Senator Bradley addresses U.S. domestic issues

Sweeping changes in international policies present both new possibilities and challenges concerning domestic issues in the United States, said Sen. Bill Bradley (III-N.J.) in a visit to Notre Dame Friday. "I think it is up to us to move this country forward to address the demands that are presented by these new possibilities," Bradley said. He addressed the role of the public sector in dealing with recent political upheaval in his lecture, "America's Challenge in the Post-Communist World," part of the Business Advisory Council's Colloquium on "The Challenge ways been about the future."

In a poll conducted in New Jersey in July, 50% of the respondents said that they believe that today's children will have a lower standard of living than their parents, said Bradley. America needs to change in its perspective, he added.

"If we are serious about improving the lives of families, public policy has to go beyond trying to get by," Bradley said. "We need to increase the national savings rate and get serious about cutting our budget," he explained.

Bradley said that he also supports changes in tax policy, health care policy, and the implementation of a policy to allow voluntary pension donations to certain public programs. These programs include Headstart, The Women's, Infant, Children's Health Program, and The Child/Maternal Health Program.

"We need to face up to some of the demands that we have," Bradley said. "We should be able to do this without increasing our debt, but we need to utilize the tax code to help the company the helicopters."

Croatian officials said the cease-fire was based on this deal. The cease-fire was announced a day after Croatia twice made offers to end the bloodshed and prevent further offensives. Croatia President Franjo Tudjman proclaimed the truce he struck with Federal Defense Minister Veljko Vujnovic a victory for his republic. "The army finally saw that even with stronger forces, they could not break our resistance," Tudjman declared in a radio interview.

Croatian and Yugoslav army declare cease-fire

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia — The federal defense minister and Croatia declared a cease-fire Sunday, and reports suggested that the fierce fighting in the breakaway republic was easing at least temporarily.

Earlier, federal air and artillery attacks overlapped a 3 p.m. (9 a.m. EDT) deadline for a halt to the fighting, raising doubts about whether officials would be able to rein in the warring factions.

Previous cease-fires have failed in the Adriatic port city of Split, Pula, Rijeka and Dubrovnik, federal officials to the Eurocepter in fighting also over the army. Later in the day, the sides accused each other of numerous cease-fire violations.

However, Croatian defense officials in the Adriatic port city of Split, Pula, Rijeka and Dubrovnik reported that federal naval blockades imposed along the Croatian coast last week were being lifted.

Officials in the Croatian capital of Zagreb also ended the nightly black-out imposed last week in response to international threats.

A lull in fighting also was reported in Osijek, a battered city in eastern Croatia.

ND Security issues theft warning

By MICHAEL SCHOLL

Notre Dame Security Police is advising students to take greater precautions against theft after six dorm rooms were burglarized last week.

Three dorm rooms in Flanner Hall were burglarized on September 18. One room each in Knoll Hall and Grace Hall suffered burglaries on September 18. Another room in Grace Hall was burglarized on September 16.

The list of property reported stolen includes small but valuable items such as watches, coins and jewelry.

Chuck Hurley, assistant director of Security, said the doors to all of the burglarized rooms were unlocked when the crimes took place.

"One of the victims left his door open for five minutes while he took a shower," Hurley said. "When he came back, his wallet was gone."

Hurley strongly suggests that dorm residents lock their doors when they leave, as well as leaving their rooms unattended, even if they are only to be unattended for a short time.

No suspects have been arrested in connection with any of the six cases.

Iraq will permit arms inspection

UNITED NATIONS (AP) - A top Iraqi envoy Wednesday with United Nations Security Council president and said Baghdad will permit arms inspections by helicopters, but Western diplomats said the response fell short of demands.

The Security Council had ordered Iraq to permit unhindered flights or face unspecified consequences. President Bush earlier warned that if Iraq refused, "the skies will be closed." A sky force would send warplanes to accompany U.N. inspectors, but there would be "no ultimatum" to Saddam Hussein, a White House official who spoke on condition of anonymity.

A high-level U.S. official at the United Nations, also speaking anonymously, said the Iraqi response "fell far short of what the Security Council required." The official at the United Nations said the Iraqis failed to give a written response demanded by the Security Council, but would not elaborate.

Iraq Foreign Minister Ahmad Husseine met with Council President Jean-Hernard Merimee for 40 minutes, but neither would discuss specifics of the Iraqi response to U.N. demands for unconditional acceptance of the inspections.

Asked afterward about the flights, Hussein told reporters, "Yes, of course they can use helicopters." But Iraq has said that before, and has agreed to U.N. flights in principle while imposing conditions unacceptable to the Council. Those include a ban on photography, flights over Baghdad, a demand that Iraqi crews be aboard and that time limits be placed on inspections. Previously, Iraq would allow only flights on Iraqi helicopters by its pilots.

Merimee, the U.N. ambassador from France and current Council president, told reporters, "I cannot comment."

"I think what is missing at this university is that we aren't inspiring our young to participate in the intellectual activity in the cause they are Catholic," O'Meara said in his lecture titled, "Notre Dame and Catholic Education in the U.S." Desire to find prosperous jobs is a motivation for most students, rather than desire to learn, he said.

O'Meara emphasized the importance of engaging in questions of faith and society and integrating the kind of thought which he believes is key to students into the Catholic faith. "We can't continue to keep ourselves in a vacuum," he said. Catholic education must be responsive to new challenges," he said, "but not without the Catholic identity, according to O'Meara.

O'Meara said moral development of the young is high on Catholic values but has been the goal of Catholic education for the past 100
Student safety is an ongoing concern

Since the Notre Dame student body returned to campus almost a month ago, all of the changes that the university has been making over the summer and are continuing to make are becoming evident.

First, there were the multi-directional crosswalks across the JACC. Then there were the Sesquicentennial logos on the endzones. And, of course, there is the ever changing state of development on the new DeBartolo Quad.

One thing that has yet to change is the status of the call box on the Moreau Seminary side of Saint Joseph's lake. The casual lake walker has probably noticed that the only thing different about the call box is the amount of rust collecting on the call box itself. At one time, it bore the red sign saying "EMERGENCY CALL BOX." The words "Out Of Service" have remained stuck there at least since school began and probably longer.

The lakes on Notre Dame's campus are no part of the Notre Dame tradition as football, green plaid and the fight song. Lakes are one of the least safe areas of campus, even in the light of day. In fact, the Notre Dame tradition is one of the least safe areas of campus, even in the light of day.

In the past, students felt as if Notre Dame Security was being responsible for their concerns and that they were working to keep students safe at Notre Dame. This is all gone. As with anything, however, that the lakes are one of the least safe areas of campus, even in the light of day.

What can be done about this? First of all, Notre Dame Security can fix the call box. An obvious fix. But where does it start.

Although Notre Dame Security is there to protect the students as well as they can from harm. Ultimately, personal security is an issue with which each student must deal.

As for you about students who have a vested interest in having the call boxes in working order. The next person who needs to use the "Out of Service" call box could be you, your roommate or one of your friends.

Panel calls for increased private sector involvement in education

By JONATHAN HELWIG
News Writer

Increased and more focused involvement of the private sector in America's education system is necessary if the quality of schooling is to improve, according to a panel of businesspeople on Thursday at Notre Dame's Center for Continuing Education.

The panel discussion was part of the Business Advisory Council colloquium, "The Challenge of Education: The Role of the Private Sector." Participants in the discussion were Robert Dilenschneider, president and CEO of the international relations firm Hill and Knowlton, Inc.; J. Douglas Holaday, president of One-to-One Foundation; and John Brogan, chairman of the investment group Brogan Company.

High school graduates do not have the basic skills to function in the workplace, according to James O'Rourke, a ND alumnus who moderated the discussion. The U.S. outspends all industrial nations on education, yet is outperformed by most, he said.

O'Rourke cited a recent aptitude test on which average high school seniors finished behind students from industrialized nations in biology and chemistry as an example of America's education problem.

The problem must be faced on the most fundamental level through education reform, according to Keller. An example of this type of involvement is the One-to-One Foundation, established in 1989. The foundation pairs businessmen in Washington, D.C. with inner-city children to provide guidance, support and to help solve urban problems.

"Companies are beginning to understand they have a commitment to young people of this country," he said.

Although thousands of U.S. leaders and corporations are donating money to fight the education problem, Dilenschneider said the drive for improvement is unfocused.

A recent survey of 400 AllState insurance companies showed that money was dispersed among high schools, elementary schools, and private schools with no focus," Dilenschneider said, "some even give to too many causes without focusing on in a single area."

The education of each American child ultimately depends upon the commitment of parents, teachers, and local communities, according to Brogan.

"No matter how much state and federal money is given, it's not good enough until it comes down to you and me," he said.

Duke business school U.S. students must confront globalization of market

By CHRIS HALL
News Writer

The three most important issues American business students must confront are the current global environment of the business world, the globalization of today's market, and the partnerships between students, the colleges they attend and the companies they will work for, said Tom Keller, dean of Duke University's Fuqua School of Business, in a lecture Friday.

A major factor underlying the attitude of the general business environment is the ranking of American business schools, said Keller. "More people in the last year bought the issue of Business Week that ranked business schools than Sports Illustrated's Swimming issue," Keller said.

Graduate programs strive for those top ten positions, attempting to attract the best students from both under- and graduate programs and companies who wish to send their working executives back to school.

At the core of modern business issues is the globalization of international markets, said Keller.

American students need to become better acquainted with the cultures and the rules of other competing countries, he said. Even if an American business person does not wish to explore the markets of other countries, that person must be prepared for foreign competitors pursuing an American market.

Global competition means that Americans must find ways to maintain an advantage over foreign counterparts, said Keller. This would include learning the cultures of competing countries and developing better technology.

Another important step in meeting the challenges of the business community is establishing good partnerships between corporations, consumers, and the academic world, according to Keller.

In order to graduate in today's market, Americans must develop stronger partnerships and rise to meet the requirements of the new partners, said Keller. For example, students want substantive and supportive education. In turn, the faculty expects motivation, commitment, and responsibility from the students.

Businesses want intelligent and motivated graduates, while the businesses themselves are exploring ways to put their executives through school, and provide financial and academic support for such endeavors.

Following Dean Keller's presentation was a follow-up speech made by Jack Keane, director of Notre Dame's Business School. He expounded upon Keller's opinions and discussed what Notre Dame's Business School is doing to prepare its students for the future.

Keane mentioned the program being made on the new business building. Recently, the Business Department obtained the permission to add a 5,000 seat Performing Arts building. Construction of the new building will begin immediately following the conclusion of the Performing Arts building.

The Business School was also recently endowed with $500,000, which will go to an endowment fund that is to be used by students, said Keane. The fund will help students become more familiar with the stock market by allowing them to actually invest money.

Keane also stated that the last academic year was the best year Notre Dame had for hiring professors.

In response to the constant expansion of the international market, Notre Dame has been working on creating more international exchanges. Notre Dame's Australia program is developing very well. There has also been a great deal of discussion regarding the possibility of having a program in Ireland.

There is an MBA program in London, currently enrolling thirty students.

Recently published is the first book on Notre Dame's School of Business called "O'Hara's Heir 1921-1991." Keller's and Keane's lectures were part of the colloquium "A Challenge to Education," sponsored by the College of Business Administration.

he said. "Public spending should be primarily on those things that will enhance our future, not merely gratify our present desire to see Notre Dame prosper." He added a long list of domestic programs that he felt are no longer needed.

Future revision of the Soviet Union's defense budget, was pending economic reform makes inevitable, will allow the U.S. to cut its own defense budget, said Bradley. "In dollar figures, it would be relatively easy to cut $80-$90 billion in defense without affecting our flexibility to fight on two fronts," said Bradley. "We now spend $315 billion preparing for the USSR to invade Europe by land and that is just not going to happen."

Yet, Bradley warned that democracy is far from guaranteed in the Soviet Union. Even with large cuts in defense spending, the U.S. would still be able to fight, he said.

O'Meara's answer a question from the audience, Bradley called upon guarantees to his soldiers, interested in funding housing for immigrants Jews, a moral issue. He said the loans are "a small cost for a pressing problem," he explained.

The Bush administration has said that it will support their loan guarantees, but not immediately because of logistical reasons related to the upcoming Middle East peace conference, Bradley said. Bradley also predicted that the Arab-Israeli peace conference will break down into bilateral discussions. "The process is important, but it will be long and toruous," he said.

Domestic race-related issues were also addressed by Bradley, who said that they are issues of self-interest and values. Most people put racial issues in terms of liberal or conservative, he explained. "We cannot compete in the world with an increasing unskilled labor force," said Bradley. "If we are going to lead by example, we can't lead with race politics," he added.

Bradley does not plan to run for president in the next election, he said. He indicated that he might consider it someday, however. "I have just been through a tough election which had a sobering impact on me," he said. "I am learning to trust my intuitions, letting what is inside of me come out." This means that he will now talk about what he knows and what he feels, said Bradley. He will do this at risk of error, even if it means taking an opposing position to his party on an issue, he said.

In response to questions about whether Notre Dame has become perhaps the center of a "Catholic" university in recent years, O'Meara said that society as a whole is changing.

He said that Notre Dame is still very much a Catholic university and cited the opening of the 17,000-member mass of the Sesquicentennial year as an example. He concluded that the change lies in defining Catholicism in today's society.

Council was scheduled to hold informal discussions Monday morning on the issue.

Under terms of the Gulf War cease-fire, the Security Council is demanding unhindered access to the country by inspectors as a "means of detecting and deterring Iraqi inhuman, nuclear, chemical, and biological weapons" used in its war with Iran.

Independent helicopter flights would allow for surprise inspections and provide dependence on Iraqi aircraft and pilots, as well as unannounced inspections and "an interdiction capability.

The Iraqis envoy, Hussein, told reporters after the meeting that Baghdad reaffirmed its "policy of cooperation with international organizations, particularly the Security Council.

But he added, "We start from the premise of full cooperation as well as the premise that Iraq is responsible for its own sovereignty and national security."

He spoke in Arabic and his remarks were translated into English by Iraq's English by Iraq's independent news agency Tanjug, said an agreement was reached. It would allow for surprise inspections of weapons stocks.

Numerous cease-fires in Croatia have been coiled up, mostly through efforts by the European Community. All so far have failed, and Croatia has lost about a third of its territory to the ethnic Serbs.

Serbia, the largest republic, has been on a hunger strike for an army district covering the strategically important Croatian towns of Vukovar and Vinkovci. The United Nations has ordered several nations of times of failing to cooperate with its search for long-range missiles and weapons of mass destruction, which is being carried out under the terms of the Gulf War cease-fire.

New York (AP) — Pepsi-Cola is changing its familiar red, white and blue logo, the company announced Sunday.

The new-look cans and bottles of Pepsi and Diet Pepsi should start turning up in stores nationwide by the end of the year and in global markets throughout 1992, Pepsi officials said.

Out is the swirl logo featuring a wide red horizontal bar topped by a red and blue circular design with the word "Pepsi" in blue in the middle.

In is a much narrower red bar topped by a smaller version of the old logo, minus the brand name in the middle.

"Consumer research shows that the new logo design looks more youthful, more refreshing, and that it has twice the shelf impact compared to the competition," said Craig Weatherup, president of Pepsi-Cola North America. He said the change has been in the works for four years.

The new design for Diet Pepsi closely resembles the new design for Pepsi, but with more white and less red. The change is meant to more closely link the sister products, Weatherup said.

It's the first permanent change in Pepsi's logo since 1973 and the eighth this century.

The change comes as Pepsi trails Coca-Cola in overall domestic market share by 43 percent to 31 percent, said industry analyst Jesse Myers, publisher of the magazine Beverage Digest.

"When your competition has the best-known logo, change becomes a way of life. But a Pepsi with a new logo is still just a Pepsi," said spokesman Randy Donaldson.

Myers called the new Pepsi logo "very contemporary."

"The cola wars are a continuing battle and the last bastion is the package. Soft-drink bottlers decide what goes on the shelf and the consumers decide what comes off it. Packaging is an important part of that," he said.

Pepsi's new logo will be incorporated throughout the company, from packaging to the flag that flies outside the company's headquarters in Somers, N.Y., about 35 miles north of New York City.

Georgian opposition occupies government TV station

MOSCOW — Renegade troops and anti-Gamsakhurdia protesters in Georgia seized the government radio and TV center in an effort to end the crisis that has left at least 41 people injured.

But no agreement was reported on Sunday, and anti-Gamsakhurdia leaders in Georgia called for an end to the fighting that has been described as "close to civil war."

Later Saturday, Gamsakhurdia reportedly met with a parliamentary opposition leader in the Georgia parliament in an effort to end the crisis that has left at least 41 people injured.

But no agreement was reported on Sunday, and anti-Gamsakhurdia leaders in Georgia called for an end to the fighting that has been described as "close to civil war."

The Georgian opposition movement reported that New York City has been seized by one of his crusades in North America.

Graham said in his sermon. "The largest crowd Graham ever attracted was 250,000.

One anti-government demonstration, identified in reports as a 37-year-old medical student, died on Sunday, a day after setting himself on fire. "If Georgia needs a victim to stop the bloodshed, I am ready to sacrifice myself," the man was quoted as saying by a local journalist.

The state news agency Tass said 41 people had been hospitalized as of Sunday, nearly all of them hunger strikers who were beaten Saturday by police in front of the government's office in the Government House.

Late Saturday, more than 10,000 people swarmed down Rustaveli Avenue toward the president's office shouting for the president's resignation.

Graham addresses New Yorkers

The career fair is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Los Angeles Convention Center.

"People need to think about what role they can play," he said. "We have a unique opportunity because of our ethnic diversity and our importance in such fields as business and the arts. But with all of this overload of vitality and variety... New York City is a place in desperate spiritual need."

"It's cold," agreed a spectator, Kathy Ellis, 30, of suburban Verona, N.J. "You don't say hello to anybody. They don't say hello to you. If you go up to someone, they say, 'What do you want?'"

People got increasingly irritable as the day wore on, seeking to guard their own turf. There's little space for others let alone God, according to one New Yorker.

"Out of New York, 'the capital of the world' because of its ethnic diversity and its airtime.

But power to the building was cut Sunday, and Prime Minister Besarion Gugushvili told the Russian news agency that Gamsakhurdia's actions were illegal for the building.

"Gamsakhurdia is accused of attempting to secede from the country, and his government," the Georgian opposition leader said.

The opposition drive began mounting after government troops acted to evict five protesters in a clash Sept. 2. Gamsakhurdia denies giving an order to shoot and said one policeman has already been detained in an investigation.

Engineer Industry Day planned

By NICHOLE MCGRATH

Over thirty companies, including Boeing, Exxon, and IBM, will be on hand to offer advice and possibly internships and job interviews to prospective engineering majors at the 11th Annual Engineer Industry Day, according to Beth Brandes, vice president of the Society of Women Engineers.

The career fair is scheduled for Sept. 29 from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For students, Brandes said, this is their opportunity to explore companies and actually talk to their engineers and drive face to face. Those attending are encouraged to bring along resumes, even if they have them, but it is not necessary.

This year's event is sponsored by the Society of Women Engineers and the Joint Engineering Council.

Hostage mother delivers during siege

SALT LAKE CITY—A first-time mother said Sunday she tried to delay giving birth until after an aggrieved gunman carried 18 pounds of dynamite gave up his siege of the hospital's maternity wing.

But Christian Downey, 22, delivered her baby during the 18-hour siege over Saturday. Her 29-year-old new daughter became the ninth hostage by Richard Worthington, who had shot dead a nurse when he stormed the Women's Health Center at Alta View Hospital in Sandy, 15 miles south of Salt Lake City.

"She was almost born, but I managed to prolong it for about four hours," Downey said at a news conference at another hospital with her. Downey said the baby's father, Adam Cisneros, 20, who also was held captive.

Worthington, 39, released his hostages unharmed and surrendered late Saturday. He was being held Sunday.

He had stormed the health center apparently looking to kill a doctor who he said had operated on his wife two years ago without his permission.

Worthington had carried a .357-caliber handgun and a 18-pound dynamite bomb, said police, he gave Wyler the gun.

Worthington then asked a bizarre favor.

"He said, 'I want you to cut off my finger and take it to Karen,'" Wyler said.

"I told him he was crazy "

"I said, 'I don't know if I can cut that finger off,'" and he said, 'Oh hell, let's just get out of here.'"

Minutes later, after calling police, he gave Wyler the gun.

"I ran, and he ran the other way and the cops tackled him," she said.

"It was very important that this be a non-complicated delivery," Wyler said from her home Sunday. The mother-to-be had been given an injection to weaken the pain, and was comfortable throughout the delivery.

Worthington's daughter, Caitlin, was born on the floor of what was used as a women's bathroom.

"He said, 'I want you to cut off my finger and take it to Karen,'" Wyler said.

"I told him he was crazy "

"I said, 'I don't know if I can cut that finger off,'" and he said, 'Oh hell, let's just get out of here.'"

Minutes later, after calling police, he gave Wyler the gun.

"I ran, and he ran the other way and the cops tackled him," she said.

"It was very important that this be a non-complicated delivery," Wyler said from her home Sunday. The mother-to-be had been given an injection to weaken the pain, and was comfortable throughout the delivery.

Worthington's daughter, Caitlin, was born on the floor of what was used as a women's bathroom.

CARGILL

You may not know our name, but we've been a cornerstone of America for more than 125 years.

We wouldn't be a bit surprised if you didn't recognize our company name—Cargill. But we've been in business since 1865, helping people feed the world.

We're a company built on talented people. Our special skills include marketing, handling and processing bulk commodities, risk management, strategic capital investment, and taking an innovative approach to generating cost efficiencies.

We apply those skills to a broad range of businesses. Today, Cargill handles commodities as diverse as corn, soybean and ocean freight, carbon and fertilizer, and wheat and precious metals. Our operations vary from flour mills to futures trading, from meat packing plants to mining salt, and from soy mills to selling seed. Cargill, its subsidiaries and affiliates employ more than 45,000 people worldwide.

Cargill's 21 business units are available in accounting, commodity merchandising, engineering, industrial sales, information systems, country elevator and plant operations management, Feed, Miscellaneous, Seeding, Seed, and Worldwide Poultry Operations.

If you're ready to join a company that offers a tradition of excellence, ideas and innovation, honesty and integrity, meeting the needs of international customers, and growth and success, then make Cargill your career choice.

Tax faculty ranks in published research

Tax faculty of Notre Dame's College of Business Administration is among the most prolific in the nation when it comes to published research, according to a recent study released by the Journal of the American Taxation Association. The study examined publication records of tax accounting faculties from 1981 to 1988. Notre Dame was one of only four universities ranked in the top ten of both the total tax publications category and the academic tax publications category. The others included the University of Texas at Austin, Texas A&M University, and Virginia Polytechnic and State Universities.

A tax faculty's publication record is essential to an assessment of a tax program's quality, according to the study's authors. Notre Dame's tax faculty distinguishes itself in the classroom and community as well as in the fields of research and publication. "Balance is something you would expect from a group of accountants," says Robert Williamson, professor and director of Notre Dame's College of Business Administration. "It's something that has been displayed by an outstanding group of tax faculty in our Department of Accountancy who have balanced their research, teaching, and service obligations in an exceptional manner. All of these professors have won teaching and research awards within the University," stated Williamson.

The tax faculty in the College of Business Administration include the following professors of accountancy: Beth Kern, Kenneth Milani, Kevin Misiewicz, Michael Morris, Ray Powell, and James Wittenbach. Kern, Milani, Morris and Wittenbach have been honored by Notre Dame for their teaching. Misiewicz and Powell received university service awards.

ND/SMC relations hampered by myths

A debate is brewing on the campuses over the relationship between Saint Mary's College and Notre Dame. So many harsh words have been once again questioned the role each institution plays with the other. Those who see each school as having its own advantages, school bashing has become a popular pastime here.

Dozens of students who look down at the endeavors as contests are not well publicized on either community, we will show that it needs to promote itself to Saint Mary's itself. Strict VISitation and alcohol policies the issue of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's relations.

They would realize that Saint Mary's offers so much more than just a quiet library and additional theology courses. They would realize that Saint Mary's is so ignorant that it did not realize that this myth is the fault of Notre Dame students who believe that Saint Mary's women use the University of Notre Dame du Lac and Saint Mary's for making up for athletic, social and academic inadequacies at the College.

If those with negative attitudes bothered to spend time at the Notre Dame campus, they would see quality athletic programs, cultural events and stimulating courses and lectures. They would realize that Saint Mary's offers so much more than just a quiet library and additional theology courses.

The fact is that this myth can also be traced back to Saint Mary's itself. Some student and faculty members who devoted their efforts to preparing the liturgy for the opening Mass and to providing food and entertainment for approximately 12,000 of us should be very proud of what they accomplished.

The Sesquicentennial Opening Ceremonies were conducted so smoothly that the entire celebration seemed natural and almost spontaneous. That effect is certainly a credit to the

Dear Editor,

In response to Jennifer M. Rasmussen's editorial from Sept. 11, 1991 on "abortion rights," I feel compelled to speak for a group of people whose voices are being denied to leave out of her article. Despite her concerns for rights, (she says, repeatedly, of "the woman's right to have an abortion") there is too often a voice that is being muted, one every twenty seconds in the U.S., as a result of abortion.

Miss Rasmussen states that "it (the baby) has, from conception, deeply ingrained a right to life..." and then mistakenly reasons that the baby, because of the facts of life, is not fully human until that time when the mother, is not fully human and that therefore the mother must have the right to kill this dependent child. Yet the child remains equal worth to the mother once outside the protection of the womb, which things the mother had been providing her in her first nine months of life, food, shelter, and warmth.

Miss Rasmussen would not advocate a woman's right to deny any of these things to her child, let alone the right for the mother to willfully murder the infant.

I firmly undermine the already weak rhetoric of the pro-abortionist by stating that young women, like any human being, have one hundred percent "sure" that his or her stand on abortion is right. Speak for yourself, Miss Rasmussen. I am sure of the fact that life begins at conception and that within the first week of the baby's life it has attached itself to the wall of her mother's womb; that at three weeks her heart is beating; that six weeks her brain waves are measurable and she moves and reacts to touch, feels pain, sucks her thumb.

I am certain of the fact that 2 1/2 months after conception her body is completely formed, even her fingerprints, and that after three months in the womb all her organ systems are functioning, the only flaws in size and maturity-unless of course, it is killed by abortion. I can be sure this is not rhetoric or theory.

On behalf of the unborn children, who cannot speak for themselves, I beg Miss Rasmussen, and all those unaware of these facts to reconsider in light of these facts.

Sincerely,

government has "created a disaster." Though political talks started on September 20th and will last through this week, Moriarty thinks the fighting will not stop until the funding of the war comes to a close. In what Moriarty has seen of this tiny nation, only sixty miles by one hundred sixty miles, the military is growing fat on huge amounts of U.S. dollars, and, consequently, will never truly stop the war. The Salvadoran military has its own commissaries, housing developments, and even elections. Moriarty believes they need the money from the United States in order to make its leaders more wealthy.

Moriarty has seen military leaders living like American business leaders, with huge houses and expensive cars. According to Moriarty, the war will not stop until the military funding stops.

For his show at the Snite, Moriarty has loosely grouped his forty black and white photographs into separate themes, such as the "nice side society" he has grown to be an expert on, the "haves and have nots." El Salvador is, according to Moriarty, still very much a medieval society in essence, Moriarty stated, the government has become an "out-of-control military monster" that is "unaccountable to nobody."

In essence, Moriarty stated, the U.S.

JERRY Rice broke loose for one of the longest touchdown catch-and-run plays, going 62 yards and breaking three tackles. That gave San Francisco a 20-10 lead and Harry Sydney's 25-yard touchdown run with 3:16 remaining put it away. The 49ers kept Jim Everett as the league's only starting quarterback without a touchdown.

BILLS 17, Bucs 14

The Buffalo Bills needed a late drive to remain unbeaten. They scored 421 yards of offense, the final 76 coming on the decisive drive. Kelly's 29-yard touchdown pass to Newell McColer won it.

It was a safe bet until Chris Chandler's final pass from the Buffalo 8 fell incomplete in the end zone.

The victory snapped Buffalo's five-game losing streak in "Tampa Stadium." It is the Bills' loss to the Giants in last January's Super Bowl. Tampa Bay (0-4) has lost straight under coach Richard Williamson.

Brocnongh 27, Broncos 19

At Denver, Garrison Green broke his 25-yard touchdown run with 2:30 remaining to put Denver ahead three games and quarterback John Elway 110-13-0 for the season with four touchdowns. Derrick Thomas, who sacked Dave Krieg all day and got to Jeff Kemp only once, for a 9-yard loss late in the game.

The Seahawks took the opening kickoff and marched from their 35 to the Kansas City 23 before Donen Cherry got his 47th career interception and 83 yards against the Seahawks. The Chiefs then went 71 yards in 15 plays to take a 3-0 lead on Lowery's 27-yarder.

Redskin's 34, Bengals 27

At Cincinnati, the Redskins won for the fourth time this season and dealt the winless Bengals their seventh straight loss, routing them with their top-rated ground game after blowing a 27-0 lead.

Tegardis, who ran for three touchdowns, had a 7- yarder with 2:02 to play. That capped a drive of 53 yards on six running plays.

The Bengals, after their worst start since 1984, had rallied to tie it on two touchdown runs by Mike Bloomfield and Tim Breech's 25-yard field goal.

Saints 26, Vikings 0

The Saints finally figured out how to handle Minnesota, which had beaten New Orleans by a total of 134-33, including a 44-10 whipping in the regular season game for New Orleans in 1967. This time, Sam Mills' interception led the way as Minnesota held the Vikings to 151 total yards and Herschel Walker to only 15 yards rushing.

Morten Andersen had four field goals for the Orleans, 4-0, for the first time.

Lions 33, Colts 24

At Indianapolis, Detroit held the Colts (0-4) to a franchise- low 249 total yards and forced them back from a 10-point deficit. While Barry Sanders was quiet and shared in four touchdowns, Eric Dieter was held to a career-low 17 yards on 13 carries by the rapidly improving Lions defense.

Eagles 23, Steelers 17

Baltimore 16, Packers 13

Charlotte 27, Rams 10

Jerry Rice broke loose for one of the longest touchdown catch-and-run plays, going 62 yards and breaking three tackles. The Bengals, after their worst start since 1984, had rallied to tie it on two touchdown runs by Mike Bloomfield and Tim Breech's 25-yard field goal.

That defense was helped by the Colts' Clarence Verdin, who bobbled a punt and was tackled in the backfield by Millen. Dickerson was tackled in the end zone by Jerry Belas for the next play for a safety.

Dickerson's 17 yards gave him 12,121 career yards and moved him past Frank Harris into fourth place on the NFL rushing list.

Irish tailback Reggie Brooks, like his brother Tony, had a big game against the Spartans. Brooks scored his first career touchdown in the game.

Breaking out into daylight, sophomore tailback Willie Clark accumulates a large chunk of his 56 rushing yards.

Irish quarterback Rick Mirer drops back to attempt a pass. Against the Spartans, Mirer threw for a career-high three touchdowns.

Senior tailback Tony Brooks eludes the outstretched arms of a Michigan State defender as he runs for some of his 76 total yards.
Irish win produces costly injuries
Brooks brothers star; Mirer sets personal high for tds

BY ANTHONY KING AND RICH KURZ
Sports Writers

The Irish win against the Spartans didn't come without some expense. Two Notre Dame starters left the game with injuries.

Captain Rodney Culver left the game in the first half with a sprained ankle. The extent of Culver's injuries isn't certain that freshman Lee Becton.

Fullback Jerome Bettis left the game for several plays after getting twisted into some unnatural positions, but returned to play the remainder of the game.

"I have a feeling Jerome Bettis will be sore tomorrow," said Holtz.

The Irish coaches gave running back Tony Brooks a game ball for his efforts against the Spartans, but Tony gave it to someone he felt was more deserving—his younger brother, Reggie, who scored his first touchdown in an Irish uniform on a two-yard run in the first quarter.

Reggie told some reporters that he was just holding it for his older brother. When Tony was told of Reggie's comment, he joked, "It doesn't matter whose it is. It's going in the same house."

Rick Mirer threw for three touchdowns this weekend, which set a career high for him in one game. One of those scoring connections was to tight end Rick Smith finished off the aerial attack, catching a two-yard pass from a scrambling Mirer in the back of the endzone.

The Irish defense held Michigan State standout Tico Duckett in check for 72 yards on 19 carries. Duckett, the Big Ten offensive player of the year last year, and the rest of the Spartan offense went 6 for 10 on third down conversions, allowing Notre Dame to control the clock for 38:55, and thus the game.

Moreover, the Irish held MSU to 273 total yards on offense and allowed only them only 10 first downs. The strength of the Notre Dame ground game, combined with the fine play of the defense, meant that the Irish ran almost twice as many offensive plays as the Spartans, 94-50.

The 49 points the Irish scored was the most ever scored against a Perles-coached Michigan State team, and the most the Spartans have allowed since their 1976 contest against Ohio State.

Notre Dame's rushing game, in addition to racking up 433 net rushing yards, also put up some good numbers on yards per rush. The Irish averaged 5.69 yards every time they ran the ball.

The Irish defense held Michigan State standout Tico Duckett in check for 72 yards on 19 carries. Duckett, the Big Ten offensive player of the year last year, and the rest of the Spartan offense went 6 for 10 on third down conversions, allowing Notre Dame to control the clock for 38:55, and thus the game.

CHICAGO (AP) — Coach Bruce Coslet said the New York Jets are no longer satisfied merely to be playing well and looking good enough to move up to the next level. That's what they'll try to do Monday night against under-estimated Chicago in Soldier Field and if they succeed, it will not be because of a letdown by the Bears.

"There will be no letdown," Chicago coach Mike Ditka said. "We're not looking past any body or assuming we're better than anybody. If there's a let- down, it will be because of what the other team did, not because of the effort we're putting out."

The Jets outgained the Buffalo Bills 388 yards to 304, completed 15 of 26 passes and forced 11 turnovers in the more than 40 minutes but lost 23-12. Thet left them 1-2 headed up against the Bears (3-0).

"That game is history," Coslet said. "If we're worried about it Monday night, we'll get killed, get toasted. They have to deal with it and keep work- ing on their defense because it happened again."

The last time these two teams met was in 1985 when the Bears won 19-6 on their way to the Super Bowl. The Bears have changed this year and the Jets know it.

"They've mixed it up well lately," Coslet said. "These guys seem to run and pass well. They are getting out of being a run- oriented team."

That may be true, but Ditka doesn't necessarily like it. The Bears are averaging 177.9 yards passing, 27.9 yards rushing. They are ranked 20th in the league on offense and 18th on defense.

"If they're going to stack the line, we won't be hard-headed," said Ditka about passing. "I wouldn't mind sitting back and letting the ball do the passing instead of us having to do it."}

Pittsburgh clinch NL East Title

PITTSBURGH (AP) — This team, the celebration can wait. Last year, when the Pittsburgh Pirates won their first championship of any kind in 11 years, they carried manager Jim Leyland off the field in St. Louis and staged a rowdy clubhouse celebration before returning home to 5,000 cheering fans.

The clubhouse bash following Sunday's second double- clinch in as many seasons was more restrained, less emotional and less ecstatic.

And that's just the way they wanted it.

Last year, the Pirates finally had something to celebrate after bouncing back from two years of lousy teams and last- place finishes to win the National League East. This year, they expected to win. They did, clinching with two weeks remaining in the regular season by beating the Philadelphia Phillies 2-1 Sunday.

"We realized this was special after we did it last year, and we wanted to keep it going," Andy Van Slyke said. "I don't think we ever thought we wouldn't win it."

"This is a great, this is a good feeling, but what we want to do is still undone," Barry Bonds said. "We had a chance to win with one of our teams to never get the opportunity to do, and that was it again. We wanted another championship season."

The magic number now is zero, but the Pirates say it's — four in the playoffs, four in the World Series.

"We want it all, we want the whole package," Jay Bell said. "We want the playoffs, the World Series. Last year, I think we thought we could do it. Now we know we can do it."

By winning, the Pirates not only clinched the NL Central before their home fans — they wrapped it up last year in St. Louis — but also kept from backing into the title. With a loss Sunday, Pittsburgh could have clinched on an off-day because St. Louis plays a doubleheader today while the Pirates are idle.

"This was real sweet, doing it at home," Leyland said. "It was great last year to come home and see all those people at the airport, but this was fun." The Pirates mobbed each other in the bullpen on the field, adjourned to a shower room off their clubhouse for a brief, private party. Later, they hit victory cigars and cheered when pitcher Stan Bellinda smashed a banana cream pie in the face of strength coach Warren Sipp. As usual, manager Jim Leyland displayed the most emotion, wiping away tears as Hallahan, the team's business manager, read a note of thanks from the players.

The Pirates brooked no other brake on the field, however. For the third straight game this year, the Pirates were stopped by a call of a gotcha on the opening series.

After getting to their 48- yd. field goal, Reggie Brooks combined for 34 of the Pirates' 72 yards on the drive, ending with a two-yard TD pass to a wide-open Irv Smith.

The Spartans were penalized for off sid es on that play and for unsportsmanlike conduct on the point-after, meaning the Irish were kicking off from the Michigan State 45. That set the stage for some Notre Dame tricks, like an onside kick.

"We may have gotten up a first down on the Spartans gained holding the ball for 300 yards a game. I don't know if we're capable of doing that."

The Jets seem to have better balance. They are eight in of fensive plays and 12th in defense. They are second in rush- ing in the league, led by Blair Thomas.

Quarterback Ken O'Brien has just 50 completions in 89 at- tempts (56 percent), 635 yards, 3 touchdowns and three intercep- tions. He is 1 for 10 with five defensive fumbles and 10 of his passes are in the air for the Bears.

It's contrary to my philosophy," Ditka said.

Ditka wants to get the running backs, Neal Anderson and Brad Muster, back in control of the game but the defenses keep stacking the line and during the Bears to pass. So Jim Harbaugh has passed 179.7 yards passing, 27.9 yards rushing. They are ranked 20th in the league on offense and 18th on defense.

"If they're going to stack the line, we won't be hard-headed," said Ditka about passing. "I wouldn't mind sitting back and letting the ball do the passing instead of us having to do it."

State started off with the ball after the intermission and im- mediately began to move the ball.

A 24-yard strike to Hawkins was the key play as the Spartans drove to the Irish 44. Johnnie O'Brien later hit Greg Davis on a pass past intended for Hawkins, and the Michigan State drive was stopped at the Irish 33.

The Brooks brothers helped the Irish move down the field for another score. Tony and Reggie Brooks combined for 34 of the Irish's 72 yards on the drive, ending with a two-yard TD pass to a wide-open Irv Smith.

The Spartans were penalized for off sides on that play and for unsportsmanlike conduct on the point-after, meaning the Irish were kicking off from the Michigan State 45. That set the stage for some Notre Dame tricks, like an onside kick.

"We may have gotten up a first down on the Spartans gained possession on the 33 instead of the 32. We played better than we would have been had the Irish kicked the ball off the end zone for a touchback, but we have a chance to get the ball," said Holtz.

And get the ball they did. Rod Smith finally recovered the ball for the Irish near the Notre Dame 30 in the second quarter and Tony Brooks struggled into the end zone. The point after was good, the rout was on.

The game started out on a negative note for the Irish, however. For the third straight game this year, the Irish were stopped by a call of a gotcha on the opening series.

Michigan State coach George Perles was understandably dejected after the game.

"There isn't a whole lot to say," said Perles. "It was the worst defeat in nine years (that Perles has been at MSU). The scoreboard says it all.

"In the second half, they put it together, beat us, and beat us soundly." Holtz credited rugged prac- tices this past week for instill- ing a tough attitude in his charges.

The coaching staff had the players "play until the whistle blows," said Holtz. "Unfortunately, I couldn't find mine."

The Irish controlled the line of scrimmage, both offensively and defensively, which put them in good control of the game.

"We're not used to people running the ball and controlling the clock," Perles said.

Meanwhile, Irish quarterback Mikeup front gave me time," Mikeup front gave me time," said Holtz. "There wasn't a lot of pass rush, and that takes a lot of pressure off me."

Defensive tackle Troy Bigley liked the way the defense played.

"We want to play better each week," Bigley said. "We haven't played better than last week," he said. "We have to control the line of scrimmage."
Women's golf sets new team record

Against one of the toughest fields they will face all season, the Saint Mary's women's golf team turned in a record breaking performance at Michigan State's 1991 Lady Northern Invitational this weekend.

After finishing last week's Illini Intercollegiate with a 1,068 total, coach Tom Hanlon knew his team had to improve to compete against the tough field assembled in East Lansing, but even he couldn't have expected the improved his team would show.

"We were outstanding," Hanlon commented. "I'm so proud of them.

Their 54-hole total of 949 broke the previous school record by 23 shots. A second round total of 308 also set a new school record, eight shots better than the previous record set at last year's Spartan Invitational. Defensive end Tom Lombardi took the team title with a three-round score of 902 to earn its second consecutive victory. Defending champion Penn State finished with a 539.

"Our next objective is to break 300," said Hanlon. "It will take some good shooting, but we're not very far away.

Notre Dame's senior captain Allison Vixman tamed Michigan State's 5,916-yard layout with rounds of 78, 74 and 74 to finish three shots out of the lead at 226. N. Jersey of Northern Illinois took the individual medalist honors with a 223 total after winning a playoff against teammate K. Hodge and a teammate from Illinois.

The University of Illinois' Lady Northern Invitational in Champaign is next on the Irish slate before they travel to DeKalb, Illinois for the Northern Illinois Invitational to round out the fall schedule.

DAVE LUDEWIG for two touchdowns and Ron Lee passed for another as the Hawkeyes ran away from the Spartans yesterday afternoon.

Ludewig led the Hawkeyes on a three-play, 98-yard drive that resulted in a touchdown pass to Lee on the second play of the game. Ludewig capped the scoring by scoring the second touchdown himself 5 yards to the left of the goal line.

"Our defense needs to improve," said Ebert. "We're going to be in some tough field assembled in East Lansing, but even he couldn't have expected the improved his team would show.

Notre Dame explodes against Michigan State 49-10

Revised ground attack runs wild over Spartans

For the second time this season, Notre Dame unleashed an offensive assault unparalleled since last winter's war in the Middle East. And this time it was the Michigan State Spartans who played the role of Iraq, getting pounded 49-10 by a revitalized Irish squad.

Both Michigan State and Notre Dame were on the rebound, the Spartans after being shocked by Notre Dame, 20-3, and the Irish after being outplayed at Michigan, 24-14.

Notre Dame's offense was on a roll, racking up 650 yards of offense (493 rushing, 217 passing) despite pulling starting quarterback Rick Miler and most of the first team with just under four minutes left to play in the third period.

The Irish appeared to have wrapped up the game in the middle of the second quarter when Miler threw two touchdown passes in a span of just over two minutes.

After the Spartans made a field goal at the beginning of the second period, the Irish took possession at their own 32-yard line. Three plays later, Miler and Tony Smith connected for a 23-yard gain on third and six. Notre Dame kept the ball on the ground, eating clock while moving the ball down to the Michigan State four-yard line.

A clipping penalty cost the Irish 20 yards, back to the 29. On the next play, Miler rolled right and threw back against the grain, getting the Irish in the back of the endzone for an Irish touchdown that made the score 14-3 with the extra point.

An inspired Notre Dame defense stopped Spartan running back Tic Tuckett three straight plays, forcing MSU to punt.

Notre Dame throw Michigan State a twist on the next series, opening up with a pass on first down. It wasn't a decision that Irish coach Lou Holtz would regret.

Miler hit tight end Derek Brown streaking down the sideline with a beautifully thrown ball. Brown gathered it in at the 21-yard line and raced in for the score without breaking stride.

The Spartans still had a little bit of fight left in them however, and struck back to close the gap to 21-10. Michigan State picked up two quick first downs, moving to the Irish 48. Michigan State showed run on the next play, splitting out only one wide receiver. That one receiver, however, was an American candidate, quarterback Tom Carter.

Cornerback Tom Carter had Hawkins in man coverage, but Carter stumbled after Hawkins put a move in the inside on him. Forty-eight yards later, Spartan quarterback Brett Johnson hit Hawkins for an MSU score.

"I was concerned at halftime," said Holtz. "They seemed to be getting into a rhythm and we hadn't done much since they cut it to 21-10."

Having won the coin toss and electing to defer their choice until the second half, Michigan State elected to kick to the Irish.

Sophomore corner back Tom Carter intercepts a Brad Johnson pass, killing a potential Michigan State drive.

Junior tailback Reggie Brooks rumbles for big yardage in the open field. Brooks scored the first touchdown of his career against the Spartans.

Practice pays off for Irish runners

The kind of dominance in the trenches this Saturday may have been a surprise to the 59,075 fans in Notre Dame stadium, but it certainly was no surprise to the Irish football team. After weeks of the toughest practices of the year, the Notre Dame running game was a dominant force. Assistant Sports Editor ANTHONY KING was there to witness the performance.

Michigan State's defensive line was exhausted by the 49-10 rout it suffered. It was Bettis that shone particularly brightly in the Irish running arsenal.

Ahip injury in the second quarter kept Bettis out for a series, but he returned later in the quarter. The injury obviously did not hamper his rushing ability, as he rolled for 52 second half yards, before being taken out in the third quarter, including a 20 yard dash up the middle in that quarter. Bettis has the speed to win the week, but blocking and "the north-south" running were focal points.

It was because Coach Holtz stressed running the ball so much," explained Bettis. "We had a capability of being." Bettis was the main stress in the practices.

Holtz ran blocking drills such as one that required the players to block until the whistle blew. It was a good drill.

"It (blocking) was stressed so much, that it was second nature when we went out on the field," said Bettis.

The Irish went on a roll after Bettis' return, but the Irish weren't ready to play Saturday after the rough practice sessions.

"It was down and dirty in the trenches," commented running back Reggie Brooks. "It was something we needed to do. He (Lou Holtz) felt it was time for us to show the defense we're capable of being."
