Victims sought amid tornado debris in Tulsa

TULSA, Okla. (AP) -- National Guardsmen searched Sunday for more victims amid scattered belongings and survivors collected the debris in Tulsa, where at least seven people were killed in a tornado.

"This just flattened everything," Gov. David Walters said after seeing the damage in Tulsa and suburban Catoosa.

More than 95 people were treated for injuries ranging from cuts to burns.

The twister touched a church in Tulsa. In Catoosa, it demolished at least 60 mobile homes, 23 houses and several businesses. Police Chief Benny Dick said.

Walters said authorities were looking for a 4-year-old boy missing outside the tornado hit Saturday night. But police later said they had been searching for a child missing from a wrecked van until the body of a 7-year-old girl was found.

Sheriff's Department "The Following is best," said Keen, who has been a sidewalk counselor for the past five years. "Unfortunately people think of violence when they think of our efforts. "We are here to help and let the people know that there is an alternative."

Co-president Claire Johnson, participating in a demonstration with the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force, exhorted the mellow, enthusiastic crowd, "We have a sense of freedom. We won't negotiate our freedom away so those who have freedom can be more comfortable," said David Mintzer, a Los Angeles business owner who has advised President Clinton on gay issues.

In brilliant, summery sunshine, they came by the hundreds of thousands to tell America what they want: everyday citizens seeking an end to legal discrimination that threatens their jobs, privacy and peace of mind.

It’s finally time to crack those books, but where?

As the semester rapidly comes to an end, and many of us are frantically trying to cram a semester’s worth of work into a few short weeks. Finding a place that is comfortable enough so that your rear end does not fall asleep yet not so comfortable that you have trouble keeping your eyes open is key.

Studying in the dorm room can be ruled out immediately. If the rare occasion occurs that you have the room to yourself, frequent interruptions by the phone, roommates, and the mere presence of your bed can be enough to keep you from submerging yourself in your books.

Many students pack up their books and trek to Hesburgh in hopes of getting something accomplished there. However, even the library, the very center of reading and writing on any college campus, can be distracting. If you are able to get past the orange and lime green color scheme that runs throughout the building, which is easier said than done, you are on your way to success.

The studio-studiers tend to head to the second floor where they rehash the events of the past weekend while occasionally glancing down from their books. You will probably overhear some outrageous tales with an occasional interruption regarding the gross amount of work that the gossipers need to accomplish. This provides an entertaining evening but not one in which much can be accomplished.

The more serious students will venture to one of the upper floors, however some can’t take the pressure of the intense silence. If you are able to sit on the upper floor and not fall asleep in your seat, you are one of a kind. After creating such a disturbance to everyone around you, the annoying “ding” of the elevator is enough to drive you crazy and keep you from finishing that Shakespeare anthology.

A third possibility is Saint Mary’s Cushwa-Leighton Library. The subdued color scheme is much easier on the eyes, however plan on dressing lightly so as not to sweat out three pounds of water weight. The temperature increases in increments of ten degrees for each flight of stairs that you ascend.

The furniture is generally more comfortable than that at Hesburgh. However the noise level is not low. After a few lessers, you will find yourself surrounded by noisy study groups, vehicle design, flight simulation, particle dynamics, and anesthesiology. So when searching for the perfect place to study these next few weeks, your best bet could be forgetting about the library all together and holing up in some obscure place on either campus. The Architecture Building, Hayes-Meyla, Haggar, and even some corners in LaFortune are worth exploring when trying to read those books that you never quite get around to at the beginning of the semester. Laundry rooms are also good places to get away at certain times of the day.

Good luck finding that special spot that allows you to maximize your studying during crunch time.

Pope visits Albania
SHKODRA, Albania — Pope John Paul II, in his first visit to a nation where religion was banned in two years ago, cited Europe’s poorest country on Sunday as an example of “crude tolerance” in the Balkans. “Don’t degenerate into that intolerant and aggressive nationalism,” John Paul urged, referring to the war in nearby Bosnia-Herzegovina. John Paul said he was encouraging Albanians in a moral and material renewal but without forgetting the brutal, anti-religious dictatorship that ruled for nearly 50 years. “Albania had plunged into an abyss from which it was a real miracle you could climb out without bloodshed,” said the pope, speaking in the largest Roman Catholic church in the Balkans. It had been turned into a gymnasium by Communists during a 24-year ban on religion, and reopened last Christmas Eve. Before returning to Rome late Sunday, the pope consecrated four bishops, one of whom had been condemned to death by the Communists on a charge of spying for the Vatican.

Nelson performs in Farm Aid VI
AMES, Iowa — About 40,000 people turned out for White Nelson’s Farm Aid VI concert, but he and other artists said there is more to supporting farmers than appreciating country western music. “Farmers are the bottom rung on the economic ladder,” Nelson said at the daylong musical festival at Iowa State University on Saturday. Nelson, joined by Indiana native John Mellencamp and more than 40 other top artists, criticized agribusinesses for not paying enough for farmers’ goods. He said big business could do a lot to stem the flow of foreclosures by paying farmers better.

Boeing Co. gives to Hesberr Center
THE DAME: Notre Dame has received a $300,000 gift from The Boeing Company to support its Hesberr Center for Aerospace Research. The gift will be used to purchase a variety of technical equipment including laser-based measurement and visualization systems, high speed computers, a hydrodynamics facility, and instrumentation for acoustic and multi-phase flow measurements. “We are grateful to The Boeing Company for this generous gift,” said University President Father Edward Malloy, “It will have an immediate and beneficial impact on research and teaching in aerospace and mechanical engineering at Notre Dame.” According to B.A. Cosgrove, recently retired senior vice president at Boeing and a 1949 Notre Dame graduate, “We believe that state-of-the-art research and test equipment will help Notre Dame develop excellence in teaching and research, enabling us to provide top-quality aerospace science engineers for our nation. The wind tunnel at Notre Dame is one of the best university facilities in the nation.” The Hesberr Center, completed in the summer of 1991, houses aerodynamics, dynamics and structures, vehicle dynamics, flight simulation, particle dynamics and anesthesiology laboratories in which aerospace, automotive and environmental research is conducted.

Archbishop to teach theology

Special to The Observer

 Rt. Rev. Dr. George Carey, the Anglican Archbishop of Canterbury, will be a visiting member of the University of Notre Dame's theology faculty this summer. Archbishop Carey, the spiritual leader of the 28 independent churches of some 70 million Anglicans worldwide, will teach Theology 529, a one-credit summer session course on a subject in which he is foremost expert. Anglican theology.

The course, entitled "Anglican Theology: Roots and Branches," will be taught from July 26-30 at Notre Dame.

"The Notre Dame theology department considers it a great privilege and an unparalleled ecumenical opportunity to have such a distinguished visitor with us," said Lawrence Cunningham, chairman of theology.

"Archbishop Carey is a person of wide pastoral experience and thoroughly committed to the Christian Church. He will not be Archbishop Carey's first visit to Notre Dame. In March, 1991, as archbishop-elect, he gave a lecture here on "The Kingdom of God and Church Renewal."

Yeltsin encouraged, but changes are doubtful

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin appeared to be winning a vote of confidence in a key referendum Sunday but was likely to fall short in his push to force new parliamentary elections, according to preliminary exit polls and partial official results.

Yeltsin sought a mandate for change from the referendum so that he could overcome the Communist-era parliament that has tried to thwart his reforms and curb his powers.

Turnout was moderate, running close to 60 percent of the 165.5 million registered voters. That was probably too low to give Yeltsin the absolute majority that he needs to force parliamentary elections.

That turnout also would be too low to enable Yeltsin to push through a new constitution to replace the hard-line Congress of People's Deputies with a two-chamber, U.S.-style legislature.

The weather varied across Russia's 11 time zones, from snow in parts of the Far East and Siberia to warm, hazy weather in Moscow and much of European Russia. Election officials in many districts reported voters returning early from their country dachas to cast ballots.

Non-partisan banners were draped in Moscow that urged Russians to vote. A few pro-Yeltsin banners that said "Da, Da, Nyet, Da" also came down before the polls opened because electioneering is forbidden on the day of the vote.

In the final days before the vote, Yeltsin waged a Western-style campaign, relying heavily on television advertising. He kissed a baby on the day before the referendum.

The 62-year-old leader also made a raft of promises to special interest groups, raising pensions for the elderly, increasing stipends for students and reversing a decision to raise the price of gasoline.

Yeltsin first proposed the referendum in December to resolve the power struggle with the Congress.

By Sunday evening, voter turnout was running at 55 percent to 65 percent in most of Russia's 89 voting districts. The Central Election Commission said several hours before the polls closed that turnout was 54.2 percent in Moscow and 56.5 percent in St. Petersburg, two Yeltsin strongholds.

Turnout was 21.2 percent by late evening in the secessionist republic of Tatarstan.

The referendum asked voters whether they had confidence in Yeltsin, who was elected to a five-year term in 1991 as Russia's first popularly chosen president; whether Russians approved of his economic reforms launched in 1992; and whether there should be new presidential and parliamentary elections.

The election questions require majority approval by the entire electorate, while the first two require only a simple majority of those voting.

"Encouraging," but he did not give specifics.

Other results were:

--An exit poll by the Russian Center for Public Opinion and Market Research showing voters questioned after casting their ballots had favored Yeltsin in Moscow, the Far East and Siberia.

The poll showed that in the Far East and Siberia, 59.6 percent backed his reforms, 42.6 percent favored early president elections and 64.3 percent wanted early parliamentary balloting. The area was not considered a Yeltsin stronghold.

Although a group advocating a pro-choice option is not putting students of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's to the test, it is exactly what was available to help students [in previous years] during the anti-abortion protests of the College Republicans Activated to Liberate Life (C.A.L.L.) last month.

About 40 students and alumni of both schools gathered to "protest the freedom of choice" during the four days of blockade demonstrations in front of the Women's Pavilion, according to group leader and Saint Mary's senior Beno Young.

The group was quickly put together after members of the National Organization for Women (N.O.W.) contacted faculty known to be pro-choice warning of the upcoming demonstrations and enlisting their help to keep the clinic open.

"We were not an organization before the demonstration," just volunteers trained in clinic defense, according to Kerstin Sale, a Saint Mary's senior and member of the group.

The creation of the group, which is not officially recognized by either school, has met with varying responses.

"Many faculty and administration members think it is wonderful to have a different opinion, while more students support us about the group's existence," said Young.

"We have had lots of resistance," said Young, whose name is an acronym for a group advocating the groups activities. "I've had several hang-ups and prank calls."

But Young does not believe that the creation of a group flouting a pro-choice view detracts from the Catholic character of either school.

"It is not meant as an insult against what Saint Mary's or Notre Dame stands for," she said. "It has many people asking questions and serves as a forum for the discussion of different viewpoints."

The group is far from being accepted, though.

"The fact that some involved faculty members without tenure support in only the behind the scenes aspects of the group means something," said Young.

makes you think," she said.

"Much of what C.A.L.L. does is purely educational in that it basically goes with the teachings of the Catholic church and asks others to sacrifice."

Johnson participated in the C.A.L.L. sit-in and made a leave of absence from the University at the end of this year to join the group on a full-time basin and be active in its rescues and leadership teams of students.

She did not side with the University's point of view in the sit-in and believes that Notre Dame is missing the mark of its Catholic tradition by not taking a stronger stand in the anti-abortion cause.

"I'm ashamed of the University of Notre Dame and how the administration acted during the sit-in," she said. "I was humiliated when they gave the last tea re medal to Senator Moynihan last year. It was the most pro-abortion thing they have done."

The should be no question of what the University's position on abortion is and yet I think there is a question- a very big one. I think the University is wavering on an issue that it should stand firm on."

But Keen did not participate in any of the C.A.L.L. activities and supported the University's actions and final decision.

History

"I had mixed feelings in the tactics that C.A.L.L. used," he said. "I felt uncomfortable with their methods and my confidence told me not to take part."

"Regardless of all tactics that are used in the movement to prevent abortion, we can't lose focus of our objective to be there for the women and children."

A recent development in the abortion movement, the killing of Dr. Gunn, a doctor who performed abortions in Florida, Alabama, and Georgia, may also be the most detrimential to the anti-abortion cause, according to Keen.

"It is evil and I whole heartedly condemn it," he said. "You cannot justify an end by the means-it is wrong."

But the tone of Keen's strong denunciation of Gunn's murder is something that Johnson's response lacked.

"It is morally wrong to kill anyone deliberately," she said.

"But you can build a good defence for the man who killed him.

But both Keen and Claire Johnson agree on prayer being perhaps the most effective tool to combat abortion.

"There is no way abortion can be defeated humanly," said Keen. "Let's let God take care of things and complement prayer with action."

"Prayer is probably most effective," said Johnson. "We have tried the political way for 20 years and things have only gotten worse."

"All gays aren't flaming queens," said Steve Starr, 43, a Denver travel agent marching alongside Robert Jacobson, 37, a telephone company technician. "We don't cross-dress. We don't wear heels. We're just normal gay men."

From North Carolina came the Pride Marching Band. From Colorado came Buddhist for Civil Rights. There were lesbian social workers from Kansas, gay cowboys from the Mid-Atlantic Gay Rodeo Association, and gay American Indians who assembled under a huge monument to World War I heroes.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The leader of Bosnia's Serbs rebuffed a last-ditch attempt Sunday to gain backing for a U.N. peace plan and avoid tougher sanctions on the remaining states of Yugoslavia.

The self-styled Bosnian Serb parliament was expected to schedule the vote to take effect at 6 a.m. Monday (midnight EDT).

Possibly worse was to come. The United States and its Western European allies planned to consult next week about the option of air strikes on Bosnian Serb positions if they continued to oppose the peace plan.

Karadzic's delays tactics Saturday seemed calculated to defy the threat of anti-Serb foreign intervention and economic sanctions on Yugoslavia.

They include: freezing Yugoslav government and private funds overseas banks, prohibiting Yugoslav ships from passing through members' ter-isory, detention of Yugoslav ships, trains and aircraft at ports, and cutting off shipment of Yugoslav goods on the vital Danube River.

Experts say action in

Bosnia risky

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the Clinton administration eyes ways to stop the killing in Bosnia, military experts warn that use of force could embroil the United States in a lengthy chain of action and reaction.

The most oft-mentioned military plan calls for bombing Serbian artillery guns on the Bosnian side of the heavily fortified city of Srebrenica.

Proposing among them President Clinton's ambas-dor to the U.N. Madeleine Albright, is state Dept. Secretary of Defense, who wrote Secretary of State Warren Christopher urging military action, argue that air strikes will still the guns and ease the suffering.

Clinton appeared less certain as he answered reporters' questions Friday about a possible air strike.

"If the United States makes action, we must have a clearly defined objective that can be met, we must be able to understand it, and its limitations must be clear," he said.

That's exactly what military planners have been telling him. The AP talked to two Pentagon officials who spoke only on condition on anonymity, and Sen. John Warner and John McCain about the risks involved in a military escalation. Warner, R-Va., was on the Senate Intelligence Committee and McCain, R-

Ariz., is a former Navy pilot.

London: IRA bombs another world financial center

LONDON (AP) — The scene is becoming familiar in world financial centers: traders taking emergency measures so they're ready for business the moment markets reopen after a devastating bombing.

In February, it was New York recovering from the World Trade Center blast, which killed six people and injured 1,000. In March, 13 bombs rocked Bombay, damaging India's financial capital and killing 300 people.

In April 1992, London's financial district was hit by a huge bomb, causing $1.2 billion in damages. On Sunday, the recovery process was under way once again — and damage from last year hasn't all been repaired.

The Irish Republican Army on Sunday claimed responsibility for a massive bomb explosion outside a London courthouse, one person and left the financial district a roped-off tangle of shattered buildings and scattered litter with broken glass and debris.

Damages could surpass $1.5 billion.

The News of the World said freelance photographer Edward Henty, 34, was killed while on assignment for the tabloid newspaper. It said his body was found near The HongKong and Shanghai Banking Corp. building.

"The best way to frustrate the terrorists is to have the city back at work tomorrow and we are working hard to ensure that it is," Sir Francis McWilliams, London mayor, said Sunday.

The IRA attacks Britain's financial center in hopes of making British rule in Northern Ireland unacceptable in terms of its cost, terrorism experts said.

By bombimg the district, "they believe they're having success — putting additional pressure on the government," said Ian Geldard, editor of Conflict, a newsletter on international terrorism.

The bombs also can drive away business, Geldard said. After the 1992 blast, the British government reluctantly agreed to act as reinsurance for last resort for insurance companies said they would stop offering terrorism coverage for big buildings.

But in all the attacks, vital businesses have found ways to resume operations quickly, even if full repairs take months. Financial traders need to operate when markets are open because a sudden sharp movement in prices can wipe out anyone who cannot respond.

"Millions can be lost when you can't get into your office to deal," said Terry Galgey, who began setting up a small business called Emergency Deal ing Services after the IRA blast last April.

On Sunday, police were allowing people with offices in the district to see what damage was done to them. Officials acknowledged London would not be running at 100 percent on Monday.

Several companies set up temporary trading desks they hope to rent out to traders who are unable to get into or use their offices. The telephone company set up an emergency line to help affected businesses get phone lines.

Landlords hope to rent out property that has been sitting dormant during Britain's long recession. The Corporation of London — the major landowner in the financial district — said it had 12 inquiries from businesses displaced by the bombing, and three have already found new accommodations.

The Stock Exchange and the Lloyd's of London insurance market predicted few problems Monday.

Israel to allow deportees to go home

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Israel will allow about 30 Palestinian deportees to return home after years in exile as part of a package of concessions to the Palestinians, a senior Palestinian said Sunday.

The talks, which are apparently linked to an Arab decision to return to Middle East talks, scheduled to resume Tuesday in Washington.

Saeq Erakat, deputy leader of the Palestinian delegation to the U.S., told The Associated Press the deportees will come from the first batch of Palestinian refugees from the occupied territories from 1967 to 1987 for anti-Israeli activities.

Erakat did not say how long the repatriation process would take.

"This is according to an agreement reached with Israel to reschedule the return of all Palestinian deportees," Erakat said.

The Palestine Liberation Organization earlier listed 1,700 Palestinian deported by Israel since 1967, when the Jewish state captured the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The reported Israeli agreement to let 30 Palestinians, all believed residing in Jordan, back within 48 hours was apparently aimed at demonstrating the Jewish state's willingness to make concessions to boost prospects for progress in the talks.

Earlier Sunday, Erakat warned his people "not to raise their expectations" of a breakthrough when the stalled negotiations resume.

"We face Israeli intransigence. There's a big difference between dictation and negotiation and trying to make peace under these terms is not possible," he told The AP.

He said that if Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin "persists in having negotiations just for the sake having negotiations, he will have failed them all over again.

In Israel, Rabin tried to allay the fears of the Palestinians, saying Israel was committed to eventual territorial compromise in the occupied lands.

Rabin also offered the Palestinian peace negotiators an immediate role in directing investments in the West Bank and Gaza Strip and running some parts of daily life under an autonomy agreement is reached in the Washington talks.

"I hope very much that the Palestinian delegation and the public in the territories will understand that a better offer may never be made by another Israeli government," Rabin said in an interview with Israel's Arabic-language service.

The senior IMF official said he was pleased to see that all three countries were finally taking steps in the right direction.

"We have been able to avoid the worst-case scenario," he said.

The official characterized the economic outlook in Europe as "very bad" with the IMF forecasting no growth at all this year and less than 1 percent increase in output for 1994. This anemic performance was blamed on what could be the worst recession in postwar history in Germany, the dominate economy in Europe.

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — After three years on the sidelines, former Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto is making another bid for power.

Some see it as a risky game that could lead to major law if it fails. But her return would be cheered by the United States, an ally estranged by Pakistan's nuclear policy and alleged support for anti-Islamic terrorism.

Bhutto, the first woman to lead a modern Muslim nation, was dismissed by President Ghulam Ishaq Khan in 1990 after 20 months as prime minister.

Although she was accused of corruption and mismanagement, the underlying reasons were her political clashes with Ishaq Khan and army generals.

Earlier this month, Ishaq Khan suddenly ousted her successor, Nawaz Sharif, on similar corruption charges and for about the same real reasons.

Sharif had threatened to try to dismiss some of the president's powers.

In the aftermath of Ishaq Khan's call for elections July 14, Bhutto is once more jockeying for advantage and placing her people in pivotal roles.

It is a striking turnaround for Bhutto. She had accused Ishaq Khan of committing a "constitutional coup" when he dismissed her, but supported his ouster of Sharif's 30-month-old government.

As the price for her support, Bhutto demanded "free and fair elections" within 90 days, including voting for the four provincial legislatures and local elections.

Ishaq Khan has not met her demands so far. His five-year term ends later this year, and analysts say he believes his chances of keeping his job are better with the existing legislatures.

In a country where opinion polls are rare and unreliable, Bhutto, 39, is probably the most popular politician despite a term in office flawed by indecision, lack of direction and refusal to compromise with opponents.

Sharif has strong support in Punjab, Pakistan's richest province with 60 percent of the nation's population, and among businessmen in other areas.

Bhutto said last week that if she wins, a mutual arms reduction treaty with India would be a priority of her government.

The Observer is the independent newspaper published by the students of the University of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's College. It does not necessarily reflect the policies of the administration of either institution. The news is reported as accurately and objectively as possible. Unsigned editorials represent the opinion of the majority of the Editor-in-Chief, Managing Editor, News Editor, Viewpoint Editor, Assistant Editor, Photo Editor, Sports Editor, and Saint Mary's Editor. Comments, letters and inside columns present the views of the authors, and not necessarily those of The Observer. Viewpoint space is available to all members of the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community and to all readers. The free expression of varying opinions through letters is encouraged.

Laundry policy remains sexist

Dear Editor:

Recently, many have complained of the lack of real issues to hit the editorial pages of The Observer, and I believe this is because we would address injustices while still remaining in the students' power to induce change. Standing in water a foot deep the other day, I realized that this was actually standing in the middle of such an issue. An issue that I have found to burn deep in the hearts of most Notre Dame students.

The water I was standing in was from a couple of faulty washing machines in the laundry adjacent to B Asian Hall. Even more discouraging was the lint mixing into this water and sticking to everything it touched.

Of course, this was hard to see at first, since my glasses were steamed up from the drastic temperature change between the arctic South Bend cold and the sultry laundry outlet. I could only wonder if this was appropriate hospitality for a man who had just walked on the earth introducing his boxes to everyone. Even more importantly, for someone who had paid $20.00 to do this.

My only repose was found in the fact that everyone was in the same situation—well, at least all of the male population. Actually, I thought, the residents of Pangborn Hall probably had to walk somewhere to do their laundry since their hall had just changed to a female dorm and as of a few years ago when the old Saint Michael's laundry burned down, it was not feasible to put washers and dryers in any other dorms—or so the administration said.

So I did some research into this issue and found out that I was incorrect. Somewhere, washers and dryers were able to be found for the women of Pangborn. How thoughtful—How Sexist! Either the administration still believes that doing laundry should be reserved primarily for the female gender or that the renaissance man, who is willing and capable of doing his own laundry, does not exist on the Notre Dame campus.

Regardless of what the case may be, I urge all students of both genders to protest this obvious discrimination with phone calls and petitions to the administration, residence life and student government. And as to the administration, I would ask them to consider installing some laundry equipment in the men's dorms sometime between building their next stadium and newest shrines.

Racial division apparent during Bookstore games

Dear Editor:

First, I must apologize for the sin that I was indeed a Bookstore Basketball referee. In working these games, I saw a very disturbing trend and problem that seems to permeate the nation today. I am not talking about the comments about my various body parts, my mother's mating habits, or my sexual preferences. Yelling at the refs is a balled American institution, and I know that basketball is a lot like church: many attend but few understand.

But I did see a very real problem from a few players and fans when I worked a game where a predominantly black team played a predominantly white one. I saw a polarization and an "us against them" mentality that I had heretofore never encountered in my four years at Notre Dame.

For a vocal few on both sides, my calls were criticized solely on the basis of race. When I called a foul on the white team, their fans thought it was because I was "intimidated by the big brothers" (Direct quote). When I called a foul on the black team, I heard "so that's how it's going to be," insinuating that I was trying to help the white team win.

Players also got into the act. After a close call, I had one African-American player directly challenge my decision saying that I made the call because he was black. He later flat out told me he hated me. The crowd also jeered the teams with racist stereotypes that went beyond the harmless generalizations of a basketball game and entered the venomous region of hate.

Again, I must emphasize that most players went about their business in a very respectable manner. Most fans kept their comments where they belong: directed at the blind and stupid referee. But the few who turned these games into questions of racial conflict could not be ignored, and they highlight what seems to be a disturbing trend in the American social agenda.

I saw both sides polarize into hostile camps. I saw blacks carry a distinctive chip on their shoulder, quite ready to blame me for perceived world injustices. I saw white bitterness and fear that I really had not seen before. I got the feeling that both sides wanted to be completely separate from the other. As long as this is the mentality, I fear that their wish will continue to be true.

I cannot imagine how we can possibly solve meaningful crises in America if racial bigotry from both sides is a troublesome issue in the trivial exercise of a pick-up basketball game.

GARRY TRUDEAU
Reader tells more about Phelps

Dear Editor,

As a resident of Topeka, Kansas, I want to sincerely thank Paul Pearson for his article in the April 22 Viewpoint section, "God is too busy with the world to hate homosexuals". It is a very good article, and I was greatly pleased to see it.

Let me say, in no uncertain terms, that I think the "Reverend" Fred Phelps is a lunatic of monumental proportions. The man is really quite frightening. I spoke with Paul Pearson after I read the article, and let him in on a few of the other things Phelps does as a public nuisance.

Fred Phelps is a disgraced lawyer, the founder and pastor of his own little Baptist congregation, run from his home. The congregation consists mainly of his 12-13 children and their families. Their primary ministry is to protest homosexuals.

A few blocks from Phelps' home/church sits Topeka's biggest public park, Gage Park. About a decade ago, it was a "scandal" in the park involving homosexual activity. Phelps and his gang now picket "Gage Park" nearly every weekend, in whatever weather. Also situated in the park is the Topeka Zoo. On numerous occasions, the director and staff have confronted Phelps and his picketers for being so obnoxious as to be annoying the animals. Phelps pickets the local newspaper for running articles attacking him. He calls it the "Fag Rag".

Fred Phelps imagines himself a politician as well. He ran in the last Democratic gubernatorial primaries, and lost handily. Last summer he decided to run in the Democratic race for U.S. Senate because he swore, like McCarthy, to have evidence that his center candidate, Orrin O'Dell, was a "fag". His campaign brochure consisted of footage of gay-rights parades, with the caption, "Is this what you want?" He dealt with few, if any, issues aside from O'Dell's "anti-Gay". Phelps was crushed in the primary. It is my personal view that the only people who voted for him were afraid he would try to get him as far away from them as possible.

When I was skimming through the paper and saw the headline of this article (before I actually read it), my first thought was "Oh God, "Fred Phelps". At every protest, his picket sign is the biggest, screaming "God hates gay people!" I have driven past his protests and yearned to yell "fout damn, but I did not.

I am forwarding a copy of this article to the Flanner Hall Capital-Journal, the "Fag Rag", which Phelps so often desires. I wish the article in the April 22 Viewpoint could be more vehement. It is too weak to do any good.

With ad, Office of Registrar misses point of graduation

More importantly, as far as I am concerned, the tone of the ad is a very negative one. It is too busy with the world to reflect the joy of the entire commencement. It is a very paternalistic and condescending tone and is the exact opposite of the tone of compassion and excitement I would hope the graduates would take by the graduates themselves. Although we have failed, I hope that's not the case.

Policies undermine university alternative of J-Board must remain

Dear Editor:

Not unlike his previous contributions, Frank Pimentel's comments (The Observer, April 22) concerning sexually segregated dormitories were eagerly read. Frank believes the current administrative approach should be maintained and predicated a supporting discussion on Notre Dame's status as a "Roman Catholic university," one which "many... have a hard time accepting." Frank explicitly admits the Catholic attributes of Notre Dame. However, after considering my friend's supporting discussion in its entirety, it is questionable whether he accepts Notre Dame's existence as a "university."

In my opinion, a "university" should simulate the experiences its student population will confront, non-scholastic graduation and assist in the development of the skills with which success may otherwise be acquired. A "university" is foremost preparatory in function, while administrative practices at Notre Dame may suggest otherwise. Sexually segregated dormitories, parietals, penalties for returns from off-campus housing and the mandatory meal plan combine to create structured conditions within which the student's sociological development becomes stagnant. Based on personal observation, a student's existence at Notre Dame is often tantamount to a continuation of high school. Perhaps, the administration should permit its students to experience societal reality within the protective "university" environment, and emphasize Catholicism as a mission to succeed within this reality.

J-Board's alternative must remain

As newly appointed members of Flanner Hall's Judicial Board for the 1993-1994 school year we are concerned with what exactly our duties encompass as appointed student officials. Recently this has become a popular topic among both students and the Administration, with talk formulating about the possible abolition of student judicial boards as an alternative for disciplinary measures within dorms.

Du Lac states, "Students subject to disciplinary action may choose to have their cases considered by the Rector or by the Hall Judicial Board. The Rector shall make the student aware of this option in each disciplinary action." We believe that the Judicial Board is a significant but unencumbered branch of the disciplinary means by which an individual has the choice to be judged by his/her peers.

J-Board acts as a form of "checks and balances" between the Administration and its disciplinary procedures. Just as there is a separation between our nation's Legislative and Judiciar branches, a separation exist within the dorm to protect and ensure the rights of students.

To Du Lac, "Rectors are strongly urged to use the Judicial Board and to consider their handling of disciplinary cases to those which are truly serious, or sensitive or involve pastoral concerns not appropriate for a Judicial Board." There seems to be a discrepancy as to what exactly defines a truly serious or sensitive or pastoral concern.

More often than not, the J-Board is criticized as being ineffective and in some cases obsolete. This is only because we are not given the opportunity to openly prove our worth and effectiveness. Because of this, we encourage dorm Judicial Boards and Rectors to define the type of cases that each board will hear so that the involvement of a student-conducted hearing can be practiced more frequently in disciplinary actions.

Rather than abolish the Judicial Board as an issue, we call on the Administration and the Campus Life Council to actively and fundamentally re-form the system, with the help of newly appointed members, for next year by granting the Judicial Board specific powers and enforcement such as those presently in Du Lac. We feel that it would be completely inappropriate as well as non-necessary for the university institution such as the Judicial Board without fully consulting students. By continuing the re-forming of J-Board members and Rectors rather than the above, small, residentially dedicated members of the Campus Life Council.

Unfortunately, many students are unaware of the disciplinary alternative of Hall Judicial Boards. Our hope is that students will acknowledge their rights and encourage the active use of a redefined Judicial Board within each dorm.

We encourage the Administration to promote the importance of Hall Judicial Boards rather than to abolish them completely. We look forward to working more closely with our Rectors and promoting the expanded use of students in the judicial process as valued by the University of Notre Dame. In turn, we ask other dorm J-Boards to actively support our cause and initiate actions of their own for the benefit of all students.

"The Fairy Queen" debut

Students to perform Shakespearean-based play

By J. SABETH HEARD
Assistant Accent Editor

Shakespeare’s “A Midsummer Night’s Dream” play dealing with magic, fairies and romantic situations revolving around cases of mistaken identity. Now a version of this story is coming to Notre Dame as the Notre Dame Opera Workshop presents “The Fairy Queen” in Washington Hall Monday, April 27, at 8 p.m.

“The Fairy Queen,” written by William Shakespeare, is an opera loosely based on Shakespeare’s work. “There are 23 singers in the cast,” said Gary Grice, the director of the actually being a suitor of the Opera Workshop. “That’s a lot of people.”

Both productions were well received by the Notre Dame and South Bend audiences. “Last year was a success,” said Rebekah Roemer, a second-year graduate student in the music department and pianist for “The Fairy Queen.” “I want to make it even better this year.”

She recently received a $500 grant from a class offered by the music department. “It helps to train students involved in a vocal music career,” said Grice. Hill was working with Grice in Indiana Opera North as a rehearsal pianist when he asked her if she wanted to be involved in the production. “I have always been interested in music,” said Hill. “I’ve been playing the piano for three years.” After talking to Grice, she eventually wanted to work with singers as a vocal coach.

The students work for an average of five to six hours a week in preparation for the production, “which is actually not much compared to a professional production,” said Hill.

It’s nice to see people who are not music majors get involved.

Marta Roemer is on an emotional roller-coaster.

The once happy and healthy little girl she felt she had to report to Roemer in recognition of her work with Ann, a young girl who has been living in a foster care group. The other she is heartbroken over the fact that the little girl she has worked with for two years was suddenly taken to Missouri last week, Marta said.

“She means so much to me,” says the 7th grade and does not encourage Ann to do well in school.

Caseworkers for the St. Joseph County Child Protective Services program gave the award to Roemer in recognition of her work with Ann, a nine-year-old whose last name was removed due to the condition of anonymity.

Recently, Marta had been basking in the success of receiving post-graduate service offers from the Volunteer Corps and Boston City Year among other groups. She had been enjoying the increasingly warm temperatures in her native South Bend until last week. That’s when she was hit with a wickedly cold chill.

I called her mom’s boyfriend’s house to remind them that I was coming to pick Ann up for an afternoon recreational activity. He hesitated, then told me that they had just split up and the mom decided to suddenly pack up and head for Missouri. After absorbing that painful news Marta got both a phone number and address where Ann could be reached in Missouri. However, neither options were put to use. Marta has been working with limited staging and piano accompaniment. The Opera Workshop provides the students with an excellent opportunity to obtain first-hand experience in all aspects of an opera production. They also provide the audience with delightful operas often passed over by larger companies.

The music department is one of the smallest departments, and is generally talked to graduate students. “There are 22 students,” said Hill. “It can be hard sometimes, but it is also good because you get a lot of attention from teachers.”

Irish stars cash in at NFL draft

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Editor

The NFL Draft had an Irish flair to it Sunday, as four Notre Dame players were selected in the first round, and a total of seven when the first day selections were complete.

Quarterback Rick Mirer was the first chosen, as the Seattle Seahawks grabbed the three-year starter with the second pick overall. The New England Patriots had the first pick overall, and were believed to be interested in Mirer. But the Patriots chose Washington State signal caller Drew Bledsoe over Mirer.

"I didn't really prefer one team over the other, but to be honest, I'd rather live on the west coast than east. I've never been a big fan of the East Coast," said Mirer.

Miler will compete with 1991 first-round selection Dan McGwire and Kelly Studdler for the starting job.

Eight picks after Mirer the Los Angeles Rams made Jerome Bettis the third pick overall, taking the running back out of Notre Dame. Bettis will compete with the tandem of Mike Ditka and Eric Dickerson at running back.

"We are all very happy that Tom is going to Washington," said Mirer. "It is a good team, and Washington is a great city. This has been a wonderful day for us."

Bettis seemed happy to be headed to Los Angeles and also with his decision to enter the draft after his junior season.

"I had to do what was right for me and my family, and coming out early was the best move at this time," said Bettis.

The second Notre Dame player to forego his senior year and enter the draft was also the next Irish player selected. Cornerback Tom Carter was taken with the 16th pick overall. The Washington Redskins in an effort to shore up an secondary weakened by free agency and age.

Carter will likely take over the right cornerback spot vacated by Manka Mayhew, who left via free agency. Carter was unavailable for comment because he left for Washington immediately after hearing of his selection, but his mother expressed joy over her son's new team.

Ruder leads nice showing at Drake Relays

By SEAN SULLIVAN
Sports Writer

Up against strong competition, the Irish men's track team faced well this weekend, competing at the Drake relays and the Hillsdale invitational.

At the Drake relays, the Irish especially ran well. Nate Ruder, whose impact has been felt all year in cross-country and track, competed against one of the nation's best runners, 1992 Olympian Jim Spivey.

Currently Spivey is the best miler in the United States. Ruder faced Spivey in the 3,000 meter invitational and finished with a time of 8:22.35. Spivey won the race with a time of 8:55.81. In the open 5,000 meter run, J.B. Meloro from Notre Dame finished with a time of 14:50.9.

John Cowan finished sixth in the 3,000 meter steeple chase with a time of 9:15.44. Derek S Selling finished 7th with a time of 9:17.23.

The Irish finished seventh in the distance medley relay with a time of 10:03.61. The team included John Cooke and Keith O'Brien. In the 4X1600 meter, Notre Dame finished fifth with a time of 16:59.99.

In the field events at the Hilldale Invitational the Irish also had strong showings.

"We did pretty well," said field events coach Scott Winder.

Stuart Tyner placed second in the discus with a throw of 166 feet.

"Stuart's finally getting over the hump," said Winder, "He and John Smerek are both throwing a lot better."

Smerek placed fourth in the discuss with a throw of 166' 5".

In the pole vault, Dan Grenough cleared 16 feet on his first vault. With this vault he won the event, beating all collegiate opponents.

Grenough came close to clearing 16' 6", while he did not win the invitational competition, as Coach Winder explained, he faced two former "Collegiate" All-Americans.

"Overall, it was a pretty good weekend," said coach Winder. "I hope to role that into the next weekend, which is the Central Collegiates here at Notre Dame."

Battleing under the basket for the tournament’s last point, Jones was fouled and sent to the line. With the rambunctious audience pouring both cheers and jeers on to the court, Jones bricked his only free-throw attempt of the day of the front of the rim.

Jones was given a second chance to claim the one of his teammates managed to pull down the offensive rebound and fire it back out to him to the right of the key. Jones faded away and sank the game-winning shot from just outside the three-point line.

The crowd erupted as the five members of Tequila White Lighting exalted their long-awaited championship.

"I think I’ll be seeing that shot for a few days," said Bookstore Most Valuable Player Andy Cureo, who along with Rolwing led Malicious with six points.

"It was ten competitors, and all ten wanted to win," said Rolwing, who scored five times. "I’m glad we’re the five who did. I never felt like we wouldn’t win."

"It was a great game," Malicious captain Ken Boehner said. "We played hard, but they were a better team."

"I think we had one of our better games," said Cureo. "They just played a little better."

"Each time we hit a hoop we kind of looked into each other’s eyes and we knew we wanted it," said Tequila captain Mike Mackinnon.

"Those guys are a class act," said Tequila stand-out Shannon Cullinan of Malicious Prosecution. "They’re five great basketball players."

Cullinan was named Mr. Bookstore after the game, an honor which his brother Sean received five years ago. "Mr. Bookstore is nice," he said, "but the tournament, winning it all, means everything."

Tequila White Lighting has won more games over the past four years than any other Bookstore team, going 24-3.

With all five members of Tequila graduating, it appears that this will be the last of a long line of winning teams. "As far as anyone can see," said Mackinnon, "this is the last year."

"This is a picture perfect ending," said Bookstore Head Commissioner Andy Slim. "This tournament was the bright spot to a typically cloudy South Bend spring."

Irish baseball loses two of three to Evansville

By JENNY MARTEN

All too frequently in baseball it is said that luck is 99 percent of the game. The 24th-ranked Notre Dame baseball team (25-10) proved that platitude this weekend as the Irish dropped two of three to Evansville.

On Friday night, Dave Greg Layson Sinnes (5-1) baffled the Aces throwing a one-hit complete game for the 6-0 win. In the shootout, the righthander struck out five while only walking one.

The Irish batters came through at the plate with second baseman Greg Layson going 2 for 4 and scoring twice and right-fielder Eric Helfrich went 2 for 3 with three runs batted in while Marty Watson went 2 for 4 with four RBIs.

For Notre Dame, Eddie Hartwell went 2 for 3 with a double and a RBI while Topham and DeSensi went 2 for 4 with DeSensi hitting his ninth homer of the year. Rowan Richards (1 for 2) also drove in a run.

On Sunday, Evansville's Chris Helfrich controlled the rain shortened game, which was considered official even though it only lasted 4 1/3 innings and took the 5-0 victory. Helfrich (6-0) had allowed only one hit and struck out three when the game was called.

Hartwell was the only Irish hitter to register a hit off the Evansville starter while the Irish batters came through at the plate with more use of their second baseman Greg Layson going 2 for 3 with a double and a RBI while Topham and DeSensi went 2 for 4 with DeSensi hitting his ninth homer of the year. Rowan Richards (1 for 2) also drove in a run.

The Irish are now 15-3 in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference while Evansville lifted their conference record to 9-6.

Anthony Travel cruises to title

By BRYAN CONNOLLY

Led by tournament MVP Sandy Botham's eleven points, number two seed Anthony Travel crushed four seed Kiss of Finess 21-13 in the 1993 Women's Bookstore Basketball Tournament.

Anthony Travel, which features the play Notre Dame's women's basketball coach Muffett McGraw and her two assistants10 Anthony Haysbert and Sara Liebischer, relied on its powerful inside play to knock off the talented, play-ground style Kiss of Finess.

Kiss of Finess captain Conslitia Haysbert, who started for Notre Dame's women's team last year, played to her full potential in the championship by scoring nine points through a barrage of forceful drives to the net and jump shots from three-point land.

The play of Haysbert was not enough, however, because the fierce defensive pressure of Anthony Travel shut down the rest of the team.

"We all played really well," said Haysbert. "It was a total team effort.

"They were just a really good team," said Haysbert. "We did what we could.

"It was just as competitive playing in this as it was playing in Division I," she added. "It's nothing like playing play-ground ball.

Kiss of Finess had a difficult road to the championship game. It first had to knock off the heavily favored top seed Cactus Jack's Spicy Jalapenas. Although Cactus Jack's featured a very diverse offensive attack, Kiss of Finess buckled down and earned a 21-15 victory.

Anthony Travel also had to overcome mountainous obstacles en route to the finals. Both McGraw and Botham missed the Final Eight and Final Four games on Friday and Saturday because they were working out of town.

Liebischer, who was named Miss Bookstore, rose to the occasion and led the squad to victories over three seed Ring My Bellie and seven seed Ya You Know Me. Ring My Bellie, a solid defensive team which liked to run the break, was led by strong inside play of two six foot-er St. Mary's basketball players.

"It's great," Botham said of the unapologetic, "especially because we (McGrabe and Botham) were gone. Sara and the rest of the crew really pulled it out."
Lacrosse hammers Ohio State

By KEVIN MCGUIRE
Sports Writer

The 16th-ranked Notre Dame lacrosse team went on the road this weekend for the first of two key games, and came away with an 11-7 victory over the Ohio State Buckeyes (7-3) on Saturday. The win puts the Irish, now 10-2, one game closer to making the NCAA tournament via the Midwest region's automatic bid.

Notre Dame's win, however, did not allow them to move up in this week's United States Intercollegiate Lacrosse Association's coaches' poll, as the Irish remained in the 16th position. "With their victory over the Buckeyes, Notre Dame tied the all-time school record for most wins in a season with ten. Even though the Irish were clearly the better of the two teams on the field in Columbus, the outcome of the game still hung in the balance with eleven minutes to go in the fourth quarter as the score was tied at seven. Then junior attacker Robbie Snyder went on a tear to propel the Irish to four unanswered goals."

First, Snyder assisted on fellow attacker Kevin Mahoney's goal at the ten and half minute mark to break the tie. He then scored an unassisted goal a minute later and iced the game with five minutes to go, taking a feed from senior attacker Bo Perriello, and netting his fourth goal of the game and giving the Irish the important win.

"It was pretty happy with the win and how the Irish played in crunch time," said coach Kevin Corrigan, as the Irish outplayed the Buckeyes, 28-18, in the last three games, came out fired up and jumped on Ohio State for three goals in the first quarter. Junior attacker Mark Hexamer, making his first start of the season, scored an unassisted goal four minutes into the game, and then assisted on Snyder's first goal eight minutes later.

Freshman midfielder Rob Tobin scored in the next minute to give the Irish a 3-1 lead after the game's opening quarter. Coach Corrigan's emphasis on fundamentals the week leading up to the game paid off as the Irish played considerably better and dominated nearly every aspect of the game."

The defense, who had trouble in earlier games, rose to the challenge of the Buckeye offense and had one of their best games. "We played great defense and had great riding, those things paid off for us," Corrigan noted.

But Ohio State would not succumb to the pressure of the Irish, and played evenly with the Irish in the second and third quarters. The Buckeyes outscored Notre Dame to cut the lead to 6-5 at halftime, and then matched the Irish goal for goal in the third, before Corrigan led the Irish in the fourth. They gave the Irish an early lead. Holzer, who scored four times, led the Irish in the match's third.

The game marked the first time in junior attacker Randy Tobin's career, he did not score a goal, leaving him one goal short of breaking the season scoring record of 42, which he set last year.

THE FAR SIDE

"We've done it! They've linked up! ... Man, Feldman must be freaking out — he even hates spiders."
McDougal shines in comeback victory

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Editor

Junior quarterback Kevin McDougal's made a case for the starting quarterback job on Saturday, leading the Blue on two fourth quarter touchdown drives and a 21-17 come-from-behind win over the Gold in the 63rd annual Blue-Gold Game at Notre Dame Stadium.

McDougal hit split end Clint Johnson on a 30-yard touchdown pass 5:54 remaining in the game, capping a five play, 62-yard drive which was set up by Tracy Graham interception.

"We had a post on front side, so I had a choice to throw the pass on the front side or the deep Z on the back side. I laid it up for Clint on and he made a great catch," said McDougal.

Johnson's catch capped a banner day for McDougal, who completed 16-26 for 230-yards and two touchdowns and earned offensive MVP honors. His opponent for the starting quarterback slot, sophomore Paul Failla, completed 18-28 for 156 yards and one touchdown.

Failla looked good in the third period, leading the Gold on two third quarter scoring drives to break a 7-7 halftime tie.

Failla connected with Mike Miller on a 29-yard scoring toss, extending the Gold lead to 17-7. Failla is not far behind," McDougal said.

Both quarterbacks have been engaged spring drills. It has been obvious to most insiders that McDougal is the choice of his teammates. He is close friends with a number of the residents at ND's dorms, and is one of the most popular players on the squad. "I'm happy, the perfect quarterback, right?"

McDougal played well on Saturday completing 16 of 26 attempts for 230 yards and two touchdowns in leading the Blue to a 21-17 come-from-behind win. He orchestrated two fourth quarter drives, and marched the Blue to the go-ahead score.

JOCK STRIP

Holtz leaves only speculation concerning QB

Trying to predict the moves of Lou Holtz has been especially arduous this spring. In the spring of 1992, Holtz acknowledged Kevin McDougal's fine performance in the Gold-Blue game. Would Holtz acknowledge Kevin McDougal's fine performance in the Gold-Blue game? Would Holtz acknowledge Kevin McDougal's fine performance in the Gold-Blue game? Would Holtz acknowledge Kevin McDougal's fine performance in the Gold-Blue game? Would Holtz acknowledge Kevin McDougal's fine performance in the Gold-Blue game?

But that is what Holtz revealed no more concerning the quarterback controversy which has engulfted spring drills. He reiterated later that whoever came into fall camp and performed the best would get that job. It has been obvious to most insiders that McDougal is the choice of his teammates. He is close friends with a number of the residents at ND's dorms, and is one of the most popular players on the squad. "I'm happy, the perfect quarterback, right?"
