Bush: Arab-Israeli conflict must end

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush proclaimed a triumphant end to the Persian Gulf War on Wednesday night and set his sights on a broader peace. "The time has come to put an end to Arab-Israeli conflict," he said, urging compromise in the troubled Middle East.

Bush's welcome greeted Bush on Capitol Hill, exactly one week after he announced a conditional cease-fire in the 42-day conflict.

"As commander in chief," Bush said to a cheering House chamber, "I can report to you: our armed forces fought with honor and valor. As president, I can report to the nation: aggression is defeated. The war is over.

Bush said he would seize the moment to "close the gap between Israel and the Arab states, and between Israelis and Palestinians." Secretary of State James Baker III flies to Saudi Arabia Thursday morning for the first round of diplomacy.

With Saddam Hussein's army driven out of Kuwait, Bush announced the first large withdrawal of American troops from the gulf. He said the vanguard 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), bound for home in Fort Stewart, Ga., would leave Saudi Arabia by midnight. More than 537,000 U.S. troops were sent off to war.

"This is just the beginning of a steady flow of American troops coming home," Bush told a joint session of Congress in a nationally broadcast speech. "We're coming home now — proud. Confident. Heads high. There is much that we must do at home and abroad. And we will do it. We are Americans."

Balancing alcohol and intimacy

By AMY MARK

News Writer

In a workshop titled, "Intimacy: Contact and Conflict: And What's Alcohol Doing in a Place Like This?" Mary Cecilia Roemer discussed the topic of conflict and intimacy in relationships, as well as the role of alcohol in the intimacy arena.

Roemer began with the topic of conflict in relationships as "essential to growth and development," emphasizing that "learning to live and love with differences is a challenge for everyone." Conflict is a sign of life and a positive connecting force. "Intimacy is achieved when both conflict and contact are balanced."

Essential factors in achieving intimacy are the mutual will and bond of two people entering into a long-term commitment, is a clear-cut sense of identity.

One major obstacle to intimacy is fear, because "we are a fearful people." Many counseling cases have revealed that there is a close connection between power plays and fear. Roemer said, "Fear never gives birth to love, and prevents intimacy or creates too much closeness, which is suffocating. Other obstacles include avoidance, which preserves conflict, and accommodation, which falsifies it."

Studies showed differences between men and women in expectation — a major factor influencing behavior when one consumes alcohol.

Women become more "externally oriented" than men with alcohol use, or even when alcohol was expected but not received. A majority of women reported that alcohol relieved tension and lowered inhibitions, whereas men believed alcohol increased social and sexual interaction and lowered concern about rejection in social situations.

A leading problem with alcohol use, according to Roemer, is that "many people don't learn how to drink sensibly," and many "don't make a conscious decision on how to drink." In conclusion, Roemer said the solution seems to focus on alternative activities, self-esteem, and assertiveness, along with the development of the following responsible drinking characteristics:

Bush said, his voice cracking at times with emotion.

"Tonight in Iraq, Saddam walks amid rubble," Bush said. "His war machine is crushed. His ability to threaten must be reconstruction is itself destroyed. For all that Saddam has done to his own people, in the Kuwaitis and to the entire world. Saddam and those around him are accountable."

The House chamber was awash with red, white and blue from 600 American flags as lawmakers greeted the president. In the audience were Kuwait's ambassador, Saud Al-Sabah, and the architects of the war, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and Joint Chiefs Chairman Colin Powell.

The ambassador, his eyes filling with tears, rose to thank President Bush "for the moment of personal triumph for Bush. Many congressional Democrats had second-guessed Bush throughout his seven-month showdown with Saddam, urging him not to go to war and then not to launch a ground offensive.

In welcoming Bush, House Speaker Thomas Foley bestowed Democratic congratulations on the president and the troops for their "brilliant victory of the Desert Storm operation." Bush was interrupted 22 times by applause.

Society creates gender roles

Phyllis Dolhinow used hard statistics, slides and a persuasive speaking style last night in a presentation about the effect of biology and society on gender roles.

Dolhinow, an anthropologist/primatologist from the University of California - Berkeley, said that biology and not biology defines gender. "Culture constructs reality for all of us," she said, "the reality of gender is defined by culture."

Her speech was titled, "Doing What Comes Naturally? The Biology and Culture of Gender." Dolhinow said she included the question mark because "Often times what we do is only part of a range of what we're able to do."

She explained that gender roles are imposed by society from the moment we are born. "The moment you recognize what it is you have to begin to treat it differently," she said. "We color the role for them," she said, "we begin to give them subtle occupational hints."

Dolhinow presented statistics from studies concerning differences between men and women's verbal and math skills. Several highly publicized studies claim to show that men have better innate math skills, while women are better in their verbal skills.

She explained that a less publicized meta-analysis looked at over three million subject's standardized test results. "The only area where

British Premier visits Saudi Arabia
KUWAIT CITY — Prime Minister John Major of Britain hailed his troops as heroes today and said they would be going home as soon as possible. Major also said it was unlikely Britain would contribute to any standing army to police the Persian Gulf region. Major was the first head of a allied government to visit Kuwait since Iraqi forces were forced out of the emirate last week. Major arrived early today in Saudi Arabia, where he changed planes to fly on to Kuwait City. His itinerary included a visit to the newly reopened British Embassy and talks with Crown Prince Shak Saad al-Abdallah al-Fahab, the prime minister. Britain's 40,000 armed forces in the Persian Gulf are the largest European contingent in the U.S.-led international force that fought Iraq.

Fig, middle school bans hair spray
FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — The never-ending quest for "big hair" created with the help of spray has raised a cloud of controversy as middle school students smuggle in the contraband cosmetic. About a third of Broward County's 29 middle schools prohibit hair spray on campus, but students say hard-core users are still smuggling it in. Seminole students have lots of theories about the ban. They figure some students are allergic to hair spray and others use it to thicken their hair. One top of that, students occasionally sneak a forbidden substance in the bathroom, something that could be dangerous around a cloud of hair spray, they said.

Man convicted of threatening Reagan
LOS ANGELES — A jury Wednesday convicted a man who claimed to be Jesus Christ in his second coming of making a threat against former President Ronald Reagan. Gregory Stuart Gordon was convicted of one count of threatening a former president. Gordon, 33, faces up to three years in prison and a $20,000 fine when he is sentenced April 29. Gordon, who has lived in New Jersey and in Hollywood, climbed over the fence of the Reagan home in suburban Bel-Air, shot up the driveway, through the house and out a back door before Secret Service agents stopped him, according to court documents. Prosecutors said that Gordon described himself as Christ in the second coming and told arresting agents: "Ronald Reagan is the Antichrist. He must be killed and I must kill him."

INDIANA
Agencies eye federal day care funds
INDIANAPOLIS — Unlike many publicly supported agencies, those concerned with day care and preschool programs in Indiana do not have a money problem. The main concern, according to officials, is how to use all the money that's available to provide quality programs. Indiana will receive at least $4 million in federal block grant funds for the next five years, and another $30 million in federal money is available if the state can help match it. Stein's proposal calls for a voucher system to help parents pay for child care, increased training for day-care owners and state inspectors and a child care services division to coordinate programs.

Former ND professor dies at 80

CLAREMONT, Calif. (AP) — The Father John L. McKenzie, a Roman Catholic Bible scholar who pursued scientific inquiry into the scriptures with his 980,000-word "Dictionary of the Bible," has died. McKenzie, a native of Brazil, Ind., was 80.

McKenzie, long in ill-health, died of heart disease on Saturday at Claremont Manor Convalescent Hospital, said Anita Robinson, a college professor and former student who had taken care of him for 13 years.

"Up until almost the end he was writing and lecturing and saying Mass," she said Wednesday.

An author of more than two dozen books, editor of many others and a columnist, McKenzie was best known for the dictionary published in 1965.

"It was really a landmark volume for biblical studies for Catholics," said John Sprague, president of the Thomas More Association in Chicago, publisher of several other McKenzie books. "For years the Catholic Church kind of rebelled against scientific inquiry into the Bible.

The dictionary functions as a reference tool for scholars, providing such information as names of places and people, and places them in context.

McKenzie was born Oct. 9, 1910, in Brazil, Ind., and was ordained a Jesuit priest in 1939. He taught at Loyola University in Chicago, Notre Dame and DuPaul, among others, and joined archaeological explorations in 1957 and 1960.

Other significant works by McKenzie included "The Two-Edged Sword" and "Authority in the Church.

"He was a respected scripture scholar but he challenged the traditional pattern of authority in the church and I think people saw that they could do that," Sprague said in a telephone interview.

McKenzie left the Jesuits but remained a priest, and retired to Claremont, where he regularly celebrated the 8:15 a.m. Sunday Mass at Our Lady of the Assumption parish.

Sprague said McKenzie's research did not cast doubt on faith.

"I think he redefined faith for himself. He cast doubt on a lot of things that were purported to be Catholic," that belonged to the church, that there was no foundation for in scripture.

Soviet Treaty gains limited support

MOSCOW (AP) — Eight of the 15 Soviet republics tentatively approved Mikhail Gorbachev's proposed treaty to preserve the union, officials said Wednesday, but there was still uncertainty about how to put the document into effect.

The Russian Federation, by far the wealthiest and most populous republic, was among those signaling tentative agreement. Basic disputes remain between Soviet President Gorbachev and Russian President Boris Yeltsin, however, on taxation, ownership of natural resources and other issues.

Eduard Kovalyov, a spokesman for the national parliament, said the draft was completed last Friday and was returned to Gorbachev to resolve disputed points, which make up about 20 percent of the document.

"I think we have come closer to signing," President Nursultan Nazarbayev of Kazakhstan said on the government's nightly national newscast.

Stepanov, the leader of the northeastern region of Karelia, told TV that the document was "a major political step. I wouldn't call it a victory.... There is hard, serious work ahead.

Gorbachev hopes to complete his review and publish the document before a national referendum he has scheduled for March 17 and billed as a vote on preserving the Soviet Union. Six republics refuse to take part in the referendum or in drafting the treaty, even those taking part in the talks and voting do not have a clear idea of their legal meaning, Kovalyov said.

"No procedure on signing the union treaty has been set," he said. "They are developing it as they go along.

The process reflects the tenuous nature of Soviet democracy. The national Supreme Soviet legislature has surrendered its law-making authority to Gorbachev, voting him the power to rule by decree.

The Russian government has not decided whether the treaty would be ratified by a simple majority or a two-thirds vote, said Sergei Obukhov, a parliamentary spokesman.

males were superior in high school-level problem solving," she said. Doctors believe that this is because males take more electives in high school in subjects that stress problem solving skills.

"There is probably more misinformation about hormones and behavior than anything else I can think of," she said. In fact, women have testosterone and men have estrogen, she said. Some evidence indicates that testosterone is converted into estrogen in the human brain. "I'm not saying that hormones influence behavior," Dolhinow said, "but it isn't clear how they do." She showed the audience several slides that depict gender roles in society. One, a clipping from a magazine article read, "Biology may play a part in dating... women prefer women with young bodies, women prefer men with padded wallets."

"I didn't know that bad anything to do with biology," Dolhinow quipped. "There is a terrible mishmash of misunderstandings about biology," she stressed. "Biology goes on forever, but it does not determine behavior," she said.

"Socio-biologists would have us believe that genes are everything," she said. "DNA codes for proteins, not behavior." "We learn all of the behavior that is appropriate for our culture," Dolhinow said. "We don't need to invoke genes to explain behavior among groups; Culture gives you your gender. I don't want to give the impression that all gender based behavior is bad or wrong, but for most of us it is not our biology that limits us, it is our society.

Anti-gay violence increases sharply

NEW YORK (AP) — Reports of anti-gay violence and harassment jumped dramatically last year in six major cities, a trend attributed Wednesday in part to the growing visibility of homosexuals in American society.

"Greater visibility... has been enormously empowering and has opened doors to understanding and acceptance," the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force said in its report. "However, it also has triggered hostility and attacks on gay and lesbian people a more identifiable target for potential assailants.

The task force collected 1990 statistics from gay service organizations in six metropolitan areas. It found an average 42 percent increase in reports, compared with 1989, in reported incidents, ranging from verbal assaults to arson, police abuse and murder.

"These crimes are intolerable, not only because of the sufferer, but also because they are uniquely destructive of the social fabric," said state Attorney General Robert Abrams at a Manhattan news conference.

"Hate crimes undermine the spirit of tolerance and respect for diversity that are at the foundation of our democracy.

Of a total 1,588 incidents: 507 were recorded in New York (a 65 percent increase over 1989); 425 in San Francisco (up 29 percent); 199 in Los Angeles (up 20 percent); 196 in Chicago (up 11 percent); 147 in the Boston area (up 75 percent); and 112 in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area (up 133 percent).

Kevin Berryhill, director of the task force's Anti-Violence Project, also attributed the increased numbers partly to greater awareness and willingness of victims to come forward.

"However, such large increases, especially in the number of physical assaults, indicate that the severity of the problem has grown" as well, he said.

Police departments in the same six cities also reported a huge jump in anti-gay crimes, although not at levels anywhere near those found by the service in 1989, according to the report.

In 1989, police recorded 265 incidents, compared with 156 in 1990, according to the report. "More people are willing to come forward and talk to us than are willing to get involved with the criminal justice system," said Matt Foreman, head of the New York City Gay and Lesbian Anti-Violence Project, explaining the differing numbers.

two-minute tape King is on his back or on his stomach while several officers kick at his head, arms and legs with nightsticks.

One officer is seen kicking King at least six times.

In all, King was struck or kicked about 30 times.

King, 25, was treated at a hospital for two days before being taken to jail Tuesday. He suffered a broken leg and bruised arm and "the side of his face was deformed," said his wife, Crystal.

The FBI announced Tuesday that it will investigate possible civil rights violations, spokesman Fred Reagan said.

The district attorney's Special Investigations Division, which examines allegations of police brutality, said it is, too, opening an inquiry.

"We want to determine if there is a criminal case against the officers," said spokesman Sandi Gibbons. "We're going to proceed on this very quickly.

Police internal affairs investigators made copies of the tape for their investigation. Gales said. "Even if we determine that the officers were out of line, it is an aberration. Anyone who viewed this tape would have to make a quick judgment."

Prosecutors have not decided whether to charge King, who previously was convicted of a 1989 robbery. King was booked for investigation of every police officer and investigation of parole violation. Bail was not immediately set.

Ramona Ripston of the American Civil Liberties Union said the police chief "must be held responsible for this kind of brutal response." She said that her ACLU chapter receives about 50 calls alleging police brutality each week.

"The time has come to take a very deep look at what the department does," she said, adding that racism might have played a part in the attack.

Correction

An article in Wednesday's Observer about the drinking behavior of college freshmen, a statement regarding a brochure published by Gays and Lesbians of Notre Dame/Saint Mary's (GLNDSMCO) incorrectly stated the club's objectives as "support, fellowship, and communication." The objectives should have read "support, fellowship, and education." Also reported in that article was a statement made by the Lyons Hall team which claimed, that the club's brochure made "references to the formation of sexual relationships from contact within the club setting."

The Observer article failed to mention that the point was later refuted by the St. Ed's Club. The Observer regrets the error.

India’s prime minister of three months resigns

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Chandra Shekhar resigned in anger Wednesday, accuse four deputy premiers of betraying and making new elections a virtual certainty.

A veteran politician but a novice in the top circles of government, Chandra Shekhar lasted three months as head of a minority government in the world’s largest democracy. Shekhar was the heir to the prime ministerial dynasty of Jawaharlal Nehru and Indira Gandhi. He was the man who made Chandra Shekhar prime minister in 1980, evading confidence about his chances of winning the confidence of the members of Parliament. Chandra Shekhar resigned after Parliament failed to vote him in for new elections, echoing the urgings of Congress Party’s parliamentary leader.

Shekhar said he would continue to serve as prime minister “until new arrangements are made.”

Congress Party stalwarts, including several top-level Gandhi aides, predicted this week that they would sweep a majority of Parliament’s seats if new elections are called.

Whether that optimism is well-founded remains to be seen. There have been no authoritative polls recently to either support or debunk the Congress Party’s confidence.

New elections might once again fail to determine a clear winner and doom the country to another fragile minority government like the one headed by Chandra Shekhar or that of his predecessor, V.P. Singh. Singh lasted 11 months after dislodging Gandhi in the November 1989 elections.

Chandra Shekhar announced his resignation on the floor of Parliament with biting remarks that far exceeded even his usually stormy demeanor.

He had just listened to two hours of tirades by opposition members who accused him of running a “puppet” government whose strings were pulled by “puppeteer” Gandhi and Gandhi’s Congress Party.

The Congress Party boycotted Parliament on Tuesday and Wednesday, ostensibly because of outrage over alleged police surveillance of Gandhi’s official residence.

“I cannot run the government in keeping with their [the Congress party’s] behavior,” Chandra Shekhar said, his voice cracking. “Being betrayed is not bad, but to betray is bad.”

Without the support of the Congress Party and the 211 votes it commands in the 514-seat Parliament, Shekhar’s 34-seat Janata Dal-Socialist party could not pass any legislation. Other major parties ranging from communists to Hindu fundamentalists were lined up against him, even on such innocuous matters as a vote of thanks to the president that was to have taken place Wednesday.

“Parliamentary politics is arithmetic,” Chandra Shekhar said. “I cannot run a government if Congress is not present in Parliament.”

The problems date to the 1989 elections when no party obtained a majority in Parliament’s policy-making lower house, the Lok Sabha or House of the People.

Doctor facilitates patient’s suicide

BOSTON (AP) — Diane was worried about a long and painful death from leukemia when her doctor agreed to help her commit suicide.

She had refused chemotherapy because the chance of cure seemed slim. When the time for dying finally came, she wanted to go quietly. So after long talks, Diane’s doctor wrote a prescription for sleeping pills and told her mother and many friends she needed to kill herself.

Cases like this probably are not rare in medicine. But no one really knows, because physicians rarely speak of such things, even to each other.

This case is different. The doctor who helped Diane end her suffering described how and why he did it, in an essay in Thursday’s New England Journal of Medicine. Dr. Timothy Quill, an internist at the University of Rochester, said he decided to tell his story because he wants to bring the discussion of death and suffering into the open.

“We can’t do that without talking about real examples,” he said. “I hope this will cause doctors who take care of severely ill patients to think seriously about what they do and how they handle these situations."

His patient, identified only as Diane, was 45 when she said goodbye to her husband and sons and then died about a year ago, quietly on a couch, covered with her favorite shawl. She ended her increasingly painful life after months of coming to grips with her diagnosis of acute myelomonocytic leukemia, weighing and rejecting treatment and making the most of the time she had left.

Quill, her doctor for eight years, had told Diane she had a 1-in-4 chance of surviving her chemotherapy. Her bone marrow transplant and gain in strength and a long-term cure. Diane said no.

“Shes was convinced she would die during the period of treatment and would suffer unendlessly in the process,” Quill wrote.

The doctor made sure she understood the implications. Although he disagreed, he gradually adjusted to it. Then she brought up another difficult subject.

“It was extraordinarily important to Diane to maintain control of herself and her own dignity during the time remaining to her,” Quill wrote. “When this subject appeared, she clearly wanted to die.”

She wanted no part of the drugged, sedated, terminal care. When she was ready to go, she wanted to take her own life as painlessly as possible. At her request, he wrote her a prescription for barbiturates and told her how to use them for sleep and for death.

FDA says reformulating capsules will help little

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drug manufacturers should consider reformulating their non-prescription capsule products to lessen the threat of tampering, the Food and Drug Administration's new commissioner said Wednesday.

But David Kessler, testifying before a Senate committee days after a nationwide recall of the Sudafed 12 Hour cold capsules because of tampering, cautioned that no packaging is tamper-proof.

"Capsule packages can be tampered with," Kessler told members of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

"Consumers must maintain their vigilance. They must twice before taking any over-the-counter product.

Kessler, in a last week, said the agency would consider whether capsule forms of non-prescription drugs should be banned.

"Today, if I were a drug manufacturer, I would seriously look at other ways to formulate my products than capsule form," he said.

However, Kessler said he reognized that capsules were the most and sometimes only visible dosage form in some drugs. Also, many elderly people pre-der capsule and "they perhaps would not take their medicine if they did not have a form they could swallow," he said.

Kessler has appointed a task force to consider the issue.

As of Wednesday morning, investigators had tracked 24,000 Sudafed 12 Hour cold capsules for signs of cyanide after two deaths and one serious illness in the Poget Sound area of Washington state.

The manufacturer, Burroughs Wellcome Co. of Triangle Park, N.C., issued a nationwide recall of the product last weekend. No arrests have been made.

Since the recall was anounced, investigators have found three capsule packages of Sudafed 12 Hour packages, all collected near International Falls in the Tacoma-Olympia area of Washington state.

Kessler said the FDA was alerted to a possible problem with the over-the-counter decongestant in mid-February, but an investigation then reevel no evidence of tampering.

"It wasn't until this last week when the second case was reported to us" that the agency became convinced of tampering, he said.

In that case, the lot number on the blister pack didn't match the lot number on the box, he said.

OPERATION DESERT STORM

Republican Guards execute dissidents

Safwan, Iraq (AP) — Iraqi tanks are blowing up rebel homes, and soldiers are scattering the bodies of executed dissidents in the streets to discourage further opposition to Saddam Hussein, according to second-largest control, said a correspondent.

Heady Saddam Hussein, according to second-largest control, said a correspondent. "The army is completely in control," said Trock Matthews, a 56-year-old Briton who was among hundreds of people who converged Wednesday on this U.S.-held town near the Kuwait border.

Matthews said he lived in Kuwait 19 years and helped the resistance after Iraq's invasion. He was arrested by Iraqi troops around the time the war started, and was freed from an Iraqi prison Saturday by anti-Saddam rebels, he said.

Matthews said he was in Basra earlier Wednesday when much of the fighting had stopped, aside from small arms and occasional fire from pockets of rebel resistance. In Safwan, Iraqi Brig. Gen. Richard Neal said the unrest in the continued mostly because of American troops in Basra, he said. "It's an internal problem and one I assume the government and the military will eventually resolve," he said.

Iraq's official Islamic Republic News Agency quoted Iraqi refugees arriving in Iran as saying Basra remained in the hands of "popular forces.

One refugee quoted by IRNA claimed the cities Amarah, Kut, Nasiriya, Zubair and Basra also were under control of dissidents. The refugee said anti-Saddam demonstrations were staged in the Kurdish-populated city of Sulaimaniya, Kirkuk and Mosul in northern Iraq.

Many of the refugees spent days walking the bomb-battered road linking Basra and Kuwait, a route strewn with charred remnants of Saddam's army.

The majority, hungry and sometimes allying Iraqis, were not being allowed into Kuwait. Others were foreigners who had worked in Kuwait were imprisoned in Basra after the Iraqi invasion, some because they tried to help them and then were executed in Iraq. The refugees said the cities Amarah, Kut, Nasiriya, Zubair and Basra also were under control of Saddam's regime.

Iraqi refugee, Jabar Saleh, 58-year-old Briton who was arrested by Iraqi troops during the war, said his 3-year-old girl was killed when Republican Guards fired a rifle at his car as his family stopped Sunday by a river to do laundry. He said a 1-year-old daughter was hurt in the attack and he left her in a Basra hospital.

Several Iraqi refugees and other people fleeing the country said the Republican Guard was executing dissidents and scattering their bodies in the streets to frighten rebels.

Two of the Iraqi refugees, living in a camp near U.S. Army positions, said they worked in at least their left respective cities, Basra and nearby Zubair, after the Republican Guard showed up on Monday.

They said the rebels were killed in street combat in Basra as civilians started fleeing the city.

The takeovers took root in the large street battles that followed the war, they said, and the unrest was partly orchestrated by a renegade Iraqi general.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lightning speed of the allied victory against Iraq left the U.S. military with mountains of surplus matériel and material on reorder.

Military logistics officials, who planned for a prolonged ground war when they placed their orders, now must figure out what to do with the stuff — even, perhaps, some of 900 million little-loved Meals Ready to Eat. Besides food, the Pentagon has spent billions of dollars on trucks, ammunition, spare parts, clothing and other supplies for U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf. In recent weeks, the Defense Department has signed contracts for nearly 6 million camouflage jackets and trousers ($138 million), 1.4 million pairs of the newly designed "Schwarzkopf boot" ($63.2 million) and 44,000 shrimp- protection vests ($9.9 million). Since last week's cease fire, however, "it's like we're trying to turn a river around," says Frank Johnson, a spokesman for the Defense Personnel Support Center in Philadelphia.

"We are going to have to restock the shelves," Johnson said Tuesday. "We've got to refill our war reserves . . . we've got to get ourselves to a comfortable level so if another war broke out tomorrow, we'd be OK.

Clearing out excess hardware will probably take a year, said Major Peter Keating, an Army spokesman at the Pentagon. Ammunition will have to be inspected, cleaned, repackaged and put back into stocks or disposed of in an environmentally safe way if it can't be used, he said.

Vehicles bought specifically for the gulf buildup may be sold to foreign countries, subject to congressional approval through the State Department's foreign military sales program. Some older Bradley fighting vehicles, in addition to the main weapons in the ground war, already were considered surplus before the gulf buildup and may be sold abroad.

Some Iraqi equipment captured by allied troops, such as modern, Soviet-made T-72 tanks and BMP-2 infantry vehicles, will be shipped to the United States, stripped down and deemed to contain technical information, Keating said. Much of the rest likely will be sold as scrap.

Discounts on tuition, travel, baseball tickets

Americans are tying a yellow ribbon around a vast array of gifts, freebies and perks for troops who served in the Persian Gulf — offering them everything from casino fings to breaks on college tuition.

On top of where services are coast to coast, merchants, lawmakers and promoters are busy drafting shopping lists of goodies to show off to more than half a million men and women who served in the gulf.

With some restrictions, the freebies include a night's stay at a casino, steamboat cruises, treks through a movie studio, military personnel. And after the hoopla dies down, the troops will find more

LAFORTUNE STUDENT CENTER

Deadline for applications is March 29
For the past six weeks, this space has been used to call the University Community together to pray for peace in the Middle East and to remember by the name the relatives and friends of the Notre Dame community involved in this terrible conflict.

Today we use this space to ask God's eternal rest for those who have died and God's healing and consolation for their many grieving families. We remember the casualties among coalition forces and the estimated 150,000 Iraqi war dead, whose listed names would never be able to fit on this page.

The Office of Campus Ministry expresses its gratitude to the various members of the faculty and staff who have been willing to accompany students in discussion about the formation of conscience and the issues of conscientious objection. We wish to inform the student body that this service continues to be available through the Campus Ministry Office in Hesburgh Library.

We also invite conversation and suggestions seeking ways in which the University community can more effectively be called to engage the issues of violence and injustice so that seeds may be planted in our own lives which would grow to make such future conflicts unthinkable.
Executive advisers to the U.S. government have been urged to allocate more money for food assistance programs, according to a speech by Alan Greenspan. Greenspan, the chairman of the Federal Reserve, said that the central bank has decided to delay any further credit easing while awaiting future economic reports.

"We were especially concerned with the plight of minority children," he told the House Budget Committee, citing research that indicates black children are more likely to live in poverty, more likely to die during the first year of life, and more likely to be born with low birthweight than white children.

The Southern labor force cannot afford to lose the minority children, Clendenin said. Clendenin and the other executives urged Congress to provide more funds for the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children.

"Seldom in business does an investment have the return on initial investment and long-term strategic value" provided by the program, said Robert Allen, chief executive officer of AT&T. James Renier, chairman of Honeywell Inc., also praised the program.

"From a business perspective, the program is a near-perfect allocation of resources," Renier said. WIC has never provided enough money to feed all the eligible low-income women and children in the country, though studies have documented its success in reducing future health costs and improving school performance.

"We believe that our economy's future is brighter, and should enhance prospects for recovery," Greenspan told members of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Greenspan's comments were viewed by financial markets as a signal that the central bank has decided to delay any further credit easing while awaiting future economic reports.

"He was basically telling the markets that this recession was caused by the war, the war is over and therefore he thinks recovery is going to end without further prodding from the Fed," said David Wyss, an economist with DRI-McGraw Hill, a consulting firm in Lexington, Mass.

The central bank, under pressure from the Bush administration, began in late October an aggressive easing campaign in an effort to fight the recession. The effort pushed banks' prime lending rate down by a full percentage point and helped to send long-term mortgage rates to their lowest levels since early 1987.

Many economists had been looking for the Fed to ease again following release of what they expected to be the weak unemployment report for Wednesday, March 7.
Confined Marines issue a plea for help

Dear Editor:

I received the following note from the BITNET computer network, and thought you'd find it of interest:

"We, United States Marines, being confined at Camp LeJyne, N.C., present the following statement of what we hold dear. We are re-fusing to participate in war. Yet we are about to be tried as 'deserters,' and face seven years of imprisonment. We have considered suicide and death, but have not harmed another human being in any way. Because we refuse to kill, we are going to be tried in the same category as murderers and rapists. None of us 'deserted' the military but rather submitted ourselves to the mercy of the military justice system. Each of us legally seeks non-combatant duties in any civilian government job or a complete discharge because our consciences will not allow us to participate in war.

In the beginning of our ordeal, it was evident that the military justice system had no intention of freeing us. The standard option of an Other Than Honorable discharge was denied to make an 'example' of those who choose to stay for peace. Clearly, the military justice system is attempting to make an 'example' of those who choose to stay for peace. We believe in the freedom our country was founded upon, and that every American Citizen has the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Yes, all of us signed contracts with the military; however, we are willing to fulfill the remainder of our contracts in any civilian government job as long as it does not conflict with our beliefs or support the 'war machine'.

If you believe in freedom and peace, please take action. Don't let this terrible injustice occur.

We desperately need your support. Help liberate us, and help save lives in the Persian Gulf. If enough people care, change will come.

In Love and Peace of Humanity,
The fifteen Conscientious Objectors being held at Camp LeJyne, N.C.

Student threatened with arrest for taking coffee cup

Dear Editor:

Jennifer Crosson's letter to the editor (The Observer, Feb 20) required no defense. In April 3, I wrote a strong challenge cultural diversity pos is and threats to our community. What is the role of the academy? While this question has been debated for years, and I have no doubt celebrate is with a wide variety of our community's culture and diversity, what do we need to do to ensure that our students are educated in the contemporary context of cultural diversity? It is essential that the educational system reflect and celebrate the diversity of our community. Crosson's letter reflects this need for cultural diversity, and I encourage all students to read and reflect on it. In the end, it is up to each of us to build a community that is inclusive and welcoming. In light of Crosson's letter, I urge everyone to continue to work towards a more inclusive and diverse community. Thank you.

Jennifer Crosson

Viewpoint

DEAR EDITOR:

I am writing in response to the recent letter from Jennifer Crosson, which appeared in the March 3, 2019, edition of The Observer. Crosson's letter raised several important points about cultural diversity and the role of the academy in promoting and celebrating this diversity. As a student of color, I wholeheartedly agree with Crosson's assessment of the current state of affairs, and I believe that we must do more to ensure that our community is truly inclusive and welcoming.

First, I would like to commend Crosson for her thoughtful and well-written letter. She made several points that are relevant to the current political climate and the need for greater cultural awareness. In particular, Crosson emphasized the importance of addressing the issue of cultural diversity in the academy, and she pointed out that there are still many challenges to be overcome.

Second, I would like to suggest that we need to do more to ensure that our community is truly inclusive and welcoming. This means that we need to be more open to different perspectives and that we need to actively seek out and celebrate the diversity of our community.

Finally, I would like to encourage all students to read and reflect on Crosson's letter. It is a powerful reminder of the importance of cultural diversity, and it is a call to action for all of us to work towards creating a more inclusive and diverse community. Thank you.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]

"Abin fever is sweeping across campus in epidemic proportions. As spring break draws temptingly closer, students are positively itching for a vacation and it seems like almost everybody is planning a trip of some kind—whether they're piling into a car and heading to Florida or simply flying home. Not all students will be following in the pattern of popular traditional vacations, however. Many believe that all one needs is a little creativity in order to create the ideal spring break. Students who fall into this category have been planning wilder and wackier spring breaks than ever before.

Take, for example, Senior Mark Calzolano, who summed up his plans for spring break with the question, "How about Aspen, Colorado on $300 or less?" Skiing buffs know that this is going to be one heck of an impressive feat. The costs of skiing alone are as high as the mountains on which he'll be vacating. "Throw in the costs of eating (Vail has the most expensive McDonalds in the world), and Calzolano might just be going for a Guinness World Record.

"I'm going with (Seniors) Eric Scharpf and Matt Ayers. We're all graduating seniors. This is that last fling before we're completely and totally responsible for the rest of our lives," Calzolano added. Many seniors plan to take part in similar "last fling" vacation prospects before graduation rolls around.

Senior Joe Huff is planning to fly to Acapulco, Mexico with a group of twelve friends. Two of the students made arrangements for the hotel through a travel agency, and the twelve will be "staying practically for free in a six star hotel right on the beach."

Sophomore Katie Eustermann shared a funky spring break experience which required little money, also. She and a few friends used to go to ski lodges which were "Wedlocking," a certain person and if they broke a rule, they'd have to spin the wheel of torture. If the person lost, they were required to undergo one of many various tortures. "They'd shave off your left eyebrow, draw a map along your spinal column, or shave your pubis in your chest hairs."

Freshman Kirstin Veen took part in a rather exhilarating experience last spring with her boyfriend, Jason. "We were trying to decide where to go for vacation and we finally decided on seafood." Jason mentioned "a marvelous place in San Fransisco," but Veen completely disregarded his remark, because San Francisco was a nine hour drive away. A few hours later, she and her boyfriend were in Jason's dad's jet, and "his dad's pilot flew us to L.A... We ate on Fisherman's Wharf, overlooking the bay," added Veen.

Many other students have experienced quite a different type of spring break in Europe while participating in the Notre Dame foreign exchange program.

Junior Dave Schindler shared a distinctive memory from the1989-90 Angers program. "I went to a ski lodge with four friends (Chris O'Connell) and at the hostel we broke out the guitar and sang songs with all the foreigners." At one point the patron of the Venice hostel broke in, interrupted their singing and asked them to take their music outside. The two compiled, and amazingly enough, were followed by about 65 other spirited voices. "We sang songs for about three hours. It was one of the best nights of my life. It was beautiful," Schindler said.

Junior Chris Murphy participated in the foreign studies program, also. "I went to Greece, and met a really cute girl (an old girlfriend). The two of us left Europe and went to Texas with the crew team and will be training all week in preparation for a race on Saturday." Many are simply headed for home next week. But regardless of the destination, most students are just looking forward to a break.
Ojeda vents anger at management of Mets

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — in what he called an uncharacteristic display of anger, left-handed pitcher Bob Ojeda strongly criticized New York Mets Wednesday, saying he felt ripped off by the way they used him last season.

“I want to have the kind of year this year that I could have had for the New York Mets last year,” Ojeda said at the Dodgers’ spring training facility.

“Last year was such a joke. I could have helped them win the division, without a doubt.”

“It’s something I’ll never forget. I feel like I got ripped off, I got robbed. I threw the ball well, it’s not like I had a bad year. The last six weeks of the year, I think I pitched three innings.”

Ojeda, 33, has started 222 of the 230 major league games in which he’s appeared, but he got the starting nod at the beginning of only 12 games last season. He appeared in relief 26 times.

“I just got cut out for (relieving), it’s just not earned.”

Harrelson recognized Johnson as Mets manager May 29. Ojeda had returned Ran Dinning to the starting rotation a week earlier, getting his first win on May 22, an 8-3 decision over the Dodgers after that, on Sept. 5. The Mets finished 91-71, four games behind the first-place Pirates in the NL East.

“And you know what, they’re not ready to go into Pippin (in the starting rotation) this year, as he recalled.

“I don’t think it’s going to be one or another. I’m ready to go into Pippin’s last start.”

With acies like Frank Viola on the staff, Ojeda was relegated to the bullpen late in the season.

Pirates was rendered meaningless as the Pirates took over the NL East. So Ojeda was used as a starter in that series.

Ojeda started 31 games for the Mets in 1989, but had a 13-11 record with a 3.47 earned run average. Last year, he wound up 7-4, 3.66.

Oliver leads Bollers over No. 2 Ohio St.

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Jimmy Oliver scored 27 points, including 9 of Purdue’s final 12, as the Boilermakers upset No. 2 Ohio State 72-67 and clinched the Big Ten title outright Wednesday night.

With the victory, Purdue (26-2, 15-2) in West Lafayette.

Ohio State closed to 68-67 when Perry Carter hit the first of two free throws. Jim Jackson sank a jumper off Turner's missed free throw with 1:14 left.

But Oliver and Lin Danner sank two free throws each in the first 1:03 to hold off Buckeyes, who need a victory in their final game at Iowa or a loss by second-place Indiana to win their first outright Big Ten title since 1973.

The Boilermakers kept Purdue (16-11, 8-10) in contention for a berth in the NCAA tournament.

Ohio State trailed 53-45 with 6:38 remaining, but then capped the comeback and the Boilermakers went nearly 4 minutes with just one basket on Chuckie White’s drive.

Mark Baker’s layup capped the comeback, by the Dao of the first half, 56-55, as he had 22 points. Purdue Boilermakers responded with a 17-10 spurt, including 9 points by Labrador, to push the final 55-2 to win the game.

HOLMES COMING OUT OF RETIREMENT TO BOX AGAIN

NEW YORK (AP) — It's not the money, it's the title that's driving Larry Holmes out of retirement at the age of 41.

"The main reason for my comeback is to get back what I lost," the former heavyweight champion said Wednesday. "Money is not the reason."

That's what 42-year-old George Foreman said when he came out of retirement in 1987. The heavyweight champion of 1973-74 will cap his comeback from a 10-year layoff when he challenges Evander Holyfield for the undisputed heavyweight title on April 19 at Atlantic City, N.J., for a guaranteed $12 million.

Twelve days earlier at Hollywood, Fla., Holmes, heavyweight champion for seven years (1978-85), will begin a second comeback that he hopes will lead to a fight with Foreman. Holmes' opponent will be Tim "Doc" Anderson of Orlando, Fla.

"I see George Foreman knocking Holyfield out and if Tyson comes along, Foreman will knock him out, too," Holmes said from his office at Easton, Pa. "I think I can do it (re-establish himself) in a short period of time and go for the big one by the end of the year," said Holmes, who last fought Jan. 22, 1988, when he was knocked out in the fourth round by Mike Tyson in a bid to win the undisputed heavyweight title.

"I could have beaten Mike Tyson if Don King gave me more time," said Holmes. "He gave me two months."

That fight ended a 21-month retirement for Holmes, who immediately retired again.

Asked how Anderson came to be selected as his second-comeback opponent for the 10-round bout at the Hotel Diplomat, Holmes said, "They gave me a list of guys and I picked him."

Holmes said the main reason he chose Anderson was that Foreman fought him in the fourth fight of his comeback in 1987. Foreman got a fourth-round knockout, which was one of the 12-year-old Anderson's nine knockout losses. Anderson is 25-13-0 with 13 knockouts.

Holmes, who first retired after failing to regain the International Boxing Federation title on a controversial decision to Michael Spinks on April 19, 1986, said he has contemplated a second comeback for some time. His record is 48-3, with 34 knockouts.

"I decided to come back because there aren't any good fighters out there," he said. "Some of the guys who are ranked I've beaten already."

Three fighters currently ranked in the top 10 by at least one of the three major governing bodies (IBF, World Boxing Association and World Boxing Council) were beaten by Holmes in title defenses. They are Carl "The Truth" Williams, Tim Witherspoon and Renaldo Snipes.

Those were million-dollar fights for Holmes, whose biggest purse was $8 million for his 13th-round victory over Gerry Cooney in defense of the WBC title June 11, 1982.

"It's embarrassing," Holmes said of what he will be paid to fight Anderson. "What I'm getting, everybody will say, 'This man is crazy.'"

The fight will be promoted by L.B.A. Associates of Newport Beach, Calif.

Paul Kaneski, the chief executive officer of L.B.A., said from his office that Holmes signed "a four-fight comeback contractual commitment with an option. We worked on this for about 10 months." He declined to reveal the financial worth of the pact.

There will be 2,800 seats for the live fight, with another $1,000 set aside in the Diplomat for a closed-circuit telecast. Tickets will be scaled from $25 to $250.

Kaneski said air time has been purchased by two small cable companies, but that time might be sold back because of interest shown by other TV companies.

Holmes plans to leave for Florida soon.

"My wife (Diane) said if I'm going to come back I have go away to train because there are too many other things on my mind," said Holmes, who has extensive business holdings in the Easton area.

Holmes expects criticism over his comeback.

"I used to let things really bog me down — negative press and things like that," he said. "Now I don't give a damn.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Brendan Shanahan's goal with nine seconds left in regulation time Wednesday night gave the New Jersey Devils a 3-2 tie with Buffalo, extending the Sabres' franchise-record home winless streak to 10 games.

With goalie Chris Terreri removed for an extra skater, Shanahan lined up in the rebound from just outside the crease for his 25th of the season to give the Devils the tie.

Anderson Mogilny, whose goal early in the third period put the Sabres ahead 3-2, nearly won the game for Buffalo late in the overtime. His wrist shot from the right faceoff dot beat Terreri cleanly but hit the far post and stayed out. Mogilny also got the Sabres a power play with 24 seconds left when he was hauled down by Eric Weinrich, but Buffalo was unable to capitalize.

Buffalo is 0-5-5 at the Memorial Auditorium since a 6-4 victory over Boston on Jan. 22. For the season, the Sabres are 11-11-11 at home — and overall, they're tops in the NHL with 17 ties, the most since overtime was restored in 1983.

The Devils got their first point for new coach Tom McVie, who took over from John Cunniff on Monday. They lost 4-3 to the New York Islanders in McVie's debut on Tuesday.

Rookie Ken Sutton, playing in his second NHL game, scored twice for Buffalo. New Jersey got goals from Shanahan, Patrik Sundstrom and Viacheslav Fetisov.

Mogilny was unchecked in front of the Devils' net when he steered home a passout by Pierre Turgeon to snap a 2-2 tie at 2:39 of the final period.

North Stars 5, Oilers 1

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. — Brian Bellew scored twice and got an assist to become the first player in North Stars history to score at least 60 points in seven different seasons as Minnesota dominated the Edmonton Oilers 5-1 on Wednesday night.

Dave Gagner extended his point-scoring streak to 12 games with three assists for the North Stars, who are in second place in the Northwest Division and second in points behind the Kings, who once in their last eight games (3-1-4). Minnesota stretched its lead over Toronto in the race for the final Norris Division playoff berth to 11 points with 12 games remaining.

Minnesota goalie Jan Casey made 23 saves to hand the Oilers their seventh loss in their last 12 games (3-7-2).

Bellow, now in his ninth season, is the franchise's third-leading all-time scorer with 633 points. Three players — Bill Goldsworthy, Oino Gecareli and current North Star Neal Broten — had 60-point seasons. Bellows' 61 points this season are second to Gagner's last 12 games (3-7-2).

Bellow's 61 points this season are second to Gagner's last 12 games (3-7-2). Bellew's 61 points this season are second to Gagner's last 12 games (3-7-2).

Gagner has seven goals and 19 assists in his last 12 games.

With the lineup questionable, the Irish will need top performances all around to come back from break victorious. Having played with injuries all year, and boasting strong wins so far to date, the Irish will simply chalk this up as another challenge to tackle, and stand to reap tremendous gains if they are successful.

Louderback said, "The turning point of the season will be becoming everyone healthy. We haven't had our full lineup yet in a match this year. Our kids have had to play out of position and have had to do double jobs."

Freshman standout Terri Vitale said, "It's better to play with less than perfect talent. It brings out the best. We have nothing to lose and everything to gain."

These next four matches will show how well these young players are developed and how much they have gained in their quest for a first-ever NCAA tournament birth.

Larry Bird made Scott Skiles on Wednesday night and sent the seven games. Tucker's 3-pointer could take to turn around commission was created by the ago beat Charlotte. Harris said.

Trent Tucker made a 3-pointer it surveyed rated the athletics, Harris said most groups where there are Knight-Ridder sports causes in communities independent private body that supports causes in communities where there are Knight-Ridder newspapers.

Harris said his organization polled a cross-section of the adult population, including college sports fans. Also surveyed, he said, were 75 Division I college presidents, 75 Division 1 athletic directors, 76 coaches of men's basketball and football, 75 faculty members and samples of faculty athletic representatives and other groups.

"The NCAA is rated negatively on controlling the excesses of college athletics by relatively close majorities of every single group surveyed, except three: athletic directors, coaches and faculty athletic representatives," Harris said.

He said majorities of every campus group except for coaches favored presidential control of athletics. He did not give figures in his prepared remarks.

Jim Marchiony, spokesman for the NCAA, said, "I think that the control of intercollegiate athletics, as every department on a college campus, should be under the control of the president. The athletic department should be no different from any other department in the university."

Marchiony declined comment on the reported negative ratings of the NCAA, saying he wanted to study the poll first.

Only the athletic directors and the coaches who work for them rated athletic directors as effective in controlling excesses in college sports, Harris said. He said 81 percent of the presidents rated them negatively.

Nevertheless, he said, the athletic directors more often than not endorsed presidential assumption of control and other reforms and "in my judgment, can be a key element in making reform a reality, if they are made fully accountable to the presidents."

"By any measure, the coaches, more than any other group, clearly opt for the status quo," Harris said.

As for the faculty, he said, "They give themselves low grades by 79-15 percent on their helping control excesses in athletic programs. And they feel very guilty about it."

He said faculty athletic representatives were rated negatively, 77-11 percent, by their college colleagues on how they handled excesses in athletics.

College trustees "seem primed to offer strong support for presidential efforts to take charge" but "do not know all the facts as they should," Harris said.

He said surveys showed people came up findings as to what people think is wrong with college athletic programs, Harris said they are "that the academic program is not being given a proper priority over the athletic program; big-time athletics are designed to get favorable publicity for the school and to please the alumni rather than to give the student-athletes a decent and sound education; and TV money is far too dominant a factor."

He said female athletes and sports administrators all condemned what they believe is sex discrimination.

"Mark it well, if reform does not deal with women's intercollegiate athletics, those claiming to be paragons of reform will be courting real trouble," said Harris.

He said all groups except coaches and booster club leaders favored bringing all athletic funds, whatever the source, under university control.

"There is real agreement that presidents must take a much firmer hand in controlling intercollegiate athletics," Harris said.

"My view is that reform is possible and even probable," he said.

Pistons' slump continues as Tucker sinks game-winner

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. (AP) - Trent Tucker made a 3-pointer at the buzzer as the New York Knicks won their fourth straight, 102-99, Wednesday night and sent the Pistons to their sixth loss in seven games.

Detroit tied the game at 99 on Joe Dumars' 3-pointer with 2.5 minutes left. After New York called timeout, Tucker made an off-balance shot from well behind the 3-point line to give their Knicks their sixth victory in seven games. Tucker, a 3-pointer at the buzzer two weeks ago beat Charlotte.

Charles Oakley added 21 points and 13 rebounds for the Knicks and Maurice Cheeks had 13 points. Tucker finished with eight points.

James Edwards scored a season-high 27 points for Detroit, which played its game behind Chicago in the Central Division. Dumars added 26 points and Mark Aguirre scored 20.

New York took control in the third quarter. oakley scored 10 points in a 14-4 run. That gave the Knicks their first lead at 66-65 with 6:04 left. The strong finish enabled the Celtics to cut Miami's deficit to 75-71.

Magic 89, Clippers 86

BOSTON - Larry Bird made four 3-pointers in the last eight minutes of the third quarter as the Boston Celtics spoiled Miami's bid for a franchise-record winning streak and beat the Heat 126-117 Wednesday night. Miami had won three straight for the second time in its three-year history. But Boston improved its record over the Heat to 10-0.

Bird, who made 7 of 10 from the field, 3 of 4 from the 3-point range in a 126-101 victory over Indiana Monday night, made 5 of 8 against Miami. He started shooting 3-pointers after the Heat cut a 70-55 halftime deficit to 75-71.

Magic 89, Clippers 86

ORLANDO, Fla. - Scott Skiles scored 8 of his 17 points in the final five minutes to key a 16-5 stretch run Wednesday night that carried the Orlando Magic to an 89-86 victory over the Los Angeles Clippers.

Denver had 23 points for Los Angeles, but his 3-point shot bounced off the rim with one second left.

The strong finish enabled the Magic to overcome their deficit and stop a three-game losing streak. The Clippers, playing away from home for the fourth time in five nights, have lost three straight since ending February with two consecutive victories at home.

Greg Kite began Orlando's comeback with a pair of free throws with 5:14 left. Skiles scored six of the Magic's next eight points and then threaded a perfect pass to Dennis Scott, whose layup finished a fast break and made it 85-85 with 2:28 left.

Jazz 104, Bullets 93

LANDOVER, Md. - Bernard King scored 50 points - the eighth 50-point game of his career - as it was not enough Wednesday night as the Utah Jazz beat the Washington Bullets 104-93.

King was 18-for-31 from the field and 14-of-16 from the free-throw line. It was his second 50-point game of the season; he scored 52 points on Dec. 29 against Denver. Malone scored seven points as the Jazz increased the lead to 72-54.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "What a difference a year makes, especially in the storybook tale of the Atlanta Braves' Dave Justice.

The National League rookie of the year arrived at spring training with a starting job in the outfield and a healthy $296,500 contract.

"Everything is different," Justice said. "Now people know who you are. People want your autographs. I never had that before. It's a nice feeling being recognized."

He hit .282 with 28 home runs and 74 RBIs in 121 games last year, even though he missed the first six weeks with a fractured cheekbone.

"Last year I came into spring training looking for an opportunity to make the team," Justice said. "Then I got hit in the face and that opportunity was gone."

After recovering, Justice reported to the Braves' Triple A affiliate in Richmond and hit .356 in 12 games before he was recalled by Atlanta on May 16.

"I didn't know what to expect," he said. "I just wanted to be part of the team, improve and get my best shot. "I guess I soaked them."

It didn't happen suddenly, however. Justice, a right-fielder, played first base and after 68 games was hitting only .243 with eight homers and 28 RBIs.

The Braves then traded Dale Murphy to the Philadelphia Phillies on Aug. 4. Justice was moved to right field, and he went on a tear.

He had 10 homers and 20 RBIs in 12 games from Aug. 7-20 and was named NL player of the month. He finished by hitting .344 in September with 9 home runs and 28 RBIs.

"I showed the ability to hit consistently on a major league level," said Justice. "I credit that to lots of hard work. I was always the first guy out on the field taking extra batting practice, and it paid off."

Bo Jackson, who is on crutches after suffering an injury in the AFC Playoffs, may miss opening day for the Kansas City Royals.

HAINES CITY, Fla. (AP) — Bo is banged up and might not play. So what is he now?

Bo Jackson, whose football season ended on the sidelines, may start the baseball season in the same place. Still limping and on crutches, he left open the possibility Wednesday that his hip injury will not heal by opening day.

"It's really hard to tell," Jackson said. "I have to stay off it as much as possible."

Jackson missed six weeks for the Kansas City Royals last season because of a shoulder injury, yet still led the team with 28 home runs. Now two months after being hurt in an NFL playoff game, he's impatient to get back into the swing.

"This is probably the most frustrating injury I've ever had," Jackson said. "I can't even get out on the field to run. I can't swing a bat."

"I need help at the stadium," Jackson said. "But they picked on me a lot. They throw sweaty T-shirts and socks at me, hitting me in the back of the head. They pick up my cleats and throw them down."

For the man who does everything in the TV commercials, being babied means being humbled. He's not even talking much about it, he said Wednesday's press session was the only one he plans at spring training.

Jackson is confined to daily four-hour workouts at the Royals camp, trying to fix the soft tissue damage in his left hip. He spends an hour exercising in the water, then rides a stationary bike and trains with weights.

Jackson dismissed the need for surgery. He will return to Kansas City in two weeks for further examinations, and should know by then whether he can play in the Royals opener April 8.

"From the look of things right now, I would say I would be ready," Jackson said. "But if the doctors say to stay off it, that's what I have to do."

Remember, too, that Jackson tends to be optimistic. When he hobbled off the field after being hurt late in the Los Angeles Raiders' playoff victory over Cincinnati, he predicted he would play the following week against Buffalo. Instead, he watched in street clothes.

Jackson and the Royals realize that not playing is one of the perks of being two-sport All-Star. He missed more than a month in the 1988 baseball season with a torn hamstring, was hurt later that year during football, and other nagging problems tend to take their toll.

"You are going to have injuries no matter what you. You just have to accept the circumstances," he said. "It comes with the territory. Those are the facts."

Jackson did not commit to continuing his All-Pro football career next season — "we'll have to wait and see," he said, his common response to such questions.

Nofor the Royals want to force him to make a decision. At least, not yet.

"I think a situation such as this is perhaps less than ideal as far as football vs. baseball," Royals general manager Herb Robinson said. "It's my feeling that in time he'll gravitate toward one or the other. I think we're near the end of that road."

"He's coming up on free agency and his football contract is up. I'm not sure any team would want to sign him to a long-term contract while he's playing both sports because of the risk factor."

Certainly Jackson, 28, could last longer in baseball, and would therefore stand to make a lot more money. But he is attracted to the sheer power and force of football as well as the challenge of those who wonder how long he can keep it up.

Privately, the Royals think Jackson will choose baseball, if he does choose one. But after four full seasons for the Royals and four half-seasons with the National League last season.

Bo may not be ready for opener.

Football players cleared for hoops

By MARK MCGRATH Sports Writer

The Notre Dame football staff has announced that returning varsity football players will be allowed to participate in this year's Bookstore Basketball Tournament.

The staff had originally decided that the returning players would not be permitted to play at all because of the new NCAA rule limiting the time for spring practice. The staff believed that it would be most beneficial to the team to not miss any practices because spring is when the team for next year is really formed.

"I just can't wait to play (Bookstore)," said Demetrius DuBose, a linebacker for the Irish football team as well as an All-Tournament Second Team selection last year.

The returning players have now been given permission to participate in the tournament. However, if a conflict arises between football and a Bookstore game, the football practice takes priority and the player will have to miss their Bookstore game.
Irish softball begins season

By JENNIFER MARTEN
Sports Writer

For the Notre Dame softball team, this is the time of year to play as many as 15 games a year. But the patience and poise of the Irish this year suggests the squad has improved since last year.

The team opens its 1991 season Saturday with a doubleheader break schedule which includes a doubleheader against Miami University and a tournament in Houston, and a tournament at Indiana University, a tournament in Illinois as well as the host team will face tough competition from Iowa State, North Carolina State and Indiana State, they will face Bowling Green, Eastern Illinois as well as the host Suncomores.

With an entire starting squad returning, Irish coach Brian Boulac is looking forward to the first games of the season. "It should be a good experience for us. The number of games, the long experience, but it will give a lot of players an opportunity to play," said Boulac.

The most important test of the Irish will be mid-season opening games with Miami of Ohio. The games will be an indication of whether the Irish squad can emerge as a mid-western conference team. The Irish are expected to be a threat in the Mid-American Conference. Returning for the Irish are seniors Carrie Miller, Keyshel Miller, Sophomore Lisa Miller and MAC Freshman of the Year, Tammy Yaxthelmer (.308) leading the way.

For the Irish, several underclassmen will be in contention for starting spots. Freshman Carrie Miller will see time on the mound as well as the bench. Keyshel Miller posted a 0.50 ERA as a senior at St. Francis High School in Mountain View, Calif. Freshman Christy Conoyer will make appearances at short and second as a strong backup and will help out with her bat. Sophomore Lisa Miller may get opportunity to perform in the outfield.

The team is ready to get the season underway and see how they will do against tough competition. Last year, the team started the season with a 31-15-1 overall record and a Midwestern Collegiate Conference Championship.

Women to compete in tournament

By RICHARD MATHURIN
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's golf team will be breaking out in smiles, as they get to leave the near freezing temperatures of South Bend and travel to Miami of Ohio. The games will be an indication of whether the Irish squad can emerge as a mid-western conference team. The Irish are expected to be a threat in the Mid-American Conference. Returning for the Irish are seniors Carrie Miller, Keyshel Miller, Sophomore Lisa Miller and MAC Freshman of the Year, Tammy Yaxthelmer (.308) leading the way.

The Irish are hoping to defeat the Blue Devils for the first time ever this year. Also, the team could face three teams ranked nationally in the top 20 in a tournament in Birmingham.

Defeating the Irish are extremely solid. The pitching core of the Bent will be in the Midwest with some strong pitchers in the rotation. The Bent will be led by junior Missy Linn who finished last year with a 1.42 ERA and sophomore Stacy Alford with a 1.32 ERA. Carrie Miller will also be a key member of the starting rotation.

Behind the plate will be junior Amy Folsom, an outstanding catcher. Two freshmen, Melissa Cook and Kim Meyer are getting groomed for the backup job. "We're not in a rush with our pitchers," said Murphy. "Reece is very strong with third year starters Ruth Knaak at shortstop and Laurie Sommerlad at second base. The two base will go together and make a strong tandem up the middle.

The corners are more experienced this year with sophomores Debbi Boulac (third base) and senior Kathy Vernetti (first base). Both have improved tremendously after a year of experience at their respective positions.

The outfield will be led by Megan Fay in right and sophomore Ax Wehrle in left. Rachel Crossen is a question mark in center after knee surgery last year. Lisa Miller and other underclassmen may also see time in the outfield.

Offensively, the team wants to build on last year. Leading the Irish is sophomore Sheri Quinn as designated hitter. Quinn finished last year with a .368 batting average. Senior managers Fay will also be a productive offensive force on ice with solid power hitting. The weak hitting Irish will look to manufacture runs and create opportunities.

"I hope to win the MAC again and to finish the year with a winning season," said Boulac.

Streak

"We're definitely concerned, as always, about our pitching," said Murphy. "It's always tough as always, about our pitching," said Murphy. "It's always tough early in the season. It's some­what new to us. We're really hoping to play as many as 15 games a year. But the patience and poise of the Irish this year suggests the squad has improved since last year.

The Irish cats came alive last weekend, after a sluggish perfor­mance in the season opener in the Phoenix Thunderbirds Classic. The Irish got the best of the Thunderbirds right fielder Eric Danapilis went 13-for-22, raising his av­erage to .447. Csey Mee is now hitting .364 and designated hitter Brian Malsano (.333, 2 HR, 10 RBI) has had eight hits, four for extra bases.

"The players were hungry last week," said Murphy. "I hope they don't get complacent now. We're concentrating on two things—communication and control. We're a fairly explosive team, but we're off and on. We can create a lot of runs in a hurry, but we also have to steal runs, executing with every play.

•Canseco in trouble again

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP)—Jose Canseco has another headache. The Oakland A's star already faces several legal problems, including a pending divorce. Now he and his wife face a breach of contract suit filed by the developer for alleged work done on the couple's $1.5 million home.

The suit, filed in Contra Costa County Superior Court on Feb. 27 by Snow Mountain Development Co. of San Ramos, says the Cansecos contracted with the company for amenities that included a $33,500 pool and spa, a $29,200 cabana and a $14,000 electronic driveway gate system.

Canseco, whose five-year contract pays him $23.5 million, refused in October to pay the $29,472.99 balance, according to attorney Robert J. Kahn. A mechanic's lien was placed on the property.

•Jordan promotes "Hang Time"

CHICAGO—Michael Jordan has another sponsor. The Chicago Bulls superstar has already put his considerable marketing allure behind breakfast cereals, cars, athletic shoes and fast food. This time? Bubble gum.

Hang Time bubble gum.

The product will be in stores this month, said A.G. Atwater, president and chief executive officer of Amuril Products Co., a subsidiary of William Wrigley Jr. Co.

"Hang Time will come in "original," strawberry and grape, and the package will bear Jordan's signature and picture.

•Pearson to coach Texans

DALLAS—Former Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Drew Pearson was named head coach of the Dallas Texans of the Arena Football League on Wednesday.

He succeeds Jim Stanback, who resigned to become an NFL assistant coach with the Denver Broncos.

In 1985; Pearson, 40, was the wide receivers coach for the Cowboys, for whom he played 11 seasons, from 1973 to 1983, until he was seriously injured in an automobile accident.

Women's tennis squad battling injuries in late drive for bid to NCAAs

By RICH SZABO
Sports Writer

Midway through the spring season, the Notre Dame women's tennis team looks to increase its chances for an NCAA tournament berth with a key regional match and a tough spring break road trip to California.

The Irish sport a record of 8-3, with all of the losses coming at the hands of teams in or receiving votes for the top-25, and have yet to field a complete, top-10 line-up. The Irish second, but the region, the Irish have yet to field a complete, top-10 line-up.

The Notre Dame men's lacrosse team will begin a three-game sweep Saturday at 2 p.m. when it meets Hofstra at Shovelton Field. Hofstra posted a 9-5 record last year and finished the season 7-2 last weekend in Texas.
