Loretto
renovation underway

By JENNIFER HABRYCH

Controversy has subsided on the Saint Mary's campus now that renovation of the Church of Our Lady of Loretto has begun, according to Joanne Mullin, director of communications for the Sisters of the Holy Cross.

Renovation, which was originally scheduled to begin in November 1991, was postponed for two years due to the unification of the Sisters of the Holy Cross. The renovation is scheduled to be completed by February 1994.

The project, which was unveiled to the sisters during the sesquicentennial celebration of the Sisters of the Holy Cross in July 1991 and to Saint Mary's students in September, was met with opposition in the school. Students in favor of it (the renovation) opposed to it (the demolition) were in favor of it (the renovation) opposed to it (the demolition). "Only a fraction of the community (of sisters) were opposed to it," said Mullin. "About 90 percent of the sisters were in favor of the renovation."

Most of the opposition came from student concerns and questions about the move, according to Joanne Mullin.

"They were apprehensive about the renovation, wondering what was going to happen to the building," said Mullin. "They were also concerned about the noise level during the renovation."
Clinton must lead "Decade of Women"

This year has been dubbed the "Year of the Woman," and, in many ways, has lived up to the hype. In the recent elections, women’s membership in the Senate increased from two to six, and, according to a study by the Center for the American Women in Politics (CAWP), women legislators are 30 percent more likely to support a pro-woman bill than their male colleagues. The survey also indicated that 75 percent of female legislators said the presence of women in the church and society, but church perspectives about it remain blurred. Criticism from interest groups and friction among the bishops themselves are likely to push bishops to abandon, for now, an attempt to turn out a pastoral teaching letter on women. "I don’t think there’s much chance it will get the two-thirds majority it needs," said Bishop Joseph Imesch of Joliet, Ill., head of a six-bishop committee during nine years of trying to shape an acceptable document. This is "absolutely the last round," he added in a telephone interview. The bishops, instead of issuing a pastoral letter, may settle for some less authoritative document, perhaps only a statement or brief summary of the problem, as suggested by some bishops, if the impasse can’t be broken.

Sawyer sued for libel and slander

TULSA, Okla.—Television evangelist Robert Tilton is suing ABC News and reporter Diane Sawyer, alleging an expose on his ministry was combined with "rumors, gossip, half-truths and lies." Tilton, head of the 8,000-member Word of Faith congregation near Dallas, alleged a "PrimeTime Live" broadcast on Nov. 21, 1991, and re-broadcast in July, libeled his church and ministry. The lawsuit was filed Tuesday in federal court. ABC News spokeswoman Teri Everett said Wednesday the company had not been notified of the lawsuit and declined to comment. The lawsuit focuses on allegations that Tilton gets his holy water from Taiwan, fails to pray personally over prayer requests, and fails to send money to an orphanage in Haiti as he claims.

START to honor special SMC alumnae

By KATIE O'CONNOR
News Writer

Student Alumnae Relations (STAR) is a new program sponsored by the Student Alumnae Association (SAA) which represents an alumna and a current student for their accomplishments that stand out among the Saint Mary's family, according to senior Lisa Campione, SAA chairperson.

Carrie Cummins, class of '92, initiated this activity last spring as chairperson of SAA last year. Mass mailings were sent out to faculty, students and Alumnae Club presidents in September explaining STAR. Applications were attached to a letter encouraging all of the Saint Mary's community to participate, said Campione. Applications submitted are judged by a board of three students: Campione, Liz Janz, senior representative; and Carolyn Withers, sophomore representative. There is no set criteria for acceptance and each nominee is judged separately by their accomplishments, according to Campione.

"I encourage both faculty and students to continue nominating current students and alumnae. We have been pleased so far with the response," she said. She hopes to bring strong awareness to current students of many possibilities of the future. STAR also helps to display a diversity and awareness of Alumnae achievements.

The October recipients include: Mina Costin, Class of '47 and Marguerite Schropp, Class of '93. November recipients are: Mary Jeanne Rockne Kochendorfer, Class of '41 and Marisa Graf, Class of '93.

A bulletin board with the monthly recipients remains on display in the Great Hall in Le Mans Hall at Saint Mary's. Nominations will be accepted throughout the year and students are encouraged to nominate fellow classmates. The due date for nominations is the fifteenth of every month.

Panel: Author believed in equal education for women

By MARY MURPHY
News Writer

Mary Wolstonecraft believed in equality of education for women and felt that women could have the same chances as men given the opportunity of continued education, according to a student panel last night that discussed her ideas and views.

Wolstonecraft's "A Vindication of the Rights of Woman" discusses women's education and urges females to take on new careers in society and continue with their role in the family, which panellists agreed and disagreed with.

She also believed in the idea of co-educational schooling for men and women, said panellists. She wrote that it would remove gender stereotyping.

The discussion entailed different aspects and opinions presented by Saint Mary's students. Excerpts from her book were read to illustrate her views on equality for women.

The lecture and discussion added to a week long series celebrating the 200th anniversary of Wolstonecraft's publication. Students and faculty are invited to the remaining two lectures Thursday and Friday, 4 p.m. and 12:15 p.m., respectively. Both lectures will be held in Stapleton Lounge, Le Mans Hall.

many were executed or how many were still living in the former Soviet Union. Committee aides did not immediately make available any of the information that Volkogonov turned over to the panel.

Kerry also said it was too early to say definitively whether any Americans captured in Korea or Vietnam were later taken to the former Soviet Union.

"I think you have to go through this process considerably further before you start making judgments," he told reporters.

The committee is finishing its work and plans to issue a report in mid-December before it goes out of existence at the end of the year. Some committee members planned to visit Southeast Asia this month.

Yeltsin's letter said that the U.S.-Russian commission "has found traces of American citizens' stay in camps and prisons of the former U.S.S.R. and discovered shocking facts of the former Soviet Union."

Yeltsin legalizes some self-defense weapons

MOSCOW (AP) — On Tuesday, President Boris Yeltsin handed down his own edict, legalizing some self-defense weapons, including hunting rifles for farmers and tear-gas guns and canisters for ordinary Russians. Under Yeltsin's free-market reforms, Russia's streets have become considerably meaner, a fact that has amazed citizens of any age. They do not lay their hands on.

A poll of 934 Russians in the November '92 newspaper Moscow-Khronika Pravda found that half waved a weapon; they were about evenly split between tear-gas guns and canisters, and guns that shoot bullets. Six percent wanted machine guns.

Fears fuel the scramble for guns. Russia's crime rate rose 33 percent in the first half of this year, from 1 million total crimes to 1.3 million, police officials said. Murderers and other violent crimes were up by one-fourth, 185,000 reported.

But Russian law enforcement officials have learned from their Western counterparts: when people have guns, they tend to use them.

"The more weapons people carry, the riskier the situation will grow for us," said Yuri Lazarak, deputy head of the Security Ministry's anti-terrorist department. "So I think it would be better to have fewer arms around. The fewer, the better."

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Sgt. Gregory Lawrence and Pvt. James Wilson sit in a camouflaged military vehicle on the median of Interstate 295 and watch for an unknown enemy, lurking in the shadows or in a passing car.

The two are among 150 Florida National Guardsmen involved in "Operation Overpass," designed to protect motorists on a highway where a series of sniper and rock-throwing attacks have killed one person and injured others.

The patrols began Friday night, two days after the American Automobile Association issued a warning to motorists to avoid the busy highway, a major gateway for tourists entering Florida from the north.

On Wednesday, police announced the arrest of two teen-age boys in one attack in which a woman was shot in the ear. The two were charged with attempted murder.

Lawrence and Wilson are members of the Florida National Guard's 144th Signal Battalion. They just spent more than a month in south Florida after Hurricane Andrew.

S&L executives say Clinton will help

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Savings and loan executives and economists say mortgage rates could start declining again if President-elect Clinton proves to financial markets he isn't going to enlarge the budget deficit.

Since early September, when average interest on 30-year fixed-rate mortgages hit a 19-year low of 7.84 percent, rates have jumped up by nearly half a percentage point.

That's a reflection of the financial markets' nervousness over what Clinton might do, said executives and others attending the final session of the Savings & Community Bankers of America convention on Wednesday.

If the new president wants to see rates stabilize or even edge down, he must couple any effort to stimulate economic growth with a credible plan to reduce the deficit, they said.

"That's essential to prevent an increase in interest rates from offsetting the economic effect of any stimulus from increased government spending or tax cuts, they said.

Marin Regalia, chief economist of the trade group, said he believed Clinton would resist calls from liberal Democrats and keep his economic package relatively moderate.

If that happens, mortgage rates, which hit a four-month high of 8.29 percent last week according to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., could fall as low as 7.75 percent or 7.25 percent by the middle of next year, he said. If not, they could shoot up over 9 percent, he said.

"I think Clinton's a pretty sharp guy, and I think his advisers are pretty sharp," Regalia said. "They have a guy with a mandate, and they don't want to mess it up by doing something stupid that causes financial markets to react badly."

"If they do this one right, they could be looking at a fairly long run of a reasonably good economy.

Clinton to deal with U.S. military position on gays

WASHINGTON (AP) — As president, Bill Clinton will be forced to deal with one of the most explosive issues affecting the military in decades — the Pentagon’s 50-year ban on homosexuals and his promise to end it.

Clinton has not said when or how such a policy change would be instituted. And few inside the Pentagon have begun to prepare the military’s 1.8 million members for such a major change, officials say.

Just Tuesday, a federal judge in Los Angeles reaffirmed his order that the Navy reinstate a homosexual sailor, though the judge did not rule on the overall issue of whether the military ban is legal under the Constitution.

The president-elect said he intends to consult with military leaders about “the mechanics” of a change in policy, but did not say when that might occur.

EDITIVAL

The readers have spoken, and the editors respond

Dear Readers:

There's a system that functions in the belief that if all people have an equal voice, then the voice of justice will be victorious.

Over the last two years, Viewpoint has tried to follow that system — which unfortunately has meant allowing the voice of injustice to be heard along with the others.

On occasion, different individuals have expressed views trying to blame society's ills on a particular group. One blamed African Americans, another Caucasians, then gays and lesbians, the Japanese, Catholics, Jews and even the mainlander as well as others.

In each case, a public denunciation of the divisive views quickly followed — readers reacting against the people's overwhelming choice for equality and justice.

This system believes that silencing unjust ideologies isn't the answer, but that public exposure of all ideas and beliefs inside and outside the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community and to all readers. The free expression of varying opinions through letters is encouraged.

For others more studied, the rhetoric conjured immediate and horrifying images of the American system. And without you, it doesn't work.

I'm now serving my second term as Viewpoint Editor. My goal from the beginning was to make this section minit the American system as much as possible. My efforts to create a more democratic forum sometimes required surrendering some of the monopoly of the editorship for the sake of the public reading.

One change was opening the "Quote of the Day" section to reader participation — instead of the quotes being preselected by one person — resulting in a broader spectrum of opinion.

Another change was establishing a weekly poetry column, "Thursday's Verse," which again empowers our readers to submit more diverse thoughts and reflections outside standard prose.

The final change, lifting the Viewpoint policy restriction on the views of "unbalanced minds" has become the most controversial, and required the most trust in our readership.

My reasoning was to let the public see what kind of views are really out there and let them be the judges of what is and isn't "unbalanced" by reader response. The editorial board unanimously approved the change and the reins of control were loosened.

The Viewpoint is a college newspaper and college is the place to be experimental — to test limits, to be able to face the dragon in the darkest ideologies and fight the good fight.

As we worked to create a more free atmosphere, interest and participation increased — and the Viewpoint section increased from one or two pages a day to two or three.

The system was working — people from much more diverse walks of life and beliefs inside and outside the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's community were taking their stands.

Then one recent day — last Thursday — a man took the stand, spouting off extremist rhetoric. To many readers, it was long-winded and incomprehensible ramblings about some ambiguous "slave law."

For others more studied, the rhetoric conjured immediate and horrifying reminders of one of the darkest moments in recorded history — that of the mass and insane persecution of a whole people.

These readers were not challenged by the dialogue, but were angered that such ideology would be printed in a respectable public forum, especially with no warning or disclaimer.

The American experiment wasn't working as it was intended. The excess of freedom — which I take full responsibility for — actually hindered the purpose of freedom by limiting a clear discussion of the column's content. As they say, ideals are great … until they're put to use.

Again, the Viewpoint section is for the readers. You have spoken, and we have heard your message.

Now the reins are a little tighter, as the following Editorial Board clarifications indicate. But these moves should not be viewed as a hindrance to free discussion. Instead, our decisions reflect our commitment to protecting free speech within a context that neither confuses nor calls into question anything but the issues at hand.

—Joe Moody

Viewpoint Editor

The following clarifications were passed unanimously by The Observer's Editorial Board on Nov. 11, 1992:

1. "Guest Columns" have always reflected the perspectives of readers initiating dialogue on a particular subject in a format longer than typical letters. However, the title was misconstrued by many who thought the views somehow reflected The Observer's, or appeared as an invitation by the Editorial Board.

2. To avoid further misunderstanding, the Editorial Board has eliminated the label entirely. Hereafter, only regular Viewpoint columnists or Observer staff columnists will be designated as such. All other material will appear as Letters to the Editor. We believe this will eliminate further confusion about material with the Viewpoint section.

3. Many readers were further confused by the Viewpoint policy with respect to printing or reprinting material. While libel and personal slander are not allowed, certain material is not protected (all other material will appear as Letters to the Editor). The free expression of varying opinions through letters is encouraged.

4. The Editorial Board has eliminated the idea that the "Quote of the Day" section is a forum for all types of material. It is our belief that warning the reader to the serious nature of the piece in question.

5. For others more studied, the rhetoric conjured immediate and horrifying reminders of one of the darkest moments in recorded history — that of the mass and insane persecution of a whole people.

Author Kevin Coyne immerses himself in campus activities in preparation for his book about life at Notre Dame

By JAHNELL HARRIGAN

Accent Editor

He came to Notre Dame in August with the class of 1996. But he's not alone. And when he leaves with the class of 1993 in May, he won't have a diploma. But what he will have is a view of the University like no other.

Living in South Bend this year, author Kevin Coyne is writing a book about what takes place on campus in a single year at Notre Dame. "I'm trying to combine the experiences of all students of all years in one person. I'm trying to get a taste of everybody's experiences here," Coyne said.

"Notre Dame appealed to him because 'there aren't a lot of institutions that could sustain a book like this,'" he said. According to Coyne, universities including Notre Dame, Harvard and Berkeley "have a distinct identity that people outside the university know."

Coyne's grandfather was a Notre Dame "saint and" and many of his friendsilmington, Notre Dame said. Their connection to Notre Dame and the University's Student Affairs Operation also inspired him to write about Notre Dame.

Coyne's book will be geared toward people with no affiliation to the University. "Most of the world sees Notre Dame as a place that only comes alive on football Saturdays," he said. "But it's life beyond the football field."

After Viking Publishers agreed to publish the book, Coyne spent much time researching the University. Leaving his wife and one-year-old daughter behind in New Jersey, Coyne came to South Bend. He regularly spends two to three weeks at Notre Dame and then returns home for five to six days, according to Coyne.

"Coyne is currently in the reporting stage of the book, and spends his time talking to as many different people as possible—trying to strike a balance among men and women, majors, and racial and ethnic backgrounds, he said. "I've talked to such a wide variety of people—not only people who have been here for a long time, but people who are new. Their angle on Notre Dame is different," Coyne said.

"The University has been nothing but helpful and forthcoming—very, very welcoming. Nobody has told me not to come to a class. Nobody are very frank—very open," he added.

But while he tries to acquaint himself with campus activities including athletic events, ROTC, different classes, Old College, SYRs and Masses, he sometimes finds it difficult to "fit in" because he isn't a "fit in" because he isn't a

"I'm wandering around dorms, trying to get a taste of student life. It's an interesting experience," Coyne said.

As an "outsider" immersing himself in campus life, Coyne can see the University in a different way than most students, faculty or alumni.

"Before I came here, people had told me it was a very homogeneous student body. But I haven't found that," Coyne said. "You see Clinton signs in windows and people told me I would never see that."

But he recognizes that he doesn't have "a clique or a dorm or an activity. I'm freer—I can go from ROTC to football in one day."

The geographical diversity among students also amazes Coyne. "I don't think you can appreciate that when you're going to school here. It's absolutely striking," he said. At headquarters, Keenan and Pasquerilla West halls gave him a sense of social life on campus according to Coyne. But he said parietals, or small groups, is "the strangest thing he has encountered at Notre Dame."

Coyne described the quiet of the campus from 11 p.m. to 2 a.m. But at 2 a.m., people emerge from everywhere, he said. "It's almost Biblical. It's like being expelled from Jerusalem and wandering through the desert."

Although his book will focus on more than Notre Dame football, it is intrigued by the number of non-students and other people with no connection to the University who take part in football weekends.

He met a group of men from Allentown, Pa., with no Notre Dame affiliation at a tailgate—they were dressed in face paint and leprechaun outfits. "That's something I've never run across before," Coyne said.

After graduating from the University of Pennsylvania in 1995, Coyne worked as a newspaper reporter in his home state of New Jersey. He recently completed his first book, "A Day in the Night of America after the Peace." He met a group of men from Allentown, Pa., with no Notre Dame affiliation at a tailgate—they were dressed in face paint and leprechaun outfits. "That's something I've never run across before," Coyne said.

The filming of ‘Rudy’ gives fans an exciting half time show

By JAHNELLE HARRIGAN

Accent Writer

Notre Dame football fans took the time to cheer for a different team last Saturday.

They were cheering for a team with a player named Rudy, and they'll have the chance to do it again this weekend.

Filming for the Tri-Star Pictures film, "Rudy," began on campus on Oct. 25, but halftime filming at last week's Notre Dame vs. Boston College game gave thousands of spectators the opportunity to be a part of the feature film.

"The footage (from Saturday) is terrific," said "Rudy," writer-producer Angelo Pizzo. "The amount of enthusiasm and support was absolutely necessary and much appreciated."

"It was an amazing experience," said actor Sully "Whip" chans, says Lloyd, Ruettiger, the young Notre Dame football hopeful pursuing his goal of playing for the team.

Astin, 21, and his wife sat on the sidelines during the first and second quarters of the game, but when he ran through the tunnel to the field at halftime, according to Astin, "it all happened so fast...the crowd just went wild..." said Lloyd.

Filming a football scene was fun for Astin because it was something he had never done before—he's 5'7" and his mother never allowed him to play football while growing up, according to Astin.

While on the field, he said he realized, "I'll never be doing this again."

Television networks CNN, ESPN and NBC covered last Saturday's half-time filming, and NBC will follow this Saturday's filming of the story with "Rudy" and how it ties into the Notre Dame and University of Notre Dame football, according to Pizzo. The NBC story will air at half time of the Notre Dame v. Penn State game.

The crew of "Rudy" filmed the final 28 seconds and the stadium run-out of the game portrayed in the film last Saturday.

Wayne, Ind., "Rudy" has tried to spread the word about filming this Sunday. They're even airing a television ad featuring Astin on WNDU, according to Lloyd.

"All the crowd needs to do is be enthusiastic," Pizzo said. But because the film is set in the early 1970s, "extran" are asked not to wear baseball caps of neon colors.

Ideally, we'd like to have 56,000 people come—we'd like to fill the stadium. But we'll adjust accordingly. We'll work with whatever we get," Pizzo said.

While recognizing that cold weather may keep people from participating, Lloyd said he's hopeful about Sunday. "If we get the shots we need, it will be the most authentic football movie ever made," he said.

Of the group's musical career the lead singer says, "Everyone gets to the point where they look in the mirror and they say, 'What am I doing?' I think we've all done that."

Lloyd adds, "I guess we always figured that this is what we were doing."

The band's self-titled and self-distributed CD is available on Poor Boys Records. The group played in South Bend's Club Shenanigan's last weekend and to a full house in Minneapolis this past weekend. They are scheduled to play in Bloomington, Indiana, Thursday, November 12.
Jordon's buzzer-beating bomb lifts Bulls past Pistons in OT

The Observer

Chicago (AP) — Michael Jordan's buzzer-beating basket Thursday kept the Chicago Bulls alive in the Eastern Conference semifinals, clinching a series victory for the Bulls with a 98-95 victory over Detroit.

Joe Dumars 18-foot winner with 4.6 seconds left gave the Pistons a 95-93 lead. But after a timeout, Scottie Pippen in-bounded the ball to Bill Cartwright, and he passed it on to Jordan, who finished the 30-footer within the time as expired. Harris led Detroit with 32 points, while Dumars scored 22.

The lead changed five times in the last 35 seconds of overtime.

Rockets 101, Hawks 82
Houston— Vernon Maxwell scored 24 of his 31 points in the second half and fueled a late fourth-quarter surge, leading Houston over Atlanta.

It was the first victory of the season for Houston after two road losses.

Akeem Olajuwon had 26 points and 17 rebounds and rookie starter Robert Horry scored 14 points for the Rockets. The Hawks were led by Dominique Wilkins with 21 points.

Bucks 124, Mavs 116
Dallas—Blue Edwards led a third-quarter surge with 14 of his career-high 31 points, lifting Milwaukee past winless Dallas.

Edwards converted five of six third-quarter shots as the Bucks won for the third time in four games. Davis scored 21 points for the Mavericks, who have yet to win in three tries.

Brian Howard finished with a career-high 26 points for Dallas and Eric Murdock scored 16 points for Milwaukee.
CAMPUS MINISTRY...

...CONSIDERATIONS

Campus Ministry extends an invitation to all to participate in the annual Christian Interfaith Thanksgiving Prayer Service.

Thanksgiving Day is a time for giving thanks to the Lord for the many blessings we have received as individuals, as members of this University, and as the people of this great nation. Originally, it was a day set aside to express thanks for the abundant harvest of the fields. Today it is a national holiday, focusing on the virtues of gratitude and appreciation. It is an occasion to render thanks to the beauty of the earth and its resources, for family, for friends, for the Notre Dame community and for the love shown us in the life and works of Jesus.

In order to express these sentiments as a community, we have an ecumenical Thanksgiving prayer service on Thursday, November 19, at 7:30 p.m. in the Basilica of the Sacred Heart. Christians from different religious traditions and faiths from different religious traditions and faiths will come together to give thanks to God. All will be united in the oneness of Christ Jesus. This will be a time for members of the campus community to come together to pray in a non-ritualized manner. In the future, we hope we will pray with non-Christian groups as well. We all benefit from the chance to share cultural experiences and religious traditions.

Thursday, the sponsoring groups invite students, faculty, staff and friends to join in this festive celebration of song and praise to the Lord for all the benefits we have received. We will also remember those who are not married. By the way we live out these commitments, our lives can be strong statements of what we believe.

Richard V. Warner, C.S.C.

For three years now, Campus Ministry has purchased space in The Observer each week for a column entitled "Considerations..." to help students reflect more deeply on their relationships with the members of the Notre Dame Community on topics we consider important from a pastoral perspective. Last Friday, The Observer published a two page article, using the Campus Ministry format and title, without indicating that it was a paraphrase of discontinuous quotations from a book authored by Father Edward Malloy.

The reflections I wrote on homosexuality four weeks ago expressed deeply the teaching of the Catholic Church in this area of special ethics. "All men and women are called to live chaste lives," I wrote, "whether we are heterosexual or homosexual, and celibacy is required of all who are not married. By the way we live out these commitments, our lives can be strong statements of what we believe." This statement reflects the content of a 1966 letter from the Congregation of the Faith to the National Conference of Catholic Bishops of the United States which declares that "while homosexual inclination is not in itself a sin, neither is homosexual activity a morally acceptable option...." The straightforward teaching of the Church on sexual activity was also stated clearly. "For all of us, regardless of our state of life, genital activity can take place only in the context of marriage, and under circumstances which respect the rights and the responsibilities of both partners who love for each other is open to the possibility of creating new life."

With regard to the harassment of gays and lesbians, I stated the obvious, namely, that "...harassment of gay and lesbian people has to be denounced as behavior which is inappropriate and contrary to the teaching of Christ."

Father Malloy's book carefully distinguishes between homosexuality as an orientation and sexual activity between homosexuals and heterosexuals. His use of Scripture is not invoked to "prooftext" a position, but to provide a Biblical vision of what we are called to become because of our capacity to love.

Finally, I hope campus ministry will continue to look for appropriate ways to extend an open and sensitive welcome to gay and lesbian students.

It is indeed unfortunate when animosity or disorder for any person or group of persons leads to hostile charges, angry words and demeaning characterizations. As men and women "called to life by a loving God, and brothers and sisters on a common journey back to the God who created us in love" our words and actions can reflect the compassion of the God we love and serve.

SPANISH MASS, THIS SUNDAY, 10:30 A.M. AT BREEN-PHILLIPS CHAPEL
Take a great teacher home for Christmas.

Looking for an extraordinary gift from Notre Dame? Well, there's probably someone back home who would love to meet one of your great professors. To make that possible, the Alumni Association has just published the first four programs in the Notre Dame Great Teachers Series. Why? Because the university can offer something exciting for people whose college days are behind them but who haven't forgotten what a difference great teachers made in their lives. So we asked four of ND's outstanding professors to help us throw open a window for the mind and spirit. They responded with specially prepared lectures on classic works — works they have spent their careers studying and teaching. The result is an affordable, accessible, high-quality series of videotape or audiotape programs that each come with the appropriate books and suggested readings.

Now the folks at home don't have to wonder what you've been up to. You can show them. They may not have told you this, but they would give their right arms to have the freedom and the time that you have to explore what Notre Dame can offer. So give a great gift to someone who's house-bound, career-bound or family-bound. Send them on an adventure this Christmas with a great teacher.

Images of Man in Shakespeare's Tragedies
Professor Paul Rathburn

Shakespeare has never failed to move anyone who came to him and listened. In his major tragedies — Hamlet, Othello, Macbeth and King Lear — the greatest dramatist and poet in our language holds up a mirror to what is mysterious and uncontrollable in our lives. Paul Rathburn will help us see into that mirror — into Shakespeare's unforgettable and progressive visions of youth, passion, ambition and old age. Some have thought that these disturbing visions simply end in darkness and lack of meaning. Paul proposes that Shakespeare is never that simple, that he wrestled to the end with issues of fate and flawed humanity.

Professor Rathburn holds degrees in both Theology and English and has taught drama at Notre Dame since 1966. He is a Shedd Award winner for outstanding teaching in Arts and Letters, and our students cannot find enough places in his courses. An expert on filmed versions of Shakespeare's plays, he offers invaluable advice on the films you will want to track down and watch to experience the Bard at his most powerful. (Four lectures on videotape plus a text of the four plays.)

The American Constitution and the People Who Made It
Professor Walter F. "Jack" Pratt, Jr.

In the summer of 1787, a remarkable collection of statesmen gathered to launch the greatest free deliberation about self-government in history. Out of it came the Constitution of the United States. The delegates faced an almost impossible task: forging a consensus on a dramatically new form of government for the fragmented former colonies. Jack Pratt invites you to look in on their deliberations, marvel at how these men were divided, and what ultimately brought them together. Then he explores the five Supreme Court decisions that have most influenced our interpretation of their work. What was at stake in each constitutional crisis, and why did the justices rule as they did? Not only will you meet great Americans here, you will come to grips with the essence of our political experience. (Ten lectures on audiotape, plus text of The Federalist Papers and the Constitution.)

A legal historian, Jack Pratt is Associate Dean of Notre Dame's Law School, and holds his D.Phil in Politics from Oxford and his J.D. from Yale. In 1978-79, he was Law Clerk to Chief Justice Warren E. Burger. His talks on the Constitution have drawn some of the highest ratings at the last two summer Elderhostel series on Notre Dame's campus.

Dante and Aquinas: The Road to Paradise
Professor Ralph McNerny

What did the cosmos look like to the two greatest geniuses of the Middle Ages? St. Thomas Aquinas, a Catholic theologian, took on the daunting and controversial task of relating twelve centuries of Christian thought and reflection to the rediscovered works of ancient Greek philosophers. Dante Alighieri, a poet inspired and informed by Aquinas, shaped one of history's most powerful visions of the human condition in The Divine Comedy, a journey through Heaven, Hell and Purgatory. Walk with Ralph McNerny as he explores the medieval world, the ideas of Aquinas and the incomparable poetry of Dante. You will come back from Paradise a different person.

Ralph McNerny is the Michael P. Grace Professor of Medieval Philosophy, Director of the Jacques Maritain Center, and former Director of the Medieval Institute. At Notre Dame since 1955, he is perhaps as well known for his "Father Dowling" mysteries as for his prolific scholarship and sparkling teaching. He has delighted audiences as a guest lecturer at over 50 other colleges and universities. (Ten lectures on audiotape plus the text of Dante's Divine Comedy.)

Pascal and the Meaning of Life
Professor Thomas Morris

Ever wish you had an inside track on the meaning of life? So did Blaise Pascal. A superb scientist and mathematician, Pascal gave us the first calculating machine, the first theory of probability and the first system of public transportation. Then at age 31, famous throughout Europe, he experienced a sudden, startling and thorough conversion of life. For the next eight years until his death, he thought and wrote intensely on the alternatives human beings face as they try to answer (or avoid!) ultimate questions. Tom Morris will introduce you to Pascal's famous Pensées — provocative, eloquent, urgent, deeply personal. Why should anyone wager that there is a God? How far is thinking about God going to get you? What is it that really drives the human heart? How can you know? Get some unexpected and extremely intriguing answers here. (Four lectures on video plus the text of Pascal's Pensées.)

Tom Morris has electrified student audiences ever since he took his Ph.D from Yale and started lecturing at Notre Dame in 1981. Winner of numerous teaching awards, Tom has been featured on The Learning Channel and speaks to rave reviews from adult audiences across the country. He is one of Notre Dame's most popular teachers with both students and alumni groups.

Frosh QB Frazier living a dream

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Last year at this time, Tommie Frazier was playing high school football in Bradenton, Fla. Now he’s the starting quarterback for one of the top college teams in the nation.

In the last two weeks, the fabulous freshman has led No. 7 Nebraska to stunning victories over nationally ranked opponents 53-7 over Colorado and 49-7 over Kansas.

"It’s a dream being a freshman and knowing you can go in and beat two of the best teams in the country on national TV," said Frazier, the first true freshman quarterback to start for Nebraska in modern times. "It makes me feel overwhelmed."

Despite the attention he’s getting, Frazier is keeping his cool.

"The main thing for me is to stay focused, not let my head overwhelm," he said. "I’m here just like everybody else. I can make mistakes." Frazier said his teammates are helping him keep everything in perspective.

"They keep telling me, ‘You’re still a rookie and don’t go out there to try to impress too many people, that you have a great supporting cast here and if we all play together we’ll be successful,’" he said. "They all dog me, but that’s typical for a freshman."

Since becoming the starter three weeks ago against Missouri, Frazier has passed for 373 yards, rushed for 169 and accounted for eight touchdowns.

Frazier said he’s getting more comfortable with the Nebraska offensive system, which requires quarterbacks to make a lot of quick decisions.

"The Missouri game was kind of shaky, but the Colorado game was feeling more comfortable with the Nebraska offensive system, which requires quarterbacks to make a lot of quick decisions," Frazier said.

The Missouri game was kind of shaky, but the Colorado game was feeling more comfortable with the Nebraska offensive system, which requires quarterbacks to make a lot of quick decisions.

The Tiger defense tried to confuse Frazier, but the freshman handled the situation well.

The Steelers opened 3-1 with Adrian Cooper — not Green — as their starting tight end. "Adrian Cooper has had a very good year for this football team," Cowher said. "When Eric went down, we won ... and he played a big role in it."

Cooper hasn’t forgotten, either.

"We’ve won as a team, and we’re going to continue winning as a team," Cooper said. Wednesday, the Steelers’ first full practice since Green was suspended. "It’s not going to change with one guy gone. It’s not like it’s the quarterback gone — it’s not going to change the game that much."

The 280-pound Green certainly has been a huge weapon — in more ways than one — for the Steelers, catching 15 touchdown passes in 29 games. But perhaps it’s easy to lose sight that, by the end of his suspension, he will have been available to the Steelers for only five games in a 20-game stretch.

The Chicago Bears open the season at home Monday night against the Detroit Lions. The Bears are 1-0 after a 28-13 win over the Kansas City Chiefs.

Maddux denies Glavine of second Cy Young Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Greg Maddux, who won 20 games for a losing Chicago Cubs team, outdistilled Atlanta ace Tom Glavine and was named winner of the National League Cy Young Award on Wednesday.

Maddux went 20-11 with a 2.18 ERA for the Cubs. He received 20 of the 24 first-place votes from a panel made up of two writers in each league city and was named second on the remaining four ballots, finishing with 112 points.

Glavine, trying to become the NL’s first repeat Cy Young winner since Sandy Koufax in 1962-66, was 20-8 with a 2.76 ERA. He got the remaining four first-place votes and finished second with 78 points.

Maddux won despite the Cubs going 78-84 — seven of his losses came in shutouts — and finishing fourth in the NL East. He is the fourth Cubs pitcher to win the Cy Young, joining Ferguson Jenkins (1971), Bruce Sutter (1979) and Rick Sutcliffe (1984). Maddux also is the first NL starting pitcher to win the award on a team with a below-.500 record since San Diego’s Randy Jones in 1976.

Maddux was the first Cubs pitcher to win 20 games since Rick Reuschel went 20-10 in 1977. Maddux gave up four or fewer of his 12 of his 36 starts.

Glavine’s second straight 20-win season came for the Braves, who went 98-64 and won the NL West. The last pitcher to win consecutive Cy Young awards was Boston’s Roger Clemens in 1986 and 1987.

Bob Tewksbury of St. Louis was third in the voting with 22 points, followed by teammate Lee Smith with three and Doug Drabek of Pittsburgh with one. Only Maddux and Glavine were named on all 24 ballots.

Glavine seemed a shoo-in to win again at the All-Star break. He was 13-3 at that point, but a disastrous start in the All-Star game signaled the beginning of a staggering, second-half in which he was troubled by injuries and went just 7-5.

"I didn’t expect to go 20-8," Maddux said. "I always thought I could go 15-15. But you never know when you’re going to have a year like this."

Larry Bird speaks on Magic

NEW YORK (AP) - Larry Bird would have "no problem" playing against Magic Johnson because of the AIDS virus and said "professional jealousy" is a factor in other players' opinions, the New York Post reported today.

"I see it as a bad case of professional jealousy," said the former Boston Celtics star, who was in Palm Beach, Fla., on Tuesday for a celebrity golf tournament organized by Greg Norman. 'As far as playing against (Johnson), I'd have no problem whatsoever."

Johnson announced his second retirement from the Los Angeles Lakers on Nov. 2 after Utah star Karl Malone and other players expressed fears about playing against Johnson.

Bird and Malone spent two months during the summer practicing against Johnson as teammates on the U.S. Olympic team.

"When you have a Magic Johnson or a Michael Jordan and there are other superstars not getting the press they are, the others sort of resent that," Bird said.

"The same kind of thing happens in everyday life. I think that's what's happening to Magic now. He's been on top for so long, that everybody is taking a shot at him, to cut him down a little bit. They've been waiting so many years to do it and now they're getting the opportunity to do it, it's sad."

"There's a lot of attention being focused on Magic because he's the first athlete to come out and try to play with the AIDS virus."

"I feel very sorry for him, but there's nothing you can do now."

Mourning ends holdout, signs with Hornets

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - The Charlotte Hornets and Alonzo Mourning have reached an agreement on a multiyear contract, a newspaper reported today.

The agreement signals the end of a holdout that kept Mourning out of the Hornets' preseason schedule and the first three games of the season.

Hornets president Spencer Stolpen would not deny agreement had been reached when he was contacted Tuesday night, The Charlotte Observer said.

Mourning, a 6-foot-10 center from Georgetown and the No. 2 overall pick in the draft last June, could join the team sometime this week. However, the Hornets must first reduce their payroll to fit Mourning's first-season money under the NBA's $14 million per-team salary cap.

One report said Mourning would get $2.5 million the first year. The Hornets have $1.96 million available under their salary cap this year. To sign him, they will need an additional $300,000-$500,000.

Hornets owner George Shinn and John Thompson, Mourning's college coach, expanded their roles in the talks last week, bringing the sides closer.

Dr. J nominated for Hall of Fame

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Julius Erving and Bill Walton, who met in the 1977 NBA Finals in which Portland upset Philadelphia, top a list of 10 players nominated for the Basketball Hall of Fame. Walton, who led UCLA to two NCAA championships and Portland to the title and Erving were nominated in their first year of eligibility. Both returned in 1987.

Also on the list announced Tuesday for consideration by the Hall of Fame committee are Bellamy, Richie Guerin, Dan Issel, Dick McGuire and Calvin Murphy, plus three women — former UCLA and Olympic star Anne Meyers, Olympic and European standout Juliana Semenova, and Eileen Banks Sprouse, an AAU star in the 1940s and 1950s. All except Semenova have been nominated before.

Brenominated as a contributor was Crady Lewis, a former professional player and coach, who helped develop the oxford basketball shoe.

A two-thirds vote of the 24-member honors committee is needed for election. Enshrinement ceremonies are scheduled for May 10.

Erving, who is currently giving basketball clinics in Australia for the NBA, could not be immediately reached for comment.

"He does pay attention to the Hall of Fame, but it’s not something that we have ever discussed," said his business manager, Ray Wilson. "It’s not the sort of thing you want to talk too much about, in case you jinx the whole situation.

After playing two years at the University of Massachusetts, Erving began his 16-year pro career with the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association in 1971. He was the league’s most valuable player in 1974 and 1976 when he led the New York Nets to the NBA championship.

In 1976, Erving, who is one of three players in pro basketball history to score more than 30,000 career points, joined the Philadelphia 76ers. An 11-time NBA All-Star, he was named the league’s most valuable player in 1981 and led the 76ers to the 1983 NBA championship.

Walton first attracted national attention at UCLA, where teams he played for lost only four games while winning 86 and two national championships. Among his big games was the 1973 final against Memphis State when Walton connected on 21 of the 22 shots.

Nagging injuries slowed his 10-year professional career with the Portland Trail Blazers, the San Diego and Los Angeles Clippers and Boston Celtics. But in 1977, he helped lead the Trail Blazers to the NBA championship and was named the league’s most valuable player in 1978. In 1986, he received the NBA’s Sixth Man Award for coming off the bench to help the Celtics win the NBA title.

Semenova, the 7-foot-6-inch center for the great Soviet women’s basketball teams of the 1970s, was nominated by a special committee set up to honor the international game. She served this summer as vice president of the Latin Olympic Committee. Meyers and Sprouse were picked by a special committee established last year to honor women. The Hall of Fame inducted its first women in 1985.

Bellamy, a 1961 graduate of Indiana and member of the 1960 U.S. Olympic team, scored 20,431 points and hauled in 14,241 rebounds over a 14-year pro career that included stints in Chicago, New York, Detroit, Atlanta and New Orleans.

Guerin, who scored 2,303 points for the New York Knicks in 1956, was the first NBA guard to break the 2,000-point mark in a season. Over his 13-year pro career, six of which were spent as player-coach for the St. Louis and later Atlanta Hawks he averaged 17.3 points a game and was named NBA Coach-of-the-Year following the 1967-68 season.

Insel, now coach of the Denver Nuggets, averaged more than 22.3 points a game during his 15-year pro career, that included five years with the Kentucky Colonels of the ABA and 10 years with the Nuggets. In 1975 the former University of Kentucky star led the Colonels to the ABA championship.

McGuire, the Knicks’ first-round draft choice in 1949 out of Duke, had 9,250 assists in his 11-year pro career, including eight years with the Nuggets. In 1974 the former University of Kentucky star led the Colonels to the ABA championship.

Stadium approved by Atlanta O.C.

ATLANTA (AP) — Olympics organizers can prepare to build an 85,000-seat stadium now that the design, financing and construction plans have been approved by a government oversight panel.

The Metropolitan Atlanta Olympic Games Authority OK’d the plans for the $207 million brick facility at its board meeting Tuesday.

The Atlanta Committee for the Olympic Games expects to begin construction next fall and have the stadium built by late 1995. Some aspects of the stadium plan, including parking, mass transit access and entrance-exit plazas, still must be completed.

"We’re looking now to go it done," said authority chairman George Berry. Approval of the design and financial plan, which includes guarantees to protect taxpayers from having to rescue the project if the Games are a financial failure, was unanimous. Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson, an authority member, cast a lone "no" vote for the construction strategy.

Jackson, while not advocating the exclusive use of union labor, wants all stadium construction workers to be paid the prevailing union wage. AOC, which has vowed not to exploit workers, wants to study the wage issue.

The stadium is to include about 45,000 temporary seats which would be removed after the Games. The Olympic stadium would then be converted to a baseball stadium for the Atlanta Braves, whose current home, Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium, would be demolished.

Electric Blue, Quicksilver and Black Magic

Walking past the sports apparel stores at the University Park Mall last week, I noticed a very disturbing trend.

Michiana's mall rats have left their Rubik's cube toys at home. They're all down on the San Jose Sharks and the Charlotte Hornets. This Christmas shopping season, the only colors I see are Electric Blue, Quicksilver, and Black Magic.

Last June, when the Orlando Magic won the draft lottery, I transcended this vile and mercenary commercial sea as personal heaven. Shaquille O'Neal would soon be playing in the O-cena, and my days of embarrassment and shame about my pro basketball allegiance were over.

The little NBA ping-pong balls had fallen in line, too. It was too bad that our bizarre dreams about Shaq and O'Neal had strangely come true. I couldn't wait to see his 7-1, 290-pound body stuffed into the tacky Magic pinstripes. I couldn't wait to see the fans understand toughness. But few of them can name the Magic mascot? All Lakers fans understand Showtime. All Bears fans understand the ethos. They try to believe in glitz and glamour. They have no clue about living in the rain. But how many of them can sing the MacLeod tag line?

The Magic was happy with some individual performances in scrimmage as well especially that of guard Lamar Jones. Arguably the only position where they have needed MacLeod is at point. He explained him to take it to the basket, and he did that tonight. "It's a learning experience," he explained, "the same consistency that (Elmer) Bennett, but he can do more."

The coach also commented on the development of guard Precious Montoya who had sat out the previous two weeks with a knee injury.

"Monty is doing well at the conditioning level but is not at the others' level. He's a very good athlete, so that will come. He also needs to get his defense squared away."

Further along, MacLeod also carried with it some disheartening news; that coach Skip Meyer explained that freshman Keith Kurowski has a stress fracture in the navicular bone in his left foot and will be scheduled for surgery this week.

"We are going to put a screw in the bone. He will be limited for at least two weeks," continued Meyer. "If we don't, we'll have to do it at a later time with a heart condition."

The Magic mascot is another concern for the coaching staff. Joe Ross needs to be strong and needs to have confidence. He explained MacLeod's game's slower, more-oriented play. "(The players) are a little bit unsure, but they know what we want. Team play is paramount."

He pointed out how the team moved the ball from side to side and thus created scoring opportunities as an example of the players' response to the coaches' wishes. But MacLeod was also quick to warn, "If we are to be successful, we'd better hustle and have the basketball in the hole."

The内饰 inside of his team's another concern for the coaches. "Joe Ross needs to be strong and needs to have confidence. He explained MacLeod's game's slower, more-oriented play. "(The players) are a little bit unsure, but they know what we want. Team play is paramount."
