Benefit concert is planned

Fun and entertainment were key themes in David Hungeling and Matt Orsagh's campaign for student body president and vice-president last semester. Through a variety of projects planned for the 1994-1995 school year, Hungeling and Orsagh hope to fulfill these election promises with an element of service.

"We'll really be killing two birds with one stone (by combining service and fun)," Orsagh said. Although the Grateful Dead concert promised during the election has not materialized, Hungeling and Orsagh have proposed a benefit concert to take place in the Joyce Athletic Convocation Center (JACC) at the end of the spring term. The revenue from the concert would be used for student service trips and projects, such as hurricane or flood relief.

"The proposal has been written and the JACC has been contacted. Their reaction has been really positive," Hungeling said.

A list of possible performers was not available, but student government is currently exploring a number of options. Another project planned for the year is an underwear and shoe drive. Homeless shelters and missions are always in need of both underwear and shoes, and student government is interested in involving campus or university celebrities in the campaign. Hungeling and Orsagh hope to establish a particular voice mail number for student service trips and programs. Hungeling stressed that they are really being fair. In the computer clusters, students can cross-reference a class and find people who are trying to sell books for that course. Student government is not responsible for handling the books, and students can use the clusters at all hours.

In addition, Hungeling and Orsagh plan to continue pressing for an FM band for the campus radio station WVFI.

"We will facilitate communication between the station and the people in the administration who are calling the shots," Hungeling said.

Before an application for an FM band is processed, the University would like the station to remedy any lingering management problems and fulfill all FCC regulations.

Hungeling stressed that they are open to new suggestions and ideas. "Matt and I want students to feel like they can approach us with anything. We're really looking for suggestions.

In the near future, Hungeling and Orsagh hope to establish a Student Tavern Advisory Committee for student suggestions. Temporarily, students can leave ideas on Orsagh's voice mail, which is at 631-4554.

Bridge's reopens to favorable reviews

By SARAH DORAN

As a result of a steady stream of student interest since it closed its doors last winter, Bridge's, a popular student tavern located at 1025 South Bend Avenue, reopened for a large crowd last Thursday night and has plans to stay open into the near future.

The tavern, which owners Theresa and Pat Shank still have listed for sale, is in need of new management. The old clean-up, which included painting and restaining the inside—but tried not to change the atmosphere," said newly hired manager Rich Binder.

"There really aren't any noticeable changes on the inside," said Notre Dame senior Mike McEvilly, who is a bouncer and a bartender at Bridge's.

But one noticeable change has been made upon reopening, as steps have been taken to upgrade the tavern's security procedures, said Binder.

"We are in the process of installing a number of security checks," said Binder. These include using a uniformed security officer at the front door to check identification and photograph patrons entering the tavern, said Binder. Also planned for the future is a camera system that will photograph each ID shown upon entrance, said Binder.

Reaction to Bridge's first three days of operation has been extremely favorable, said Binder.

"We've attracted a great crowd each night, have not had any real problems, and things seem to look great," said Binder.

Although Bridge's has not scheduled any bands to play until the football season ends, nightly specials are planned and the tavern will also be open on Monday nights.

OUC installs updated equipment in computer clusters

By SARAH DORAN
News Editor

As part of a continual effort to upgrade the University's computer resources, the Office of University Computing (OUC) purchased over 100 new computers over the summer and shifted existing machines to various clusters.

The most notable result of the upgrade is the conversion of the LaFortune computer cluster from Macintosh computers to IBM machines. 24 new IBM PS2 DX-4 model 90's were installed in the cluster, which was designed especially to allow groups of students to work together on the computers, said Scott Siler, student resources coordinator for the OUC.

The Macintoshes formally of the lab were redistributed to the G015 CCMB located at 1025 South Bend Avenue, reopened for a large crowd last Thursday night and has plans to stay open into the near future.

The lab was converted to an IBM lab, said Binder.

"We increased the number of rooms that have computer pods available, so that there are more available to use as teaching tools for Professors," said Siler.

The OUC also installed 14 new Power 7100 Macintoshes for use as teaching podiums in the Debartolo Hall. Formally, only five Macintoshes were available for teaching use in classrooms.

The IBM machines from the Debartolo cluster and those from 228 Debartolo were moved into the Heshburg and Hayes Healy clusters, replacing the IBM 368's.

Finally, all Sun SPARC computers in the Fitzpatrick, Newland and CCMB 210 labs were outfitted with new 17" color monitors. Also, the SPARC 1+ machines, which Siler said were the slowest of the Sun machines, were replaced by SPARC 5 machines in all labs.

The OUC has also made upgrades to plan to provide E-mail capabilities to all dorm rooms. Although no room will be fully E-mail functional for two more years, the beginnings of the wiring were completed in six dorms around campus.
Where will the bridges lead us?

While crossing the Rio Grande near a Gorge Bridge into Taos, New Mexico, something quite wondrous came over me. It was like any great road trip adventure, mystique, curiosity, and the controlling elements of your mind—not to mention that undeniable sixth sense of highway patrol detection.

One of our many escapades took us deep into the spiritual willed of the High Road to Taos. Northern New Mexico is just as much a land of mystery as it is people, a culture of eccentricity and mystique, curiosity and a faith in the spiritual source. I can only wonder if George Dohrmann and Eric Ruethling, the authors of this site which also included a natural well, would have the same effects on the Spaniards except during exam and vacation periods. The Peruvian priest was denounced as a murderer in a September 1991 coup. The assassination of a Catholic priest was denounced as a murder and a political conspiracy. It seems a debate will continue to be held on whether to lift an arms embargo against the Bosnian Serbs. Sudanese Karadzic is threatened to attack foreigners in retaliation, which could threaten food aid to hundreds of thousands of Bosnians. Presidential elections will start on Monday against the Serbs. The results of the Serb referendum were no surprise in Sarajevo, the capital of the Muslim-led government. Suspects charged in crime spree.

Bosnian Serbs still reject peace plan

SARAJEVO

Bosnian Serbs overwhelmingly rejected what was billed as a last-chance peace plan, but the Bosnian foreign minister urged on Monday urged them to reconsider. The world powers now face a variety of unappealing options. Rarity of the state of brutal repression and violence that characterized life in Haiti has been beaten, imprisoned and expelled from Haiti, but Vincent was the first killed since the military took power.

Searchers have reached a plane that crashed carrying five U.S. drug agents in a remote area of Peru's cocaine-producing jungle and confirmed there were no survivors, the Drug Enforcement Administration said Monday.

The plane crashed Saturday afternoon in a heavily forested region of the Upper Huallaga Valley, where most of Peru's illegal coca crop is grown, and clouds had hampered efforts to reach the crash site.

DEA Administrator Thomas Constantine said a search of the area has confirmed that there were no survivors.

The agents were identified as Frank Fernandez, 38, of Los Angeles; Meredith Thompson, 32, of Miami; Frank Wallace Jr., 37, of Houston, and Juan Vara, 32, San Antonio, Texas.

"This incident is devastating for the entire DEA family. We continue to pray for the lives of the special agents lost in this tragedy," Constantine said.

The CASA twin-engine plane was traveling from Santa Lucia when it lost contact with air traffic control.

The DEA said the cause of the crash was under investigation but there was no sign of fire or explosion, according to the search team which included Peruvian military and DEA personnel.

The agents were taking part in Operation Snowcap, an effort started in 1982 in which U.S. agents work closely with Peruvian and Bolivian officials to dismantle cocaine networks.

About 10 DEA agents are assigned to Peru and another 12 to Bolivia, the DEA said.

Clinton takes break at the beach

By RON FOURNIER

EDGARTOWN

President Clinton, who began his summer vacation with a frank weekend of outdoor sports, withdrew on a rainy day Monday inside. He slept late, read books and spent time with the family.

"They haven't been doing a whole lot of anything," press secretary Dee Dee Myers said.

The Clintons are staying on a 25-acre estate for their Martha's Vineyard vacation, but the president spent much of his first two days golfing, jogging and sailing.

The warm, sunny weather turned drab and wet Monday, forcing the president to spend most of the day inside the spacious home of developer Richard Friedman.

"He's been spending time with Mr. Clinton reading," said Myers, who briefed reporters in a blue-jean jacket and T-shirt.

"He's just trying to relax." He mentioned his daughter, Chelsea, 14, rented a movie for herself and a friend.

Not doing much of anything could mean an interesting conversation.

The Clintons were to have dinner at the Martha's Vineyard summer home of author William Styron. He wrote "Sophie's Choice," "Confessions of Nat Turner" and a lot more.

And Styron's house guest is Gabriel Garcia Marquez, winner of the Nobel Prize for Literature, one of Latin America's best known literary lights — and a friend of Cuba's Fidel Castro.

Just last week Garcia Marquez interviewed with Castro on behalf of disssident Cuban writer Norberto Fuentes, who had been on a 25-day hunger strike.

Fuentes was allowed to fly to Mexico, and a Garcia Marquez asked Castro to let him leave.

Castro has unleashed a riposte of discontented migrants toward U.S. shores. Clinton is resisting with Coast Guard cutters and detention camps.

To Garcia Marquez, Fidel Castro is "a very cultured, well-read man with a keen eye for spotting contradictions."

Clinton may leave his vacation digs to make a Labor Day visit in Maine.

Myers said the president may attend a rally at Bath Iron Works, Maine's largest employer, which recently signed a novel labor agreement, under which the company and workers will share major decision-making powers. "I don't think the final decisions have been made," she said.

He also could make a side visit to a YMCA camp near Augusta to attend a Labor Day picnic hosted by Joseph Brennan, a former two-term governor who is the Democratic nominee in this year's gubernatorial race.

Intent on relaxation, Clinton has skipped a couple of political fund-raisers on the island and has no plans to attend any of the bashes scheduled in the next week or so he will be on vacation.

The presidential visit has inspired a rash of special T-shirts, including those featuring a dog with Clinton's face plastered on it. "Top dog," it reads.

Israel reaffirms control of Gaza Strip border

By SAID GHAZALI
Associated Press

BEIRJ CROSING
Palestinians won some autonomy in West Bank today, but con­ stained Israeli authority in the Gaza Strip led Pakistan's prime minister to cancel a trip to the self-rule zone.

Israel's prime minister, Yitzhak Rabin, administered
Pakistan's ambassador, Benazir Blunto to "learn some manners" after she refused to coordinate her visit to autonomous Gaza with Israel.

Predominantly Muslim Pakistan does not recognize the Jewish state and shuns contacts with Israelis.

Ms. Bhumto, scheduled to arrive Saturday, was to be the first foreign leader to set foot in Gaza since limited Palestinian self-rule began there and in the West Bank town of Jericho in May. But the trip ran into trouble Sunday when Israeli refused to let a Pakistani diplomat into Gaza to help prepare for the visit. Israel said the diplomat was barred because Jerusalem wasn't notified of his arrival in advance.

Today, Ms. Bhumto canceled
the visit after Israel demanded she clear the trip with Israeli authorities.

"The Israelis have put up obstructions that violate the agreement with the Palestians," Pakistan's Foreign Minister spokesman, Munir Akram, said.

On the advice of Pakistani diplomats, Ms. Bhumto was call­ go off the trip, he said.

Under the autonomy accord, Israel remains in charge of forger relations and border crossings into the autonomy zones.

The agreement also stipulates that guests from countries that don't have diplomatic relations with Israel "shall be required to obtain a special visitor's permit to be issued by the Palestinian Authority and accepted by Israel."

Israel, which occupied Gaza and the West Bank in 1967, is sensitive to attempts to sidestep its continued authority there and turn the interim autonomy phase into full Palestinian statehood.

We must teach the lady from Pakistan a little manners," Rabin told a news conference at the Weizmann Institute of Science in Rehovoth, a town south of Tel Aviv.

China, U.S. improve relations

By RENE SCHOOF
Associated Press

BEIJING Temporarily shelving their squabbles, China and the United States on Monday eslished ways to improve trade and investment relations and make China an easier place for Americans to do business.

An agreement signed by visiting Commerce Secretary Ronald Brown and China's Foreign Trade Minister Wu Yi creates a framework for talks aimed at establishing improved long-term commercial pacts.

Corporate executives traveling with Brown also signed deals worth tens of millions of dol­ ars.

The Brown entourage's trip to China, which began Sunday, is the first high-level U.S. visit since President Clinton separated economies and human rights abuses in his administration's dealings with Beijing three months ago.

China has publicly portrayed the trip as opening a new era in its American relationship, despite persistent underlying tensions over human rights issues.

Secretary of State Warren
Christopher, Treasury Secretary
Nelson Rockefeller, and Brown told journalists that China's party's policy of encouraging economic development was compatible with respect for human rights.

Brown told the signing ceremonies in Beijing that the trip would create a framework for trade relationships.

The 24 American executives accompanying Brown represent large U.S. corporations in industries ranging from energy to toys.

Quayle gearing up for presidential run

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press

WASHINGTON
Former Vice President Dan Quayle has all but decided to seek the presidency in 1996 and is beginning to lay the groundwork for a campaign, a close associate said Monday.

He will begin to campaign for Republican congressional and gubernatorial candidates and is planning major speeches to try out possible themes for the 1996 campaign, according to the associate, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Quayle recently returned with his family from a long vacation, during which they discussed whether he should seek the Republican nomination. All indications are that the answer is yes, said the friend who spoke to Quayle after the vacation.

Another associate said Quayle has made clear to friends that he would like to run and continues to evaluate the feasibility of a race by contacting potential campaign contributors.

Quayle's positive leaning was heavily influenced by the strong sales of his book, "Standup Firm." He had counted on the response to the book, which has sold more than 500,000 copies, to give him an indication of his support.

The book is largely a memoir of his vice presidency under President Bush, four years during which he was dogged by ridicule and a lightweight image despite his substantial political role within the White House.

Quayle previously has said he would make a decision on running for president this fall.

A spokesman at Quayle's office in Indianapolis had no comment Monday.

Quayle, a former U.S. senator from Indiana, became head of an investment company in Indianapolis after Bush lost his re-election bid.

Quayle plans to try out his conservative message in a keynote speech next month at the Christian Coalition annual conference in Norfolk, Va.

He also will speak Sept. 9 at the Commonwealth Club in San Francisco. That was the location of his famous "Murphy Brown" speech as vice president that caused an uproar when he attacked the popular TV sitcom character for having a baby out of wedlock.

Quayle also for the first time since leaving office will campaign on behalf of other Republicans. He plans to make a series of campaign appearances before the November elections, including for California Gov. Pete Wilson, and possibly for Virginia Senate candidate Oliver North, the former Reagan White House aide.

Exxon clean-up case in final stages

By ROSANNE PAGANO
Associated Press

ANCHORAGE
A lawyer seeking $15 billion in punitive damages from Exxon held up a copy of "All I Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten" and told jurors in closing arguments Monday to follow the bestseller's advice.

"When you hurt someone, you say you're sorry. When you make a mess, you clean it up," said attorney Brian O'Neill, who is suing Exxon Corp. on behalf of more than 10,000 Alaska natives, fishermen and landowners.

But Exxon lawyers told jurors the company already had learned a lesson from the 1989 tanker wreck that spilled nearly 11 million gallons of crude oil into Prince William Sound in the nation's worst oil spill.

Jurors in the federal civil trial got the case last Monday and deliberated about a half hour before retiring for the day. Deliberations were to resume Tuesday.

The jury already decided that Exxon and skipper Joseph Hazelwood were reckless in causing the spill and awarded commercial fishermen $286 million in damages to repay them for canceled fishing seasons and damage to fisheries. Hazelwood has been acquitted in state court of operating a tanker while drunk; that charge was dropped.

And in a settlement earlier this month, Exxon agreed to pay $20 million to about 3,500 Alaska natives who lost sources of traditional foods.

In arguing for punitive damages, O'Neill told the jury to apply simple rules such as those in Robert Fulghum's bestselling book.

But Exxon lawyer James Neal asked the jury to consider that the company already has been fined nearly $1 billion in the government's criminal case and spent more than $2 billion on cleanup.

O'Neill also urged a symbolic award of $1 against Hazelwood, a co-defendant in the trial and the only Exxon employee fired as a result of the spill.

In his closing statement Monday, Hazelwood's lawyer argued against even a symbolic award, saying that Hazelwood has lost his livelihood and would never sail again with the merchant marine.

Though the jury found Hazelwood and Exxon reckless in the trial's earlier phase, it is not required to assess punitive damages, which are intended to punish and deter wrongdoing.
Economic growth slowing, average income growing

By JAMES H. RUBIN

WASHINGTON The income of Americans rose moderately but more rapidly than consumption during July, the latest sign that economic growth appears to be slowing. The report was wel­comed by financial markets.

The Commerce Department said Monday that income climbed 0.5 percent in July, the third month in a row of just 0.2 percent.

Disposable income — income after taxes — also was up 0.5 percent last month. Both income and disposable income had risen a scant 0.1 percent in June.

Consumer spending, which represents two-thirds of the nation's economic activity, has advanced five of the last six months. But the July rise was less than the gains of 0.5 percent in June and 0.6 percent in May.

Income last fell in January, by 0.6 percent.

Analysts said the figures point to an economy that is shedding momentum, at least partly in reaction to a series of five boosts in short-term interest rates by the Federal Reserve.

"There is no magic happening here," said economist Paul Boltz of T. Rowe Price Associ­ates in Baltimore. "The bounceback in income was im­pressive. Income growth is eas­ily exceeding inflation."

"The July consumer spending data imply that the third quar­ter is off to a slow start," econom­ists for Merrill Lynch & Co. said in a statement. "Consumer spending . . . looks like it will rise at only around a 2 percent rate for the third quarter."

The Dow Jones industrial average gained nearly 18 points. Bond prices moved higher after the report, pushing interest rates down, but then fell back to steady to slightly lower levels.

The July figures for spending and income generally were in line with analysts' expectations. The combination of incomes and spending meant that American's savings rate — sav­ings as a percentage of dis­posable income — was 4.1 per­cent in June, up from a revised 3.7 percent the previous month.

The Commerce Department previously pegged the savings rate at 4 percent for June.

The government on Friday said the economy expanded at a 3.8 percent annual rate in the second three months of 1994. The smaller-than-expected fig­ures helped stocks rally last week. Many analysts predict the economy will grow at a rate of around 2.5 percent in the third quarter.

The Commerce Department said Monday that wages and salaries, the most closely watched component of income, increased $12.5 billion in July after a $5 billion rise in June.

Government wages and salaries rose $1.6 billion in July, after declining $1.5 billion the previous month due to a drop in buyouts for government employees who left work.

Spending on long-lasting items declined 1.1 percent in July to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $579 billion as car buying slowed.

"Consumers have become more cautious about making significant commitments such as cars," said Sung Won Sohn of Norwest Corp. in Minneapolis. "The trend has been established in both hous­ing and autos."

U.S. seeks supporting cast to bomb Haiti

By BARRY SCHWEED

WASHINGTON The Clinton administration's plan to force Haiti's military junta to quit the country will get a boost Tuesday when Caribbean foreign and defense minis­ters assemble in Jamaica with pledges to join a U.S.-led military coalition.

Several countries are expect­ed to announce they will con­tribute troops to the coalition that would move into Haiti to stabilize the country — whether or not Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras and his cohorts depart under pressure of another Roman democ­ration. The United States has been established in both hous­ing and autos.

Barbados, Jamaica and Belize have already agreed to con­tribute troops to the coalition, most of which will come from the United States. But in a strong sign of unity, about a half-dozen other countries are expected to step forward dur­ing a two-day summit in Jamaica meeting.

"The planning is proceeding and it is incorrect to say that the timetable has been set back because of Cuba," said a senior U.S. official, commenting on published reports that the tide of Cuban refugees has put on the back burner plans to restore elected Haitian Presi­dent Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

The U.S. delegation to Kingston, Jamaica, will be headed by Strobe Talbott, the deputy secretary of state, and John M. Deutch, the deputy de­fense secretary. Leon E. Panetta, an official of the National Secu­rity Council who reports to Vice President Al Gore, will be there as well.

Sunday's assassination in Port-au-Prince of the Rev. Jean-Marie Vincent, 49, who saved a priest's life sever­al years ago, underscored the violence that increased after a bloody army coup toppled Aristide Septem­ber 1991.

Antoine Joseph, former presi­dent of Haiti's lower house of par­liament, compared the coup­pent's killing to the assassina­tion of another Roman Catholic priest by thugs in the last months of the brutal Duvalier dictatorship in 1965.

"The first killing was an ill omen for the Duvalier dic­tatorship. This one is an ill omen for the de facto regime" that has run Haiti since Ars­tide's ouster, Joseph said.

Tests reveal alzheimer’s susceptibility
By MALCOLM RITTER

NEW YORK
Elderly people who take a series of standard psychological tests can learn whether they have high or low risk of getting Alzheimer’s or a similar disease, a study suggests.

The tests, given to outwardly healthy people, identified one group with an 85 percent rate of developing intellect-robbing dementia within four years, and another group who went on to get dementia at only a 5 percent rate over that time.

That means the tests can distinguish between those who should get a more detailed evaluation and make plans for their future care, and those who can be reassured they have little short-term risk, said lead author Dr. David Masur.

"If you score well on these tests, we can confidently say that over the next four years you probably won’t be getting dementia," he said. Dementia basically refers to significant declines in intellectual abilities such as memory and reasoning. Alzheimer’s disease is the most common kind of dementia.

Masur is an associate clinical professor of neurology at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine and the Montefiore Medical Center in New York. He and colleagues present the study in the August issue of the journal Neurology.

While other scientists are doing similar work, Masur’s result "is probably the best in terms of predictive value so far," said Dr. Leonard Berg, chairman of the Alzheimer’s Association Medical and Scientific Advisory Board.

Race issue brought-up in O.J. case
By MICHAEL FLEEMAN

LOS ANGELES
A racial undercurrent in the O.J. Simpson case surfaced in court Monday as defense lawyers attacked the credibility of the detective who found a bloody glove on Simpson’s estate by claiming he is racist.

The officer’s lawyer accused “desperate, snooping defense attorneys” of character assassination.

“The lives of two innocent human beings have been tragically taken in this matter. Now a third life is being destroyed day by day,” said Detective Mark Fuhrman’s attorney, Robert Tourtelot.

“What Mark is experiencing is a result of having been falsely accused of being a racist and a bad cop.”

Allegations flew during the heated hearing on what rights the defense has to police and military files on Fuhrman. The detective says he found a bloody glove outside Simpson’s house the day after the killings of Simpson’s ex-wife and a friend. The glove, Fuhrman said, appeared to be the mate of one found at the murder scene.

Superior Court Judge Lance Ito said he would rule on whether to make any Fuhrman records available after reading written arguments.

Surgeon General's son busted, sentenced for drugs

By BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK
A judge sentenced a son of U.S. Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders on Monday to 10 years in prison for selling one-eighth of an ounce of cocaine to an undercover policeman.

As Kevin Elders was led off to jail, the surgeon general fought back tears, while his father, Oliver, slammed his hands into a steel door in frustration.

Kevin Elders, 28, had claimed in prison for selling one-eighth ounce of drugs to a undercover policeman.

In a recent letter to Plegge, Mrs. Elders asked for leniency for her son and to "give our son and our family a second chance," the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette reported Monday. She won Senate confirmation Sept. 7, 1993.

Kevin Elders has acknowledged having a decade-long drug problem, including a three-year cocaine addiction. At his trial, Elders said his parents were aware of his drug problems, but that they never discussed it. "They really didn't know how bad it really is," he said.

The sale of the $275 worth of cocaine was Elders' first offense, but Circuit Judge John Plemge said the law required him to impose the minimum 10-year sentence. He could have been sentenced to life.

Elders' attorney, P.A. "Les" Hollingsworth, said he would appeal.

The judge set bond at $10,000. The prosecutor said it would be at least Tuesday before Elders was released.

Drug, cash, health study released

Los Angeles

Drug and alcohol treatment programs help reduce crime and lower health care costs, saving millions for taxpayers, says a study released Monday.

The study for the California Department of Alcohol and Drug Programs comes at a time of public skepticism over the benefits of such programs.

"Most people don't believe treatment works, and they're wrong. That's why a study like this is so important," said Alan Leasher, director of the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

The study estimated that $1.5 billion in savings resulted from the $205 million the state spent on treatment between October 1991 and September 1992.

Most of the savings came as a result of fewer crimes committed by those in treatment. The rest was largely due to a drop in health care expenses for the users.

The study based its conclusions on subjects' recollections of their behavior before and after they had undergone treatment. The authors said they took pains to avoid exaggerating savings.

The study found that use of crack cocaine, cocaine powder and amphetamines declined by almost half after treatment. Heroin use dropped by one-fifth and alcohol use by nearly one-third.

The study's authors were surprised to learn crack cocaine use could be treated so effectively.

"No one has really determined that previously," said Dean R. Gerstein of the University of Chicago's National Opinion Research Center, which conducted the study with Lewin-VII Inc. of Fairfax, Va.

Leasher and Andrew Mecca, director of the state Department of Alcohol and Drug Programs, said they would use the study, which cost $2 million, to persuade elected officials to continue to invest public money in treatment programs.

Experts called the study one of the most rigorous ever conducted on the subject of drug treatment.

Fleeing refugees create Cuban cash crunch

By ED MCCULLOUGH
Associated Press
HAVANA
Fidel Castro may not be openly troubled by the thousands of Cubans seeking this communist Caribbean island in anything that boasts. But he should worry about those who stay behind who have lost faith in the system.

In the capital, state stores of every kind are pillaged and their clerks work late into the night.

In the countryside, state rice fields at the end of summer lie untilled. Sugar planting is months behind schedule, reducing the vital harvest of the nation's biggest cash crop and almost certainly won't begin in January.

What farmers do grow and raise, they withhold from state stores, which pay very little. They sell high chickens, pineapples and strings of garlic for sale to passing motorists on roads leading out of the capital, Havana.

For Yankee dollars, not Cuban pesos.

Castro, who took power in a revolution in 1959, is neither unaware nor happy about such developments. SEE STORY

After noting sugar production plunged to 4 million tons this year from 7 million as recently as 1992, he asked rhetorically at the National Assembly on Thursday, Aug 3:

"Are we ourselves going to destroy the Revolution? Are we going to create the conditions that make it possible to save it?"

Since the collapse of the Soviet Union, the economic fortunes of this fertile, tropical island of 11 million have gone in one direction: down. And fast.

For years to come, you'd see as many cars as bicycles on the streets in this capital of faded elegance. Now, gas is too expensive and spare parts, unavailable. Brightly lit streets at night also are a thing of the past. Now, there are blackouts to conserve scarce fuel.

In the countryside, thousands of tractors and heavy transport vehicles are idled, parked in lots and rusting in the salty sea air and hot sun.

Castro is trying to improve the economy by selling state hotels to Spanish investors, and developing mineral resources with Canadian and European companies. But agriculture -- tobacco and coffee as well as sugar -- still is key.

"No matter how much tourism grows ... it's not enough," Castro told the Assembly.

State-controlled media make constant requests for Cubans to show the courage, discipline and initiative that allegedly once made this island 90 miles south of Florida a workers paradise. The response has been underwhelming.

"The only work here is farming and that doesn't interest me," said Pedro Hernandez, 18.

"My friends don't want to work in agriculture. We go to the river and fish, and soil what we catch. It's less work ... I'm getting out of here as quick as I can."

Gerardo Gonzalez, acting director of the state think tank America Studies Center, said, "This generation is extremely demanding ... Now it's not enough to have a pair of pants and a shirt, or even two." The decay cuts both ways. Cubans circumvent the state system with the government's apparent acquiescence. The government, meanwhile, has drastically reduced its commitment to Cubans.

Devaluation has shrunk salaries to the equivalent of several dollars a month. Taxi drivers, waiters and others working in the tourism industry pocket many times the pay of a surgeon, university professor or even a government minister.

Gas rations have been cut six-fold to a scant 2.5 gallons a month. Cubans receive a single roll of bread per day at state bakeries.

Sugar, rice, coffee and other staples have been cut back; meat, toothpaste, soap and cooking oil often aren't available at all.

Apart from the refugees, the other major signal that Cubans are restive was the sponta­neous demonstration and vandal­ism by several thousand people in downtown Havana Aug 5.

Coverage by state TV of Castro's appearance to calm the mob couldn't avoid airing shouts of "Abaje Cubanos!"

U.N. playing big role in Zaire-Rwanda talks

GOMA, Zaire
Zaire and Rwanda's Tutsi-led government held U.N.-spon­ sed talks Monday to find ways to persuade more than 1 million Hutu refugees to return to their homeland.

Filippo Grandi of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees met with Zairian offi­ cials and the Rwandan Patriotic Front, but there was no indication of a resolution without a resolution. They are to resume talks Tuesday.

The success of the talks, however, depends on support from Rwanda's former Hutu-led gov­ ernment and its refusal to return to the滔 Toasted.

Exiled Hutu leaders in Zaire who say they will ask refugees to go back home to Rwanda, a crowd gathered, they started accusing him of being a spy," U.N. spokesman Ray Wilkinson told reporters Monday.

Unaffected, he continued: "But try as politicians might to show the courage, discipline and initiative that allegedly once made this island 90 miles south of Florida a workers paradise. The response has been underwhelming."

Cold War remnants still stink

Despite the U.N. Security Council's resolution calling for the withdrawal of Soviet troops from eastern Europe, Russia will keep its expeditionary force in the GDR.

It was the latest killing in a campaign of intimidation begun earlier this summer, primarily in the Goma region, which is inhabited by 70,000 refugees, including 21,000 from Zaire.

"The only work here is farming and that doesn't interest me," said Pedro Hernandez, 18.

"My friends don't want to work in agriculture. We go to the river and fish, and soil what we catch. It's less work ... I'm getting out of here as quick as I can."

Gerardo Gonzalez, acting director of the state think tank America Studies Center, said, "This generation is extremely demanding ... Now it's not enough to have a pair of pants and a shirt, or even two." The decay cuts both ways. Cubans circumvent the state system with the government's apparent acquiescence. The government, meanwhile, has drastically reduced its commitment to Cubans.

Devaluation has shrunk salaries to the equivalent of several dollars a month. Taxi drivers, waiters and others working in the tourism industry pocket many times the pay of a surgeon, university professor or even a government minister.

Gas rations have been cut six­fold to a scant 2.5 gallons a month. Cubans receive a single roll of bread per day at state bakeries.

Sugar, rice, coffee and other staples have been cut back; meat, toothpaste, soap and cooking oil often aren't available at all.

Apart from the refugees, the other major signal that Cubans are restive was the sponta­neous demonstration and vandal­ism by several thousand people in downtown Havana Aug 5.

Coverage by state TV of Castro's appearance to calm the mob couldn't avoid airing shouts of "Abaje Cubanos!"

-- Down with Communism! Last week, when Castro addressed the nation about the refugee crisis, many Cubans admitted they turned off their sets.

Welcome to the University of Notre Dame. This university and try to tell you the impact on this community.

For the umpteen-hundredth time: Since Harvard. The ability to down

For the next four years the people around you are going to introduce you to this university and try to tell you that the best way to survive four years at the Catholic's Harvard.

As a recent graduate of Notre Dame, I would like to add my two cents to the discussion and give you some advice that Father Malloy and Coach Holtz might not have given you in their freshman years and not even be able to tell you. Notre Dame is not nearly as homogenous as it may seem to be at face value. There are plenty of people around you who could use a helping hand. The Center for Social Concerns has plenty of ways to make a difference in the community around you, from feeding the homeless to being a friend for someone who's lonely.

I. Take NOTHING that you are told at face value. There are plenty of people out there who have a good reason (self-preservation, reputation or just boredom) to lie to you. Ask a lot of questions, especially to those who have power over you. It is the only way to keep them semi-honest.

X. Always remember that someone out there loves you. That fact alone can get you through all-night study sessions, final exams, and any other crisis you may face during your Notre Dame experience.

What to eat when you don’t eat meat

A guide for the collegiate vegetarian

By RYAN GRABOW

Now that we’re all back from summer break, it’s time once again to do battle against the beer bellies, thick thighs, and big butts, we all work so hard to lose during the summer months. In addition to daily exercise, many of us decided to try our hand at being vegetarians to help lose weight and keep it off. Unfortunately, many of those who do turn to a vegetarian diet don’t realize the difficulties and dangers they may encounter due to their dietary change. Being a healthy vegetarian involves much more than simply eating salads for breakfast, lunch, and dinner.

Depending on an individual’s preference, there are three basic types of vegetarian diets: 1) The vegan diet, which eliminates meat and all animal by-products such as milk, milk products, and eggs 2) The lactovegetarian diet which includes milk and milk products in addition to plant foods, and 3) The lacto-ovo-vegetarian diet which includes milk, milk products, and eggs as well as plant foods. Instead of classifying themselves into one of these groups, many people are semi-vegetarians, occasionally eating fish and poultry but generally avoiding red meat.

If you do decide to follow one of these vegetarian diets, there are a few guidelines you must follow:

1) Make sure you get complete Protein in your diet. Animal proteins are complete and contain all the amino acids your body needs, while plant proteins are incomplete proteins, usually missing one or more essential amino acids needed to synthesize and utilize protein.

To overcome this problem you must eat a combination of plant protein foods or animal products containing complementary proteins, that together, supply you with all the essential amino acids you need to be healthy.

Some tasty examples include: beans and rice, lentils and rice, beans and corn tortillas, peanut butter on whole-wheat bread, peanut butter over banana bread or crackers, corn and lime beans, cereal with milk, macaroni and cheese, cheese sandwich, tofu and vegetables with rice, pasta and tomato sauce with Parmesan cheese, cheese-stuffed pasta (ravioli or tortellini), baked potatoes with yogurt, potato and egg salad, split-pea soup with whole-grain crackers, and rice pudding.

These are only a sampling of the combinations that can be created to insure you are receiving “complete protein” in your meals.

2) Guard against iron deficiency. For those of you who eat few or no animal products, you must be especially careful to get enough iron in your diet. This helps transport oxygen in your body and is involved in enzyme activity related to energy use.

The body absorbs iron from meat and other animal products much more efficiently than it does iron from plant sources such as dark green leafy vegetables, calcium-fortified foods, or take calcium supplements, to maintain a sufficient level of this mineral which plays an integral role in bone and teeth formation as well as muscle contraction and blood clotting.

Women who exercise excessively and get insufficient calcium in their diets are especially at risk for developing osteoporosis (a disease which decreases the bone mass of vertebrae, hips, and wrists making them more fragile and easy to break.)

Living healthy and eating healthy are goals all of us should have in our lives. Those of you here at Notre Dame who have chosen to follow a vegetarian diet are clearly trying to achieve these goals by eliminating meat and animal products from your diets.

In doing so, please also remember the guidelines you must follow in order to ensure the vegetarian diet you choose is indeed a safe and healthy one.

If you are considering becoming a vegetarian, feel your diet is not complete, or think you may need vitamin or mineral supplements, talk to your doctor. When Alumni Hall sophomore Jesse Thompson was asked to share his advice on how to overcome the procrastination syndrome, he responded, “Can I get back to you on that one?”
Mainieri the man for Irish baseball

It wasn’t the greatest day of Paul Mainieri’s life. In fact, it wasn’t even tops that week.

Notre Dame’s baseball coach got the gift of a new son the day before athletic director Dick Rosenthal announced Mainieri’s hiring on August 25. It was he and his wife Karen Ann’s fourth child, but first in eight years and an arrival which overshadowed his new job.

“This is one of the greatest days of my life, but not the greatest,” Mainieri said.

Notre Dame is hoping it is a pretty fine day for its baseball program. The Irish lured Mainieri away from the Air Force Academy where he averaged 26 wins per year after taking over a Falcon’s program which had averaged only 15 per season in the six years’ before.

“Everyone I talked to had Murphy high up on their list of the best young coaches in the country,” Rosenthal said.

It also helped that Dodger manager Tommy Lasorda gave Mainieri a rousing endorsement.

“He practically jumped through the telephone wires for 45 minutes,” said Rosenthal of his conversation with Lasorda.

“Had no but praise for Paul’s ability as a coach.”

That sort of praise convinced Notre Dame to bring Mainieri out for a visit. He got a tour of the campus, and Eck Stadium and only hours after landing in South Bend, was at a press conference to announce his hiring.

“There are very few jobs in the country that I would consider worth leaving the Air Force Academy,” Mainieri said.

One was Notre Dame, which like Murphy was always held in high regard in the Mainieri family.

“My mother recently dug out an essay I wrote in the third grade,” Mainieri said. “I was in a movie that the University’s move into the Big East Conference would only hurt it further.”

There were many reasons for Murphy to leave but also several points for staying in Notre Dame. It was a decision he came to after taking with Rosenthal and executive vice president Father E. William Beauchamp, and hearing the same response, “Do what’s best for you.”

That was chasing the man’s dream.

Drugs rock Olympic world

PARIS

The 100th anniversary of the modern Olympic movement is being overshadowed by the scourge of the modern sports world - drugs.

As more than 3,000 officials from around the globe began discussions Tuesday at the Centennial Olympic Congress, several doping cases were commanding attention:

- The International Olympic Committee medical chief confirmed that documents detailing several positive drug tests at the 1984 Los Angeles Olympics were destroyed before they could be acted upon.

- Horace Dove-E Edwin, the Sierra Leone sprinter who finished a surprising second behind Linford Christie in the 100 meters at the Commonwealth Games in Canada, tested positive for steroids and was stripped of his silver medal. He was the third athlete to test positive at the Games, while two English athletes were sent home for failing drug tests at earlier meets.

- The French cycling federation, accused four-time Tour de France winner Migel Indurain of taking a banned substance, but the IOC and the international cycling federation all didn’t solve anything.

- British diver Tony All was suspended for six months by the international swimming federation for refusing to take a random drug test.

The doping problem was not mentioned at Monday night’s opening ceremony at the Berry sports arena, where French Prime Minister Edouard Balladur declared that France intends to mount a bid to host the Summer Olympics in the year 2004.

But doping will be one of the many issues addressed during the four-day congress, which the four main themes are: The Olympic movement’s contribu- tion to modern society; the international sporting family; Galloway leads the way, Buckeyes overpower Bulldogs in Pigskin Classic

By BETH HARRIS
Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif.
Joey Galloway caught a record 67-yard touchdown pass and scored on a showy reverse Monday night as No. 20 Ohio State beat Fresno State 34-10 in the Kickoff Classic, the first game of the season.

Galloway, a wide receiver who is one of four returning starters on offense, starred in the second half after teammate Eddie George dominated the game's opening 30 minutes with 207 yards and 12 touchdowns.

George was impressive in his first game as the replacement for Raymond Harris, who graduated as Ohio State's leading rusher last season with 1,344 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Galloway, a 230-pound junior tailback, finished with 90 yards on 24 carries and the two touchdowns. He carried seven straight times on the Buckeyes' opening drive, culminating in a 1-yard plunge over the middle for his first touchdown.

The Buckeyes, 10-1-1 last season with a victory over Brigham Young in the Holiday Bowl, scored on three of their first four possessions.

On Ohio State's previous possession, Scott Terna set a game record with a 54-yard punt.

Hoying was forced to punt from the Ohio State 42.

George took over the ball, running on seven of Ohio State's next nine plays en route to another 1-yard charge up the middle and a 21-0 lead. Josh Jackson's 24-yard field goal increased Ohio State's lead to 24-7 in the opening minutes of the third quarter.

Galloway showed off his running ability on his second TD.

He started left, then reversed his field around the right end for an 8-yard score and a 31-10 lead at 12:00 in the third.

Jackson added a 33-yard field goal to make it 34-10 with 6:17 to play.

Fresno State, co-champion of the Western Athletic Conference last season, was no match for the Buckeyes in its first game against a Big Ten Conference opponent.

The Bulldogs, 6-4 last season, had to replace quarterback Trent Diller, a first-round draft pick of the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Clairborne, a red-shirt sophomore, completed a 1-yard pass to Michael Pittman for his first touchdown.

Hoying was 10-for-16 for 194 yards and the long touchdown.

Fresno State managed just three plays on its next possession before Jon Williams fumbled.

Culver, Bunch the latest victims of NFL salary cap

By DAVE GOLDBERG

Associated Press

Another high-priced player found himself without a job on Tuesday when Jarrod Bunch, the New York Giants' first-round draft pick in 1991, was waived. It had been a difficult summer for Bunch, a backfield who never endeared himself to coach Dan Reeves after rushing for 501 yards and averaging 4.8 yards a carry two seasons ago under Ray Handley. First, he held out while rehabilitating an injured hamstring in California, then reported to camp while the Giants were playing an exhibition game in Berlin. Finally, a hip injury landed him on the physically unable-to-perform list, from which he was waived on Monday. "It just looked like he was never going to get healthy to have him on the field," Reeves said. "There was also a little feeling on his part that this wasn't the best opportunity for him, so sometimes a change of scenery is good for everybody." Monday was a day for all 28 NFL teams to scan the waiver wire, looking to fill holes created by the $34.6 million salary cap that is primarily responsible for a lack of depth around the league. That was true from the Dallas Cowboys at the top of the Cincinnati Bengals at the bottom as well as with the rebuild-Associated Federal mediators to step in

With 10 percent of the sesson canceled because of the strike, federal mediators said they will meet separately Wednesday with baseball players and owners.

Union head Donald Fehr and management Richard Bavitch didn't have any new ideas
Monday. Both said the positions of their sides hadn't changed, and Bavitch, choosing his words carefully, hinted strongly that owners are prepared to sacrifice the World Series in order to gain the salary cap they want.

"I think the owners want to do everything humanly possible to save the postseason," Bavitch said during a telephone conference call with reporters.
"But they also want to save the mediators wouldn't hold a

"The owners came back having the impression that the players still thought the owners would fold," Bavitch said.

Bavitch still said he had trouble believing the stoppage will continue into next season.
Fehr has said the strike will continue "as long as it takes"
without new ideas
"We've played with the notion but not seriously," he said. "Either they want to make a deal or they don't want a deal.
We'll find out soon enough.
"It doesn't appear they want to make a deal."

Bavitch spoke with John Callahan Wells, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, and Fehr spoke with Brian Flores, an assistant to Wells. Flores said
the mediators wouldn't hold a meeting until they thought there could be progress.

"I'm not prepared to stay indefinitely, but I can't believe that's any reason for it," he said, "because it was

Sophomore Tom Krug and freshman Leon Blunt have been taking most of the snaps in Powlus' absence. A knee bruise kept Blunt out of practice Monday, leaving Krug alone under center.

"Tom Krug has made a lot of progress and obviously he's gotten a lot of reps," Holtz said. "I have a lot of optimism for his future."

But it's Powlus' immediate future that concerns Holtz the most.

Myths about the phenom's ability have grown to unprecedented proportions since his startling charge toward a starting spot a year ago, which ended when he broke his clavicle in the final preseason scrimmage.

Holtz hasn't said anything publicly to downplay the projections. But he remains unsure of Powlus' ability to handle game pressure after two weeks of abbreviated activity.

"I want (Powlus) to be the quarterback, but I'm not going to play him if he's not ready," Holtz said, quickly adding, "If anybody can do it with limited practice time, Ron Powlus can."

Two more Seminole suspensions, still questions linger

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.

Florida State officials on Monday ruled two more players ineligible for Saturday’s season opener against Virginia.

Investigators said offensive lineman Marcus Long could have been permanently banned if he hadn’t acknowledged his presence at a dinner paid for by a prospective agent.

Long, a 320-pound sophomore guard, was declared ineligible by the NCAA regulations. The NCAA filed suit last week seeking to void a state law that interferes with its ability to rule on eligibility questions in the state of Florida.

The suit is not settled by the latest suspensions.

Florida St. starting offensive tackle Forest Conoly, shown here last season at Notre Dame, was one of two more FSU players suspended for illegal contact with an agent. More allegations still swirl in Tallahassee.

qualities that Dick brought to the job," Reverend E. William Beauchamp, C.S.C., executive vice-president said at the August 1 press conference.

"He understands (Notre Dame), has an appreciation for the school and is committed to the University and its athletic program. He has credentials as an announcer and also has served the government in a diplomatic role."

Wadsworth, who is a 1966 graduate of Notre Dame and a member of the Irish football team, has been the Canadian Ambassador to Ireland since 1989. He has also been considered to fill the position of athletic director since 1987, and has greatly improved the status of the university's Olympic sports.

His list of accomplishments include engineering a deal with NBC Sports to televise all Notre Dame home football games through the year 2000 and, most recently, aligning the majority of Notre Dame sports with the Big East, one of the nation's most prestigious conferences.

"The last seven years have been one of the more enjoyable times in my life," Rosenthal said. "It's a dream come true to serve a university that, a) you love, and b) you admire and is in lockstep with the ideals of our church and our country."

Rosenthal, 62, ranks third on the tenure list of all athletic directors, behind only legends Edward "Moose" Krause and Knute Rockne. His services will not be forgotten.

"Most importantly and much to Dick's credit, what has been uppermost in the athletic program and the University of Notre Dame is the way it has been administered and the role it plays in our educational mission," Beauchamp said.

"Dick has not only maintained that, but it has risen to a new level. We're very proud of that."

the Irish men's basketball program, which has stagnated in an independent's daze for the last several years.

"Now we have some more ammunition with which to pull the trigger," Maclod said, displaying his excitement and also his excellent grammar. "Being an independent is a drawback in recruiting."

All but five Irish athletic programs will compete in the Big East.

Football, fencing, lacrosse and women's golf will have an independent's daze for the NCAA sponsor. "The Big East enjoys an automatic bid (to the NCAA Tournament) in all of the NCAA sports that they sponsor."

That has been a problem, most notably in baseball and women's basketball, teams that have been denied tournament berths in the past because of the weak conference slates.

Many other Irish sports have thrived despite the lackluster MCC. Volleyball and the men's and women's soccer and cross country teams have been pushing the nation's best for the first time ever.

The higher-profile of the Big East will only increase their exposure.

But it's the men's basketball team that needs the biggest re-cus-tomization.

MacLeod is breathing easier already.

"I would hope this gives us a chance to win the national championship," he said. "I know that's not realistic at this point, but in three to five years, who knows?"
ANN ARBOR, Michigan.

Fifth-ranked Michigan, already reeling from the loss of tailback Tyrone Wheatley for its first few games, will also start the season without wide receiver Walter Smith.

Smith, one of the Wolverines' co-captains, will probably miss the team's first three games because of a knee injury suffered in practice Friday, Michigan coach Gary Moeller said Monday.

Moeller said Smith will undergo arthroscopic surgery this week with the hope he could return in time for the start of the Big Ten season on Oct. 1 at Iowa.

"We're losing a very strong competitor that we need out there," Moeller said. "Walter Smith's presence will always be felt because of the kind of guy he has been and the way he's played the game."

"Hopefully it's going to be for a short period of time. Hopefully they can scope him and we'll have him back after a couple of weeks of rehabilitation."

The Wolverines lost Wheatley last week to a shoulder injury. Both Wheatley and Smith were injured during contact practice drills. Smith's injury will quite likely fuel a fire of fan controversy ignited when Wheatley got hurt that Moeller puts his top players in peril with preseason contact work.

"You just don't go out and play the game," Moeller said. "And if your reactions aren't resharpened every year and all those things, you put a guy in position where they don't learn to protect themselves out there."

Moeller also said Wheatley had asked for more practice contact than the Wolverine coaching staff had planned for him. "It is not that we put them in there all the time; we never have," he said. "In Wheatley's case he's played less than he ever did, and that's probably the way it should be."

Arm-ageddon?

By JASON KELLY
Associate Sports Editor

Tendonitis in his right arm has limited the sophomore's practice time over the last two weeks. And some people—including head coach Lou Holtz—wondered whether he would be ready for his scheduled debut.

"He may not play (against Northwestern). I'm serious," Holtz said. "There's no way in the world I'm going to put him out there if he's not adequately prepared. That's the greatest disservice you can do to a player."

Powlus was limited to about 30 passes in Monday's practice and figures to have similar limitations today and Wednesday. Holtz said his quarterbacks routinely throw almost twice that many in a normal session.

But Powlus expects to be in the starting lineup Saturday, though he's unlikely to throw that many passes then.

"It's just a sore arm," he said with a sheepish grin. "It's not an uncommon thing for me. I'll be ready to play and I'll be ready to start. Obviously, that's up to Coach Holtz."

Powlus attributes his injury to overuse, nothing more. Throwing countless passes during the first two weeks of two-a-day sessions took a toll on his arm. He was examined by two doctors.

Fallout from his latest malady mushroomed over the land, raising questions about his durability and sending his coach in search of shelter.

But Notre Dame quarterback Ron Powlus said Monday that he's prepared to play in Saturday's season opener against Northwestern.

Baseball coach leaves to take head post at Arizona State

By GEORGE DOHRMANN

"To college baseball this (job) is Notre Dame football," Murphy said. "I don't think I could go to a more established program than Arizona State."

Notre Dame Athletic Director Dick Rosenthal tagged Paul Mainieri, former coach at Air Force, as Murphy's replacement. He comes bursting with enthusiasm, but looking like a drop of water hoping to fill a very large bucket.

Murphy took the Irish program to a level no one could have foreseen when he first came bursting with enthusiasm, but looking like a drop of water hoping to fill a very large bucket.

Murphy took the Irish program to a level no one could have foreseen when he first came to South Bend as a teenager. He'd trudge home from recruiting trips, arms full of suitcases and samples, with nothing to show for his weeks on the road.

MacLeod has visions of a future when he could walk into a town and every prospect would know his name. But that was just a delusion. Until now.

In July, Notre Dame announced plans to join the Big East Conference. He was examined by two doctors.

Rosenthal resigns

By MIKE NOBRUT

The Irish sports marathon will still continue, but the baton is about to be passed.

Athletic director Dick Rosenthal has decided to end his leg of the run, announcing his retirement, effective August 1, 1995. The announcement was made on August 1, 1994, exactly one year prior to his planned departure.

Now it's up to Michael Wadsworth to make sure that the exchange is a clean one.
