Lawmakers suspend Communist Party

By MEREDITH MCCULLOUGH

A doctor of juridical science (J.S.D.) program which leads to the most advanced degree in law has been added to the Notre Dame Law School, according to Father William Lewers, professor of law and director of the newly introduced program.

"This is a research degree parallel to the Ph.D.," explained Lewers, who is also the director of the law school's Center for Civil and Human Rights (CCHR).

"The difference is that students will come with eight years of university experience rather than six," he said. "The usual candidate will have an undergraduate degree, a professional law degree (J.D.) and a LL.M. (master of laws degree)."

The program, which Lewers sees "primarily for those interested in an academic career," will focus on human rights law.

With Notre Dame's facilities in the CCHR and the law school already offering a master of laws degree in the field, Lewers considers the initiation of the J.S.D. a "natural development to go one additional step."

Such a step has brought the Notre Dame Law School into the ranks of other highly acclaimed law schools such as Harvard, Yale, Virginia, Columbia, Pennsylvania and about 10 others who offer this prestigious degree. According to Lewers an institution cannot claim to be a top research law school without this program.

While ND currently ranks among the top 25 law schools in the country, Lewers said, the arrival of the J.S.D. "represents a continuing development in the growth of the law school."

"This program will enhance our ability to attract senior and visiting faculty," he said.

This past year, Igor Gazin, an elected member of the Supreme Soviet Parliament taught University classes in comparative constitutional law, specifically between the United States and the Soviet Union. Dean Jorge Correa, faculty of law at Diego Portales University in Santiago, Chile, and Ignatius Walker, council to the president of Chile will join the teaching staff in the spring.

The J.S.D. program will include only two or three students at any one time, according to Lewers.

Seven students are currently involved in the University's master of laws in international human rights law.

"It's from a point of view that if you would draw one or two J.S.D. candidates," said Lewers.

Students in the program face a one-year residency requirement, during which they will develop dissertation outlines and participate in course work as students or teachers, Lewers explained.

Students will have a maximum of five years to complete the program, which includes approximately two years for writing their dissertation. Lewers expects one student, a Notre Dame graduate, to begin work on the degree this fall.

The J.S.D. program was approved by the University's Academic Council and has applied for approval from the United States Bar Association.

A sudden increase in assaults and robberies traditionally accompanied the return of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students to campus, said Doug Way, director of Crime Prevention at the South Bend Police Department.

Notre Dame students, who are primarily brought up in middle-class neighborhoods, often do not take precautions necessary to avoid being victims.

Street-smart attackers know to prey on students, Way said, since they are unsuspecting, often intoxicated and, most importantly, they seldom prosecute.

Way told a story of a man who attacked a Notre Dame senior then had the trial date moved to summer, when it was inconvenient for the student to travel across the country to pursue the charges.

The assailant, who later shot a man, passed his knowledge on to other local criminals. Way said.

Another tactic criminals use is preying on impaired students, because they know the victims will not be able to articulate well to police, and because their intoxication will be noted on police reports, Way said.

Crack has hit the streets of South Bend in increasing amounts this summer, he said, and there has been "a rash of drug-related crimes," including drive-by shootings, especially on the west side of town.

Lt. Ed Summers, a South Bend narcotics officer, confirmed this report, but refused to comment whether drug-related crimes have been prominent in areas that have commonly been used for off-campus student housing.

Patrols have been increased in the Notre Dame area since students returned, though he said. Summers said he could not provide additional information until he spoke with superiors.

"Our suspicion is that several different factions are fighting for crack distribution throughout the South Bend area," Way said.

Way said the first football weekend in August is an especially difficult time for students to become primary targets of robbers, since there are so many students walking around the city, to off-campus parties and bars. Students should not be afraid to knock on a door and ask a resident to call the police, he said, especially if being followed. Attackers often follow lone students until they catch up with them, he said, and "a block away from a bar in any direction" is prime mugging territory.

Off-campus students often make the dangerous mistake of letting neighboring kids into their apartments for parties, Way said, adding, "That's taboo..."
Use your head and be careful

It's the first official weekend of the school year. The time is right for party-and-shopping, making the rounds of all the social events before the weather takes a turn for the worse. Unfortunately, the time is also right for some less-enticing activities, like murder and robberies. And before you know it, something other than the weather might be taking a turn for the worse.

You see, you're back in South Bend. You've been gone for the summer, and frankly you missed out on what appeared to be a very eventful week.

While you were gone, you missed crack cocaine and its undesirable friends increasing their presence in the area. You missed some gang warfare, with drive-by shootings. You missed out on the transformation of a nearby apartment complex into a rent-by-the-week-to-the-kind-of-people-making-quickness.

And be fore you know it, you might be going back alive. What can you do?

Cristina diedlier than most of you have ever encountered. They've been spotted all over town, near the nearby apartment complex into a rent-by-the-week-to-the-kind-of-people-making-quickness.

But what can you do?

Design contest announced

The Notre Dame Food Services is sponsoring the "Design a Mug" contest in an effort to mix creativity with conservation.

The contest is open to students, faculty and staff. They are being asked to depict life at Notre Dame through a funny cartoon or picture, according to David Frenckowski, director of Notre Dame Food Services.

"We want people to have some fun with designing the mugs," he said, "while encouraging everyone to buy and reuse them."

And, they want something a little more fun to look at than the Notre Dame logo, he said. According to Frenckowski, the Notre Dame Food Services staff began selling the refill mugs last year to try to reduce the huge waste of paper and plastic cups used on campus.

The first prize winner will have his or her entry printed on the new refill mug and will receive a $100 gift certificate to Hammes Bookstore. Second and third place winners will receive $50 and $25 bookstore gift certificates, respectively.

The Notre Dame Food Services staff will select the winners in early November. The new mug designs might even include parts of several entries.

The new mug is expected to arrive on campus after Christmas break in January, he said. All entries must be submitted by Oct. 16 at the South Dining Hall, Marketing and Nutrition Office, Lower Level, Room 1. The contestant's name, address and phone number must be on the back of the entry.

All entries become the property of the Notre Dame Food Services.

Students join Irish Guard

The Notre Dame Irish Guard has announced its lineup for the 1991-92 year. This year's squad will be captained by seniors Steve Boone; sophomore Mike Maier and freshman Chris Boone; seniors Trey Hester and junior Curley Prentkowski.

The Irish Guard must be at least 6 feet 2 inches tall, and, according to Boone, "six inches shorter than the Notre Dame logo, he said. "What this legally does is, if he is convicted of all five deaths in Gainesville, it will allow them to see this against him in the penalty phase," said Assistant State Attorney Casey Castillo.

But, if he is convicted of all five deaths in Gainesville, they probably won't need it anyway.

The jury convicted Rolling of armed robbery, attempted armed robbery and aggravated assault on police in the holding of a Tampa convenience store a few days after the last of five bodies were discovered in Gainesville.

Rolling is charged in several other burglaries and robberies stretching from Tampa to Gainesville, where last month prosecutors said he robbed a bank the day after the first two bodies were found last August.

And earlier this week, a police affidavit listed evidence that may tie Rolling to a 1989 triple slaying in his hometown, Shreveport, La. In that crime, a victim was posed similar to some of the Gainesville victims.

He's also wanted in the attempted murder of his father, a former Shreveport police official.

No one has been charged in the student murders in Gainesville. Prosecutors said they plan to present evidence to a grand jury in November on Rolling and former University of Florida student Edward Humphrey.

In the wake of the slayings last summer, Rolling was arrested in Gainesville in connection with a bank robbery.

Murder suspect guilty of robbery

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The prime suspect in the slayings of five Gainesville college students was convicted Thursday in the armed robbery of a grocery store.

The case may help place Danny Harold Rolling in Gainesville about the time of the slayings because the car used in the Tampa robbery was stolen from a student apartment complex in the area of University of Florida after the last bodies were found.

However, his lawyer said that fails to prove Rolling committed the murders.

"It's OK, mom, I love you," he mouthed to his mother, Claudia Rolling, in the front row of the courtroom.

Following the verdict, prosecutors said they expect to seek a life sentence for the robbery at the Oct. 11 sentencing. He's being held in Hillsborough County Jail.

"What this legally does is, if he should ever be convicted in Gainesville, it will allow them to see this against him in the penalty phase," said Assistant State Attorney Casey Castillo.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — A senior European envoy on Thursday accused the federal army of siding with Serbian rebels in their war with Croatia and said only foreign observers can guarantee peace in the breakaway republic.

The war between the ethnic Serbian minority and the Croatians appeared to have entered a lull, although sporadic sniper fire was exchanged in several areas, the Croatian news agency Hina said.

Croatian and Serbian media said a tense calm prevailed in the besieged eastern Croatian town of Vukovar, on the border with Serbia and site of the worst fighting in the past week.

More than 50 busesloads of mothers of conscripts in the Yugoslav army traveled to Belgrade to demand that their sons be released from the federal forces. Some said Serb civilians harassed them as they traveled through the republic.

In the Croatian town of Osijek, 10,000 mothers converged on an army building to make the same demand.

Fighting between Serbs and Croats has torn Croatia since the republic declared independence on June 25.

Leaders of Croatia's 600,000-strong Serbian minority oppose secession and demand self-determination for areas where they live if the republic leaves the Yugoslav federation. Although far outnumbered, the Serbs now occupy about a fourth of Croatian territory.

The Serb-dominated federal military also is involved. Its leaders say the federal soldiers are keeping Croats and Serbs apart, but European Community envoy Henry Wijnaendts, who visited Vukovar on Wednesday, disputed that.

"Given the light armaments we saw on the Croatian side, the level of force apparently used by the federal army seems difficult to reconcile with the role they claim, namely that of an interposition force between fighting factions," he said in a statement.

"If this visit convinced us of anything, it is that impartial foreign monitors are indispensable if a cease-fire is at least to hold," said the statement, sent to The Associated Press in Belgrade.

The EC has blamed Serbia for the failure of all cease-fire efforts. It has proposed a peace conference to end the fighting, which has killed at least 280 people.

The EC repeated the accusation on Thursday, and threatened to halt talks with the most powerful Yugoslav republic if it does not accept the latest EC peace plan.

Speaking on behalf of the current Dutch presidency of the EC, Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek said the Netherlands will propose an emergency meeting next week on Yugoslavia, and on the exclusion of Serbia from EC-Yugoslav discussions unless Serbia accepts EC peacekeeping monitors in the strife-torn republic of Croatia.

In Belgrade, busloads of mothers from Croatia, Macedonia and Bosnia demanded to speak to federal Defense Minister Gen. Veljko Cadjevic and Chief of Staff Gen. Blagoje Anic about their sons' military service.

The republics of Bosnia and Macedonia have been neutral in the Serb-Croatian conflict but increasingly both have been leaning toward Croatia.

Military officers diverted the convoys to an army barracks in the suburbs. But by late evening, no senior army official had talked with the parents.

In Osijek, 10,000 mothers, some weeping, banged on the doors of an army building but also received no reception from officers.

"Serb army get out! Martha back to Serbia!" they shouted.

Meanwhile, Serb militants tightened their grip on Vukovar, Belgrade television reported. About 3,000 Croatian policemen and members of the Croatian National Guard were believed trapped in the city.

"Since the (Croat defenders) cannot escape, we are offering them a chance to survive by surrendering," Nemanja Kojic, a local Serb commander, was quoted as saying on a Belgrade evening TV newscast.

Serbia's hard-line President Slobodan Milosevic was non-committal Thursday on the EC's latest proposal to end the fighting.

"We are going to study the peace plan," Milosevic said after a 90-minute meeting in Paris with French President Francois Mitterrand.

Later, French Foreign Min­ister Roland Dumas told re­porters that Milosevic "asked to think about it, but I have the impression there was some slight progress."
Security cautions students

Crime throughout South Bend is on the rise, and campus security is warning students to be aware of new dangers on- and off-campus.

A major area of concern is the neighborhood directly south of the campus, according to Rex Rakow, director of area defense security. In the past, many of the homes in that area were rented out to students during the school year. Recently, however, Rakow said that many of the houses are being rented out by the week or the day.

As a result, the area is now inhabited by a "more transient group," said Rakow, who has created an environment in which crime is more likely.

"South Bend, in general, is seeing a bigger crime picture," said Rakow. "There's been a lot of violent crime this summer," including drug-related crimes and gang violence.

Security is concerned for the safety of students living in and frequenting establishments in the area south of the campus, which includes McGuire's Filling Station, The Commons and the Club 23.

Many students find themselves in that part of town between 10 p.m. and 3 a.m., according to Rakow. This adds an additional element of danger because students under the influence tend to lose their awareness and reflexes. And, in turn, are more susceptible to attacks, he said.

However, Rakow added, "students should just be concerned whenever they're out in small groups," because crime often happens at night and in dark areas.

Rakow recently had a meeting with Ron Marsiniak, South Bend police chief, and Mayor Joe Kernan in an effort to "share information." The two departments will be working together to increase safety on campus through a variety of cooperative programs, said Rakow.

The city's Neighborhood Enforcement Services Team (NEST), which patrols problem areas as a preventative measure against crime, will be stepping up its patrols between Thursday and Saturday, according to Rakow.

Notre Dame security has also commissioned an additional campus car to patrol the perimeter area from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m. and "watch out for students," said Rakow.

Finally, a publicity campaign was launched in an attempt to make students more aware of the dangers off campus and to teach them how to stay out of trouble.

Rakow fears that this may not be the case. "We hear rumblings," he said, "that some students think this is just being put out into the public because we want to curb drinking."

He denied this assessment. "We wouldn't be spending the time and the money talking about the northeast neighborhood if we just didn't want to curb drinking."

Rakow said that there are a number of things that students can do in order to avoid being a victim:

- Don't overconsume alcohol, he said, because it dulls judgment and reflexes, and, in turn, are more susceptible to attacks, he said.
- Students should just be concerned whenever they're out in small groups, because crime often happens at night and in dark areas.

- Provost, skipper Marc Du-paulliolus, 26, of Calabash, N.C., and Allison Wilcox, 32, of Austin, Texas, were taking the sailboat to Rhode Island for its owner, and were supposed to arrive by Aug. 21. A search began Aug. 23 after they were reported overdue.
- All were in stable but guarded condition Thursday. Wilcox's pregnancy was not threatened.
- The three sailors abandoned ship after hitting a water spout. They brought along a survival kit, some food and three gallons of water, but lost most of their provisions after the raft was repeatedly flipped by high waves.
- Provost said they survived by catching fish and eating "a lot of seaweed." They kept each other alert by telling stories, but their conditions deteriorated rapidly after they ran out of fresh water three days before their rescue, forcing them to sip sea water.
- Provost said they saw helicopters looking for them for four days before they were spotted.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard Kerr, the deputy director of the CIA, will take over next week as acting director to replace William Webster, who is retiring from government service, the agency said Thursday.

The CIA public affairs office said Kerr will become acting director on Sept. 2, and will serve until a new director is confirmed.

Webster announced his retirement in May and said he would leave the agency at the end of July to go into private law practice. But he extended his service, at the request of President Bush, after the Senate held up confirmation of his designated successor, Robert Gates.

The Senate Intelligence Committee, which was supposed to start its Gates confirmation hearings on July 15, postponed them until September 16 to pursue new information regarding Gates' role in the Iran-Contra affair.

The information stems from testimony before a CIA officer Alan Fiers, who pleaded guilty earlier this month to two misdemeanors in connection with the diversion of Iran arms sales profits to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

Fiers said he reported the diversion to three of his superiors, one of whom told him to withhold the information from Congress.

During some of that time, Gates was deputy director to William Casey, becoming acting director of the agency in December 1986 when the late CIA chief became too ill with a brain tumor to work. Gates served in that capacity until Webster became agency director in the spring of 1987.

Kerr, 55, became deputy CIA director when Bush named Gates as his deputy national security adviser in January 1989. It wasn't the first time he had followed in Gates' footsteps. Kerr became the head of the agency's intelligence analysis directorate in April 1986 when Gates was promoted to deputy CIA director.

He was named as a long-shot among potential candidates for the top agency job when Webster announced his retirement in May after four years at the helm.

Kerr hasn't escaped mention in the annals of the Iran-Contra scandal, either. Records show that a former CIA analyst, Charles Allen, told Kerr in August 1986 that he suspected Iran was being overcharged for the weapons it was buying from the United States and the profits were being used to arm the Contras.

Kerr told congressional investigators in 1987 that he passed Allen's concerns to Gates, who asked to be kept informed. Gates, according to the report of the congressional Iran-Contra committees, said he didn't remember the conversation with Kerr. Allen subsequently sought out Gates directly in October 1986 and passed on his suspicions, both were testified.

Kerr was born in Fort Smith, Ark., grew up on the West Coast, graduated from the University of Oregon, and joined the CIA in 1960 as a military analyst.

Like Gates, he has served as an analyst of Soviet affairs. He analyzed aerial reconnaissance photos during the Cuban missile crisis in 1962, was the CIA liaison with the U.S. Pacific Command and chaired the committee responsible for the requirements and uses of satellite imagery.

In 1976 he was named director of the office responsible for worldwide political analysis.
Subway operator admits drinking during work

NEW YORK (AP) — The operator of a speeding subway train said he had been drinking and was falling asleep at the controls just before the train derailed, killing five people, according to a court document released Thursday.

Robert Ray, 38, had a blood-alcohol level of 0.21 percent, twice the legal limit, according to tests taken about 13 hours after the accident. Tests showed no trace of drugs, police said.

Police had reported earlier that a vial of cocaine was found in the motorman's cab.

Ray was arraigned on five counts of second-degree manslaughter and was ordered held without bail.

The transport union representing him announced it will agree to random drug and alcohol testing in an effort to restore confidence among riders after the worst accident in 63 years in the nation's largest subway system.

The National Transportation Safety Board completed its on-site investigation Thursday but will not issue a final report for at least seven months, said Ken Lopatkiewicz, the board's spokesman.

Ray told police he had been drinking before work and was falling asleep as he operated the 10-car train, which crashed as it switched from the express to the local track at the Union Square station in lower Manhattan, according to the complaint that charged him with manslaughter.

At least 133 passengers of the approximately 500 people aboard the train were injured in Wednesday's accident, which sheared off part of the first car, folded the third car around a wall and derailed several other cars. An additional 126 people, including police and firefighters and other rescue workers, were treated at the scene.

Five late-night workers — two women and three men — were killed, police said.

The motorman told police he consumed alcohol prior to his operation of said train and was falling asleep as he operated the train prior to the crash, according to the complaint prepared by Detective William Beereem of the Police Department's Major Case Squad.

Ray also said the train was traveling about 35 to 45 mph when it crashed, according to the complaint. Steven Blakely, acting General Superintendent of the T&A's Rapid Transit Department, said the speed limit where the derailment occurred is 10 mph.

According to the police complaint, the train's conductor, David Beereem, told police Ray was operating the train at a speed "far in excess of a safe speed," when it made the track change and crashed.

Beereem also said Ray had been operating the train erratically before the crash, over-speeding two stations in the Bronx. At one, five cars went beyond the end of the platform; at another, one car did, the complaint said.

Immediately after the accident, Ray talked to two police officers but then left the subway tunnel. Authorities did not see him again until they picked him up at his apartment about 5 1/2 hours after the midnight accident.

Sonny Hall, president of Transport Workers Union Local 100, said his union was willing to accept random drug and alcohol testing to offset the "perception of substance abuse among transit workers."

He said he planned to propose testing to Metropolitan Transportation Authority head Peter Stangl at a meeting late Thursday.

"My members ... have no fear of drug and alcohol testing," he said.

Mayor David Dinkins praised the decision.

"It sure can't hurt and I think it could help a lot," he said.

"Whether it would have avoided this particular situation, obviously nobody knows."

The Transit Authority tests employees when they are hired, for any promotion, as part of their regular physical check-ups, and "whether an accident or any incident warrants it," said Bob Previdi, a transit spokesman.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans filing new claims for unemployment benefits fell slightly in mid-August, the government reported today.

For the week ending Aug. 17, there were 421,000 Americans filing first-time claims for help, down 9,000 from the previous week's mark of 430,000, the Labor Department said.

The 9,000-decrease, though not large enough to reverse the 22,000-spurt that had occurred the week before, at least stemmed recent increases in jobless claims.

The level of new jobless claimants can be extremely erratic from week to week and analysts hesitate to read too much into the number until the level moves in the same direction for three or four weeks in a row. However, the number is seen as a bit of fresh evidence for hiring practices across America.

Claims had risen for two straight weeks, so the 9,000-decline for the week ending Aug. 17 stops — or interrupts — that upward trend. Since hitting peaks of more than 500,000 in March, the level of new claims had fallen, for the most part, until June, when it began fluctuating between 400,000 and 430,000.

For the week ending Aug. 10, there were 3.3 million Americans actually claiming unemployment benefits, a decrease of 23,000 from the previous week, the Labor Department said.

Bush, Major discuss Soviet shakeup

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — The United States and Britain on Thursday for "totally guaranteed" safeguards on the Soviet Union's nuclear arsenal amid the Kremlin collapse and also pledged humanitarian assistance for the difficult days ahead.

President Bush said there had been no concern about "something going awry" in the conflation of last week's botched coup.

Nevertheless, he said the control of the weapons "needs to be sorted out, and I'm confident that everybody in the republics and everybody in the rester understands that the last thing that the world needs is some kind of a nuclear scare, say nothing of a nuclear confrontation."

British Prime Minister John Major, standing alongside Bush, said, "It is a matter that we'll want to address and discuss with the Soviets at an early stage, and of course, we can get positive answers and positive assurances, the happier we'll be."

The two leaders held talks at the presidency's beachfront hotel and going — unsuccessfully — to get a second-speed boat before holding a midday news conference outdoors under a bright sun.

Bush welcomed the news that the Soviet parliament had suspended the Communist Party, "I don't see any bad news in that at all. Rejoice! Cheers!"

The president also indicated he would put off until Monday official recognition of the Baltic states, hoping that Soviet lawmakers would grant independence by then.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said later that Bush's message was that the Soviet government should act by Monday or "we would have a decision of our own."

"We've urged the Soviet leadership not to stand against the will of the inevitable, the winds of this inevitable change. Clearly the Baltics will have their say." A Georgia system.

Agreeing on a go-slow approach to assistance, the Soviet Union, Bush and Maj. held back from any commitment of financial aid.

They said they would provide food credits, assess the need for additional food aid in the winter months and send "lifeline teams" to the Soviet Union to help create an efficient food production and distribution systems.

WASHINGTON (AP) — British Prime Minister John Major today listed the following six ways in which the West will aid the Soviet Union:

1. Extend existing food credits.
2. Assess the need for food aid this winter.
3. Send "lifeline" teams to the Soviet Union to provide assistance in establishing efficient food production and distribution systems.
4. Implement existing know-how programs on technical aid discussed by the G-7 group of industrialized nations and other bilateral programs.
5. Get the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank to become urgently involved in providing practical assistance in structural reform plans within the Soviet Union.
6. Push for associate membership soon in the IMF for the Soviet Union, with a view to full membership in the future.

Major said the Soviet leaders have not clearly renounced Russian territorial claims there, the Interfax news agency reported.

"There's been no concern about the fact that Kazakhstan is of special concern because Yeltsin has not clearly renounced Russian territorial claims there, the Interfax news agency reported."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Athletics can be positive learning experience

Dear Editor:

I think it is long past the time for sports fans, various alumni, athletes, coaches and the media to give more careful and complete evaluating the meaning and purpose of competitive sports activities in our college community.

Some people have suffered the loss of a livelihood, their reputation and their good name because of the web of suspicion and perhaps their innocent Involvement in administering competitive sports activity. Those who are guilty might have hadlessly tainted the reputation of their conferers by this web of suspicion, and every effort must and I know will be made to exonerate these honorable people.

More of us must take an active concern in maintaining the integrity of our college....

Gay and lesbian group should rise above petty tactics, name-calling and infrastructure to deal with the above mentioned reality of discrimination, albeit politely upper-middle class and Catholic.

If this first ad of the 91-92 academic year is a sample of the size, space, time and money they are going to be wasting speaks barbs and name calling both Student Affairs and Campus Ministry, then any reasonably anxious gay, lesbian or bisexual within the University community would do well to avoid the group.

In other words, they need to grow up, get their heads out of the clouds and endeavor to rise above the tactics of those people and agencies the group purportedly repudiates. I grow weary of their negative energies and pronouncements be-fouling my morning coffee.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED! You don’t hear that very often anymore, but thanks to a group of students here at Notre Dame it has been made possible once again.

According to Joe Cassidy, director of Student Affairs, these students, who have been very active in a variety of campus activities, felt that the Notre Dame/Saint Mary’s community was in need of an organization dedicated to sponsoring high-quality performers at reasonable prices—guaranteed to satisfy your expectations and more.

This group, Satisfaction Guaranteed, seeks out performers with the potential to “make it big,” before they get too expensive.

Satisfaction Guaranteed is working in conjunction with the Student Activities Board. With the students’ ideas and the Board’s funds, they are bound to provide great entertainment.

First up... Craig Karges in his show “The Magic of the Mind.” Captivating and intriguing, he is a mentalist and an ESP showman. A master of mind over matter and illusion, Karges stretches the potential of the human mind to amazing limits with no hocus pocus.

“Craig’s a great kickoff,” said Cassidy. “We only use 10 to 20 percent of our minds,” explained Karges. “Think of the capabilities that lie in that 80 to 90 percent of our unused minds.”

Craig Karges promises to captivate audiences this weekend as he masters the organization, Satisfaction Guaranteed.

Karges has fascinated audiences of all ages across the country.

Karges believes that “the most incredible, the most fascinating computer in the world... is your mind.” He may demonstrate the mind’s capabilities, but he dares you to reach for your full potential because it is only limited by your imagination.

He was awarded the Certified Speaking Professional (CSP) designation by the National Speakers Association, which has only been awarded to less than 10 percent of their membership.

Campus Activities (NACA) also nominated Karges “Campus Entertainer of the Year” and “Novelty/Variety Entertainer of the Year.”

Karges has fascinated audiences of all ages across the country.

Spring forward with SAB

By Anna Marie Tabor

Saint Mary’s Accent Editor

While the rest of South Bend elects to keep their clocks the same even when the seasons change, Saint Mary’s is scheduled to Fall Forward this weekend.

For this second annual event, the Student Activities Board (SAB) expanded the roster of activities that began with a picnic on Thursday and will end with Club Tuesday on appropriately, Tuesday.

Maureen Lowry, vice president of Student Affairs, said that there will be at least one event each day that will give students from both Saint Mary’s and Notre Dame an excuse to put the books aside.

“Everyone is so excited in the beginning of the year,” Lowry said regarding the timing of Fall Forward. “It will be nice to have things outside while it’s still warm.” The name of the weekend is a description to “kick off the year” with. Lowry said that SAB hopes the freshmen take advantage of this opportunity to meet new people and upperclassmen come to see old friends and get, or stay, involved.

Last year’s program was on a smaller scale and included a luau, which was “a hit!” Even though leis were tributed this was anticipating an anticipatory response to Dunes trip.

Students who to-five might not leave other. Favor a cream sundae~free deal.

“We (SAB) don’t want to come too big,” Lowry said. The framework before the first must kept in coni.

Karges is more than just an entertainer; he can prepare his presentation to fit any situation. He has been known to deliver everything from motivational shows to sales presentations. He insists that he does not prearrange anything. If you still don’t believe him, he has a $10,000 offer, payable to charity, if you can prove he uses stooges or confederates to accomplish his demonstrations.

All of the performers scheduled to appear as part of this series are promised to be as talented as Karges—Satisfaction Guaranteed!

Some of the other entertainers that have been scheduled are Tim Settimi and Lynn Trefzger.

Settimi is "a one-man vaudeville," and "a nut on wheels!" said Cassidy. He was awarded Top Entertainer on college campuses in 1988 and, according to Cassidy, "he is still going strong."

Trefzger is a ventriloquist and a comedian. Audience participation is one of her greatest assets, along with her ability to ad-lib during her self-written shows.

Entertainment at its best is what Satisfaction Guaranteed is looking for. You won’t be disappointed—that’s their guarantee!

Craig Karges will be performing this weekend, Saturday, August 31, and Sunday, September 1 at Washington Hall at 8:00 p.m. Dates of upcoming performances will be announced.
were many of them, were sitting opposite was thrown found me repulsive. But when I was amused and annoyed, but when the bus stopped suddenly to avoid damaging a nearby tree, and not being one to end at lunchtime, she was the young lady in the green hat.

Quick as a crash we all changed partners and soon the bus was aquiver with naughty things. And the next day and every day the bus was aquiver with naughty things. And the next day and every day in every bus in every street in every town in every country people pretended that the world was coming to an end at lunchtime. It still hasn't. Although in a way it has.

I like the poem for saying "what oft was thought, but never so well expressed," which is Alexander Pope's definition of wit. Using it is my way of telling you that I'm bored to death with solemn high Catholics who insist on calling the world to moral attention. Of the champions of Judaism the young lady in the green hat, to take even the Master of the Universe with a grain of salt at times when lie seems overbearing. Catholic education shouldn't be wasted on bright young scholars who have every thing going for them but a sense of humor, because chances are good that they'll grow up to be zealous pontificating publicly on faith and virtue.

I've been accused of being insensitive to the wounds which ruin lives when I tell people who attend Mass on a rainy day, "Go home and get out of your wet things, into a dry Martini." To tell the truth, I'm not insensitive to anything, especially if it's a bad habit. Like Toots Shor, feel sorry for people who don't drink. They know when they wake up in the morning, that's the best they are going to feel all day.

McGough's other best poem is titled "Let Me Die a Young Man's Death." Let me die a young man's death/not a clean & in beautiful kind of death/not a famous-last words/peaceful out of breath death.

When I'm 73% in constant good humor/may I be mown down at dawn/by a bright red sports car on my way home/from an all night party.

Or when I'm 91/with silver grown straight up in a barber's chair/parade my way among the sightseers & politicians of my time/surrounded by my friends.

Or when I'm 104/with silver hair on the pops and the pubs may my mistress/catching me in bed with her daughter & fearing for her son/cut me up into little pieces & throw away every piece but one.

Let me die a young man's death/from a free sin tintipo in/candle wax & waning death/not a curtains drawn by angels borne/what a nice way to go death.

I don't find the American way of death very appealing. If you wish to know why, look at the nursing homes. Faith promises us that in the sweet bye-and-bye, if not now, as an effective part of the worship of the Lord. I don't find the American way of death very appealing. If you wish to know why, look at the nursing homes. Faith promises us that in the sweet bye-and-bye, if not now, as an effective part of the worship of the Lord.

I don't want cheerleaders mashing the sick bed, smothering me with assurances that Jesus is resurrection and the Life; I hope to make my own act of faith.

The belief that the dead will rise again is usually arrived at after a struggle with darkness. Christian optimism isn't a form of grace under pressure that comes with the territory.

The consolations of religion shouldn't be used as a cosmetic, hiding the sadness of death. Dylan Thomas was right to tell his father: "Do not go gentle into that good night/Rage, rage against the dying of the light.

As Christians, we need space to make things out. That's why guidance counselors should be geese in our approach, like seeing-eye dogs.

Do wine make a bloke more? The top of the bottle goes down hill fast. Golden girls, and the lads that drink with them, should figure that out from experience, with a little help from their friends.

As a religious, aged 65, I know the songs of love are not for me; and I have no regrets. I'm young enough to remember that a thing of beauty can be a joy until morning; and old enough to have compassion on the youngsters who haven't discovered that there will be a tomorrow, and when it comes, it could find them feeling shaibly, like the hotel room they wake up in.

But those of us who defend rules should trend lightly when we intrude on other people's freedom, like angels and ministers offering the divine assistance.

Catholic education used to mean that students were brain-washed in Catholic ways that would help them save their souls. Shouldn't they be taught to see truth as though it were the light at the end of the road leading them home, no matter how often they have left the reservation.

Some of the announcements I see posted—if seminars on date rape, Alcoholism, drug use, and AIDS-prevention—ought to be banned. In my day, we were just warned that eating meat on Friday, missing Mass on Sunday, bad thoughts and actions, alone or with another, and mixed marriage would put our mortal souls in danger.

How can the gurus of the brave new world deliver their grim warnings, without making students feel that they are more brain-washed as Catholics than their parents were?
NEW YORK (AP) — It is all so easy, so simple, so U.S., so Open, and so all for him that Pete Sampras prefers to play tennis, not talk about it.

He gave him fortune without fame, respect without responsibility, and he be happy to hit tennis balls forever.

Sampras, a remarkable 20, is caught between his desires and he's need, wanting to make the U.S. Open "his home away from home" as Boris Becker has done with Wimbledon, feeling he must escape the inevitable celebrity.

He ran away to stranded himself on the court to reach the third round Thursday, then be uncomfortable talking about it, as if every question were a volley.

On a day when fans and players were collapsing in the heat and humidity, Sampras breezed in the shade of the grandstand.

And Andre Agassi, his closest rival, quit with a sprained ankle. andre Agassi, 21, 2-2.

The abbreviated match lasted about as long as Sampras' first-round, a straight-set victory, for the title again. His 125-mph serves are kissing them as they did a year ago, his volleys are crisp and his legs don't betray him the way they did after the year after his victory here.

"My game is as high as it has been in a long time," Sampras said.

Sampras is playing probably better than he could have played in the first two sets today.

He was coming in after winning two tournaments during the summer following many months of preparation and practice.

The first few months winning the Open last year, he said, were "just utter chaos" as he be exhibited from exhibition to exhibition, talk show to talk show and interview and re-ception after another.

"Maybe it was my fault," he said. "Maybe I didn't control the situation this year and I should have. But you live and learn about these things. If I had to do it differently, I don't think I would have done the same things and talk shows, which I was committed to. I would have let my play do the talking and let it sink in.

"I don't expect doing talk shows. I was a little nervous when I went to see Johnny Carson. But I'll have a tape to show the grandkids. I don't like to be looked after, I don't like to be looked at. I don't like to be famous.

Yet, he is caught in a contradiction of the media capitals of the world, insisting that he wouldn't trade the U.S. Open my home away from home. You know, like they talk about Becker at Centre Court at Wimbledon being his home. This is a good tournament to me to be my home.

Becker wouldn't mind making the Open his second home.

He won here in 1989 and is looking forward to reaching the third round with a 6-7, 7-6, 6-1 victory over Alexander Volkov.

Volkov upset Stefan Edberg in the first round last year, but couldn't cope with Becker's power or quickness to the net.

"I could sense after I won the tiebreaker that the match was over," Volkov told. "In truth, it looked as if Volkov just quit trying in the final set, either because of Becker or the heat, or both.

Ferreira was one of four players who quit in midmatch for Becker's reasons. Courtside temperatures over 100 degrees took a toll on Sweden's Christian Bergstrom, who re- tired because of heat exhaustion, and Infante against France's Arnaud Boetsch.

Aaron Krickstein, who upset Andre Agassi in the first round, reached the third round when Jaime Yzaga suffered a strained right knee while losing 1-6, 3-6, 1-3, 2-6.

Bubka, Foster win gold medals at World Championships

TOKYO (AP) — Sergei Bubka didn't know if he could win, and Greg Foster didn't know if he did win.

But with one last leap and one last shot, both had gone for the gold in the final heat for the third straight time at the World Track and Field Championships.

Foster edged Jack Pierce in the 400-meter hurdles Thursday on a withering wind, while an ailing Bubka of the Soviet Union soared 19 feet, 6 1/4 inches for a dramatic victory in the pole vault.

It was a bittersweet day for the Americans, though.

— Antonio Pettigrew won the 400 meters.

— Carl Lewis prepped for Friday's long jump final with the best mark ever in training.

— Mike Powell, who beat Lewis 16 months ago by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, didn't know if he could win, and he did win.

The Athletics Congress, the sport's governing body in the United States, for minor championships, the ban is three months.

Pettigrew, a senior at St. Augustine's College in Raleigh, N.C., and the 1989 and 1991 outdoor national champion, won the biggest victory of his career in the 400 meters Thursday. Pettigrew is well ahead of Britain's Roger Black and American Danny Everett. He lowered the world-record mark of the 100-meter dash in a world-record time of 10.05 seconds.

Foster, who lowered seven gold medals in seven world championships, served notice that he was on target for another gold by winning the 400 hurdles Thursday. The previous qualifying jump was 52-7/4 by Randy Williams at the 1972 Olympics.

"Technically, I'm as good as I've ever been," Lewis said. "I'm not asking for no question that I'm ready "

It was ready to break another record — Bob Beamont's 29-2 1/2.

FRANKLIN, Wis. (AP) — Bob Beaumont, who used an eagle and two birdies in his final four holes to set an opening-round record 61 and build a two-stroke lead Thursday at the Greater Milwaukee Open.

Bubka, 33, a third-year pro from Las Vegas, was 4-under after 11 holes but birdied his next three and then went 9-under with an eagle 3 on the 524-yard No. 6 hole at Oakwood Country Club.

After birdies on the next two holes moved him 11 under, he parred the final four to break the new opening-round mark of 64 set by John Daly in 1987 and tie the course record of Ken Green in the third round of the 1988 BMW Classic.

Mark Brooks and Karl Kimmel tied for second at 13-under 63.

"I hit a really good second shot," Brooks said after his drive found the rough and changed the attitude, if nothing else, "but I've been pretty easy to take a number. I can't say I've played out for a par 5 on the hole."

He said the only time he struggled at the first hole was when he birdied No. 7, settled for a birdie on the par 5 on the hole.

"I hit a real good 3-iron shot 15 feet from the hole on the par-5, and added seven birdies on the par-72, 7,030-yard course.

Kimmel birdied seven of his nine holes to gain a share of second place.

Jeff Maggert, Hal Sutton, Joel Edwards and David Sutherland were bunched at 65. Edwards for making a hole-in-one on the par 3-197-yard No. 8.

From his role as the Miami Hurricanes' starting quarterback, Bernie Torretta was going to be the leader. And I'm going to lead, he declared.

"With you aren't concentrating as much as I should have," Torretta said. "I think I showed 'em two years ago that I'm the kind of game plan we're going to have." Despite its high ranking, Miami has only four returning starters on offense and six on defense, plus two others with some starting experience.

Arkansas' quarterback will be Gary Adams, who has attempted 15 passes in two years as the backup for Quinn Grovey. Jason Allen was supposed to push Adams this fall, but he has been on the sidelines since he hurt his hand on the first day of practice.

Adams was recruited as an option quarterback when Ken Hallfield was still Arkansas coach. Preston threw for 950 yards in a run-oriented offense at Mount Vernon, Texas.

"This is their opportunity to come out of the chute and beat a team that's ranked third in the country, get that tradition back and get things going in the right direction," said Miami coach Dennis Erickson, whose team is a three-touchdown favorite.

Torettoready to lead Hurricanes.

Coral Gables, Fla. (AP) — Gino Torretta can sound humble and cocky in the same breath as he becomes accustomed to his role as the Miami Hurricanes' starting quarterback.

"I'm only one person of 11 on the offensive team," Torretta said. "But I'm going to be the leader. And I'm going to lead the offense to touchdowns and wins."

The fourth-year junior from Pinole, Calif., won the starting job last week when coach Dennis Erickson gave him the nod over third-year sophomore Bryan Fortay, who then quit the team in practice, and Torretta admitted he couldn't have played a lot better," he said.

"I think I showed 'em two years ago that I have the tools," he said. "And I think I'm going to show it this year."

But with Fortay gone, second-guessing will be more intense if Torretta fails. The new backup in a second-year freshman, Frank Costa. Fortay felt he was the best quarterback in practice, and Torretta admitted he hasn't thrown the ball well this month. In an interview, he confessed of his 44 passes for 185 yards with one touchdown and four interceptions. "But I've played a lot better," he said. "With two-a-days you get tired of being tired. You get that kind of concentration as much as I should have."

"As soon as the season starts, I think everything will come back. I'm ready to play. I'm pretty anxious to get out there and get this over with." Erickson offered another reason for Torretta's recent passing problems: a blister on the index finger of his throwing hand.

Ron Bennett caught a 4-yard pass from Weldon and ran 3 yards for another score.

On BYU's first three possessions, Detmer was 2-for-5, had one interception and was sacked for a 16-yard loss. But he regrouped in the second quarter and his 33-yard pass to Micah Maslowikeyed in on a 6-yard pass from Detmer to Eric Turral, followed by Matt Fritz's reception for a two-point conversion, and Lee's 5-yard run.

BYU narrowed the deficit to 14 points on a 10-play, 92-yard drive that ended with Tuipuloto's 21-yard TD run to make it 13-7 with 14:28 left in the half.

But the Seminoles answered with scores on their next two possessions, on a 6-yard pass from Weldon to Eric Turral, followed by Matt Fritz's reception for a two-point conversion, and Lee's 5-yard run.

The Seminoles became the first winner of the Pigskin Classic after Colorado and Tennessee played to a 31-31 tie in the inaugural game.

Florida State won its seventh straight game dating back to last season. The Seminoles' last loss was to No. 3 Miami on Oct. 20.

The Arkansas Razorbacks, coming off their worst season in 38 years, aren't interested in moral victories when they play host to No. 3 Miami on Saturday.

Coach Jack Crow said it's not his intention to throw up the ball, kick it down the field, cover up the ball. That's not the kind of game plan we're going to have. "That's not the kind of defensive game plan we're going to have."

Arkansas, whose 3-5 record last season was its worst since the 2-8 mark of 1952, faces a team that is 55-5 the last five years, a span in which the Hurricanes finished no lower than third in the Associated Press poll.

"If they're going to try to come out of the chute and beat a team that's ranked third in the country, get that tradition back and get things going in the right direction," said Miami coach Dennis Erickson, whose team is a three-touchdown favorite.

Jason Allen was supposed to push Adams this fall, but he has been on the sidelines since he hurt his hand on the first day of practice.

Adams was recruited as an option quarterback when Ken Hallfield was still Arkansas coach. Preston threw for 950 yards in a run-oriented offense at Mount Vernon, Texas.

"This is their opportunity to come out of the chute and beat a team that's ranked third in the country, get that tradition back and get things going in the right direction," said Miami coach Dennis Erickson, whose team is a three-touchdown favorite.

Despite its high ranking, Miami has only four returning starters on offense and six on defense, plus two others with some starting experience.

Braves take step toward division title; Pirates extend lead to five in East race

Look who's No. 1 in the NL West.

Atlanta caught Los Angeles on Tuesday and waved good-bye to the Dodgers on Wednesday by taking a one-game lead. The Braves are trying to go from last place to first in the span of a year.

"Back when the Braves had a little dry spell, people were saying reality had set in," Mets manager Bud Harrelson said. "No one's saying that now."

Tom Glavine pitched a four-hitter to beat New York 3-1 and become the major leagues' first 17-game winner.

Glavine (17-8), pitching with a heavily-taped right ankle which he sprained in his last start, struck out four and walked one for his eighth complete game. "I'm starting to feel real comfortable again," said Glavine, the leading candidate for the NL Cy Young Award. "I can't say I'm not going to struggle again this year, but I feel a lot more confident again, like I did before the All-Star break."

The Braves have won six of eight and have an NL-best 31-16 record since the All-Star break.

Pirates 6, Dodgers 4

Bobby Bonilla drew a one-out walk with the bases loaded to force in the go-ahead run in the ninth inning as Pittsburgh beat Los Angeles at Dodger Stadium to take a five-game lead over St. Louis in the East.

Padres 2, Cardinals 1

Fred McGriff snapped a tie with a ninth-inning sacrifice fly and Bruce Hurst won his 15th game as visiting San Diego ended St. Louis' five-game winning streak. The Padres have won four of their last five.

Reds 11, Expo 3

Tom Browning (13-8) prevailed in a rare matchup of perfect-game pitchers as Cincinnati pounded Dennis Martinez (12-9) for five runs in three innings and took control of the National League Central at Riverfront Stadium.

Cubs 8, Giants 6

Chico Walker hit the NL's first inside-the-park grand slam since 1965, and Chicago held on to beat San Francisco at Candlestick Park. The Giants have lost four straight games.

Phillies 11, Astros 10

Charlie Hayes, who hit a grand slam in the first inning, capped a three-run rally in the 10th with an RBI single off Al Osuna (7-4) as Philadelphia outlasted Houston for its 16th straight home victory.

Tyson might face grand jury investigation over alleged rape of pageant contestant

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Mike Tyson may appear this week before a grand jury investigating an allegation he raped a beauty pageant contestant last month, according to a published report.

A judge approved a motion Wednesday, letting Tyson's lawyer in Washington D.C., Vincent J. Fuller, represent the boxer during legal proceedings here, The Indianapolis Star said in today's editions.

It also said that a source said a person close to the investigation confirmed Tyson would testify before the grand jury, which is to meet again Friday.

An 18-year-old woman who competed last month in the Miss Black America Pageant in Indianapolis told police Tyson raped her July 25 at a room at the Canterbury Hotel, where Tyson was staying as a guest of Indiana Black Expo.

The Star reported that James H. Voyles, Tyson's Indianapolis attorney, said Wednesday he didn't know if his client would appear before the jury.

"I have no idea, I really don't know," Voyles said. "That's a decision for Fuller to make."

No charges have been filed against Tyson, who has denied the accusation.

The special Marion County grand jury of three women and three men began investigating Aug. 13.

David J. Dreyer, chief counsel for Prosecutor Jeffrey Modisett, has said he hoped the investigation would be completed by Labor Day.

The jury, meeting for a third day, heard testimony from contestants in the pageant and also from the Rev. Charles Williams, president of the Indiana Black Expo.

Under Indiana law, testimony before grand juries is confidential.

Prosecutors have said that Tyson was subpoenaed to testify, but as the target of the investigation, is not obligated to appear.

No motion to quash the subpoena has been filed with the court to which the grand jury will report. That motion, if filed, can be automatically granted by judges for those who are targets of investigations.

Judge Patricia J. Gifford approved the motion for Fuller to be an attorney of record in Tyson's case, Voyles said.

Because Fuller is not an accredited Indiana lawyer, he needed a judge's permission to practice here.

Williams confirmed he answered questions for about two hours, but he cannot publicly reveal what he said.

More than 16 people have testified, either on Wednesday, or Aug. 16 or 23.

While DiLucia’s summer results were phenomenal, doubles partner Coleman caught a spark after summer school as well, winning the U.S. Collegiate Davis Cup in New York over Georgia’s Bobby Martinchek, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1. Coleman’s next stop was at the USTA National Amateurs, where he lost in the semi-finals to Marco Carapao, 3-6, 7-6, 6-3.

Coleman also took summer classes and spent much of his time in the weight room, which had been a rarity.

“Lifting helped me out more than anything else,” said Coleman. “It’s something I should’ve been working on awhile, so it was good to see that it paid off.”

The top-notch play of the DiLucia-Coleman duo should pay off as the Irish go for their second straight trip to the NCAA’s.

real competitive match.

“It’s good that we have such a difficult schedule. We have high expectations, and we want to become a Top 20 program, and the only way to get there is to play the best teams.”

And for the Irish to win on Saturday, they will have to continue to show progress in two major facets of the game: power and defense.

“Our effort and our pursuist (on defense) have been pretty good, but we need to become more comfortable with our skills and going to the floor to play balls than where we are right now,” Brown said.

But for now, the road back to the NCAA’s begins Saturday night at the Joyce ACC.

“Our ultimate goal is to get a bid, and I think that’s realistic, but difficult goal,” said Brown. “It’s not going to be something that’ll just happen. We’re going to have to work pretty hard to attain that goal.”

Baltimore storm rising

Baltimore — Best-selling author Tom Clancy is considering trying his hand at writing a new chapter in Baltimore professional football lore.

Clancy, author of the “The Hunt for Red October” and current New York Times No. 1 best-seller “The Sum of All Fears,” is considering applying for ownership of a prospective NFL expansion team in Baltimore, according to his attorney, David Cohan.

Cohan is examining the cost of owning an expansion franchise before making a definitive statement. Cohan said. He’s not seeking to align himself with any other group seeking an expansion team.

Clancy, a 44-year-old Baltimore native, lives in Prince Frederick in Calvert County.

High schooler an ace with coach’s clubs

WATERTOWN, S.D. — Watertown high school golf coach Mike Riess might have a difficult time convincing 16-year-old junior Barry Poppen to return his clubs.

Poppen, using the clubs he borrowed from Riess, recorded two holes-in-one in three days.

“He says he wants them back,” Poppen said. “I’ve kept using them because I’ve been hitting the ball well with them.”

He aced the 165-yard fourth hole of the Benson Golf Club in Omaha, Neb., on Saturday with a 6-iron and followed it Monday with an ace on the 121-yard fifth hole of the Watertown Country Club with a 9-iron.

Jets establish Lyons award

HAMPSTEAD, N.Y. — The New York Jets will establish an award in the name of Marty Lyons, their longtime defensive end who retired after last season.

The award will be given annually to the Jets player whose ideals emulate those of Lyons. Lyons, who established the Marty Lyons Foundation in 1990, died on Oct. 12, 1990, at 27.

The award will honor Lyons for his integrity, professionalism and dedication to the New York Jets and the greater community.

The award will be presented annually to the player who best exemplifies Lyons’ values of leadership, teamwork, hard work, dedication and community service.

Lyons was an offensive tackle at the University of South Dakota and was drafted by the Jets in 1988.

He played nine seasons with the Jets, making four Pro Bowls and two All-Pro teams.

He was also named the NFL’s defending player of the year in 1990.

His philanthropic efforts included the establishment of the Marty Lyons Foundation, which has raised millions of dollars for various causes.

The foundation’s mission is to provide educational opportunities and resources to underprivileged children and to support local community initiatives.

The award will be announced on the night of Lyons’ birthday, Sept. 17.

Although the Notre Dame men's tennis team's season ended in the spring with a spot in the NCAA tournament, the wins kept coming in the fall during the summer. Though not competing for the Irish the past months, the summer performances of three-time AllAmerican and senior Chuck Coleman should greatly improve the team outlook.

After reaching All-American status last fall for the first time as many years during last spring's NCAA men's tennis tournament, DiLucia faced an unfortunate summer. He could have joined the Association of Tennis Players (ATP) tour and try to earn enough points to gain a qualifying position at the U.S. Open in Flushing Meadow, New York, as the Irish host the singles finals before falling to Mexico's Luis Herrera, 6-3, 6-2. But DiLucia was only halfway through—he later teamed with professional Pam Shriver to bring home the gold medal in mixed doubles.

While Bayliss liked what he saw in DiLucia in Havana, he was concerned that the United States Tennis Association (USTA) would view DiLucia's decision to join the summer circuit as a setback to his game.

"I was concerned that the USTA hierarchy might think that tennis wasn't important to Dave," said Bayliss. "But he saw what he's capable of by what he did down there, and I really think his Pan Am performance earned him a spot in the quarters at the U.S. Open.

The qualifying positions normally go to other touring professionals who have earned a minimum number of ATP points. But the Irish invited DiLucia over many paces. A rotator cuff injury in his second qualifying match cut his stint short at the Open and has forced DiLucia to sit without hitting since his return.

Brown deputes as volleyball coach in season opener

For first-year volleyball head coach Bill Brown, the honeymoon is just about over. The Notre Dame volleyball team finished its season at 7:30 p.m. with an exhibition match against a squad comprised of Notre Dame alums. The season officially began at 7:30 p.m. as the Irish host Purdue.

Ever since Brown was hired last December, all the talk surrounding the program has focused on the new coach and how she, as well as assistant Steve Dyer and veteran Jeff Becker, has brought calm to a situation that was quite the opposite earlier this season.

"I can't imagine a better coach," said junior co-captain Alicia Turner. "There's a positive attitude in the team and a lot of unity. We all look forward to what Bill brings.

"I think the mental aspect of the game is a big part of volleyball. We have been trying to focus on that for the entire season. Bill has been able to display much enthusiasm on both sides of the floor. He has a great defense, he passes very well, and I imagine that I'll find a way every game to have her in there.

"He also is going to be a key player for us. The setting role is a critical one, and we're going to rely on her heavily to do a good job, and I have a lot of confidence in her for us.

A setback for our Notre Dame occurred Wednesday, however, as senior Jennifer Sloro went out in practice with a knee injury. At first while appearing serious, doctors have told Brown that surgery will not be necessary and that Sloro should be back within two to three weeks.

"Obviously this is a disappointment, but this is a resilient team, and I'm sure it will respond to this adversity in a positive way," Brown said.

While Sloro's injury will not affect the Irish greatly in Friday's exhibition, they certainly could have used her against the Bellarmine.

Purdue finished 21-11 last season, was ranked 20th in the final coaches' poll and reached the NCAA tournament for the first time since 1987. Two of its top returnees are senior Sarah Hopkins (2.59 kills, 218 digs) and junior Jill Mihalic (2.7 kills) who shared the team's Most Improved Player award.

Purdue is one of 12 matches Notre Dame faces in 1991 against NCAA tournament teams from a year ago.

"It's nice to have the alumni match first because we can get the pre-season jitters out in a low-pressure situation," Brown said. "But, I like opening with a football ticket sale information

When the Fighting Irish take the court this fall, the posters from Indiana University to open the 1991 season, one question will be on the mind of Irish fans—How good is the depth?

One area that will be under scrutiny is the Irish linebackers. The Irish have lost six linebackers since last season: four to graduation and two transfers.

The lone returning starter is inside linebacker Demetrius DuBoise. His partner is Jim Flanigan, a sophomore, earned the starting spot last year and this year in fall practice. The starting job was taken by senior Devon McDonald. He will be complemented on the other side by Anthony Petron, who was challenged during the season by Karmeeleyah McGill, a versatile player who moves from defense to offense and defense, depending on where he is needed.

The Irish linebackers are young, so they have spent much of their time working on their defensive assignments
