Folk Choir rocks 'Catholic Woodstock'

By MEREDITH McCULLOUGH

It has been dubbed the Catholic Woodstock—and with the Notre Dame Folk Choir on the scene.

The folk choir is not just about singing traditional Church hymns, explained the group's director Steven Warner. And the puppy visit to Denver this August for World Youth Day. It was not just about Church doctrine and structured belief.

With over 180,000 young people from across the globe screaming their welcome to the Holy Father and clapping to the diverse selection of music offered, Warner described the 10-day event as "one enormous block party for Catholics all over the world."

His choir of 40 Notre Dame students and 25 folk choir alumni seemed to agree.

"We rocked the place," said graduate student Lisa Van Heldorf, describing the final piece of music at the Papal Mass where the choir broke into the Gospel version of "Hail Holy Queen" as performed in the Whoopie Goldberg movie "Sister Act."

"The thing that was wonderful about this week was that there was no pretentiousness about anything," said Warner. "The whole point was that there is no problem with having fun and just enjoying yourself with a whole bunch of other people."

The Notre Dame Folk Choir was among nine choirs this summer to join in the celebration of the World Youth Day Conference in Denver. Highlights of the group's excursion included the papal welcome at Mile High Stadium and the Papal Mass at Cherry Creek Regional Park.

At Mile High Stadium, the choir joined 100,000 people to greet the Holy Father, as he descended upon the crowd of cheering, chanting Catholics waving flags from the various nations they represented. "I never thought that the moment could be so moving."

Off-campus victimized by burglaries

By JULIE BARRETT

Several Notre Dame students living off-campus have already reported break-ins and burglaries of their new residences.

A VCR and some stereo equipment were stolen.

Another unit four numbers down had been broken into around 3:30 a.m. the night before and the residents had gone to bed.

"A friend noticed our front door open and came over to find that our place had been robbed," said Kristen Lefere who was there asleep along with one of her roommates and her roommate's mother.

Lefere said she remembers locking all the doors and setting the alarm, but the alarm failed to go off when the burglar or burglars crowbarred the door off its hinges.

A VCR and stereo were also taken.

According to Chris Matteo of Maiteo Enterprises who owns the complex, the alarm malfunctioned, because positive news does not generate the same kind of headlines that negative issues do, according to Lawrence Cunningham, chair of the complex, the alarm malfunctioned, because positive news does not generate the same kind of headlines that negative issues do.

"There has never been anything like this before," Matteo said. "The police believe that..."

Students must make colloquy their own

Last May, Notre Dame president Edward Malloy delivered the 1993 commencement speech to the University community. But on the day Monk chose to release the final report of the Notre Dame Football for the Year 2000, most of the Notre Dame family was busy, celebrating graduation and the late arrival of spring in Michiana. Few read and absorbed the report's published conclusions, a document which will shape the future of Notre Dame.

Presentation of a special edition of the Notre Dame Report, which few undergraduates have ever seen and few readers had the chance to do, was up as a blueprint for the Notre Dame of the next century.

And barring an outcry from undergraduates, who have the potential to be the most vocal members of the Notre Dame family, those recommendations may come true of Notre Dame in the near future. Two thousand is only six and a half years away, and the $40 million which the colloquy's described will be upon us sooner than that.

A beer, and watch the past generation make something of the past.

Much of what was printed in the colloquy's final report was simply formality; a rubber stamp on long-assumed aspects of Notre Dame's future. That the football stadium would be expanded should have been a foregone conclusion.

The bare truth is that Notre Dame is what we want. We should not stand by, and watch the past generation make some

New cable law may lower rates

Starting Wednesday, channel surfing should be cheaper for millions of cable TV subscribers. But not for everyone.

Most cable customers will notice other differences in their monthly bills. It's a confusing time for couch potatoes. It's a tricky time for cable operators a customer subscribes to.

The providers often will find it's a confusing time for couch potatoes. The result is that the number of channels a customer subscribes to will go down an average of about five. By next year, they expect channel prices to have gone down an average of about ten.

But without an undergraduate familiarity with the colloquy's conclusions, the future of Notre Dame will be ours longer than it will be theirs. The Notre Dame football stadium, which we want. We should not stand by, and watch the past generation make some

Clinton faces old, new issues

WASHINGTON

Listing conditions for sending U.S.-peacekeeping troops to Bosnia, President Clinton said Monday he'd be convinced to go, any war-ending settlement was fair, and supported by Congress and the United Nations, and a world peace agreement. "I'm certainly open to the use of American forces," he said. But if we also enter into what decision, that will be based on what the asked about the use of American forces, Clinton said, "Whether I would be prepared to do that or not depends on what I did, and I also want to know who responsible it is to stay for how long." Family defends Jackson

LOS ANGELES

Hours after Michael Jackson posted a Singapore concert because of illness, his family gathered thousands of miles away to defend him against child molestation allegations. "I'd like to let the world know that I'm behind my son and don't believe any of this stuff that's been written about him," Jackson's mother, Katherine, said at a news conference originally called to promote a Jackson family television special.

In addition to Michael's brothers Jermaine and Tito and sister Debbie, those absent included Jackson's daughter LaToya, who is estranged from the family, and his sister Janet, who was reported to have flown to Singapore last week to be with her brother. Jermaine Jackson said other family members were planning to visit the pop superstar at some point during his world tour. "We wish to state our collective, unequivocal belief that Michael has been made a victim of a cruel, obvious attempt to take advantage of his fame and success," he said. But coming from a statement Jackson's private investigator has said a Beverly Hills dentist accused the entertainer of molesting the man's teenage son and demanded $30 million to keep quiet. The dentist hasn't commented. Los Angeles police have confirmed that Jackson is the target of a criminal investigation.

Hurricane heads for Carolinas

Hurricane Emily is slowly heading towards the Southern coast of the Atlantic as it churns in the Atlantic. Residents from Delaware to the Carolinas are bracing for the storm touching ground in the near future. According to the National Hurricane Center, Emily is expected to bring heavy wind and rain to parts of the Southeast. The hurricane is expected to make landfall in North Carolina later today.
Improving Notre Dame students' phone services and replacing an outdated system motivated the Notre Dame Telecommunications Department to complete the installation of a new phone system for Notre Dame campus phones. After two years of planning, Telecommunications decided on Indiana Bell's OMS 100 Switch digital Centrex system, which offers a number of features, including call waiting, three-way calling, last number redial, and ring again, which allows students to be called back when a busy campus number is free. A voice mailbox package, Centigram, has also been added, said Telecommunications Manager Steve Ellis. The systems overhaul began in December of 1992 with administration phones and was completed this summer with new phones in each dorm room on Notre Dame's campus. The primary reason for this step in the inadequacy of the old system, AT&T Dimension, which Telecommunications Coordinator Paulette Podlesak said Notre Dame has "literally outgrown." This system, roughly 11 years old, could no longer handle the increasing number of students, staff, and faculty, in addition to fax machines, said Podlesak. The University was beginning to run out of new numbers to be used, and too many users at certain busy times caused false busy signals, according to Ellis. Another problem with the old system was that its manufacturers no longer serviced the system nor manufactured replacement parts. In addition to these obvious warning signals, the University acknowledged students' requests for the new features. "The students have the features they have at home, and that makes sense. It makes it more like home," said Switchboard Coordinator Janice Love. Podlesak added, "We wanted to enhance students' services since we were enhancing services for the administration." Ellis warned that students who choose not to have a voice mailbox would risk missing such messages. According to Ellis, the purchase price of the Digital Centrex system was approximately $3,600,000, and the voice mailboxes, a separate system, was $500,000. Students' phone fee will increase by nine percent to cover these costs. Though many students find the new system to be complex, the Telecommunications Department has made an effort to minimize confusion. In addition to a user's manual explaining the features offered and how to utilize them, the Help Desk (631-9000) is available to answer questions and help reset pass codes. They can also remove the voice mailbox feature upon students' requests. As of Friday at 5 p.m., only six students had requested that their mailbox be deactivated, Podlesak said. Ellis added that the Telecommunications Department has the ability to find users who are having difficulties with their phones, and they call these students to offer assistance. "We have a lot of confidence in the students' ability once they get used to it," said Podlesak. Future plans include individual mailboxes and, "Anything we can do to make it easier. That's all we want to do," said Podlesak. "We hope that the students will enjoy the new features. We are excited about what we were able to offer students for the first time," said Podlesak. Saint Mary's continues to use the system they purchased three and a half years ago, NEAX 2400, according to Sandy Handley, Telecommunications Coordinator at Saint Mary's. This system includes such features as three-way conferences, call, hold, transfer, and park, but does not include call waiting or voice mailboxes. They plan on adding additional features in the future, but Handley does not expect them this year.

appear more home-like. Dried flowers and meal theme decorations were implemented in the building.

"We want to jump out of the dark ages of stainless steel and brighten students stressful lives. We do not want meals to be boring," Kirwan said.

In addition to the building changes and extended hours, new changes include the expansion of the Wellness bar and a grill-to-order format line. Eventually, the existing Wellness bar will include a computer and printout providing a nutritional analysis for the current day's meals, he said.

When operational, the Fire House Grill will provide grilled breakfasts made to order and prepared in the service line itself, Kirwan said. Currently, this format is not yet available due to venting problems, but it is hoped to be in place soon.

"The key to this progress in the dining hall is communication," Kirwan said.

"It's important for us to be able to keep up with students' tastes and needs. The Food Committee and the comment board allow us to keep in touch with the student body. For this reason, we would like to set up a sample plate table later this week where students can vote whether or not they would like a particular entree again. This will hopefully allow for a true representation of student tastes."

OUC installs updated equipment in campus computer clusters

By KATIE MURPHY
News Writer

Over the summer, the Office of University Computing (OUC) replaced and shifted nearly 130 computers in an effort to update several computer clusters and labs, according to Scott Siler, student resources coordinator for the OUC.

The DeBartolo, LaFortune, Hayes-Healy, Davisson, Hesburgh, Fitzpatrick, and CCMB computer clusters received some new computer models. Some of the old hardware was transferred to other clusters, to be used as print-only stations or print servers, or sold to faculty and staff in a special sale last May.

"It wasn't just a simple switch. We bought the new ones and shifted some of the other computers around," said Siler.

The purchase of the computers stemmed from general maintenance problems with the older ones, which were mostly Macintosh SE's and SE30's. Some of the replaced software was close to five years old and lacked the speed and capabilities offered by the newer models, according to Siler.

"We were having a lot of problems with the machines in general. We had to get them repaired quite often," said Siler.

The OUC purchased Macintosh Centris 650's and 610's. The 650 models were installed in the DeBartolo, Davisson and CCMB clusters. The Hesburgh cluster received the 610 model. Both models contain built-in CD-ROM and floppy disk drives, although students will have to bring their own CD caddy to use the CD-ROM. According to Siler, the Centris computers are faster than the SE's and SE30's and possess more capabilities with the CD-ROM functions.

"The CD-ROM can be a regular drive, just as on a stereo. It also acts as a very large floppy disk. You can fit so much more on the CD," said Siler.

Other changes include the installation of Macintosh LC's in the Hayes-Healy and LaFortune clusters, and the addition of some new IBM-DOS servers in Hesburgh, Hayes-Healy and DeBartolo. In the Fitzpatrick cluster, the OUC removed all of the Hewlett Packard Vectras and implemented 16 new Sun SPARCstations.

"The SPARCstations are primarily used by engineering and science and are higher-ended work stations," said Siler.

Israel, Palestinians reach accord

By NICOLAS TATRO
Assistant Press

JERUSALEM - Israel's Cabinet resoundingly approved a framework for Palestinian autonomy in the strife-torn occupied territories Monday, taking a first step toward ending 26 years of Israeli military control.

The agreement, expected to be signed at peace talks this week, represents the first major breakthrough in the Middle East conflict since Egypt signed a peace treaty with the Jewish state in 1979.

It was also the first significant sign of progress in the 22-month-old peace talks, set to resume today.

The plan calls for Israeli troops to begin withdrawing from the Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho in six months, and for Palestinians to begin running their own affairs there.

Israel has occupied the lands since the 1967 Middle East war, and fierce debate over the future of these territories has divided the Jewish state since.

But a violent five and a half year uprising against Israeli rule persuaded many Israelis they were better off without the territories, especially the overcrowded Gaza strip that has no biblical resonance for Jews.

Israel peace proponents also argued that if Israel does not forge an agreement with the Palestine Liberation Organization, it will soon face much more dangerous radical Islamic groups bent on greater violence.

"We negotiated with the Palestinians with whom we have been in conflict for 100 years, and this is the most important thing in the decision," Health Minister Haim Ramon said after 16 ministers voted for the plan and two abstained.

Deadbolts, alarms deter burglars

By JULIE BARRETT
News Writer

Students living on their own off-campus for the first time are often unfamiliar with protective measures they can take to secure their homes from intruders. There is a range of security systems and devices offered, some more effective and cheaper than others, but none 100 percent effective, according to Corp. Millard Hill of the South Bend Crime Prevention unit.

"Basically, if a person wants to break into a place, he or she will do so in most cases regardless of the security system installed," he said. "What a resident can do by bolting their doors and having an alarm system is deter the burglar from even bothering to try or just slow them down."

Hill recommended dead bolt locks that go at least one inch into the door jamb and two and one half inch screws that secure the door jamb so the door cannot be easily pryed open or torn down.

"The average bolt takes about eight seconds to break open, while the one inch one takes about one minute," he said.

For sliding glass doors and windows, a metal bar can be placed in tightly between the frame and the wall to prevent them from being opened. Other suggestions include a motion sensitive bar for the sliding glass doors and windows that sound off an alarm when moved, metal bars on the windows or within the frame itself that can be secured from the inside.

"However, bars on windows or even boarding them up poses a fire hazard and are not allowed in some complexes," Hill added.

Other suggestions include keeping the outside entrances well-lit, the shrubbery low, and belongings inside. "The average time anyone can walk in and out of a house is about one minute," Hill said.

"Students coming back to school welcome a rash of crime," according to Sgt. Charlie Feirrel of the St. Joseph County Police. "When students are moving in there is a lot of confusion going on. They have parties that are usually too big to be controlled so that many times anyone can walk in and take what they want."

Feirrel agreed with Matteo saying that large, uncontrollable parties pose a problem for security enforcement.

"If there are too many people at a party and gathered outside, the police are distracted with the problem of keeping them under control so the neighbors don't complain instead of protecting the area," Matteo said.

Matteo said he is increasing the number of police patrolling the development and involving the neighborhood enforcement team, S.O.S. squad and S.U.D.S. to provide extra security. The South Bend Detective Bureau has planned a special surveillance team, as well, and other security measures are being looked into, he added.

LaFortune Center shuffles basement business locations

By SARAH DORAN
Assistant News Editor

The Copy Shop, The Country Harvester, and ND Video moved to different locations in the basement of the LaFortune Center during the summer due to a re-evaluation of the needs of each business, according to Joseph Cassidy, director of student activities, who oversaw the move.

The Copy Shop has moved to space previously occupied by The Country Harvester, according to Cassidy. "The Copy Shop moved to the best use of space," he said.

The move of Country Harvester coincided with the expiration of their lease and the Copy Shop's need for more space, said James Lyphout, associate vice president for business affairs. A tenant in LaFortune cannot be forced to move before the expiration of their lease, he said.

The move of ND Video to space previously occupied by ND Video, and ND Video to space previously occupied by The Copy Shop, "We evaluate the space and location of each business on an ongoing basis looking at the number of folks each business is serving and what they are providing," said Cassidy. "The moves came down to the best use of space."

The move of Country Harvester coincided with the expiration of their lease and the Copy Shop's need for more space, said James Lyphout, associate vice president for business affairs. A tenant in LaFortune cannot be forced to move before the expiration of their lease, he said.

The Copy Shop, which has been a LaFortune tenant for four years, has already benefited from the move, which gave them roughly twice the amount of space they had in the previous location, said manager Jeff Riffel.

"We've added things we could never have had in the other store," said Riffel. "The increased space has already improved our business."

Although The Country Harvester lost roughly 200 square feet of space, said owner and manager Rose Horsky, they are able to display about the same amount of inventory as in the old location.

"My only concern is when Christmas time comes around because I usually have increased displays, but we'll see," she said.

Improving visibility was the primary goal to be accomplished by the move of ND Video to the old Copy Shop location. The store has roughly the same amount of space as it did before, only it is now in a much better location to capitalize on student customers and improve its business, said Cassidy.

ND Video is the only operation that has not yet opened for business in its new location, in addition to being the only student-run entity of the three. It is expected to open within the next week or so, according to Mary Edgington, assistant director of Student Activities.

Another summer development in the basement of LaFortune was the June retirement of barber Joe "RTOC, Joe" D'Angelo after 38 years of campus hair cutting.

Taking his place in the barber shop is Frank "the Barber" Franko, who was previously a barber at Kent State University.

HATTERAS, N.C. Thousands of people boarded up windows and fled island Monday as Hurricane Emily strengthened and headed toward the Carolinas, low-lying Outer Banks islands chain with 95 mph winds.

Hurricane warnings were posted from the central North Carolina coast to Virginia as the storm threatened to pass over land Tuesday afternoon, and forecasters said there was a growing threat to the East Coast farther north.

"My wife is scared to death," said commercial fisherman Jack Quiddley, 45, of Buxton on the Outer Banks island chain. "I'm taking this seriously after Hugo and Andrew," said Hatteras Island native Janice Banks, 43.

Though Emily was unlikely to approach the ferocity of those hurricanes, it was expected to strengthen, with top sustained winds possibly exceeding 100 mph. And coastal areas it threatened were left vulnerable to major dune-flattening storms last winter.

At 8 p.m., Emily's center was about 250 miles southeast of Cape Hatteras, near latitude 32.2 degrees north and longitude 73.0 degrees west. Wind and rain from the hurricane hadn't reached shore but ocean swells along the coast had grown to 10 feet, the National Weather Service said.

The hurricane's maximum sustained winds were near 95 mph, up from 85 mph three hours earlier, and some additional strengthening was likely as the storm traversed the Gulf Stream.

Emily was moving west-northwest at near eight mph and that motion was expected to swing north Tuesday, said the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla.

"We'll probably have to put some warnings on northward tomorrow," said Bob Sheets, the center's director. "The question is how soon it's going to turn to the north."

If it turns northward before or shortly after hitting the Outer Banks, Emily would head back out to sea and would be expected to stay offshore of the coast, said hurricane center forecaster Tony Zaleski. That could cause large swells and 40-50 mph wind along the coastline from Virginia to New York's Long Island.

If Emily moves farther inland over North Carolina before veering north, it might weaken to tropical storm status - with sustained wind below 74 mph - but could bring heavy rain and high wind to big East Coast cities, Zaleski said.

ANNOUNCING THE FORMATION OF COMMITTEES Recommended by the Colloquy for the Year 2000

Acting on recommendations in the final report of the Colloquy for the Year 2000, Father Malloy has announced the formation of four new University committees—on curriculum; international studies; research, scholarship and infrastructure; and libraries.

Three of the four committees will be composed of 25 students, faculty and staff members and will issue final recommendations to the provost and Academic Council by the end of the 1993-94 academic year. The Committee on Research, Scholarship and Infrastructure will have nine faculty, staff and student members and will issue its preliminary recommendations by the end of this year.

The majority of the members of each committee will be chosen by their respective constituencies.

Father Malloy has appointed as committee chairs: Timothy O'Meara, provost, University Curriculum Committee; Isabel Charles, associate provost and director of international programs, Committee on International Studies; Nathan Hatch, vice president for graduate studies and research, Committee on Research, Scholarship and Infrastructure; and Roger Schmitt, vice president and associate provost, Committee on University Libraries.

Father Malloy's final Colloquy report, submitted to the University's trustees May 7, 1993, included 43 specific recommendations. The recommendations pertinent to the new committees are:

- Recommendation 9—"A University Curriculum Committee should report and make recommendations to the Academic Council on the quality of the undergraduate learning experience at Notre Dame with a special emphasis on curriculum, course of study (including the Freshman Year of Studies), learning resources and total campus environment."

- Recommendation 16—"A University Committee on International Studies should be formed to prepare a mission statement for Notre Dame's international programs, to assess and ensure their academic strength, to consider their reorganization and relocation to a more visible campus site, and to plan for their future growth along the following lines:—Examine programs to sites in other parts of the world;—Create appropriate programs for students of science and engineering, now virtually excluded because of curricular constraints;—Develop strong curricular support in all areas in which programs operate, so that courses in language, politics, literature and the like give students adequate preparation for, and build upon, studies overseas;—Allocate special financial aid to make international study programs available to all qualified Notre Dame students, not just those whose parents can supplement the usual room, board and tuition costs;—Explore creative ways to work out genuine exchange programs so that students come to the University from the various overseas sites."

- Recommendation 20—"The University should set the goal of becoming one of the premier private universities in the country, renowned for research as well as teaching. A University committee should be established to develop a comprehensive strategic plan for improving research and scholarship at Notre Dame, with special emphasis on infrastructure, research-development funding and maintenance to support these endeavors. This committee should report periodically to the provost and the Academic Council."

- Recommendation 21—"The University must dramatically improve library resources and services to ensure that the faculty and students have readily accessible the resources required for their work. An ad hoc Committee on University Libraries should be established which will be entrusted with responsibility to review the present reality of the Notre Dame libraries; initiate a study of trends and developments in peer research libraries; and issue a report with recommendations to the provost and Academic Council. This report should be as exhaustive as possible and presented in a timely fashion."

After a few moments of thought, Tilghman said, "It was almost moving to the point of tears, and he had just stepped out of the helicopter. He had not even said a word."

When he did speak, it was equally moving, said Warner. During the homily at the Papal Mass, the Holy Father urged the congregation to "never be ashamed of the Gospel," Warner explained. "It was as if he realized that his original words had negative connotations and he wanted to make the point that Catholics do not have to be defensive about their faith, said Warner. Technically, the celebration of the pope's third visit to the United States ran four days—beginning with the papal welcome on August 12 and ending with the Mass on August 15—but the folk choir spent 10 days rehearsing, giving recitals for a local congregation, and participating in teaching sessions. During this week and a half, members of the choir built a rapport with the other choirs and with those who heard and responded to their music. "The reason we have that rapport," explained Tilghman, "is that we seem like we are having fun. We like to get into it. We move around if we feel so moved and we want the audience to sing and clap." The folk choir was first organized at Notre Dame in 1980 with an electric piano and nearly as much Simon and Garfunkel music as Church music, said Warner. Since then, they have worked to "find and create a repertoire" that consists of music from Ireland, England, Mexico, France, and African American traditions. That diversity of music fit in well in Denver where Catholics from various backgrounds and cultures united in celebration, according to Warner. Although the media focused on a divided Church, Warner said he and the choir felt a sense of unity. With 180,000 people from innumerable backgrounds and cultures sharing themselves, their faith, and their music, the World Youth Day Conference was a true celebration of the Catholic Church, according to Warner. And with their clapping and swaying the members of the Notre Dame Folk Choir were on the scene as "prophets of joy," he said. "There is lots of room in the Church for joy," said Warner. "A lot of times we set set that at the doorstep when we walk into church—and we leave behind some of the best things about the expression of faith."

On the whole, the World Youth Day was an incredible event particularly because of the pope's presence, Mcinerney said. "I was enthralled," he said. "The pope exhibits something more than what he does, but what he is. (He) is tremendous." Reports that the pope's lack of strong comments on the abortion issue were meant as a softening of his stance are false, according to Cunningham. "Anyone who thinks the Pope is softening his stance against abortion is whistling in the wind," Cunningham said. "His lack of comments were probably just a strategic effort not to seem like he was scolding us... he wanted to leave us with a positive message."
Robert Siegfried, ND patron and alum, dead at age 77

By SARAH DORAN
Associate News Editor

Robert Siegfried, a Notre Dame alumnus who joined with his son Ray to underwrite the construction of Siegfried Hall, passed away July 31 at his home in Tulsa, Oklahoma. He was 77.

"His legacy, and this is the consensus of all his children, was to instill in us a deep sense of abiding faith and the importance of religion in our daily lives," said Ray Siegfried, a 1965 alumnus and member of the University's Board of Trustees. "For this we are all so very grateful."

"Bobby Siegfried was faithful to his God, his family and his community responsibilities," said Father Edmund Joyce, University vice president emeritus and classmate of Siegfried's who delivered the homily at his funeral. "I would be willing to wager that few residents of Tulsa would be more known to a diverse group of citizens, from policemen to priests, from doctors to debutantes."

Siegfried and his father founded the Siegfried Insurance Agency, one of the nation's leading insurance businesses. After retiring from the firm in 1974, Robert pursued other business interests and became president of R.H. Siegfried, Inc., an oil, gas, banking, and industrial development concern.

Siegfried and his father established the Siegfried Chair in Entrepreneurial Studies and Private Enterprise in the College of Business Administration, in addition to underwriting the residence hall. Siegfried is survived by his wife, Doris; three sons, Ray Siegfried II, Rick Siegfried, and Robin Siegfried, all of Tulsa; two daughters, Diane Perkins and Celeste Bendel, both of Tulsa; and 20 grandchildren.

Abortion should not be illegal, but unheard of

For the benefit of all freshmen and transfer students, I will now reveal the easiest way to start an argument at Notre Dame. This is true love to argue about anything and everything. The worth of the current president. Who will win the Super Bowl. And, of course, the great soda "vs. pop" controversy. But the easiest way to start an argument is to bring up the one side or the other. This side has more than enough stories, and more than enough people who have gone out and murdered any pro-life argument. The media remain saturated with "abortion confrontation" stories, and more than enough to keep our focus away from the really important thing: Women are having abortions, and will keep on having them if the current social, cultural, political and economic environment stay the same. It really doesn't matter which side of the abortion fence you sit on. Both sides are spending too much energy and resources fighting each other and not nearly enough eradicating the problems that lead to abortion. Imagine for a moment: A place where women are always treated with the dignity and respect they deserve. Where reliable health care is available everywhere. Where sex is not a taboo subject, but topic which can be discussed openly and intelligently without shame. In such a place, abortion is not illegal. It's unheard of.

This place should be the United States of America, and it can be if we start focusing on the cause of the problem instead of the problem itself. Stop quoting Humane Vitae and the Constitution, and start making the ideas contained in them really real.

Author of “Odyssey” explores the sports and spirituality of Notre Dame

By TONY POPANZ

A select few have had the opportunity to live and work the best part of their lives on behalf of Our Lady’s University. Those who have have seen and taken part in radical changes over time, and have helped conjure a famous tradition of heroes and achievements.

One such hero on the Notre Dame scene has lived and worked for over forty years, deeply concealed yet ceaselessly performing within a brigade of champions, including the likes of Frank Leahy, Father Hesburgh, Joe Roland, Chet Grant, Ara Parseghian and Joe Montana.

His name - Herb Juliano, a man whose unflagged devotion to Notre Dame and its ideal had inspired him to surrender his life to the university. With this inspiration (and the mechanical tenacity of pre-war Remington typewriter), Juliano has just released “Notre Dame Odyssey: A Journey Through Sports and Spirituality On The Notre Dame Campus”.

Using wit and a vivid memory, Juliano pieced together a mosaic combining historic accounts of legends that have shaped Notre Dame’s enigmatic spirit with narratives of his copious experiences at the heart of sports and spirituality that have become Notre Dame’s clairvoyant eye.

“Odyssey” expounds upon the character of Notre Dame during its formative years, and delves the reader into the hearts of the coaches, administrators, and students of the past by reliving some of the forgotten farcical riots incited by the student body against the Ku Klux Klan in 1924, which Knute Rockne successfully mediated.

Washington Hall ghost, the misplaced monument commemorating John Henry Grant, a dismissed student who subsequently joined the Navy and later went down with the “Maine”, and the continuing attempts of movie makers to depict Notre Dame’s Football heritage.

A sizable chapter has been devoted to the late Chet Grant, one of Rockne’s great quarterbacks and George Gipp’s teammate and roommate, who, even fourteen years ago, took Notre Dame to task for becoming secularized. His letter has been reprinted in full.

Juliano also takes the opportunity to tell his own story of the multiple roles he has undertaken in the past 40 years, which includes assistant to the late Joe Boland in the operation of the Irish Football Network, sportscaster on WNDU radio and TV, curator of the International Sports and Games Research collection and research assistant in the Sports Information Department.

His experience speaks for itself as verification of the depth of his knowledge and experience, and is, to say the least, fascinating.

Through and through, “Odyssey” reflects the unconditional love and devotion of one man, Herb Juliano, who gave his life to simply and unselshly contribute to the prosperity of Notre Dame.

The proceeds benefit SERV (Students Encouraging Religious Vocations), which was founded by Juliano as a response to the growing need of holy religious vocations.

Juliano’s book may be found in the Notre Dame bookstore for $12.50.

Museums offer students an escape from their busy lifestyles

Observer Staff Report

As the new semester begins, students run around aimlessly trying to get to class on time, sleeping out for football tickets and unpacking their many boxes.

So for those already looking for an escape from their busy schedules, a nice stroll through an art exhibit may do some good.

Currently at Notre Dame the Snite Museum of Art is showing “A Fresh Look: Photographs from the Permanent Collection”. This exhibit is a collection of sixty 20th century, color and black and white photographs.

Images by Imogen Cunningham, Arnold Newman and Aaron Siskind are on view for the very first time. Even beyond the Snite, students have the South Bend Regional Museum of Art and more.

One of four museums to host the exhibit, the South Bend Regional Museum of Art has chosen to concentrate on Jacquesard’s smaller bronzes, drawings and models or marquises.

The imagery is based on fishing tackle, bobbers and related items remembered fondly by the artist from childhood fishing expeditions with her father, said the museum curator.

The artists’ works have been displayed at the Chicago International Art Exhibition at Navy Pier in 1990. Both the Snite and South Bend Regional Museum of Art are open to the public with free admission.

“The university has been testing its varsity athletes for drug use since 1985, and its testing policy has gradually evolved into one of the most stringent in the nation. Athletes are subject to random, unannounced testing on a year-round basis.

“Since the inception of its program in 1985, Notre Dame has found a total of only five positive drug tests in more than 1,000 tests on football student-athletes done since 1990.

“There have been no positive NCAA tests of Notre Dame athletes without a finding of drug use. The drug testing policy includes continuous supervision during specimen acquisition and a supervised chain of custody throughout the entire process.

“Moreover, Notre Dame’s policy requires that laboratories screen specimen masks for agents that could interfere with detection of drug use. The position of Coach Holtz on this issue is unequivocal, and he has on numerous occasions spoken to Notre Dame players on drug use and the importance of their fitness to the team.

“With regard to injuries, at Notre Dame it has always been the responsibility of the team physician to determine an injured athlete’s suitability for return to action. The Notre Dame medical staff has assured me that ‘at no time has Coach Holtz ever admonished me to play an injured athlete in practice or in a game.’ He has always deferred to medical judgment of the player’s fitness and support of any efforts to improve the health and well-being of the personnel.

“In brief, Notre Dame’s policy of drug testing is strictly administered and reflects its consistently superior graduation rate for its athletes. It also has in place a comprehensive drug-testing program as well as its policies regarding athletic injuries.

“Moreover, Notre Dame conducts routine exit interviews with all our players who are leaving college, including football players. The vast majority of the 250 or so players who have finished their eligibility under Coach Lou Holtz are positive about their experiences at Notre Dame. One thing that is emphatic that they would choose Notre Dame over again.

“In closing, let me emphasize that Coach Holtz has done the three things Notre Dame is known for—he has been ruled by the lives, his players have graduated, and he has fielded competitive teams.

"It is wrong to say Notre Dame is not trying or that we are doing less than others. We are trying to do more by doing less."

‘There was an unequaled excitement in the student body when we played Oklahoma. These were the games that drew me to Notre Dame as a student. ’

"Under the Tarnished Dome: How Notre Dame football betrayed the Fightin' Irish Story." Yeager and Looney are known for their investigative reporting and are not afraid to take on sensitive topics, which is evident in their work on this book.

The book delves into the inner workings of Notre Dame football, with a focus on the lives of players and the pressures they face. The authors provide a raw and unfiltered look at the team and its culture, unearthing stories that are both controversial and surprising.

Some people might argue that such a book is not necessary, or that it should be left to the team to handle such matters. However, Yeager and Looney believe that it is important to bring these issues to light, and their reporting continues to be influential in the sports world.

The book's release generated a lot of buzz, with fans and critics alike discussing its impact on Notre Dame and football in general. It serves as a reminder of the importance of journalistic integrity and the role of the media in holding powerful institutions accountable.

In conclusion, "Under the Tarnished Dome: How Notre Dame football betrayed the Fightin' Irish Story" is a must-read for anyone interested in sports, journalism, or the inner workings of Notre Dame football. It is a testament to the power of investigative reporting and the role it plays in shaping public opinion.

on correct footwork and timing. "Coach Holtz was hard on us today, but he demands a lot of his players, especially the quarter­back," said Failla. "Coach is just trying to get some things straight," said McDougal. "I think he has a lot of confidence in us, but we have to just keep getting better."

Both players are searching for confidence from their coach and their teammates after the team had made an adjustment to the notion that Powlus would be leading the offense this season.

"I feel the team still has confidence in me," said McDougal. "But I need to go out on Saturday and do what I can so that he (Holtz) will have confidence in me."

Holtz is not truly concerned with who throws better or runs the option to the utmost perfection, but who will lead this team.

"We really have a problem trying to ascertain who is the leader of this football team," added Holtz.

Both players ran equal time with the first-string offense, but Holtz has already stated that McDougal will start, but Failla will play in Saturday's matchup with Northwestern.

"I am confident, I have worked really hard, and I can't wait until Saturday," added Failla.

Junior Paul Failla will challenge senior Kevin McDougal for the quarter­back position. McDougal is expected to start Saturday, although both should see extensive action.

Winning the national title is Michigan's only goal

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — After capturing five straight Big Ten championships, the Michigan football team is looking to win a different sort of ring this season. "This year, we want the ring with diamonds on it," senior cornerback Alfie Burch said. "Miami doesn't talk about winning the Big East, and Florida State doesn't talk about winning their conference. The national championship has got to be our goal." The Wolverines will begin their quest for that goal at home Saturday against Washington State. While winning a national championship has been in the back of the players' minds in the past, this year, the seniors are voicing their aspirations. "Our motto is, 'We want it all,'" co-captain Ricky Powers said. "I've been here four years and all we talk about is Big Ten championships. We want more." Coach Gary Moeller said Monday he is pleased with his team's enthusiasm, but he hopes the players can maintain it. "I think everybody starts to talk about (national championships) early in the season," Moeller said. "They know we've got a long way to go. I want to see where they are in October and November." One of the biggest determinants on how the Wolverines will progress this season is the offensive line. Left tackle Trezelle Jenkins is the only returning starter from last year. Much of the responsibility of this year's line will fall on senior center Marc Milia. Milia will have to replace All-American Steve Everitt, who now plays for the Cleveland Browns. "There's a lot of pressure on me because I'm the only fifth-year senior," Milia said. "These guys realize they have the talent the other guys had, they just have to reach their potential." "I think our running backs will really build confidence in our line, because you can fall off a block and Tyrone (Wheeler) can still break it 80 yards," Milia said. "That makes you feel really good." Starting linebackers Steve Morrison and Matt Dyon have missed most of preseason practice with injuries, but Moeller said the two should start practicing this week. "I won't know how much they'll be able to play until later this week," he said. The Wolverines finished two-a-day practices last week. "I'm really glad it's finally game week," defensive lineman Buster Stanley said. "I can't wait until Saturday to put on the pads."

NEW YORK

Steffi Graf cruised to a first round win over Robin White at the U.S. Open.

Monica Seles talked almost as long as Steffi Graf and Martina Navratilova played, upstaging them on the first day of the U.S. Open and taking sweeps at her peers without lifting a racket. Graf dashed off in a hurry, dinner waiting. She beat Robin White 6-3, 6-0 in 42 minutes Monday and felt ready to play her next match right away. She could have won three matches and still not missed evening appetizers.

Graf covered the court with such speed and ease there wasn't a hint of the swollen bone in her foot, which required ice and anti-inflammatory drugs after she won the French Open and Wimbledon.

There's a danger, though, the hard courts in New York could take a toll on her foot toward the end of the two-week tournament.

"I hope it won't come back," she said. "There is nothing that really bothers me right now."

With most of the marquee players off until Tuesday, fans spent more time hobnobbing at the gourmet emporiums and sipping champagne than they did watching the lackluster matches. And behind the scenes, the main buzz was about Seles, who returned to the Open a year after winning for the second straight time.

Exactly four months had passed since a man obsessed with Graf stabbed Seles in Hamburg, Germany. And the shock of that event and the emotions it brought out in other players have given way to uncomfortable frostiness.

Graf hasn't seen Seles, spoken to her or even sent a get-well card since an emotional visit with her in the hospital shortly after the attack.

"It would have been nice of her if (she sent) a letter or something after that, if she could have asked how am I doing," Seles said.

Most of the other top players sent letters or faxes but kept their distance, as she has from them by isolating herself during recuperation in Vail, Colo.

Seles expressed annoyance with the women for voting not to freeze her No. 1 ranking if not alone, at least as co-No. 1 with Graf.

"I think this to me stabbed me for that reason, and pretty much he got his wish," Seles said.

"Because the person who did this to me stabbed me for that reason, and pretty much he got his wish," Seles said.

Graf, who won the French Open and Wimbledon in Seles' absence and is heavily favored to win again in New York, offered no support for placing Seles in a special category to preserve her No. 1 ranking.

"You've got to understand," she said. "All of us, we have to play all year long. I mean we all have to struggle through injuries, through our problems, through tough matches and through tough tournaments. You know, it has been a very sad incident and it is tough for everybody.

"But I think it is difficult for us as players to choose what to do. I think it is not up to us. It is difficult to say if it is the right thing or not, but I think it has been handled as good as possible of course," Navratilova agreed, noting Seles will be given special provisions for her seeding when she comes back.

"You can't just keep somebody No. 1 forever," Navratilova said. "Hopefully, it is only going to happen once, and she will have ample time to get her ranking back if she backs it up."

Navratilova was surprised Seles even showed up at the Open, and saw it as a good sign.

No. 2 Indiana boots Notre Dame in soccer exhibition

The second-ranked Indiana men's soccer team exploded early in Saturday's Golden Boot Soccer Classic and held on to defeat Notre Dame 3-2 in the fifth annual exhibition.

Todd Yeagley and Brian Maconneau each scored in the first 15 minutes for Indiana to defeat Notre Dame 3-2 in the Observer's Soccer Classic.

The Irish responded with two goals from Josh Landman. His second goal, 11 minutes later, came off a direct kick.

The Irish responded with two goals from Josh Landman. His second goal, 11 minutes later, came off a direct kick.

For the second straight year the teams battled to a scoreless second half.

"I was pleased with the individual things we were trying to accomplish tonight," said Irish coach Mike Bertielli. "This is a difficult game to play so early in the year, and it's a game where we like to experiment and use different players."

Veteran goalkeeper Bert Bader spent the first half on the bench in favor of freshman David Smith, who had two saves and allowed two goals.

Bader played the second half, collecting one save while holding the Hoosiers scoreless.

Notre Dame boasts eight returning starters and fifteen lettermen on their talented roster.

But the talent wasn't enough to knock off the highly-touted Hoosiers.

"I credit Notre Dame, we wanted a tough game and we got one," said Indiana coach Jerry Yeagley. "Notre Dame contested every ball. I enjoyed watching them. They seemed a little more aggressive than we did tonight."

The teams meet for real on September 24 in South Bend.

Murphy predicts continued success

Notre Dame head baseball coach Pat Murphy likes to predict things. At the end of the 1992 season, Murphy promised that his Irish would win 45 games and return to the NCAA tournament.

With a 45-16 record and its third NCAA tournament appearance in Murphy's six years, Eric Danapilis and Company helped solidify what the prognosticating coach is calling "Notre Dame's Newest Tradition."

Now, faced with the loss of three pitchers and two of its most experienced position hitters, the Irish appear to be headed for a rebuilding year, but Murphy remains confident.

"There is no such thing as a rebuilding year," said Murphy. "If you have a solid program, it is sold from the ground up. We have a solid program. Guys will step up."

Notre Dame's run at a berth in the College World Series was aided by several guys who stepped up including Matt Haas, Chris Michalak and Danapilis. The Irish ended just one game short of the College World Series for the second straight year with Haas hitting .550 in East Regional games, Michalak turning in two gutsy performances on the mound and Danapilis tearing through the Midwestern Collegiate Conference tournament.

After capturing the MCC championship, Notre Dame headed down to Tallahassee for the East Regional of the NCAA tournament. While there, the Irish crushed Mississippi State and Central Florida and avenged an extra-inning loss to Florida State by eliminating the Seminoles from their own regional before succumbing to Long Beach State.

Several individual players also garnered year end honors in addition to selections in the draft.

Right-fielder Danapilis was named to the 1993 Mizuno NCAA Division I All-American first team as a position player and the Baseball America's All-American Team as a catcher, as well as being voted Most Valuable Player of the team and the MCC. He is only the third Irish All-American and the first since 1989 when Dan Petteri was likewise honored.

Ryan Toopham was selected as an honorable mention member of the Mizuno USA All-American freshman team for his work in the outfield and at the plate and as the team's Rookie of the Year.

The MCC All-Tournament team is dominated by Irish faces including pitcher Tom Price, second baseman Greg Layson, third baseman Matt Haas, shortstop Paul Failla, and outfielders Danapilis and Eddie Hartwell.

Notre Dame lost a sizable chunk of its team to graduation and the draft as seniors Chris Michalak (A's, 12th round), David Sinnes (Blue Jays, 19th round) and Danapilis (Tigers, 25th round) were all picked early in the draft by major league teams.

But not before the Irish streaked to within reach of the College World Series. The post-season charge started right here in South Bend at Coveleski Stadium where the Irish crushed Evansville 22-5 in the championship game for the automatic nod to the NCAA tournament.

In its first game in the East Regional, Notre Dame dominated Mississippi State in a 15-1 victory. Danapilis went 3 for 3 with three runs batted in, Eddie Hartwell went 3 for 4 and Haas went 4 for 6.

In the next game, Florida State sent the Irish into the losers bracket of the double elimination tournament with a 7-3 win. Michalak took the extra-inning loss after giving up a grand slam to Ty Mueller in the 10th inning.

The Irish rebounded in the next game with a 12-3 mauling of Central Florida. It was an extra-base hit parade with Danapilis, Robbie Kent, Toopham, Failla (2) Michalak and Hartwell smashing doubles and Haas adding a base-clearing triple.

The winning ways continued for Notre Dame as Michalak contained the Seminole lineup and Haas (3 for 4) drove in three of the runs in the 4-3 victory.

The euphoria didn't last long as Long Beach State sent the Irish home with a 13-3 victory. Haas hit his fourth home run of the year and Michalak hit his second double to drive in the only Notre Dame runs in the final inning.

The Long Beach State pitchers shut the Irish down from there scattering seven hits over nine innings.

This year, Murphy and the Irish are looking forward to another appearance in the NCAA tournament as well as playing in their very own on campus stadium.

Nester leaves legacy as Saint Mary’s AD

By KILEY COBLE

The woman who devoted the last decade of her career to bringing Saint Mary’s sports from the NAIA to NCAA Division III has left for the Ivy League.

After fulfilling her goals for Saint Mary’s athletics, Jo-Ann Nester resigned her position as athletic director and tennis coach to fulfill her own personal goal of working in the athletic department of a Division I school. She joined the staff at Dartmouth University as Assistant Athletic Director in charge of Compliance and Administration.

Mary Wood, who has assumed the position of acting athletic director and tennis coach, said, “We had good athletes, but no organization. She gave us guidance and supervision.”

Nester had ten goals when she came to Saint Mary’s ten years ago. The biggest of which was to bring Saint Mary’s up to the Division III level of competition.

Also among her list of goals was the creation of a Saint Mary’s Hall of Fame and Monogram Club, both of which were achieved during her tenure.

“I wanted to develop a real quality program that would attract athletes with the experience to participate and be successful,” Nester said. “I wanted the athletes to know that I cared about the program and that I was always available to them.”

Nester’s resignation will make an impact on the entire Saint Mary’s athletic program, but it will be twice as hard on the tennis team, which also lost its coach.

Senior tennis player Thayma Barby was shocked and surprised when she heard of Nester’s resignation.

“She has definitely upstepped the athletic program,” Darby said. “She not only put tennis in Division III but made us a well known competitor in Division III.”

Men’s tennis practice begins Thursday September 9. Tryouts for all walk-ons will begin at 3:30. Anyone interested in trying out should contact the tennis office at 1-615 or 1-4461.

Women’s tennis tryouts will be Thursday September 9 at 3:00 and the Courteney Tennis Center. Anyone interested in trying out must contact the tennis office at 1-5149.

A lacrosse meeting will be held Friday, September 3 in Loftus for all returning members of the lacrosse team and those interested in trying out. Any questions call coach Kevin Corrigan.

The hockey team will hold an initial information meeting on September 1 for any student interested in trying out for the team.

Notre Dame Sports Information is looking for volunteer help for the 1993-94 academic year. Our office handles statistics, press releases and media guides for all Irish varsity sports. For more information, call Rose at 631-7516.

Prodigy Powlus lost for season

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Editor

In what Lou Holtz called "one of the saddest days since I've been coaching," the Notre Dame football team said farewell to freshman sensation Ron Powlus after a broken collarbone ended his season.

The 6-foot-3, 210-pounder was running with the scout team against the No. 1 defense when linemen Jim Flanagan and Bryant Young fell on Powlus after he released a pass. The impact when his right shoulder hit the ground caused a break in his clavicle.

"He was throwing the ball, he got hit by the other guy," said head coach Lou Holtz.

Ron Powlus is lost for the season after fracturing his collarbone in Saturday's scrimmage.

QB's confident; Holtz is not

Near the end of yesterday's practice, in a moment of jesting rage, a lineman from the first team defense set his sights on the Kevin McQuigg, who dropped back to pass.

"Holtz pressed Darville to leave the coach out of his testimony during the 1989 trial, and promised to help him get back on his feet after the trial was over," Darville's attorney James Lawton confirmed Holtz's promise.
