Senate Ethics Committee reprimands Cranston

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee reprimanded former assistant Senate Majority Leader Alan Cranston today for "improper and repugnant" dealings with Charles Keating Jr., wrapping up a tumultuous two-year investigation growing out of the savings and loan scandal.

After committee members presented their report on behalf of the full Senate, Cranston took the floor to accept the action "with deep remorse in my heart." He then spent nearly an hour — in an unrepentant and contentious mode — denying he was guilty of many of the committee's accusations.

The Senate, in an unprecedented action, took no vote on the report that accused the California Democrat of a "repellant and smear on this institution."

The committee said it found "extenuating circumstances exist" in Cranston's case, noting his health and intention to retire.

Female ordination in the Catholic Church is discussed

By KATHY MASSA

The Committee on Notre Dame Dame to act on the larger issue of the ordination of females in the Roman Catholic Church.

The Church does not so long ago that women ordination in the Catholic Church with the role of the priest.

The competence of an individual to minister as a priest is not decreed by gender, but rather that individual's 'maturity and integration into society' should determine his or her fitness for the priesthood, Koernke said.

She pointed out that we do not worship Christ made 'male' at Christmas; we worship Christ made flesh.

O'Neill emphasized that the person of the priest is the sacrament and that through the priest, others know God.

She stated "the Church commits the priests to embody and manifest the largeness, the larger of the risen Christ.

In closing, O'Neill said the goal of The Committee on Notre Dame's Position on the Ordination of Women, "is an essential place in the renewed Christian ministry for women.

Hesburgh sworn to new position

By MONICA YANT
News Editor

Father Theodore Hesburgh, University president emeritus, was sworn in this morning to be on the board of directors of the United States Institute of Peace.

Hesburgh was confirmed for the four-year, renewable position on the U.S. Senate's recommendation.

He joins 14 other members on the board, which was established by Congress in 1984. The institute promotes world peace through programs, grants, fellowships, conferences and publications.

"[The institute] has a lot of great possibilities, given the changes taking place in the world," Hesburgh said yesterday from Washington. "It's got a real future ahead of itself."

The board will meet seven-to-eight times per year to make decisions on how to allocate more than $5 million budget, he said. Hesburgh will participate in his first meeting immediately after this morning's ceremony.

Hesburgh is one of 11 board members who are not government officials.

Hesburgh, 74, was University president from 1952 to 1987. He recently established the Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies at Notre Dame.

ND participates in youth program

By ALICIA REALE
News Writer

The University of Notre Dame has been selected to participate for the first time in the National Youth Sports Program (NYSF) for economically disadvantaged children.

The goals of the NYSF will be "to expose the children to true sports and enrichment instruction and to build bridges with the South Bend and greater Michiana community," according to Demetrios Marlowe, the project coordinator and a counselor in the University's office of academic services for student-athletes.

The week program is scheduled for this summer from July 6-August 7 and will bring more than 250 area girls and boys ages 10-16 on campus to engage in a variety of athletic and enrichment activities, according to Marlowe.

"There is a need for Notre Dame to act on the larger community's behalf," Marlowe said. "Even though we will not solve all the issues we are challenged with, we feel strongly that the NYSF can become a component of the total effort the University puts forth on behalf of the half of the community.

Marlowe said the University can use NYSF "as a vehicle to help build common relations with the community. There are three aspects of the program which will work to facilitate these relations: potential students will be exposed to university life and environment and will thus learn what a university is; employment opportunities will be open to the South Bend community members as well as University staff and they can earn money and learn about ND; relationships with the community will be enhanced; "The University will expose itself as an organization willing to assist the underserved community about social issues," Marlowe said.

Marlowe also added that there will be a different enrichment activity addressed each week.

And drug and alcohol abuse will be one of the issues discussed.

Many of the youngsters will be from areas affected by such topics. "Their experience with the NYSF will pull them out of their environments with negative peer pressures and introduce them to safe, different modes of life," said Marlowe.
Instant replay needs reviewing

I had a certain forbearance before the first drop of the puck in Tuesday night's (Chuck) Norris on match-up between the Blackhawks and Red Wings. As the color commentator was concluding his pre-game remarks, I was dismayed to see the graphic which listed the referee, the two linemen, and (ugh) the replay judge for the night. Unbelievably, my premonition came to fruition early in the first period. Already leading 1-0, Detroit was putting the pressure on Chicago's defense. Steve Yzerman freed himself in front of the net and took a centering pass, which he edged over the sliding Hawk goalie Ed Belfour.

The goal-indicator light was illuminated by its operator, but the referee, who was very evidently unsure whether the puck had crossed the line before Belfour smothered it in the crease, deferred the ruling to the replay official, who decided there was "inconclusive evidence" and disallowed the apparent goal. Utterly ridiculous.

The instant replay has been around slightly longer in the NHL, but its usefulness reached an all-time nadir in this Sunday's games.

Space doesn't allow me to detail the numerous examples, but the worst two were a play in the Bronco-Chiefs game on which QB John Elway's entire body, save for his back feet, was obscured by a line of scrimmage when he released the go-ahead touchdown pass (which stood), and a seemingly irrefutable interpolation in the Browns-Oilers thriller where stop-action frames clearly showed defender Rod Hill and both feet in bounds and control of the ball (ruled an incomplete pass). Indeed a science of capriciousness, this instant replay.

In the first place, I'm against the replay in principle. The players make mistakes, certainly the officials aren't above erring. But let's leave it at that; dragging out the call-reviewing process, you're more or less excluding the officials from intervening.

Furthermore, there has been so much inconsistency plaguing every facet of the replay of the instant replay "overturned upon incorrect verdicts ever so much more exasperating. Furthermore, there has been so much inconsistency plaguing every facet of the replay in its use, the integrity of the sports themselves is being tragically denigrated.

At the sentiment of asking perfect officials, two words are germane: Don Denkinger. Such mistakes add character to the game, and (obviously) "remove" them to be a special inherent human quality from the game.

I'm anxiously awaiting the night I tune in for my daily dose of SportsCenter and hear from the games.

Helicopter crashes in Caucasus

MOSCOW -- A helicopter with a high-level delegation trying to mediate the conflict between Azerbaijan and Armenia crashed and caught fire Wednesday in the Caucasian Mountains, killing all 20 people aboard, Soviet media reported. The independent Interfax news agency, quoting "official but reliable sources," said Azerbaijan's interior minister, Mamed Asadov, was among those killed. The official news agency Tass said 17 officials and three crew were on the Mi-8 helicopter when it crashed in the disputed Nagorno-Karabakh enclave inside the republic of Azerbaijan, in the Armenian-controlled region.

One of the victims was Vice President George Bush's special envoy to Russia, James Baker.

Performance will present ethnic dances and music

Special to The Observer

"A Festival of African Rhythms," a performance of African music, drumming and dancing, will take place this Friday at 7 p.m. at Washington Hall on the Notre Dame campus.

Midawo Gideon Foll Alerwuye, a drummer, drum teacher and dancer from Ghana, will perform with his African American Unity Ensemble. Affiliated with the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago, the ensemble presents the traditional dance, music and drumming of ethnic groups in Benin, Burkina Faso, the ivory Coast, Ghana, Nigeria and Togo.

Musa La Lu Mosley, a drummer and maker and drummer-in-residence at the Irish Accent, will perform with the Jlkl Band. The performance will include percussion on a log drum, dancing and what festival organizer Christopher Kougiazonde describes as "cosmic episodes."

Kougiazonde, a graduate student in government and international studies and president of the Notre Dame African Students Association, says that the festival "promises to be a unique, rich, rhythmic, harmonious and beautiful celebration of percussion."

"A Festival of African Rhythms" is sponsored by the Notre Dame African Students Association, the African Studies Program, the Patricia Roberts Harris Fellowship Program, the Department of Anthropology, the Black Cultural Arts Council, the Center for Social Concerns, the Graduate Student Union, the Office of International Student Affairs, the Office of Minority Student Affairs, the Multicultural Executive Council, the Office of Student Activities, the Student Government and the Student Union Board.

Admission is $3 for students and $5 for non-students.

SAB discusses bus trip to Chicago

By JEANNE DEVITA

The final details for the 'Shop and See the Sights of Chicago' bus trip for this weekend were discussed last night at the Saint Mary's Student Activities Board (SAB) meeting.

"We really want to push this," said Meg McGowan, Vice-President of Student Activities. This Saturday, for a $5 charge, a bus will take students to Michigan Avenue or to the museums in downtown Chicago. The buses will depart from LeMans at 8:45 a.m. Saturday and will return at approximately 6:30 p.m. Tickets are available at the Dining Hall during dinner.

SAB discussed the presentation about John Fitzgerald Kennedy that Jack Gordon will give Monday, November 25 in Carroll Auditorium. "Plan to arrive early," said McGowan, "we've had him speak in the past and it's been a big hit." The presentation will begin at 7 p.m.

SAB discussed using personal decorations for decorating the tree in LeMans, December 10. Irish Accent will perform on Tuesday, December 3 at 9 p.m. in Haggar Parlor.

SAB plans to publicize showing the movie "Jungle Fever" December 4. A donation for $100 has also been made to the homeless shelter by SAB, according to McGowan.

McGowan also said that ideas being considered for the spring semester, such as a Mardi Gras celebration, which she calls "a really big event."

Kelly Mann, a Saint Mary's sophomore, was honored by the Independent Colleges and Universities of Indiana, Inc. at the "Realizing the Dream" banquet October 19.

Mann, a graduate of Elkhart Memorial High School, received a plaque and attended a banquet at the Omni Indianapolis Hotel. Mann acknowledged her high school drill team instructor, Roberta Litherland at the banquet.

"I was really pleased to get it," said Mann. "I had no idea they had this kind of an award. I was glad to acknowledge Mrs. Litherland for the contribution she made to me as a person," she added.

Sponsored by the Eli Lilly Endowment of Indianapolis, the "Realizing the Dream," project allows 30 private colleges and universities in Indiana to recognize first generation college students who have demonstrated superior academic performance and leadership in campus involvement, and who have graduated from an Indiana high school.

State panel yanks medical license from suicide doctor Kevorkian

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Board of Medicine on Wednesday suspended the medical license of Dr. Jack Kevorkian, who has helped three women kill themselves in the last two years.

The board voted 8-0 to suspend Kevorkian’s license even though the retired pathologist, dubbed “Dr. Death,” has said repeatedly that he would help more people commit suicide even if he lost his license.

“It is clear that suicide is not a medically accepted and approved practice,” said Dr. Ananda Prasad, a board member.

One of Kevorkian’s attorneys, Michael Schwartz, said Kevorkian still could help people kill themselves. “Dr. Kevorkian can do anything that any unlicensed human being can do if asked for advice,” he said.

But another board member, Dr. Emma Jane Conklin, said if Kevorkian helps more people commit suicide, it could be interpreted as practicing medicine without a license and leave him open to criminal charges.

No one answered the telephone at Kevorkian’s Royal Oak home Wednesday.

Kevorkian, 63, first came to authorities’ attention in June 1990 after he helped Alzheimer’s patient Janet Adkins, of Portland, Ore., die by hooking her up to a suicide machine he invented. Adkins pushed a button to give herself a lethal injection.

Wantz gave herself a lethal injection using a device similar to the one Adkins used. Miller inhaled carbon monoxide through a mask.

The Oakland County prosecutor’s office is investigating the deaths, but has brought no new charges against Kevorkian.

Dr. Philip Margolis, who abstained from Wednesday’s vote, said the medical, ethical and legal issues were too complex to tackle with a summary suspension of Kevorkian’s license.

“I think, at least from my point of view, there is no immediate menace to his activities,” he said.

“This is a very complex issue, which will take a lot of thought on everybody’s part, whether it be the Legislature or us or whomever.”

But Conklin said the board could not wait a year or two for a full investigation and hearing.

Sutherland recounts time spent in captivity

CHICAGO (AP) — At least two Roman Catholic priests accused of sexually abusing children have been removed from their parishes, the archdiocese says.

A three-member investigatory panel created last month by Cardinal Joseph Bernardin recommended their removal, Joy Clough, a spokeswoman for the Archdiocese of Chicago, said Tuesday.

Clough said "a handful" of priests were reassigned at the panel's request. She refused to identify them or say exactly how many were reassigned, but she confirmed the removal of two priests named in news reports.

She refused to give details of the allegations or the priests' new assignments. But the diocese earlier said such priests would not be given positions in parishes.

Bernardin created the panel after an uproar over the Rev. Robert Mayer, who was removed from a Chicago church in suburban Berwyn in July. Church officials acknowledged last month that Mayer left after a teen-age boy accused him of making sexual advances. Later, a 14-year-old girl said Mayer had improperly touched her. Mayer entered a treatment center last summer. It was eventually revealed that Mayer had been sued in 1982 for allegedly exposing himself to and trying to molest two altar boys. The lawsuit was settled out of court and Mayer switched parishes.

"With the heightened public concern, the archdiocese is moving to make sure its policies are up to date and make as certain as possible that young people are not at risk," Clough said. "That's why we're taking this cautious approach."

The Cook County state's attorney's office is investigating Mayer, but no charges have been filed, spokeswoman Julie Driscoll said today.

In the latest cases, Clough confirmed that the Rev. James Day of Transfiguration Church in Vunkonda and the Rev. Ken Hug of Divine Savior Church in Norridge were among those removed.
Critics say Bush's remark shows inability to deal with the economy

Bush authorizes $1.5 billion in credits for the Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush authorized yesterday $1.5 billion in grain credits and $1 billion in other aid to help the Soviet people in the coming winter.

The loan credits will go to both the central government and the 12 republics, which have agreed to assume responsibility for the debt, the White House said.

"It is aimed at alleviating food shortages and other humanitarian consequences for the Soviets," said Martin Fitzwater, White House press secretary.

The remarks had not been cleared by any of Bush's economic policymakers back in Washington.

Still, White House advisers thought it wasn't all that bad an idea, given that card rates had remained near 15 percent while other short-term interest rates had been declining for months.

Bush was quick to take credit the day after the American Telephone and Telegraph announced it was parting ways with long-distance rates.

The remark had not been a part of any television speech, but it was part of a prepared statement.

When he left Washington, there was nothing in his speech text about credit-card rates, nor had the subject ever been broached in any White House utterances on the economy.

"It was unclear that Bush's only previous mention of credit cards, in fact, came last March when he whipped out his American Express card at a Washington-area elementary school to prove he was an identi

Prayer chain letter "not amusing"

Dear Editor:

One of my favorite sections in The Observer is the Classifieds. I enjoy skimming through the Personal section to see if I can make sense of any of the inside jokes that usually fill the paper. But when I flipped to this typically lighthearted portion of the paper on Monday, November 18, I found something that I didn't find very amusing.

One of the entries was headed "Prayer for the Holy Spirit." For those of you who didn't see it, I can best describe it by labeling it a "chain letter for church." It provides a prayer which, in and of itself, I do not find offensive. However, it goes on to preach that "persons must pray this prayer three consecutive days and a wish will be granted."

I beg your pardon, but to the person who submitted the personal, and to those of you who, heaven forbid, actually followed these instructions, I have something to say. If you think that your prayers can actually be answered by this procedure, may I also suggest clicking your heels together three times and saying "Hocus Pocus" - it should prove about as effective!

It really disturbs me to see people bastardize something that so many others take seriously, such as prayer. I'm also sorry to see that there are some of those infamous fanatic preachers attending this university.

I hope not too many more people become taken in by such a hokey practice, and readers accept this "prayer" for exactly what it is, a foolish chain letter.

Swearing students mar weekend

Dear Editor:

I had the pleasure of being on the Notre Dame campus this past weekend for the second time in my life. The beauty of the campus, the clear blue sky, the warm sun reflecting off the Dome and the brass instruments of the band, the inspiration of the Grotto and Sacred Heart Church were almost electrifying.

In touring the campus, we fell into that lock-step group phenomenon of being with the same people, most of whom were wearing the orange and white of the University of Tennessee. They seemed as caught up in the spell of appreciation for Notre Dame that is evoked in so many who visit here.

(On my way back from the Grotto after having read, for the second time, Dr. Tom Dooley's letter to Fr. Hesburgh, our group was, I guess brought back to the real world, by a verbal assault of non-stop sexual obscenities, (I am no choir boy). I winced. The people dressed in orange winced. The people bastards something of this sadness was a second story dormitory window whose shelf was decorated with a near complete aluminum pyramid. The young men were no doubt celebrating the passage of an exam, the completion of a term paper, the release from academic pressures, etc. etc., and who knows, the next Tom Dooley may have been right in that room.

But what I would like to recommend to those young men is that next time, before you pass through the Drive Thru, you pass through the Grotto and read the last part of Dr. Dooley's letter and maybe reflect a bit about the basic responsibilities a student has to the dedicated teachers past and present who perpetuate this most respected University.

You did your alma mater a disservice last Saturday and you should know it went a lot further than the sidewalk below.

COTH department defends movie series

Dear Editor:

The Department of Communication and Theatre sponsors the "Cinema at the Snite," Film Series, which screens over 150 films each academic year. The vast majority of films screened aresampled in our Communication classes, but, in fact, anyone is welcome to take advantage on what we consider to be a significant cultural resource on campus.

Any COTH student who suspects a required screening will be upsetting, offensive, or blasphemous can choose an alternative assignment. Students not enrolled in COTH courses are never required to see any of our films, and I would recommend to those who suspect a film might be distasteful not to see it.

Each year it seems that one of our films generates a little controversy. Last year it was "Wild at Heart," this year it is "Truff or Bare." It goes without saying that all patrons are not like all the films screened. We don't even like all the films we screen, but they are in the Series because we wish to discuss them in class, and our students cannot discuss what they cannot see. From "The Last Temptation of Christ" controversy to today, we still ways to our students individually to have the opportunity to make their own decisions about art and non-art, decency and non-obscenity, blasphemy and non-blasphemy. We would remind the critics that all of our students are over 18 and are therefore adults, and that in controversies involving censorship and freedom the academy should always be on the side of freedom.

We will continue to offer the most comprehensive film series we can. We are very proud of what many feel is one of the best university film series in the country, and I would hope that the series could be evaluated on its total contribution to the university and not on any singular film.

The Department also wishes to thank the Snite and its director, Dean Porter, for its support over the years. The Snite is a gem in all ways, and we are proud that our film series has become part of its lustre.

ND students seek good grades instead of truth

Dear Editor:

Once every 15 years I have frequently attended prayer meetings and bible studies on campus. My interest in prayer and prayer has usually been for the sake of my own personal faith and knowledge of Jesus Christ. I believe God has been answering that prayer.

However, the percentage of students identifying their lives to Jesus is small. This is a mystery in light of the principle purpose of Notre Dame. At an Alumni mass I heard what I believe is a correct musings on why we do it. "Notre Dame is a place to come learn Christianity. And our mission is to spread it wherever we go in this world."

Many students are studying for the wrong reasons. The scriptures do say a Christian is to study to learn. But it says to study to learn the word of God and how to "correctly handle the word of truth." Just to time to express oneself thought enough to graduate and get a good job is not enough. Notre Dame rarely seeks to see the truth and what God's will for us. That is not easy work and without a good effort we might not find either. The things we are being taught are being deceived into working more for good grades and success careers than they are for truth and God's will.

So if God is not even seen they know God, they did not honor Him as God, or give the "honor" to him. Even our fools...exchanging the truth of God for the lie. "Because they received the love of truth they are as so as to be saved...God will send his thick darkened in the world," they will not make up a strable and recognize percentage of Notre Dame. I mean to take away from the tradition and history of the "Victory March" of Notre Dame.

While I am aware that Notre Dame was an all-male school for 139 years, and while this song is not only integral to the life of the student body, and faculty, must now catch up with the times and realize that the female members of the student body do not share every right to be considered a Domer and in the same context, and included part of the Fighting Irish and the "Victory March". I know that after singing the "Victory March" practically three-hundred and four times and always having to label myself as a "son" or "daughter," I know full well that I am not a "son," I would like to just consider the entire Notre Dame student body as a unified whole, a "student body." The following is an example of the revised version of the "Victory March" song in light of the few politically correct institutions of higher learning in America.

Revised Version: Rally ONES of Notre Dame; Sing her glory and sound her fame; With a big smile he remarked, "Don't need no other Gold and Blue And cheer with voices true; Rah, rah for Notre Dame. We will fight in ev'ry game. Strong of heart and true to her. We will no'er forget her And will cheer her ever Loyal to Notre Dame.

Chorus: Cheer, cheer for old Notre Dame. Wake up the echoes cheering To our alma mater. Send a volley cheer on high. Shake down the thunder from the sky. While Notre Dame will win over all In her loyal ONES go marching Onward to victory.

ND should change Victory March

Dear Editor:

As we approach the close of another exciting and fun-filled football season, I feel that it is time to express some thoughts and offer up some suggestions which concern the infamous "Victory March".

The tragedy here is that many who knew God, they did not honor for truth and God's will. Hard work and without a good job is not enough. Our lives should be. This is what the scriptures do say a

Dear Editor:

Jane E. Smiley's letter typifies the intolerant, judgmental attitude of narrow-minded people eager to tell others how to live and act. We are for jackets and not worse than leather jackets in her eyes? Is it because minks don't get to live and cows do not?

Let's be hypocritical. If you feel so strongly about one kind of animal hide, then quit wearing another kind and be consistent. This is one of the few politically correct institutions of higher learning in America.

Revised Version: Rally ONES of Notre Dame; Sing her glory and sound her fame; With a big smile he remarked, "Don't need no other Gold and Blue And cheer with voices true; Rah, rah for Notre Dame. Dear Editor:

Markes

Nov. 19, 1991

After the letter an obviously shaken-up student asked how could what he was saying be true when a class he was taking on evolution gave full credence to the theory. The law professor shocked the student even more when he stated that evolution was a lie and that he was going to have to choose between evolution or monothethism, namely Christianity.

The decision everyone must make is whether to believe God and his gospel and man and a gospel he has created. Who can dispute that most of our institutions, public schools and universities are functioning primarily from evolutionary presuppositions (and consequently are serving money instead of God)?

Unfortunately, even Notre Dame has fallen prey to this counterfeit gospel. She has not been very successful in defending God's word nor in producing students eager to smoke on the Great American Smokout Day, for a man to say he never consider having an abortion, for a naturally thin person to demand that all fat people have to go to the mental hospital.

What happened to tolerance? What happened to accepting the fact that other people see things differently and follow their own consciousness? What happened to "let he who is without sin cast the first stone?" Perhaps Ms. Smiley should ponder that as she orders a huddlesburger.
Want to live off-campus next year? How about a nicely furnished, spacious home with free utilities, meals, and laundry? How about a chance to share with a come-to-life and learn quite a bit about yourself in the process.

Such an opportunity exists at the Dismas House of South Bend. Part of the mission of the non-profit Dismas Inc., originated by Father Hickey in Nashville, is to provide a transitional home, a "stepping-stone" into society for ex-prisoners.

This mission is achieved through the volunteer efforts and donations of local community organizations and churches.

College students play a big part in the Dismas House efforts. Up to eight students can live at the Dismas House in South Bend at a time. Their interaction with ex-prisoners helps to create a supportive environment during the ex-prisoners' efforts to readjust to life and work after release from prison.

It can be a great deal of work for students who live at the House, but the potential return on the investment is multiplied.

Mary Beth Fleming, the resident staff person, describes the Dismas House as a transitional home for both ex-prisoners and students alike.

"The house holds a maximum of 16 people, ideally an eight to eight ratio," according to Fleming. "Since this house opened in 1986," said Fleming, "we've had at most six students. Each resident pays $53 a week, with utilities included. The first week is free for the ex-prisoners, and then the rent is charged to their account, which they pay when they can get a job and a savings account going."

The director of Dismas of Michiana is Bambi Guess-Garner, and another part-time staff member is Sue Kintzele.

Kintzele commented that "all the residents here are the same, and everyone does their share of chores."

The residents' efforts are obvious in the cleaning and excellent appearance of the historical home. There is also a board that lists a number of tasks that have been accomplished by a number of past residents. Kintzele pointed out two residents who had

"The residents here are the same, and everyone does their share of chores."

On Monday through Friday, different groups from the community come to cook and share in dinner with the residents. Every resident must attend the communal dinner at 6:30 p.m.

"Brother Bonaventure, rector of Keenan Hall, brings a crew of students every Monday night and oversees the menu," Fleming noted.

A group usually departs from the back of Keenan Hall every Monday around 4:15 p.m. "Last week we had a whole theology class come and cook dinner," Fleming added.

"The food comes from donations from local groups and restaurants. Other general funds for the House come from grants from The United Way or other organizations."

All of the proceeds from the Planner-Siegfried Players' production of "The Christmas Carol," which will be performed at 8:15 p.m. on December 5, 6, 7, and 8 at Washington Hall, will benefit Dismas of Michiana.

Any students who would like to try a new and rewarding experience for a semester, or would like more information, can call Dismas of Michiana at (219) 233-8522.

Smith may leave OSU for USC
Sophomore running back given permission to transfer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Rob Ruggiero, Ohio State's future is in the mail.
Ohio State athletic director Jim Jones said Wednesday that his office has sent a letter that would end the formal process that would have allowed Buckeye tailback to discuss a transfer to Southern Cal.
Rob Ruggiero contact us, but immediately said that we couldn't talk to him unti.
Robert Smith contacted us, but immediately said that we couldn't talk to him until after the one-on-one meeting with Ohio State's athletic director.
Robert Smith left the Ohio State Athletic Department in August, saying that the coaching staff did not give him any priorities or any little regard for his safety. He is currently attending classes at Ohio State and is on a track scholarship.
He spoke with Jones on Monday and requested that letter that could lead to a transfer discussion in his second letter when he selected Ohio State in the spring of 1990, a lot that's over Thanksgiving weekend.
Smith said he did not try to discourage Smith from transferring to USC.
Smith's 1,126 rushing yards broke Archie Griffin's freshman rushing record at OSU last season.

‘Rocket’ not worried about cold

WINNIEPEN, Manitoba (AP) — Raghbir “Rocket” Ismail isn’t worried about temperatures to the teens when the Toronto Argonauts face the Calgary Stampeders in the Grey Cup on Sunday.

“Beau, I can’t say more than we when we played Penn State when I was at Notre Dame (in 1989),” said Ismail, who is from Wilkes- Barre, Pa. “It was 10 below with a wind-chill factor of 25 below. They told us to put them on the heater in front of my bench. It wasn’t much. I never had the burning that I realized my shoes were on fire.”

In that game, Ismail rushed nine times for 84 yards as the

New Jersey bedevils Caps’ winning streak

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP)—Stefan Richer’s third goal of the game at 1:41 of overtime lifted the New Jersey Devils to a 6-5 victory over Washington on Wednesday night, halting the Capitals’ winning streak at four games.

The winning goal came after Alexei Kasatonov collected a rebound of a Richer shot and backhanded the puck back into the Washington goalmouth. Richer collected it there and slipped a backhand shot past a sprawled Don Beaupre.

The Devils appeared to be on their way to a 5-4 victory in regulation. But Peter Bondra scored his 12th goal in front of the Devils’ net with just 17 seconds to play to send the game into overtime.

Penguins 5, Flyers 2

PITTSBURGH — Kevin Stevens scored his 16th goal to extend his point-scoring streak to 10 games and Jaromir Jagr had a goal and two assists as the Pittsburgh Penguins beat the Philadelphia Flyers 5-2.

Stevens has the NHL’s longest active streak and also tied the career best he set from Oct. 25 to Nov. 14, 1990. He has 13 goals and 11 assists during his streak, longest by a Penguin this season.

The Penguins, 5-2-1 in their NHL career as the Winnipeg Jets, beat the New York Islanders 3-1.

Essensa, named the NHL’s player of the week last week, had nine chances against Fuhr and the Capitals twice as the Devils defeated the New York Islanders 5-2.

The goals gave Huh the league lead with 18, one ahead of Quebec’s Owen Nolan.

The goals were the first for Hull in four games. In his previous two games he had totaled only four shots, but he had nine chances against Fuhr.

The Maple Leafs are in an 0-5-2 slump winless on the road, and are 0-10-1 for the season.

The third point of the plan would set up an investigation of each school’s athletic department, by an independent firm. These investigations would coincide with the normal investigations that take place when an institution renews its accreditation. Under Phelps’ plan, a university then could lose its accreditation because of a corrupt athletic department.

Overall, Phelps message was one of getting involved and giving. He has tried to get involved with as many things as he can, and his retirement has allowed him to do so.

“You can make an impact,” said an exuberant Phelps.

Pendleton grabs first MVP award

Atlantic City, N.J. — Terry Pendleton of the Atlanta Braves won the National League’s Valuable Player Award on Wednesday night, capping a strong season that saw him win the Gold Glove Award for the second straight year.

Pendleton, who was selected in the first round of the 1982 draft, was in his seventh season with the Atlanta Braves. He batted .272 with 24 home runs and 86 RBIs.

This is the first time in his career that he has won a Gold Glove Award.

The Atlanta Braves are expected to again win a Gold Glove Award in the NL this season, making it the third consecutive year that Atlanta has won the award.

If the Braves win the Gold Glove Award, it will be the third time in the franchise’s history that they have won the award. The previous two times were in 1979 and 1980.

Pendleton is the sixth Atlanta player to win the Gold Glove Award in the NL this season. The others are third baseman Ron Gant, catcher Gary Bell, right fielder Greg Maddux, and center fielder Mike O’Hara.

The Atlanta Braves have won the Gold Glove Award a total of 14 times in their history, the most in the NL.

The Gold Glove Award is given to the player in each league who is judged to be the best in his position. The award is sponsored by Rawlings Sporting Goods.

Pendleton is the fourth Atlanta player to win the Gold Glove Award in the NL this season. The others are third baseman Ron Gant, catcher Gary Bell, and left fielder Mike O’Hara.

Dettore named MVP as Keenan fills Leahy all-star team

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Writer

Post-season awards were an-ounced yesterday for the Leahy division of men's inter-hall football. As expected, Keenan dominated, taking the majority of the awards, includ-ing league MVP.

Dave Dettore, a running back and linebacker, was named the division's most valuable player after leading his team in rushing and tackles. Dettore was the main weapon in the Knights' offense, averaging nearly five yards per carry. At linebacker he led a defense which allowed opponents a combined nine points over the entire season.

Dettore was one of eight Keenan players to be selected for the first Team defense, and was also one of six Knights elected to the first team for their offensive accomplishments.

"On offense I would get five yards a carry, thanks to our of-fensive line," said Dettore. "We had a great defense, and because of that I was able to get first-team honors." The first team is commonly known as a dynasty in future years.

Keenan's 14 first-team selections (out of 24) were only three seniors, Dettore, a sophomore, and John Leenfield are the scene of a team which could prove to be a dynasty in future years.

The entire Knight linebacking corps was named all-division, with three players Keenan selected to watch the world. Phelps, the MOC Newcomer of the Year, spikes in a regular-season match against Purdue. Phelps was voted as a second-team All-MCC performer.

Digger returns with something special for captive crowd

By ANTHONY KING
Assistant Sports Editor

An inspired and humorous Digger Phelps spoke last evening about life, community service, academics and basket-ball to a captive audience in the McCourtney Hall.

Phelps intertwined his personal life with interesting side-notes of his life and basketball anecdotes, that served me as an inspiration. Phelps began his lecture舱olengthen each student to take ten years ahead, and to see where he or she will be then. The world, he noted, is changing and we as Americans have to look to see what we have to offer the world.

"I think of what Phelps had a three point plan for straighten-ing out the crisis that he believes college athletics is headed for. His first point is that athletic scholarships cannot be used by coaches until that player grad-uates, with a seven year grace period. Thus, it would benefit the coach to graduate his play-ers in four years, or lose use of the scholarship until either the student graduated or seven years.

The second idea of Phelps was to give each Division I football or basketball player a 2,000 dollar stipend out of the revenues of the NCAA. These former walk-ons to the varsity need and handled by the institution's financial aid department.

"We're living in the dark..." see DIGGER/page 13
