Malloy issues open letter on commitment to diversity

By MONICA YANT
News Editor

University President Father Edward Malloy today issued an "Open Letter on Cultural Diversity" in which he addressed Notre Dame's past, present, and future commitment to cultural diversity. The 19-page document comes almost two weeks after a demonstration by students for respect, solidarity, and culture on issues of cultural diversity in which he addressed what they perceive to be a lack of progress with regard to cultural diversity.

In the letter, Malloy thanked the students who "in recent months have held the University accountable for what they perceive to be a lack of progress with regard to cultural diversity." Although he admitted that dialogue has "sometimes been publically contentious," he said that private discussion with students has shown him that "everyone has had a common set of goals for the University."

The letter documents the history of cultural diversity at ND, focusing on efforts sustained since he assumed the presidency four years ago. "I suggested then and reaffirm now that we must find a unique, Notre Dame way to realize this goal (to increase cultural diversity)," it said.

Malloy offered the 1988-89 "Year of Cultural Diversity" as evidence of one of the first efforts of his presidency to "raise the level of consciousness of all members of the Notre Dame community to the importance of minorities in American life and culture."

He also cited increased endowed minority scholarships in 1988 and a major funding effort by the Board of Trustees in 1989 for scholar-ship aid as other examples of ways in which the University has responded to the call for cultural diversity.

The University has taken several steps to increase minority enrollment, according to Malloy's letter. "We reached 15 percent minority representation by 1992 and now have two of the highest three freshmen classes, he said. In addition "an administrative position has been created to coordinate the recruitment of minority students." Malloy's letter also addressed the need for more minority faculty. He referred to a November, 1989 minority-faculty development program funded by a $1 million grant from the Coca-Cola Foundation.

The letter also pointed out that affirmative action goals were set in 1988 and 1990 for the first time at various levels of the University work force.

More recent developments in the program have included new minority exchange agreements with the University of Arizona, Virginia, and Pennsylvania State universities, as well as Xavier University in New Orleans.

Malloy called on the University to address cultural diversity "motivating our best and brightest minority students to come on to graduate school and earn Ph.D.'s so that we can see MORE than we are confident there are 2,300 would be returning to normal proceedings.

But the program has plans the following events: 4:30 p.m. gathering at the An Tostal mud pits.

Midwest tornadoes leave 23 people dead

ANDOVER, Kan. (AP) — Rescuers completed a search Sunday for bodies in a flattened mobile-home park where a tor-nado killed 14 people. Survivors kept scavenging the debris for their belongings.

At least 48 twisters that swept across Oklahoma and Arkansas Friday night killed 23 people in all, authorities said Sunday. The toll fell from the 29 reported Saturday as officials identified bodies and discounted some fatalities that had been counted more than once.

Andover Mayor Jack Finlason said 14 people rather than 20 died in the mobile-home park in this Wichita suburb.

After searchers picked through the rubble Sunday, he said, "We are confident that we have uncovered all of the rubble. We are confident there are no other victims out there."

Up to 1,500 Andover resi-dents were left homeless by the tornado, the first to strike the town since 1958.

The tornadoes also killed three people in Oklahoma and six in Wichita and three outly-ing Kansas counties. More than 200 people were injured and hundreds of homes were de­stroyed.

"It's a solid, middle-class, blue-collar bunch of people," said Richard Peckham, one of the owners of the 400-resident, $8 million Golden Spar Mobile Home Park.

The last body found was a man discovered by his wife as she searched for belongings.

"She picked up a piece of something — I don't know what it was — and I just heard her scream," said Beth Hammond, who was standing nearby. "She broke down, got down on the ground right there beside him. No one knew what to do. It was a complete shock."

Assistant and mobile home park was sealed off for a few hours Sunday while dog teams searched for any additional bodies.

Finlason said the town of 4,000 would not be returning to normal. He said businesses would be open and people would be returning to work.

GCAG, Malloy request prayer for war victims

Observer Staff Report

The Gulf Crisis Action Group (GCAG) has declared today a campus-wide Day of Mourning for the victims of the Persian Gulf conflict.

University President Father Edward Malloy has also proclaimed today as a Day of Re­membrance for those who died in the Gulf War.

"In a symbolic display of respect, solidarity, compassion and grief for the Dead and their families, we ask that everyone wear black on this day," states a GCAG bulletin.

The group has planned the following events:

- 5:15 p.m. Regnum Mass at Sacred Heart Church;
- 8 p.m. lecture and discussion on the "Consequences of the Gulf War," with the Reverend Patrick Gaffney and professor Alan Dowty at the Center for Social Concerns.

"There are various activities of both prayer and discussion scheduled for this day which will help all of us to put this event into fuller perspective," states Malloy in a Friday letter. "I encourage all of you to join me in praying for those who were killed or wounded during the war."

Program to help minority students

By JOSEPH ADAMS

Notre Dame will offer a summer program to provide professional and research training for minorities interested in graduate school.

The Promote Minority En­rollment in Graduate Studies (PMES) program, sponsored by the United States Depart­ment of Education, is open to rising minority juniors and se­niors.

Although the program will take place at Notre Dame, un­dergraduates from across the country are eligible to compete for one of the thirty positions.

According to Borelli, associ­ate professor of mathematics and director of special instruc­tional projects and activities, the students apply to the Col­lege of Arts and Letters, the College of Science, or the College of Engineering. Ten posi­tion­ are available in each col­lege.

Although the PMES pro­gram is entering its third year, Notre Dame participated for the first time last summer. Borelli said, "We just heard about it at the end of the first year."

Students accepted into the program will receive a stipend, travel, six credit hours, and room and board for the duration of the summer program.

He added that the program was so successful that its pop­ulation has been increased from approximately 55,000 last summer to $91,980 this year.

This increase allowed the pro­gram to increase the number of positions from twenty to thirty. The ten additional positions are in the College of Engineering.

According to Borelli, seven of the ten members from last year were from Notre Dame. The applicants are se­lected on the basis of their transcripts and letters of recom­mendation. Applicants must also demonstrate financial need.

Borelli said that the students had the "opportunity to participate in a graduate school program." He said, "We try to encourage them to follow a career in graduate studies." The Notre Dame program begins in June. 40-area students will be offered internships across the country offering PMES opportunities.

Chancellor faces unrest
BERLIN, Germany-German Chancellor Helmut Kohl on Sunday faced growing signs of unrest among other leaders of his embattled Christian Democratic Union. Kohl has come under fire for breaking a campaign promise by raising taxes to finance unification. Foreign investors see his center-right coalition wavering, Kohl could have difficulty attracting foreign capital to the troubled eastern part of the country. A German newspaper reported that Kohl had called a "crisis meeting" for June to plot strategy, but the party rejected the paper's characterization of the gathering. Instead, the party confirmed that a "closed door" session will take place early in June.

Mobs kill 10 outside Johannesburg
JOHANNESBURG, South Africa- Armed mobs rampaged through the Soweto black township following the funeral of a local official Sunday, killing ten people and causing widespread damage, police said. The deaths brought the total to at least 28 deaths during the weekend of violence, including 14 killed in the Johannesburg township of Alexandra, police said. Many in the armed crowd wore red headbands associated with the Zulu-dominated Inkatha tribe. Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok later announced a ban on all traditional weapons.

LA brutality case may be dropped

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charges against four policemen accused of beating a black motorist should be dismissed in part because four electric stun-guns darts fired at Rodney King are missing, a defense attorney said.

"We have put the prosecution on notice that we are going to move to dismiss the case based on the failure to preserve or the destruction of evidence," said John Barnett, who represents Officer Theodore Briseno.

Records at Pacifica Hospital in Sun Valley, where the motorist was taken for treatment, indicate the darts were thrown out the night of the beating.

"We do not consider it a make-or-break bit of evidence. We certainly don't believe in the dismissal of charges," Botula said. "What we're looking at is the overall conduct of the officers."

The videotape of the beating indicates King was hit more than 50 times with police batons.

Brother Moran made honorary alumnus

Special to The Observer

Brother Conan Moran, former manager of the Hammes Bookstore, has been made an honorary alumnus by the University's Alumni Association.

Moran, who retired two years ago, received word of his new status in a surprise announcement during a banquet on April 27, which closed the association's annual senate and board meetings.

Moran, known to generations of Notre Dame students as "Brother Bookstore," was born in Cavan, Ireland and attended primary and secondary schools in Closnaarn and Leitrim.

He emigrated to the United States in 1928 and lived in St. Louis before entering Sacred Heart College in Watertown, Wis., as a Holy Cross postulant in February 1937. He took his vows as a Holy Cross brother in 1941.

In 1939, while still under temporary vows, Moran was assigned to work at the bookstore, which shared space in Badin Hall with a barber shop and dry-cleaning service until the present facility opened in 1955. He is a former trustee of the National Association of College Stores and a former member of the University's Licensing Committee.

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Stanford University lecturer Stuart Reges has flouted his drug use since last fall when he told the campus newspaper his favorite was an amphetamine derivative nicknamed "the love drug."

Reges, who says he has never taught while on drugs, has become the focus of a debate about free speech and personal freedom vs. government efforts to stop drug use on campuses.

"It's certainly foolish behavior on the part of Stuart Reges to personally provoke this, but it's also a legitimate issue — whether the war on drugs has gone too far," said Phillip Johnson, a criminal law professor at the University of California at Berkeley.

The campus anti-drug rules began last fall after the governor threatened to pull funds from schools that don't have anti-drug policies. Stanford got more than $120 million in federal funds last year, nearly 30 percent of its operating budget.

The regulations, teachers can be fired and students expelled or disciplined if they make, distribute, possess or use illegal drugs on campus.

"That's just simply blackmail," Reges said. "The government has no business using universities to conduct their ridiculous war on drugs. This is supposed to be a place of free thinking, free speech and personal freedom."

But Martinez, the former Florida governor named by President Bush as head of the National Drug Control Policy Office, told Stanford President Donald Kennedy in an April 12 letter that "pro-drug" teachers like Reges cannot be tolerated.

Kennedy wrote to the latter a week later, ordered Reges placed on paid administrative leave after 12 years at Stanford — 11 as a lecturer and one as a graduate student.

"Privileged intellectuals who argue in support of what is in fact an industry based upon exploitation are, I think, morally disoriented," Kennedy told the Stanford Daily after the letter was published against him.

Astronauts to study 'Star Wars' - CAPE CAANEVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The space shuttle Discovery thundered into orbit with seven astronauts Sunday, but its main mission, "Star Wars" research mission quickly encountered trouble.

The crew apparently tried to activate two tape recorders for collecting data from one of the Pentagon's primary payloads, a collection of five scientific instruments. Mission Control responded to the efforts by three of the five instruments, a spacecraft that will be released in orbit to measure and analyze the shuttle's exhaust plumes.

"No joy," "Both of them have experienced some sort of anomaly, and we're looking at that closely right now," NASA flight director Ron Dittemore said.

The five scientific instruments and the recorders are mounted in the cargo bay. The instruments are supposed to study natural phenomena, such as the atmosphere and aurora, that could mask a ballistic missile's path.

Dittemore said experiments by three of the five instruments would be in jeopardy if the recorders don't work. He said work by the other two devices, including the most important one, would not be affected.

No problems were reported with Discovery's other main cargo, a spacecraft that will be released in orbit to measure and analyze the shuttle's exhaust plumes.

Four programs on the interplay between science and religion lead off the new season and feature three Notre Dame professors: the Rev. Michael Buckley, a theologian; physicist James Cushing, and the Rev. Ernan McMullin, a philosopher of science. It will also feature Adolf Grundbaum, chairman of the Center for the Philosophy of Science at the University of Pittsburgh.

Other persons appearing on the programs include Cornelius Delaney, Notre Dame professor of philosophy; Phillip Sloan, chairman of the Notre Dame Program of Liberal Studies; and two English scholars, mathematician Roger Penrose of Oxford University and the Rev. John Polkinghorn, president of Queen's College, Cambridge University.

Four programs called "Religions of the Book" treating the views of Jews, Muslims and Christians on such issues as war and peace and holy places and pilgrimage will follow the series on "Science and Religion."

Notre Dame began its PBS and cable telecasting in the fall of 1989 and is believed to be the only university producing programming on a regular basis for both PBS and cable networks.

The conference is open to the public. Further information may be obtained from Erika Vazquez, academic coordinator of the Kellogg Institute, at 239-6580.
ND Folk Choir releases ‘A Companion to Prayer’

A cassette recording of the Notre Dame Folk Choir and the Monastic Schola of Gethsemani Abbey, titled “A Companion to Prayer,” has been published by Ave Maria Press. According to Steven Warner, director of the Folk Choir, the recording was made over the last three years as members of the Folk Choir made a series of retreats at Gethsemani Abbey in Trappist, Kentucky. During these visits, the Folk Choir joined the common prayer of the monks, taking part in the Abbey’s Masses and celebrations of the Liturgy of the Hours. Much of the pieces regularly used at the Abbey were later adapted for use at Notre Dame by the Folk Choir.

The recording includes hymns, spirituals, contemporary songs, chants and psalm settings. Much of the music in the collection results from Warner’s collaboration with the Rev. Chrysogonus Waddell, director of music for Gethsemani Abbey, and Ellen Doerrfeld, graduate assistant for the Notre Dame Ensemble.

Alumni enlarge security zone

ZAKHO, Iraq (AP) — In a change of plans, allied forces have more than doubled the size of their security zone for Kurdish refugees in northern Iraq and are scouting a site for a second settlement, U.S. officers said Sunday.

Meanwhile, in southern Iraq, the U.S. Army began an airlift to Saudi Arabia of refugees who fear reprisals from Iraqi security forces if they remain. That was seen as a major step toward the U.S. troops' own departure.

Many Iraqis were displaced by the Shiite Muslim revolt in the south and the Kurdish uprising in the north, which broke out after the Persian Gulf War. The insurgenices failed to dislodge Saddam, who marked his 54th birthday on Sunday.

But renewed clashes were reported between Shiites and Iraqi forces near the southern city of Basra.

The fighting caused heavy casualties among government forces and at least two personnel carriers were set ablaze, Iranian radio reported. The broadcast, monitored in London, also claimed rebels attacked government intelligence posts in the southern cities of Al-Amarah and Karbala, killing some Iraqi troops.

The report could not be independently verified.

In northern Iraq, the initial allied-protected security zone was to have encompassed a 630-square-mile area that stretched 18 miles south and 35 miles east of Zakho. Allied troops were also planning to complete one camp before starting another.

Now, the new zone is envisioned to be about 1,350 square miles and troops will start a second camp before finishing the first.

Army officers said the change of plans came after they realized that not all the Kurds were willing to come to the camp at Zakho, where about 1,000 tents have been set up for refugees.

In addition, the officers said they hoped that expanding the size of the zone would encourage Kurds to come down from the mountains, where many of them live in appalling conditions but are too afraid of Iraqi retribution to leave.

In the easternmost allied push so far, a company of British Royal Marines moved into the Iraqi town of Batnija, about 18 miles east of Zakho, on Saturday night.

When the British troops arrived, a battalion of Iraqi Republican Guard left, officers said.

Soon, U.S. Marines from the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit will enter Amadiyah, about 75 miles east of Zakho, where a second camp is planned, said U.S. Army Lt. Col. Jim Christophersen, of the 432nd Civil Affairs Company of Green Bay, Wis.

"This will effectively double the size of the security zone," said Christophersen, whose men will manage both camps until the United Nations and humanitarian agencies can take over.

Privately, some officers expressed concern that the expansion, by increasing allied military involvement in Iraq, could raise the possibility of coalition forces being drawn into a quagmire in Iraq.

Awards given to graduate students

Special to The Observer

The Notre Dame Alumni Association announced the recipients of two new awards to graduate students. Rev. Maxwell Johnson was given the Alumni Association Graduate Teaching Award and Eric Hessels received the Alumni Association Graduate Research Award.

Both awards are new this year and will be given annually to ND graduate students. The Alumni Association also recognizes an outstanding undergraduate and graduate student each year with the Distinguished Student Award.

Johnson, a Lutheran minister, is pursuing a doctorate in liturgy through Notre Dame's theology department. According to Rev. Richard McBrien, Crowly - O'Brien - Walter professor of liturgy and chairman of the department, Johnson consistently receives excellent teaching evaluations from his students. Conversations with his students, McBrien said, indicate that he is successful in making theology come alive in his courses.

Hessels, a doctoral candidate in physics, is involved with basic research related to the fundamental laws of electric and magnetic forces. He recently presented his thesis on "Precision Microwave Spectroscopy of High Angular Momentum n=10 Helium Rydberg States," which concerns an electron's large, nearly circular orbit around a positive helium ion.

He has used lasers and microwaves to measure precisely the energies of the different possible orbits.

During his studies at Notre Dame, Hessels has published eight articles in research journals and has given several talks at scientific conferences.

Bush asks allies to cut interest rates

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Bush personally appealed on Sunday for foreign allies to cut interest rates to help lift the United States out of a recession but his appeal did not win any immediate public support from the two countries it was primarily aimed at - Germany and Japan. Finance officials from those nations said inflationary pressures limited their ability to cut rates.

Bush made his pitch for global rate cuts at an unusual White House lobbying session with finance ministers and central bank presidents of the world's seven largest industrial nations.

After the brief meeting with Bush, the finance leaders moved across the street for six hours of discussion and on Sunday issued a joint statement that essentially passed over policy differences that existed between the United States and Japan and Germany.

The communiqué was filed with vague promises - but no specific commitments.

The statement said the seven nations had agreed "to monitor the situation closely and to take actions as needed ... with a view to achieving a sound recovery and a growing world economy." Those actions were not spelled out.

Striking a hopeful note, the finance officials said there were "signs of perspective economic recovery and lower inflation in those countries which are in recession."

In a low U.S. concerns, the statement said "the persistence of high real interest rates and the slowing of economic activity in those countries which until recently had been experiencing strong expansion."

Brown: Japanese businesses negotiate through the media

By COLLEEN GANNON

WASHINGTON (AP) - Japanese businesses negotiate through the media to test or negotiate what they mean.

DC: "Japan to show what he meant.

Brown used the media's coverage of a Toyota story last week to support his argument.

"Then the public reaction is the way that the people who leaked the story in the first place decide whether or not they should do it," he said.

"That is a litmus test. They negotiate through the media," Brown concluded.

"They don't seem likely to me," he added.

"It is very hard to imagine that in such an organized society the only rebels around are reporters," he said.

"But if you decide this is unlikely, then you got to think that there is something more strategically important going on," Brown stated.

"Sometimes it is a story that appears and we don't know it until later on that it is a test of the atmosphere," he said.

A company or institution will leak a story that says they are close to deciding something without any quotes or attribution, according to Brown.

"Then the public reaction is the way that the people who leaked the story in the first place decide whether or not they should do it," he said.

Brown compared reporters working for clubs in Japan to show what he meant by "widespread." The top reporters in Japan are used to negotiate, Brown stated.

"Then if you decide this is unlikely, then you got to think that there is something more strategically important going on," Brown said.

"That is a litmus test. They negotiate through the media," Brown concluded.

"They don't seem likely to me," he added.

Brown used the media's coverage of a Toyota story last week to support his argument.

"An announcement by Toyota that Japanese Toyota dealers would start to distribute Volkswagens and Audis started the story.

"The first day stories dealt with the need to improve Japan's balance of trade and would you be happy if the strong, Toyota Motor Company would start selling Volkswagen Audis from Europe," Brown said.

"When you look at the details, the dealers in Japan did not as long as they are able to say we are going to set up a plan that makes them able to do it," according to Brown.

Brown concluded.

"What I'd like to bet on, though, is that each one of us here tonight, including me, believes at least one thing which is very important in his or her overall perspective about the Japanese, but guess what, it probably isn't true," Brown concluded.

Brown advised the public to get more than one report on a story, and if the story still does not make sense, find more reports.

Rich countries can't save enough, according to developing countries

WASHINGTON (AP) - The world's richest nations aren't saving enough, lending enough or doing enough to keep interest rates down, finance ministers of poorer nations said Sunday.

The ministers of 24 developing countries, meeting prior to sessions of the 155-nation International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, expressed concern that industrialized nations and international financial institutions. They urged approval of a new allocation of saving rights by the IMF, which would have the effect of increasing the world's ability to obtain financing. The United States opposes such a proposal.

"We call on the industrial countries to reconsider their positions, and we'll see what response we get," Hommes said at a briefing for news media.

The ministers, in their statement, expressed concern about the disturbing rate of world economic growth and cautioned that improved growth projections for developing countries in 1992 and beyond may be "overly optimistic and may not materialize."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

I am a white male, but I hope this will not be held against me because my people, too, have been oppressed. I am speaking of the myriad of wrongs that my people has suffered for centuries at the hands of those evil, Western European, English, imperialist pig-dogs. My biggest pet-peeve is Irish stereotypes in America.

I also am a member of an ethnic group. I am Irish—my father. Furthermore, there is the terrible stereotype which is portrayed on all those “Partying Irish” t-shirts. Believe it or not, I am writing this in a sober state. In fact, I very recently took a step back into a drunk state. I cannot believe the evil, Western European, English, imperialist pig-dogs. This is, however, another story.

My purpose in writing this letter is to bring to the attention of the student body that it is not only students of color who are victims of racism and stereotypes. I am referring, of course, to the term “fighting Irish” which is so proudly emblazoned all across this campus. I cannot describe the pain I feel when I see it. You see, I have never been in a fight, nor has my father.

Yet, every time someone learns I am Irish, they immediately take a step back into a defensive fight position. Furthermore, there is the terrible stereotype which is portrayed on all those “Partying Irish” t-shirts. Believe it or not, I am writing this in a sober state. Professor Rice of the Notre Dame Program for Gays and Lesbians argues that the staff suggested that when I need to nurse I take my daughter to the Dooley room or main floor lounge in LaFortune. All the friendly attention from a panel of men. We were talking about blacks, or women to tell us what is best. ("One synonym for "objective" is the phrase "what most people would say," or "what most people would say if they were asked," or "what most people would say if they were asked an exact question.") It is easy for me to move around much closer when I have a very young baby around. In fact, with children around, I am much more likely to be able to nurse in a given place when I must. (The phrase "4. "Justice to the homosexuals as well as to the rest of the community requires an insistence on the duty to refrain from homosexual practices" has already pointed out the absurdity of using a phrase like "homosexual Practices" in this context.)

My daughter and I have spent many hours-many days-on campus during the past academic year. By and large we have felt accepted and comfortable in the academic community. Dear Editor:

We are approaching a sad anniversary in the history of Ireland. Ten years ago on May 5, a young man named Bobby Sands died of starvation in a British prison in Northern Ireland. He had been on hunger strike for 66 days. It was the first of ten to start and the first of ten to die. It seems appropriate to address the hunger strikers and the current status of Northern Ireland ten years later.

Until the mid-70s, the British government had occupied a state of war with the IRA. At that time, however, they decided to "criminalize" the status of IRA prisoners. The prisoners saw this as a further attempt to trivialize their cause and opposed it. Eventually tensions escalated to hunger strikes in 1980. They seemed to be the only available tool to get the British government to address their demands. The strikes were ended when the prisoners were moved to another place but the prisoners left empty-handed. This led to the 1985 IED attack on Maze prison and the 1987 Bobby Sands event. After the British allowed ten men to die, the IRA decided to accept the prisoner's demands except official prisoner of war status. Many of those men were Irish-Americans whose first pronouncement on the subject of Northern Ireland is how they disapprove of the IRA. Why not of the UVF, UDR, or BUC (all of whom have been forces continued union with Britain)? Don't know of them? Well, the British government is a "terrorist" organization and Britain has used this to stifle international political pressure.

Past and present injustices in Northern Ireland cannot be forgotten

Dear Editor:

...that women who choose to stay home and care for their families is a glaring omission—why does your definition of freedom negate my life choice? I actually feel more pity than anger, despite Hodgins diatribe. I hope her attitude toward women who raise children, and those women who have the family life they want if they remain at home. What does your definition of freedom require Hodgins to negate my life choice?

Refusal to recognize mothers is appalling

Dear Editor:

...how ironic that such a testament of the Earth's natural beauty, a compliment bestowed to our planet's future, was maliciously stolen from the stone of this dedicated tree. I cannot find it within myself to forgive the person(s) responsible for his appalling degradation of our campus. To think that a ND student, presumably a semi-intelligent and moral being, would reduce himself to such a pathetic level serves to reinforce my opinion that some individuals still maintain an apathetic view about the present destruction that our world is experiencing at this very moment. This attitude must be changed if our children are to have any hope for tomorrow.

Senior's disappointment with yearbook cover

Dear Editor:

...without the children women have not made a choice "in any meaningful sense." I know why, and wonder, why is it that mothers who stay at home are often happier than those who appear to be? If we are leading such meaningless lives, not contributing to society, etc., why is it you seem to be the angry and embittered one?

Mohers' contributions meri respect

Dear Editor:

...without the children women don't look at men as power-mad patriarchs, romanticalistic, or losers. Nor do they think of their (note possessive) husbands as solely "the men with whom they have had sexual intercourse." Hodgins gives lip service to the view that "of course women who remain in the home deserve honor and respect," but then ridicules them. That's OK, we don't need validation from her or from the Year of Women (which we certainly won't be celebrating).

I find insulting Hodgins' statement that the worst choice a woman can make is to care for her family. The word "choice" has never been and normally is not of the class and caliber of "family." Many women who have chosen to raise children have been forced to make that choice. For a handful of people in responsible positions to snub women is a cause for concern. We college graduates, in our own guise, have chosen to use their education to nurture and train their children. It isn't that they can't govern Northern Ireland adequately— they never have and there's no reason to believe they ever will. Unfortunately dates like this May 5 remind us that the situation in the North persists, despite being conveniently ignored by the media and government. One of the best tools we have right now to support the MacBride Principles and to follow events in the North through such organization like the American Irish Political Education Committee.

...for tomorrow. This is no small thing in a society filled with troubled people who may be leading different lives than they had been blessed with.

Notre Dame is charitable to support mothers who need help but the school is different than its own. However, it has failed to show the same tolerance and respect that reflects its Catholicity.

Festival shows creative filmmaking

BY MEREDITH MCCULLOUGH

Light! Camera! Action!

Lights—Notre Dame Film students are on the look out for camera-imaginations, and talent, students from Basic Film and Production classes have spent the past year creating a myriad of short film projects which will be shown tonight at the Notre Dame student world premiers.

"It will be like flipping through cable stations for an hour or half," he said. With slyness, comedies, commercial parodies, and documentaries, "I don't think anything will be boring.

The purpose behind this film festival is to-fold: to raise money for a local charity and to give the students the opportunity to present their work to a large audience.

Having an event like the festival is "an easy way to generate money," Mandell said. The proceeds from the $2 admission charge will be donated to El Campus Day Care center, a "low-profit charity that not too many people know about.

Not only will the program benefit the children at the center, but it will be advantageous for Notre Dame - this year's event.

"It is important to have a show like this," Mandell said. He explained that in a time when one makes a film, they "create a piece of work to be shown to an audience.

When film students watch their own work, they examine it with knowledge of both the artistic and technical aspects of the film industry, he explained.

He continued, it is imperative for the film maker to present his or her work to an audience outside of the field "or they don't know how to improve their work-they don't know how people will react to it." John Fletcher, one of the students involved, agreed with his professor. "Having a show is something that helps make you feel a littler better about what you've done even if they say you get a response," he said.

Fletcher, who is currently enrolled in Basic of Film and Production classes, plans to take the advanced course next year, has submitted a few short films that were originally assignments for class.

He expressed that in the future he would like to be able to do his own projects, but a lot of what is being shown is about what they told us to do.

It may seem restricting to only do assigned work, but Fletcher clarified this mis-conception. "There is a lot of freedom here," he explained.

For example, he described one of the pieces being shown titled "Comic Book Life." The assignment merely asked for a segment presenting a chase scene, but Fletcher exercised creativity to create a film in which frames of a comic book come to life around its artist.

Though he said the film was a challenge, using difficult effects that take time to perfect, Fletcher called the whole experience "really enjoyable.

Other films that will be featured include work focusing on:

- Herman the Dead Mackeral, a promotional commercial for a joke situation comedy.
- Doug Church, a true-to-life documentary.
- Pat Shirley's, local truckers.
- Jack in the Box, a preview for a longer film that will be completed in the fall.
- Saint Mary's Maid, the Miss Coloma Beauty Pageant.
- a local stripper.

This is not the first time that the department has sponsored such a film festival. "We've had them in the past," said Mandell, "but never this big.

In February a similar festival was held in to "show what kind of interest we would generate," he said. With little to no advertising, 70 people showed up to see two and a half hours of material.

He continued, it is imperative for the film maker to present his or her work to an audience outside of the field "or they don't know how to improve their work-they don't know how people will react to it.

"The opportunity Carter took halfway through Saturday night's show for a brief repose gave the audience a chance to enjoy the guitar prowess of Dale Russell. In addition, a sax improvisation was provided by keyboard player Leonard Shaw, who also handled the flute solo in "Undan.

"Guess Who" survives the test of time

By BRENDA REGAN

Accent Writer

Over the course of the last 19 years many musical groups have come and gone. Some are one-hit wonders; others go on to see several albums released before fading into popular obscurity. Only the truly talented, the enduring artists are able to weather the musical storm. We have, The Guess Who, famous for such timeless classics as "American Woman," "Black and White," and "I'm Only an Average Joe,

Although faces and appearances have changed since the band's first Notre Dame performance in 1972, The Guess Who returned in full force Saturday night as part of the 1991 AzTona/Topanga Festival. How does it feel to be back at Notre Dame? "Great," I re-responded, having heard, re-sponded original bass guitar bass guitar/backup vocalist Jim Keltie in his battle with Parkinson's. "It's been almost 20 years!" Indeed, the band performed with the enthusiasm that most certainly was present when the band was great, its initial exposure to stardom.

Many years later The Guess Who has an impressively large repertoire of smash hits in its credit that spans a period of over two decades, and Saturday night's lineup covered them all.

The group originated in 1962 under the name A1 and the Silver Tones. This was changed to Chad Allen and the Reflections and later to Chad Allen and the Expressions before the band settled on its current name in 1963.

According to drummer Garry Peterson, they changed the name in an effort to gain the attention of radio stations for the single "Shakin' All Over." During a time when the nation's airwaves were being dominated by the British Invasion, the band's promoters left the words "Guess Who" who the name of the artist would ordinarily appear.

This idea turned out to be so successful that the group adopted the name, and a rock legend was thus born.

Lead vocalist Kenney Carter, who earlier this year celebrated the sixth anniversary of his joining The Guess Who, admits that he's partial to "The Razor's Edge," a number which he helped compose. He said that the group will be bringing its new material into the recording studio this fall (late September or early October) in no more than 500 people stars.

There will be two screenings tonight at 7 and 9 p.m. at the Snite Museum of Art. Admission is $2.

Mandell, who graduated as a Notre Dame Communications and Theater major in 1986, said that while he was an ND student, smaller shows similar to this one were often held. Most of those who come to see the films either had friends who were acting in them or were actors themselves. He said that he hoped this audience would be larger.

"I'd like to see 300 people see these quality films and videos that not too many people on campus know about," he said. Chris Walsh, another student from Basics of Film and Production said, "People would be surprised that the students who produced these films are in a basics of film class.

The content and quality is far superior than what most people will expect, he continued.

According to Mandell, most of the projects were completed on campus and will use students as actors and actresses. He describes the program as "90 minutes of ND student performances.

The pictures were taken in the Topanga Canyon in California at the same time the major 1970 earthquake hit the area. He said that in several instances the band members could actually feel the ground shaking under them during the shooting.

Saturday night's performance was an unsual success, a standard which has become routine for this legendary group over the span of its career."
Modern dancers exhibit artistic style

By ANNA MARIE TABOR
Saint Mary's Accent Editor

Modern dance is an ambiguous artform that can be interpreted in multiple ways. This was evident at the Spring Forward—Fall Back concert on Friday night at Moreau Little Theater.

One thing that seemed to be common among audience members was the level of excitement and anticipation during each performance. The concert was characterized by variety in style, music, costumes, and mood. Dancers were choreographed by both students and Sue Cherry, a visiting Assistant Professor of Dance at Saint Mary’s.

"Friendly Competition" was an appropriately titled tap dance/duel in which Maris Brennan and Danielle Duchatellet attempted to out-tap each other. The competition was so fierce that at one point there was a fight scene. The lively dance was a battle to the end until one of them offered to stop. The competition was a lively dance was a battle to the end until one of them offered to stop. The competition was a battle to the end until one of them offered to stop. The competition was a battle to the end until one of them offered to stop.

With strategically glowing sections of costume and props, the most unusual pictures were created. In "Dancecapella," dancers used long ribbons to form triangles, a spoked wheel, a wave, and a compact disc. The same glow-in-the-dark technique was featured in "Jericho Sessions," a compact disc produced with campus musicians.

Among the best of the bands on the CD are Fresh Water for the Horses, "Little Lover," Bone Forest ("Attractive for the Night"), Chronic Desire ("Strange Addiction"), Jester ("Love Lay Down"), Chisel ("Swamp Fox/Spikes"), and The Five O’Clock Shadows, ("Be Slippers"), a very impressive and polished set of performers who, like Chisel, are known far beyond the borders of South Bend.

"Be Slippers" was recorded on December 7 of last year at the famous Fredonia State Music Festival, where The Five O’Clock Shadows got a chance to make themselves known to some of the industry’s agents.

The CD costs eight dollars, and all proceeds go to United Way for the Emergency Shelter for Adolescents through the Youth Services Center. "We had originally planned to sell the bulk of the CDs during Fogstock, but because it was cancelled, we might not be able to sell all of them before the end of the year," said Walter.

The CDs are also available at the WVFI office on the second floor of LaFortune after 2 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and after 4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The idea of producing a compact disc started to become a reality when Cyril Oake, owner of Acorn Studios, heard about the idea and gave Walter a call, offering a "really favorable rate," in Walter’s words.

"Kevin Flaherty (also a band member and myself had just planned an acoustic album, one recorded here at our studio at WVFI with two track rools. But then we decided to include the bands because we thought we might not get enough acoustic sets," said Chris Walter, an executive board member for WVFI.

The CD costs eight dollars, and all proceeds go to United Way for the Emergency Shelter for Adolescents through the Youth Services Center. "Initially we were doing this project with the idea of producing a sampler instead of an all punk or all classic rock album, is simple. As Walter put it, "This campus is somewhat diverse, musically."

This CD offers a broad representation of campus music. Everyone here will like at least three or four songs on the album. "There's something for everyone."

The CD is well produced and features some very professional productions.

Among the best of the bands on the CD are Fresh Water for the Horses, "Little Lover," Bone Forest ("Attractive for the Night"), Chronic Desire ("Strange Addiction"), Jester ("Love Lay Down"), Chisel ("Swamp Fox/Spikes"), and The Five O’Clock Shadows, ("Be Slippers"), a very impressive and polished set of performers who, like Chisel, are known far beyond the borders of South Bend.

"Be Slippers" was recorded on December 7 of last year at the famous Fredonia State Music Festival, where The Five O’Clock Shadows got a chance to make themselves known to some of the industry’s agents.

The CD costs eight dollars, and all proceeds go to United Way for the Emergency Shelter for Adolescents through the Youth Services Center. "We had originally planned to sell the bulk of the CDs during Fogstock, but because it was cancelled, we might not be able to sell all of them before the end of the year," said Walter.

The CDs are also available at the WVF office on the second floor of LaFortune at 4 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, and after 4 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

They are going to be on sale all this week, at 4 p.m. on Fieldhouse Mall, while some of the bands featured on the CD play. XYZ Affair is playing today, and The Five O’Clock Shadows on Tuesday, if weather permits.

Walter summed up the experience, "Initially we were doing "this project because it was fun, and it grew really, really big. It ended up being a lot of work, but it will be my most memorable experience here, I'm sure. It was an absolute blast to do."

Father Malloy describes Notre Dame as a ‘community in transition’ in the program for their sophomore years, versus a national average rate of 38 percent. In January of this year, the University submitted a proposal to the National Science Foundation seeking funding for a program for the College of Science.

In the program, which we have undertaken because they are important to the vitality and character of our institution, people are actions that demonstrate that we have taken; now let me tell you what we are and how I propose to promote these ideas.

A: The Present Situation

We are a campus and a University community in transition. By numbers we are not a minority campus; in 1991 there were 6 or 10 years ago, and so I look to the year 2000, and even the future. I envision a mix that will be different still, yet more complex, and certainly the University, and I personally, have recognized that this present commitment to this vision, and there is no pulling back from it.

The raw figures in 1991 show that the University’s minority population now is 13.1 percent minority overall—5 percent Hispanic, 4.5 percent African-American, 3.1 percent Asian-American, and 0.1 percent Native American. Our nonfaculty minority employees stand at 14 percent, a figure that places us in the lowest 11.4 percent and in the faculty at all levels, 10.4 percent Hispanic, 7 percent African-American and 1.5 percent Asian-American. Only one Native American on the faculty.

There are many pitfalls in this type of rough analysis. The very term “minority” is a relative one since it presupposes some common standard by which such judgments are made. Is one a “minority” because of one’s nation? There are many institutions of higher education across this country, and related to the Notre Dame campus? A difficult question. If one has the facts, the data, the evidence, the numbers, one can and should have success in the facts. We believe that every student-athlete who happen not to be ethnic minority students to go on to graduate school and I am convinced that we can continue to enlarge the pool of bright minority students to serve on committees, task committees, and faculty positions. Also, I believe we can better orient our research effort in the academic units to consider more cautious policy questions that have a particularly devastating effect on our minority population.

Fourth, the lack of a critical mass of ethnic minorities in certain areas of University life places an additional burden on minority faculty, staff or administrators to serve on committees, task forces and other representative groups. The University, of course, is obligated to constitute these important bodies, but I am beginning to believe that consultation from as broad a cross-section of the community as possible is essential. Under the students, we continue to cultivate our Catholic identity and to serve as an athlete. The second is that we raise our Catholic identity and to serve on committees, task forces and other student groups that may be successful in pushing affirmative action.

Second, we have a difficult time keeping open the opportunities for formation of deep and lasting friendships across ethnic lines. No one seems to know exactly why this is so. Efforts are being made in the Notre Dame community. A Postscript .

I want personally to thank the many people in our administrative community over the past few months who have held the University accountable for its commitments to minority issues. The lack of progress with regard to diversity is painful, and I am filled with hope that we can work officially in September on University life. The new task force will submit a final interim report by the end of the 1991-92 academic year, and a final report by the end of the 1991-92 academic year.

A: Planning for the Future

The Task Force on Cultural Diversity has established a Task Force on Cultural Diversity to be composed of the University Smith, my executive assistant, and Fr. Richard Warren, C.S.C., counselor to the president. It will be made up of no more than 18 members who will, after wide consultation, I propose to initiate further action.

Brooks wins in sudden death
MARK BROOKS — Mark Brooks had 10 birdies and two bogeys to charge to the front of the pack at the Greater Greensboro Open on Sunday, but he needed a nearly routine par before he could enjoy his work. Brooks beat Gene Sauers on the third hole of sudden death to take the $225,000 first-place money.

The two ended the tournament at 13-under 271, with Brooks turning in an 8-under 64 on the warm, muggy day at Forest Oaks Country Club.

Kessler found after two-day search
MIAMI — Miami Heat forward Alec Kessler turned up safe and sound Sunday night after his failure to check in with family during a boating trip in the Bahamas prompted a two-day search.

Flintz said that Kessler's fiancée, Rhea Harrelson, notified the Miami Heat office at about 9 a.m. Monday and the Coast Guard was notified.

"For two days there was a search," said Kessler's agent, Ali Flintz. "We had to wait until the search was suspended before we could do anything."

Sunday night, Kessler and his fiancee met with Heat officials.

"We're glad to have him back," said Heat General Manager Randy Wittman. "They got him out at 4 a.m. Sunday morning."

"We're impressed with the way Miami handled this," said Harrelson. "They had people helping us. They had the Coast Guard helping us."

Henderson ties all-time stolen base record as A's win

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Rickey Henderson tied Lou Brock's all-time record of 938 stolen bases Sunday, stealing second base after being foiled in four previous attempts as Oakland beat California 7-3.

Henderson matched Brock's mark when he stole in the sixth inning on a 1-2 pitch from Angels reliever Jeff Robinson. Henderson used his trademark head-first slide to beat catcher Lance Parrish's high throw.

Dave Stewart (2-2) snapped a two-game losing streak by pitching seven strong innings, and Jose Canseco went 3-for-4 with three RBIs as the A's completed a three-game sweep of the Angels. Oakland has beaten California six times in seven games this season.

Johnson's Bookstore career comes to fitting conclusion

Bookstore Basketball XX couldn't have had a more appropriate ending—senior Derrick Johnson, after playing in four consecutive Final Fours of the world's largest five-on-five amateur tournament, elicited Bookstore Championship and minutes later captured the Bookstore MVP title.

On a team where many people thought had too many stars and not enough chemistry, Johnson's play throughout Bookstore could be considered even closer to selfish.

Adworks used an isolation game plan, a la Bennett and the Irish, and the Bulls, or Barkley and the Stiers, that allowed the hot shooter the opportunity to either take his defender one-on-one or dish it off if the shot wasn't available. More often than not, Johnson, who connected on 8-of-14 shooting in Sunday's final against Tequila White Lightening, succeeded regardless of which opportunity he chose.

From a minimum range of 25 feet, Johnson would take, and make, the outside shot, but he didn't take shots that weren't available. Instead, DJ, as he has become known on campus basketball courts, guided his way through traffic and looked for the open man.

Showtime came for the crowd from Johnson on the boards, though, as he seemed to take a break and hang out around the rim on many occasions before engaging the rebound. "There were a couple of times when I think he came down wet from getting up so high" said junior Sean McLaren, who faced DJ and Adworks in the Round of 32.

While Johnson took Adworks to last year's Final Four, only to lose 21-19 to Joe Jobs and Malicious Prosecution, his final trip to Stepan Five showcased his talent against another powerful squad.

"Johnson's probably the finest non-football or basketball player I've ever seen in Bookstore," said Tequila White Lightening, who connected on 8-of-14 shooting in the final against Johnson.

"There were a couple of times when I think he came down wet from getting up so high," said junior Sean McLaren, who faced DJ and Adworks in the Round of 32.

"I think we got tired. That's why we lost," said senior Billy Johnson, who connected on 8-of-14 shooting in the final against Johnson.

"Once I saw the ball up and I had a chance to get it, I was going ahead and doing it," said Johnson. "I just wanted it over. It was for the championship, and since it was legal..."

And since it was legal, one of the greatest stars in Bookstore history finally had his title.

"Once I saw the ball up and I had a chance to get it, I was going ahead and doing it," said Johnson. "I just wanted it over. It was for the championship, and since it was legal..."
Lacrosse moves one step closer to NCAA bid

By DAVE MCMAHON

The Notre Dame lacrosse advanc ed one step closer to an NCAA bid with an 11-7 road win over Ohio State.

Down 5-4 with just over two minutes before the half, the Irish (7-6) exploded for seven unanswered goals in their best second-half performance of the season.

While the Irish have played well in the first half in many occasions, Saturday's game featured the most complete game of the year for the squad.

"We're playing our best lacrosse of the season right now," said Notre Dame coach Kevin Corrigan.

Midfielder John Capano broke the Irish career record for ground balls, a feat that is not surprising considering the senior's attitude towards the game.

"I've been here," said Capano, "and hustling-two means to the team."

"It's something I've been shooting for all season," said Capano.

"The game balls comes from being tough and hustling-two things about Macintosh."

"We gave up some goals in the first half that we knew we shouldn't have," said senior defenseman Eamon McAnaney. "It was just a matter of who wanted it more in the second half."

We communicated well in the second half and played tough defense, which eventually took the wind out of their sails."

While sophomore Pat Finn started the game in goal, Chip Parent took over in the second half, allowing only two shots past him.

"We outplayed them in the first half and had nothing to show for it," said Corrigan. "Parent not only gained confidence in himself, but he boosted our whole defense."

"Effectively, the Irish played with patience against a zone unit, a factor which contributed to a balanced scoring effort by seven Irish players."

"We moved the ball well against their zone, and anytime you're patient against a zone you're gonna have a lot of people with opportunities to score," said Corrigan. "Sullivan led the Irish with three goals and four assists. Schirf, Mayglothling, and senior Mike Senat each had two goals in the Irish win."

Offense

Leveas ran seven times for 18 yards and three touchdowns. Junior quarterback Rick Mirer continued his impressive play, completing 11 of 15 passes for 174 yards and one TD. Senior Derek Brown was utilized more often than usual as a receiver, catching five passes for 80 yards.

"I don't think Derek has improved. He was good to start with. We're just getting him the ball a little more," said Mirer.

While the high scoring of the game seems like it would reflect poorly on the defense, it was handcapped by playing only a basic defense, without blitzes.

"Let's not over-exaggerated what happened," said Holtz. "We played a very, very basic defense."

"Boo (Williams) and (Demetrius) DuRose are going to have to be leaders (of the defense) ... the secondary made some good plays," continued Holtz.

Holtz singled out DuRose for his fine play on defense, totaling 10 tackles, seven of which were assists. Three other players—sophomores LeShane Saddler, Jeff Barrs and Anthony Peterson—each had eight tackles.

Holtz even jokingly addressed the open Irish basketball position "I coach basketball when I did my student teaching. I was a pretty good basketball coach."

My players had a good time, and everyone graduated. Not Notre Dame. I'm happy he's here today ... The Irish captains will undergo surgery on that knee today. . . . The Irish captains will be back on May 1, when the athletic board will meet to approve the captains.

the break, and with one of the quickest guards in the country in Karen, it got us going."

The lawyers' didn't panic. Barron hit a jumper, and after another CJ's basket, Leyden broke out of an 0-for-10 slump with a short bank shot to spark a 6-1 run to cut the lead to 15-13.

"Their run didn't worry us because we're used to coming from behind," Barron said. "We knew that we had been in long, close games and they hadn't."

It's hadn't been tested during the tournament, however, they didn't do as well down the stretch yesterday. Robinson drove the lane for a lay-up and added a free throw, Leyden with the left wing to build the lead back to four.

Barron responded with a 15foot jumper of her own, and then Leyden a free throw to close the margin to 17-15.

But Weber nailed another 20footer from the left side, Robinson free throw and Weber cut to the basket and received a nice pass through traffic from Mic Tetenborn for an easy lay-up to get to game point.

Still, Hoosier lawyers' re refused to die. Barron who landed with seven points—battered an eight-foot running bank shot and another jumper from the free-throw line to get within three, 20-17.

"We were shooting the ball too soon at the end," Weber said. "Just had to work the ball around, found people cutting to the basket, and got a free throw."

Weber took her own words to heart.

On a play similar to her last basket, she snuck behind the defense underneath the basket, where Jennifer Slossor found her with another third-thread needle pass. With two lawyers contesting her shot, the ball bound once, before turning the fall through to give CJ's the championship.

Leyden was gracious in defeat.

"We had a lot of fun," she said. "We didn't expect to get this far, and Kathy Barron was awesome throughout the whole tournament. We're just happy we got this far and did so well."

And if it wasn't for Weber's effort, they might have gone all the way.

"I think that's the best of the week," Corrigan said. "I coach basketball when I did my student teaching. I was a pretty good basketball coach."

"I'm happy he's here today. . . . The Irish captains will undergo surgery on that knee today. . . . The Irish captains will be back on May 1, when the athletic board will meet to approve the captains."

You can say many things about Macintosh.

You can talk about how simple the Apple*Macintosh* computer is to use. Or how it can think the way you think. Or how compatible it is with other computers. But think again when the word "expensive" comes to mind. Because it's just not true any more.

Introducing the Macintosh Classic* computer. It's the most affordable Macintosh* yet. It has all the capabilities you need for word processing, graphics, or programming. And the software you need to get started, such as word processing and spreadsheet analysis. The Classic is a completely integrated Macintosh system. Its monitor, mouse, keyboard and system software are all included, as are extras you might not expect—such as built-in networking and the Apple SuperDrive* disk drive, which lets the Classic read from and write to MS-DOS, OS/2, and ProDOS* files.

Stop in today. We'll show you how it's possible for nearly anyone to afford a Macintosh. Comfortably.
Baseball takes three of four from Billikens

By RICHARD MATHURIN

Cynics might say that the Notre Dame baseball team (32-13) had a bad weekend. After all, the Irish, winners of 15 straight going into the weekend, only took three out of four from MCC cellar dweller Saint Louis. In the process, though, the Irish set a team record for consecutive victories with 18 in a streak which saw the Irish play near flawless baseball.

On Saturday, the Irish overcame the dreary weather to pummel the helpless Saint Louis pitching staff, banging out 20 hits in route to 8-5 and 18-7 victories.

In the first game, starter David Sinnes struggled with his control, walking four in four innings of work. He gave way to Eric Danapilis (2-1) in the fifth, and he pitched the final three innings to pick up the victory.

"Dave is his own worst enemy. He puts a lot of pressure on himself after the season he had last year. He kept us in the game, though," said Murphy of Sinnes.

"You've got ten blockers in front of you, and you can see things develop," said Johnson. "All you need is one little hole and you can be gone."

The Irish took control of the game in the sixth as third baseman Cory Mee opened the inning with a single to right. Center fielder Dan Bautch followed with a bunt which was thrown away by Decker putting runners at second and third.

After Craig Counsell knocked in Mee with a sacrifice fly, Jacobs launched his second homer of the game, giving the Irish the margin of victory. With that home run, Jacobs tied former Irish star Dan Peliter on the all-time ND home run list with 28.

"They're totally different players. Jacobs is a power hitter, while Peliter was more of a line drive hitter. I think Jacobs will play on the next level (professional baseball) like Peliter is now," said Murphy comparing his past and present stars.

In the nightcap, the Irish pounded out 20 hits in pummeling the Billikens. Their only Irish offense came in the third inning when Bautch hit his first career homer over the left field wall.

The only Irish offensive came in the third inning when Bautch hit his first career homer over the left field wall.

The Irish received a sparkling performance from starter Al Sinnes. Their pitching staff, banging out 20 hits, striking out four, and walking none to improve his record to 9-4.

"Al was tough. He kept us in the game when our offense went to sleep," commented Murphy.

In the second game, Billikens' pitcher Chris Chiluris baffled the Irish, scattering eight hits but dropped the second 3-1.

The Irish set a team record for consecutive victories through 239-5465 co-sponsored by Educational Media Commission, Notre Dame University.

Pat Leachy (6-2) took the loss for the Irish.

Johnson

Johnson attributes this improvement to work with classmate Lake Dawson over the winter.

"Lake and I worked a lot on my hands during the winter," he said. "I learned how to watch the ball all the way in."

Johnson was a highly regarded option quarterback in high school, and was tried out as a signal-caller last fall. He however, has enjoyed his move back to flanker this spring.

"I really got a lot of pressure on myself after the season he had last year. He kept us in the game, though," said Murphy of Sinnes.

Johnson, however, has enjoyed his move back to flanker this spring.

But Johnson seems to relish his latest assignment, as the set-up man of the Irish offense, most of all.

"You've got ten blockers in front of you, and you can see things develop," said Johnson. "All you need is one little hole and you can be gone."

Irish break spring drills with new and improved attitude

By RICH KURZ
Associated Sports Editor

When Saturday's Blue-Gold game ended Notre Dame's spring football practices, a new attitude was in the air. If Irish coach Lou Holtz gave his team slogans for the season, like former basketball coach Digger Phelps did, this squad's would be "We Are Family." For the record, the final was Blue 43 Gold 31. But the final score isn't what really matters about this game.

The Irish players, from running back Rodney Culver to tight end Derek Brown, seem to think that the Notre Dame football team for next season will be a closely-knit bunch. And quite a few people, that spirit is remarkably similar to the 1988 national championship team.

"The attitude is just like a family," said Brown. "It's just like my freshman year (1988)."

"Drills have gone smoothly," Holtz said. "There is a tremendous amount of team spirit evident this spring, with the players playing hard in every drill and having a lot of fun doing it.

"Notre Dame's last return specialist, rughib Johnson, seems destined to make a name for himself on the football field, and to do so with a still more spectacular performance than he did last fall. He was the Gold's longest play from scrimmage.

"Johnson has come light years as a wide receiver this spring, more than doubling his 7-of-15 passing performance, to a 21-15 victory over Tequila White Lightning in the finals of the 20th Bookstore Basketball tournament family."

The win ended Bookstore MVP Derrick Johnson's four years of frustration in the tournament. After two consecutive runner-up finishes, the senior rounded out his stellar Bookstore career as a champion.

"It took three tries to do it, but I'm really happy to finally win it," Johnson said afterward. "I'm the best team I've played on. We had both speed and size. I wanted to go out my senior year and finally win.

"The key was Derrick's decision to play 25-footers in the wet rain," said Rich Rolando, of Malinous. "He can't guard him in the rain because you have to let him shoot it. If he's going to make 25-footers, he deserves to win the game. Those were definitely backbreakers."
