U.S. News and World Report's annual "America's Best Colleges" survey rates Notre Dame as 19th among national colleges and universities. The 1992 poll moved the University up six places from last year's 25th rating.

"The movement from one position to another is mainly a recognition," said Dennis Moore, director of public relations and information. "We belong in the top 25, but when it comes to decide who is 15th or 18th or 20th, there is a real question about how you rank such radcially different schools."

In order to simplify the survey, this year the magazine divided others. The survey statistics are compiled from measurements of the same categories of academic reputation, student selectivity, fincial resources, graduation rate, and student satisfaction.

cluding 15 schools which award 60 percent of their degrees in occupational, technical, and professional fields.

Notre Dame's eight position to another is mainly a question about who is 15th or 18th or 20th. According to Joel Cooper, Assistant Dean of the College of Liberal Arts, "Notre Dame needs to create a resource that is linked to the Internet."

Because of poor publicity, many students are not aware of Notre Dame's computer capabilities.

"There is a real question about our ability to attract top students with escential communication links that can take students and faculty anywhere in the world in a

Any one who has ever looked up their schedule in the clusters has used the Gopher. New sections and listings are being added daily." Mosaic is a new addition to the Notre Dame software cluster. It includes text, graphics, audio, and video elements. Mosaic hooks onto the World Wide Web (WWW) which is an extension of the Internet.

On the fast lane of the information superhighway

By DAVE TYLER

Notre Dame is pulling into the fast lane of the information superhighway. And it's not the Indians Toll Road. The University of Notre Dame is now connected to a vast, internationally networked world of information and resources that can take students and faculty anywhere in the world in a matter of seconds. Called "The Internet," this network is not a physical set of phone lines, fiber optic cables and sateltiles, but a linked set of computer networks that can transmit sound, text, and images across continents.

As part of the University's five year Computing Initiative, a campus network was established. This network not only allows students access to on-campus computing facilities, but affords them connections to Information Superhighway as well. Once connected, the possibilities are endless.

"There's a virtually limitless source of knowledge and services right at your finger tips," said Joel Cooper Assistant Director of Networking Services for Notre Dame's Office of University Computing.

Wandering on to this Highway has never been easier. The "Super Exec" is the user's guide to the Internet. The TurboGopher system gives a user control of a very powerful, easy to use tool. By using the program to open another gopher users can look up addresses and phone numbers, locate research data, or read a newspaper on a computer screen.
Being a twin isn’t always easy. People often mistake me for Kathy, for me and vice-versa. Really, it’s not as simple as dress the same anymore. (Although Mom actually made matching clothes for us until I hit the stubborn age of six.) We aren’t as similar in appearance as when we were little tykes and Dad came up with the idea to tie a small ribbon around our ankle in order to tell us apart. For a time when I was little, I was worried that I wasn’t myself. All it would have taken was a coughing fit. For them to forget who was who. The fact that Mom often inadvertently forgot Kathy’s real name and called her Kathy didn’t help to ease my fears either.

Unlike our older sister Julie, who for ten months ruled supreme with her innumerable amount of baby pictures, Kathy and I are rarely shown apart in our own baby photos. We’re different, in ways we wanted to change, and animosity often ruled between us. While she obsessed with learning French and her unique communicative system often drove our relationship far from perfect, I realized now that everything wasn’t all bad. We understand each other so perfectly that Rodney King pay $237,958 in legal fees to the Los Angeles Police Department, the Los Angeles County Superior Court and the Los Angeles County District Attorney. The $523,958 in legal fees to the Los Angeles Police Department and the Los Angeles County Superior Court were joint legal fees between those two entities. King is required to pay $523,958 to the Los Angeles County Superior Court and the Los Angeles County District Attorney, which is the amount of the fine with them. BOG hopes to renovate Haggar

By EMILY RUFFNER
News Writer

Renovating Haggar College Center into a more student-used center is a strong focus of Board of Governance (BOG) this semester.

"We're going to do some small," claims Jennifer Ligda, Board of Governance president, and campus commissioner Julie Gangloff.

"We need to use what we have now if we are going to hope for anything more," said sophomore Emily Miller.

Student surveys will be circulating in the next few weeks for students to voice their opinions.

"When we propose something the students have a say in it," said Melissa Peters, vice president for Academic Affairs.

Other BOG news:

• A campus wide calendar will soon be placed in Haggar showing every aspect of SMC student activities. This calendar will be located between the travel agency and the bank.
• An additional Freshman News feature this year is a Student Survey. Election Information meeting will be held 7:30 p.m. this Thursday for those interested in running for class offices.
• Election dates will be pushed back to Tuesday, October 4, with run-offs October 6 if needed.
• The Sophomore Class Mass is this Sunday and their dance will be October 14. The Junior Class Toga Party is scheduled for October 7, and the seniors are working on Senior Dads’ Weekend coming up in November.

Weekend Wheels in jeopardy

By EDWARD IMBUS
News Writer

The Weekend Wheels program is in serious peril, due to misuse by students, a lack of student involvement, and an abrupt change of schedule.

At the Campus Life Council (CLC) meeting last night, Hall Presidents Council (HPC) President Rich Palermo said that the HPC was "seriously considering whether or not we should cancel this program and pursue other alternatives" to help deter and avoid drunk driving.

The program, which has a United Limo Bus go from various local bars to certain off-campus apartment complexes and campus, costs approximately $10,000 for the bus and $2,000 for advertising, according to Palermo.

Students, however, were allegedly using the bus to go from campus to the bars, which violated a rule the Office of Student Life placed on the program in order to avoid liability.

Palermo also noted that patronage has been significantly low in the program from the onset. Last Saturday, only four riders used the bus.

The program, however, was fully funded by HPC last year by diverting funds that would have otherwise gone to the dorms, said Hillary Bonenberger, HPC co-president. However, after HPC had advertising for this year printed, United Limo proposed another schedule in accordance with OSA directives that would have nullified the advertising.

Dave Hulting, student body president and chairman of the CLC, also asked for agenda ideas to be addressed over the year.

He especially encouraged the faculty and staff on the Council to propose ideas over the year, so that not all the ideas would be from students, as it reportedly had been in previous years.

Such ideas included:
• Offering input in the review of the Notre Dame smoking policy, which is for review this year.
• Reviewing the plans for the new dorms which will be built when Grace is converted to office space in order to offer ideas and ensure it has a decent amount of recreational space outdoors and 24 hour space indoors.
• Discussing the campus housing policy of putting dorm rooms back in their original conditions just prior to finals, and
• Examining the possibility of using meal cards to get food at The Huddle or elsewhere in LaFortune.

This issue has been raised before, and is being reviewed by OSA after tentative consent from the Office of Business Affairs, according to the presidents of the CLC.

Bridget Conley, manager of the Student Union Board, also announced that The Huddle and Fast Break convenience store are open until 3 a.m. every day, a trial run to the end of last year, and that the LaFortune Computer Cluster is open at nights until 2 a.m. except on Friday and Saturday.

of the Internet. "Mosaic takes the Internet experience one step further, into a more interactive dimension," said Miller. The program is organized by database and by topic, so a user can locate a particular field of interest, and find a wealth of information on it. "What we have are storefronts where a user can use services and gather information," Cooper said. Those storefronts include a wide variety of shopping possibilities. The University itself has initiated or joined WWW projects. One is the Gutenberg project, an endeavor aimed at converting classic written texts to electronic media. Notre Dame's contribution has included transferring its impressionistic Dante collection to Mosaic. Observers can actually listen and watch and listen as the astronauts orbit earth and communicate with mission control. Even over such vast distances, the video, and sound are crisp, clear, and almost instantaneous. The broadcasts are available any time day, or night.

To Cooper, availability is the biggest advantage of Notre Dame's Internet connections. "A student or professor can look up information, or send mail or retrieve data at any time of day or night. There are no hours or return dates. The Internet is truly global, there are no owners, and no fees. A user is completely free to use the service in a manner that will make him or her most productive," he noted.

Cooper compares having Internet to having premium cable. "You get the full range of services," he said. "New channels are coming on line all the time, new uses are being developed." Notre Dame students and faculty now have a great remote right at their fingertips. Many around the world have an image of Catholic education and technology being mutually exclusive. Not necessarily so at this University, says Cooper. "Notre Dame has decided that it wants to be a national catholic research and teaching university. Having the Internet available twenty four hours a day is a big step in that direction."

strong language skills, it is a logical stepping stone to the Fulbright. "Pick a language, pick a program, including any Notre Dame affiliated program, and apply," he said. According to McAdams, the NSP is a flexible program. There are no language prerequisites. All winners are guaranteed some amount of monetary award, but the scholarship may not be used for study in any Western European countries.

The program was announced last December with the first application deadline in February. With little time for preparation, Notre Dame still managed to produce a winner.

Caroline Rich won two all expense paid awards which will enable her to study in Mexico and Chile this year. "This will be a high profile award, and Notre Dame students are sure to be big winners," McAdams said.

SAB plans 'fun and excitement’

By BECKY MAVERNIK

Fun and excitement are the goals for the Saint Mary’s Student Activities Board (SAB) which planned a number of activities for this semester. Last night at their second meeting of the year, according to SAB coordinator, Audrey Camp. Comedy Crack-Ups is scheduled for this Friday night in Haggar Parlor at 9 o’clock. Titled “Saturday Morning Live”, it will feature many sketches from the 70’s.

“We’re very excited about this event as it will be an impromptu show with plays on cartoons that were very popular during the 70’s”, stated assistant director of student activities Marlene Johnson. SAB hopes for a large turnout, as there were over 100 people at the same event last year. “It’s after the pep rally, so hopefully it can draw a large crowd,” said Johnson.

A potluck dinner running this week is also sponsored by SAB, which is running in Haggar through Thursday.

The Student Activities Board is also planning Foot Stompin’ Thursday, which will take place on October 13.

The group Anarillo Star will have their music and will teach line dancing to everyone, according to special events chairperson Jessica Zigmund.

“A lot of people expressed an interest in this type of event, so it should be a lot of fun,” said Zigmund. More information on this event will be available soon.

Plans of a hypnotist performing at Saint Mary’s next semester have been put off due to the fact that Notre Dame is planning to have one perform in November.

“This just wouldn’t be in our best interest to have him perform in November,” said Zigmund. “But we’re going to plan it for next semester, tentatively for the end of January.”

Other events SAB is planning:

- A Halloween event for the campus, but details will be discussed at future meetings.
- A band performing once a month, possibly bringing Global Village back.
- Giving Christmas lights put on the Saint Mary’s Campus.
- A Wacky Olympics in the winter.
- A Blizzard of Bucks on February 9 at 7:30 in Carroll Hall.

Haiti accord brings relief, praise for U.S.

Associated Press

LONDON—Foreign governments expressed relief Monday at the last-minute deal that averted a U.S. invasion of Haiti, and some praised President Clinton for being prepared to use force.

"We always favored a peaceful solution and recognized military intervention as a last resort," said Prime Minister P.J. Patterson of Jamaica, one of five Caribbean nations contributing to the 17-nation force that would have taken part in an invasion.

The Jamaican government has always insisted that a satisfactory resolution of the Haitian crisis must be based on the return of the constitutionally elected government of President Jean-Bertrand Aristide," Patterson said.

Britain, ready to put a warship under U.S. command for the invasion, said the agreement by Haiti's military dictators to relinquish power by Oct. 15 was "excellent news" provided the junta sticks to it.

"It shows that force of international opinion and persistence by the United States can produce a highly satisfactory result," said British Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd, who is visiting Japan.

"Of course, it is only the beginning..." Dole: Chances for reform dead in '94

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL

Associated Press

WASHINGTON—Health reform appears dead for this session of Congress, Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole said Monday.

"Time is running out. I don't see anything happening this year," Dole told the Independent Institute. "Maybe next year we'll have a more realistic approach to health care."

Even as Dole pronounced a requiem for reform, a bloc of Senate moderates was still haggling on a possible compromise. But even some moderates seemed to be looking to next year.

Dole said of the "mainstream" group led by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., "I can tell you, if they bring out some complicated bill, it's not going to go anywhere."

Chafee and others were haggling later with Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell to discuss their attempt to put together a bill that could command at least 60 votes.

Mitchell said he and Dole had a brief private exchange about health reform and needed to talk further.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, last week called for the Chafee group to give up, saying its approach would harm Medicare and Medicaid.

But Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., the top Republican on Finance, said, "It would be possible still to pass a very skinny bill. But it would be skinnier than the 'mainstream' plan."

Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., said the moderates were encouraged by preliminary Congressional Budget Office figures indicating their plan could cut the deficit by $56 billion over a decade and boost coverage to 93 percent or 94 percent. It is built around subsidies, market reforms and changes in deductibility of health expenses.

They are still trying to work out differences with Mitchell over drug coverage for the elderly, long-term care and what size companies could self insure, he said.

"It was a big help on raising awareness of us on campus, especially since we are a small, less well known agency," said Director Kathy Schroeder, who is also a member of the Notre Dame undergraduate class of 1978 and graduate class of 1984.

Schroeder expects the publicity generated by the luncheon to bring in additional volunteers.

Functioning as a "community center" for women and children, the House was founded four years ago by the Episcopal Diocese of Northern Indiana and is open Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

In addition to serving lunch to 25-45 persons a day, the House has laundry facilities, a children's play area, and also hosts self esteem and spiritual reflection groups for guests.

"It's a place where basic needs are met in a community setting," said Schroeder. "Women here get a sense of ownership, as it is co-owned and run by the guests and volunteers. They feel a real part of the place."

A quilt that was put together by the guests of St. Mary's House will be on display during Thursday's luncheon.

Designed and overseen by St. Mary's graduate Mary Fran Brandenburger, the quilt is also the result of a joint grant from Very Special Arts Indiana and the Michiana Arts and Sciences Council.

Dates of additional Notre Dame luncheons for the semester are as follows: October 20, November 17, and December 8.

"The rankings means that a lot of people from other institutions recognize the quality of education at Saint Mary's," Hickey said.

"The best kept secret about just how good Saint Mary's really is finally out."
Ethics in the workplace: Morals vs. material wealth

As a student of the law, I am frequently exposed to lawyer jokes. I am not particularly offended by them; in fact I find many of them quite amusing. They do, however, prompt me to take a closer look at the profession I am entering and to question why it has become laden with so many negative stereotypes.

A case I had occasion to work on exemplifies this summer's current predisposition: to view a trial with a trial attorney with a conundrum for my thoughts on the subject. And I arrived at the conclusion that yes, there certainly are attorneys who sincerely care about the people with whom they deal and are not aptly referred to as "sharks." It is the latter sort of lawyer that I hope to become.

In the case that inspired this article, we represented the estate of a man who fell to his death on a jobsite. The defendants included several large companies. Although I do not feel at liberty to discuss the case in great detail, what I can say is that the man's death was a tragic one; it was the result of something else — to be an apt closing: The lid is closed on that soul's life.

I was a part of a much different kind of trial; it was a trial of our own. On the rare occasions when they acknowledged that the case was, at bottom, about the loss of a human life, it was primarily in an attempt to set a dollar amount in it — and a low one at that. They questioned for example, how much the family had to spend on household repairs that Tony would have done if alive. They inquired as to the cost of medications and counseling the family underwent as a result of Tony's death. And they were very curious about the cost of his funeral and who paid for it. All of this is fine from a purely legal perspective, but I found it hard to ignore the intangibles like compassion and empathy that my position in this case would conflict with mine, I am sure that I would not suggest that no one should defend people like our opponents in the Dendor case. Morality is a very personal thing and, while such representations would conflict with mine, I am sure that it works just fine for others. I only suggest that law students — indeed, every one, no matter what profession they choose to enter — consider the moral issues involved. I have done so and have reached the conclusion that I could not in good faith work for a firm like the one representing the companies sued by Tony Dendor's estate. Sure, I could make a lot of money and I won't pretend that I would not like that, but my reason for going to law school was to help individuals with real problems, who truly need my assistance. I might have a harder time paying off my loans than my classmates who take the corporate route, but I will be able to say with pride that I did not have to sacrifice my ethics for my career, and when I hear a lawyer joke (as I often will), I can rest assured that it is not targeted at people like me.

Of course there is a much more fundamental reason for examining the ethics of one's profession than avoiding negative stereotypes, and it involves the benefit one derives from his work. Money and material wealth will not accompany us to our afterlives. But I firmly believe that intangibles like compassion and empathy will. Those of us who have faith in God do not doubt believe that He cares more about whether we help our brothers and sisters than whether we make a lot of money.

This brings me to another reason I felt so close to Tony Dendor. He, like myself, was an avid poet. I find the following — an excerpt from a poem he composed the very month he passed away — to be an apt closing: The lid is closed on that soul's life. Only to be laid next to countless men! And as for him, what of his struggle and strife? He'll be reabsorbed and live again.

Kirsten Dunne, ND '92, is currently a third-year law student.

The Radiation Building: An inside look

By PATRICK STONE LAKE

The Observer/Brien Galvin

Last week, a little apprehensively, I walked up to the mysterious Radiation Building. It began as I headed across the quadrangle to the Radiation Building at 11:45 a.m. last Thursday during fall quarter. It was a beautiful South Bend summer day, the kind of day that God usually saves for JPN, still a bit shabby about changing into a building which I felt uncomfortable looking at. There was a tinge of O'Shaug and the reflection pool like some pre-fab late seventies disco Death Star, frightfully nondescript and thoroughly intimidating. I was prepared, however. I wore my steel toed boots and glow-in-the-dark Halloween boxers.

Last week, a little apprehensively, I walked up to the mysterious Radiation Building. It began as I headed across the quadrangle to the Radiation Building at 11:45 a.m. last Thursday during fall quarter. It was a beautiful South Bend summer day, the kind of day that God usually saves for JPN, still a bit shabby about changing into a building which I felt uncomfortable looking at. There was a tinge of O'Shaug and the reflection pool like some pre-fab late seventies disco Death Star, frightfully nondescript and thoroughly intimidating. I was prepared, however. I wore my steel toed boots and glow-in-the-dark Halloween boxers.

I entered the building with relative ease. I had to push the door, and spoke to the receptionist. She told me that the assistant director, John Bentley, would be there in a minute. A plaque on the wall told me that the building had opened in 1963 under JFK, and was in running order by the U.S. Department of Energy. Interesting. As I waited for Bentley, I imagined a wild-eyed wispy-haired lab-coated whistleblower. Doc Brown flies to the Future, burning through the door screaming one point twenty one jiggawatts! Instead he shook up on me, camouflaged in a yellow golf shirt and blue jeans, and made sure Birkenstocks. He was plethora sentiments, and during the next hour he politely put down each one of my delusions. However as a concession to my overactive imagination I thought of him as Doc for the whole tour.

So Doc eased my fears and led me down the legendary basements explaining that the main task of the lab is Radiation Chemistry, which basically involves the instigation of chemical reactions between low level radiation and the reactants. This radiation is generated in four forms in the lab, and Doc showed me each in turn. First was the Electron Linear Accelerator, which somehow produces seven million ev's which is apparently strong enough to ionize anything short of a dining hall egg roll. I witnessed an experiment involving the ELA during which he looked at the green phosphors bouncing on the screen and said approvingly, "That looks like a nice beam." Sure, Doc.

Next we went to the Van Der Graaf generator. Painted like a giant football and signed by Dan Devine and his team, it specializes in electrostatic research. Here the demenistons

Du Lac may outlaw it and parietals can try to prevent it, but no one can deny that sex is a universal need. A person's sexual outlet may change over the course of their life, and can be affected by external factors such as the presence or absence of a partner, changing hormone levels, or external pressures. However, the ultimate decision to engage in sexual activity should always be made by the individual themselves, with the goal of protecting their own physical and emotional well-being.

Birth control—what works?

As you may know most non-prescription methods of birth control prevent pregnancies in one of two ways: blocking the sperm's route to the egg or killing the sperm once it enters the vagina. Most drug stores have a variety of contraceptives that fall into one or both of these categories.

Condoms

Condoms are one of the most popular methods of contraception among both men and women. They come in various colors and sizes, and can be made from a variety of materials such as latex or plastic. Condoms work by preventing sperm from entering the vagina and blocking the opening to the cervix. Some condoms also contain spermicides, which can further reduce the risk of pregnancy.

Birth control pills

Birth control pills are a common form of contraception among women. These pills contain hormones that prevent ovulation, thickening the cervical mucus to block sperm from entering the uterus. They can also have a variety of side effects, such as nausea, vomiting, and headaches.

Intrauterine devices

Intrauterine devices (IUDs) are small, T-shaped devices that are inserted into the uterus by a healthcare provider. IUDs work by preventing sperm from reaching the egg or by preventing the egg from being released from the ovary. IUDs are highly effective, with a failure rate of less than 1% if used correctly.

Sterilization

Sterilization is a permanent form of birth control that involves blocking the fallopian tubes in women or the vas deferens in men. This prevents sperm or eggs from reaching the uterus. Sterilization can be done surgically or with a less invasive method such as a permanent birth control implant.

While there are many options for birth control, it is important to choose a method that is right for you and your lifestyle. It is also important to speak with a healthcare provider to discuss your options and ensure that you are using the method correctly.

For any student who should become pregnant while enrolled at Notre Dame, the University offers assistance through the Office of Student Affairs, Campus Ministry, University Counseling Center, and University Health Services. Saint Mary's Health Center also assists women in obtaining pregnancy and STD testing through private appointments, maintaining the anonymity of the student.

In addition, Saint Mary's College Counseling Center, prenatal care, nutrition counseling, and surgical and pastoral counseling counseling to a pregnant student through the Student Affairs and Residential Life Department and Career Development. Upset-minded Detroit dumps Dallas with overtime field-goal, 20-17

BY DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press

IRVING, Texas
Jason Hanson, who had two kicks blocked by Leon Lett late in the game, made a 44-yard field goal with 27 seconds left in overtime Monday night to send the Detroit Lions past Dallas 20-17, ending the Cowboys' 10-game winning streak.

It was the first loss for the Super Bowl champions since last Thanksgiving when a blunder by Lett on a blocked field goal attempt allowed the Miami Dolphins to win in the snow at Texas Stadium.

Hanson made his second overtime field goal of the year. He had a 37-yarder against Atlanta in the first game of the season.

Detroit got the ball back with 1:55 left in overtime when Pat Swilling sacked Troy Aikman and Broderick Thomas recovered a fumble — the second for Dallas in overtime.

After a 17-yard pass to Brett Perriman and three unsuccessful running plays, Hanson put the winner just inside the right goal post.

Barry Sanders rushed 40 times for 194 yards and Emmitt Smith carried 29 times for 143 yards in a matchup of two of the NFL's most prolific backs.

Scott Mitchell connected on 13 of 27 passes for 127 yards and two TDs, while Aikman hit 26 of 39 passes for 223 yards and one score.

In the end, though, it came down to Detroit's kicking game and Lett's outstretched arms.

At the end of regulation, Hanson's 57-yard attempt was blocked by Lett, and the lineman knocked down a 51-yard attempt 5 1/2 minutes into overtime.

But Lett was not in position to block the game-winner as the ball sailed over the other end of the Cowboys' defensive line.

Instead, the loss gave Barry Switzer his first loss as coach of the Cowboys and kept Lett from finally being a hero. The lineman is best known for fumbling away a sure touchdown in the 1993 Super Bowl and his gaffe against Miami last Thanksgiving when he touched a blocked kick instead of leaving it alone. Lett didn't maintain control of the ball, Miami recovered and kicked a field goal to win.

The Cowboys trailed for most of the game, but they overcame a 10-point deficit and tied it 17-17 with 4:09 to play in regulation on Smith's 6-yard touchdown run to cap 59-yard drive. The drive started at the Dallas 41 after Hanson missed from 51 yards.

Mitchell burned the Cowboys with two clutch passes to Herman Moore that helped the Lions open a 17-7 lead midway through the third period. Mitchell hit Moore with a 25-yard pass on fourth-and-3 from the Dallas 36, then connected with him on a 9-yard touchdown pass on third-and-9.

Five NFL unbeatens remain including Chargers and Joe Montana-led Chiefs

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press

It has been vintage Joe Montana thus far for the Chiefs.

The five have a combined career NFL record of 589-337-7, a .635 winning percentage. Plus two Super Bowl wins (both Shula) four college national championships (Switzer 3, Ross 1), and nine Super Bowl head coaching appearances (Shula 6, Reeves 3-1-Shula and Reeves have peerless credentials.

Schottenheimer is a winner who's never quite gotten over the top. Switzer and Ross are college coaches trying to establish reputations in the NFL.

Reeves and Ross are probably the biggest surprises, 3-0 with the Giants and Chargers, two teams supposed to hover somewhere around .500.

The Giants lost a ton of players from the team with which Reeves worked wonders — to retirement (Lawrence Taylor), to free agency (three-fourths of last year's secondary) and to the salary cap (Phil Simms).

But they didn't lose Reeves.

"Dan Reeves won't let his team lose," Taylor said Sunday after the Giants beat Washington 31-23.

That was typical of Reeves. Without Rodney Hampton, his heavy-duty back, he simply plugged in Dave Meggett, and Meggett rushed for 82 yards, caught four passes for 52 more and capped it off with a 16-yard touchdown pass to Aaron Pierce.

More important, Reeves has been brilliant with Sims' replacement — Dave Brown. After three games, Brown has completed 62.5 percent of his passes and has a Montana-esque rating of 101.1. He also has something of Joe Montana's poise. On Sunday, he watched the field, calmly ducked under a rusher and found Mike Sherrard between two defenders for a 30-yard touchdown pass to Aaron Pierce.

San Diego, meanwhile, had lost its top two receivers (Anthony Miller and Nate Lewis) and top rusher (Marion Butts). Ross, with Natrone Means replacing Butts and a covey of receivers replacing Miller, took his Chargers into Seattle in a surprising showdown against the Seahawks for first place in the AFC West.

They won 24-10 on two key plays that demonstrated some coaching flair.

One was a 99-yard Stan Humphries to Tony Martin TD pass after a sack that backed the Chargers up to the 1-inch line. The other was a blitz that forced Rick Mier to throw with Junior Seau in his face and was returned 73 yards for a touchdown by Stanley Richard, his second interception return for a TD in three games.

As for the others... Shula is only the NFL's all-time winningest coach and still on top of things at 64. "Too bad," Buffalo's Jim Kelly muttered Sunday when he was told the Dolphins had beaten the Jets in their battle of unbeats, telling you all you need to know about whom the Bills fear in the AFC East.

Schottenheimer, who has lost three AFC championship games (two to Reeves), always seems to know about whom the Bills fear in the AFC East.

The other was a blitz that forced Rick Mier to throw with Junior Seau in his face and was returned 73 yards for a touchdown by Stanley Richard, his second interception return for a TD in three games.

If he can keep Montana healthy and Marcus Allen relatively rested, he has a great shot this year — Derrick Thomas (four sacks, three forced fumbles, two recoveries the last two weeks) looks like he's finally ready to become Lawrence Taylor.

overall," said assistant coach Tom Hanlon. "We took some positive things away with us."
Michigan State, the eventual champion, only lead the Irish by six strokes heading into the final round. Shannon and Melby shot 78 and 77 respectively, in the first round to highlight the tournament.
"We were really in a position to win," said Hanlon.
Another good performance was turned in by the Irish freshman as Tracy Melby tied for seventh place with a score of 163, while Katie King took eighth place with a 164.
"King and (Tracy) Melby continue to show outstanding poise in just their freshman year," said Hanlon.
The Irish will play in the Michigan State Spartan Invitational Next weekend hoping to turn the tables on the Spartans who beat them by 16 strokes at Ferris State.

Alvarez upset, ready to bounce back

BY ARThER L. SRB
Associated Press
MADISON, Wis.
Wisconsin Coach Barry Alvarez said Monday his Badgers won't dwell on their 55-17 thrashing at Colorado because they'll be too busy preparing for Saturday's Big Ten opener against unbeaten Indiana.
"We were humiliated; we've got to move on," Alvarez said. "We'll have our hands full against Indiana. It's a huge game for us."
At his weekly news conference, Alvarez was asked if he had any special advice for junior quarterback Darrell Bevell, who threw four interceptions in the first half against the Buffaloes.
"No," Alvarez replied. "Darrell Bevell has proven he can recover from that type of game. You can't put all the burden on one guy. That was very uncharacteristic of him." Alvarez said of the interceptions.
Last year, Bevell was intercepted five times in a 24-21 defeat at Minnesota. It was Wisconsin's lone loss in a 10-1-1 season.
Alvarez was asked what he thought of the Badgers' slide from 10th to 16th in the Associated Press poll following the loss to Colorado.
"We have been playing well for a young team," said Dickey. "We need to be more intense."

Seniors set to rebound for Irish

Key conference games ahead for men

By THOMAS SCHLIDT
Sports Writer

After losing their first conference game last week to Northern Illinois, the (3 - 2) Notre Dame men's soccer team understands that they cannot afford to give away anymore conference games. The players that understand this the most are the seniors.

In the dominating win over Xavier last Sunday, it was the seniors that were the most prominent. Both seniors Tim Oates and Keith Carlson led the way for the Irish as they assisted each other to the first four goals of the game.

When the Irish play (2 -2 -1) Detroit Mercy tonight at 7:30 at Alumni Field, they will need the continued leadership of the seniors if they are to avoid losing another crucial conference game.

"Detroit Mercy is an important game," senior sweeper Kevin Adkisson said. "It's a conference game, and we can't afford to lose it."

If they are going to win, they need to continue playing with the same intensity that they showed against the Musketeers and play better defense than they showed against the Huskies.

"We have to reestablish the game," Adkisson explained. "With a stronger defense our offense will be better."

The Titans enter this game as a legitimate contender as they won back to back games against Michigan State and Western Michigan.

They are led by 1993 First Team all-M.C.C. forward Rudek Papiez who is one of the offensive leaders with three points. On the defensive end they boast the 1993 Newcomer of the Year in the M.C.C., in goalkeeper Kal Kaliszewski.

Lineup changes for the Irish may include the second straight start for sophomore midfielder Chris Mathis.

On the injury front, Bill Lanza is not expected to be back for a little longer. He did not play in the game against the Musketeers, and in the loss to the Huskies he complained of still having some knee discomfort.

"His knee is still bothering him," Berticelli said. "I guess he's not ready."

Belles to clash with Concordia

By JENNIFER LEWIS
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

The 2-1 Saint Mary's volleyball team hopes to defeat Concordia University at home this evening at 7:00. The Belles lost to Concordia the previous year 4-3 in a close match, according to coach Julie Schroender-Bleek.

"It was a loss that I felt we should have won," said Schroender-Bleek. "Our setter [Michelle Martin] jammed her thumb and was unable to play in the rest of the game. Her injury was a big factor."

Concordia is having a difficult season, having lost all five of their opening games.

"Concordia's setter liked to dump the ball short," said Schroender-Bleek. "So we will be on our toes for that."

Captain Sara Stromcek and freshman Kelly Meyer are still sharing the setting position, however Meyer will be starting in this evening's game.

Irish women golfers garner a second place finish; men struggle in thin Colorado air at Air Force

By JOE VILLINSKI
Sports Writer

The air was thin and the scenery could not have been more beautiful.

Unfortunately for the Notre Dame men's golf team, those picturesque conditions were not conducive to low scores as the Irish headed out west to Colorado Springs last weekend to compete in the Air Force Falcon Invitational.

There, the Irish placed 19th out of 24 teams in its first tournament of the year.

There, the Irish placed 19th out of 24 teams in its first tournament of the year.

Sophomore Brian Donohoe tied for 28th with a three-round total of 226, while senior Chris O'Connell tied for 79th with a 236.

Problems with the short game plagued the men through the whole tournament. Because of the unusual terrain and backdrop, the inordinate number of putts caused the team score to fail.

"It was a magnificent golf facility," said men's head coach George Thomas. "However, everything broke away from the mountains, making putting problematic."

Despite falling short, the Irish drives were sizzling during the tournament.

"We drove the ball well, but everything came down to the short game last weekend," said Thomas. "The players lacked the courage to hit a lot of puts."

Minnesota took the team title with 887 strokes, three ahead of second-place Kansas. Michigan's Chris Brockway took medalist honors at 219, one stroke ahead of Aaron Barber of Minnesota.

The Irish travel to play in the Geneva National Invitational next weekend in Wisconsin. In addition, there will be some changes in the Irish lineup there.

"We are going to do everything we can to establish a solid team for our tough spring schedule," commented Thomas.

The Irish lady linksters also competed in tournament match play last weekend as they finished second in a 12-team field at the Ferris State University Invitational.

Completing the two rounds with a 638 stroke count, the Irish were lead by senior Katie Shannon and junior Julie Melby. Both placed third with a score of 156.

"The team really played pretty well overlooking the score."
