By SHANNON RYAN
News Writer

Move[d] to act by whatever means necessary. An irremovable response to Iraq's aggression upon the part of the U.S. government, Father Roberto Bosetti, president of the International Golf Peace Team in a peace camp outside the Iraqi border prior to the start of the war.

The intention of the camp was to be neutral," Bosetti told his audience Wednesday. "The human rights violations that had already been committed would be deplored, but also to be deplored and resisted was the impending war," he said. "That is the people's mission and their voice."

According to Bosetti, the creation of this movement half way across the southern Arabian Gulf by representatives from 16 nations seeking to give non-violent testimony to the war and to both Iraq and international authorities that "the civilians are standing firmly, and posted signs in both English and Arabic," he said. "We don't know what to do next, peace be with you," he said.

"I was embarrassingly safe at the camp," said Bosetti. "I was in no physical danger." Despite these assertions, the campers were well known as the Middle East to talk to as many people as possible and get them aware of the name of God is being done over there in our name," said Bosetti, who is himself a military veteran. "I want people to stop being so rigidly opposed to war and 'liberation' and examine what is the moral influence and purpose of this war."

According to Bosetti, the U.S. did not intervene in other cases where human rights were violated such as Turkey's invasion of Cyprus and the Israeli shelling of Beirut, "the only conclusion can be that if U.S. intervention was done because of the Western interest at stake. "The U.S. wants to assert itself as the accepted police officer of the world for the terms it expresses in its own interests," Bosetti said. "What better way than to control the oil states (Iran and Germany) than to control the oil of Kuwait when they are utterly dependent upon it?"

Bosetti is critical, too, of the media stories which claim that 80% of the American public support George Bush's polices.

Harvard professor encourages diversity

By KATE MANUEL

Because resisting diversity leads to conflict and even war, the survival of a society depends upon its learning the lessons that can be taught by groups marginal to it, said Charles Hamilton, chairman of the education and urban studies at Harvard University.

Cross-cultural relations, like all other societies, include dominants and subdominants, said Hamilton, and subdominant people of power, said Willie. The subdominant people of power meet the needs of a society by controlling its resources, while the subdominant people of power alert the dominants to needed changes when the society is not working effectively, he said.

The university administration needs to tune its ear to the specific grievances of the minorities at the institution and realize that there are no universal remedies to placate minorities everywhere, said Willie, a lifelong activist against racial and sexual oppression.

"A college campus needs to listen carefully to its minorities. It's the better part of wisdom to listen. In our culture, the subdominant people of power are essential to the university's organization, including a universal one," he said. "The institution, including universities, seldom knows it is being used; it needs to be told."

He hoped this would lead the dominant people of power, who are unlikely to listen to needs they do not wish to hear, to be receptive to minority needs if the minority is involved in these needs.

Subdominant people of power will be effective in communicating social needs if they are diverse by group of majority they are color-coded by groups, he said. Therefore, the demands will be presented by people like those who are most affected. In some cases, they alert the dominant people of power to their needs. If the prevailing demands should not be a factor influencing the media, they will be effective anyway.

Although he would like to see a change in the attitude and orientation of listening, Willie said, "I have come back from the Middle East to talk to as many people as possible and get them aware of the name of God is being done over there in our name," said Bosetti, who is himself a military veteran. "I want people to stop being so rigidly opposed to war and 'liberation' and examine what is the moral influence and purpose of this war."

Rethinking war objectives

By BY MEGAN JUNIUS

A man was verbally assaulted by another man in the men's tenth floor bathroom on Wednesday, according to_RET Akow, director of Security.

Although the suspect described inappropriate comments to the victim, no physical harm took place, he said.

The victim described the suspect as a middle-aged white male with a hacking hand and wearing a red ski-jacket, Rakow said.

This description matches the description of a suspect in a similar instance last semester.

Although this was the first case of harassment reported this semester, several cases of the same sort were reported, according to Security last semester. Usually these cases occur in an upper floor bathroom of the library, Rakow said, however, there have been two instances on the sixth floor and one on the second floor.

"We strongly encourage anyone who suffers from any sort of harassment to immediately report it to Security," Rakow said.

Harvard professor encourages diversity

By KATE MANUEL

Because resisting diversity leads to conflict and even war, the survival of a society depends upon its learning the lessons that can be taught by groups marginal to it, said Charles Hamilton, chairman of the education and urban studies at Harvard University.

Cross-cultural relations, like all other societies, include dominants and subdominants, said Hamilton, and subdominant people of power, said Willie. The subdominant people of power meet the needs of a society by controlling its resources, while the subdominant people of power alert the dominants to needed changes when the society is not working effectively, he said.

The university administration needs to tune its ear to the specific grievances of the minorities at the institution and realize that there are no universal remedies to placate minorities everywhere, said Willie, a lifelong activist against racial and sexual oppression.

"A college campus needs to listen carefully to its minorities. It's the better part of wisdom to listen. In our culture, the subdominant people of power are essential to the university's organization, including a universal one," he said. "The institution, including universities, seldom knows it is being used; it needs to be told."

He hoped this would lead the dominant people of power, who are unlikely to listen to needs they do not wish to hear, to be receptive to minority needs if the minority is involved in these needs.

Subdominant people of power will be effective in communicating social needs if they are diverse by group of majority they are color-coded by groups, he said. Therefore, the demands will be presented by people like those who are most affected. In some cases, they alert the dominant people of power to their needs. If the prevailing demands should not be a factor influencing the media, they will be effective anyway.

Although he would like to see a change in the attitude and orientation of listening, Willie said, "I have come back from the Middle East to talk to as many people as possible and get them aware of the name of God is being done over there in our name," said Bosetti, who is himself a military veteran. "I want people to stop being so rigidly opposed to war and 'liberation' and examine what is the moral influence and purpose of this war."

Rethinking war objectives

By BY MEGAN JUNIUS

A man was verbally assaulted by another man in the men's tenth floor bathroom on Wednesday, according to_RET Akow, director of Security.

Although the suspect described inappropriate comments to the victim, no physical harm took place, he said.

The victim described the suspect as a middle-aged white male with a hacking hand and wearing a red ski-jacket, Rakow said.

This description matches the description of a suspect in a similar instance last semester.

Although this was the first case of harassment reported this semester, several cases of the same sort were reported, according to Security last semester. Usually these cases occur in an upper floor bathroom of the library, Rakow said, however, there have been two instances on the sixth floor and one on the second floor.

"We strongly encourage anyone who suffers from any sort of harassment to immediately report it to Security," Rakow said.

Harvard professor encourages diversity

By KATE MANUEL

Because resisting diversity leads to conflict and even war, the survival of a society depends upon its learning the lessons that can be taught by groups marginal to it, said Charles Hamilton, chairman of the education and urban studies at Harvard University.

Cross-cultural relations, like all other societies, include dominants and subdominants, said Hamilton, and subdominant people of power, said Willie. The subdominant people of power meet the needs of a society by controlling its resources, while the subdominant people of power alert the dominants to needed changes when the society is not working effectively, he said.

The university administration needs to tune its ear to the specific grievances of the minorities at the institution and realize that there are no universal remedies to placate minorities everywhere, said Willie, a lifelong activist against racial and sexual oppression.

"A college campus needs to listen carefully to its minorities. It's the better part of wisdom to listen. In our culture, the subdominant people of power are essential to the university's organization, including a universal one," he said. "The institution, including universities, seldom knows it is being used; it needs to be told."

He hoped this would lead the dominant people of power, who are unlikely to listen to needs they do not wish to hear, to be receptive to minority needs if the minority is involved in these needs.

Subdominant people of power will be effective in communicating social needs if they are diverse by group of majority they are color-coded by groups, he said. Therefore, the demands will be presented by people like those who are most affected. In some cases, they alert the dominant people of power to their needs. If the prevailing demands should not be a factor influencing the media, they will be effective anyway.

Although he would like to see a change in the attitude and orientation of listening, Willie said, "I have come back from the M
Notre Dame's little known 'Mystic Places'

Eighty-eight days. That's how many days remain until the class of 1991 bids a fond farewell to Notre Dame. Some of us won't return to campus for a long time; the rest of us will start popping up in Absit Accent Editor plaid pants for the next home football game.

Since my days at Notre Dame are numbered, I thought I would take time out to mention some of the places on campus that I would like to visit before I graduate, and ask the readers if they know what people do in these hidden niches under the Dome.

14TH FLOOR 'BRAE': What goes on in this part of the building, no one imagined that it has a dance floor with pulsating lights and a disco glitter ball that descends from the ceiling, while a bunch of priests boogie down to 'Pump up the Jam'.

3RD FLOOR 'BRAE': This is that missing floor that most of the elevators bypass. I haven't got a clue what they have in there. Actually, there are a lot of places in the 'Brae' that I haven't visited yet but I would like to check out, like the Medieval Institute and the Rare Books Room.

But enough about the 'Brae'. There are plenty of other places on campus I have yet to visit.

BIO-RADIUATION LAB: I'd like to take a peek inside, but I think I'll pass on taking a tour of this thing. I envision that our radiation lab is extremely safe, but with my luck I'd probably end up fitting some switch and recreate the scrubdown sequence from 'Silkwood.'

WASHINGTON HALL ATTIC: For four years I've heard the rumors about ghosts and ghouls hiding out in Washington Hall. It's about time that somebody volunteered to find out once and for all if there is anything coherent breaking parietals in the building. Maybe that's why the tortured spirits were forced to roam the attic of Washington Hall in the first place.

That pretty much covers the list of places I've always wanted to visit before I leave home. The next time the campus map made me think about two more places to investigate:

党的“党” line calls result in rape

DETROIT — There's no easy answer to keeping children from calling "party lines" like the one an 11-year-old girl used to meet a man accused of raping her, Michigan Bell says. Police on Tuesday were seeking a warrant for a 24-year-old man being held as a suspect in Saturday's rape. The girl got the number from a schoolmate, called Friday, and spoke to a man who gave her a second number at which to call him, her mother said. They spoke again Saturday, when she gave the man her address. And another man came to the house Saturday while her parents were out and was forced by the girl's 8-year-old brother. One of the men raped the girl, said Officer Allene Ray, a police spokeswoman. Contrary to earlier reports, Ray said only one of the men was involved in the rape.

CAMPUS

Notre Dame — On Saturday, Feb. 23 a CPR certification course will be offered beginning at 12 noon. Instructors will be available at the Rockome Memorial in Room 218 to rectify any individuals in Adult, Infant, and Child, or BLS CPR, and Standard First Aid. A current certification or one that has expired within the last 30 days is required to take this challenge. Call 239-5297 to sign up. There will be a $3 fee.

INDIANA

Purdue University employee killed

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — A Purdue University employee was killed Wednesday when a gunman shot her as she worked at her desk, officials said. "Apparently the gentleman with the gun fired at close range, within 6 feet. After he fired the shots he turned and walked about 90 feet," said Jeanne Norberg, director of the Purdue News Service. "He set his gun on a secretary's desk and said, "Call the police." Robert Lyon, 39, of Lafayette was arrested shortly after the 9:30 p.m. shooting at Freshater Hall and questioned at the Purdue University Police Department.

due today. Turn them in at the Student Government Office on the second floor of LaFortune. It is a non-credit class held every Thursday. Anyone who is interested is welcome to attend.

An Amnesty International Urgent Action Meeting will take place tonight at 7 p.m. in the CSC Coffeehouse. Everyone is asked to attend.

All GOLDEN TICKET winners should attend General Admission $ 3 for AnTostal "97 "The Best College Spring Festival." It will take place at 9 p.m. in the Hesburgh Library Auditorium. Prizes for "The Best Fundraiser" will be awarded at this time. If you won a GOLDEN TICKET please attend so you have the chance to win a VCR, 12 Pizzas at Barnabas's or a $ 50 gift certificate to the ND Bookstore.

On February 21:

In 1866: Lucy B. Hobbs became the first woman to graduate from a medical school in the United States.

In 1916: The longest and bloodiest battle of World War I — the Battle of Verdun — was fought in France.

In 1947: Edwin H. Land, founder of the Polaroid Corporation, died of a heart attack. He was 59 years old.

In 1965: Black activist Malcolm X was shot to death by members of the Nation of Islam.

In 1972: President Nixon began his historic visit to mainland China.
Bosse participates in peace camp in Iraq

By PAUL PEARSON
Assistant News Editor

The American public has not received a fair picture of Saddam Hussein or of the Persian Gulf War, said Father Bob Bossie, who spent four weeks with a peace group in Iraq.

"This war is not being fought against Saddam Hussein and his troops. It is being fought against the Iraqi people," Bossie said at a press conference Wednesday.

Bossie said that while he does not defend Saddam Hussein's human rights violations, he did not think the press had given an accurate picture of him. "Saddam is not the biggest devil in the Middle East. He chose to go to Iraq with the international peace group because they wanted to show that they were willing to put themselves at risk in order to achieve peace."

Bossie recalled the words of an Iraqi middle class woman who was interviewed after her neighborhood was bombed. "She said, "Why are you doing this? Are you doing it for the oil in the ground? You should be ashamed!"

Also at the press conference, the NDP Gulf Crisis Action Group released a letter sent to President Bush concerning the recent proposals for a negotiated end to the Gulf War.

The letter, in part, condemned the continuation of the war, saying that it "will not contribute to lasting peace in the region."

Saint Mary's students:

Win!

• 2 American Airlines tickets
• Free long distance calls
• Gift certificates
• A variety of other prizes

Volunteers are needed for the College's Spring Phonathon Feb. 17-28 (Sun-Thurs.), 6-10 p.m.

Third Floor, Haggerty College Center

Assist for just 2 hours any night and have a chance at winning one of more than 50 individual prizes and awards!

For more information, call The Division of College Relations, 284-4706

Thank you to all foodservice employees and student workers for JPW.

We couldn't have done it without your help.

University Food Services

Mind/body problem explored

By ANN MARIE HARTMAN
News Writer

Although it has yet to be proven, the mind is nothing other than the brain, said Professor Patricia Churchland of her research Wednesday, during her lecture "The Neurobiology of Mind."

Churchland began her speech discussing the long-time belief that there is a distinction between the physical brain and the composition of the mind.

Scientists have gone against this belief and tried to apply the qualities of the human cell to human experience.

Churchland posed the question to the audience as to how scientists can perform such research. She described the mind as being the part of the human that "feels, thinks, or perceives...the mind survives the death of the brain."

Through various examples, Churchland showed that the mind is indeed part of the physical brain. In one case, she cited when a neurological disorder distorted the mind's ability to perceive correctly.

In this case, the patient was looking at a drawing of two houses. The houses were identical except that the one pictured on the left had flames coming from the left side of the roof and the other house did not.

Because of a neurological disorder called "Hemineglect" where in general terms, only half the brain's sensory capabilities are utilized, the patient identified the houses as being exactly the same.

This example supported Churchland's claim that the physical part of the brain did indeed affect the mind in its ability to perceive, thus, indicating a physical link between the brain and the mind.

Churchland said that there is a call for "co-evolution" research at "higher levels" with "more realistic and simplified models of areas of both the physical brain and the psychology of the mind."

The philosophers were then followed by the teachings of Freud who deals with questions of the mind and how it relates to free will and determination.

Churchland's lecture fits in by discussing the physical elements of the brain and how the "networking of many cells" plays a role in the working of the mind.

"We (humand are meat machines," Churchland said, and we need to understand what this means to each of us as individuals."

The lecture given by Churchland was also sponsored by the department of Biological Sciences; the department of philosophy; the Rayburn Center for Science, Technology and Values; and the Continuing Medical Education Center of St. Joseph County.

Women mix pregnancy and alcohol

CHICAGO (AP) — The drinking rate among pregnant women has declined overall, but not significantly for mothers-to-be who are young, less educated or who smoke, researchers say.

Interviews with 1,712 pregnant women in 21 states showed that overall, alcohol consumption fell from 32 percent to 20 percent between 1985 and 1988, according to a report in today's Journal of the American Medical Association.

"Of all subgroups, only those who did not show a statistically significant decline in alcohol use during pregnancy: those aged 18 to 24 years, those with a high school education or less, and those who smoked," the report said.

Among pregnant women ages 18 to 24, the drinking rate was 23 percent in 1983, compared with 22 percent in 1988. The rate also declined from 23 percent to 22 percent among women with less than a high school education, while it fell from 42 percent to 37 percent among smokers.
The Lord’s promise is that He is in our midst when we gather in prayer. Strengthened by this conviction, we beseech the Risen Christ to fill the world with His peace. We call upon Mary, the first disciple and the Queen of Peace, to intercede for us and for the peoples of our time... (The Challenge of Peace, ¶ 292)

A CALL TO PRAYER FOR PEACE

This Friday, and every Friday while the war lasts, we invite you to join in a special prayer for peace.

Jed Aldridge  Billy Allen  Mark Alvear  Andrew Anastmis  Dr. James Asher  Rick Badger  Kyle Bain  Cinco Balderas  Jim Ballard  Peter Barlock  Andy Barlow  Brandy Bartalone  Todd Bentley  Joseph Bie  David Blain  Eric Bohdan  William J. Bolt  Brian Bott  Chad Bowman  Eric Bowman  Michael Box  Michael Boyd  Joey Brenner  Chuck Broderick  Prue Brownley  Joe Bysted  Bill Cariano  John Carey  Joseph Carino  Pat Carr  Curtiss Carter  Andy J. Cernicky  Jim Chapple  Robert Chrobot  Tim Ciesalka  Steve Clear  Gregory Cleary  Danny Cluxton  Michael Coates  Patrick Collins  John Coniffe  Philip Coghian  Marty Cox  Steve Cox  Brett Crenwelge

Please let us know of additional names missing from this list.

CAMPUS MINISTRY

103 Hesburgh Library

Paul Moberly  Teddy Molina  John Mulane  Thomas Mullen  Neil Mulligan  Kevin Murphy  Peter Murphy  Pete Najera  Dennis Navarre  Michael Navarre  Arthur Navarro  Steve Neary  Kevin O’Brien  Jerry O'Conner  Emmett O’Hare  Michael O’Leary  Odie Van Oopcor  Benjamin Pangelinan  Steve Peelor  Scott Peters  Andrew Peterson  Kevin Poling  Tom Porter  Mark Rakow  Peter Read  Kathleen Regan  Sean Roy  Todd Reilly  Johnathan Reinebold  Brian Rixon  Steven Roumell  Tim Rosston  Anna Ruiz  Elizabeth Ruiz  James Ruquet  Brad Saunders  Dan Scarnavack  Matt Scarnavak  Tom Schetz  Lee Shelley  Michael Schibert  Brian Schiller  Dan Schneider  Martin Schubert  Terry Schwenker  Joe Schweninger  Marty Sears  Tim Shanahan  Kevin Sheehan  Simon Sibley  James Van Sickland  Jim Sieth  Mike Sly  Michael Spitz  Ken Stafanek  Brett Steele  Michael Stefanchik  Danny Stoeckel  Scott Storrer  Greg Stricklin  Anthony Sullivan  Joe Sullivan  Jerome Swanson  Joseph A. Swider  Bill Szalay  Mark Szudarlek  Pat Timon  Steve Tomaso  Kelly Townsend  Alejandro Trujillo  George Uzzaralde  Andrew Vogt  Jimmy Wagner  Jason Wallin  Chris Wallis  Don Warmke  Chuck Wehnes  Timm White  David Williams  John Winkler  Phil Wirting  Pete Witte  Peter Woodmansee  Alex Wojicki  John Yaninek  Johnny Young  Joseph Young  Frank Zimmerman  Roger Zuidema
Gorbachev reprimands Yeltsin for insurrection

MOSCOW (AP) - The Soviet parliament formally censured Russian leader Boris Yeltsin on Wednesday for urging Mikhail Gorbachev to resign, and Gorbachev's former foreign minister pleaded for peace in the "war of presidents."

The plea by Eduard Shevardnadze, in his public remarks since his resignation last December, suggested the depth of the crisis in Soviet government. Shevardnadze quit after the nation was heading toward dictatorship.

In a stormy session of the Supreme Soviet parliament, fellow lawmakers accused Yeltsin, the president of the Russian Federation and a frequent Gorbachev critic, of declaring civil war and seeking more power for himself.

Gorbachev, who spoke at the opening of a non-governmental foreign policy association Tuesday, accused Yeltsin of destabilization and civil war and called for legislation that would curtail separatists and extremist elements.

Security Beat

MONDAY, FEB. 18

10:39 a.m. A security guard reported the theft of a laptop from the front desk on the third floor of the Holy Cross Library.

1:32 p.m. A Friday resident reported a series of harassing phone calls.

TUESDAY, FEB. 19

11:17 a.m. Security discovered vandalism to the passenger window of an automobile belonging to a Sorin resident during a security check of the O-2 floor.

2 p.m. Security discovered vandalism to the wheel cover of an automobile in the B 16 lot belonging to a University employee.

7 p.m. Security helped escort an injured Zahn resident to St. Joseph's Medical Center.

The Zahn resident injured his ankle playing basketball.

1:31 p.m. Security responded to a disturbance in the kitchen of the University Club.

10:01 p.m. A Cavanaugh resident reported the theft of a portable CD player and a portable charger.

1:17 a.m. Security helped escort an injured Cavanaugh resident to St. Joseph's Medical Center.

The Cavanaugh resident injured his ankle playing basketball.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 20

1:08 a.m. A Stanford resident reported the theft of his wallet from the coat on the third floor of the LaFontaine Student Center.

1 a.m. A University worker reported losing his checkbook in the JACC during the ND vs. Creighton basketball game.

3:54 p.m. A resident reported the theft of his decal from his automobile while parked in the B-2 floor.

4:20 p.m. Security responded to a medical alert at the University Club. The person was assisted to St. Joseph's Medical Center.

12:20 p.m. A resident resident reported a series of harassing phone calls to several residents of Howard Hall.

Willie continued from page 1

said at this time it is easier to change the approach to expressing demands. Whites are more likely to believe what it is like being black when they are told by someo-one who is white, he said. "One would hope that one would listen to the truth regardless of who says it. Unfortunately, this is not always the case."

He mentioned the example of two books describing what it is like to be black. One, "Black Like Me," was written by a white man and is now used in high schools throughout the country. The other, "On Being Negro in America," was written by a Black. Although it is written well, it is seldom read.

He said one of the weaknesses in the marches of the women's movement was their failure to include men.

Willie went on to say that the value of Black colleges because they can only be learned by whites from other whites who have been educated there.

Within both American and collegiate societies, there is a tendency to discourage pluralism, he said. He cited the 1920s. America had a multi-linguistic population and discouraged the use of native languages. Now, Willie said, "we are seeing how valuable multi-linguistic talents are in Japan."

Similarly, he said, "Colleges are inviting minorities to come, to mix and conform to the college as it had existed. The minorities went along with it, they didn't want to conform because we are a corrective." He said that students at Harvard, once a member of this group, belongs to you and you belong to it. You must conform to it and it must conform to you," he said.

When society fails to accommodate, he said, the diversity within it, it falls victim to self-destructive contradictions, he said. Two examples of such self-destructive contradictions in American history are

"Like Children? Like the Outdoors?"

Be a counselor this summer at Camp Piney in River Pines MN

Come see us: Mon. Feb. 25 at SMC in Lemars

Tues. Feb. 26 at ND in LaFortune

Looking for stuff in sailing, swimming, biking, windsurfing, tennis, waterskiing, fencing, lancing, archery, riflery, crafts, & more...
Should parents leave children to serve?

AP poll: Women serving in the Gulf

NEW YORK (AP) — The American public and its armed forces against Iraq, or not? Yes: 74 percent. No: 22 percent. Don't Know-Answer four percent. Would you be willing to send your young women from their home to the war in Iraq if your family is in the armed forces against Iraq, or not? Yes: 45 percent. No: 50 percent. Don't Know-No Answer five percent. Would you be willing to send women from your family in the armed forces against Iraq, or not? Yes: 78 percent. No: 21 percent. Don't Know-No Answer four percent. Would you say that most parents are better suited for combat than most women, that women are better suited than men, or that men and women are equally suited in this area? Men better suited: 61 percent. Women better suited: 0.5 percent. Men and Women equally suited: 32 percent. Don't Know-No Answer four percent. Do you feel it is acceptable or unacceptable for the United States to send women with young children to the war zone? Acceptable: 21 percent. Unacceptable: 64 percent. Don't Know-No Answer four percent. Do you feel it is acceptable or unacceptable for the United States to send men with young children to the war zone? Acceptable: 84 percent. Unacceptable: 16 percent. Don't Know-No Answer four percent.

The couple has no place to leave their baby, and Mrs. Worthy, who is still nursing him, said, "as long as they understand that my children come first."

As the nation fields a military force with more parents in its ranks than ever before, the obligation to serve is running out of areas subject to hostile fire, and Rep. Jill Long, D-Ind., has introduced a bill to change in policy about deploying parents.

"If I go over there, both of us make it back, he'd be almost a year old, he won't even know who we are," said Worthy, who is still nursing the baby, said, "We'd both be killed, then he'll be an orphan." That image has inspired a raft of legislation. U.S. Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., has introduced a "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" bill to exempt from combat one parent in military couples and single parents who are their children's sole provider. Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., has proposed similar legislation in the Senate.

"This one has no place to leave their home, and Mrs. Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.

"Among those called to duty as newlyweds, said Kerri Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.

"One of the main reasons for Worthy's move is her husband's military service. He is part of the 101st Airborne, which is to "stand together against another brutal dictator." He also noted that the guests at the black-tie dinner included not only Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, but the top enlisted men in the Army and Navy, Vice Adm. James A. Worthy, who is still nursing their baby, said, "as long as they understand that my children come first."

As the nation fields a military force with more parents in its ranks than ever before, the obligation to serve is running out of areas subject to hostile fire, and Rep. Jill Long, D-Ind., has introduced a bill to change in policy about deploying parents.

"If I go over there, both of us make it back, he'd be almost a year old, he won't even know who we are," said Worthy, who is still nursing the baby, said, "We'd both be killed, then he'll be an orphan." That image has inspired a raft of legislation. U.S. Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., has introduced a "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" bill to exempt from combat one parent in military couples and single parents who are their children's sole provider. Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., has proposed similar legislation in the Senate.

"This one has no place to leave their home, and Mrs. Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.

"Among those called to duty as newlyweds, said Kerri Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.

"One of the main reasons for Worthy's move is her husband's military service. He is part of the 101st Airborne, which is to "stand together against another brutal dictator." He also noted that the guests at the black-tie dinner included not only Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, but the top enlisted men in the Army and Navy, Vice Adm. James A. Worthy, who is still nursing their baby, said, "as long as they understand that my children come first."

As the nation fields a military force with more parents in its ranks than ever before, the obligation to serve is running out of areas subject to hostile fire, and Rep. Jill Long, D-Ind., has introduced a bill to change in policy about deploying parents.

"If I go over there, both of us make it back, he'd be almost a year old, he won't even know who we are," said Worthy, who is still nursing the baby, said, "We'd both be killed, then he'll be an orphan." That image has inspired a raft of legislation. U.S. Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., has introduced a "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" bill to exempt from combat one parent in military couples and single parents who are their children's sole provider. Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., has proposed similar legislation in the Senate.

"This one has no place to leave their home, and Mrs. Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.

"Among those called to duty as newlyweds, said Kerri Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.

"One of the main reasons for Worthy's move is her husband's military service. He is part of the 101st Airborne, which is to "stand together against another brutal dictator." He also noted that the guests at the black-tie dinner included not only Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, but the top enlisted men in the Army and Navy, Vice Adm. James A. Worthy, who is still nursing their baby, said, "as long as they understand that my children come first."

As the nation fields a military force with more parents in its ranks than ever before, the obligation to serve is running out of areas subject to hostile fire, and Rep. Jill Long, D-Ind., has introduced a bill to change in policy about deploying parents.

"If I go over there, both of us make it back, he'd be almost a year old, he won't even know who we are," said Worthy, who is still nursing the baby, said, "We'd both be killed, then he'll be an orphan." That image has inspired a raft of legislation. U.S. Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., has introduced a "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" bill to exempt from combat one parent in military couples and single parents who are their children's sole provider. Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., has proposed similar legislation in the Senate.

"This one has no place to leave their home, and Mrs. Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.

"Among those called to duty as newlyweds, said Kerri Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.

"One of the main reasons for Worthy's move is her husband's military service. He is part of the 101st Airborne, which is to "stand together against another brutal dictator." He also noted that the guests at the black-tie dinner included not only Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, but the top enlisted men in the Army and Navy, Vice Adm. James A. Worthy, who is still nursing their baby, said, "as long as they understand that my children come first."

As the nation fields a military force with more parents in its ranks than ever before, the obligation to serve is running out of areas subject to hostile fire, and Rep. Jill Long, D-Ind., has introduced a bill to change in policy about deploying parents.

"If I go over there, both of us make it back, he'd be almost a year old, he won't even know who we are," said Worthy, who is still nursing the baby, said, "We'd both be killed, then he'll be an orphan." That image has inspired a raft of legislation. U.S. Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., has introduced a "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" bill to exempt from combat one parent in military couples and single parents who are their children's sole provider. Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., has proposed similar legislation in the Senate.

"This one has no place to leave their home, and Mrs. Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.

"Among those called to duty as newlyweds, said Kerri Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.

"One of the main reasons for Worthy's move is her husband's military service. He is part of the 101st Airborne, which is to "stand together against another brutal dictator." He also noted that the guests at the black-tie dinner included not only Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, but the top enlisted men in the Army and Navy, Vice Adm. James A. Worthy, who is still nursing their baby, said, "as long as they understand that my children come first."

As the nation fields a military force with more parents in its ranks than ever before, the obligation to serve is running out of areas subject to hostile fire, and Rep. Jill Long, D-Ind., has introduced a bill to change in policy about deploying parents.

"If I go over there, both of us make it back, he'd be almost a year old, he won't even know who we are," said Worthy, who is still nursing the baby, said, "We'd both be killed, then he'll be an orphan." That image has inspired a raft of legislation. U.S. Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., has introduced a "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" bill to exempt from combat one parent in military couples and single parents who are their children's sole provider. Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., has proposed similar legislation in the Senate.

"This one has no place to leave their home, and Mrs. Worthy, a Pleasant View, Tenn., mother of the two children who are among the more than half a million U.S. troops deployed in the six-month-old Gulf crisis. Although parents have served in other wars, the unprecedented numbers in the military brings with it a change in policy about deploying parents.
NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Milken should serve at least three years of his 10-year prison sentence said a federal judge. She placed the cost of Milken's crimes at $238,000, far below the government's estimate of $4.7 million.

The estimates are expected to be considered when the U.S. Parole Commission decides how long Milken must be imprisoned before becoming eligible for parole.

U.S. District Judge Kimba Wood said Tuesday that Milken should serve at least three years of the 10-year sentence she gave him last November. Wood said she fashioned the sentence in proportion to one given inside trader Ivan Boesky, Milken's main accuser.

The judge made the comments at a hearing in connection with her planned recommendation to the parole commission. The commission is not required to follow recommendations from either the judge or the U.S. Probation Office.

Milken pleaded guilty to six felonies last year related to legal securities trading and agreed to pay $640 million in penalties. His lawyers are appealing the sentence, but said he is in to report to federal authorities March 4.

Boesky served just over two years of his three-year sentence before his release last year. Had he not been rewarded for cooperating with prosecutors, Wood said, he likely would have spent five to seven years in prison.

Milken's case included a comparison to Boesky's based on damage to market confidence, attempted cover-ups, the involvement of others and personal character she said.

Under federal guidelines, if losses exceeded $1 million, Milken would get a recommended sentence of 40 to 52 months before becoming eligible for parole. If the losses totaled $200,000 to $1 million, he would face 24 to 36 months.

Prosecutors said in December that Milken's crimes involved more than $4.7 million in fraud, while the defense placed the cost at $320,000. The judge said pretrial reports put the total at $318,082, all of it in one of the five transactions in Milken's guilty plea.

said it had been slipped illegally into a larger bill. The children attended six private schools while the decision is being appealed.

Critics, including the NAACP and state schools superintendents, argue the plan siphons off needed money from public schools and uses tax dollars for private purposes.

NEIGHBORHOODS: In Detroit, REACH has bought, renovated and turned more than a dozen homes, some of which were crack dens. It purchased another building that was converted into a 150-seat California fall and is owned by group members.

REACH, based in a neighbor­hood where the average income is $13,000, also has helped with Create and established a small business development center providing counseling for budding entrepreneurs.

ATTENTION SOPHOMORES
and Interested Freshmen:
Don't Miss The College of Arts and Letters
"Meet Your Major Program"

Day Date Time Department Location
Sunday 2/24 5-6 CAPP 104 O'Shag
6-7 Hasheburg Program 104 O'Shag
7-8 Sociology 218 O'Shag
8-9 Philosophy 104 O'Shag
Monday 2/25 4:30-5:30 AE/ALPP 104 O'Shag
Music 103 Crowley
German & Russian 115 O'Shag
Romance Languages 218 O'Shag
Theology 218 O'Shag
Anthropology 204 O'Shag
History 104 O'Shag
Tuesday 2/26 7-8 American Studies 218 O'Shag
Economics 104 O'Shag
Gender Studies 115 O'Shag
English 104 O'Shag
Wednesday 2/27 4:30-5:30 Classical and Oriental Languages 218 O'Shag
Program of Liberal Studies (PLS) Grace Pit
Science, Technology & Values 218 O'Shag
Communication and Theatre O'Shag Loft
Thursday 2/28 4:30-5:30 Psychology 119 Haggar
Government 104 O'Shag
Art, Art History & Design 200 Riley

Note: Those students interested in an AL Math major please attend the College of Science Information night.
LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

ND contributions to Third World Relief Fund helps many in need

Dear Editor:
The vertical sun-rays baked the air and drained our tired bodies. A woman and her teenage daughter, a young couple and their sick boy, an elderly fellow: all sat patiently outside the low-income medical clinic in the remote Mexican town. Smiling as they bore their sufferings, they came in one at a time for triage. With a blood centrifuge and an EKG machine from the 1960s, we diagnosed the patients. The volunteer Mexican doctors and medical students used a new microscope to view blood and urine samples daily.

How did an out-of-the-way clinic acquire a modern microscope? Every year members of Notre Dame's faculty and administrative staff, through the Third World Relief Fund, contribute or pledge portions of their salaries to help grassroots development projects around the world.

A gift of a free trip to the clinic was presented to the Third World Relief Fund committee. As no members could go, they sent me. That week I learned how much people can do if they come together to give of themselves. A young woman, fverlwh and exhausted, came to the clinic on a Friday. Her red blood cell count was very low. Because iron-rich green vegetables are rare in the area, she was given iron tablets. She returned Monday energetic and smiling. She was diagnosed and treated for anemia, a simple solution for a debilitating ailment. Through the efforts of the Third World Relief Fund, it became apparent that people giving together can help change people's lives.

Anyone interested in helping the Third World Relief Fund or for further information, call Kathleen Weigert at the C.S.C. at 239-5124.

Paul Radich
Zain Hall
Feb. 18, 1991

U.S. solution to Hussein perpetuates problems

Dear Editor:
In light of the events which have so brutally been laid out before our eyes, I felt compelled to comment on the unnecessary violence caused by the actions of both parties in the Gulf conflict. I am outraged at the attitudes of the heads of state commanding this war. Neither of them considered a peaceful means or resolution and the solution at all, but rather just a method of solving the problem.

Recently, I think one of the grossest examples of just how wrong both sides are in this war was given to us. Estimates of 500 to 1000 Iraqi civilians were killed in a single bombing raid. The Iraqis blame us, and the U.S. blames the Iraqis; meanwhile these innocent men, women, and children are dead due to the massive egos of two men. This shows us that those

John Lennon in his call to "give peace a chance."

Then, George Bush jumped at the chance to test his toys and guns on living, breathing people. Furthermore, Saddam then fulfilled his promise to attack the innocent people of Israel. This, after five months of persecuting the people of Kuwait in many unexplainable ways.

Just a few days ago, Iraqis were killed in a single bombing raid. The Iraqis blame us, and the U.S. blames the Iraqis; meanwhile these innocent men, women, and children are dead due to the massive egos of two men. This shows us that those

Making a circle around a burning house and hurling Molotov cocktails at it in order to try to burn it down more quickly, and hoping that none of its flames will reach any of the neighboring houses.

As one can see from this analogy, it is not the smartest method of solving the problem. We must rise up and call for a peaceful solution to this war now, so we can stop the violence and work toward a peaceful world, in which our children can live and prosper. It must start sometime, and the time is now.

Jack Daly
Pangborn Hall
Feb. 13, 1991

QUOTE OF THE DAY

"Perserverance and spirit have done Wonders in all ages."

George Washington
Dear Editor:

On Ash Wednesday, I attended mass at Keenan Hall. Father Himes was the presider. In his homily, Father focused on the words of St. Paul in the second reading: "Now is the acceptable time for salvation!" This, of course, was not St. Paul's original idea. John the Baptist had called for repentance earlier, stating that the "Kingdom of God was at hand." And Jesus repeated the message and taught how to enter the Kingdom. Father Himes simply reminded us that salvation is ours now—we only have to intend to be there by being the best of whom and what we are, the image of Christ. Unfortunately, Father's homily, though skillfully delivered and inspiring, was a little off the wall. We had only just finished viewing the evening news and the first real pictures of our current war.

Worldwide war in the Gulf, which only incidentally involves Notre Dame, neither side is to be believed. The torrent of oxymoron rhetoric and trivializing tripe has turned into a river of blood, as if Moses had just dipped his staff into it. First, we have George Bush stating that "we are going to kick some ass" as if we were going to get ready for a football game or, worse, threatening a barnum brawl.

On the other hand, we see born-again Mostlem Saddam Hussein bowing towards Mecca and petting children. Islamic religious leadership pointed out these acts as a quintessential hypocrisy and a mockery of core beliefs.

There is the twisted reasoning that would have us believe that the best way to support our troops is to psyche them up to kill and die. One example of an oxymoron was restated in a Feb 7 letter to the editor: "war is necessary for peace," the best example is "a just war.") And now we are witnessing the billboards declaring that "He who accuses each other of having two naughty boys pointing at Jesus" is presented.

Two naughty boys pointing at a broken window. But they are not two naughty boys arguing over a minor incident; they are two international leaders both guilty of grossly evil acts.

In light of all of this, I guess what disturbed me most in Father Himes' homily was the realization of just how far we are as a nation from being the best of whom and what God intends us to be, and, for, those of us who profess to be Christian, how unaware we seem to be of this acceptable time for salvation. If the polls are correct, the vast majority of us who claim to be the followers of Jesus—whom we say strive to be—cannot be expected to be Christians.

And Jesus was first, then Stephan, followed by thousands, even millions, ages up to our present time. Names like Martin Luther King, Oscar Romero and the six Jesus of El Salvador come immediately to mind. These people died, not in battle, but because they challenged injustice by a bold witness of the gospel. I would submit that in their lives did more toward moving us closer to the goal of real peace than all of the "necessary" wars. They did not submit to the pressures because they lived in violation of Jesus—people who say we strive to be Christ-like—were.

I keep hearing George Bush say that the war can end as soon as Saddam Hussein pulls his troops out of Kuwait, the choice is his. I think only acknowledges half of the options. The war will end as soon as someone, one side or the other, stops fighting it. It could be us. Now is the acceptable time.

Brice Abel, O.S.B.
Brookston Hall
Feb. 13, 1991

Viewpoint

Dear Editor:

I regret the offensive nature of what follows, but it is time that certain groups on campus examined their lives to determine the possible consequences.

We at NPNO are suggesting that the Students United for Respect (SUFR's) patronizing attitude. As a community, we simply have to face the fact that minorities at Notre Dame are being treated as second-class citizens. We are suggesting that minorities at Notre Dame be treated as equals, not as second-class citizens. We are suggesting that minorities at Notre Dame be treated as equals, not as second-class citizens.

I believe the friend who met my parents is now aware of my cultural personali- tude, and for this I am thankful. I do feel that this understanding is not present at Notre Dame, and many minorities are not aware of their cultural identities. This is a problem of identity in attending Notre Dame, or for the rest of the campus. Of all the people who may have left or are dissatisfied with Notre Dame, almost all of them are minorities, and I wish we did not have to be this way.

Cesar Termulo
St. Edward's Hall
Feb. 18, 1991

Lack of cultural diversity at ND makes minority identity difficult

Dear Editor:

Among people I know and have written in The Observer, it seems that there is much concern for the issue of minority affairs at Notre Dame. Many are puzzled that, in a fairly Christian, family-oriented environment, people are generally not concerned for others, a few people, a couple of minorities come to mind, about life at Notre Dame and its cohesive. Whenever I discuss minorities I am often met with a "are you kidding me?" or "no valid avenues through which to express or live out the inherent cultural identity?"

This is true that there is a fairly average percentage of minorities at Notre Dame, compared to the percentage of our society. There are no valid avenues through which to express or live out the inherent cultural identity. And if they cross the line, minorities come to. Consequently, when most minorities first arrive at Notre Dame, they are subjected to an environment totally foreign to them. They either parrot the "colorblind" mentality to fit in or feel out of place in Notre Dame's extremely homogeneous environment. I did not personally realize the prevalent ignorance of other cultures here until the beginning of this year. When I would discuss my Filipino identity with others, most found my accent different and asked questions, but I have thought I was white, just because I was friends with and could adequately associate with whites. One of my friends did not do much different. I have been accused of being a "minority"... I was not asking to be a minority, but I was feeling out of place in the beginning. It is a very different environment, a different skin, a different world.

Also, when I received a minority scholarship, people told me that I didn't deserve it because they didn't believe I was a minority. In another incident, when a Filipino friend of mine engaged in an argument concerning her identity and became angry with some of her friends, they tried to get her to stop, saying: "It's okay, I think we consider one of us.",also know of people who are willing to admit black athletes for their performance on the field, but not the classroom. And for the rest of the campus as well.

Minority scholarship people tell me that I didn't deserve it because they didn't believe I was a minority. In another incident, when a Filipino friend of mine engaged in an argument concerning her identity and became angry with some of her friends, they tried to get her to stop, saying: "It's okay, I think we consider one of us.", also know of people who are willing to admit black athletes for their performance on the field, but not the classroom.

Dear Editor:

As a community, we Christians have forged the fact that to be a Christian is to be a martyr, to meet violence with passive resistance, to turn the other cheek, to die, if necessary, and the rest of the world was first, then Stephan, followed by thousands, even millions, ages up to our present time. Names like Martin Luther King, Oscar Romero and the six Jesus of El Salvador come immediately to mind. These people died, not in battle, but because they challenged injustice by a bold witness of the gospel. I would submit that in their lives did more toward moving us closer to the goal of real peace than all of the "necessary" wars. They did not submit to the pressures because they lived in violation of Jesus—people who say we strive to be Christ-like—were.

I believe the friend who met my parents is now aware of my cultural personali- tude, and for this I am thankful. I do feel that this understanding is not present at Notre Dame, and many minorities are not aware of their cultural identities. This is a problem of identity in attending Notre Dame, or for the rest of the campus. Of all the people who may have left or are dissatisfied with Notre Dame, almost all of them are minorities, and I wish we did not have to be this way.

Cesar Termulo
St. Edward's Hall
Feb. 18, 1991

Lack of cultural diversity at ND makes minority identity difficult

Dear Editor:

I regret the offensive nature of what follows, but it is time that certain groups on campus examined their lives to determine the possible consequences.

We at NPNO are suggesting that the Students United for Respect (SUFR's) patronizing attitude. As a community, we simply have to face the fact that minorities at Notre Dame are being treated as second-class citizens. We are suggesting that minorities at Notre Dame be treated as equals, not as second-class citizens. We are suggesting that minorities at Notre Dame be treated as equals, not as second-class citizens.

I believe the friend who met my parents is now aware of my cultural personali- tude, and for this I am thankful. I do feel that this understanding is not present at Notre Dame, and many minorities are not aware of their cultural identities. This is a problem of identity in attending Notre Dame, or for the rest of the campus. Of all the people who may have left or are dissatisfied with Notre Dame, almost all of them are minorities, and I wish we did not have to be this way.

Cesar Termulo
St. Edward's Hall
Feb. 18, 1991

SUFR's promotion of separationism is harmful

Dear Editor:

I regret the offensive nature of what follows, but it is time that certain groups on campus examined their lives to determine the possible consequences.

We at NPNO are suggesting that the Students United for Respect (SUFR's) patronizing attitude. As a community, we simply have to face the fact that minorities at Notre Dame are being treated as second-class citizens. We are suggesting that minorities at Notre Dame be treated as equals, not as second-class citizens. We are suggesting that minorities at Notre Dame be treated as equals, not as second-class citizens.

I believe the friend who met my parents is now aware of my cultural personali- tude, and for this I am thankful. I do feel that this understanding is not present at Notre Dame, and many minorities are not aware of their cultural identities. This is a problem of identity in attending Notre Dame, or for the rest of the campus. Of all the people who may have left or are dissatisfied with Notre Dame, almost all of them are minorities, and I wish we did not have to be this way.

Cesar Termulo
St. Edward's Hall
Feb. 18, 1991

SUFR's promotion of separationism is harmful

Dear Editor:

As a community, we Christians have forged the fact that to be a Christian is to be a martyr, to meet violence with passive resistance, to turn the other cheek, to die, if necessary, and the rest of the world was first, then Stephan, followed by thousands, even millions, ages up to our present time. Names like Martin Luther King, Oscar Romero and the six Jesus of El Salvador come immediately to mind. These people died, not in battle, but because they challenged injustice by a bold witness of the gospel. I would submit that in their lives did more toward moving us closer to the goal of real peace than all of the "necessary" wars. They did not submit to the pressures because they lived in violation of Jesus—people who say we strive to be Christ-like—were.

I believe the friend who met my parents is now aware of my cultural personali- tude, and for this I am thankful. I do feel that this understanding is not present at Notre Dame, and many minorities are not aware of their cultural identities. This is a problem of identity in attending Notre Dame, or for the rest of the campus. Of all the people who may have left or are dissatisfied with Notre Dame, almost all of them are minorities, and I wish we did not have to be this way.

Cesar Termulo
St. Edward's Hall
Feb. 18, 1991
'While the Lights Were Out' is not a typical 'who done it' mystery

By MATTHEW MOHS

Accent Writer

So you say you love murder mysteries? Do you think you can solve cases faster than Sherlock Holmes? If you answered "yes" to either of the above questions, "While the Lights Were Out" may be the play for you to see. "While the Lights Were Out," written by Jack Sharkey, is a farce of the murder-mystery genre. Performed by the Cavanaugh Hall Players, the show will open tonight and continue through Saturday with all shows starting at 8:10 p.m. in Washington Hall. Admission is free, but donations will be collected for the Andy Sowder scholarship fund, which aids needy Notre Dame students.

The play opens at the home of Clive and Monica Wickenham in Bermuda. The Wickenhams are preparing for the arrival of dinner guests when the mystery begins. The police show up to inquire about an anonymous note they had received about strange happenings that occur at the home. As the investigation about the note continues through act one, the dinner guests start to arrive, compounding the problem. At the end of the first act, a murder occurs, and everyone is a suspect. The rest of the play answers the question of "who done it," but not in the typical manner.

While the first act basically introduces all of the characters and some of the convoluted relationships, the second act heightens the mystery to a ridiculous level. The last act explains exactly what happened when the lights were out.

However, the explanation, although detailed, is so ridiculous that it exceeds the limits of plausibility, even for a farce. Still, it is fairly humorous and the cast tries incredibly hard to make it work.

For the mystery buffs, the plot is a lot of fun to follow. There are so many little details that are important to the events. The twists take the audience in every direction. However, if one pays close attention, a basic theory close to the explanation can be developed.

Overall, the play is not as humorous as it can be. In some cases the cast tries too hard to make certain jokes work. In others, the cast breeze over some funny material, and it is lost in the shuffle.

The fast pace of events makes things hard to follow at times, and the humor gets lost. But then again, some of the funniest scenes occur during the most rapid paced events. The play's inconsistency hurts the overall impression.

The cast does a good job with the material. Mike Scarsella portrays the bumbling Inspector Braddock extremely well. Christina Saracino does a fine job as the fairly minor role of the maid, Nancy Staffed. The cast has a great time with the love scenes, which are incredibly sappy. But that should be expected with a farce.

The only problem with the acting is the British accents of most of the characters. The accents do not work well for most of the players, except for Christina Saracino, and detract from the dialogue. It would have been better to change the story a little and make the characters American.

"While the Lights Were Out" works in some places and falls in others. It's worth going to see during one of the performances. It's also free, but don't forget the spare change.

Celebrate African culture with the African Film Festival

By KARA KEELING

Accent Writer

An African Film Festival will be held at the Center for Social Concerns from Monday, February 25 through Thursday, February 28, 1991 at 8:00 p.m. The festival has been coordinated by Peter Walls, the director of African Studies and Sandy Barton, a staff person at the CSC.

"I think that the West, particularly the United States, has a great deal to learn from Africa," Professor Walls states. He points out that Africa itself is struggling with her great poverty, but it is not a spiritual poverty, but a material one. "These film-makers have a great deal to say about the human condition. We need to listen."

The films to be featured are "Yaaba," "Chocolat," "Camp de Thiaroye" and "A World Apart." One film will be shown each day of the festival. These recent films have been widely acclaimed in the European circuit.

On Monday, director Idrissa Diop's film, "Yaaba" (Grandmother), will be shown. The film centers on Bila, an independent boy of twelve, and on Sana, on old woman shunned by the rest of the community because she is suspected of witchcraft. During the course of the film, an almost wordless but, strong personal relationship is developed between the two characters as Bila matures. "Yaaba" takes place in the director's own village in rural Africa.

The festival explores Cameroon, a French colonial African country, on Tuesday to visit a young French girl, her liberal-minded father, her restless mother, and their handsome house servant in the film "Chocolat." The word "chocolat" is a pun on the French slang for both the words "black" and "cheated." The film itself is based partly on the childhood experiences of its director, Claire Denis. In the film a group of outsiders arrive because of an airplane accident and disturb the delicate balance of the household. This intrusion of the outsiders and the events which follow lead to a powerful conclusion.

"Chocolat," Denis' first film, is described by critics as a film that "incisively probes the barriers between white and black, Europe and Africa and defines an impeneetrable gap expressed through unspoken tension, unsettled glances, and unresolved nightmares."

Africa's most celebrated film-maker, Ousmane Sembene, brings to the festival on Wednesday, "Camp de Thiaroye." This drama, based on actual events, begins in 1944 at a time in history when the colonial myth of white superiority was beginning its decline and when an African consciousness was emerging. The story line deals with the problems involved with the African troops serving in the French army at the end of World War II.

Closing the African Film Festival on Thursday is "A World Apart," the directorial debut film of Chris Menges. Menges has won two Academy awards for Best Cinematography in "The Killing Fields," and in "The Mission." Barbara Hershey, from the films "Beeees" and "Honeys," stars in this fact-based drama about a South African family caught up in the early stages of the struggle against apartheid. The film takes place in 1963. It is the powerful story of a wife and mother who is arrested for protesting apartheid, leaving her teenage daughter alone to deal with the tumult.

The African Film Festival is being sponsored by the African and African-American Studies Program, African Students Association, Center for Social Concerns, and Minority, International and Non-Traditional Student Life at Saint Mary's College. All films will be shown in the Center for Social Concerns' multi purpose room at 8:00 p.m. Admission is free.
Fans cause 49ers to revert to old logo

SANTA CRUZ, CA (AP) - The San Francisco 49ers on Wednesday reversed their decision to modify their logo, going back to the old logo they used from 1962-1996.

The team said in a statement that it was "in response to fans' overwhelming support and the impact it has had on our community and fans over the years." The team also said it was "a recognition of the importance of our fans, especially those who have been loyal and dedicated from the beginning and have supported us through the good times and the tough ones."

The new logo, which was unveiled last month, was widely criticized by fans and media alike for its lack of connection to the team's history. The old logo, featuring a black and white graphic of a girl holding a football, was seen as a symbol of the team's past successes.

The team said it had received "thousands of letters and emails from fans," and that it had "listened to the fans' requests and feedback with care and respect." The team added that it was "happy to bring back the logo that fans have grown to love and support over the years."
ATTENTION SENIORS !!!!!!!
COME OUT AND SUPPORT

INDIANA TOP 20

1. Gary Romanos (20-0) beat Highland 5/4-3 vs. Indiana State (20-0)
2. Bedford North Lawrence (20-0) beat Central Catholic 9-0
3. Martinsville (20-0) beat Pike Panhandle 12-6
4. Bedford Central (19-3) beat Lafayette 12-9
5. Washington Central (20-0) beat Evansville 11-0
6. Concord (19-3) beat Plymouth 11-0 vs. Westfield
7. Monroe Central (19-3) vs. No.20 Indiana State Central (19-3)
8. Monroe South (17-2) beat Blackford 9-0
9. Muncie South (15-5) beat Eisenhower 12-9 at Muncie Central
10. Muncie North (14-6) beat Yorktown 12-6

EASTERN CONFERENCE

Transylvania Division

Lansing 16-0 vs. Bloomington 3-16
South Bend 22-0 vs. Fort Wayne 10-12
La Porte 16-0 vs. Warsaw 4-16
Marion 16-0 vs. Crown Point 6-16

Central Division

Anderson 15-0 vs. Clyde 5-15
Carmel 16-0 vs. New Palestine 4-16
New Ulm 14-0 vs. Homestead 6-14

West Division

2000 COMBO

Central (1) vs. Central (1) 22-0
La Porte 22-0 vs. La Porte 12-0

MEN'S TOP 25 RESULTS

AP WOMEN'S TOP 25

SCOREBOARD

Thursday, February 21, 1991

EASTERN CONFERENCE

Atlantic Division

Philadelphia 6-3 vs. New York 6-3
Trenton 12-0 vs. Newark 2-0

New Jersey Division

Newark 6-3 vs. Jersey City 6-3
Carteret 6-3 vs. Elizabeth 6-3

TRANSACTIONS

BASEBALL

American League

TEXAS RANGERS—Agreed to terms with Pete Tugwell, outfielder, as a non-roster player.
TORONTO BLUE JAYS—Agreed to terms with Mike Mitchell, outfielder, and a non-roster player.

MONTREAL EXPOS—Agreed to terms with Mike Davis, pitcher, and a non-roster player.

BASKETBALL

National Basketball Conference—Traded Ben cardio, center, to the Philadelphia 76ers for Rodney Jones, center, and a first-round pick.

BROOKLYN NETS—Agreed to terms with Ben Carson, forward, center, and a non-roster player.

National Basketball Association—Traded Hal Newhouser, guard, to the Phoenix Suns for a future second-round pick.

FORTALEZA—Agreed to terms with Mike Arneson, forward, center, and a non-roster player.

FOOTBALL

Cleveland Browns—Named Hal Hunter defensive coordinator.

Dallas Cowboys—Named Robert Ford wide receiver coach and special teams coordinator.

HOCKEY

HARTFORD WARRIORS—Traded Dick Csebeldi, center, to the Detroit Red Wings for Doug Honda, defenseman. Received Carl Tarby, left wing, and Greg Stock, goaltender, on loan from the Detroit Red Wings.

NEW YORK RANGERS—Traded Brian McFarland, center, to the American Hockey League team Peoria Peoria, right wing, and a non-roster player.

SOCCER

American League

MARYLAND BAY—Announced the resignation of Pete Piano, head coach.
National Professional Soccer League

TOUGH RUGGERS—Acquired Mike Allen, forward, and a non-roster player.

CAROLINA—Agreed to terms with Mike Brown, forward.

Diane MEADON,—Named Tommy West assistant coach.

KIRKIS DAVID

SARA LIEBERMAN

IN THEIR FINAL HOME GAME!!

HELP SET A RECORD CROWD!!

22 OUR DAIME WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

OLD DOMINION

1. Overall Record 82-26
2. ACC Conference Champions 1990-91
3. 1990 NCAA Tournament

FOR THE RECORD (for their four years, 1987-88)

- Overall Record 82-26
- ACC Winning Percentage 0.732
- 1990 NCAA Tournament

Plan to land their first NCAA Tournament Bid in Program's History!!
Ismael prepares to show his stuff to NFL teams today

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — The New England Patriots and the Cleveland Browns, the NFL teams holding the No. 1 and 2 draft picks, are among 11 teams invited to send scouts to watch Ralphie "Rocket" Ismael run through his speedy paces on Thursday.

"We tried to target teams we thought would have a serious interest in him, and be able to do something about it," agent Louis Duverney said Wednesday from the Oakland Calif., offices of Morong Sports Enterprises.

Ismael could earn as much as $25 million from a variety of sources, including an NFL contract, bonuses, and endorsement deals, says a source who will be close to any negotiations. Also invited to watch Ismael were the Atlanta Falcons, Denver Broncos, New Jersey, San Diego Chargers, Detroit Lions, Phoenix Cardinals, Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Dallas Cowboys and Seattle Seahawks.

The invitations were not meant to exclude other teams, Duverney said. "I would hope that even more would show." The junior flanker and return specialist from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., gave up his final season of fifth-year senior whose fastball Murphy often compares with a schoolgirl'... will see considerable time at middle relief, and passably as the team's fourth starter.

Catcher: Junior Cory Mee (2.41 batting average, 23 RBIs), a converted second baseman, probably will fill the hole that 1990 captain Ed Lund filled. Freshman Matt Haas and sophomore Matt Krali (3.04 at-bats) both will see time there.

Infield: Junior team captain Joe Binkiewicz (.322, 4 HR, 29 RBI) has played here and there at second, third and short. But Murphy seems to have the inner core of the starting rotation.

Relief Pitcher: Murphy is quite high on Alan Walania (4-2, 2.98) and Dirk Michalak (4-1, 3.38), two sophomores who made immediate impacts on the team last year.

Walania's the pitcher whose growth took the greatest unexpected improvements," said Murphy. "He'll pitch a lot of innings for us. And there'll be a point in the season when people will be looking at Michalak as Notre Dame's main man on the mound." Tony Iovrili (1-2, 2.79), a times better defensively. He'll never be a guy that hits 400, 460 or 500, but he has better than any pro prospect in the country—that's power. He's got the most power of any player this team. He has the slightest idea." The scouts will watch the 5-foot-10.5, 195-pound speedster who is one of Murphy's top picks this year, qualifying for next month's NFLCAA meet.

Ismael's only four-year starter, Murphy's most outspoken recruit, will set anchor at this position. Cos. hit .290 in 57 games last season, and needs only 41 more appearances to be the all-time leader in games played. He suffered a knee injury in the first week of the pre-season but is healthy enough to play against Dartmouth today.

Third base: Junior Craig Bauch (hit .267, 29 stolen bases) has the reputation as the "most complete base player," Murphy said. "The complete baseball player," said Murphy. "He was "a... player" on the team, hit .265 last season, with 6 home runs and 33 RBI. If Cos. gets hurt, "Counsell can move to short and Bauch could go to third."

Left Field: Sophomore Edwin Hartwell (2.58, 3 HR, 15 RBI in 62 at-bats) and Freshman Irv Smith (Lights-Out baseball team) both have made great strides in the past year. There is no other position on the team He's an excellent defensive player and he gets on base. He

Will somebody please clue me in? What is a DGSA?

It's a what and a who. The DGSA is the Distinguished Graduate Student Award. It will be presented annually by the Alumni Association and the Graduate School to the graduate student who has distinguished himself or herself through academic standing and service during his or her career at Notre Dame.

Is this another obscure award for an obscure student? No, it's not. Because this is the first year of the award, our hope is to promote it as much as we can. But our promotions will do very little to bring the award out of obscurity without the support and input from those whom it was meant to honor - the graduate students.

How can I nominate someone? It's easy. Stop by the Alumni Association in the Main Building during the daytime and pick up an application. If you want, you can even take two. Nominations from students are encouraged and appreciated. Who knows more about deserving grad students than other students?

What's the deadline for nominations? February 28, 1991

Who selects the winner? A committee of administrators, professors, and students collaborate to select the most deserving candidate.

Why hasn't anybody told us about this DGSA before? This is the inaugural year of the annual award. Our hope is that everyone who reads this will share it with a friend who will share it with another friend and so on and so on...
Syracuse falls; LSU, Pitt win

Malik Sealy scored 23 points and the other St John’s starters reached double digits as the 18th-ranked Redmen beat 23rd-ranked LSU, 87-72, on Wednesday night.

The Redmen (18-6, 9-6), who had lost four of six games and had dropped from the leaders in the Big East with the slump. They still have a chance at tying the title with just one conference game remaining, Monday night against Georgetown.

Syracuse (23-4, 9-4), which had its six-game winning streak snapped, entered play on Wednesday with a two-game lead in the conference.

Billy Owens, who led Syracuse with 28 points, hit a long jumper with 14:13 to play that brought the Orange within 42-38, keyed a decisive second-half spurt.

No. 19 LSU 89, Mississippi 78

Shaquille O’Neal scored 38 points and keyed a decisive second-half spurt Wednesday night as No. 19 LSU won its fifth straight Eastern Conference game, 89-78 over Mississippi.

O’Neal, who had more than 33 points for the fourth time in five games, scored 9 straight for in a 17-4 surge that pushed the Tigers (17-7, 11-4) from a 46-45 deficit to a 62-51 lead with 12:32 left. The Tigers had two slam dunks, a short layup and three free throws in the spurt that put the Tigers up for good.

The Tigers got most of their points from inside, scoring 56 in the paint, including 34 in the second half. Forty-two percent of the Belles improved their record to 33-5, their best in 31 seasons and his ’83 team led the nation in the top 25.

The offense did not click tonight, commented Wood. “It was a game where one team had an eight-year mark of 8-13-1,” said Wood. “On the other didn’t want to take it.”

Junior Annie Hartley
Saint Mary’s beats Bethel, Grace

After suffering three straight losses, theSaint Mary’s basketball team regrouped and won two games this week.

The game was a close contest at the half with the Belles taking a slim 37-35 lead.

Bethe came out weak in the second half and Saint Mary’s gained a 57-41 advantage with 11 minutes remaining in the game.

The game “was a rough game and we were very effective throughout the game,” said Coach Mary Wood. “Our shots were falling and the defense rebounded after a weak first half.”

With a positive win under their belts the Belles took the court against Grace College.

The game was “a sloppy 82-64 victory but the Belles improved their record to 11-9.”

The offense had poor chemistry throughout the game, but defensively, the Belles were consistent in rebounding and containing the Grace offense.

“The offense did not click,” commented Wood. “It was a game where one team had an eight-year mark of 8-13-1,” said Wood. “On the other didn’t want to take it.”

Sophomores and Freshmen

Football

Division II Kodak coach of the year for the Midwest Region in '89, as well as Great Lakes Conference coach of the year. His Lakers led the nation in scoring (44.5 points) and total offense (483.3 yards) in 1999.

Prior to coming to Grand Valley State, Beck spent the 1994 season as offensive coordinator and backfield coach of the Chicago Blitz of the United States Football League under current Buffalo Bills head coach Marvin Levy.

His collegiate head coaching experience also includes stops at Elmhurst (Ill.) College (1976-83) and Illinois Benedictine (1970-74). He served as offensive coordinator at Northern Illinois in 1975.

At Elmhurst, Beck put together an eight-year mark of 50-22, including 8-1 records in '80 and '83. His teams ranked in the top 10 for five straight years and his '83 team led NCAA Division II teams in total offense (443.3 yards) and scoring (381.3 points)

The Observer

Thursday, February 21, 1991

Sports Briefs

BOOKSTORE BASKETBALL SIGN-UPS will be held Sunday, Feb. 24 from 12:55 p.m. in the Great Hall of O’Shag. A $5 entry fee is required.

WOMEN’S BOOKSTORE BASKETBALL SIGN-UPS will be held in early March, separately from the sign-ups for Bookstore this Sunday. Players can participate in both tournaments but must sign-up for each. Also, anyone interested in being a commissioners - contact Blaine at x1093.

FELLOWSHIP OF CHRISTIAN ATHLETES will be meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the basement of Pangborn. Important events coming up: Midwest College Retreat and Prayer Week. If you're interested in either, but can't make the meeting, call Mark Zola at x1606 or Cathy Bradshaw at x4588.

MEN’S VOLLEYBALL: This Friday, Feb. 22 at 8 p.m., Notre Dame will take on arch-rival Michigan State. This match promises to be one of the best the Irish will host all season. Come out for great volleyball action in the JACC; pit admission is free.

BASKETBALL SEMIFINALS will be held tonight in Gym 1 of the Joyce Center. Morrisey faces Grace at 7 p.m., and Cavanaugh plays Flanner at 8 p.m.

MEN’S INTERHALL BASKETBALL will be held in Gym 1 of the Joyce Center. Questions? Call Cathy at 284-4456.

PHILOSOPHY: Meet Your Majors

Sunday, February 24th
8:00-9:00 p.m.
Room 104 O’Shag
Refreshments Served

For further information contact Prof. David Solomon Room 337 O’Shag, 7534

$ $ $ MONEY $ $ $ for SPRING BREAK

We’d like to give you a break with our Special Spring Break Loan!

• Only 11.99% APR, Fixed
• $500 Maximum
• Deferred Payments: You’ll have all summer to repay (until Aug. 1, 1991)
• Students with good credit or no credit at all qualify.
  No cosigner needed!

NOTRE DAME FEDERAL CREDIT UNION 239-6611
Separate from the University
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Ski lift
2. Eddie jack fish
3. Earned Asian physician
4. Actor Cronyn
5. Span
6. He wrote "The Hollow Men"
7. Norwegian king
8. -- foot oil
9. The combatants during 25 Across
10. Thrice Comb form
11. Swiss river
12. 1861-65

DOWN
1. My name
2. Vietnamese town
3. Flower part
4. Abbreviation
5. Prove wrong
6. Do a hall's job
7. Kan. product
8. Eager
9. Kind of floss
10. Board
11. Actor Vidov
12. Fabulist
13. It's -- Gall in Kalamazoo
14. Joyful
15. Common Market initial
16. Sell newspapers
17. P. Rose broke this man's record
18. Sharper
19. 40,000 tons
20. Know -- (smarty)
21. Branco, e.g.
22. Sign up
23. Thrash again
24. Vice pres.
25. Cameron town
26. Powerful D.C. lobby
27. Tykes
28. Oatly food
29. MOSLEER
30. Sign
31. Mosel (smart)
32. "The Name of the Rose" author
33. The bottom line
34. Actor Kevin and ex-Yankee pitcher
35. Vakko song
36. Spout
37. Arranges
38. TV critic and ex German president
39. Coach Holtz
40. Kind of cake
41. North kitter
42. Asian tongue
43. Own, to I'an
44. South leader
45. Universal craft
46. Naughty of baseball
47. Numerous date
48. A direction, to
49. Beat, e.g.
50. Robert
51. Cheesecake joints
52. Hong Kong icon
53. Departed

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

The dam bursts

---

THE QUICK-AND-QUIVER

CALVIN AND HOBBIES

BILL WATTSERSON

MAY ESSA S ENTITLED "AFTER SCHOOL AT MY HOUSE....AHHA...."

"THERE NOT THAT MIND BEING CHAINED TO THE BONDMENT, IT'S JUST THAT WHEN THE MEAT IS TAKING DOWN, THE ENTS HAVE THE ADVANTAGE OF NUMBERS...AND THEY...."

WHAT WUS WEARNIND?

ANOTHER PARENT TEACHER CONFERENC....I TOLD HER TO EXPECT YOU TO WIN EVERYTHING.

---

THE FAR SIDE

GARY LARSON

SPELUNKER

JAY HOSLER

---

THURSDAY FRIDAY & SATURDAY

BETTER OFF DEAD

PHYG

8 & 10:30 PM
$2 ADMISSION
CUSHING AUDITORIUM

---

CAMPUS

Thursday

6:30 p.m. Workshop — Session 1, "Career/Majors Decision Making" Room 303, University Counseling Center, 239-7336.

7:30 p.m. CSC. Dr. Paul Diagne, visiting professor from Cornell University, Malian Emperor Bakari II (1312) and Christopher Columbus (1492). Sponsored by NADAS, departments of Government and History, African and African-American Program and Anthropology.

8 p.m. Play. "While the Lights Were Out," Produced by Cavanaugh Hall Players, Washington Hall. Sponsored by Student Activities and HPC.

8 & 10:30 p.m. Film. "Better Off Dead." Cushing Auditorium.

Friday

12:15 p.m., CSC, Rm 124. Friday forum at the CSC. Sister Kathleen Cannon, O.P., ND Provost's Office. Talk-discussion: "Update: Faculty/Student Committee on Women"

LECTURES

4 p.m. 1990-91 Honkels Visiting Scholar Series: Colloquium in the History and Philosophy of Science, "Our Brains, Ourselves: Reflections on Neuroethical Questions," Patricia Smith Churchland, professor, UCSD, Hous- whor Library Lounge. Sponsored by College of Arts and Letters, Departments of Biological Sciences, Philosophy, Biology Center and Continuing Medical Education of St. Joseph Medical Center.

7:30 p.m. The Christian Conscience: Ethical Perspective on War and Peace. "Teacmaking: The Gospel Imperial" Father Nicholas Ayo, Tom Dooley Room. LaFortune Student Center. Sponsored by CSC and Campus Ministry.

MENU

Notre Dame

Italian Grilled Chicken Breast
Veal Parmesan
Cheese & Veg Pot Pie

---

THE OBSERVER

Thursday, February 21, 1991

Page 15
Eight-footers ends DePaul's eight-game winning streak

By CHRIS COONEY
Assistant Sports Editor

DePaul's win over St. John's Tuesday night is the first in a five-game winning streak for the Blue Demons. The streak began last week when the Blue Demons beat Bowling Green, 70-60. The streak continued with a 100-76 win over Northwest Missouri State, a 96-82 win over Northeast Missouri State, and a 91-81 win over Oral Roberts University. The streak concludes with DePaul's 82-73 win over St. John's.

The win over St. John's was DePaul's third straight victory over a Top-20 team. The Blue Demons have won six of their last seven games, and are now 20-4 on the season. They are currently ranked 18th in the Associated Press poll and 16th in the United Press International poll.

The Blue Demons are currently on a four-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are also on a 14-game winning streak at home. They have won 13 of their last 14 home games and are now 13-1 at home.

The Blue Demons are currently ranked 15th in the Associated Press poll and 14th in the United Press International poll. They are 20-4 on the season and are currently ranked first in the Horizon League.

The Blue Demons are currently on a six-game winning streak. They are 5-0 against the Horizon League and 3-0 against the Mid-American Conference. They are also 2-0 against the Big Ten Conference.

The Blue Demons have won 11 of their last 12 games and are currently on a 17-game winning streak. They are 9-1 in conference play and are currently in first place in the Horizon League.