SMC quilt represents 150 years of tradition

By MARY GOOD
News Writer
The quilt that served as the backdrop for yesterday's liturgical celebration at Saint Mary's represents not only 600 hours of crafting by alumna Regina Lupo and over four miles of thread—it also represents 150 years of tradition.

Lupo first learned of the quilt theme of the Saint Mary's Sesquicentennial last June when Vice President and Dean of Faculty Dorothy Feigl mentioned that the sesquicentennial committee was still searching for an artist to create the backdrop for a liturgy planned to kick off the celebration of the College's 150th anniversary.

Lupo offered Feigl a jacket she had quilted as a sample of her work. Feigl was impressed and furthered correspondence with Lupo over the summer through Maureen Manier, a member of the Sesquicentennial committee.

Lupo and Manier communicated via telephone and electronic mail and in August the committee gave Lupo the go-ahead to work on a quilt to be used for the backdrop.

"It is hard to say no to your Alma Mater," Lupo said, and so began four months of designing, sewing, sacrifice and satisfaction.

Lupo has been sewing since age eight, but it wasn't until her youngest of four sons was born that she began quilting.

She learned the rules of quilting from library books and from there she improved her skills through trial and error. Today Lupo's collection includes around 80 different quilted items of various sizes and she makes quilts on commission.

Lupo developed the design of the quilt and drafted the templates herself. The design of the quilt is a 16-point diamond cut star in four shades of blue, violet, white and minimal traces of red. This star represents the many facets of Saint Mary's women's lives. The college emblem is displayed in the four corners of the quilt showing that Saint Mary's students and Alumnae come from the four corners of the world. The Fleur-de-lis in the border are symbols of the school's patron, Mary. The French Cross, which is the focal point of the quilt is a symbol of the Holy Cross Congregation who founded Saint Mary's.

"And the Celtic knots around the border symbolize the continuity and unity of the Saint Mary's community of the past, present and future," Lupo said.

Lupo did most of her sewing on weekends. Occasionally she fit an hour or two of work in amidst a busy schedule involving a part-time job teaching science at an elementary school in Omaha, Neb. On Dec. 9, 1993, Lupo emerged from under the covers to unveil the finished product. "I'm now in a position where the quilt is not a part of me anymore," Lupo said.

As for security, the house is extremely important in making people feel comfortable with others," he said.

"I'm looking for someone that I can relate to as well as a good group of tenants," he said. "I need to feel comfortable with them."

Lupo has so far been successful in achieving this comfort level, as is witnessed by his four current full-time tenants.

In searching for the perfect off-campus location, many students look beyond the traditional apartment residence and toward the additional freedom and privacy of home and room availability in a house.

Of course, there are many who do not want to live in an apartment because of the "individuality" that its projects, as opposed to "the often analogous nature of the apartments or townhouses within a complex," states one person.

"A house just has more character," said senior Tom Sear, who lives on Marion Street. "Living here gives us a greater identity."

"Each house develops its own character and ours is an important part of our lives," he said.

But with the identity also comes the responsibility that must be assumed in sharing a house with five roommates. "It's definitely an increased sense of responsibility to manage our common house," Sear said.

Despite the many benefits a house offers, it does have a downside for some residents.

"The only thing missing is that we don't have many other people living around us," said Brian Irwin, who is one of Sear's roommates. They are only a few houses on the street that are rented to students, he said.

The relationship between tenants and their landlord is extremely important in maintaining the rent period go smoothly, said Greg Anderson, who rents nine area homes to students, including Sear's Marion location.

"The relationship between the two parties begins with a one hour interview that is a fundamental part of the application process which all of Anderson's prospective tenants must complete," he said.
I have a dream

It was only one man's dream, but it woke up the world.

Over 200,000 people were present when Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. made his famous March on Washington Speech in 1963. Yet his powerful words echoed to millions more in the streets of America. And still echoes in our ears today.

On January 17, the observance of Dr. King's birthday, we remembered his dream and what it means to each of us. Now, a mere four days later, are we quickly forgetting the dream?

Gone are the parades, the commemorative speeches and the boycotts from classes. Gone are the television specials and commercials dedicating themselves to Dr. King's glorification. They are not actions which Dr. King once envisioned. Gone is January 17th.

As we move forth into this new year, let's remember how imperative it is to live out Dr. King's dream everyday. What better way to go in order to fulfill King's dream. In every way in which we are similar, not different.

His zeal, eloquence and passion inspired the work, the hopes that King held everyday. The work, the dreams of his children most likely are still being judged for their color of their skin. We still are not working for that one peaceful dream.

They say "be a King for a day." I say be a King everyday. The work, the hopes that King held everyday. The work, the dreams of his children most likely are still being judged for their color of their skin. We still are not working for that one peaceful dream. Make them a part of your everyday living.

King once described a hopeful vision that "my four children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the color of their skin but by the content of their character." To him it was a dream in which people of every color, creed and religion could believe. He gave his life trying to make it come true.

Yet sadly, we, as a world, are still struggling to fulfill King's dream for which he died. King's children most likely are still being judged by color of their skin. We still are not working for that one peaceful dream.

"be a King for a day." I say be a King everyday. The work, the hopes that King held everyday. The work, the dreams of his children most likely are still being judged for their color of their skin. We still are not working for that one peaceful dream.

The words echoed to millions more in the streets of America. And still echoes in our ears today.
Sesquicentennial marks quest for a return to roots

By ELIZABETH REGAN
Saint Mary’s News Editor

The year of the sesquicentennial has arrived and with it has emerged a quest to return to the College’s roots beginning with the Congregation of the Holy Cross’ insightful vision for women’s education.

The administration of Saint Mary’s constantly faces the challenge of maintaining the Holy Cross tradition as it continues to progress through the years, said College President William Hickey in a press conference yesterday.

“We believe that this institution reflects the mission and tradition of the Congregation,” he said. “The Catholic nature of the College has been strongly supported by the Sisters.”

The influence of the Congregation of the Holy Cross remains strong despite the decrease in the number of Sisters in the faculty, according to Congregation President Sister Catherine O’Brien.

“The Congregation was responsible for having the vision and energy for the College,” O’Brien said. “Despite the influx of lay faculty members in the 1960’s, the continued sponsorship by the sisters has propelled the traditional curriculum.”

The College has inherited many important elements from the Sisters that distinguish it from other institution, according to Hickey.

“Even though we are constantly changing, we are able to hold onto those elements. They will not be lost even as the number of involved Sisters continues to diminish.”

The quality of education takes two distinct directions at Saint Mary’s, he said.

“Not only are students intellectually stimulated, but they are also value oriented. This orientation, not found in many institutions, significantly reflects the influence of the Sisters Hickey said.

“Onn rich part of the history of the institution that can be attributed to the Sisters is the distinct service orientation of both past and present students,” Hickey said.

The evolution of the institution has created a nice balance between the number of religious women and lay people, according to O’Brien, and even as the number of those entering into the religious order continues to steadily decline, the strong roots of the Congregation of the Holy Cross holds steadfast.

Dinner honors SMC tradition

By MYRNA MALONEY
Saint Mary’s News Writer

More than 100 Sisters of the Holy Cross will be attending the Traditional Dinner in the Saint Mary’s Dining Hall this Sunday as part of the College’s Sesquicentennial celebration, according to Maureen Manier, director of Communications and a consultant to the Traditional Dinner planning committee.

“The theme of the Sesquicentennial celebration is ‘Honoring Tradition,’ ” Manier said. “This dinner will honor the traditions started by the Sisters, who were the original faculty and administration of the College.”

“As the number of involved Sisters continues to diminish, we, the students, will have to pick up the slack,” she added.

Because of the College’s small student body, these meals were a valuable part of the Saint Mary’s culture as Sisters and students developed close-knit relationships with each other, while at the same time learning about the art of conversation and gracious manners which were so heavily instilled in young women during this era, according to Manier.

“The most significant aspect of this Sunday’s dinner will first be the seating arrangement with one faculty member, administration member or Sister at each table and second, the meal will be served family style in order to recapture the spirit of the traditional dinners,” Manier said.

All Sisters of the Holy Cross from the South Bend area were invited to the dinner, as well as College President Hickey and his wife who will sit, as tradition holds, at the head table with noted Seniors.

Some last minute seating is available for the dinner which will be served at 5:30 p.m. Although all Saint Mary’s students welcome to participate, the Grill Bar will be open on Sunday evening.

Mass opens year-long celebration

With music, song, dance and reflection on the history and direction of the College, Saint Mary’s opened its sesquicentennial with a liturgy yesterday afternoon.

College offices were closed and afternoon classes canceled so that the entire community could share in the celebration. In order to include the students studying abroad in the celebration, students studying on the College’s Rome Campus held a concurrent ceremony at 8 p.m. yesterday using the same gospel, readings and music that were part of the liturgy on the Indiana campus.

More than 500 students, faculty, administrators, staff and members of the Saint Mary’s community attended the hour and a half long ceremony.

The liturgy kicked-off the year-long festivities which includes events that highlight the history and future of the College, as well as those that celebrate the accomplishments of young women.

Students on the Rome campus will hold a sesquicentennial celebration later in the spring in addition to yesterday’s mass, according to Rome Program Director Portia Prebys.

Bobbit jury begins deliberations

By ANNE GEARAN
Associated Press

MANASSAS
A jury began trying to decide Thursday whether Lorena Bobbitt cut off her husband's penis in "calculated and malicious" revenge or because she was emotionally battered by his sexual abuse.

The prosecutor conceded Mrs. Bobbitt was raped during her first year of marriage, but that she had plenty of options short of attacking her husband.

The jury deliberated less than 30 minutes before breaking for the day. The panel was scheduled to resume deliberations Friday.

The jury, which heard seven days of testimony, was asked to decide whether Mrs. Bobbitt acted in willful, malicious anger when she mutilated her husband, or whether she snapped under the pressure of years of abuse.

Judge Herman A. Whisenant Jr. told the seven women and five men that they also could consider a lesser charge of unlawful wounding, which has a maximum penalty of five years in prison.

Mrs. Bobbitt, 24, faced up to 20 years in prison and deportation to her native South America if convicted of maliciously wounding Bobbitt.

In closing arguments, defense attorney Blair Howard maintained that John Bobbitt raped his wife in the early hours of June 23, shortly before she severed his penis.

"I can think of no greater provocation than the act of rape," he said. "To rape a woman is not only a violation of the body... It is a direct attack on the emotional structure that holds a woman together."

Prince William County Commonwealth's Attorney Paul B. Ebert said Bobbitt had raped his wife during their marriage, but that, "Two wrongs don't make a right."

"Sometimes I'm sure she didn't want to have sex. And she had the right to refuse him. But it wasn't every day and it wasn't every week... that John Bobbitt raped her," he said.

"You can't take the law in your own hands," he said.

Mrs. Bobbitt contended that years of physical and sexual abuse drove her into mental illness and an "irresistible impulse" to harm Bobbitt. She said she acted after Bobbitt returned home from a night of drinking and raped her. Her lawyers are trying to prove that she's innocent because of temporary insanity.

Prosecutor Mary Grace O'Brien countered that Mrs. Bobbitt suffered violence in her marriage but there was no "reign of terror," as her lawyers characterized it.

House and Urban Development Secretary Henry Cisneros said.

"We're finding more housing was damaged than we thought," Cisneros told ABC-TV today from the San Fernando Valley.

"When you fly over it you really can't see the problem. But there are no cracks in a bridge along the road or in front of the house and you see that its fallen off its foundation and it is completely unsafe and is going to have to be demolished."

Cisneros said 11 disaster-aid application centers would be open by today.

Rain was expected by Saturday night, raising the risk of mudslides in neighborhoods shaken by the quake and stripped of ground cover by autumn's fires.

"Hopefully by then, we will find some plastic or something for a little more protection from the rain," said Jose Murillo, one of 18 people huddled under a sheet stretched between two cars in a Chatsworth park. "Or maybe we could find real shelter."

Late Wednesday, police closed the main street between Hollywood and Burbank's movie and TV studios after noticing possible cracks in a bridge along the route.

Ted Varnadoe, a lighting technician on the "Columbo" series in Universal City, was among those turned away at dawn as he commuted from Mission Hills to the north.

Homeless quake victims search for refuge from cold

LOS ANGELES
A chilly night and rain on the way lent urgency today to Associated Recreation and Parks Department volunteer efforts to find shelter for the tens of thousands of people driven from their homes by the earthquake.

"We need to get those people out. It's unhealthy out there," said Recreation and Parks Department spokesman Jackie Tatsum. She said about 20,000 people were camping in the city's parks. Many more slept in county parks as the overnight temperature dipped into the low 40s.

Thousands of commuters rose hours before dawn to get an early jump on their morning drive. They succeeded in a way, they were the first to be stuck in traffic.

Getting people out of encampments and makeshift quarters in their own front yards and into more permanent shelter was a top priority today.

Housing and Urban Development Secretary Henry Cisneros said.

"We're finding more housing was damaged than we thought," Cisneros told ABC-TV today from the San Fernando Valley.

Quiet draws students to non-traditional housing

By LIZ FORAN

Hickory Village is a large apartment complex close to campus, but there are quite a few students, but they are spread out over 912 units in 24 buildings. The complex offers one and two bedroom apartments starting at $285 and $345, respectively. In addition, free aerobics, 24-hour maintenance, ample parking and a club house are available to renters, according to complex manager John McCloud. The complex does not have security, he said.

Students claim that the large number of families living around them gives the environment a more community feeling and residents and management get along well, according to McCloud, aside from an occasional incident or two.

“We had one party over Florida State weekend, but that’s one incident out of 912 units. Overall, students are not a problem,” he said.

The Pointe is a complex near campus that houses a few students, mostly Notre Dame graduate students. It offers one bedroom apartments from $320 to $480 and two bedroom from $630 to $760.

The Pointe also offers an intercom system for security reasons and 24 hour maintenance. Remington Court offers nine month leases to students at their nearby complex.

Security includes an alarm system on front and sliding glass doors that is hooked up to the main office, according to Stacey Kemble, who is in charge of leases.

A police officer lives on the premises and patrols frequently, she added.

In addition, Remington offers a pool, Jacuzzi, club house and rooms include a washer, dryer and a microwave.

Only about ten students live at Remington and most are graduate students, Kemble said, "so it’s pretty quiet." As far as excessive noise or loud parties, she said "most of them have either done it or outgrown it, so we don’t have any problems with them.”

Faculty salary, the rights of the University’s gay and lesbian community and the independence of Notre Dame as a Catholic university were the issues addressed at last night’s Faculty Senate meeting.

A salary questionnaire has been issued to faculty members by the Academic Council, according to Richard Sheehan, President of the Faculty Senate. Through this survey, the council hopes to evaluate salary levels and question whether the faculty feels salary earnings should be made available to other faculty members. The questionnaire has had positive response, with fifty percent of the faculty responding, he said. Turning to other business, a concern was voiced on behalf of the faculty regarding the unrecognised gay and lesbian group of St. Mary’s and Notre Dame’s relationship.

It was brought to the attention of the Senate that the university has been denied official recognition by the university twice in the past ten years. Another application was submitted last year in order to gain status as an organization and discontent was expressed because the issue has yet to be discussed. Sheehan said he would look into the progress of the group’s petition.

Provost Timothy O’Mears also addressed the Senate regarding various matters regarding outside involvement in Notre Dame’s decision on non-traditional housing.

Several senators believe Notre Dame should act independently as a Catholic university and not bring faculty decisions directly to the high office of the Catholic Church.

O’Mears stated that the concerns of the Senate will be given consideration.

British pleads for N. Ireland peace

BY SHAWN POGATCHNIK

Associated Press

London—Britain’s chief official in Northern Ireland pleaded for Irish Republican Army supporters Thursday to "get off their treadmill of violence and enter the community of democrats.”

Sir Patrick Mayhew, secretary of state for Northern Ireland, told a London audience the Dec. 15 Anglo-Irish peace declaration should have made it clear to the IRA its 23-year campaign against Britain was futile and unnecessary.

Irish Prime Minister Albert Reynolds, meanwhile, said in Dublin that the declaration has ended its ban on broadcast interviews with IRA members. The British were still "refusing clarification." He made a similar appeal earlier in the day in the first radio interview legally allowed in Ireland with the pro-IRA party in 22 years. Ireland last week announced it expects to continue its video and audio ban on IRA leaders.

On Thursday, IRA members lobbed a makeshift bomb at passing British soldiers. It exploded, but injured no one seriously. The IRA has made clear that it expects to continue its violent campaign to end British rule in Northern Ireland while deciding its response to the December declaration.

Still, Ireland and Britain government officials are trying to delicately balance principles, offering "self-determination" to the Irish people while reassuring Northern Ireland’s Protestant majority they can remain British.

Mayhew reiterated that the major political parties are round-table talks, but only after IRA talks, but only after IRA leaders have made some commitment to "reconciliation, renouncing violence for good.”

While many Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s students prefer to live in apartment complexes where students are a majority, many also prefer the more diverse atmosphere of a non-traditional apartment.

"It’s a more quiet atmosphere," said senior Monique Mikel. "You have a lot more privacy and you get a lot more done.”

Apartment complexes such as Hickory Village, The Pointe and Remington Court are home to many, but not too many, students.

Fiske named as Special Counsel

By CAROLYN SKORNEK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON

President Clinton and his wife should be questioned under oath as part of a "thorough and impartial investigation" of their Arkansas land deals, Robert B. Fiske Jr. said Thursday as he was named special counsel to examine the case.

The president said he would cooperate, suggesting he would be willing to undergo questioning by Fiske.

"Whatever he wants to do ... I didn't do anything wrong," Clinton said of Fiske's plans during an appearance by the president on CNN's "Larry King Live."

Asked earlier about Fiske's plans to seek the attorney general, White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said, "He hasn't done it yet. We'll deal with that when it comes."

Fiske, a former Republican U.S. attorney, said he was prepared to "go fast out" in the investigation. "It's important for the country to get this done and get it done as quickly and as thoroughly and as fairly as possible," Fiske said.

Sen. Republican leader Bob Dole, who had asked for such an appointment, said it should not stop congressional committees from their own investigations. But he pulled back from earlier calls for establishment of a special investigating panel.

Fiske said he planned to speak directly to the president and his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton, as part of his effort.

"I would certainly expect that before this investigation is over that I would question both the president and the first lady and that it would be under oath," Fiske said.

Fiske comes aboard amid a widening Justice Department investigation of the land deals that touches on Clinton. As part of the probe, Arkansas Gov. Jim Guy Tucker received a federal grand jury subpoena requesting he turn over business records and other materials relating to Whitewater Development Corp. — the company that the Clintons co-owned. Tucker released the subpoena.

To establish his independence, Fiske said he would not use any of the Justice Department prosecutors now investigating the failed Madison Guaranty Savings & Loan and its links to the Clintons' investment in Whitewater Development Corp.

In order to conduct a truly independent investigation, I should have people working for me who are not also reporting to the attorney general," Fiske told a news conference.

The selection of Fiske, now a Wall Street lawyer, fits suggestions that the special counsel be a veteran attorney and, to demonstrate independence, a Republican. However, while Fiske was appointed by Republican President Ford to be U.S. attorney for the Southern District of New York in Manhattan, he served mainly under Democratic President Carter, from 1977 to 1980.

As a private attorney, Fiske defended the manufacturer of the nuclear reactor at Three Mile Island in a $4 billion damage suit and recently represented key defendants in the Bank of Credit and Commerce International fraud case.

Republican leader Dole told reporters he doesn't know Fiske, but "people who know him think he is extremely well-qualified, is independent." On the other hand, Dole said, "Some of the conservative Republicans have not been happy with him." They were angered by his involvement in the American Bar Association's screening of potential judges.

Fiske's Republican credentials won't end a GOP push for a congressional investigation.

Clinton reflects on first year in White House

BY TOM RAUM
Associated Press

WASHINGTON

President Clinton on Thursday night lamented the tough scrutiny of presidential nominees and, reflecting on his first year in office, said it had been "tough but rewarding."

Marking that anniversary with an appearance on CNN's "Larry King Live," Clinton said he was working to overcome frustrations of the presidency and deal with subjects with subjects ranging from the death of his mother to the qualities of his attorney general, Janet Reno. He said she had come onto the Washington scene "hot as a firecracker."

He pledged to work with Robert Fiske, the special counsel appointed earlier in the day to investigate his financial dealings while governor of Arkansas.

"Whatever he wants to do," Clinton said. "I just want to do my job. I don't want to be distracted by this any more. ... I didn't do anything wrong."

Citing retired Adm. Bobby Inman's decision to withdraw as his nominee for secretary of defense, Clinton said he was concerned about the whole nomination process. "These standards are always being raised and heightened," he said.

The president made an anniversary appearance two days after Inman, who would have succeeded Les Aspin in the Cabinet, pulled out unexpectedly and leveled a blast at his critics.

"The process takes too long now," Clinton said. "I think my time to have a bipartisan look at this appointments process ... I think it's excessive." Clinton grunted that political criticism such as that being leveled in the Whitewater affair "apparently is part of the price of being in public life in the late 20th century in the United States."

"I can deal with it. The only thing that really steams me is what it does to my wife, my daughter, my family," he said.

King noted that the last time Clinton had appeared on his show was the same night that White House lawyer Vincent Foster committed suicide, exactly six months ago.

Clinton said that he knows no more now about what led to the suicide than he did earlier. Foster "left a note, he was profoundly depressed ... it broke my heart."

Summing up his first year, Clinton said in the hour-long appearance: "The bad days are part of it. It's humbling and its educational. It keeps you in your place."

China agrees to labor inspections

By KATHY WILHELM
Associated Press

BEIJING
China has agreed to let U.S. officials check prison factories for evidence that they produce goods for illegal export to the United States, U.S. Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen said Thursday.

The agreement comes at a time when the annual political battle is heating up over whether Washington should raise tariffs on Chinese goods to punish Beijing for its poor human rights record.

China agreed to such visits in 1992 and allowed three, but stonewalled more U.S. applications for months while demanding that Washington make a public statement clearing places already visited.

Bentsen announced the new agreement, a verbal one, in a speech to economists and said in an academy speech.

"China has agreed to permit inspections of five prisons allegedly to be producing goods for export. I trust that this pattern of cooperation will continue," Bentsen said.

The American ambassador to Beijing, Stapleton Roy, told reporters that U.S. customs agents inspected documents Thursday for a prison-run tea farm in southern China to determine if it was exporting to the United States.

There has been acrimonious debate over whether the use of "slave labor" has been underwriting cheap Chinese exports. Ten million people are imprisoned in China, and many work in prison factories making items such as rubber boots, hand tools, diesel engines and clothing, according to Laogai Research Foundation, a human rights group based in Milpitas, Calif., that monitors Chinese prison labor.

Bentsen, halfway into a four-day China visit, said he urged Chinese leaders to open their markets, allow more access for foreign banks, enforce copyright and remove barriers to currency transactions.

"Those barriers, we believe, stand in the way of our exports and investments in China," he said in the academy speech. Foreign banks currently are barred from doing business in Chinese currency, and foreign insurance companies and brokerages also are tightly restricted.

Bentsen met later with China's president and Communist Party chief, Jiang Zemin. He handed Jiang a letter from President Clinton, which he said "emphasizes that our interests lie in the development of a strong, stable and prosperous China."

Jiang said his November meeting with Clinton in Seattle "created a new start for the development of bilateral relations," the official Xinhua News Agency reported.

"Both China and the United States should seize the opportunity, create more contacts and exchanges, build up mutual trust and make joint efforts to push U.S.-Chinese relations gradually toward the normal track of development," Xinhua quoted Jiang as saying.

But China does not appear ready to meet U.S. concerns on human rights.

BONN
Police seized piles of propaganda and mail Thursday in pre-dawn raids on neo-Nazi hangouts across the country.

The raids, intended to gather evidence that can be used to ban the neo-Nazi group Direct Action-Central Germany, were ordered by Federal Interior Minister Manfred Kanther.

More than 7,000 neo-Nazi pamphlets were confiscated at one location.

Scores of right-wing extremist groups emerged following reunification in 1990, and authorities say the groups appear to be trying to form a united front. At least 30 people have died in neo-Nazi violence in the past three years, including many immigrants.

Hundreds of police officers entered the homes of Direct Action members in Berlin, Brandenburg, Mecklenburg-West Pomerania in eastern Germany and Lower Saxony and North Rhine-Westphalia in western Germany, Kanther said.

Police carried out 43 raids alone in Brandenburg, where the group is strongest.

Direct Action has about 100 members and is an offshoot of the Nationalist Front, a neo-Nazi organization banned in November 1992.

Kanther said the raids show Germany is firmly resolved to use all legal measures to combat extremism.

Meanwhile, two skinheads and a bar owner went on trial for murder Thursday for beating a man and setting him on fire in Hamburg's stadium.

Ignatz Bubis, the head of Germany's Jewish community, said Wednesday that authorities had failed to investigate neo-Nazi attacks properly.

But Bubis said the state was "falling on its knees" to radical rightists by canceling the game.

Threat of violence cancels soccer on Hitler's birthday

By ROY WAPF

FRANKFURT
Criticism is being leveled at the decision to call off a soccer match between England and Germany because of fears that right-wing hooligans would stir up trouble to mark Hitler's birthday.

Representatives of the two countries' national soccer federations and Hamburg city officials announced Wednesday that the long-planned April 20 exhibition game would not take place.

The match was called off because Hamburg officials feared that German and English right-wing rowdies were plotting to celebrate Hitler's 105th birthday with violence at the Hamburg stadium.

Ignatz Bubis, the head of Germany's Jewish community, said Thursday it was unsuitable in the first place to choose a game date that is "historically burdensome."

But Bubis said the state was "falling on its knees" to radical rightists by canceling the game.

While there was support for the move, there were complaints that authorities had been pressured by the threats from the right.

"We can't fight them by capitulating to them," said Hans Hansen, president of the Alliance of German Sports Federations.

German Soccer Federation chief Egidius Braun said his country's image - already marred by neo-Nazi violence - could be further hurt with the appearance that officials weren't standing up to soccer hooligans.

"Germany could lose its reputation as a dependable host for international events," Braun said.

National team coach Bert Vogs voiced a similar sentiment.

"If we can't guarantee the security of the German national team and its foreign guests, one should not be surprised that Germany has a bad image in other countries," Vogs said.

But some politicians backed the cancellation.

Citing attacks on his character and reputation, Inman wrote to Clinton in a letter dated Jan. 8 that he did not want his nomination to proceed.

White House Chief of Staff Mack McLarty subsequently spoke to Nunn about the vacancy this week, seeking advice on potential nominees from the senator considered one of Congress' top military experts, the White House official said.

Rehnquist, who also celebrated his birthday celebration with his family, said he came to The Citadel for a single-sex education, had an education, had an education and a New York Democrat said he was not interested in the job with top administration officials as its source.

Shannon Faulkner walked alone through 25-degree temperatures and a horde of reporters to meet with associate professor Hank Hay for her 8 a.m. biology class, a 75-minute lecture on plant reproduction. Cadets watched from the courtyard and the windows of Steven Barracks across the street, yelling as she passed by. "It's real upsetting for a lot of the guys. But they have enough humor, enough spunk, to see it through," said John Johnson, a junior cadet.

"It's difficult. It's going to be a change. But what happens is what happens," senior Jay Hart said. Hart said he came to The Citadel for a single-sex education.

Several women shouted "Go Shannon" as Faulkner arrived.

Faulkner, who plans to major in education, had an education and a New York Democrat said he was not interested in the job with top administration officials as its source.

"I don't think I'll be having any problems," said Faulkner, who who also celebrated his birthday celebration with his family, said he came to The Citadel for a single-sex education.

The temperature was 20 below zero in northern Wisconsin; the gusts of bitter wind made it feel like 60 below. Toni and Erny Oberg watched in horror as his wife trudged uphill into the wind and collapsed.

"He tried to get his walker from the back seat. But it slid from his reach so he couldn't get it," said the couple's son-in-law, Steve Lasko.

I don't know why she didn't elect to wait (in the car)," Lasko said. "She had a determination. If something needed to be done, she would do it. She had done things like that a million times. She believed she would be looked after." The victims include a Minnesota woman who fell as she stepped outside to feed birds; a South Carolina man who died in a fire that began when he tried to thaw his ice-covered car with a blowtorch; and a New York motorist, caught in a snowstorm, who knocked at a house for help and was shot.

With temperatures in some places 30 and 40 degrees below zero, experts say, even the slightest exposure can be fatal.

The Clinton administration approached Sam Nunn about the defense secretary job, but the Georgia Democrat said he was not interested in the Pentagon post.

The Senate Armed Services Committee chairman discussed the job with top administration officials last week, said the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

President Clinton's choice to replace Defense Secretary Les Aspin — retired Adm. Bobby Inman — withdrew Tuesday, adding, "I'm not going to comment on a personnel matter."

The New York Times reported in today's editions that Nunn, who has been at odds with Clinton on defense issues, was offered the job last week and turned the administration down in recent days.

"We're moving expeditiously and deliberately to fill that position," he said in an interview on CBS this morning.

SARAJEVO

The United Nations has largely failed in its relief effort to war-torn Bosnia and should either get tough by bringing in more troops or get out, a senior aid official said Thursday.

"How much of the population are we keeping alive if we are only bringing 20 percent of the minimum" amount of food needed each month per person, said Larry Hollingworth, head of mission for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees in Zenica in central Bosnia.

Apparently frustrated by delays and harassment of relief convoys by the warring parties in Bosnia, Hollingworth suggested the United Nations should either "get more troops and get tough one day or get out."

He was the latest U.N. official on the front lines to criticize U.N. strategy.

The outgoing head of U.N. troops in Bosnia-Herzegovina, Lt. Gen. Francis Brinequemont, recently faulted the Security Council for being too lofty in its goals and too sparing in sending troops. He said he needed at least 10,000 more troops to carry out U.N. resolutions.

In Brussels, Belgium, Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic called on NATO to follow through on its threats to launch air strikes against Bosnian Serbs and said the alliance did not need U.N. approval to do so.

After meeting Thursday with NATO officials, Izetbegovic, the leader of Bosnia's Muslims, said he believed the best way to end the war was "the combination of negotiations and some military action against Serbian positions."

At a summit last week, President Clinton and the leaders of the 15 other North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries warned the Serbs of a new determination to order air strikes if needed to relieve embattled Muslim enclaves in Bosnia.

But overall, Hollingworth told reporters the U.N. effort to get a minimum 42 pounds of food per person to a month in civilians "is not proving itself to be successful."

However, Hollingworth warned "there would be a lot of suffering" if U.N. peacekeepers indeed left the war-torn republic.

Another round of peace talks failed in Geneva on Wednesday, raising fears of a new round of slaughter and starvation in a war that has killed more than 200,000 people since it erupted in April 1992.

Bosnian Serbs rebelled against the decision by Muslims and Croats to secede from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia, and now hold about 70 percent of Bosnia.

The Muslim-led government is refusing Serb and Croat offers of one-third of the country in the current peace deal.

In neighboring Croatia, opposition parties expressed skepticism Thursday that a Croatian-Serbian agreement toward normalizing relations would lessen tensions in Bosnia.

Croatian President Franjo Tudjman and Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic signed an agreement Wednesday to improve relations as a step toward ending their cold war over the one-third of Croatian land captured by Serbs in 1991.

Tudjman called the deal a diplomatic victory, while his political opponents criticized it for not guaranteeing the return of the Serb-held territories.

The deal puts pressure on the Muslims to sign the peace deal.

MARKET ROUNDUP

BUSINESS BRIEFS

The president of Italian sports carmaker Lamborghini will oversee Chrysler Corp.'s involvement in the Big Three's Clinton Administration venture to develop a "Super Car." Timothy Adams will continue to complete the purchase about April 1. The purchase price is the state's largest natural gas supplier and third-largest electric company.

The utility also says it won't mean a rate increase, at least not in the next few years. NIPSCO has not raised rates since 1987, and its last electric increase was longer ago.

"We should be selling customers on the different technologies, and let them make the choice," Bickel said. "And that's really what deregulation is all about -- giving the customer the choice that they didn't have before."

In theory, that means lower prices. Cheryl Bickel, a spokeswoman for the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission, said it remains to be seen whether that will be true.

"If you believe at all that competition is supposed to be good for the customer, that's an open question," Bickel said. "We have to see how it all plays out."
Will Notre Dame rise above its antiquated policies?

Dear Editor:

It absolutely amazes me how out of sync from the rest of the world Notre Dame is. I think there is a fine line between conservatism and blindness, and also one between being old-fashioned and being obsolete.

Notre Dame, thanks to its administrators, has crossed both of these lines. In many areas Notre Dame has fallen far behind in the progression of American educational institutions.

Compared to so many other colleges in America today, Notre Dame may seem as if it has seceded from the nation. Let’s look at some of the areas in which Notre Dame has fallen behind.

In the past week, record-setting temperatures have been set in the Midwestern region. Wind chill factors reaching over 40 below zero were present, as well as many inches of snow.

Food Services at Notre Dame also pales in comparison to other schools.

The weather was so bad, in fact that many schools closed their doors, at least for a day.

Purdue and Indiana University each were closed on Tuesday due to the weather. Notre Dame was the only educational institution in the county open on that day, with the exception of Holy Cross and Saint Mary’s College. I will agree that education is not to be taken lightly, but is one day of classes more important than risking pneumonia and frostbite?

Food Services at Notre Dame also pales in comparison to other schools. At many other institutions, both public and private, students have many options for their meals. Their meals may be eaten at dining halls, or at other snack bars and restaurants on campus, and it is all put on the meal plan.

Here in South Bend, our options are to eat at North or South Dining Hall, or at other snack bars like Papa John’s every time that the temperature is below freezing. My bedroom in Farley, 50RR.Y, doesn’t have heat for a long time, and it is not fixed until after many calls to maintenance. However, I have heard many complaints of poor heating in dorms such as BP, Farley, Zahm, and Morrissey. One would think that for $20,000 dollars a year, we could get a little heat in our rooms. Especially in this town.

The whole co-ed dorm and parietals thing has been beaten to death, and although I am in favor of the revision of these policies, I will not say much. Only that if there is enough pressure from the student body, I will not say much. Only that if there is enough pressure from the student body, Notre Dame may eventually become extinct. Sooner or later, Notre Dame will become an institution which will not be able to compete with other colleges. The fate of the University is in its own soft and manicured hands. Time to put them to work.

Where would you go to witness events like a Monster Dodge Ball game, a thrilling kayaking contest and a unique Nerf Football match all on this campus in the dead of winter? The Late Night Olympics, of course.

The eighth annual Late Night Olympics will take place tonight, starting at 8 p.m. and running until the early hours of the morning, at the Joyce Athletic and Convocation Center (J.A.C.C.) Bob Enberg, men’s tennis coach, and Hutncson, Breen-Phillips rector; Bill Kirk, assistant vice-president of student affairs; David Prentkow food services; Kathy Roys, Center for Special Counsel; Frank Flynn, student body president; Bill Kempf, SGA Guard; Jeff Geber, Bengal Route; and Andy Bucal on the leprechaun.

For the first time, this year’s Late Night Olympics will have a special twist. Athletes from the St. Joseph’s county Special Olympics will be present during the Olympic games to challenge Notre Dame students to a basketball game.

The exhibition basketball game will be against Badin, Holy Cross and Dillon late night teams and will consist of two twelve minute halves. The Special Olympics will bring approximately twelve athletes ranging in age from eighteen to thirty-eight.

Along with the game the Special Olympic participants will set up a stand where souvenirs, such as hats and water bottles may be purchased, according to Sharon Evans, Coordinator for the St. Joseph’s county Special Olympics.

The proceeds of Late Night Olympics have traditionally gone to help the local Special Olympics, yet this is the first time Special Olympics athletes will be directly involved in the event.

“Last year we came to see the late Night Olympics to see what it was all about,” Evans explained. “We were thrilled to see the athletes and had so much fun.”

People from the Special Olympics talked with Sally Derogozki from RecSports and arranged this event so the Notre Dame students can see where the money from the Late Night Games is going, Evans explained. The money helps considerably with the budget, especially during the basketball season, Evans said. Transportation, meals and uniforms are a few of the things the money assists the St. Joe’s Special Olympics in purchasing.

The St. Joe’s Special Olympics opened in 1968 in order to bring area athletes to the first Special Olympics. According to Kara O’Leary, the Link to be Seen at each Special Olympics, yet this is the first time Special Olympics athletes will be directly involved in the event.

Late Night Olympics offers many popular events according to Kara O’Leary, Late Night Olympics Coordinator, “Volleyball and basketball are always real popular.”

Another big event, the Monster Dodge Ball game, takes place at midnight in the arena. There are 100 people in the game, divided into two teams of fifty per each. “It’s a lot of fun to watch—it’s kind of a wake-up call at midnight,” O’Leary said.

Also popular, the Ultimate Rec Sports Challenge, obstacle course, is a new and surprising course to participate every year, she said.

New events this year include racquetball, a kayaking content and a dunk tank. The dunk tank, sponsored by the Observer, will run from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. For fifty cents, students have five chances to dunk people included Bob Enberg, men’s tennis coach, Hutncson, Breen-Phillips rector; Bill Kirk, assistant vice-president of student affairs; David Prentkow food services; Kathy Roys, Center for Special Counsel; Frank Flynn, student body president; Bill Kempf, SGA Guard; Jeff Geber, Bengal Route; and Andy Bucal on the leprechaun.

The Rock offers exhilarating rock climbing experience

By MATT CARBONE

To these omminous and romantic names, another title must now be added: The Wall at the Rock.

Beginning this month, RecSports will be raffling off the first wall to campus athletes - a 20-foot indoor rock climbing wall.

The wall is a product of more than two years of intensive work on the part of Sally Derengoski, assistant director of RecSports, Brother Lewis Hurick, director of the Rockne Memorial, and Brian Foy, Dillon Hall senior and president of the Climbing Club.

Almost three years ago, Ramsey approached Derengoski and RecSports about the possibility of having a climbing wall on campus, a recreational facility that has cropped up on many campuses across the country.

Derengoski was very receptive.

"It’s a new idea," said Derengoski. "Part of (RecSports’) responsibility is to be on the lookout for recreation opportunities."

For the past two years, Derengoski has worked closely with Ramsey and Hurick to bring the idea of the wall to fruition.

"Bill Ramsey has had an awful lot to do with the success of this program," said Derengoski. "Father Lewis (Hurick) has been very helpful."

After going through an involved and demanding bureaucratic process, including a review of the university’s risk management and safety department, the wall was constructed last month by a local construction company.

"The university has been very supportive throughout," commented Derengoski.

The wall was built in three weeks at a cost of $8,000, which was split between RecSports and the Rock.

A veteran rock climber who has been climbing for seven years, is excited that the wall will finally be open for business.

"A lot of people have been working very hard on the wall for a long time," said Foy. "It’s great exercise and a lot of fun."

"Foy and his club have planned a series of clinics will be offered by RecSports, according to Derengoski.

"The orientation class will only teach you the basic fundamental skills you need," she said. "The clinics will make you a better climber."

All of this will make climbers ready for the weekend climbing trips Foy and his club have planned if and when it warms up in the spring. "We’re planning on climbing in southern Illinois, southern Indiana and Kentucky," said Foy.

The regular schedule for the wall will be Sundays 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesdays and Thursdays 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., with Jan. 24 as the grand opening.

Any questions can be directed to Derengoski at 631-6600.

"We encourage people to come out to the Late Night Olympics and observe and what’s going on," she said. "Students should go for the gold this Friday evening and demonstrate their athletic abilities for a good cause, the Special Olympics."

The ice rink will have an open skate from 10 p.m. to 12 a.m. Skate rental is $1, and that is also a donation to the Special Olympics. The Slam-Dunk contest, which starts at 11 p.m., will take sign-ups from 8 to 10:30 p.m. on Friday.

If students missed registration for an event, but their hall signed up for the event they can participate as an alternate.

The Late Night Olympics were originally started by Sally Derengoski, Assistant Director of RecSports, said O’Leary. When Derengoski was an undergraduate at Indiana University, they had an all night event similar to the Late Night Olympics.

Derengoski wanted to try a fun event like this at Notre Dame and "to do it for a good cause and raise money for Special Olympics," O’Leary said.

Winning teams of an event receive medals and the overall championship team of the Late Night Olympics receive medals.

I am writing to ask how the discernment process is going. If you're going to burn yourselves out trying to decide whether to leave all things and follow

Jesus, how would you handle an icewanema from a pagan wanting to make a Christian cry?

According to the Gospel story,

it didn't take Andrew and

Simon Peter two years to decide on leaving their nets and boats, or the old gaffer, their father.

They just told him "Pappa, the time has come for us to make something of ourselves, if we can. Jesus just made an offer we can't refuse. He says it's time for us to come with them and start hangin' out.

We shook hands on the deal papa, and now we're saying so long for while, but we want you to know we're leaving home with achin hearts. We've fixed it up so that you can have three choices.

You can stay single and go it alone; you can marry a woman to keep house and be company.

Or you can take a bike down the road to the sailors' Snug

Harbor, to retire with your mates for life.

"Boys," said the old gaffer, "I got a call to serve God that I'm mulling over. Now that I have you felligs off my hands, I'm thinking of becoming a rabbi.

"Fine," they said, "if that's what makes you happy. Don't take any wooden ducats, and don't forget we're expecting you home for the Jewish High

Holidays."

So Simon Peter's and

Andrew's old gaffer headed toward Jerusalem, and told the Pharisees on duty that he thought he had a vacation.

The next day, after passing the written and physical tests, he joined the Pharisees. As it turned out, he was present for the Crucifixion. After it was over, for the sake of his boys, he helped take the body down from the Cross, and lay it in the burial who were friends of Jesus place.

The Jews who were friends of Jesus, were surprised to see them when they returned to Jerusalem. The old gaffer had made something of himself, or so they thought, until they heard the news that he had become a Pharisee.

The 49ers beat the Dallas Cowboys, jumping back over the 49ers to inherit the mantle of the NFL’s best team. At various times, both San Francisco and Dallas have looked like the NFL’s best team. It was the 49ers’ turn last week in their 44-3 demolition of Dallas, two weeks before both had forced the Cowboys into overtime to win. "Last week, he abused us publicly and privately to moti- vate us," quarterback Steve Young said of the tactics coach George Seifert used to wake up the 49ers. "This week’s he only abusing us privately." At both times, however, the object appeared ordinary or worse, as three of its last four games had during two two-game losing streaks and last week in pod- dling San Francisco, Green Bay, and Thursday. But if nothing else, these are two of the league’s best offensive units, and there’s been a premium at a right shoulder that was separated in that battle with the Giants on Jan. 2. Dallas scored more than 34 points in nine of its 17 games and has been over 40 points five times and 50 once. Yet it’s only 11-6, largely be- cause of that late-season slump after its playoff position had been determined. Dallas, which is 13-4 including its playoff win, hasn’t scored as much, but the poten- tial is there. Quarterback Troy Aikman missed two and a half games with a pulled hamstring and Smith held out for two games, although the second three straight NFL ranking title. But look at the offenses and you see the mismatch. The 49ers have perhaps the NFL’s best offensive line and two of four part or present or pro Bowlers: tackles Harris Barton and Steve Wallace, guard Tony McStay and center Jesse Sapolu. Dallas, with tackle Rick Wrenn and guard Dave New- ton, isn’t far behind, although it’s losing one of its stars, cen- ter Mark Stepnoski. But the skill positions are even more similar — Smith at running back vs. San Francisco’s Ricky Watters, who set a playoff record with five touchdowns against the Giants. Each is augmented by a blue-collar fullback who can catch, block and run if neces- sary. Other things being equal, the 49ers and Daryl “Mouse” Johnston of the Cowboys are 10 years old, each running back by a team that can’t be a Super Bowl MVP, at quarterback against a playoff MVP and the NFL’s passing leader the last two sea- sons. You can bet the Cowboys are trying to escape the shadow of Joe Montana, and win a conference title or Super Bowl — Jerry Rice of San Francisco, perhaps the most neglected receiver of all time, against Michael Irvin of Dallas, who isn’t far behind. They are augmented by two of the NFL’s best No. 2 pass catchers — the 49ers’ John Taylor and the Cowboys’ Alvin Harper. Two plus tight ends who catch more than blocking — Pride and Jay Novacek of Dallas, both No. 84 in your program.
Irish are winning and the stoic is happy

By GEORGE DOHRMANN
Sports Editor

Some days Muffet McGraw could pass for a stoic. In recent years the Notre Dame women's basketball coach would follow a loss with a stern expression and few words. In games the Irish should have won, she would give new meaning to the phrase "cold shoulder."

But much to the enjoyment of the media and fans, McGraw has been as talkative as a Southern hairdresser this season. With her team coasting at 11-4, its best start since 1990-91, there is much to talk about.

And for now, the stoic is left in the locker room.

"We have good chemistry, good leadership, and the attitude of the team is great," said McGraw, in her seventh year with the Irish. "We have great senior leadership, a lot more talent this year, great depth, we play better defense and the freshmen have made a big contribution."

All of these reasons showed as the Irish breezed past Evansville 93-84 last night at the Joyce ACC. The game was like night and day from last season, when in their first meeting the Aces dealt Notre Dame a 73-69 defeat.

The Irish couldn't put away even the softened of Midwestern Collegiate Conference foes a year ago, but this season McGraw's troop is growing accustomed to big leads and even bigger wins.

"We came as close as we have all year to playing a full 40 minutes," said senior Kara Leary. "We have played nearly complete games, but not perfect yet."

It would send a scream through the MCC if the Irish were to play flawless and send a ripple wavering in the direction of the pollsters, who have neglected to vote the Irish in the Top 25.

The win over Evansville was as emblematic as the 10 which preceded it. Every player on the roster scored, and five were in double figures—including two freshmen. The Irish shot well from three-point range (7-15) and out-rebounded their opponents 51-29 (currently ranked ninth in the nation in that category). They also had the Aces to 315 shooting from the floor.

In short, the Irish are winning with depth, defense and rebounding.

"We can do so many things," said Leary. "If one area of our offense isn't working, we can look to another, and we are playing much better defense."

McGraw crammed a new defensive system into her players during the preseason, and they have accepted it with pride.

The chic trend on the team is tenacious in-your-face defense. Cheers come for steals, rebounds and blocked shots. This is a team made up of Dennis Rodmans, minus the controversy and bad hair.

"Everyone has accepted a role," said McGraw. "It is not something you coach. A player has to find their spot and then work for the team. This year's group has done that extremely well."

No one has done it better than Leary, the Irish's immediate point guard, averaging a silent eight points per game coupled with five assists, both career-bests. The former walk-on had 61 assists last year that already has 68 in 1993.

This team does have a Michael Jordan, or more fitting, a Larry Bird. Freshman Beth Morgan looks and plays like the former Celtic star. She is the team's leading scorer, averaging 16.2 points per game, and had a team-high 14 against Evansville.

Fellow freshmen Jeaninne Augustin and Katryna Gaither have also observed a niche on the team. Gaither spells inside players Letitia Bowen and TooTle Jones, and Augustin, who scored 12 against the Aces, adapted well to the back court.

"The seniors really took us (the freshmen) under their wings and taught us the ropes," said Morgan. "I personally wanted to come in and contribute right away, and I think all of the freshmen have done that."

Against LaSalle earlier this year, McGraw went with Leary and four freshmen with the Irish clinging to a slim lead. The result was a 19 point win and high praise from the Celtic senior.

"They have come in and given us depth and versatility," said McGraw. "There is so much we can do with different lineups that we couldn't do last year."

The freshmen are not the only reason this season has been a smoother run for McGraw and the Irish. Although it is not openly said, the transfer of a pair of players this past two years has benefited the team. There are no longer any attitudes just competitors.

"When we came in everyone just forgot about last year," said Morgan. "The bottom line is everyone wants to win and we will do anything for that to happen."

Bowen has done everything. The junior is second in scoring and first in rebounding. She plays all three positions along the front line and even slips into the back court on occasion.

"We are much more versatile this season," said Leary. "We have six-foot guards like Letitia and players that can play a number of positions. It creates problems for opponents."

Although they are 11-4 McGraw points to mistakes against Old Dominion and Seton Hall for why her team is not 12-2. Peering ahead in the schedule shows clear sailing for the Irish. They shouldn't loose a game until the MCC Tournament and then will set their sights on an NCAA bid.

"Right now we are only looking at Butler," said McGraw, in reference to Notre Dame's opponent on Saturday. "We need to play hard and keep doing the things we have to point this."

The freshmen, the seniors, the depth, the chemistry, anyway it stacks up the Irish are winning. And the stoic is happily stuffed in the locker room.

tive," MacLeod said. "We have been consistent in one sense. Turnovers were a problem last year and they are still a problem this season.

Coughing up the ball is bad enough. Notre Dame is coughing up vital organs.

A season-high 34 turnovers crippled the Irish against Kentucky and 30 more let a very winnable game at LaSalle slip away.

Freshman point guard Admore White earned the starting job after just three practices. "That's Admore, as in add more points and add more assists," MacLeod said before the season began.

And add more...you know.

White's adjustment to the college game took a little longer than expected, so MacLeod gave the starting job to senior Brooks Boyer, whose adjustment is also taking a little longer than expected.

So, junior Lamarr Justice started at point guard Wednesday against St. Bonaventure with similar results. "We had hoped to have the problem rectified by now," MacLeod said. "But it's not something where we can just snap our fingers and fix it. I wish it was that easy."

Even with all the ball handling problems, the Irish have been within striking distance of some of the nation's top teams.

Against Arizona in the first round of the Maui Classic, Notre Dame was within six points with less than four minutes remaining. But the one-dimensional offense could carry the weight down the stretch.

It has been a two-dimensional offense at times, with Monty Williams and Ryan Hoover often sharing the burden.

Rarely has another player stepped up to fill the cavernous offensive void.

"We'd like to see more balance in our offense," MacLeod said. "The forwards need to begin to open things up."

Sophomore guard Keith Kurowski opened things up for a while. After missing his entire freshman season with a stress fracture in his foot and the first five games this season after November knee surgery,

He provided some much needed offensive punch after his return, but he is still not 100 percent physically.

"Keith is not out of the woods yet with his knee," MacLeod said. "He is experiencing things for the first time as a college player and it will take him a while to regain his conditioning."

Notre Dame's schedule hasn't done the team any favors. Perennial powers Indiana, Kentucky, Arizona have already done their damage, all on the road.

The Irish return to the Joyce Center this Saturday, where they are a perfect 4-0 this season.

"We've played 10 of our first 14 games on the road," MacLeod said. "It's never easy to play a team on their home floor, and hopefully our floor will be as good to us."

Distractions aside, Belles are prepared

By ANNE NAPIERKOWSKI

While the events of St. Mary's sesquicentennial may have kept the Belles' out of the comfort of their own gym, the team feels well prepared for Saturday's game at Anderson University.

Spending the week at the Joyce Center has been a new and unusual experience for the Belles', but the workouts have continued to stay intense and focused.

"It has been a tough week for us," said coach Marvin Wood. "We haven't been in our own gym, but we're making the best of it."

The Belles' have continued practicing their 2-3 zone play to which they attribute last weekend's win against Beloit College. Similar zone. The Belles' have continued practicing their 2-3 zone play to which they attribute last weekend's win against Beloit College. Similar zone.

"Their scoring comes from the post like Beloit," said freshman forward Katy Lalli. "We've been working on the post. It worked pretty well for us last game."

The weather conditions affected the team's momentum when their Tuesday game against the University of Chicago was canceled and rescheduled for February 2.

Saint Mary's swimmers rested and ready to face Hillsdale

BY CHERYL GILLILAND
Sports Writer

This Saturday, the Saint Mary's swimmers hope to up their dual meet record to 2-2 with a victory at Hillsdale. The Belles are "looking to make some adjustments this weekend," said head coach Greg Janson, after last weekend's loss to Calvin College.

Janson explained that last weekend, the Belles were just coming off a hard week at camp and were swimming tired and sore. Janson is looking for that to change this weekend as they face Hillsdale in their fourth dual meet of the season.

"This week, we are more rested and have more energy," said Janson. "I'm looking for us to swim a lot fresher."

Senior co-captain Ellen Kramer, who swims freestyle and breaststroke, agreed. "The training trip really broke us down, but we are feeling much better this week." Kramer who swims freestyle, but can also swim relay positions and perform well in them," said Janson.

Coach Janson and his team are optimistic about the meet at Hillsdale and are looking for it to be a stepping stone to greater success in future meets.

"Last week, our times were slower and that was very discouraging," noted Hurley. "We're feeling a lot better this week, and we're thinking more about what we're doing in the water."
Vin Scully's son killed patrolling earthquake damage

Vin Scully's son, Michael Scully, 33, of Bakersfield, was killed in a helicopter crash while patrolling an oil pipeline for earthquake damage.

Michael Scully was the passenger in the helicopter. The pilot was not immediately identified.

Robert Preston, who lives near the crash site, said the helicopter didn't sound right as it came over his house and slammed into a hillside near the pumping plant.

"Something was wrong was it didn't have a normal helicopter sound," Preston said. "It had sort of a whining sound like an engine revving and unrevving."

The crash, reported about 9 a.m. PST, caused several spot grass and brush fires, the largest of which was about one acre, said Kern County Fire Capt. Mike Cody.

"It appears the helicopter clipped some power lines, impacted with a small ridge about 200 feet tall and hit the three quarters of the way up, then crashed down to the base of the ridge," Cody said.

He said the fire burned the helicopter so badly its identification numbers were obliterated.

The helicopter was owned by J.L. Denio Excavating, Trucking and Pipeline of Bakersfield and was flying under contract for Four Corners Pipe Line.

FORT TEJON, Calif. - The son of prominent sports broadcaster Vin Scully was among two men killed in a helicopter crash Thursday as they patrolled an oil pipeline checking for earthquake damage.

Michael Scully, 33, of Bakersfield, was an engineering supervisor for Four Corners Pipe Line Inc., a subsidiary of Arco Oil Co., said Arco spokesman Al Greenstein.

"What tipped me off that something was wrong was it didn't have a normal helicopter sound," Preston said. "It had sort of a whining sound like an engine revving and unrevving."

Jordan admits he's not ready for majors

By RICK GANO

CHICAGO
Michael Jordan, acknowledging that his improbable attempt to join the Chicago White Sox is viewed "as off the wall," said Thursday his skills are improving but not yet ready for the major leagues.

"I'm trying. I'm not good enough right now but I still got a couple of more days," Jordan said at a news conference where he and Hall of Famer Reggie Jackson were promoting a line of baseball cards.

"A lot of people may think this is off the wall and maybe it is, but I'm doing something I choose to do. That is following one of the dreams I had when I was a kid."

The White Sox said earlier they will determine in a couple of weeks whether to invite Jordan to spring training. He's been working on his hitting and fielding five days a week at an indoor facility, and manager Gene Lamont watched earlier this week.

If the White Sox thought he showed enough promise, Jordan said he would be willing to go to the minors for seasoning and work.

Jordan, who hasn't played baseball since high school, reiterated that he and his father always wanted him to play professional baseball.

"My father and I talked about it two years ago," he said. "He thought I was still young enough to give it a try. You never know. He always wanted me to play professional baseball. He always thought I could do it. But my basketball skills exceeded and I never pursued it in college."

Jordan's father was murdered last summer and a couple of months later Michael announced his retirement from the Chicago Bulls after leading them to three straight NBA titles.

Jackson said the odds were against Jordan playing major league baseball. He added it's the effort and the memory of his father's wishes that are making the venture worthwhile.

"I don't think Michael is concerned about embarrassing himself and I don't think he's concerned about what someone thinks," Jackson said. "He has a treaty, a bond, a letter to answer, a promise to fulfill and he is going to do it whatever the consequences are.

"Whether I think he can hit a breaking ball or what he's going to look like to see a 95 mph Roger Clemens fast ball under his chin, he's going to get through that."

When he left the Bulls, Jordan said he had nothing left to prove and was tired of the constant spotlight and intrusions. Now his yearning to play baseball has made him the center of attention — and in some instances ridicule — again.

"I'm not saying I'm walking into this to be Reggie Jackson or Barry Bonds," Jordan said. "I'm looking at this as an opportunity to overcome a feat that a lot of people don't think I'm capable of doing."

He said he's not trying to be a novelty act and he would "do other things or take it elsewhere" if he thought he was interfering.

Irish men's tennis favored to win spring season openers

By PHIL LANGER

Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's tennis team enters the weekend as a favorite to win both of its matches against Miami (OH) and Northern Illinois.

Notre Dame will face Miami (OH) at 2:00 and Northern Illinois at 7:00 on Saturday in the Eck Pavilion.

Miami (OH), led by seniors David Fagen, David Zinn, John Halter and Eric Seltenrich, finished last season as one of the top six or seven teams in the Midwest and consequently promises to keep a talented Irish team busy.

"I am genuinely concerned about Saturday," stated Notre Dame head coach Bob Bayliss. "Miami will be a tough open­

PORTLAND, Ore.
Tonya Harding-whirled around the ice Thursday, screaming, laughing and nailing five triple axels as if unconcerned by fresh allegations that she encouraged and helped plot the attack on Olympic rival Nancy Kerrigan. A crowd of more than 100 fans, cheering, whistling and shouting "Go Tonya," watched Harding skate brilliantly at a shopping mall rink for an hour while prosecutors from Portland and Detroit met with attorneys for two of the four men arrested in the case.

At the same time, Detroit detectives spoke with the FBI to review its investigation. No federal charges will be filed in the case, FBI spokesman Bart Gori said.

A Multnomah County grand jury, meeting to determine whether to indict Harding along with the four men arrested in the alleged conspiracy, heard testimony from Harding's bodyguard, Eckardt, whose credibility has been assaulted by numerous acquittances, claimed in an interview published Thursday that an impatient Harding refused to respond to the latest allegations made by her bodyguard, Eckardt, whose testimony to authorities provided the basis for the warrant and arrest of Gillooly.

Irish face key CCHA matchups

The Notre Dame hockey team resumes play in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association with two road games this weekend in Ohio at Kent State on Friday, and at Ohio State on Saturday.

The Irish, (8-14-2; 6-10-2 in CCHA) in 7th place in the CCHA, are coming off a weekend in which they upset 20th ranked Bowling Green 2-1 and then fell to number one ranked Michigan 6-1.

“We played five really good defensive periods of hockey,” said Notre Dame coach Rick Schafer. “We’re looking forward to winning two games this weekend.”

To increase the Irish’s incentive for this weekend, a win would give Schafer 100 in his six plus seasons at Notre Dame. Kent comes into Friday’s contest with a 5-10-1 in the CCHA and in 9th place in the conference. They defeated the Irish on the road in two close games January 2 and 3. Junior Dean Schafer with two road games this weekend toward to winning two games this season.

“We lost two close games a couple of weeks ago to them and it was a big setback. We need to turn the tables.”

“There is definitely a revenge factor involved,” added Irish senior captain Matt Osiecki. “This is a real important game for us.

As for Saturday’s game at Ohio State, Notre Dame’s appearance in town will mean that over 4,000 fans will pack the Ohio State Fairgrounds to see the last place Buckeyes (2-13-2) battle the Irish.

Ohio State normally plays their games at the Ice Rink on campus, but the increased interest in the game necessitates the change of venue. Although the Buckeyes are in last place, they have played all the CCHA teams close, including a 3-3 tie last week at Lake Superior State. Notre Dame scrambled to beat Ohio State twice in come from behind wins earlier in the season.

“The contest will be physical and we’ll have our ice bags full because we expect a tough match,” said Schafer. “The contest will be physical and we’ll have our ice bags full because we expect a tough match.”

“We’re going to take one game at a time and see what happens,” said Osiecki. Notre Dame will rely on its defense to secure two wins. Osiecki and sophomores Matt Bieck, Jeremy Cue bolster the defense in front of the Irish’s goaltender.

Speaking of goalies, sophomore Wade Salzman had the best performance of his career last Friday against Bowling Green, but lost the next night against Michigan. Senior Greg Louder will get the starting nod on Friday, while Saturday’s goalie is undecided.

“Our goalies have all had their shining moments,” commented Schafer. “But they’ve had their bad ones too.”

Notre Dame’s offensive production comes from sophomores Jaime Ling (10G, 18 A), Brent Lampma (6G, 6A) and Jamie Morshed (5G, 7A). Freshmen forwards Terry Lorenz and Tim Harberts have chipped in with 12 and 11 points respectively.

“We need every single one of our players to play well,” continued Schafer. “We don’t have a dominant player that can carry us if we don’t play well.”

These games carry important CCHA playoff implications for the Irish. A sixth place finish in the conference means home ice advantage in the playoffs.

“We need two wins so we can try and gain home ice advantage, and then we’ll go from there,” concluded Osiecki.

 Hello, Mr. Starr

What's not to like?

The phone is ringing in the home of Prepp Starr, the most coveted high school basketball player in the nation.

"Mr. Starr, it's time for you to make an important decision about your future. Where you decide to continue your education and your basketball career will chart the course for the rest of your life. What's that? You want to know what possible reason you would have for coming to Notre Dame. Most of our recruits have that reaction. That's why we want to take this opportunity to point out the positive side of the Notre Dame basketball experience. "Number one, our season is usually over before spring break. Most schools that covet your services can't make that claim because they will probably be involved in post-season play. "Oh, you want the challenge of playing in the NCAA Tournament? "Well, with your talent you could be the person to return the Notre Dame basketball team to the Promised Land. "That is, if you can talk three or four of your friends from the Nike Camp into coming here also. "Cold weather? That's not a problem because we don't spend much of the winter in South Bend. "Instead, we play in warm places like California or North Carolina. This year, we even went to Hawaii. "Sure, we play home games once in a while, but nobody seems to notice.

"A conference? We play in what you could call 'America's Conference.' "Most people call us an 'independent,' but actually we're quite dependent. Dependent on other teams to decide when and where they want to play us. Otherwise we wouldn't have much of a schedule. "The only result has stayed the same. The 5-9 midseason mark could have been at least .500 with a few breaks. Losers to Duquesne and St. Bonaventure numb the excitement of last week's upset of No. 25 Missouri. "Hope whisked away with the winter wind. "The Missouri game was not a fluke, we had a solid effort throughout," MacLeod said. "But the only way we'll be a good team is if we get a full blown effort every game."

It was two months ago that the Irish-glued with preselection (and premature) belief—made public its goal of making the NCAA Tournament.

That goal is proving to be as elusive as a field goal. "We still have scoring droughts where we don't score for four or five minutes and then we'll have a stretch when we're very productive," Andy Zurcher said.
