University taps available resources to help students with tuition hike

By ALICIA REALE

With an 8.5 percent increase in undergraduate tuition and fees, the University is tapping endowment and other sources to help affected students to meet these costs, according to Tom Mason, vice president of Business Affairs.

Increasing wages and benefits, new computer facilities and increasing maintenance expense for facilities such as the DeBartolo Classroom Facility are the principal items which contribute to the recent decision to raise tuition.

Increasing endowment to meet the needs of those affected by the tuition increase is a primary concern to the University, according to Mason.

"As we raise tuition we believe we economically impact the student," he said. "Financial aid is intended to offset that."

He said other sources are being tapped for student aid, such as the Sorin Society funds, the income from the NBC-TV football contract and bowl money. "We have a long range commitment to increase endowment for financial aid by 10 million dollars each year for the next ten years," said Mason. Ten million dollars in gifts was received, in addition to a $10 million commitment from NBC, bowl game revenue, marketing revenue and unrestricted gifts.

All these costs which lead to tuition increase have a direct bearing on the academic excellence of the University.

The University will decline if "we don’t have computerization and new buildings," he said.

The University has a commitment to keep the trend line down and hopes to get tuition increases down to 7.9 percent annually.

However, Mason said, "We are not cutting back. We have been a comparatively run and financed University for many years. We have always operated in the black. Part of that is knowing who we are and what we’re about."

Lilly Endowment allows for development of new curriculum in College of Science

By KENYA JOHNSON

Notre Dame’s College of Science plans to develop a new curriculum that emphasizes the relationship between biological sciences and chemical sciences, according to John Duman, Associate Dean of Biological Sciences.

The Lilly Endowment, Inc. of Indianapolis has awarded the University $50,000 to support the College of Science for the program, he said.

"Our main goal is to integrate the biological aspects of chemistry and the chemical aspects of biology," he said. "For the best scientific knowledge, there needs to be an understanding of both."

"I know many under-graduate biology majors wonder why they need chemistry, and the chemistry majors feel they are learning something they will never need."

"One thing they will need is research skills," he said. "I hope this will help them understand the process of research."

"I know you have some biology students who want to do research, so I think this will help them."

"And I believe it will help them understand the process of research."

"I think a lot of students have trouble understanding what research is all about."

The money received from the Lilly Endowment, Inc. will be used to pay the salaries of two new faculty members and cover the costs of a special program in which teachers from basically minority populated schools come and learn more about the sciences and research in order to help prepare their students in their schools.

"We are not only going to create new classes, but change the core of the classes we already have. The Chemistry, Organic Chemistry and Biology will have a few changes in their content-more biology within the chemistry and visa versa."

"In addition to curriculum changes, the University will attempt to have a research program and a high school program.

"The research program will allow Notre Dame students to gain development and knowledge by working in a research laboratory during the summer season. Also during the summer high school students will be involved with a similar research project."

Another benefit will be a special program in which teachers from basically minority populated schools come in and learn more about the sciences and research in order to help prepare their students in their schools.

Catholicism must confront hard questions

Undeniably, Notre Dame is the largest national, Catholic university. As such, it is the duty of her students and faculty to reflect upon the changing needs and demands that the Church places on its members.

The need for economic and social justice is increasingly throughout our land, as the consumptive attitude of the eighties dropped the number of priests, sisters and brothers that help remain effective pastors.

Air Force colonel honored

Notre Dame - On August 31 a flag retreat was held in honor of Colonel Howard T. Hanson, the former professor of aerospace studies for Notre Dame Air Force Detachment 225 (1988-92). After 30 years of serving his country, Hanson retired from the Air Force, and he was recognized Monday for his leadership to the Notre Dame Air Force ROTC. Hanson was a command pilot with over 5,500 flying hours, including 317 combat mission in the F-100 over the Republic of Vietnam. His military decorations include the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Flying Cross with three oak leaf clusters, and the Air Medal with 16 oak leaf clusters.

Pet semetery owners sued and jailed

Mineola, N.Y. - A couple who sued a pet cemetery for allegedly tossing their dog into a mass grave instead of burying the animal under his headstone with its collar, its toys and its pink blanket have been awarded $1.2 million. State Supreme Court Justice Stuart A. on Monday ordered the Long Island Pet Cemetery to pay $600,000 each in compensatory and punitive damages to Joyce Walp, 45, and Michael Bachman, 36, of Island Park. Walp and Bachman testified that they had to undergo psychological therapy because of the way their 10-year-old Old English sheepdog, Ruffin, was buried. The owners of the cemetery -- Samuel Strauss and Roberta Strauss of Boca Raton, Fla., and his son Alan, 35, of Dix Hills -- were convicted of fraud in federal court and sentenced to five years in prison.

Shirt sales 'snowballing'
Hall Presidents’ Council told

By BEVIN KOVALIK
News Writer

"The Shirt" sales project has been rapidly snowballing and 24,000 of the 30,000 shirts have already been sold, according to Steve Hank at last night's Hall Presidents' Council (HPC) meeting.

There have been supply problems, however, because "The Shirt" has been selling so quickly and it takes six to eight weeks to reorder this style of shirt, he said.

We better pray that we beat Michigan to further increase shirt sales, he said. "If we win, Notre Dame may break a merchandising record," Hank said.

According to HPC co-chair Jason Coyle, money will be allocated to the dorms based on how well each hall sells the shirt. Coyle added that HPC may be tripling its revenue.

Joyce Steele from Madison Center asked HPC to help sponsor campus sales of a Lou Holtz mask to benefit the center's non-profit programs at the Center For The Homeless, an organization serving people who suffer from poverty, illness or sexual abuse.

Steele hopes to sell 30,000 masks for $2 each throughout October. Included in the price of each mask is a raffle ticket for prizes such as a Hawaii trip, $500 grocery shopping spree or two Bulls game tickets, Steele said.

CAUSA and student government are combining efforts to raise money for the Hurricane Andrew Relief Fund, according to George Rau of student government.

They will be collecting contributions in the dining halls, LaFortune and through the hall presidents at masses in the dorms, Rau said.

Security will institute a frequent walker program where students can arrange for Safewalk to escort them home at pre-arranged times specific nights of the week, R.G. Starmann of Safewalk.

"This program will be ideal for students who work at places like LaFortune late at night," Starmann said.

Bayh, Pearson disagree on fiscal management

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Evan Bayh and Republican challenger Linley Pearson didn't mince words Tuesday as they attacked each other's records in the first — and probably only — debate of the gubernatorial campaign.

Pearson, the three-term attorney general, used the words "fraud" and "con game" to describe Bayh's description of his fiscal management and said the governor's attempts to portray Pearson as favoring education cuts was "an outright lie."

Bayh accused Pearson of "doing desperate things" during the campaign, running high budgets in his attorney general's office and failing to live up to a promise to publicly announce his fiscal plan for the state.

The heated debate took place during the taping of the 30-minute cable television show, "Inside Indiana Government," and it was only a prelude to more intense exchanges afterward.

Pearson accused Bayh of ducking further debates and trying to dominate the little time allotted for Tuesday's exchange.

"He's afraid of me. He won't come out and debate me," Pearson said. "There's an open invitation. I'll do it any way you want, any time you want."

While Pearson was holding a 40-minute news conference after the debate, Bayh left the television studio to fly to Bloomfield for an appearance Tuesday night. A campaign adviser, Democratic Party Executive Director Ann DeLaney said, there probably would be no more joint appearances and she blamed that on Pearson's behavior.

"I never thought he would stoop that low," DeLaney said of Pearson's critiques of Bayh.

"I don't expect to agree with his (Pearson's) characterization of the governor's record. I don't expect the two to agree on issues," DeLaney said. "But I don't expect him to resort to personal attacks as he did today."

She said it's "extremely unlikely" that there will be another debate or joint appearance of the candidates if Pearson persists in criticizing Bayh without offering a detailed plan of his own.

The two candidates offered outlines of their plans during the brief time allotted to them during the debate.

Bayh said his priorities have been and will continue to be creating jobs, providing a quality education for Hoosier children and exerting sound management over the state's finances.

Pearson replied that Bayh inherited the largest surplus in the state's history, signed deficit budgets, put off payments to local schools and government to make the state's books appear better than they are and allowed property taxes to rise.

The Republican challenged Bayh to take a no-new-taxes pledge, which Pearson did when he announced his candidacy.

Bayh ignored Pearson's challenge, and DeLaney said later that the governor stands by his position that he needs to see budget projections after the election before he could make any promise on taxes.

The University is heavily dependent on tuition for revenue. "Every time a new expense is incurred, the largest part of the budget is from tuition. It ends up bearing that burden," said Mason.

Most endowment is restricted for specific purposes, such as endowed chairs and scholarships. Thus, it is not available for the general running of the University, according to Mason.

"We try to set our priorities such as faculty salaries and student priorities," he said. For example the new volleyball courts were put in because they were thought to be a priority to students, according to Mason.

In a letter to parents of 1992-93 undergraduate students, University President Father Edward Malloy noted that all these costs have a direct bearing on the academic excellence of the University.

Also in the letter, Malloy noted that NO continues to rank among the least expensive of the nation's highly selective private universities.

The commission is still trying to find out about what U.N. officials describe as "gray areas" in the Iraqi program, including data on Western weapons suppliers who helped Iraq develop its nuclear program.

The current team, which arrived in Baghdad on Monday, is scheduled to stay in Iraq until Sept. 7.

Fourteen U.N. chemical weapons experts also arrived Monday, joining 15 already there permanently.

The chemical weapons team is about to begin destroying an arsenal of more than 40,000 chemical munitions at the Muthana facility, 80 miles northwest of Baghdad. The site was heavily hit during the 1991 Gulf War, and some of the munitions are leaking.

More than 40 weapons teams were thought to be a priority to the University, according to Mason.

Also in the letter, Malloy noted that NO continues to rank among the least expensive of the nation's highly selective private universities.

Arab world in agreement concerning Iraq: confrontation to occur before U.S. election

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — The Arab world is uncertain about how the allied confrontation with Iraq will end, but is in surprising agreement on when it will happen: in time to affect the U.S. election.

In contrast to the Gulf War, most of the Arab world is siting on the sidelines and privately criticizing President Bush for embroiling the region in a potentially damaging conflict.

Bush has adamantly denied any political motivation for the latest showdown with Baghdad, insisting he was acting only on the basis of what was good for national security.

But Arab nations that supported the United States in last year's conflict have voiced grave misgivings about the consequences of militarily challenging Saddam Hussein again. They are concerned, particularly in the Persian Gulf, that if Iraq will exploit Iraq's collapse to push its perceived ambitions to be the dominant military power in the region.

Fears also exist that any clash with Iraq could derail the fragile Arab-Israeli peace process. A recent editorial in Al-Ahram, Egypt's leading newspaper, indicated the skepticism about the venture in Arab capitals.

"The Bush administration had to, in one way or another, stiffen its position with Iraq to achieve honorable results for the presidential election," Al-Ahram said.

"The Bush administration needs to concentrate on external gains to compensate for its lack in internal policy." The paper suggested there would be "military moves and quick air strikes to show America's global leadership." Britain, France and Russia have joined the United States in forbidding Iraqi planes from flying south of the 32nd parallel, to protect Shiite Muslims sheltering in Iraq's southern marshes.

So far, the allies have support from just two Arab nations: Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

Chairman Saddam Hussein again. They are concerned, particularly in the Persian Gulf, that if Iraq will exploit Iraq's collapse to push its perceived ambitions to be the dominant military power in the region.

Saudi Arabia has provided bases for allied aircraft and has been flying support missions for the U.S.-led patrols, but reportedly not in Iraqi air space. Kuwait, liberated from Iraqi occupation 18 months ago, has publicly supported Operation Southern Watch. But under last year's cease-fire terms, the emirate cannot provide forces or logistical support for allied operations.

Still, throughout the Middle East, there is widespread expectation of some military action before Bush faces Democrat Bill Clinton on Nov. 3. Rosemary Hollis, a Middle East expert at the London-based Royal United Services Institute for Defense Studies, just returned from a visit to the region and said she found "a lot of cynicism...about this being done to boost President Bush's re-election chances." Saddam has vehemently rejected the flight ban, but so far has done nothing to challenge it.
Clinton faults Bush on proposed Medicare cuts; pledges more health care

On Tuesday, Bill Clinton held out his pledge of health care for all Americans as a contrast to what he said were President Bush's efforts to "drive a double-whammy" on medical costs for the elderly.

"That's it!" Radnay, who waited 90 minutes, said after the vice president spoke for just a minute or two.

Then it was a few more handshakes and back on the bus for Quayle, bound for Richland, Dawson and then on to Cussetta and beyond as the vice president visited tiny towns dotting southwest Georgia.

In President Bush's quest for 30 million older Americans as a contrast to what he said were President Bush's goals would costs thousands if not millions of jobs.

"Big right, we would split the South with Clinton, is the assessment of South Carolina Gov. Carroll Campbell, regional chairman of the Bush campaign.

Quayle's message is much like four years ago, thinly small-town America on behalf of the Republican ticket.

Before generally small, safe crowds, Quayle extols Bush as champion of traditional family values and seasoned commander in chief. He derides Bill Clinton as a "slick politician" who wants a "no frills" policy that would ultimately pass on costs to the rest of America.

Clinton was bound for Baltimore and then a day and a half of campaigning in the nation's capital. He planned to visit Miami on Thursday to tour hurricane damage areas.

Natural gas vehicles being tested

By LORI LINDLEY
News Writer

In an effort to improve the air quality at Notre Dame and in the community, the Transportation Services Department has combined with Northern Indiana Public Service Company (NIPSCO) in a project to convert six gasoline-operated Notre Dame service vehicles to natural gas-operated. "Natural gas burns cleaner," said Transportation Services Director Marty Ogren. "There are practically no ozone-harming emissions."

The second major benefit comes directly out of the conversion is that $6.50 a gallon natural gas is considerably less expensive than gasoline, which costs around $1.00 a gallon.

The vehicles have just completed a 90-day trial and tune-up period using NIPSCO gas, and are scheduled to begin a two-year testing period on September 15. During this two-year period the performance and efficiency of the six vehicles will be compared with that of an identical vehicle that is converted but runs on gas alone.

"We're going to test the vehicle on a side by side and see what our savings are in running on natural gas," said Ogren. "With natural gas the engines burn cleaner, the tune-ups will be less, the maintenance will be less, the wear on the vehicle will be less—we already know that."

The test will simply give OWU numbers to those who may determine how many more vehicles, if any, should be converted.

The process of converting the vehicle cost roughly $2000 and takes seven to ten days. NIPSCO, whose station on the north side of campus is going to sell us the gas, said Ogren. "You can get service from the station and they will respond now, so this is a good test for us," said Ogren.

The vehicles that have been converted are a full-size van, two step vans and one cargo van.

Robert Johansen, a Notre Dame professor of environmental studies, has been following the natural gas program for several years. He was optimistic about the program and anticipates the conversion to natural gas if the results from the testing period are favorable.

"The university is anxious to do this because of the clean air benefits," said Ogren. "After the two-year period we'll decide how many to convert, maybe the whole fleet. It's too early to tell, but that's the goal."
Could smokers be the ‘saviors of the universe’?

The following is by no means a comprehensive walk through the attributes of smoking and smokers, which result in their being the ‘saviors of the universe.’ And woe to those who do not heed this apocryphal advice.

Smokers are a populous, culturally significant group, in conjunction with their corporate sponsors, an extraordinarily well-funded special interest group. This makes them appealing policy partners.

You will come to see that they constitute a voting block whose pleasure is necessary for the very continuance of the republic.

There is a bond among smokers which cuts across ethnic, race, and socio-economic lines. Watch the little microcosm of humanity which congregates cheerfully around small talk which the less fortunate members of the society must endure in the quest for romance and adventure.

Smokers contribute to the economy and the livelihood of thousands of your fellow citizens. In addition, the paraphernalia associated with smoking sustains thousands of small businesses.

I can't spit and I hate beef jerky ... I'm not very burly.

My 18th birthday, the arrival of my adulthood, brought the age-old masculine doubts of "Would they like the way I look? Would they like the way I smell? Would they like the way I act? Would I fit in with their group?"

Later, on my face for war paint. Armed with the plunger and howled a war cry to

I held aloft my toilet bowl and froze; not a foot from my hand

"Stop!"

"But what if it's nesting because it's pregnant?" I whimpered, "I can't kill pups." Then the damnable creature escaped from my garage.

I thought, "I've been to Notre Dame basketball games. Sometimes I've picked up my kids at the Notre Dame basketball games."

The Notre Dame basketball games... I didn't want to be there. I didn't want to be there... I didn't want to be there....

I thought, "I hate beef jerky, I hate it... I hate it... I hate it..."

"I hate beef jerky."

"You are the big brother they never had." —Chris Zepf

The students and kids are encouraged to keep in contact over the summer. Mehling invited her little sister, Sharran Reed, 11, to visit her this past summer in Chicago. They spent their weekend visiting North Avenue Beach, baking cookies and shopping.

When a child is matched up with a big brother or sister, he or she stays with that person as long as they are in the program to ensure a strong friendship develops between the two.

Graves and Zepf have been together for three years, and an obvious positive influence in that time is the increase in the children's school performance has been increased. According to Zepf, the children's grades have steadily improved.

"Being in this program is a good experience." said Walsh. "I was fortunate to come from a good family and it is an opportunity to give back to the community. You get a chance to give a positive impression while they are still young."

Top seeds advance, DiLucia falls in U.S. Open first-round

NEW YORK (AP) — Boris Becker, without the "boom" or the bombast, broke out enough groundstrokes today to bounce Kevin Curren in the opening round of the U.S. Open.

In a subdued performance between two old foes, the seventh-seeded Becker slammed only eight aces as he eliminated Curren 6-2, 5-7, 6-3, 6-4 in a match that was two minutes short of two hours.

But today's match had none of the flair nor the fireworks that punctuated their first meeting, the 1985 Wimbledon final, which rocketed the German to fame as a 17-year-old champion.

Curren, whose serve once was considered the biggest in tennis, finished with seven aces.

Earlier, Gabriela Sabatini, shaking off the dust of inactivity, powered her way into the second round while No. 10 Jana Novotna of Czechoslovakia defeated No. 11 Anke Huber become the first seeded players to lose in the year's final Grand Slam tournament.

DuBose, continued from page 16 and the Courtney's made the loan out of interest in DuBose's academic development.

The NCAA also investigated statements that DuBose illegally obtained a car loan. According to Rosenthal, the NCAA found that DuBose did not market his professional earnings potential or pledge his career-ending injury insurance as security in order to obtain the loan.

The NCAA ruled that the car loan that DuBose obtained was not in violation of its amateur provisions.

Holtz spoke to DuBose briefly yesterday about the ruling, but did not have a chance to talk with the team about the situation. DuBose's response to the ruling is expected today.

Arnsparger makes NFL comeback to improve struggling San Diego defense

SAN DIEGO (AP) — First there were the No-Names. Then the Killer B's.

Now it's Arnsparger's turn. There are some weaknesses, most notably in the secondary, and unsigned tackle Joe Phillips says he won't play if he's not ready.

But there are standouts players, including Junior Seau, who's been moved from inside linebacker to the right outside position, right end Junior Seau, who's been moved from inside linebacker to the right outside position, right end.

"That's what's impressed me is we have talent and those individuals are working together to have a good team," said Arnsparger, who's switched from a 3-4 alignment to a 4-3.

Arnsparger, 65, was head coach at LSU from 1984-86. He was the athletic director at Florida for nearly five years before being hired on Jan. 13 by new Chargers coach Bobby Ross.

Ross was Arnsparger's defensive coordinator at Miami in 1983, the season after their last playoff appearance.

Canseco stunned by trade to Rangers

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jose Canseco, embodiment of the Oakland Athletics' brash, bruisin style, took the news quietly.

As he readied for a first-inning at-bat Monday night against Baltimore, Canseco was called back for pinch-hitter Lance Blankenship and, in the runway, manager Tony La Russa told him he had been traded.

"I feel awkward and strange right now," Canseco said. "It really hasn't hit me yet."

"I'm disappointed I won't be around to enjoy the A's the success the remainder of the season. I can't really feel any positive emotions when I've just been traded from the (organization) I've been with for 10 years."

Canseco, a two-time AL home run champion who was hitting .246 with 22 homers and 72 RBIs, was sent to the Texas Rangers in exchange for outfielder Ruben Sierra, pitcher Bobby Witt, reliever Jeff Russell and cash.

The first-place A's sought more experience and depth in their pitching staff for the pennant stretch run, and they gave up one of baseball's most dynamic players to get it. Sierra is expected to replace Canseco in right field.

"It wasn't one of my happiest days, calling Jose he was involved in a trade," La Russa said. "But I think we're taking our best shot at finishing off the division, and if we can finish it, this sets us up for the post-season better."

Canseco, 28, had begun the season playing right field in the game, which Baltimore won 4-0.

After he was told of the trade, he cleaned out his locker. He sat in the locker room for several minutes in stunned disbelief and — still dressed in his Oakland uniform — addressed a news conference in the basement of the Coliseum.

"From their view it makes a lot of sense from a business point of view," Canseco said. "I think it's an indication it's time to move on."

A Rangers spokesman said today that Canseco would join the team on Thursday in New York.

Canseco's awesome power helped the A's win the AL pennant in 1988 and a World Series title in 1989. The A's also won the AL pennant in 1990, but were upset in the Series by Cincinnati.

Canseco often has had some controversial moments with the A's, including this year when he left a game at Oakland in the eighth inning, sparking the ire of several teammates.

His off-field demeanor has also been controversial as he received a number of celebrated speeding tickets and had some public domestic problems with his wife.

But Canseco's contributions on the field were enormous.

"It's a sad day really," A's reliever Dennis Eckersley said. "As a team, I think we'll be a better team because we needed pitching and we got it."

"But he's a great player. I feel sorry for him because I know there's a lot of emotions that go with it, regardless of how strong of a person you are. When you spend a lot of time in one place, it's kind of hard to swallow."

Jose Canseco will be taking batting practice in a Texas Rangers uniform beginning tomorrow.

DuBose suspended by NCAA

Senior captain will sit out Northwestern, Michigan

BY JENNY MARTEN

Associate Sports Editor

Ending speculation about the fate of senior captain Demetrius DuBose, the NCAA announced late yesterday afternoon that it has suspended DuBose for the first two games of the season.

Notre Dame head coach Lou Holtz has accepted the NCAA's ruling.

"I don't have a turning reaction either way. I didn't go into it with any preconceived notions about what would happen," said Holtz. "Notre Dame has accepted the decision and I accept the decision."

The University was notified by phone Tuesday afternoon that the NCAA had reached a decision about DuBose's suspension in the Demetrius DuBose situation. An NCAA official response is expected today.

According to Notre Dame athletic director Dick Rosenthal, DuBose was open about his relationship with the Courtseys.

"Demetrius has worked closely with the NCAA since information regarding him first came to light, and the University has cooperated throughout the process.

There was never any intent on the part of Demetrius to break NCAA rules. He was upgrading his own eligibility and we're proud of him for his complete cooperation and honesty in getting the matter resolved. The NCAA indicated to us it was impressed with his spirit of cooperation and honesty throughout the process," said Rosenthal.

Holtz was pleased with the way DuBose handled the situation.

"He was very honest and forthright. He didn't think he had done anything wrong," said Holtz.

The NCAA's decision will prevent DuBose from playing against Northwestern and Michigan. With the Demetrius DuBose situation, it may cause nervousness, sweating, and hallucination.

"Any time you lose an athlete, it has an effect. We didn't know what the decision would be when we started the year," said Holtz. "Instead of working Demetrius (at practice), we'll work Berich."

The situation came into public scrutiny at the end of August when Los Angeles Times reported that DuBose had received a $5000 loan from the Courtseys. According to NCAA findings, the amount of the loan was only $600.

For the time being, Lou Holtz's well-deserved reputation for humility is intact. Yesterday, the Irish football coach dismissed any notion that his 1992 team is a solid unit, opting instead to explain each weakness he has observed during the first few weeks of fall practice.

In his first pregame press conference of the 1992 season, Holtz fretted characteristically, expressing concern about his outside linebackers, defensive line and running backs. But the seventh-year Irish coach reserved his most troubling tone for his comments about his offensive line.

"A moderately serious knee injury Monday to starting right guard Todd Norman has caused a shuffling of the Irish line which could give senior tackle Lance Johnson a shot at starting."

The Wolverine backfield is considered by many experts to be the finest in the country. The combination of Powers, Tywee Williams, and Jesse Johnson is close to the perfect offensive line combination.

For the time being, Lou Holtz's well-deserved reputation for humility is intact. Yesterday, the Irish football coach dismissed any notion that his 1992 team is a solid unit, opting instead to explain each weakness he has observed during the first few weeks of fall practice.

In his first pregame press conference of the 1992 season, Holtz fretted characteristically, expressing concern about his outside linebackers, defensive line and running backs. But the seventh-year Irish coach reserved his most troubling tone for his comments about his offensive line.

"A moderately serious knee injury Monday to starting right guard Todd Norman has caused a shuffling of the Irish line which could give senior tackle Lance Johnson a shot at starting."

The Wolverine backfield is considered by many experts to be the finest in the country. The combination of Powers, Tywee Williams, and Jesse Johnson is close to the perfect offensive line combination.

The situation came into public scrutiny at the end of August when the Los Angeles Times reported that DuBose had received a $5000 loan from the Courtseys. According to NCAA findings, the amount of the loan was only $600.

Holtz's pessimism remains intact
