Gorbachev remains Communist party chief

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's Communist leadership decided Thursday to keep Mikhail Gorbachev as party chief, despite hours of criticism that prompted him to offer to quit.

The demands for Gorbachev's removal ended in "a crisis of nerves on all sides," said Alexander Pomorov, a regional Communist Party leader from Siberia.

"This is not a demonstration of strength, but a demonstration of the party's weakness," he said in an interview Thursday night as the meeting of the party's policy-making Central Committee ended.

Delegates emerged from the yellow Kremlin into a chilly spring evening after more than 10 hours of what party ideology chief Alexander Dzasokhov called "sharp and critical exchange of opinions."

Hard-liners at the closed session spent the morning blaming the Soviet president for the nation's protracted political and economic crisis, delegates said.

In his closing remarks to delegates, Gorbachev said it had been one of the "sharpest plenums ever. It was impossible to expect anything else," the Interfax news agency quoted him as saying.

The hard-liners demanded Gorbachev declare a state of emergency to restore order, which he had already rejected on Wednesday, the first day of the meeting.

Russian republic Communist boss Ivan Polotzek said Gorbachev had "abandoned the party," according to one delegate.

For two hours, Gorbachev endured the reproachings from 18 delegates, and many urged him to resign, Interfax said.

Then, in a tactic he has used before, Gorbachev forced the see GORBACHEV/ page 4

Sister Kathleen Cannon becomes new director of IPSM

Special to The Observer

Dominican Sister Kathleen Cannon, associate provost at the university's Institute for Pastoral and Social Ministry (IPSM) June 1, according to provost Tom Pelton.

Sister Cannon will succeed Father Robert Pelton, the institute's director since 1986.

Cannon will retain her position in the provost's office, where her duties include a range of academic matters, which include acting as an academic liaison with Saint Mary's College, coordinating personnel matters for regular faculty, and dealing with women's concerns.

She currently chairs both the commencement committee and the freshman student committee on women.

In addition to her administrative background, Cannon has extensive experience in liturgical preaching and administration work. Cannon has also written and lectured extensively in these fields.

Prior to her appointment at the school, Cannon was assistant professor of preaching and administration at the Theological University in Chicago.

She lectured on homiletics at Princeton Theological Seminary and on religious studies at Ohio Dominican College. Cannon also served two years as assistant professor of religious studies at Albertus Magnus College in New Haven, Conn., where she chaired the religious studies department.

"Kathleen Cannon brings to the directorship of IPSM the ideal combination of academic, administrative and research resources of the Church and the modern world," said O'Meara.

Cannon received her bachelors degree in mathematics from Ohio Dominican College in 1965, her M.A. in religious studies from Providence College in Rhode Island in 1975 and her D.Min. from Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., in 1982.

She has served as a member of the General Council of the Dominican Sisters and on boards of Albertus Magnus and Ohio Dominican.

She is a member of the Catholic Theological Society of America, the Academy of Homiletics, the Dominican Leadership Conference and Pax Christi.

Pelton, 69, will retire from the administration supports recycling efforts

By DAVID KINNEY

Inspired by the recycling efforts led by Notre Dame students, the administration has quickly followed suit with a variety of new committees to address the issue of recycling.

In fall 1999, a student organization was formed in order to continue programs initiated by James Dailey, an ND alumnus. Recyclin' Irish, as the group was named, sought "to support and push for a comprehensive recycling program," according to senior Paul Ruesch, current president of the organization.

A University Task Force on Recycling was created to give Recyclin' Irish the University commitment and support that it needed to accomplish its goals, said Ruesch.

Recyclin' Irish looks to the task force to help them to put the ideas of students into practice. The task force is headed by Jim Lyphout, associate vice president for Business Affairs, and is composed of the directors of several key University departments.

University Food Services has also begun a variety of programs aimed at recycling, including a mug program and a University Recycling Committee, according to David Breitbach, head of the University Food Services Recycling Committee.

In fall 1990, the University Environmental Issues Committee was commissioned by University President Father Edward Malloy to address a variety of issues that the campus community must face, from smoking to clean water to recycling.

Each of the three groups — Recyclin' Irish, the task force, and the Environmental Issues Committee — are working closely in order to lead Notre Dame in a world in which recycling will be crucial.

Recyclin' Irish

The work of Recyclin' Irish, an entirely student run organization, focuses primarily on the collection and processing of recyclable materials on and off campus.

Students, in some cases aided by the housekeeping staff, collect materials deposited in the recycling bins, sort them and take them to centralized dumpsters on campus. Superior Waste then hauls the materials to processing centers.

Much of the success of the program depends on the net...

'Grease' is a good option to a cult classic

While I am very much looking forward to seeing tonight's midnight movie on the South Quad, I couldn't help but feel surprised that it is "The Rocky Horror Picture Show." Why? If they wanted to get away from mainstream classics at these learning institutions, they could get a traditional Japanese porn flick. At least those movies have plots. It serves me right for not getting on an An Tostal committee. I believe that movies serve two specific purposes: to influence and to provide an escape. Will Notre Dame's motto after this weekend be "sex, drugs, and... "Don't sweat it, honey. Have one of mine." and I think it would be really groovy to relive the memories on the dancefloor. Kennedy case files broken into, read

Palm Beach, Fla. — Police investigating a woman's report that she was raped at the Kennedy estate are still tracking down potential witnesses, said the city's police chief who defended the lengthy investigation. A 29-year-old woman told police that William Kennedy Smith, a nephew of Sen. Edward Kennedy, raped her at the seaside estate on March 30. Meanwhile, in another development Wednesday, a supervisor at the Palm Beach County sexual assault office reported that someone sneaked into the office and rummaged through its records on April 13. The office's program supervisor, Kris Karno, said nothing was stolen and it wasn't clear if the incident was related to the rape investigation. Terlizzese said once the case is completed and police records made public, "the people who bother to read through it will see that we haven't left out anything."

Swallowing difficult for polio victims

Boston — Survivors of the polio epidemic of the 1940s who have trouble swallowing, the latest evidence of muscle weakness that affects one-fourth of survivors, a study released today says. The condition, known as dysphagia, can increase the risk of choking. It is a complication of post-polio syndrome, which affects people 25 to 35 years after they have seemingly recovered from polio. Of the 500,000 Americans who survived the polio epidemic, more than 125,000 are estimated to have post-polio syndrome, which results in progressive muscle weakness. The researchers suggested that people with post-polio syndrome see their doctors to be checked for swallowing problems and consider their eating habits to reduce the risk of choking. However, "patients can properly be counseled that they will not return to their previous state of disability."

Ordination issue discussed

The prospect of ordination for women in the Catholic church is a matter of being heard and a matter of time, according to a panel discussing the future of women in the church.

“We are not making full use of the gifts God has given us,” said panelist Alex Kratz. The panelists also expressed a concern that talented women are not allowed to contribute to the church.

“I need to be a part of a church (that) will allow me to relate my experience as a human,” said Mary Yu, panelist. She added that she is tired of hearing homilies by priests who have been called upon to preach, and their gifts and talents can re-energize the church.

The Program of Liberal Studies (PLS) at Notre Dame has changed dramatically since the program was first created, according to Otto Bird, ND professor emeritus and founder of the Program of Liberal Studies.

Professor Bird spoke Thursday at a lecture titled, “The Great Books at Notre Dame: The Early Years of the Program of Liberal Studies.”

Bird’s report on the Program of Liberal Studies (PLS) focused on three points. He discussed the prehistory of the PLS, the structure and current situation of the program, and remarked on the progress of the program since its establishment.

PLS was introduced to Notre Dame shortly after World War II. In 1945, ND was in a new situation with the establishment of Naval V-12 program which opened the “Catholic ghetto” of ND to diversity.

Later in the day, however, Iraqi U.N. Ambassador Abdul Amir al-Anbardi said after meeting with U.S. Ambassador Thomas Pickering that under an Iraqi-aided accord all Iraq soldiers had left Zakho and most police were leaving, except for 460 in Zakho.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said in Washington that there are about 7,000 U.S. troops in northern Iraq and across the borders in Turkey, and that the Pentagon "may well deploy additional forces" to the area.

More than 2 million Kurds fled the rugged frontiers of Iran and Turkey after government troops chased their rebellion, which was launched after Iraq's defeat in the Persian Gulf War.

A Shito Muslim uprising in the south also set off a flood of refugees. The U.S. military, Saudi Arabia and the Kuwaiti Red Crescent are caring for 40,000 refugees in or near a buffer zone that extends six miles into Iraq and three miles inside Kuwait.

Saud Arabi is building a camp to house up to 8,000 of the Iraqi refugees camping on the border. Gen. Khalid bin Sultan of Saudi Arabi, commander of Arab forces in Operation Desert Storm, said Thursday.

He told reporters in Riyadh the refugees could stay indefinitely "until their tragic ends." The Kurds were especially worried about the hundreds of Iraqi police who were prowling the streets of the near-deserted city of Zakho.

A barber at his shop, speaking on condition that his name not be used, said there were 2,000 police in the city.

work of dorm representatives. Volunteer dorm representatives and commissioners coordinate recycling efforts in each particular dorm, according to Ruesch. As a result, "in each dorm, the extent of recycling done depends on the interest of the commission." In September 1990, the group opened a recycling center behind the Alumni-Senior Club as a drop-off point for recyclable materials for off-campus students and the South Bend community.

Through the dorms and the recycling center, Recycle Irish collects newspapers, aluminum cans and glass bottles. According to Lyphout, during calendar year 1990, the group collected 77.5 tons of newspaper, 14.9 tons of glass and 20 tons of aluminum cans.

"I think one of the things we've learned from all this is that recycling does not result in a positive cash flow." Although the group collects 31 to 47 cents per pound for aluminum cans, it is charged one cent per pound for both glass and newspaper, according to Ruesch. The University must also pay rental fees for the dumpsters and the recycling center and pay Superior Waste to haul away the recyclable materials. As a result, the University is absorbing the costs of the program.

"We're doing it for the environment," said Lyphout, and to lessen the amount that goes into landfills.

"We've diverted 100 tons from landfills since the beginning," said Ruesch, noting that the program is being developed. He hopes, however, that the University can hire workers to take and coordinate the collection of recyclable materials, so that student volunteers can devote more time to other projects.

The group hopes to expand its collection of plastic products, both in and around the University, in four dorms, said Ruesch. In addition, they are researching the possibility of collecting and recycling phone books and office supplies.

Most importantly, however, is the group's effort to encourage students to practice recycling in their everyday lives, according to Ruesch. University departments must also examine their situations and consider establishing their own recycling programs, he continued.

"We combined effort of students and the university administration to get the program the success it is today," said Ruesch.

University Food Services

Last fall, the University Food Services Recycling Committee was developed to "take recycling as far as we can on our own operation," said Breitbach. University Food Service decided to take the initiative to recycle as a result of Indiana legislation calling for 25 percent of all waste to be recycled by 1995, according to Breitbach. While these programs are not yet mandatory, the University wants to get a head start on the movement.

In addition, recycling results in cost savings for University Food Services. Because the University is charging 90 percent of Superior Waste's trash bill, it can cut down its costs. A case in point is cardboard packaging. Approximately 50 percent of this waste that University Food Services creates is cardboard, which, according to Breitbach, can be recycled free of cost. A new program beginning next week is the University recycling the cardboard used by the dining halls and the Huddle.

Another program that has been successfully initiated by the committee is the mug program. Students are now able to buy plastic mugs, which can be refilled at a 10 cent discount. Over 4,000 mugs have been sold at the Huddle, he said. In the next hour Room, which has resulted in a 10 percent reduction in cup waste.

Other recycling efforts by University Food Services include the recycling of its computer paper and the use of paper trays covered with 40 percent recycled material.

University Food Services has also reduced almost all of its styrofoam usage. Recycling styrofoam, however, is not cost effective, according to Breitbach, since only a small amount of the material is accepted by recyclers.

University Food Services, according to Breitbach, will continue to develop new recycling programs and expand its efforts into new areas in the coming years.

The Environmental Issues Committee

The Environmental Issues Committee, according to Thomas Mason, however, is working on a much more complex recycling program. The first involves getting the University to purchase recycled products and the second entails promoting recycling on campus through a variety of methods including educational programs.

"I think one of the things that the committee is working on is getting the Notre Dame Bookstore to sell more recyclable merchandise, such as note cards made of recycled paper. In addition, they are pushing for the use of recycled paper in the university's output. By reducing the amount of cost and quality, he said, it is a feasible idea.

The committee is also working on and encouraging the creation of recycling groups on campus. Only one comprehensive program is Mason said he was pleased that the students and the administration were working jointly on this issue. "The students have done a great job of the reducing the amount of trash," he continued.

The recycling efforts at Notre Dame are unique, according to Ruesch, in that efforts began with the students and were then taken up by the university administration. This, said Ruesch, has been crucial to the success of the movement, because students were ready to work when administrators were not.

The University commitment to recycling, according to Lyphout, has been emphasized by the cooperation of the Notre Dame students. Breitbach urged students to continue to develop the program and to continue their participation in the mug program.

The students' work and the students' enthusiasm, he said, agreed Ruesch.

"I think it's coming from one standpoint and the students are doing it from another," Mason said, but "we've changed and we want to work together."

"The students have influenced the movement, both students and administrators are committed to the recycling program at Notre Dame, according to Ruesch. Weekend Presiders at Sacred Heart Church

Shuttle Endeavor brings fleet to strength
PALMDALE, Calif. (AP) — A gleaming, white Endeavour rolled out of the hangar Thursday, bringing the space shuttle fleet up to full strength and replacing the destroyed Challenger.

Capt. Dan Brandenstein, who will command Endeavour when it flies into orbit next year, lauded the new shuttle as "the jewel of the fleet."

While the theme to "2001: A Space Odyssey" played as a fanfare, thousands of Rockwell International Corp. and NASA employees cheered and waved American flags at Air Force Plant 42, where all shuttles are assembled.

"If that doesn’t put a lump in your throat, I don’t think you’re human," Brandenstein said.

The captain was joined by Sen. Jake Garn of Utah, who once flew on a shuttle mission, NASA administrator Richard Truly and Rockwell officials.

Completion of Endeavour returns the shuttle fleet to a force of four orbiters, joining Atlantis, Columbia and Discovery. Endeavour is scheduled to soar into orbit next spring.

"This morning we set the stage for a new era of exploration of the solar system," Truly said.

He said the nation needs to expand its space program and establish a space station.

Garn linked Thursday’s rollout of Endeavour with the nation’s military victory over Iraq.

"I can’t tell you how proud I am," Garn said. "With Desert Storm and the rollout of Endeavour — when I consider what a free people can accomplish — Endeavour is evidence of that."

Meanwhile, at Cape Canaveral, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration began another countdown for the shuttle Discovery after replacing an engine sensor that failed during fueling for a launch attempt earlier this week.

Discovery is scheduled to lift off on a mission devoted to "Star Wars" research at 7:01 a.m. EDT Sunday.

In the Mojave Desert, the five-story-high orbiter had a dazzling appearance, its heat-resistant tiles radiating the sunlight.

"It won’t be shiny like that when we get it in space," Brandenstein said.

Sam Jacobellis, Rockwell’s executive vice president and chief executive officer, recalled the Jan. 28, 1986, Challenger tragedy in which seven astronauts died, saying, “We will never forget the Challenger tragedy, but we have learned and adjusted and persevered.”

The Rockwell executive said that with 38 successful launches out of 39 attempts, the shuttle is the world’s most reliable space system.

“With Endeavour soaring aloft next spring, it will be even more capable and versatile than its sister ships,” Jacobellis said in praising the team that builds and flies the shuttles.

“When Endeavour soars aloft next spring, it will be even more capable and versatile than its sister ships,” Jacobellis said in praising the team that builds and flies the shuttles.

“With Endeavour soaring aloft next spring, it will be even more capable and versatile than its sister ships,” Jacobellis said in praising the team that builds and flies the shuttles. Although it’s nearly identical in appearance to the other shuttles, it incorporates all of the improvements made after the loss of Challenger.

The orbiter is the first new shuttle to enter the fleet since 1985 when Atlantis was completed. Former President Reagan authorized the replacement for Challenger in 1987.

Among the improvements installed on Endeavour is a drag parachute designed to reduce the landing gear and brakes. The other shuttles are scheduled to get such chutes. The major improvement is a series of modifications to extend the time the shuttle can spend in orbit.

Hull conducts art workshop for summer
Special to The Observer

Chicago artist Richard Hull will conduct a painting and collage workshop at the University of Notre Dame from June 17 to June 28 during the summer session.

The two-week intensive workshop will take place from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. The students have a choice of studying painting or collage, or both, in an abstract or realistic form. Those participating in the workshop will have the opportunity to work with Hull and benefit from slide lectures, observation, critiques and individual help.

Hull’s paintings were on exhibition in the Phyllis Kind Gallery in New York City this January.

The workshop will be held in the third floor studio of Notre Dame’s Riley Hall of Art and Design, which has north light and is accessible by elevator. Room and board are available on campus.

The workshop is offered for 3 credits at $112 per credit plus a $25 general fee. Noncredit registration is the same price. Course numbers are ARST 4335 W for undergraduate credit and ARST 535W for graduate credit. Enrollment is limited to 20 students.

Participants should bring two framed works to exhibit in the ISIS Gallery for the duration of the workshop.

For further information and application forms, write or call Don Vogl in the department of art, art history and design, at (219) 239-7650, or the summer session office, Room 312 Administration Building at (219) 239-7282.

Debaters compete in tourney

Special to The Observer

Four members of the Notre Dame Debate Team participated in the national Cross Examination Debate Association (CEDA) championship at Western Washington University in Bellingham, Wash., March 28 to April 1.

ND students Matt Salzman, Valerie Renegar, Chris Kozoll, and Mike Kluck, along with coach Nancy Wallace, represented Notre Dame at the tournament, which consisted of 250 two-person teams from schools all over the country, Kozoll said.

The teams in the tournament were separated into regional groups and took part in eight debates, the first two with teams outside their region and the last six with teams from within the region, according to Kozoll. Teams that won five of these debates continued to the round of 64.

The team of Kozoll and Kluck finished with a record of 4-4. The team of Salzman and Renegar finished with a record of 3-5.

As president of the Notre Dame Debate Team, he has concentrated on local and regional debates. The first two with teams outside their region and the last six with teams from within the region, according to Kozoll. Teams that won five of these debates continued to the round of 64.

The team of Kozoll and Kluck finished with a record of 4-4. The team of Salzman and Renegar finished with a record of 3-5.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Student believes that SUFR is misunderstood

Dear Editor:

There seems to be a large number of misconceptions about SUFR on campus. One misconception is that the organization limits its membership to only Afro-American and Hispanic students. On the contrary, SUFR has always accepted and invited any student willing to get involved. SUFR wants to improve the Notre Dame community, and this will certainly affect everyone.

SUFR's very existence and its membership of more than 200 students should suggest that it is trying to deal with legitimate problems here at Notre Dame. The Administration has been, and still is, completely unwilling to even discuss these problems with members of SUFR. The Administration claims that the bureaucratic process of becoming a recognized student organization must precede even a discussion of the issues. However, discussion, even with recognized groups such as the NACCP, has led nowhere. This lack of respect for students' problems and opinions validates the acronym SUFR (Students United For Respect).

SUFR's demands will improve the quality of the education here for everyone. Certainly, no one will argue with the demand for security for students relying on financial aid. Tuition increases will certainly affect everyone. The Administration has been, is trying to deal with legitimate problems. And this will certainly affect everyone.

Students should suggest that it fund campaign at SMC

Dear Editor:

Hey Saint Mary's Seniors! Did you know that the national average for annual giving by alumni for a Catholic woman's college similar to ours is 40 percent? Some schools fall above that average, others below. What? Saint Mary's is only 25 percent! That sure contradicts the U.S. News & World Report's ranking of us as 4th in overall score of colleges in our region! What is the Annual Fund? The Annual Fund supports the college's operating budget which funds all the "extras" we take for granted on a daily basis: student events, scholarships, financial aid, flowers around campus, the fountain, etc... Did you know that with-out the Annual Fund many of us on scholarships and financial aid would not have been able to attend Saint Mary's? We didn't think you knew that. That's why our alumnae are rapidly joining forces to support the Annual Fund. What can we do to make a difference? Every college spends time and effort to solicit their alumni. You have received an invitation and a pledge card in the mail to join the Senior Leadership Campaign '91. This is an opportunity to say thank you to Saint Mary's and give to the future of the College. The size of our donation (even $5 to $25) is secondary to our choice to participate. We can make a difference. From our first day on campus, we have been part of a community of students. Soon we will be graduates and join the community of Alumnae. As Alumni, let's work together as a community by giving above the 25 percent.

As members of the Saint Mary's Alumnae, it is our privilege to support our Alma Mater.

For more information about the Senior Leadership Campaign '91, please call 284-4706.

GCAG declares Day of Mourning

Dear Editor:

The Gulf-Crisis Action Group (GCAG) has declared Monday, April 29 a campus-wide Day of Mourning for the countless victims of the Persian Gulf conflict. Thousands upon thousands of individual human lives have been and continue to be lost as a result of the apocalyptic events that began in early August 1990. In a symbolic display of remorse, solidarity, compassion, and grief for the dead and their families, we ask that everyone wear black on this day.

To commemorate this Day of Mourning the GCAG will be sponsoring three events: 1) a 4:30 gathering at Field House Mall that focuses on the costs of the war, human and domestic; 2) a 5:15 Requiem Mass at Sacred Heart Church; 3) an 8:00 pm lecture and discussion on the "Consequences of the Gulf War" with Fr. Patrick Gaffney and Prof. Alan Dowty at the C.C.S. We invite everyone to join us on this Day of Mourning and Reflection.

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame du Lac and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the views of the administration or the community. The news is reported as accurately and objectively as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, Editors, News Editor, Viewpoint Editor, Accra Editor, Photographic Editor, and Saint Mary's Editor. Commentaries, letters and In Print are not necessarily the views of the administration or the community. The views of the community and the free expression of varying opinions on campus through letters is encouraged.
Student says SUFR should reassess demands

Dear Editor:

There has been a lot of discussion about cultural diversity on campus and most recently has been suggested that an arbitrator be brought in to mediate the dispute between SUFR and the University. Before this is ever done, the community should be given the chance to act as arbitrators, even if for the offi-case. I know that I have been at a loss as to why some of the demands were made or what the justification behind the demands were.

One example of a demand that I don’t understand is that all minority faculty be given immediate tenure: this con-founds me because the definition of minority faculty did not include Asian or Arabic Americans and specifically excluded all non-American citizens. If the University is to bring diversity, then someone who grew up in Paris or Istanbul might have much ability to bring cultural diversity to our school. Tarkanian, who grew up in suburban Chicago and quite possibly moved to the area, has represented any support for their contention that offering immidenture would allow the University to retain more minority faculty, or even shown that minority faculty are more likely to leave. It would greatly help the SUFR argument if they could show that minority faculty who were hired by the University were more likely to leave than their non-minority counterparts. They would also be helpful if SUFR could get a hold of these people, both minority and non-minority and find out why they left. Obviously, if they left for unrelated reasons, then granting them tenure would be of little enticement for them to stay.

Another demand that I am a little confused about is the demand of increased scholarship monies for minorities. I have always been in favor of basing scholarship monies on campus, and I feel that it would be a great injustice if a white student from in-state (but who was denied the opportunity to attend Notre Dame as a child because the University is religious) was given more because of the color of their skin.

I would also love to see Notre Dame increase their recruiting simply in non-traditional areas, but I can see little justification for offering scholarships simply based on the color of the skin of the recipient.

But let us not forget that St. Augustine’s sordid past, or St. Paul’s. And where would we be without these pillars? This is why we need an educated citizen. Of course, University treatment of other groups is a problem. If SUFR demands were made and what light on other problems that might bring us our first basketball national champi-one? Filled stadiums and championship teams are things that the Tark probably could bring.

Latin Expressions does it all

By Lisa Eaton

Managing Editor

What do you get when you mix the American Ballet, Black Images and the International Student Organization (ISO) Festival together? The answer is Latin Expressions.

The second annual Latin Expressions variety show will be Friday night at 7:45 p.m. in the Library Auditorium. The show is sponsored by the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC) and will be a mixture of comedy, song and dance focusing upon the themes of the Latin American culture. "It is a variety show that highlights our talents," says Manuel Espino, the organization's out-going president.

Express Latin Expressions as a combination of the other variety shows that exist on campus. "We wanted something that would become LULAC. That something is Latin Expressions." The performance should last about two hours. Tickets are $3 for non-students. Tickets will also be available at the door for $3 for students and $4 for non-students.

The theme of this year's show is "Sabor," which is Spanish for "flavorful," says Espino. Although the focus of the event is Latin, the performers are not exclusively Hispanic. Through flyers that were sent out at the beginning of the year and by word of mouth, LULAC has invited anyone who would like to perform something that is a part of their culture to be a part of Latin Expressions. Last year, for example, Professor John Kennedy performed a number of Chilean and Irish folk songs as part of the first Latin Expressions show. "This is really the highpoint of spring for LULAC," says Espino. "It is really our last big event and we encourage everyone to come. It should be fun."

Did Sorin hitch his wagon to the American Dream?

From day one, Edward Sorin and the founding Brothers could see, I think, that their new school in the wilderness was pencilled in on God's calendar to have a "rendezvous with destiny."

In 1842, the great virgin forests were still standing in the heartland; the pollution poisoning the fish that each season had to offer as the earth summered and wintered, blossomed or became fruitful. The flora and fauna. I suspect, seemed to the newcomers the outward and visible signs—like the bread, wine, oil and water of the sacraments—of the new nation's state of grace.

By Sorin's day, the New Eden no longer stretched from sea to shining sea with the coming of the white man, sin entered the garden. Sorin must have been aware of the as-yet unspoiled beauty existing on the far side of the frontier towns, where the settlers had not yet scarred the property like a mule leasing his farm, after his Superior had ordered him to mail home his every surplus franc, for the support of the property in LeMans?

How could he tolerate a member of his own religious community—who had voluntarily allowed his wings to be clipped when he took vows of poverty, chastity and obedience—to wheel and deal in property like a mule leasing his farm, after his Superior had ordered him to mail home his every surplus franc, for the support of the property in Le-Mans?

How could you tell French prelates— and the flunkies serve to them in middle management—about anything as breathtaking as the American Dream?

As bureaucrats in a Church whose corruption was centuries-old, they were battle-scared from their warfare with the secularists who controlled the government. All over Europe, nabobs, religious and secularists, they were out of power, waited for the experiment in democracy to fail, how could you persuade them of America's Manifest Destiny?

Myth, as I am using it here, is only a way of describing reality—as an event or as a flesh-and-blood human being—which has mellowed, and become dream-like and larger than life. Notre Dame is the source of never-ending myths.

Some of Notre Dame's most legendary figures are like the Unknown Soldier: their names are known principally to God. You can find out many of the names, forgotten in this generation, if you visit the cemeteries where the Holy Cross Religious are buried.

I am not writing this piece to pay tribute. All of us should remind ourselves how important the Dream was. Sorin himself couldn't have foreseen that eventually the Dream would become bigger than all outdoors.

Why waste time asking whether Notre Dame is presently great or not: eventually we may discover that we don't have any conception of what it means to be great as a center of Christianity, important to the religious world as M.I.T. is important to the scientific world.

To millions of believers, the Vatican is losing credibility as a center of truth, the magistratum sounds to them like yesterday's bad news. If it became a think-tank as prestigious as Princeton's Institute of Advanced Studies, Notre Dame could become the Church's principal ally in shoring up the ruins.

As a haven for Christian scholars, Notre Dame could serve the Church as an ad hoc magisterium—though not-completely, or in a way that would also upstage the Holy Father as a shepherd—until Rome gets its act together, if that act is ever in disarray.

Maybe Sorin was intuitive enough to see that the flagship of Catholic education he was building in America could serve the successor of the Fishermen temporarily as an ark of salvation.

Maybe this was an idea he felt he could not share with Father Moreau at the mother-house.

Didn't Father Hesburgh keep telling us that the truth that makes men free can liberate us from the kind of Faith that shrinks the mind into mere bigotry? Didn't he dream—as Sorin could have done—that it could be Notre Dame's mission to serve the Church as the greatest Catholic university in the world?

All this reminds me that lads who promote the Playboy philosophy in their letters to The Observer sound like latch-key kids needing the guidance and good taste of wise parents. They revel in their mistakes if they claim the place is run like a cloister.

Notre Dame shouldn't have to become a league of nations, to keep the students from feeling unappreciated; there should be enough love going around to fulfill everyone. How can we consider ourselves Christians, if we fail to respect and care for one another?

Love, Mom, Dad, Tom, Katie, and Ann

Bulls embarrass Ewing’s Knicks; Lakers win a lucky one

(AP) - The NBA playoffs got off to an eventful start for the Chicago Bulls and an embarrassing one for the New York Knicks. The Bulls, top-seeded in the Eastern Conference with a 61-21 record in the regular season, got 28 points and 11 assists as the Boston Bruins continued from page 24 offensive line.

With the field vying for the men's Bookstore Basketball championship down to 16 teams, fans expected the action at the Bookstore courts yesterday afternoon to be cutthroat. They weren't disappointed.

The third-seeded Tech is a pretty even match up. Tech's Chris Adams is a polished scorer who is likely to attract attention to himself. He's a great player who always seems to come through for his team. Tech's Mike Brown is a solid performer who can handle the ball well.

The third-seeded Tech will meet the second-seeded Tech in the quarterfinals. Tech has a lot of experience and is a tough opponent. Tech's defense is strong and their players are quick on their feet.

The second-seeded Tech will face the eighth-seeded Tech in the quarterfinals. Tech has a lot of depth and is a well-rounded team. Their offense is balanced and they have a strong defense.

Lacrosse faces talented competition at Ohio State

By DAVE MCMahON
Associate Sports Editor

The second of three possible seasons begins Saturday for the Notre Dame lacrosse team as the Irish (6-6) venture to Columbus, Ohio, to face midwestern rival Ohio State.

The Irish and Buckeyes have split the series since inception in 1961, with Notre Dame taking last year's contest 14-11 at Columbus, Ohio. This year, the Irish return 37 lettermen from the Buckeyes. With two games remaining for the Irish, a win over Ohio State is pivotal if the squad is to attain the midwestern bid to the NCAA tournament.

"We're right where we want to be," said Irish coach Kevin Corrigan. "We couldn't want anything more than to be in control of our own destiny at this point of the season.

After an 18-4 win Wednesday against Division III Lake Forest College, the competition level takes a drastic turn for the better Saturday, as Ohio State traditionally plays a physical game against the Irish. Their style of play won't be any different from anything else we've seen so far," said Irish coach Kevin Corrigan. "A big part of the game will be who comes out and dictates the tempo.

Ohio State relies primarily on their up-tempo offense, while the Irish prefer a six-man, half-field scoring threat. While the Buckeyes have an extremely athletic squad, Corrigan believes the Irish may be able to use such talent to their advantage.

"If we play smart, we can use their athletic ability against them," said Corrigan. "They really like to exploit their speed in the transition, but if we get out and play out type of game, we should be able to take them out of their game."

After Wednesday's win over Lake Forest, which brought the Irish back up to the .500 level, the squad appears to be approaching its best play of the season. It couldn't have come at a more opportune time.

"We've come along so well from the beginning of the season," said senior Mike Sennet. "We knew from the outset that the freshmen would have to contribute, and they have. We all know what our roles are and what we have to contribute, which is anything from playing on the scout team to being a utility man.

McNall offers Ismail's services to NFL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Toronto Argonauts owner Bruce McNall will allow Raghib "Rocket" Ismail to play for both his Canadian Football League team and the Los Angeles Raiders if approval is granted, a newspaper reported today.

"I don't even know if the Rocket knows about this," McNall said Wednesday night in Edmonton, Alberta, where his L.A. Express' 4-10 squad played an NFL playoff game.

"But if [Raiders owner] Al (Davis) wanted to do it, I wouldn't stand in his way," McNall told the Los Angeles Times.

A National Football League rule, however, forbids a player under contract with a CFL team from playing in the NFL in the same season.

"The rule was put there for competitive reasons," NFL spokesman Joe Browne said. McNall said he knew about the rule, but would not stand in the way if Davis could find a way to modify the stipulation.

"I have not spoken to Al about it," McNall said. "But if he wants to see if he can get the rule changed, and the NFL allowed it, I wouldn't say no.

Ismail, the former Notre Dame wide receiving star, signed a deal with the Argos on November. If a deal was hammered out between McNall and Davis that would allow for Ismail's contact to end a week before the final game, he would be eligible to join the Raiders, the Times reported.

The Raiders denied that there was any such deal between them and McNall.

Asked if he was aware of an such deal, Al LoCasto, Raiders executive assistant, told the Times, "No, I haven't, to tell you the truth."

The second half of the season, while pitting the Irish against some formidable competition, has strengthened the team despite a record that didn't meet team expectations.

"We'll be prepared for Ohio State," said sophomore midfielder Ed Lamb. "We've been consistently improving during the last few games. It was just a matter of getting everyone to come together as a team."

Junior Mike Sullivan paces the Notre Dame offense, while sophomore Brian Mayglothling and junior Brian Schirf provide the Irish with a balanced scoring threat. Schirf erupted for four goals in last year's matchup, and Sullivan chipped in two. Mayglothling added two goals and two assists.

Craigs Counsell was the hitting star for the Irish the first game, going 2-4 with 2 runs scored and 1 RBI. Junior captain Joe Binkiewicz, who's current hot streak mirrors that of his team, added 2 hits in the victory.

The Irish bats went cold after the 4 runs in game one, but benefited from sloppy play on the part of the Flames. In the fourth inning, Matt Haas led off, advance to second on an unsuccessful pickoff attempt and moved to third on a ground ball by Cory Mee. The Flames pitcher then proceeded to hit Irish batter Irvin Smith putting Runners on first and third with 2 outs. Irish coach Pat Murphy then pulled out all of the stops when the Irish's Dan Bautch stepped to the plate. Bautch proceeded to lay down a suicide squeeze, which the Flames fielder fielded and threw home attempting to get Haas, who was racing toward the plate, but the play was late, allowing only the run of the game to score.

The Irish will look to continue its streak this weekend as MCC foes St. Louis (23-29) visit here Saturday. The teams will play a doubleheader starting just noon time at Jake Kleine Field.

St. Louis is only 4-7 in conference this season, but do have some formidable weapons in their arsenal. Junior Jason Boebell is the Billikens' main power threat, bashing 12 home runs with 43 RBIs this season to lead the MCC in both categories. Pat Conreaux and Brad Brown are both in the top five in hitting in the MCC with averages of .350 and .326 which rank them 6th and 15th respectively.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — The naming of a new Notre Dame basketball coach is increasingly becoming a major topic of conversation throughout the university source who asked not to be identified.

"The director Dick Rosenthal insists the university won't be stampeded into naming of a new Notre Dame basketball coach is imminent," said John Heisler, the sports information director, returning a call directed to Rosenthal's office.

"There's not a great sense of urgency. If it takes a week or two weeks, that's not a problem. It's not like we've got a game in four days."

Nevertheless, Notre Dame officials did nothing to discourage the speculation that increasing has centered on Cremins. The coach left the door wide open, refusing a chance to rule himself out of the running.

"I don't know why. But I'm not," he said. "I'll let you read whatever you want into that."

But Cremins is the only possible candidate.

Southern Methodist's John Shumate, a former player and assistant under Phelps, told Dallas newspapers he would interview with Rosenthal soon. Danny Nee of Nebraska, another former Phelps assistant, was mentioned as a candidate but said Notre Dame hadn't contacted him.

Former Virginia coach Terry Holland, now athletic director at Davidson, also found himself on the unofficial list.

Annual classic kicks off Saturday
Injuries, shorter practice season will not prevent game

Editor's note: At press time for this pullout, the Blue and Gold teams had not been se­lected. An analysis of the separate squads appears in to­day's sports section.

One of the annual rites of spring on the Notre Dame campus will take place tomor­row when the annual Blue­ Gold intra-squad scrimmage kicks off.

This 61st playing of the game, which starts Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Notre Dame Stadium, concludes 12 days of spring practice, a fewer number of days than the NCAA had permitted for spring practice in years gone by.

"I think we've gotten more done in 11 practices than we have in 15 (practices) other years," said Irish coach Lou Holtz. "We've practiced longer
(during the day) than we ever have."

The Notre Dame head man's comments on the state of his team going into the scrimmage were typical Lou Holtz statements: "We've made a lot of progress. We're not a good football team, but we have the potential to be a good football team."

While spring practice has answered some personnel questions for the Irish, it has also created its share of problems.
Injuries on the offensive line have left Notre Dame with only one healthy center. Sophomore Tim Budd had to play almost the entire practice Tuesday due to injuries to Gene McGloin and Lance Johnson.
The lack of depth on the offensive line may be apparent tomorrow, when there may be only 10 offensive lineman available for action.

Tuesday also dealt the Irish offense another damaging blow. The quarterback situation, tenuous at best, now has to face the loss of one of two sophomores competing for the backup role. B.J. Hawkins suff ered serious damage to his throwing arm, breaking his wrist and dislocating his elbow when he was hit during a

Defensive line promises strength despite losses

The loss of two All-Americans cannot possibly be replaced, but in the remaining players on the Irish defensive line, the Irish can see the spring, and show promise for the upcoming season.

However, the Irish feel confident in themselves. Several players have stepped to the forefront to fill the shoes of Bob Zirkel and Zorich coaches.

George 'Boo' Williams has returned from a knee injury, as has Eric Jones, though inactive this spring, will be ready in the fall to fill the gaps. Junior Bryant has made large strides this April and will also compete for playing time. Tony Brooks has stepped back in, and will return to the fall from a year at Holy Cross Junior College. Final roster: three corners, eight backs, two defensive tackles.

There have been several changes in the backfield from last season. Last season's leading rusher, Rodney Culver (15 carries, 27 carries lost to injury), has moved from fullback to tailback. This leaves Jerome Bettis and Tony Smith as the lone fullbacks at the present time.

Irish offense rebuilding with youth

Wide receivers improve steadily

By ROLANDO de AGUIAR
Sports Writer

The departure of Raghib Ismail to the Canadian Football League marks a severe blow to the Notre Dame football corps.

The emergence of several players, however, will put the Irish in a strong position at flanker as well as at wideout by the end of the year.

Starting at tight end for the Irish will be honorable mention All-American Derek Brown.

The senior, who caught 15 passes in 1990, has shown vast improvement this spring, according to coach Lou Holtz.

"The most improved football player on our team might go to Derek Brown," said Holtz, until just recently, has never learned to take the field in the hole for the first time.

"He is a legitimate great player from what I've seen this spring."

Brown's strong spring has put an exclamation point on his coming out of season.

The situation is not nearly as clear at either of the wideout positions.

"We have six players who have proven they can play a game like situation," said receiver coach Skip Holtz.

Not included in this group, junior Ray Griggs is in contention for an important spot on the Irish.

McDonald, DuBose lead inexperienced linebacker corps

By DAVE DIETEMAN
Sports Editor

To the untrained eye, a linebacker corps which has suffered the loss of four starting seniors and two underclassmen is a unit in dire need of equal.

Not so at Notre Dame, where coaches Gary Russell and Jay Hayes are hard at work filling numerous gaps, including those left by the graduation of Don Grimm, Andre Jones, Scott Kowalkowski and Michael Stonebreaker, and the transfer of Eric Simien and Shawan Smith.

"Our biggest area of concern is outside linebackers," noted Irish head coach Lou Holtz at his Tuesday teleconference.

"That's the area that concerns me the most."

Yet it would be imprudent to believe that Notre Dame is suffering from lack of talent. Best assured that the Irish still have the share of high cards in their hand.

"We're doing very well," maintained Hayes. "At first, we'll miss the experience of Kwaikowski and Jones, but we'll be all right after that. Our spring practices have been pretty good, and we're learning. Right now, our goal is to be the best that we can be."

We're looking for a consistent player to be a starter.

"We're just working on the basic fundamentals; we're teaching guys to play football. That's what we stress as a team. We start at ground zero and work on everything up from there."

Aside from competing on the field, the 1991 linebackers are already competing and helping each other in their competition for starting spots.

The Notre Dame depth charts are once again well-stocked, featuring no fewer than seven outside linebackers and five inside linebackers.

White McDonald is the grand-daddy of the outside group, Oliver Gibson, Dean Lyle, Anthony Peterson, and Nick Smith all stand poised to make significant contributions.

"Denny McDonald, who has been starting off and on, is back," related Hayes. "He's been hurt and is helping the younger guys. Some of our younger guys haven't played all that much, but they are all to be the best that we can be."

Irish fans have come to expect excellence from all parts of their team.

Running backs end spring strong

Irish fans have come to expect excellence from all parts of their team.

Veterans, new talents bolster offensive line

By ROLANDO de AGUIAR
Sports Writer

The offensive line is the cornerstone of any successful "A" team. This spring, the Irish line is made up of several individuals who can contribute without the Notre Dame being known as one of the worst in the Big East.

Returning three starters and several experienced veterans, much work remains to be done before the team is injury-free this spring, but the unit nonetheless looks very strong.

Senior Mirko Jurkovic is the returning starter at right guard for the Irish. Jurkovic, who is 6-5, and tips the scales at 281 pounds, started all 10 games for the Irish last year, and promises to anchor a fairly strong Irish line this year.

Taylor hopes to showcase his abilities in his Blue-Gold Game debut.

"I want to play a complete game and try to utilize all the things I've spent the last two weeks learning," said Taylor.

Making the transition from tackle to center, and replacing three-year starter Mike Heldt, Taylor hopes to impress coaches and his fellow teammates.

"That's what we stress as a team. We start at ground zero and work on everything up from there."
Experience mark of secondary

Tom Carter, Greg Davis lead squad of returnees

By MARK McGrath
Sports Writer

Experience is the difference between the Notre Dame secondary last year and this year. This season the Irish return seven monogram-winners, as compared to three a year ago.

The lone loss is two-year All-American Todd Lyght, who was drafted fifth in this year's NFL Draft by the Los Angeles Rams. Last year, the Irish gave up an average of 267.1 yards per game passing. As a result, the secondary changed almost every week.

"I believe the answers in the secondary are on our campus right now," said head coach Lou Holtz earlier this spring.

"The secondary is the most improved area on our football team," said Holtz, "but I don't know how good we will be."

The backfield will be led by senior strong safety Greg Davis. At press time, Jeff Burris and John Covington are competing for the starting free safety job. Rod Smith and Tom Carter will be the starting cornerbacks.

The second unit will consist of monogram-winners George Foorman and Greg Lane as well as sophomores LaShane Suddler and Marvin Robinson.

"There is a difference in the secondary," said Davis. "We have a lot more depth and experience going into the fall this year than we did last season."

The defensive backfield is coached by first-year coach Ron Cooper. He comes to Notre Dame after serving as defensive coordinator at UNLV under former Irish assistant Jim Strong.

"Everyone has taken well to him," said Davis. "He is very intense on the field."

Cooper feels the defensive backfield has had a good spring.

"The players attitudes and work ethics have been excellent," said Cooper. "We have had no bad days of practice and we have gotten better every day."

"Cooper is not setting any goals for his unit. He does, however, have some team goals.

"We want to hold up our end of the bargain," he commented. "We want to contribute to the team and have consistently strong play."

The players are excited about playing for Cooper.

"I couldn't be more excited about playing for coach Cooper," said Smith. "He is an athlete's coach—he allows us to use our athletic ability rather than using strict coverage rules."

This excitement has benefited the players.

"In the past that I have had a very successful spring," said Smith. "I am playing more aggressively now and have gained confidence."

"I think I have improved a lot," said Davis. "The coverages are much simpler and I'm looking forward to the fall."

The leader of the backfield, Davis, is affectionately known as "The Godfather" because of his leadership and his ability to make the big hit.

"Greg has played great," said Smith.

Members of the backfield are confident in each other.

"I know that both Tom and Jeff [Burris] can get the job done," said Covington.

The players have not set any personal goals, but they have some team and unit goals which will hinge on them.

"I want to have the number one secondary in the nation," said Smith. "We have really come together as a unit. Burris echoed Smith's sentiments.

"I want to have the best defense in the nation," said Davis.

"I've been working on pass rushing," commented Burris. "I'm also trying to be pretty much lead by example. Coach expects a lot out of me and I've got to live up to his dream and my dream. We're in and playing pretty well together and our attitude is good. The young guys love the game. They want to play and they want to get better, which is a real positive both for the team and for them.

"Lytle and Peterson, meanwhile, two former inside linebackers, are striving to make the most of their new positions.

"It's an uphill road," said Lytle, "but I'm slowly getting to where I want to be. I moved to outside linebacker during the last part of last season, and not only have I learned exactly how to play, I really have to get fundamentally sound."

"I've been watching Devon because he has been on the team longer and he knows how to do the things I'm trying to learn. The only thing other than the fundamentals that I have to maintain is my intensity, that's the next most important thing to the fundamentals."

Peterson, who is expected to see action at drop end, finds himself in much the same situation as Lytle.

"I feel that I have been going pretty well," exclaimed Peterson. "I've been watching Devon. He has given me advice and let me know that all I have to do is give it my best shot. I'm trying to master my position and I think that I've come a long way."

"We're going to be a great team if we keep improving like we have been. As far as spring, I feel really good about it," said Peterson. "If we continue to improve like this throughout the season, we'll do very well."

The inside linebackers also have a returning leader in the hard-hitting Demetrius DuBose, who registered 48 tackles last season. DuBose and Jim Flanigan, who are projected to be awarded the starting inside positions, are complemented by Pete Bercich, Brian Hatigan and Randy Scianna.

"Hopefully Jake Kelchner will go the monogram-winners George Foorman and Greg Lane as well as sophomores LaShane Suddler and Marvin Robinson.

"If we continue to improve like this throughout the season, we'll do very well." DuBose is the only returning leader in the secondary, as compared to three a year ago.

"The difference between this year and last year is that last year we were very experienced. This year, we have more youthful enthusiasm and excitement. Stonebreaker and Grimm were two big losses. Everyone on the other team knew where Stonebreaker was, and he was never successful. Grimm, however, really understands the defense. He has been helping us out this spring, and may be a graduate assistant for us, depending on how his celebrity coaches. This year Frank Eck and Ray Meyo, both known for their contributions of sports facilities (the tennis pavilion and the track in Louis), respectively will do the honorary coaching.

"Proceeds from the game will go the Saint Joseph Valley Scholarship Fund, which benefits students from the Lafayette area who choose to attend Notre Dame.

"The game is a fun game. There's no pressure, and we are just trying to win or lose. It's a game to have fun and do your best. I think it is going to be good. Even though we have a young team, I've seen it in practice. Everyone is having fun, giving hi-fives. Of course there are going to be some down times, but overall our team is playing pretty well.

"We've got a lot of good sophomores," concluded Holtz in an early spring press conference. "They're talented, intelligent and great, great workers. We're not really deep but we have a group of guys who like to compete and like to work."
