President Bush suggested Thursday he could trade a modest increase in taxes on affluent Americans for a deep cut in capital gains rates but that it "was a waste of time" to push such a deal through a divided Congress.

Instead, Bush called on lawmakers to put aside that battle and come up with a more "palatable" package that will also reduce capital gains tax rates, but only if it "can be a little less rich than the administration's version."

Congressional committees are working toward the goal of finding a half-trillion dollars in spending cuts and tax increases before the Oct. 19 deadline when the latest emergency spending authorization expires.

Corporal America needs new attitude

Christine Walsh

You have a degree (or almost) from one of the nation's leading universities. You were a top student in your class. You held prestigious internships during your summers and have (or will) have a job with a Business Editor major corporation.

However, ten years from now, chances are that you will be making significantly less money than the guy (with the same job title) in the office next to yours, in the best scenario, you will not even have reached the same position in the same amount of time, in the worst.

Why? You a woman.

An article entitled, "Why Women Still Don't Hit the Top" (Fortune, July 30, 1990) showed that over 20 years from the heyday of the women's movement, women are still far from reaching parity with their male counterparts in the business world.

According to Fortune, in 1995, out of 4,000 officers and directors of Fortune 500 companies, only 19% are women. This is not a significant increase over 1978 when out of 6,400 officers and directors, 10 were women.

Let's put it another way—Less than half of women who fill the top positions in corporate America are occupied by women.

In a recent poll by Catalyst, a group that does research on women in the workplace, of 240 CEO's participating in a survey, 81 percent acknowledged the existence of barriers such as stereotyping and preconceptions, as the chief factor in preventing women from reaching the top.

Consider that women comprise: 46 percent of all college students; 37 percent of business graduate students; roughly 40 percent of law students; if women are receiving the same education, why are they still grossly underrepresented in the business world?

In the past, it has not been an uncommon practice for businessmen to strike deals at the locker room after practice, or on the golf course—functions from which women were largely excluded. Now think about how many deals are made over 'a few drinks' or on the ninth green. Therein lies the diehard attitude.

Yet this just is a small example about how inactivity or exclusion can affect women's chance at getting to the top of the corporate ladder.

The solution does not lie in a resurrection of the feminist movement, or special legislation, or corporate protection of patriarchal women, but it lies in changing attitudes.

Otherwise, it won't be only women who suffer. The real losers will be the women of the business community, who are systematically eliminating half of the potential workforce.

The Swedish Academy in Stockholm awarded Paz the prize for his "exquisite love poetry, at the same time sensuous and passionate," and for his wide international perspective. "Poetry is not a very popular art form these days, but it's an essential part of human life," Paz said in New York, where he is inaugurating a Mexican art exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Sponsors of a civil rights bill designed to combat job discrimination made last-minute concessions to the Bush administration Thursday in a move to save the measure from a threatened presidential veto. Critics said, however, President Bush still appeared poised to reject the bill on grounds that it would usher in minority hiring quotas. The bill would overturn six Supreme Court decisions last year, and has been the top item on the civil rights movements priority list in recent months. Other provisions range from a ban on racial harassment on the job to obstacles to reopening court-approved minority hiring agreements.

Stark to get award at A.F. game

Special to The Observer

Dennis Stark, director of aquatics at Notre Dame, will receive the Notre Dame Alumni Association's Harvey G. Foster Award during a ceremony immediately preceding the Notre Dame/Air Force football game on Saturday.

Stark, a 1947 Notre Dame graduate, oversees all the University's aquatics programs, teaches physical education classes and officiates at local swim meets. He assumed his present position in 1985 after 27 years as a swimming coach at Notre Dame. In 1984, he was named Coach of the Year by the North Star Conference.

In addition to his work for the University, he served as aquatics venue manager for the International Special Olympic Games held at Notre Dame in 1987. Widely admired for their work for South Bend's Logan Center and in a variety of other community services, Stark and his wife, Angelina, have five children, three of whom are Notre Dame graduates.

The Harvey G. Foster Award was established by the Alumni Association in 1982 in memory of a 1939 Notre Dame graduate who had died the previous year. Foster, who became vice president of American Airlines after eighteen years as an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, was an active member of the Alumni Association and served terms on its board of directors and as its president.

The Foster Award is given annually to a Notre Dame graduate distinguished for athletic endeavors and community service.

He subsequently alternated between 1957 and 1962 as a faculty member at Princeton and as a member of the Institute for Advanced Study. He joined the Notre Dame faculty in 1962, and his four books in the field of modern mathematics have gained him an international reputation.

ND professor publishes book on politics, media

Special to The Observer

"Statecraft and Stagecraft: American Political Life in the Age of Personalities," an examination of contemporary mass communication's influence on American political life has been published by the University of Notre Dame Press.

Written by Robert Schmuhl, an associate professor of American Studies at Notre Dame, the book's six essays explore how popular media affect the world of politics. The values of popular communication lead, Schmuhl argues, "to an emphasis on appealing images, symbolic gestures, dramatic encounters, audience-gathering opportunities" and "place a premium on personality, with the personality often taking precedence over political beliefs, principles and policies."

The interaction of media and politics is not new, Schmuhl points out. Theodore Roosevelt was aided by the early days of film, Franklin Roosevelt by the golden days of radio, John Kennedy exploited television, and Ronald Reagan's success with television and radio was unsurpassed, he said.

The author notes that over the past 30 years, however, "the medium of popular communication, especially television, have grown in significance," leading to what some call "the mediaization of politics."

A 1970 graduate of Notre Dame who earned his doctorate in English and American studies from Indiana University in 1978, Schmuhl is a specialist in ethics and the media who often serves as a commentator on politics for print and broadcast media. He has published three previous books.
Air Force grounds all flights

(AP) — Britain's foreign secretary said Thursday that Saddam Hussein must be told force will be used if Iraq doesn't withdraw from Kuwait. The Air Force, meanwhile, grounded all training flights in the Persian Gulf region for 24 hours from midday Wednesday until midday Thursday to discuss air safety with pilots. The order followed separate accidents this week in which 12 U.S. servicemen died. A group of 321 Western evacuees from Iraq and Kuwait landed in Britain on Thursday in the first such flight in nearly three weeks. Most of the passengers were Americans and many were children.

The Americans and Canadians on the flight were to leave Friday for Raleigh-Durham International Airport in North Carolina, said Andrew Varney, Gatwick airport's director of public affairs. While Westerners continued to flee occupied Kuwait with tales of low food supplies and forcing by Iraqi troops, international pressure grew against the leadership of the United States. There was concern that the Israeli attack might weaken Arab support for the multinational military presence in the gulf. The U.N. Security Council is considering means of censuring Israel that would satisfy outraged Arab nations and also Israel's allies.

Oil prices rose $1.73 a barrel in New York Thursday to close at $40.43 on unfounded rumors that a Palestine terrorist group lobbed missiles into the Israeli-occupied West Bank, and taken from the Arabs in the 1967 war. Stocks in New York again fell, down 42.82 points to an 18-month low at 2,363.10. More than 170,000 U.S. troops are deployed in Saudi Arabia and on warships in the gulf region, backed by vessels and soldiers from other countries. Most nations, with few exceptions, have condemned Iraq's aggression.

The Air Force announced it had halted all training flights in the gulf region but not reconnaissance missions and other "operational patrols," said a second Pentagon spokesman, Col. Miguel Monsivais.
Scherbachev discusses church

By SHANNON RYAN
News Writer

An individual's internal spiritual growth can be promoted or hampered by external societal conditions, said Mikhail Jaroslavovich Scherbachev, deputy head of the publishing department of the Patriarchate of the Russian Orthodox Church.

Scherbachev's lecture focused on the Church's position as a "catalyst designed to transform and reform humans" in a changing Soviet Union.

Sin is not confined to a personal matter, but influences all social interaction, said Scherbachev. This relationship affects the Church's mission to "save people and bring them to the heavenly kingdom where their souls can repose forever."

The success of the Russian Orthodox Church in modern-day U.S.S.R. is dependent upon two compulsory principles, said Scherbachev. First, society must allow and respect the prophetic mission of the Church. Second, there must be no latent political policy identification or support of a specific political leader.

However, the Church "certainly cannot ignore things (issues) that influence social morality," and must therefore reconcile itself with the political aspect of society, he said.

Scherbachev marks the observance of the second millennium of the baptism of Russia two years ago as a turning point for Russian Orthodoxy. Before this time, the Church was subjected to oppression by the Communist Party and "those in society who doubted our sincerity and regarded the Church as a dangerous, evil enemy of society."

The Church's renewed freedom to practice Christianity has left Russian Orthodoxy facing a new set of problems. The 6,000 churches and 25 monasteries returned from the government must be renovated and restored for religious purposes. The accompanying increased demand for ordained priests must be met. Beyond these pragmatical concerns, the Church must remedy the "serious problem of no parish life...this was destroyed during the period of difficulty and oppression."

Scherbachev further explained the legislative difficulties facing the Church. "The new law should clearly state that 'freedom of conscience' reflects freedom of choice to be religious or atheist," he said.

The Church's future agenda includes a cultural revival and an emphasis on the spiritual and social background of Russian Orthodoxy.

"We hope for the best in the future," concluded Scherbachev, "and we will return our Church to the states which belonged to it in our long and rich history."

Computers used in the classroom

By PETER AMEND
News Writer

With the dawning of affordable and space conscious supercomputers, companies like Next Computer, Inc., will change the way we learn in the classroom, according to Joel Smith, assistant professor of philosophy at Allegheny College.

According to Smith, it is possible to design homework exercises on computers that compose text, images, notebooks and writing to give students the opportunity to better understand abstract concepts. Using these computer applications forces the student to focus on their discipline, he said.

"If you get students to sit at their desks with five books open and a piece of paper, conceptually it's the same thing," said Smith. "But a very major practical difference is that they will be more intrigued by this way of getting the information."

The computers improve communication between student and teacher, said Smith. He gave the example of a student composing an English paper. Once the paper enters the network, the teacher can read, correct, and send the paper back to the student.

The computer has the option of "voice," so that the student can hear the teacher's corrections via a digitalized voice, Smith said. The computer approach has been especially effective in teaching weaker students.

One of the computer's unique applications is displaying how theoretical physics relates to physical phenomena using moving graphics.

In regard to implementing such a computer system at Notre Dame, Dennis Brown, associate professor of mathematics at ND, said he would like to see such a system used here. However, he noted that providing the necessary computer infrastructure and coordinating an inter-departmental computing network would take extensive faculty cooperation and planning.
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee approved a $268 billion defense bill Thursday that leaves intact President Bush's 1991 budget request for the B-2 stealth bomber.

By voice vote, the panel adopted the legislation after turning aside an attempt by Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., to stop production of the B-2 at six places.

"The greatest threat to our national security remains the Soviet Union. It is our spiraling defense debt," Leahy told his colleagues. The latter point was also pointed to an Air Force review that found widespread problems with the aircraft's manufacturer, the Northrop Corp.

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii and chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee on defense, argued that the measure would result in the United States spending $35 billion on "an unfinished science project."

The bill largely tracks the steps taken in August by the Senate when it approved separate legislation that outlined ceilings on defense spending for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

The committee bill, which would appropriate actual funds, trims about $1 billion from Bush's $4.7 billion budget request for the Strategic Defense Initiative, cuts troop strength by 100,000 and provides $5.1 billion for two B-2 bombers in 1991 and components for more bombers in 1992.

The measure includes $238 million for the V-22 Osprey tilt-rotor aircraft but not the $145 million in procurement money the House included for the program. Bush has proposed canceling the program.

The committee also adopted by voice vote an amendment restricting the way the administration can spend money on specific programs within SDI, commonly known as Star Wars.

Leahy is expected to bring up the B-2 amendment again when the full Senate takes up the defense spending plan, possibly as early as Friday.

Nevertheless, the panel's action was welcome news to Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and a B-2 proponent.

"That'll help; that'll help. We're hanging on by stealthy fingers," Nunn said of the vote.

Earlier in the day, Air Force Secretary Donald Rice pleaded with Congress not to decide the fate of the B-2 based on the Air Force review.

"It would be both inappropriate and unwise to use the review," Rice told the Senate Armed Services Committee at a hastily-scheduled hearing. "Weapon systems must continue to be judged on the basis of the threat.

"Seeking to repair the damage to the B-2 bomber program from Air Force testimony earlier this week on major problems at Northrop, Nunn summoned Rice before the panel to discuss the service's review.

On Tuesday, Brig. Gen. Robert W. Drewes, who led the eight-man team that conducted the study, told a House panel that Northrop was beset by problems in nearly every aspect of its business.

Drewes identified weaknesses in systems engineering, the transition from research and development to production, software management, subcontract management, organization and personnel and business systems, which includes cost and schedule estimates.

The review did not delve into problems associated with ongoing federal probes of the Los Angeles-based company.

Northrop pleaded guilty in February to 34 counts of fraud and was fined $17 million, the largest criminal fine ever imposed on a defense contractor.

Montgomery speaks on American labor unions

By STEVE ZAVESTOSKI
News Writer

Solidarity, organization, and equality were emphasized by David Montgomery as the keys to labor movements in Thursday's thirteenth annual Joseph P. Molony lecture.

Montgomery, a distinguished historian in the field of American labor and labor unions, claimed that solidarity is the first step in the formation of a Union. "Their (the workers) strength comes from standing beside each other," said Montgomery.

He added that solidarity alone can not accomplish the goals of a labor union. Montgomery elaborated by pointing out that organization helps to establish goals and make use of large numbers of workers. He also added that organization is vital if a strike is to last over an extended period of time. Lastly, Montgomery included organization as a key because "workers can not wield effective power without organization."

Montgomery said equality secures the community and promotes a common struggle for common interests. He also added that without equality any movement would be hampered by descent from within.

As an example of solidarity, organization, and equality working towards the success of a labor movement, Montgomery used the steel worker's strike of 1946. The strike was nationwide and as Montgomery stated "the goal was very simple, a seventeen and a half cent per hour increase for everybody."

Montgomery also referred to the visit eight years ago of six Soviet coal mine strikers who talked with members of an American coal miners' union. Among other impressions, Montgomery mentioned that the Soviets were surprised at the American's loyalty to the union. Montgomery further noted the Soviets' surprise that "your parents built a union that meant so much to you that you were ready to strike for a year against every kind of odds to keep it alive."

Montgomery expressed a belief that labor unions will survive despite the very traditional anti-union weapons like injunctions, private security forces, and permanent replacements. These weapons have brutally prolonged battles against Eastern Airlines and Greyhound.

"Women have been the keys because women have been the ones to provide an exodus from within the unions," said Montgomery. He added that while corporations are finding ways around labor strikes, unions are receiving support from state legislators.

Latin leaders to discuss oil

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Eight Latin American presidents opened a two-day summit Thursday with talks on the effect oil price hikes from the Persian Gulf crisis have had on the region and on President Bush's proposal to create a free trade zone in the Americas.

The closed-door sessions were held without ceremony at a downtown Caracas hotel.

Host President Carlos Andres Perez said a communique would be issued Friday leaving his country at the last minute because he lacked congressional authorization. First Presidents attending were Carlos Menem of Argentina, Fernando Collor de Mello of Brazil, Patricio Aylwin of Chile, Cesar Gaviria of Colombia, Rodrigo Borja of Ecuador, Carlos Salinas de Gortari of Mexico, Luis Alberto Lacalle of Uruguay, and Venezuela's Perez.

The so-called Group of Rio was founded with eight members, and Chile and Ecuador were accepted as members Thursday. Panama was suspended from the group during the government of Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega. The inclusion of Bolivia and Paraguay was expected to be announced Friday.

Perez and Argentine Foreign Minister Domingo Cavallo said oil prices and what they called "Latin American security on energy matters" dominated most of Thursday's four-hour session.

Aylwin on Wednesday suggested the region create a Latin American and Caribbean investment fund with windfall profits generated by high priced oil and sales of other raw materials. He said he would raise the idea at the summit.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Thursday to begin paying nearly half a billion dollars in past dues to the United Nations withheld in recent years because of congressional opposition to its peacekeeping forces.

Reflecting an about-face prompted by the U.N.'s sponsorship of a trade embargo against Iraq, the measure was included as part of a $19.6 billion money bill approved by a 91-7 vote.

But lawmakers had shown no inclination to go along with it until the U.N.'s sharp response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait in August and subsequent taking of American and other foreign hostages.

In addition to the $93 million in past dues, the bill includes $31 million to cover U.S. arrearages for supporting U.N. peacekeeping forces in addition to the $91 million as the American share for their support in the current fiscal year.

The bill now goes to a conference committee to iron out differences with a version passed earlier by the House.

NOTRE DAME VS MIAMI T-SHIRTS

OCTOBER 20, 1990

On the evening of October 20 last year, Zhengde Wang, a Notre Dame graduate student from Tianjin, China, was struck down by a car while walking on Notre Dame Avenue. Zhengde had already received his master's degree in sociology, was pursuing a doctoral degree and was hoping to obtain a law degree from Notre Dame for what would certainly have been a distinguished career in international law. Uninjured at the time of the accident, Zhengde was severely injured and comatose for several months. Now confined to a wheelchair and undergoing therapy, Zhengde is able to recognize old friends and to move his fingers for rudimentary communication, but his recovery is far from complete and far from certain.

Profits derived from the sale of this T-shirt will be donated to Zhengde's family for the enormous expenses this tragedy has inflicted on them.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Thousands of Jews, many carrying guns, danced at the Western Wall to end the Nonstop festival Thursday, answering a government call to assert control over Judaism's holiest site after bloody riots there.

"The large crowd gathered here today shows that nothing in the world can break us," Parliament Speaker Dev Shitlansky told about 35,000 people squeezed into the cobblestone plaza in front of the wall, more commonly known in the West as the Wailing Wall.

Ultra-orthodox Jews carrying sacred Torah scrolls stood side by side with less observant countrymen waving Israeli flags.

Hundreds of riot police, backed by soldiers, were deployed at the Wall and the adjacent Temple Mount. On Monday, at least 19 Palestinians were killed and 140 wounded when police fired at rioters stoning Jewish worshippers at the site.

Many Palestinians living in the nearby Moslem Quarter stayed indoors as policemen escorted singing and dancing Jews into the temple courtyards.

"We will prevent young inciters from reaching the area," said Jerusalem's police commander. Arieh Bibi.

Many worshippers carried submachine guns slung over their shoulders or had pistols tucked into their belts.

"Thousands of people came in answer to those who stoned us. They should learn that Jerusalem is indivisible," Religious Affairs Minister Avner Shaki told the crowd.

In New York City, meanwhile, the U.N. Security Council held consultations to end the stalemate over criticism of the violence in Jerusalem. But a vote was not expected Thursday.

Earlier Thursday, police battled Palestinian protesters in several Jerusalem neighborhoods.

Police fired tear gas and rubber bullets to disperse about 300 Palestinians who tried to march from the city's Shufat refugee camp to an Israeli thoroughfare used by many Israelis.

Gashes were also reported in the Issawiyyeh neighborhood in east Jerusalem.

Police fired tear gas to break up a march by about 150 Palestinians to the Temple Mount. "World, listen to us! We are people who will never submit!" the marchers chanted before being blocked by police from entering the compound.

Inside, several hundred Arabs marched around the Dome of the Rock mosque with outlawed Palestinian flags. They chanted the Muslim battle cry "Allahu Akbar," or God is Great.

Christian leaders, including the Greek Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem, Luufi Laham, marched from the Church of the Holy Sepulcher to the Temple Mount to join Moslem clerics in prayer.

Israeli officials called for the Jewish rally at the Western Wall at the end of the eight-day Sukkot festival. On the final day, Jews carry Torah scrolls in a festival procession.

Israel's two chief rabbis, Avraham Shapiro and Mordechai Eliyahu, had urged Jews to stay away from the processions in Jerusalem instead of in their hometowns to eerie Thursday, police battled Palestinian protesters in several Jerusalem neighborhoods.

Gashes were also reported in the Issawiyyeh neighborhood in east Jerusalem.

Palestinians to the Temple Mount stand two mosques that constitute Islam's third-holiest site. The Moslems say this is where the Prophet Mohammed ascended to heaven.

In Arab east Jerusalem, Palestinian doctors said medical evidence indicated that Israeli police fired wildly in Monday's riot.

"There was indiscriminate shooting. In one case, we found 14 bullets in one man," Dr. Mustafa Barghouti, a physician at east Jerusalem's Mukassaed Hospital, told reporters.

Barghouti said that most of the wounded were struck by live ammunition or plastic bullets, which are lethal at close range.

He said that of the 120 people treated at Makassed and Abu Jeroud hospitals, 92 remained hospitalized. Of those, eight were in critical condition, including a 4-year-old boy with a rubber bullet lodged in his brain, he said.

A Palestinian woman raises her arms in mourning at the Temple Mount on Wednesday for the reportedly 35,000 people killed in Monday's clash with Israeli police. The hand prints on the wall of the Dome of the Rock mosque were reportedly made by victims' blood during Monday's fighting.

African National Congress accused President F.W. de Klerk of negotiating in bad faith Thursday and warned of a renewed armed struggle if peace talks break down.

De Klerk later denied the allegation before leaving for a visit to Britain and Portugal. He said the ANC charge appeared timed to coincide with his trip.

A government minister, meanwhile, criticized an ANC leader's statement that the organization was continuing to recruit fighters for its suspended armed struggle.

ANC spokesman Sakkie Macozoma told a news conference the government reneged on an agreement to release only the ANC's deputy president Nelson Mandela.

After the meeting, de Klerk also announced that ANC and other political exiles could begin applying for permission to return to South Africa. He said there were no guarantees of indemnity from prosecution would be granted.

His statement addressed a key ANC demand, that the estimated 20,000 ANC exiles be permitted to come home.

Macozoma said de Klerk's announcement pre-empted further work by a government-ANC committee studying the issue.

"De Klerk and the government's undermining of efforts to achieve a genuine peace settlement places the whole negotiations process in jeopardy," Macozoma said. He distributed a document Mandela gave de Klerk at the meeting. In it, Mandela warned the ANC would have no choice but to resume its armed struggle if peace talks failed.

The ANC suspended its armed struggle in August as a condition for the talks on ending apartheid and setting up negotiations on power-sharing between the white minority and black majority.

"It should be plainly understood that if we ever, once again, face a situation in which all constitutional avenues for an advance to democracy are closed, we will have no option but to use other methods," the Mandela document said. "If this is war talk, then I too plead guilty."

De Klerk told a hastily arranged airport news conference the ANC statements would not derail negotiations.

"I hope that the leadership of the ANC will also refrain from any act or statement which will unnecessarily endanger this and will make sure of their facts before they make an attack on the integrity of the government," he said.

Gerrit Viljoen, the minister of constitutional development, accused the ANC of violating its agreement to suspend the armed struggle by continuing to recruit fighters. He was referring to comments by Chris Hani, head of the ANC's armed wing, that recruitment continued.

In suspending its armed struggle, the ANC agreed to halt "related activities," Viljoen told a news briefing.

"Related activities" surely must include the recruitment of people for training for armed action, and training and keeping them in camps and having ammunition stores and so on," he said.

Relations between the white-led government and the ANC, the largest black opposition movement, have been strained having ammunition stores and action, and training and keeping them in camps and having ammunition stores and so on," he said.

The fighting in black townships around Johannesburg has pitted Xhosas and other blacks linked to the ANC against Zulu supporters of the conservative Inkatha movement.

Cadets need to face moral dilemmas of combat

Dear Editor:

Recent article by Jeffrey D. Long entitled “ROTC prsonanship contradicts values of Christians In ND community” appeared in Viewpoint (The Observer, Oct. 4). Within the article, Mr. Long, recognizing the fact that “removal of ROTC from Notre Dame is a practical impossibility,” submitted two proposals which would support counsel and financial aid to students requesting conscientious objector status. These measures, although adding forces and differing Christian interpretations of the use of forces, the views of the article’s goals only face the issue of allowing conscientious objectors to leave the services. An encompassing proposal must address both the concern of ROTC cadets with ethical devotion and the ethical awareness of cadets remaining in the armed forces. We feel that if one accepts the U.S. military will not dominate from the near future, it must become the responsibility of Notre Dame to install a high moral standard among the cadets commissioned. Barricading ROTC from ND would not render the military obsolete, but only place the training of future military leaders in less competent hands. Therefore, we believe ROTC and Notre Dame are not incompatible and any attempt to remove ROTC would be irresponsible.

At Notre Dame, we have an enviable opportunity to influence the moral character of the armed forces of the country. There exists no better place to train ROTC cadets and midshipmen, simply because each cadet must be responsible and attempt to answer the ethical dilemmas of combat. Unfortunately, large numbers of cadets at other collegiate institutions are not questioned on their moral beliefs by their universities. Each ROTC program implements extensive moral and ethical training into the program. The results, according to ROTC program.

1) We agree that Notre Dame should establish a “professional University-staffed position as part of Campus Ministry for the counseling of ROTC students.” Yet by ending his proposal with suggestions for counseling for those, “who become conscientious objectors,” Mr. Long limits the scope of the University’s responsibility to train moral cadets. We need a counseling institution that will not only aid conscientious objectors but also, more importantly, help the remaining cadets in two areas. First, counseling should also cover a greater spectrum of the ethical students.

2) The University should offer "War, Law and Ethics" seminars. By focusing classroom instruction and offering this class, many counselors will be able to offer discussion.

3) The University should offer more counseling programs on Notre Dame’s campus (The Observer, Oct. 4). I’d like to ask him a few questions:

Do you believe that the University administration didn’t consider his very concerns about Notre Dame’s Christian character when the campus ROTC programs were conceived? What exactly does he think protects his rights to freely express himself and to attend a Catholic University? What is his definition of a naive idealist? Unfortunately, the world isn’t perfect, and we have to protect ourselves and others who value freedom. Our strong military presence has helped to bring about the freedom presently enjoyed by the people of Eastern Europe. My guess is that the reason for ROTC programs at Notre Dame lies somewhere between the value placed on freedom and a concern for where our future military leaders will come from. Personally, I’d prefer generals who are educated in a religious environment where ethics and people are accorded value.

ROTC program at ND values freedom, ethics

Dear Editor:

I would like to address the starry-eyed lad who challenged the presence of the ROTC programs on Notre Dame’s campus. By focusing classroom instruction and offering this class, many counselors will be able to offer discussion.

On Friday's Chatel 28 News, students criticized ROTC, saying that the ROTC program is in conflict with promotion of spiritual values, that ROTC students should take ethics courses, and that the program should be alternatives to students on ROTC. As a sophomore joining the program I find it morally impossible to continue this program. I will not be wise not to be able to afford a Notre Dame education.

As a sophomore I joined the Army ROTC program voluntarily in order to serve in the Middle East. I was not paying for. I believe that the people who are protesting are somewhat ignorant about what really goes on within the ROTC programs at this University. I believe that the people who are protesting are somewhat ignorant about what really goes on within the ROTC programs at this University. I, in the middle of the FTX, in our barracks, have learned that ROTC is, cold, tired, but we listened. It was an emotional experience and we all sat in spirit.

Peace alternatives: merit financial aid

By Rev. Stephen P. Newton, C.S.C.

Last week the University dedicated the new ROTC building, which is a military program of scholarship for University students who are admitted to the ROTC program but would otherwise be unable to attend undergraduate study because of financial means. The dedication of the ROTC building is a wonderful opportunity to reflect on that program and on certain alternatives to it.

As you are probably aware, there are many classes at Notre Dame that are offered full or partial tuition, in return for which they place students in the service to their country through ROTC. The ROTC is part of the military of the United States. The dedication of the ROTC building is a wonderful opportunity to reflect on that program and on certain alternatives to it.

To help these men and women be all they can be, there are classes at Notre Dame that are offered full or partial tuition, in return for which they place students in the service to their country through ROTC. The dedication of the ROTC building is a wonderful opportunity to reflect on that program and on certain alternatives to it.

When invited to take part in the dedication ceremony, the commandant replied, "ROTC has no interest whatsoever in the maintenance of peace.

There are alternatives possible. One of them is called GIFT (Graduates Interviewing For Tomorrow) and is designed to effect a savings on the cost of education. These savings can be used in a scholarship fund.

Other possibilities could be created. No one raises money for ROTC scholarships, but I would be willing to do so to become part of an organization that is interested in "interest whatsoever" in the issues of faith of the sponsoring institution.

There are also alternatives possible. One of them is called GIFT (Graduates Interviewing For Tomorrow) and is designed to effect a savings on the cost of education. These savings can be used in a scholarship fund.

The dedication of the ROTC building is a wonderful opportunity to reflect on that program and on certain alternatives to it.

Domers at Vito’s Barber Shop

By Dave Kennedy

H

- ey, nice haircut! How much? Five Bucks? Holy—Great Deal!

Such was my reaction when I visited Vito’s Barber Shop recently. Remarkably, the low price is not the most exciting aspect about this particular establishment. When customers walk into that tiny shop on 1523 Lincolnway West, they will feel like they are walking into the Barber Shop Away From Home.

Vito is about as average as a barbershop can get—except for one thing. Tony Bull, the owner of Vito’s since 1945, loves Notre Dame and loves to cut the hair of anyone associated with Notre Dame. He not only loves doing business with Domers, but he tries to make his barbershop a place of worship.

The wheel of pennants, with Lou’s portrait at the heart, need not be feared, for you are at Vito’s, the home of inexpensive, yet quality hair care.

- This ancient mystery, which has haunted men for millennia, demands an answer. But when I entered the McDonalds on 1519 North Ironwood Drive, I was over­come by the unspeakable ecstasy of the splendor of the pebbles of Notre Dame paraphernalia gloriously displayed.
- Lining the walls were photos of such Notre Dame legends as The Four Horsemen, Ara Parseghian, Elmore Layden, and Knute Rockne. A single race ran up my spine as I ate two McDonald’s under their cola gaze.
- Raising my head in praise, I saw a magnificent “University of Notre Dame” neon sign, flickering into eternity. Surely, this was no ordinary fast food establishment. This was a shrine to God and His favorite university.

And that look continues today, with Notre Dame paraphernalia on every wall. On one wall, the Notre Dame campus is inundated with enthusiastic fans. Football weekend after football weekend, there can be little doubt as to how far some will go to show their support. But there are few that go to the extent that Pat’s Colonial Pub has.

- "People come in here hot on topic and excited, and I think that they’re a little bit surprised," said manager Tina Freeman. And indeed, there is an element of surprise. This is far from the traditional colonial pub. Laid off the beaten path at 901 W. 7th Street in Mishawaka, Pat’s Colonial Pub is open for lunch and dinner weekdays.
- Reservations for home football weekends are taken beginning in June for the coming season. Pat’s Colonial Pub is a dark tavern and restaurant, as you eat! The entree will go to the Notre Dame spirit to be witnessed at Pat’s Colonial Pub. As manager, the pub maintains its sense of tradition, both in color and with Notre Dame paraphernalia gleaming. First Friday performs again

First Friday, one of the most exciting Tony then started forming a pinwheel by adding the low playing in his business. Tony felt that the large supply

First Friday was so successful that the band recorded a self-titled album in 1969 and had a contract with James Brown's original record label. "We had about 500 copies that were sold in the bookstore at Saint Mary's and Notre Dame," said Ewan.

"A good level of musicianship for getting together again," Prendergast added. "We had some rare moments in the band members got together for their own party line, there was a rousing success," said Zeller. "First Friday was so successful that the band recorded a self-titled album in 1969 and had a contract with James Brown's original record label. "We had about 500 copies that were sold in the bookstore at Saint Mary's and Notre Dame," said Ewan. "From that album we got a contract to record an album with King Records in Nashville, Tennessee. It was a pretty big budget and when the band went off the air after that we recorded an album that King Records went out of business, so it was never gone."

When Stynes, Zeller and Wallace formed First Friday, they were college students in the bookstore at the Sports Page, a bar located just outside of Palo Alto, California. "We had one rehearsal and we played Saturday night. We had a lot of fun, it was a rousing success," said Zeller. "That's really one of the factors for us getting together again."

Although all of the band members are excited about returning to Notre Dame for their first on-campus concert in 20 years, Stynes, Zeller and Wallace feel that there was a rousing success, "It was a really one of the factors for us getting together again."

The trip to Notre Dame is especially important to Prendergast, who has not been on campus in almost 20 years. "I really love Notre Dame; I really love the experience I had there. No matter how far out I got, the place was still there. I took care of me," he said, "Even though Notre Dame had the best of the band, there was always room for protest." The last time Wallace visited Notre Dame was 1973. "I'm looking forward to performing because I love to perform," he said, "I'm also looking forward to performing on campus because I haven't seen it for so long."

The First Friday reunion may be quite different than the reunions on campus, but the band still plans to perform at the same. "It's great to get together with people," said Ewan. "They're great friends and you never forget the people you knew at Notre Dame."
I have a closet full of records, tapes, and CDs that I've used on my children's radio program in the last fifteen years. Every year, I shop restlessly, looking for fresh presentations of old stories, and spirithuel versions of familiar songs the children love. This year, I can only get scratched records and worn-out tapes that have outlived their promises.

By the time you reach my age, you get to notice that your mind is like a closet where you keep stuff stored. My head feels like a bar of cheese that has been recycled so often it's more trash than the real thing.

This week, when so much attention was paid to "National Coming Out Day," my ear was drawn to a collection of gay students at Notre Dame surfaced, leaving me surprised with the remembrance of sadness I had long lost sight of. Imagine an anonymous caller in a telephone arrangement to go to confession; the caller, however, has no wish to be seen by the priest face to face.

"So could you please, Father, wait in the confessional until I come in, after all the students you wait, Father, until I have left the phone, would you please call me, so that I can remain unknown?" This scenario, with variations, has happened to me many times. The confessional has stopped being surprising when the potter was called to pray.

By 1971, when gays started showing up in my room, singly or in clusters, waiting for me, I looked at them as students in trouble, in need of my help; and so I smothered them with advice that was both wise and foolish.

"What the family suggests that memorial contributions be made to the American Heart Association.

When people want to honor a loved one and fight heart disease.

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Oakland Athletics need another edge.

Now, have the A's steamrolled past the Boston Red Sox in the American League playoffs, now they have all week to prepare for the first game of the World Series.

And don't think it's going to be easy. The Red Sox are a tough team, and they're not going to just roll over for the A's.

But the A's have been preparing for this game all week, and they're ready to take on the Red Sox. And with Barry Bonds on the Pirates, the A's have another edge in this series.

So, let's get ready for Game 1 of the World Series. It's going to be a great game, and I can't wait to see how it plays out.

Oakland's four-game sweep gives it more time to prepare

Oakland's fans hold up brooms in Boston during the AL Championship Series.

Oakland's four-game sweep of the Boston Red Sox gives it more time to prepare for the World Series. The A's swept the Red Sox and now have at least a week to get ready for the final round.

Mariners' pitcher Rick Honeycutt said the A's are 'very, very well-organized' after sweeping the Red Sox.

"I think they probably have done an outstanding job in preparation," Honeycutt said. "I think they've had a little bit of an edge all year.

'Everybody knows the A's are a very, very well-organized team, and they have a lot of experience."

The A's have been playing well all year and have a lot of confidence going into the World Series. They're ready to take on the Pirates and show the world that they're the best team in baseball.

The A's are looking forward to the World Series and are ready to prove that they're the best team in baseball.

Winning pitcher David Sinnes struck out 10 batters in five innings, surrendering four hits and two runs, both earned. Reliever Chris Michalak pitched four scoreless innings for the save, allowing two hits and no walks.

"We were overmatched at the plate, to be honest," said Air Force head coach Paul Mainieri. "We faced one of the best pitchers in the country (Sinnes) tonight."

The cold weather and wooden bats could have affected the scoring output of both teams. Temperatures dipped below 40 degrees as the 3 1/2-hour game drew to a close, and Air Force had not used wooden bats all season until Thursday's pre-game batting practice.

Counsell was on base again in the following inning when Bautch greeted relief pitcher Brody Pettit with a sharp double to left. After Coss struck out looking for the third time of the night, Counsell and Danapilis walked, loading the bases. Jacobs, who had struck out twice in the game, followed with a double off the right field wall, scoring Bautch and Counsell as Danapilis was thrown out at the plate.

IRISH VOLLEYBALL TO FACE BIG 10 FOES

The Notre Dame volleyball team, in a tailspin since day one, will find no relief this weekend as the team faces Indiana and Ohio State at the Joyce AEC.

The Irish (6-11) went .500 this week in Chicago, facing Midwestern Collegiate Conference rivals Loyola and Marquette.

Earlier Tuesday night, the Irish dropped a match to Loyola, 15-6, 15-4, 11-15, 15-10.

The split in Chicago marked the first two games for interim coach Maria Perez, who took over the Irish Monday after Art Lambert resigned.

Notre Dame will face Indiana Friday night at 7:30 p.m. Ohio will visit the JACC at 2 p.m. on Sunday, October 14.

Two receivers hurt in barroom brawl

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — WIDE Receiver's bashing has now spread to New England with a sequel to a recent incident involving two players from the Lions and Patriots.

New England Patriots quarterback Marc Wilson tackles Cincinnati Bengals wide receiver Carl Zander following Zander's 40-yard return of a fumble recovery in their early-season game.

us in the district rankings, so they have to be the favorites.”

The Irish will have to go without senior Jenny Ledrick, who is suffering from a hip problem. She should be able to compete in the MCC championship in two weeks. Junior Sarah Esterline will probably replace Ledrick in today's meet.

The Irish will need better performances from senior Captain Terese Lemanski and junior Diana Bradley if they hope to take first place. Lemanski and Bradley were both bothered by the heat in the Notre Dame Invitational, finishing 50th and 35th, respectively. “We feel a lot more confident knowing that we've beaten Purdue,” said Plane. “Hopefully, we'll be right there tomorrow and continue to improve.”

Ejection of Clemens spaws new disputes concerning players problems with umpires

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Roger Clemens' ejection set up another big battle dispute at the end of the season when the umpires' contract expires. Union president Richie Phillips agreed Thursday that there are several issues to talk about, including the possibility of adding a fifth umpire to every series. But said authority is not one of them.

"That's certainly not a point that should come up in the collective bargaining agreement," Gales said so far off base when he says something like that, 'it's absurd,'" Phillips said. "The umpires' (God of the curve) don't think for one second that the fans come to see umpires umpire. But when Clemens talks about putting something in writing, there is something in writing — the official baseball rules. And those say a player cannot be abusive to an umpire."

Clemens said he did not verbally assault Cooney in Game 4 of the American League playoffs, although anyone with a degree of lip-reading proficiency might not agree. Still to be sorted out is exactly what happened.

"In Washington, where Operation Desert Shield and the recession are the major topics, Massachusetts Rep. Steve Conte brought the Clemens controversy to the House floor. Conte wasn't happy that Boston got swept by Oakland and was especially unhappy with the way Cooney treated the Red Sox pitching star. Cooney "ran against the warning rule of 'let 'em play' when Roger Clemens said 'read my lips' from the mound," Conte said.

The umpire acted, "without warning, without the understanding Clemens was caught up in the heat of battle," Conte said. "Terry 'Looney' Cooney — read my lips!"

That happened leading off the third and subsequently set the tone for that inning.

"He wasn't in the lineup if he continued to play like that."

Dan Bautch doubled, walked twice, and was hit by a pitch. "He hit had a horrible game," said Murphy. "He threw to the third base on a play when he should have thrown to second."

Maybe Murphy wasn't as upset as he leads on. But the fact of the matter is that these problems are things he stresses as "musts." Murphy emphasizes performance, not results; he'd rather see his team perform well and not win a game than play terrible baseball. Good performance breeds good results.

Another thing that is distracting to Murphy is the lack of student support at the Full Classic. Granted it was cold, but the ten or so students that did show up really wasn't enough.

"It's really disappointing that the students don't come out. We have the best facility around—we have to find a way to get students down here. I think the one thing to come out has a good time."

Sophomore Dave Sinnes, a Freshman All-American last year, survived an early inning scare and then settled into a good groove. He struck out 10 men, five looking, in five innings. He had good pop on his fastball, hit the corners well, kept the ball down and threw slider after slider that froze the Air Force hitters.

"He pitched well," said Murphy. "He was one of the premier pitchers in collegiate baseball," said Air Force head coach Paul Mainieri. "Last year we faced him twice. The first time we could have until the win. He struck out six, pitched 4 1/3 innings to record the win. He struck out six, walked none, and gave up neither a hit nor a run."

On the contrary, Murphy wasn't too pleased with the performance of Sinnes. "Sinnes didn't have a good outing at all," said Murphy. "He would have lost a lot of games tonight. That's what he's capable of doing.

We have the best facility here.

But it was a great hit, but he didn't execute later," stated Murphy. "He swung at a 3-1 pitch over his head."

Cincinnati fans offer helping hand as Wyche pays off fine

CINCINNATI (AP) — Bengals fans are chipping in to help coach Sam Wyche pay the estimated $27,500 fine imposed by the NFL for his refusal to let a female writer into the team's locker room.

It's been a lively topic on radio talk shows, and now a window replacement company that uses Wyche as a spokesman placed an ad in Cincinnati's two daily newspapers asking the public to contribute to the
"Sam Wyche Fine Fund."

"It's just an idea I had after watching the game and seeing the controversy," said Mike
Donovan, general manager of Nu Sash's Cincinnati office.

"We're big fans of Sam and wanted to show our support.
We think Sam made a stance and we ought to support him.

Thursday was the first day the two-inch by two-column ad appeared in The Cincinnati
Enquirer and The Cincinnati
Post.

"If you're a Bengals fan, show you care," the ad said.
"We've already gotten a few calls," Donovan said. "A few didn't like the idea, but several did.

"There was one gentleman, who was a little disturbed sounding, who used a little bit of profanity. A woman who called seemed to think it wasn't the right decision for Sam to make.

The incident took place following a Monday night loss in Seattle.

Dame just seemed like where I should be.

"I was impressed with Notre Dame athletics. Here, they stress sports, but they also make sure that you keep up with your studies. It's a real balance. I like the attention that they give to athletics. The athletic staff has done its best to see that we're happy.

Since Dame was also interested in Wisconsin-Madison, Virginia and Stanford, Notre Dame should consider itself fortunate to have such a well-rounded and talented individual as a part of its student body. Just ask Petrucelli.

"I have lots of respect for her as a person and as a player."

I was really nervous about going to college in a different country. Starting school at Notre Dame was my first experience playing a sport in a country other than my own."

Petrucelli, "When she is a senior, lots of people throughout this country will know who she is."

Yet such admiration is mutual.

"Coach Petrucelli is a great coach," said Lester, expressing fitting in and getting to know the girls was easy. "They're the nicest girls."

"I have lots of respect for her as a person and as a player."

"Coach Petrucelli was great. They have been supportive, and I'm sure that they will continue to be supportive.

Miami is a good motivator. He really makes us want to play. I love to play for him."

Of course, Petrucelli was not the only person to welcome Lester to the Irish program. The veteran upperclassmen, although their numbers are few, were also warm hosts.

"I was really nervous about this upcoming first season at the upperclassmen," admitted Lester. "They're the nicest girls. They have a great desire to keep winning. They are motivationally driven."

Pirates, Reds provide drama in NL championship series

Bucs hanging by a thread

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates are trying to make this all very simple: "We have to win two games." Andy Van Slyke said. "All we have to do is win two in a row. We can do that." The Pirates made it all possible by beating Cincinnati 3-2 in Game 5 of the National League playoffs. Wednesday night at Three Rivers Stadium. Before the game, Van Slyke said the Pirates were capable of beating any team three in a row.

In fact, they have done even better than that against the Reds. In mid-August, the Pirates went into Riverfront Stadium and won four straight. "I don't think we need a miracle or anything, just some big hits," Bobby Bonilla said.

The Pirates didn't get many big hits from their big three of Van Slyke, Bonilla and Barry Bonds in the first five games. The trio combined to go 12 for 55 (.218) with no homers and five RBIs.

"We're starting to hit the ball harder," Bonds said. "We're more relaxed and an off-day will help." Eight times in postseason history a team has rebounded from a 3-1 deficit — the Pirates, in the 1925 and 1979 World Series.

"We just have to pull a Kansas City," Van Slyke said. "They were down 3-1 to Toronto in the playoffs and 3-1 to St. Louis in the World Series."

Van Slyke played for the Cardinals when the Royals rallied to win the last three games of the 1985 World Series. "I know it's a cliche, but you really have to take it one game at a time," he said. "If we win Friday, then it's only one more win."

Game 6 is scheduled for Friday at 8:15 p.m. EDT. Zane Smith will pitch for the Pirates against Danny Jackson. There were signs around Three Rivers Stadium on Wednesday night trying to revive the spirit of '79. It must have worked, too.

Cincinnati one victory from World Series

The Reds had dominated the first four games with their bullpen and their defense. The Pirates' only victory, in Game 1, came when left fielder Eric Davis was adjudged a fly ball to let in the winning run.

The Reds won the next three — only the second time since Sept. 1 that they won more than two consecutive games — and were poised to clinch the Series game against third baseman Bobby Bonds.

Bonilla, who scooped Reed's grounder, started the 5-4-3 double play that saved the Pirates from elimination.

"They made a good play. They made the key play," Reed said. "I had to beat the play at first base, and I didn't get down there quick enough."

Irish baseball team grounds ‘overmatched’ Falcons, 8-2
ND beats Air Force despite standing 13 baserunners

By SCOTT BRUTOCAO
Assistant Sports Editor

Head Coach Pat Murphy will tell you he was disappointed with a lot of aspects of Thursday night’s 8-2 win against Air Force at Coveleski Stadium, but any time the Irish beat a team by six runs it can’t be all bad.

In nine innings, the Irish and the Falcons engaged in an affair of hits, stranded baserunners and strikeouts. In all, the Irish batters accumulated 11 hits and stranded 13, while pitchers struck out 15 Falcons.

"There were a lot of disappointing things, but I can’t be too disappointed beating a team in the WAC (Western Athletic Conference)," said Murphy. "Don’t underestimate Air Force. This was a good win for us. Air Force is better than six runs below us."

The WAC contains such traditional powers as San Diego State, Hawaii and Brigham Young. Its record last year was 26-34, 19-13 outside the conference.

The game, televised by Sports Channel, will air nationally on Oct. 20 at 10 a.m. on the day of Notre Dame’s football contest against Miami. The two teams will square off again tonight at Coveleski Stadium at 8:30 p.m.

Murphy troubled by mistakes in Notre Dame win
By MIKE KAMRADT
Sports Writer

If one looks at the steadiness of last night’s Notre Dame baseball game with Air Force at Coveleski Stadium, one would think it was a great night for the Irish. They won 8-2 against a team including three doubles and two triples, and struck out 15 Air Force batters. However, the common fans’ view is not the same as Pat Murphy: "I was disappointed in our play," he said. "We had a lot of bad at-bats. I hope we come back and have a better game tomorrow."

Freshman soccer star makes her mark early
Lester leads Irish in goals and points

By DAVE DIETEMAN
Sports Writer

Who is the top scorer on the Notre Dame women’s soccer team this season? Did you say Susie Zilvitis? Marianne Giolitto? Good guesses, but incorrect. The right answer is a player who is making her presence felt against many teams — is a freshman from Schaumburg, Illinois.

"Can you say Alison Lester? Very good. And so is she."

Over the course of the 1990 season, Lester has fired off 33 shots (third on the team), netting eight goals (first) and four assists (third), for a total of 20 points (first). "I think that Alison Lester is one of the best freshmen around," said Notre Dame head coach Chris Petruccelli. "For her to have the impact that she has had as a freshman is a great accomplishment. She is dangerous every time that she gets the ball, I wouldn’t want to have to play against her."

"I think that she’s a great kid and a lot of fun. I didn’t really know her or anything about her before I came here, but she made an impact the first day of preseason. She has proved that she’s a Division I player. I think that we can build our attack around Alison Lester, and be successful at any level," said Murphy.

At Schaufaugh High School, Lester earned Chicago Tribune and Chicago Sun-Times All-Area and All-City honors for baseball, as well as being picked for All-Academic Team, All-Midwest, All-State, All-Sectional, and All-Conference honors as a senior. In her career at Schaumburg, Lester earned three letters and set records for points in a season (73) and most career goals (51).

One may wonder why such a player would choose to come to Notre Dame. For Lester, that question was not so enigmatic. "I’ve been interested in Notre Dame for a couple of years in high school. I thought that maybe I would have the opportunity to play at Notre Dame. Notre

Women’s cross country team favored to come in first in Indiana meet

By RICHARD MATHURIN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women’s cross country team finally will enter a meet in which it must be considered the favorite.

It has run into such stalwarts as Georgetown, Boston College and Virginia in its first three meets. The Irish travel to Indiana State University to compete in the Indiana Intercollegiates Friday at 4 p.m.

The field includes many of the top Indiana schools, including Purdue, Indiana State, Ball State, Butler and Evansville.

Purdue appears to be the best of that group, ranking high in the district rankings. The Irish, however, defeated Purdue in last week’s Notre Dame Invitational and might have an advantage in this week’s event.

"We beat Purdue last week," said Head Coach Joe Plane, "but they still are higher than...

Women’s hoops lands top player

USA Today called it a "recruiting coup.

The Notre Dame women’s basketball team has received a verbal commitment from Michelle Marciniak, a five-foot nine-inch guard from Allentown (Pa.) Central Catholic High School.

Marciniak is probably the top player in the country.

She averaged 26 points per game as a junior and was named to the junior national team today first-team All-American squad. She also earned a gold medal with the East team at the U.S. Olympic Festival last summer.

This is an unusual commitment not because Marciniak chose Notre Dame, but because she announced her decision without visiting the school.

"When (head) coach (Muffet) McGraw and coach (Dave) Glass came in for the home visit, there was just something there," Marciniak said. "I just had the feeling that was where I wanted to go to school. It was all I was looking for."

McGraw’s presentation must have been outstanding because it is not every year that the top player in the country chooses her school without an official visit. Marciniak will make her first trip to Notre Dame next weekend.

Marciniak had narrowed her choices to Stanford, Tennessee, Texas, Rutgers and Notre Dame.

"It’s a great school for athletes academically," Marciniak said of Notre Dame. "That had a lot to do with it. As far as the basketball programs, I’d say they’re already one of the top 25 teams in the country.

Marciniak was definitely one of the most highly recruited high school seniors. She said that much of her time was spent answering mail or talking with college recruiters.

By making her decision now, Marciniak can concentrate on what looks to be an outstanding senior season.

"I think it’s a big advantage," she said. "I’ve been recruited pretty heavily for about three years. It’s been a long process. It was a big burden off my shoulders."

She also has her goals set high for the coming
Multi-lingual
Language is first priority for Andre Jones

By FRANK PASTOR
Associate Sports Editor

When he's not interdicting opponents' communications lines on the football field, Andre Jones is breaking down communications barriers off it.

Notre Dame's senior outside linebacker and third-leading tackler (28, placing him behind Michael Stongebroke and Chris Zorich) speaks fluent English and Spanish, and studies both Russian and Japanese.

A government major with a concentration in international relations, Jones has set his sights on a career as a translator, but those plans are flexible enough to allow for a stint as a professional football player should that possibility arise.

"I definitely want to play pro football," says Jones, "but I would like to get a job in Washington or overseas as a translator. I will probably take the Foreign Service Exam or go to Russia and finish my second major (Russian)."

The Hyattsville, Md., native grew up just minutes from Washington, D.C., the nation's center for government and foreign policy. The road which may eventually lead Jones back to his hometown has been long and, at times, winding.

In a four-year career comprised of equal parts injury, inconsistency and changing expectations, the one constant has been academics.

Both of Jones's parents are college graduates and his godfather, Frank (Nordy) Hoffman, played on Knute Rockne's 1930-31 national championship team.

"He was one of the Seven Mules who blocked for the Four Horsemen," says Jones with more than a hint of pride.

Actually, Hoffman started at left tackle in 1930-31 (earning All-America honors in '31), five years after the Four Horsemen rode to victory in the '25 Rose Bowl. Still, the implication remains.

His brother, Clarence, Jr., is a West Point graduate currently studying law at Indiana. Andre nearly became a Cadet as well.

"I was going to go to the academy and run the option for them," said Jones. "I didn't realize there was a five-year commitment."

Instead, Jones committed himself to Notre Dame for four years, where he was projected as an outside linebacker. He had 87 tackles, 16 sacks and six interceptions in his senior year at DeMatha High School, the same school which spawned former Irish basketball All-American Adrian Dandley.

Jones was named Maryland defensive player of the year and first-team all-metro by the Washington Post and Washington Times. He also was chosen to play in the Maryland-Pennsylvania Big 33 all-star game.

Jones ranked second in minutes played among Notre Dame defense during his four years at Notre Dame.

"We just want to go out and take care of business," says Jones.

As a sophomore, Jones again played in all 12 games, earning starts at drop end against Michigan, Michigan State, Purdue and Navy. He pushed Arnold Ale for the starting defensive end spot during '89 spring drills and claimed the position when Ale transferred to UCLA.

"I couldn't play in the game."

Jones finished seventh on the team in tackles with 49 in '89, missing every game except Michigan, Michigan State and Penn State.

During the regular season, watched from the sidelines as his teammates whipped the Buffaloes, 21-6.

Jones finished seventh on the team in tackles with 49 in '89, missing every game except Michigan, Michigan State and Penn State. He also recorded the first touchdown return of a blocked PAT attempt with a 92-yard runback against SMU.

Notre Dame completed its '89 schedule with an 11-1 record and earned a berth in the Orange Bowl against top-ranked Colorado. Jones, whose quickness and agility vastly improved the Irish pass coverage and pursuit during the regular season, watched from the sidelines as his teammates whipped the Buffaloes, 21-6.

Academics were the reason Jones and defensive tackle Bob Dahl missed the most important game of the season.

"Coach Holtz promised me I'd walk away from Notre Dame with my degree," says Jones. "I had Russian and Japanese exams coming up and I made the choice to study, so I couldn't practice. And since I couldn't practice, I couldn't play in the game."

"I took it pretty hard, but I think it made me a stronger person."

To his credit, Jones has learned to live with his decision.

"I learned," says Jones, "that when something goes wrong, I need to listen to the coaches instead of resisting them. That really made a difference in my game."

Defensive coordinator Gary Darnell's new defensive scheme also has made a difference in Jones's game.

"It opened me up a little bit more," says Jones. "It lets me use my speed to chase people down and make tackles flexibly enough to allow for a stint as a professional football player should that possibility arise."

Wishbone could give Notre Dame problems

Notre Dame is finding out how much difference a week makes heading into Saturday's game with Air Force.

And the Falcons are finding out how much difference a year makes.

The Irish were unbeaten and held the top ranking in the country before losing to Stanford last Saturday. They lost the game 36-31, their top ranking and maybe a shot at the national championship.

Air Force has struggled in '90 without Dowis, posting a 12-1 record. The Falcons average 4.3 rushing yards per carry and 257 rushing yards per game, while the Falcons are 3.6 yards per carry and 120 total yards per game.

Something will have to give between the Air Force running game and the Notre Dame defense. The Falcons average 4.3 yards per carry and 257 rushing yards per game, while the Irish hold up just 3.6 yards per carry and 120 total yards per game.

Notre Dame has had success against a tough Air Force running game in the past. In 1988, the Falcons were ranked first nationally averaging 422 rushing yards, but the Irish held them to 170 yards. In 1989, the Falcons were first again with 449 rushing yards per game, but the Irish held them to 168 yards.

The inexperienced Irish secondary could get a breather this weekend. The Falcons have passed for only 189 total yards, an average of 31.5 yards per game. In contrast, Notre Dame quarterback Rick Mirer throws for over 170 yards per game.

Something will also give between the Air Force defense and the Notre Dame offense. The Irish rush for 237 yards per game, while the Falcons allow just 108 yards on the ground per game. The Falcons allowed Navy just 31 net rushing yards last weekend.

If the Irish cannot run, Mirer could have success in the air. Air Force gives up 205 passing yards per game. Mirer has throws for 685 yards in his first four games.

Senior linebacker Brian Hill is continuing a brilliant defensive career for the Falcons. After leading the team in tackles in 1988 and 1989, Hill is tops again with 55 in the first six games.

Both Air Force and Notre Dame have good kicking games. Falcon junior Joe Wood has hit 10 of 11 field goal attempts this season, including a career-best three last weekend against Navy from 32, 34 and 47 yards. He is on pace to set the all-time field goal mark for Air Force.

Notre Dame's Craig Henrich is averaging 45 yards per punt and has hit 4 of 5 field goals. That punting average would set a new Notre Dame mark if he can maintain it throughout the season.

FALCON FACES TO WATCH

Fisher DeBerry

In his seventh season as head coach, DeBerry has a 51-28-1 record. He has led the Falcons to four bowl appearances in the past six seasons. His 1985 team was ranked fifth in the country after it posted a 12-1 record.

Jarvis Baker

Baker has started the past two games after Ron Gray injured his knee in warmups against Wyoming. Baker has completed 5 of 17 passes for 79 yards and has rushed 52 times for 149 yards.

Rodney Lewis

The senior fullback has carried the ball 70 times for 279 yards and one touchdown. He is a threat running outside of the wishbone offense. Lewis gained 1,063 yards in 1989 as a junior.

JASON JONES

The junior fullback has carried 61 times for 322 yards and two touchdowns. Along with Lewis, he is one of Air Force's leading threats outside of the wishbone. He gained 193 yards in 1989 as a sophomore.

Joe Wood

The junior placekicker has converted 10 of 11 field goals this season. He was third on the Air Force team in scoring with 78 points, connecting on 10 of 13 field goals.
Pro wrestling was first love for Greg Davis

By SCOTT BRUTOCOA Assistant Sports Editor

To most of the Notre Dame faithful, the legendary Four Horsemen is synonymous with ballcarrying excellence, but to strong safety Greg Davis, it means something much different.

To Davis, the Four Horsemen are not just Dan Miller, Elmer Layden, Harry Stuhldreher and Jim Crowley. These fellows may have assailed the Irish with defensive lines for the Irish in the 1920's, but the Four Horsemen that Davis always has known are pro wrestlers.

"The Four Horsemen were the bad guys," recalls Davis, who as a child watched the wrestlers on television. "They beat people up, hit them when they weren't looking, and all that illegal stuff. My brothers and I imitated them, pretending we were the horsemen. Everybody beat up on one person.

It wasn't just the Horsemen. He and his brothers had pictures of wrestlers all over their room: Ric Flair, "Jake the Snake", "Hacksaw" Jim Duggan, "Bruiser" Brody, the "Great Mephisto" and, of course, Kamala, the Ugandan Giant.

"We were all going to be pro football players. If we were pro wrestlers, we'd even make the tag on the last play," said Davis.

Through his days of growing up in Hollywood, Fla., Davis gradually abandoned his hopes of reaching the pro ranks on the football field. His older brother Benny's considerable success in college wrestling in high school—he finished second in the state one year—Davis watched with envy.

"I always liked football, but I wasn't a star, and I wouldn't have played because my mom didn't want me to," said Davis. "But my brothers said, 'Aw, let him play,' and that's how I got to be able to play."

Davis dabbed a little in high school wrestling, as he played two years of football and also earned four letters in track. In football, he did not play during his junior year because of a pulled hamstring, Davis was asked to contribute as the only upperclassman on the secondary. Lyght's fill-in, Greg Lane, and free safety Tom Carter are freshmen, and cornerbacks Reggie Brooks is a sophomore.

"Todd Lyght was kind of the leader of the secondary," says Davis. "He had been in all those situations before. We had confidence in Greg Lane's ability, but it was different not seeing Todd in there."

"I think in practice more guys were looking up toward me. It's natural, looking for upperclassmen to see certain things."

When the underclassmen watched Davis saw a player that has paid his dues in his earlier years and now is getting his playing time. During the preseason drills in his freshman year, Davis switched from running back to the secondary. In the midst of a transition from offense to defense, he did not play during his freshman year.

As a sophomore, he earned the backup strong safety position behind veteran George Streeter and played extensively on special teams. In the following year he played in all 13 games behind another veteran at strong safety, senior D'Juan Francisco. Recording 23 tackles, Davis also appeared in 80特殊 teams plays.

The youngest of six children, Davis was the only one to attend a four-year university.

"I think about my family a lot," says Davis. "In a way, I'm doing all this for them. Everybody wants to be proud of me and have confidence in me."

Having secured the starting spot at free safety this season and played solidly throughout, Davis seems to have given his family reason to be confident. Notre Dame coaches in particular have come to rely on him on this 6-1, 205-pound senior's consistency on a young and inexperienced secondary.

"I think Greg Davis has been playing consistently well," said Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz. "Greg Davis has played well for what we've asked him to do."

In the absence of All-America cornerback Todd Lyght, who missed games against Michigan State and Purdue this season because of a pulled hamstring, Davis has been asked to contribute as the only upperclassman on the secondary. Lyght's fill-in, Greg Lane, and free safety Tom Carter are freshmen, and cornerbacks Reggie Brooks is a sophomore.

"Todd Lyght was kind of the leader of the secondary," says Davis. "He had been in all those situations before. We had confidence in Greg Lane's ability, but it was different not seeing Todd in there."

This season his tally already is up to 18, sixth-best on the team. And look for Davis more in games such as Air Force, because he thrives on offenses like the Falcons' wishbone, in which the offense, rolling right or left, has many options to whom it can flip the ball.

"I like to get a pick (interception) every now and then, but I like to play against the run more than the pass," says Davis, who has not gotten his preference against offenses like Purdue's run-and-shoot and Stanford's quick-pass. "It seems like you get more involved with the wishbone. You find a way to get involved."

In the last two games, Notre Dame has allowed 354 and 256 passing yards against Purdue and Stanford, respectively. This week it has switched gears and has been preparing for the run.

"We've pretty much been a little more intense in practice," says Davis. "We know that to be a great football team we have to be better as a defensive unit. Everybody knows what we have to do. Basically we just try to communicate from each other, and we just have to keep getting better."

When Air Force ruled the Irish

By KEN TYSIAC

It is unlikely that many of Notre Dame's football players will give much thought to the Air Force team that is coming into Notre Dame Stadium this weekend.

The Falcons are 30-point underdogs against the Irish. They have lost their last four outings with the Irish. But Air Force was not always regarded so lightly in South Bend.

For a period of four years during Gerry Faust's tenure as head coach of Notre Dame, the Irish could not buy a victory against the Falcons. At one time Notre Dame was 11-0 versus Air Force, but the Falcons beat Notre Dame four straight times from 1982-1985, ousting the Irish 95-61. The Falcons gave Faust a nervous time.

"You talk about purgatory, I've been through purgatory with a capital 'P," Faust said before his last match-up with the Falcons in 1985.

The Irish went on to lose that game as they did the next seven, 57-yard field goal attempt by John Carney with 38 seconds left and defensive back A.J. Scott ran it back 77 yards for a touchdown. The field goal would have given Notre Dame an 18-13 lead. Instead, the touchdown and subsequent two-point conversion provided the winning margin in a 21-15 Air Force victory.

That loss was especially bitter for the Irish, who had led Air Force on a blocked kick just two years earlier. In that 1983 match, Mike Johnston's 31-yard field goal attempt was knocked to the ground as time expired to seal a 23-22 Falcon victory.

That loss overshadowed an24-19 performance by Irish tailback Allen Pinkett, who rushed for 137 yards and caught five passes for 93 additional yards.

Faust just couldn't seem to figure out how to stop Air Force's wishbone offense.

"I think one of the problems is that not too many teams run that type of wishbone," Faust said in 1985. "This presents problems when you don't have the opportunity to run against it week in and week out. And they are so well disciplined. With the type of players they have, I'd run exactly the same thing if I was at the Air Force Academy."

In 1996, first-year Irish coach Lou Holtz was determined to put an end to Notre Dame's losing streak against the Falcons.

"I don't think I have to say an awful lot about that. The main thing was to do is we just want to win. I'm tired of it. I know the players are tired of it. It's unbelievable the way the players have hung in there over this thing. Our players don't need to be reminded that we've lost," Holtz said before the Irish went out and unannihilated the Falcons 31-3.

Since Holtz took over, Notre Dame has a winning streak of seven in this series, and now is 15-5-1 against the Falcons in 1986, first-year Irish coach Lou Holtz was determined to put an end to Notre Dame's losing streak against the Falcons.

Since Holtz took over, Notre Dame has a winning streak of seven in this series, and now is 15-5-1 against the Falcons.

This year's Falcon team is even weaker. The Irish are not likely to lose any sleep over their opponents this week. But don't expect Faust, now head coach at Akron to add Air Force to the Eagles' schedule. He's probably glad that he has escaped his annual bout with purgatory.

Michigan teams set for Big 10 showdown

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) - Michigan State coach George Perles wants his Spartans to underplay the Irish, who bring a new challenge - an old rival, maybe, but a new challenge.

Michigan State (1-2) travels to Ann Arbor to meet No. 1 Michigan (2-0) Saturday in a game with renewed impor­ance.

The Wolverines are playing for a Rose Bowl bid and possible national championship. Faust has lived up to high expectations, the Spartans fell out of the rankings last week. Michigan State and Iowa, and now are struggling to stay in the Big Ten race.

"The first thing we have to do is go back to basics and fund­amentals," Faust said. "You have to make sure you're doing those things well and then just get better. I don't like to un­derstanding that every Saturday is a new challenge."

Michigan State's biggest chal­lenge may be to stop the run­ning game of Michigan, who has 672 yards and six touchdowns and averages 168.8 yards per game.

Michigan averages 481 yards a game, 304 of them on the ground. The Spartans average 376 yards in total offense, 202 on the ground.

"Our line has had some time together," Wolverines blocking back Jared Buech said. "That extra year is what's made them so good right now. But anytime we play a team like this it's al­ways been a hard-fighting game. I think it's going to be a real good game Saturday."

Tico Duckett has rushed for 489 yards and two touchdowns this season.

The Wolverines won their last national title in 1948 Michigan is trying to become the first team to win three straight Big Ten titles outright and the first to play in three straight Rose Bowl games since the Wolverines did it in 1977, 78 and 79 seasons.

The rest of Saturday's sched­ule is shown in box below. In four straight victories, the Irish have won nine straight games.

Although Michigan State has allowed just 9.7 points per game, sixth in the nation, but that's after playing the likes of Appalachian State. North Carolina State has allowed just 39.1 points per game, sixth in the nation, but that's after playing the likes of Appalachian State.

Tennessee leads its series with Florida 13-6 and has an offense that averages 41.6 points per game. The Vols are 4-2-1 point favorites.

Jones

Jones on the other side of the field. Now I have a direct read, so I read things faster.

"It has helped me get around to being a year round sport and the production of the players remain a possibility for the upcoming season with senior leader­ship.

"I have to step up to the front and provide leadership," Jones says. "My job is to show them the way."

The Irish took a wrong turn on the way to the national championship last week in their 36-31 loss to Stanford, but Jones remains optimistic about Notre Dame's shot at the na­tional title.

"I expect circumstances to change," Jones says. "We have seven more games against top 20 opponents. I feel that in the next seven games, we'll change a lot of negative opin­ions."
