Strong safety Greg Davis leads all starters with three career interceptions against the Wolverines, but it was just last spring that he felt he felt as good as he has in a long time, but "the injury still concerns me."

"If Todd Lyght can play, and I won't say he will, he will start at one corner and Reggie Brooks will start at the other," Brooks replaced Rod Smith at short cornerback in the Michigan opener and started the next two games. He made a game-saving interception against the Wolverines, but it was just last spring that he lined up on the other side of the football.

"We know we had a problem in the defensive secondary going into the spring," said Holtz. "Reggie Brooks is a very talented person who we felt might be able to play in the defensive secondary. He's still young, he's still learning, and I don't know if he feels real comfortable over there yet."

"But he is a very smart person, he is a good hitter, he likes the game, and he has excellent speed. His height (5-10) is not what you like in a defensive back, but his feet do touch the ground."

Holtz further sacrificed height for speed last week when he moved freshman Clint Johnson from quarterback to cornerback in an effort to add more depth to the Irish secondary.

"Last year, we had a veteran defensive secondary," said Holtz. "This year, we don't match up quite as well. We don't have the options we did last year when they toppled pass the football. Our secondary will get a big test this week."

Brett said he's out game to defend title

CLEVELAND (AP) — George Brett held himself out of the Kansas City Royals' starting lineup Tuesday night, reasoning that Oakland's Rickey Henderson should be forced to overcome him in the race for the American League batting title.

"I want to see what he does tonight," Brett said. "From the people I talked to, the consensus was, make him come to you."

Brett is hitting .328. Henderson entered Tuesday night's game at Oakland against California batting .326. Rafael Palmeiro of Texas was also hitting .326 at Milwaukee, was hitting .321.

Brett is trying to become the first player to win a batting title in three decades. He first won it in 1976 at .333, then flirted with .400 for much of the 1980 season before finishing with a major league-best .390.

He had a 200 average in early May this season, but he has hit .390 during the second half.

"He was overzealous early in the year, and he found a little mechanical flaw in his swing," Manager John Wathan said. "I'm certainly not a man who can help George Brett with his strike. He was pulling too many pitches and hitting a lot of grounders to second. He wasn't using the whole field. That wasn't George Brett."

Wathan had reservations about keeping Brett on the bench for Tuesday's game against the Cleveland Indians, even though he said Brett is 7-for-29 lifetime against starter Tom Candiotti.

"You can throw all those stats out now, in this situation," Wathan said. "Just because you've hit well against somebody in the past, there's no guarantee you're going to do it. It's a chess match. They've held Rickey out some. We've held George out. That's the right thing to do."

The Royals close the season at Cleveland on Wednesday beginning at 12:35 p.m. EDT.

Notre Dame welcomes ‘Weekend of Champions’

Men’s tennis will face best in nation

BY DAVE MACMATHON
Sports Writer

When the Notre Dame men’s tennis team plays host to three-time NCAA defending team champion Stanford Cardinal Friday at the Eck Tennis Pavilion, they are not Irish sophomore Chuck Coleman to continue his dominance that has led head coach Bob Bayliss to think that he may have another All-America on his hands.

But don’t be surprised to hear the Irish win. It’s one of the reasons why Coleman decided to play for the Irish instead of Alabama, the other school that he considered attending.

Vitale boosts women’s tennis team

BY RICH KURZ
Sports Writer

Having a famous father might cause problems or be a burden to some people, especially to one seeking to build a name for herself. Not for Terri Vitale, daughter of basketball analyst Dick Vitale, Notre Dame freshman and budding tennis star.

Despite being one of the top-ranked players on the Notre Dame women’s tennis team and the daughter of ABC’s and ESPN’s top basketball commentator, Vitale is having the same attitude, so far.

“Vitale had little trouble adjusting to college life. She will go into this weekend’s match with top-ranked Stanford occupying a spot in the middle of the singles ladder (either No. 3 or No. 4) and playing No. 2 doubles,” Coleman added.

The demands academically are a lot tougher than in high school, says Vitale. “It took me awhile, but I’m finally getting in the swing of things.”

Coleman complimented. “He puts academics first and he really knows his tennis. He’s helped me tremendously in every aspect of my game.”

By giving some attention to technical aspects of his game, Coleman has made huge improvement in only a few matches on the young season.

He’s improved a lot on his volleys and slice backhands, as well as his serve,” said Bayliss.

By improving in these areas, Coleman put together back-to-back wins against the Irish baseball team, certainly fit the bill for the Irish in the bid to the NCAA Tournament.

This is the first many big tests for Notre Dame’s Olympic sports teams against some of the top programs in the country… The Wichita State Shockers, who come to Covelkes Stadium for games this weekend, tagged the “Weekend of Champions,” in concept two years ago as a baseball series against Florida while the Hurricane football team was in town. They named it “The Battle Before the War.”

Now it’s the Weekend of Champions, and no one can dispute the appropriateness of the title. But there is one question:

Where’s Wheaties?

“Yellow, we should have (talked to Wheaties), but we didn’t,” said Notre Dame sports marketer Bill Scholl. “It’s a perfect tie-in for them, because we’re also having a breakfast Friday morning to honor the athletes, including the other teams. It would have been a perfect spot for Wheaties to be involved. Talk about a breakfast of champions.”

Instead, the South Bend Tribune and Maxwell House are the sponsors. Because of the Tribune, advertising throughout the city has been prolific.

Translation: Go early. You’re not going to want to miss these events.

The Weekend commences with baseball games Thursday and Friday night against 1989 national champion Wichita State at Covelkes Stadium, in downtown South Bend. The Shockers, 45-19 last year, lost to Southern Illinois for the 1990 Missouri Valley Conference title and reached the NCAA tournament.

“ ‘It’s exciting to bring in a team of Wichita State’s caliber,’ said Irish head coach Pat Murphy, whose own team was 46-12 last year. ‘They’re clearly year-in and year-out one of the top programs in the country. We’re lucky to have them come here.”

On Friday, there will be (count ’em) seven different sporting events on the Notre Dame campus.

The Weekend of Champions has been described as "an event that will pit many of Notre Dame’s Olympic sports teams against some of the top programs in the country... The Wichita State Shockers, who come to Covelkes Stadium for games this weekend, tagged the “Weekend of Champions,” in concept two years ago as a baseball series against Florida while the Hurricane football team was in town. They named it "The Battle Before the War.”

Now it’s the Weekend of Champions, and no one can dispute the appropriateness of the title. But there is one question:

Where’s Wheaties?

"You know, we should have (talked to Wheaties), but we didn’t," said Notre Dame sports marketer Bill Scholl. "It’s a perfect tie-in for them, because we’re also having a breakfast Friday morning to honor the athletes, including the other teams. It would have been a perfect spot for Wheaties to be involved. Talk about a breakfast of champions.”

Instead, the South Bend Tribune and Maxwell House are the sponsors. Because of the Tribune, advertising throughout the city has been prolific.

Translation: Go early. You’re not going to want to miss these events.

The Weekend commences with baseball games Thursday and Friday night against 1989 national champion Wichita State at Covelkes Stadium, in downtown South Bend. The Shockers, 45-19 last year, lost to Southern Illinois for the 1990 Missouri Valley Conference title and reached the NCAA tournament.

"It’s exciting to bring in a team of Wichita State’s caliber," said Irish head coach Pat Murphy, whose own team was 46-12 last year. "They’re clearly year-in and year-out one of the top programs in the country. We’re lucky to have them come here.”

On Friday, there will be (count ’em) seven different sporting events on the Notre Dame campus.
