Malloy, Latin American leaders meet

By JAMIE HEISLER

Father Edward Malloy, president of the University of Notre Dame, last week returned from a 14-day, one-nation trip through Latin America that included stops at the capitals of the presidents of Panama and Brazil and meetings there in Chile and Mexico with numerous political leaders, churchmen, educators and business leaders.

Malloy was accompanied on the trip by Richard W. Warner, a counselor to the president and director of campus ministry at Notre Dame, and Clayton Sexton, vice president for University Relations.

In Panama, Malloy spent some five hours in conversation with President Ernesto Perez Balladares, who earned his bachelor's degree in philosophy and master's degree in economics from Notre Dame in 1967 and 1969, respectively.

Balladares said his concerns were with the continuing depletion of the national and regional economy and the redistribution of wealth in Panama are a direct result of high interest rates and the collapse of Notre Dame and called the time at the University the most important six years of his life.

Mark G. McGrath, a Notre Dame senior from South Bend, was working as an intern at Notre Dame and called his time at the University the most important six years of his life.

An anonymous donation of $50,000, made by a 1979 Notre Dame alumnus, will fund the construction of housing for a prominent Dame alumnus who was a speaker and honorary degree recipient at the University's 1992 Commencement exercises, and with newly-appointed U.S. Ambassador Gabriel Guerra.

The federal government must continue to provide a safety net for poor children and teen-age mothers as it cedes welfare responsibilities to the states. Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala said Sunday.

The lecture will examine masculinity in Latin America. A new book entitled "Masculinity in the 1990s: The Social Construction of Being Male," by Kimmel, a sociology professor at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, is also a spokesperson for the National Organization of Men Against Sexism (NOMAS). His writings and lectures examine masculinity from a variety of perspectives.

Kimmel explores the various forms that masculinity can take in the modern world.

Sociologist to examine masculinity

By TOM MORAN

Sociologist and author Michael Kimmel will present a lecture Monday, January 30, at 4 p.m. at the Hesburgh Library, which is the first in a series entitled "Masculinity in the 1990s: The Social Construction of Being Male."

The lecture will examine masculinity and sexual relations in modern times.

Kimmel's lecture, to be presented at 4 p.m. in the Hesburgh Library, is the first in a series entitled "Masculinity in the 1990s: The Social Construction of Being Male."

The federal government must continue to provide a safety net for poor children and teen-age mothers as it cedes welfare responsibilities to the states. Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala said Sunday.

But Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, a leading Republican presidential aspirant, said the time has come for drastic action.

"You can't change this mam­moth system without hurting some people," he said.

The issue of who will be guaranteed protection under a revamped welfare system is at the top of the list of differences between the administration and Republicans stake out their positions on welfare reform.

Republicans emerging from a 5 1/2-hour "work session" on welfare reform with President Clinton on Saturday stressed that House GOP legislation that imposes tough restrictions on benefits is the only proposal on the table now.

But Shalala, appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation," said that Clinton has said govern­ment should not be creating more poor American children.

"That's a national issue," she said. "It's a debate about val­ues, about how we take care of our children."

Clinton has proposed cutting off welfare benefits to re­cipients after two years and giving states more flexibility in setting up welfare programs. The House Republican plan goes much further, giving states block grants and allow­ing them to determine how to allot the funds; denying cash assistance to teen-age mothers until the age of 18; and denying aid to legal immigrants who have not been in the country for five years.

Shalala said the president has "vague questions" about whether teen-agers who have babies should be cut off welfare.

She also took exception to the GOP proposal to cut off aid to unwed mothers until the fa­thers of their children are identified. Those women who play by the rules and cooperate should get transitional help, she said.

But the secretary did not totally reject the Republican plan on legal aliens. The administra­tion wants the spon­sors of immigrants to bear financial responsibility, she said. If that doesn't work, "we'll have to see."

Rep. Clay Shaw, R-Fla., chair­man of the House Ways and Means Committee over­seeing welfare reform, insisted Tuesday night that the GOP bill guarantees that poor people will receive benefits — must be fully funded, he said.

"Entitlements are gov­ernment on auto-pilot," Shaw said on CBS. "With the bal­anced budget amendment com­ing up, we're going to have to look at all entitle­ment plans."

Shaw said the Republicans were working on some type of emergency fund that would come to the aid of states during economic downturns.
Is journalism beyond help?

Not a day passes now without news and Edward Imbus Cumpy Editor

And most of it is entirely proper. While television news, with its sensibilities-dulling, 5-to-30-second soundbytes, is mostly to blame, the press also has had trouble finding the most consistent moral standard of ethics to follow.

The time has come for journalism to develop its adolescent professionalism. It would be more than proper for Notre Dame, as the pre-eminent Catholic university in America and a center of editorial thought, to create and adopt a consultative in journalism. Doing so would not only be beneficial to the student editors and the student body who receives their work, but also the University and its faith as well.

A course in journalistic ethics, for example, would be extremely useful for the staff of campus publications who receive sensitive information, usually by complete serendipity. Especially for reporters who genuinely want to be published, the enormity of deciding whether or not to be so is clear. Discussing and debating the ethics of such questions in an academic setting before an actual situation arises — similar to medical ethics courses — would be helpful indeed.

By educating the corps of aspiring journalists on campus, the University could then be more frank and less hostile with senior staff writers and senior editors about events on campus. Information indeed can be "off the press" to students. Through Connie Chung shamefully included material clearinghouse "press record ("just between you and me"), most journalists, professional or otherwise, can understand the difference. Frankness, ground rules, and firm ethics ultimately will make for trust, which at present is nonexistent, not only between the University and its student reporters. With that trust, perhaps student publications would not need to rely on the Chicago Tribune for big stories about its own home.

Notre Dame is in the perfect position to lead the development of professional standards for the American press, as it does for so many other things: politics and literature. It would be similar to the way the American Catholic Church first codified its ethics on the rights of nuclear weapons, a document highly regarded by leaders and scholars worldwide, and still in study today. Acton demonstrates, the Hesburgh Program of Public Service provides a game-work for a journalism concentration.

The opportunity for Notre Dame to address ethics in a popular culture realm is not one to ignore. As the Irish have discovered, Notre Dame has an ethical, if not spiritual, obligation to fill this void with responsible journalism.

The time has come for the Irish to once again make a stand and use its talents and reputation for the better of everyone by enhancing a needed profession whose influence could influence our society's conscience to nothing and only further drag us down to the deepest levels of human apathy.

The views expressed in the Inside Columns are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

The joint command said two Peruvians were wounded in one of ten Peruvian ground forces on a specified number of other wounded in the other three. Peru and Ecuador meet daily to discuss the 1,000-mile border, and animosity is still strong. In Peru, a province of jungle-covered mountains, the Cordillera del Condor, where bloody clashes took place in 1981. Ecuador contends it lost almost half of its territory to Peru.

Many Peruvians view the conflict as an attempt by the government to assert its claim to the disputed area. Jan. 29 is the anniversary of the signing of the Rio Protocol. Also, a media in Quito asked citizens to show support by flying the Peruvian and Ecuadorian flags from windows and balconies, few were visible.

But Fujimori faces a presidential election in early April. Peruvian opposition candidates have not only politicized the issue, though some called it a "strong response" by the government.

The time has come for the Irish to once again make a stand and use its talents and reputation for the better of everyone by enhancing a needed profession whose influence could influence our society's conscience to nothing and only further drag us down to the deepest levels of human apathy.

The views expressed in the Inside Columns are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Not a day passes now without news and Edward Imbus Cumpy Editor

And most of it is entirely proper. While television news, with its sensibilities-dulling, 5-to-30-second soundbytes, is mostly to blame, the press also has had trouble finding the most consistent moral standard of ethics to follow.

The time has come for journalism to develop its adolescent professionalism. It would be more than proper for Notre Dame, as the pre-eminent Catholic university in America and a center of editorial thought, to create and adopt a consultative in journalism. Doing so would not only be beneficial to the student editors and the student body who receives their work, but also the University and its faith as well.

A course in journalistic ethics, for example, would be extremely useful for the staff of campus publications who receive sensitive information, usually by complete serendipity. Especially for reporters who genuinely want to be published, the enormity of deciding whether or not to be so is clear. Discussing and debating the ethics of such questions in an academic setting before an actual situation arises — similar to medical ethics courses — would be helpful indeed.

By educating the corps of aspiring journalists on campus, the University could then be more frank and less hostile with senior staff writers and senior editors about events on campus. Information indeed can be "off the press" to students. Through Connie Chung shamefully included material clearinghouse "press record ("just between you and me"), most journalists, professional or otherwise, can understand the difference. Frankness, ground rules, and firm ethics ultimately will make for trust, which at present is nonexistent, not only between the University and its student reporters. With that trust, perhaps student publications would not need to rely on the Chicago Tribune for big stories about its own home.

Notre Dame is in the perfect position to lead the development of professional standards for the American press, as it does for so many other things: politics and literature. It would be similar to the way the American Catholic Church first codified its ethics on the rights of nuclear weapons, a document highly regarded by leaders and scholars worldwide, and still in study today. Acton demonstrates, the Hesburgh Program of Public Service provides a game-work for a journalism concentration.

The opportunity for Notre Dame to address ethics in a popular culture realm is not one to ignore. As the Irish have discovered, Notre Dame has an ethical, if not spiritual, obligation to fill this void with responsible journalism.

The time has come for the Irish to once again make a stand and use its talents and reputation for the better of everyone by enhancing a needed profession whose influence could influence our society's conscience to nothing and only further drag us down to the deepest levels of human apathy.

The views expressed in the Inside Columns are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.
Tobacco lawsuits nears trial following hearing

By LISA SHAPIRO

INDIANAPOLIS

A liability lawsuit against tobacco companies over the cancer death of a smoker will be the first to go to trial since Congress grilled tobacco executives last spring on the dangers of cigarettes.

Michael Donohue, an attorney for the man's family, said his case will include some information uncovered during the hearings to try to prove that cigarette makers had the ability to make cigarettes less addictive.

On his witness list is Dr. Victor Deenobe, a former researcher for Philip Morris Inc. Deenobe testified at the congressional hearings in April that a study he wrote containing strong evidence nicotine was addictive was suppressed by his employer in 1983.

The surgeon general didn't determine nicotine was addictive until 1988.

Historically, juries have sided with tobacco companies, agreeing the companies were not responsible for illness because smokers made conscious decisions to smoke despite knowing the risks.

-Nickpinning-smoking advocates said public opinion has changed since the hearings and believe juries may now be more likely to find tobacco companies somewhat responsible for smoking-related illnesses.

"People now believe in a way thing just never focused on before that these guys basically lie through their teeth to sell cigarettes," said Richard Daynard, a law professor at Northeastern University in Boston and chairman of the Tobacco Litigation Project. "I think that's going to make a big difference in jury attitudes."

Richard Rogers, who was an Indianapolis attorney, began taking his father's cigarettes and butts left in ashtrays when he was 5 or 6 years old. By the sixth grade, he was smoking close to a pack a day. When he hit his mid-20s, he was up to three packs a day.

After hypnosis and drug therapy, Rogers finally quit on June 24, 1986. Two months later, he was diagnosed with lung cancer.

With his wife, Yvonne Rogers, he filed a lawsuit in March 1987 against cigarette manufacturers and retailers, claiming they caused his illness.

Seven months later, the 52-year-old father of three died. His wife amended the lawsuit to include charges of wrongful death and asked for an unspecified amount in compensation and punitive damages.

Nearly eight years after the lawsuit was filed, jury selection is to begin Tuesday in Marion County Court.

It's the first time the federal law requiring cigarette packages to contain strong evidence nicotine was addictive was used.

-Nickpinning-smokers made conscious decisions to smoke despite knowing the risks.

-Fred Eggert of the Kellogg Institute for International Studies, he has written numerous books and articles on Latin American politics.

His most recent book, "Building Democratic Institutions: Party Systems in Latin America," will be published by Stanford University Press later this month.

---

Scully speaks at WPO

Special to the Observer

Father Timothy Scully, vice-president and associate provost of the University of Notre Dame, delivered a series of lectures on the Catholic Church in Latin America during the annual meeting of the World President's Organization (WPO) in Santiago, Chile January 25-28.

"Registered as more than 1000 members from 40 countries, the WPO includes active and retired corporate chief executive officers, ambassadors, diplomats, and government officials. Its annual "university" meeting offers an education program that includes seminars and lectures by politicians, business people, scientists, artists, and academics.

Scully, who lived in Chile from 1979 to 1982, served as vice rector of St. George's University in Santiago and as pastor of Christ Our Redeemer parish in a poor neighborhood of that city.

An associate professor of government and international studies and a senior fellow in the Kellogg Institute for International Studies, he has written numerous books and articles on Latin American politics.

---

The largest terrorism trial in U.S. history starts in earnest this week with opening statements and a warning from the judge that religion is not on trial.

Prosecutors will try to show that Sheikh Omar Abdel-Rahman and 11 other Muslims planned a "war of urban terrorism" in America that could have killed thousands of people.

Prosecutors will argue they plotted to blow up the World Trade Center, the United Nations, the FBI's New York headquarters, two tunnels and a bridge, and to kill Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and other politicians and judges.

After 13 lawyers deliver their opening statements beginning Monday, U.S. District Judge Michael Mukasey will instruct the jury on sedition and conspiracy, the rarely used Civil War-era charge used in the case.

The trial's magnitude can be measured both by the number of defendants accused of what they allegedly plotted as well as the damage already wrought.

Mukasey told lawyers last week that the jury will have to weigh whether the defendants are not accused of trying to overthrow the U.S. government, only of trying to wage a war against it. He also will tell them that the United States, no one breaks laws, "the fact that it is undertaken in the name of religion is no defense whatsoever."

"There is no religion on trial here," the judge said in a preliminary draft of his instructions.

Lawyers for Abdel-Rahman, who is legally blind and alleged to have beheaded the consular officer, charge that he's being prosecuted for his beliefs. If convicted, he could face life in prison.

The alleged plot's motive, the prosecutor says, was to punish the United States for supporting Israel and Egypt and to weaken the nation's influence, erasing the spread of the particular brand of strict Islam that Abdel-Rahman espouses.

The trial is the second chapter in the prosecution of a group allegedly responsible for the 1993 assassination of Rabbi Meir Kahane, founder of the militant Jewish Defense League, and the Feb. 26, 1993, World Trade Center bombing, in which six people were killed and hundreds injured.

Three followers of the teachings of Abdel-Rahman and a fourth man were convicted last year in the Trade Center bombing and were sentenced to life in prison without parole.

The judge in that first trial said the bomb was meant to topple the 110-story towers, a symbol of America's economic might, and kill tens of thousands of people.

One defendant in this trial, El Sayyid Nosair, was acquitted in the 1990 assassination of Kahane.

Kimmel continued from page 1

"Masculinity is not biologically determined," said Jane Aldous, professor of sociology, whose committee is co-sponsoring the lecture. "It varies over the globe and in the United States."

Kimmel has written several books on the concept of masculinity in America, including "Manhood: The American Quest," which is part of the series. An earlier book, "Against the Tide: The Profile of Men in America, 1776-1990, a Documentary History," presents evidence of two centuries of American males who have supported women's struggle for equality.

Kimmel's works have been featured in a great deal of print and broadcast media, and Kimmel himself has been a guest on several talk shows. He also runs a number of workshops for universities and corporations on such topics as date rape, sexual harassment, and the changing relationships between men and women.

The lecture series is sponsored by the Paul M. and Barbara Henkelis Visiting Scholars Series; the American studies, anthropology, government and sociology departments; the gender studies program; Student Activities; and the Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies.
Tax-slaying fever hits D.C.

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press

WASHINGTON

Tax-slaying fever has gripped the nation's capital. Republicans and Democrats are falling over each other to offer voters appealing packages with a list of beneficiaries ranging from people with home offices to families with children in college.

House Republicans have more than a dozen tax breaks in their "Contract With America." President Clinton has countered with his Middle-Class Bill of Rights. House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., and Senate Majority Leader Phil Gramm, R-Texas, also have tax-reduction proposals.

But even some advocates of the competing plans acknowledge what's really needed is not a hodgepodge of new credits and exemptions but a sweeping overhaul of the convoluted tax code.

"We set up a tax break and people all run to that. And then we worry somebody's going to abuse it. And then we make it more complicated," Gephardt said. "It's insane."

So, even before Congress votes on this year's tax cuts, Gephardt and other senior lawmakers are gearing up for what's likely to be a three-year debate over how to radically transform the way Americans are taxed.

House Majority Leader Dick Armey, R-Texas; Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M.; and Gephardt each have long-term reform plans.

Armey proposes a flat tax of 17 percent, exempting a certain amount of wage and salary income and all unearned income such as interest, dividends and capital gains.

Gephardt's "fair and simple" tax, which he still is polishing, reserves Armey's type that allowed her to pay for a nursing home for her mother and as fast as you want it to.

Some contract provisions are well known, such as a $500-a-year credit, expanded Individual Retirement Accounts and a 30 percent reduction in capital gains taxes on profit from selling securities, real estate and other assets. Others are not so well known, such as allowing losses on home sales to be deducted and expanding the deductibility of home office costs.

Like the Republicans, Clinton wants to offer a $500 tax credit for children and extend eligibility for IRA's. He also would allow a $10,000-a-year deduction for tuition and training expenses.

Gephardt's "working people's tax break" — for two years only — would go to taxpayers regardless of whether they had children: up to $750 to married couples and up to $450 to single people.

Gephardt estimates the two-year, double the exemption for children, from $2,450 to $5,000. All the plans sound good, but liberal policy analysts question whether they are worth the enormous cost.

Frank S. Ruddy, former deputy chairman of the U.N. operation in northwest Africa, who has countered with Sen. Bob Dole and Senator's support for the Republican plan's cost at $205 billion over five years.

Clinton's proposal costs $65 billion over the same period, Gephardt estimates the two-year cost of his credit at $66 billion.

Gramm says the five-year cost of Bush's plan is $124 billion, not $50 billion as Ruddy told the House Ways and Means Committee is quite simply — they need the relief.

Perry M. Nunn, owner of The Plum Garden, a Chinese restaurant in McLean, Ill., hopes increasing the estate tax will make it easier for him to leave his business to his three sons.

Armey, H-Texas; Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and Gephardt each have long-term reform plans.

Armey proposes a flat tax of 17 percent, exempting a certain amount of wage and salary income and all unearned income such as interest, dividends and capital gains.

Gephardt's "fair and simple" tax, which he still is polishing, reserves Armey's type that allowed her to pay for a nursing home for her mother and as fast as you want it to.

Some contract provisions are well known, such as a $500-a-year credit, expanded Individual Retirement Accounts and a 30 percent reduction in capital gains taxes on profit from selling securities, real estate and other assets. Others are not so well known, such as allowing losses on home sales to be deducted and expanding the deductibility of home office costs.

Like the Republicans, Clinton wants to offer a $500 tax credit for children and extend eligibility for IRA's. He also would allow a $10,000-a-year deduction for tuition and training expenses.

Gephardt's "working people's tax break" — for two years only — would go to taxpayers regardless of whether they had children: up to $750 to married couples and up to $450 to single people.

Gephardt estimates the two-year, double the exemption for children, from $2,450 to $5,000. All the plans sound good, but liberal policy analysts question whether they are worth the enormous cost.

Frank S. Ruddy, former deputy chairman of the U.N. operation in northwest Africa, who has countered with Sen. Bob Dole and Senator's support for the Republican plan's cost at $205 billion over five years.

Clinton's proposal costs $65 billion over the same period, Gephardt estimates the two-year cost of his credit at $66 billion.

Gramm says the five-year cost of Bush's plan is $124 billion, not $50 billion as Ruddy told the House Ways and Means Committee is quite simply — they need the relief.

Perry M. Nunn, owner of The Plum Garden, a Chinese restaurant in McLean, Ill., hopes increasing the estate tax will make it easier for him to leave his business to his three sons.

Armey, H-Texas; Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and Gephardt each have long-term reform plans.

Armey proposes a flat tax of 17 percent, exempting a certain amount of wage and salary income and all unearned income such as interest, dividends and capital gains.

Gephardt's "fair and simple" tax, which he still is polishing, reserves Armey's type that allowed her to pay for a nursing home for her mother and as fast as you want it to.

Some contract provisions are well known, such as a $500-a-year credit, expanded Individual Retirement Accounts and a 30 percent reduction in capital gains taxes on profit from selling securities, real estate and other assets. Others are not so well known, such as allowing losses on home sales to be deducted and expanding the deductibility of home office costs.

Like the Republicans, Clinton wants to offer a $500 tax credit for children and extend eligibility for IRA's. He also would allow a $10,000-a-year deduction for tuition and training expenses.

Gephardt's "working people's tax break" — for two years only — would go to taxpayers regardless of whether they had children: up to $750 to married couples and up to $450 to single people.

Gephardt estimates the two-year, double the exemption for children, from $2,450 to $5,000. All the plans sound good, but liberal policy analysts question whether they are worth the enormous cost.

Frank S. Ruddy, former deputy chairman of the U.N. operation in northwest Africa, who has countered with Sen. Bob Dole and Senator's support for the Republican plan's cost at $205 billion over five years.

Clinton's proposal costs $65 billion over the same period, Gephardt estimates the two-year cost of his credit at $66 billion.

Gramm says the five-year cost of Bush's plan is $124 billion, not $50 billion as Ruddy told the House Ways and Means Committee is quite simply — they need the relief.

Perry M. Nunn, owner of The Plum Garden, a Chinese restaurant in McLean, Ill., hopes increasing the estate tax will make it easier for him to leave his business to his three sons.

Armey, H-Texas; Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and Gephardt each have long-term reform plans.

Armey proposes a flat tax of 17 percent, exempting a certain amount of wage and salary income and all unearned income such as interest, dividends and capital gains.

Gephardt's "fair and simple" tax, which he still is polishing, reserves Armey's type that allowed her to pay for a nursing home for her mother and as fast as you want it to.

Some contract provisions are well known, such as a $500-a-year credit, expanded Individual Retirement Accounts and a 30 percent reduction in capital gains taxes on profit from selling securities, real estate and other assets. Others are not so well known, such as allowing losses on home sales to be deducted and expanding the deductibility of home office costs.

Like the Republicans, Clinton wants to offer a $500 tax credit for children and extend eligibility for IRA's. He also would allow a $10,000-a-year deduction for tuition and training expenses.

Gephardt's "working people's tax break" — for two years only — would go to taxpayers regardless of whether they had children: up to $750 to married couples and up to $450 to single people.

Gephardt estimates the two-year, double the exemption for children, from $2,450 to $5,000. All the plans sound good, but liberal policy analysts question whether they are worth the enormous cost.

Frank S. Ruddy, former deputy chairman of the U.N. operation in northwest Africa, who has countered with Sen. Bob Dole and Senator's support for the Republican plan's cost at $205 billion over five years.

Clinton's proposal costs $65 billion over the same period, Gephardt estimates the two-year cost of his credit at $66 billion.

Gramm says the five-year cost of Bush's plan is $124 billion, not $50 billion as Ruddy told the House Ways and Means Committee is quite simply — they need the relief.

Perry M. Nunn, owner of The Plum Garden, a Chinese restaurant in McLean, Ill., hopes increasing the estate tax will make it easier for him to leave his business to his three sons.

Armey, H-Texas; Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and Gephardt each have long-term reform plans.

Armey proposes a flat tax of 17 percent, exempting a certain amount of wage and salary income and all unearned income such as interest, dividends and capital gains.

Gephardt's "fair and simple" tax, which he still is polishing, reserves Armey's type that allowed her to pay for a nursing home for her mother and as fast as you want it to.

Some contract provisions are well known, such as a $500-a-year credit, expanded Individual Retirement Accounts and a 30 percent reduction in capital gains taxes on profit from selling securities, real estate and other assets. Others are not so well known, such as allowing losses on home sales to be deducted and expanding the deductibility of home office costs.

Like the Republicans, Clinton wants to offer a $500 tax credit for children and extend eligibility for IRA's. He also would allow a $10,000-a-year deduction for tuition and training expenses.

Gephardt's "working people's tax break" — for two years only — would go to taxpayers regardless of whether they had children: up to $750 to married couples and up to $450 to single people.

Gephardt estimates the two-year, double the exemption for children, from $2,450 to $5,000. All the plans sound good, but liberal policy analysts question whether they are worth the enormous cost.

Frank S. Ruddy, former deputy chairman of the U.N. operation in northwest Africa, who has countered with Sen. Bob Dole and Senator's support for the Republican plan's cost at $205 billion over five years.

Clinton's proposal costs $65 billion over the same period, Gephardt estimates the two-year cost of his credit at $66 billion.

Gramm says the five-year cost of Bush's plan is $124 billion, not $50 billion as Ruddy told the House Ways and Means Committee is quite simply — they need the relief.

Perry M. Nunn, owner of The Plum Garden, a Chinese restaurant in McLean, Ill., hopes increasing the estate tax will make it easier for him to leave his business to his three sons.

Armey, H-Texas; Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., and Gephardt each have long-term reform plans.

Armey proposes a flat tax of 17 percent, exempting a certain amount of wage and salary income and all unearned income such as interest, dividends and capital gains.

Gephardt's "fair and simple" tax, which he still is polishing, reserves Armey's type that allowed her to pay for a nursing home for her mother and as fast as you want it to.
Salute to cap music awards

By JENNIFER BOWLES
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES

When Ken Kragen began gathering a superstar cast for "We Are the World," he aimed to lure 15 top singers. He wound up with 43.

"I had a very simple system," recalled Kragen, who organized the effort with Harry Belafonte. "I took the record charts and I worked my way down. I wanted 15, but when I got Bruce Springsteen, the flood gates opened.

Many of those artists will attend the 22nd annual American Music Awards Monday night to take part in a salute to the song and subsequent album that raised more than $60 million for African famine relief.

It was after the American Music Awards on Jan. 28, 1985, that Lionel Richie, Michael Jackson, Kenny Rogers, Tina Turner, Stevie Wonder and 40 other artists drove to A&M Studios in Hollywood for an all-night recording session of "We Are the World," which was written and produced by Richie and Jackson.

Producer Quincy Jones posted a sign: "Check Your Egos at the Door."

"It's a very difficult thing to do," said Dick Clark, producer of the American Music Awards.

"How do you get all those highly paid, egotistical people in the same room and do something nice and not get paid for it?"

It was the images of hunger and death recorded in Ethiopia by African filmmaker Mohammed Amin that spurred Kragen and Belafonte to action.

"All of us had seen it and we weren't prepared to move," said Kragen. "It was the fuel that drove everything else that came thereafter.

Over 10 years, the song, written for the USA for Africa, has provided $61.8 million to 18 African nations, said Marcia Thomas, head of the organization, which will close its doors by summer.

The tribute will cap a busy night of song and dance including Madonna and Babyface backed by a 25-piece band for "Take a Bow." Little Richard singing "Tutti Frutti" with The Go-Gos, and the musician formerly known as Prince offering a medley of hits before receiving the Award of Merit.

"He's due," Clark said. "He's in his generation, one of the top two or three performers, producers and songwriters. He's truly a multifaceted artist.

Leading nominees for competitive awards were Mariah Carey and Boyz II Men with four nods apiece. Groups with three nominations included Ace of Base, All-4-One, Counting Crows and Salt-N-Pepa. Michael Bolton, Toni Braxton, Warren G, Vince Gill, Alan Jackson, Reba McIntire, Tim McGraw and Stone Temple Pilots each had two nominations.

The show will also honor Led Zeppelin with the International Artist Award, Robert Plant and Jimmy Page will perform.

Making another appearance will be Snoop Doggy Dogg, whose performance at last year's awards spurred some controversy.

The rapper, whose real name is Calvin Broadus, faces trial on murder and conspiracy charges in the drive-by shooting of a man. Authorities allege Broadus was driving a Jeep from which his bodyguard fired the fatal shots.

This year, Broadus will be a presenter.

"The man is accused of something and he hasn't been proved guilty of anything. What does that have to do with music? At the moment he's an innocent man," Clark said.

During the three-hour ABC TV telecast, winners of competitive awards will be announced in 22 categories spanning country, soul, heavy metal, hard rock, rhythm and blues, rap and hip hop.

Recycle The Observer

Wow!
Holy Cow!
Rob is 21!

Love,
Tania, Glenn, and Shiela

Monday, January 30, 1995
Hesburgh Library Auditorium 7:30 pm

THE TOP FIVE CREATIVE

5. TAKE A HOT AIR BALLOON RIDE
4. VISIT GARAGE SALES
3. DRIVE AN ANIMAL, VISIT CANADA
2. CABBAGE PATCH DOLL, CLIFF DIVING PARTY
1. FAST FOOD RESTAURANT HOPPING

Sponsored by The Office of Multicultural Student Affairs & Lilly Funding.
Weekend fun at the restaurant

Aimet's World of Wine

4500 Charlevoix Street

Tel: 820-8000

 sat, sun 11am to 10pm

 Fri-Tue 11am to 10:30pm

 Events:

 1) A wine-and-cheese evening with Italian wines on sat.

 2) A music jam session with local musicians on Thu.

 3) A food and wine-tasting event with Italian cuisine on Fri.

Please, enjoy the weekend at Aimet's World of Wine!
Muslim militants use suicide runs against Israel

By DONNA ABU-NASR
Associated Press

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip

They may be educated or illit­rate, poor or pampered sons of lab­oured laborers. But they have one thing in common: Readiness to turn themselves into human bombs to kill Israelis in the name of Allah.

It is not always clear what motivates these young men to strap explosives to their bodies and blow themselves up. Some want to avenge the killing of a relative or a friend, others act for purely religious or ideologi­cal reasons.

Last week's attack — a dou­be suicide bombing that killed 21 Israelis — was an occasion for some Gaza youths to rejoice over the blow dealt to their enemy.

"Did you see how the Jews were crying on television?" said a 19-year-old laborer, his eyes sparkling with pride, but insist­ing his name not be published to avoid reprisals. "I want to become a martyr like that to scare the Jews, to send them to hell."

Lacking a sophisticated arse­nal, the militant Islamic Jihad and Hamas groups have turned suicide bombing into a weapon in their fight to kill the Israel-PLO peace process and establish an Islamic regime.

In the past four months alone, 54 Israelis died in suicide attacks claimed by the two militant Islamic groups, according to Israeli police.

But they have also killed 54 Palestinians since Oct. 19. The last bombing in Tel Aviv that killed 22 people.

The attacks have had an effect. Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said Sunday that peace with the Palestinians was a crossroads because of Islamic terrorism and talks would not be pursued at any price.

Sheik Abdallah Shami, spirit­ual leader of Islamic Jihad, said religious belief is the key motivator of the attacks.

"It's faith that makes them long for martyrdom," Shami said in an interview before he was detained by Yasser Arafat's PLO police.

Other reasons are more complex.

"It's not easy to pinpoint one single reason. It's a mixture of religion, history and the right personality," said Samir Kouthe, a psychiatrist.

He said many of Gaza's youth have been sold to the touch of the right-hand side of God and enjoy the attentions of 72 nymphs, spitting on them and cursing them.

"The most faithful man is chosen," said Shami.

Looking for a place to stay during:

• Junior Parents Weekend
• Graduation Weekend
• April Stud. Activity Events
• Home Football Games
Alumni Renting Out Historic Home
For ND Special Events

Close to Campus (Just 2 miles Away!)
• Safe Neighborhood
• Competitive Rates
• Fully Equipped Kitchen
• University Club access
• Student Club access
• 5 private suites w/ individual baths
• Accommodates up to 14

Available to Show by Appointment
Call Helen for More Information @ 219-287-8163

Rabin: Middle East at crossroads

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said his Cabinet on Sunday that Islamic terrorism has put peace with the Palestinians at a crossroads.

"Terrorism has become a strategic danger and a danger to the peace process," said Rabin, quoted by Israel Radio.

The Cabinet approved the closure last week in response to attacks that have killed 54 people since Oct. 1, including 21 Israelis who died in a sui­cide bombing Jan. 22. The mag­nitude is intended to stop guerrillas from infiltrating Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza territories, PLO officials said suffering would only increase if tens of thousands of Palestinians were kept from jobs in Israel.

"I don't think that the closure, a separation of this kind, will solve the problem and give security to the Israelis," said Abu Zaid, a member of the Palestinian self-defense group.

Police Minister Moshe Shahal said he ordered the stationing of police dogs at roadblocks separating the West Bank and Jewish settlements used in tracking infiltrators and finding explosions.

The move drew immediate Palestinian protest.

On Nazar Street where Sukkar lived, at least six Palestinians have been killed since the Palestinian uprising began in 1987.

Two days before Sukkar blew himself up, he spent more time with his family, took pictures with them and prayed a lot. His brother, Abdul-Rahim, 18, said Sukkar was quite calm and showed no signs of nervous­ness.

Both Hamas and Islamic Jihad use schools, mosques, jails and especially walled houses for martyrdom and promise heavenly rewards in the hereafter that appeal to young people on Gaza's overcrowded streets.

"When Allah imposed jihad on us, he realized it would be hard for a person to relinquish this life for an unknown world," said Shami. "He made this path desirable by promising us paradise.

In paradise, the martyr can eat the most delicious food, the most lucious fruits and the tenderest cuts of meat. It is por­trayed as a world of castles, flowing rivers and lush fields.

The martyr also gets to sit on the right-hand side of God and enjoys the attentions of 72 nymphs, spitting on them and cursing them.

"When mosque loudspeakers play, they ask for a martyr," said Shami. "The most faithful man is chosen," said Shami.

Have something to say? Use Observer classifieds.

And We Invite You to Play an Integral Role.

Join our team to continue building a dynamic local and national presence.

Ques, a national commercial real estate services firm, is searching for Notre Dame's most dynamic and aggressive candidates to become Ques brokers.

All interested students are invited to attend our informal presentation on:

Thursday, February 23
Foster Room
La Fortune Student Center
6:00 PM

Our on-campus recruiting date is February 24. Students interested in meeting with us should submit resume to Career and Placement Services for review or call...

Seth Klukoff
Vice President of Marketing & Operations
1-800-726-2368

Equis, a national commercial real estate services firm, is searching for Notre Dame's most dynamic and aggressive candidates to become Ques brokers.

All interested students are invited to attend our informal presentation on:

Thursday, February 23
Foster Room
La Fortune Student Center
6:00 PM

Our on-campus recruiting date is February 24. Students interested in meeting with us should submit resume to Career and Placement Services for review or call...

Seth Klukoff
Vice President of Marketing & Operations
1-800-726-2368
In a report published by economists at Williams college and the University of Southern California, researchers found that students are not choosing public universities over private institutions due to their inability to afford their higher costs, contrary to popular belief.

UCSC Professor Morton Schapiro said that middle-income students like Williams, Harvard and UCSC may have a hard time getting financial aid there, so they're all going to the public universities like UCSD and Stanford.

In response to a proposal in 1992 asking that middle-income students be offered merit aid to private universities, some professors responded that students were considering going to public universities instead.

Campuses Editor

The study was inspired by the Stanford Committee on the Status of female undergraduates, which recommended that students be given more merit aid to private universities.

The study also points out that the program being renamed, the study was the first step bringing public and private universities closer together.

The report recommended to the president's office that administrative units should encourage and finance efforts by departments in the recruit­ment, retention, and graduation of women; require the adminis­trations of select departments to develop plans for recruiting women students in underrepresented fields, with hiring of new faculty members in underrepresented fields, with hiring of new faculty members in underrepresented fields.

CAMPUS USES

January 30, 1995

USC, Williams study college choice

By MARCY DINUSI

Campuses Editor

In a report published by economists at Williams college and the University of Southern California, researchers found that students are not choosing public universities over private institutions due to their inability to afford their higher costs, contrary to popular belief.

UCSC Professor Morton Schapiro said that middle-income students like Williams, Harvard and UCSC may have a hard time getting financial aid there, so they're all going to the public universities like UCSD and Stanford.

In response to a proposal in 1992 asking that middle-income students be offered merit aid to private universities, some professors responded that students were considering going to public universities instead.

Campuses Editor

The study was inspired by the Stanford Committee on the Status of female undergraduates, which recommended that students be given more merit aid to private universities.

The study also points out that the program being renamed, the study was the first step bringing public and private universities closer together.

The report recommended to the president's office that administrative units should encourage and finance efforts by departments in the recruit­ment, retention, and graduation of women; require the adminis­trations of select departments to develop plans for recruiting women students in underrepresented fields, with hiring of new faculty members in underrepresented fields, with hiring of new faculty members in underrepresented fields.

CAMPUS USES

January 30, 1995

USC, Williams study college choice

By MARCY DINUSI

Campuses Editor

In a report published by economists at Williams college and the University of Southern California, researchers found that students are not choosing public universities over private institutions due to their inability to afford their higher costs, contrary to popular belief.

UCSC Professor Morton Schapiro said that middle-income students like Williams, Harvard and UCSC may have a hard time getting financial aid there, so they're all going to the public universities like UCSD and Stanford.

In response to a proposal in 1992 asking that middle-income students be offered merit aid to private universities, some professors responded that students were considering going to public universities instead.

Campuses Editor

The study was inspired by the Stanford Committee on the Status of female undergraduates, which recommended that students be given more merit aid to private universities.

The study also points out that the program being renamed, the study was the first step bringing public and private universities closer together.

The report recommended to the president's office that administrative units should encourage and finance efforts by departments in the recruit­ment, retention, and graduation of women; require the adminis­trations of select departments to develop plans for recruiting women students in underrepresented fields, with hiring of new faculty members in underrepresented fields, with hiring of new faculty members in underrepresented fields.

CAMPUS USES

January 30, 1995

USC, Williams study college choice

By MARCY DINUSI

Campuses Editor

In a report published by economists at Williams college and the University of Southern California, researchers found that students are not choosing public universities over private institutions due to their inability to afford their higher costs, contrary to popular belief.

UCSC Professor Morton Schapiro said that middle-income students like Williams, Harvard and UCSC may have a hard time getting financial aid there, so they're all going to the public universities like UCSD and Stanford.

In response to a proposal in 1992 asking that middle-income students be offered merit aid to private universities, some professors responded that students were considering going to public universities instead.

Campuses Editor

The study was inspired by the Stanford Committee on the Status of female undergraduates, which recommended that students be given more merit aid to private universities.

The study also points out that the program being renamed, the study was the first step bringing public and private universities closer together.

The report recommended to the president's office that administrative units should encourage and finance efforts by departments in the recruit­ment, retention, and graduation of women; require the adminis­trations of select departments to develop plans for recruiting women students in underrepresented fields, with hiring of new faculty members in underrepresented fields, with hiring of new faculty members in underrepresented fields.

CAMPUS USES

January 30, 1995

USC, Williams study college choice

By MARCY DINUSI

Campuses Editor

In a report published by economists at Williams college and the University of Southern California, researchers found that students are not choosing public universities over private institutions due to their inability to afford their higher costs, contrary to popular belief.

UCSC Professor Morton Schapiro said that middle-income students like Williams, Harvard and UCSC may have a hard time getting financial aid there, so they're all going to the public universities like UCSD and Stanford.

In response to a proposal in 1992 asking that middle-income students be offered merit aid to private universities, some professors responded that students were considering going to public universities instead.

Campuses Editor

The study was inspired by the Stanford Committee on the Status of female undergraduates, which recommended that students be given more merit aid to private universities.

The study also points out that the program being renamed, the study was the first step bringing public and private universities closer together.

The report recommended to the president's office that administrative units should encourage and finance efforts by departments in the recruit­ment, retention, and graduation of women; require the adminis­trations of select departments to develop plans for recruiting women students in underrepresented fields, with hiring of new faculty members in underrepresented fields, with hiring of new faculty members in underrepresented fields.

CAMPUS USES

January 30, 1995

USC, Williams study college choice

By MARCY DINUSI

Campuses Editor

In a report published by economists at Williams college and the University of Southern California, researchers found that students are not choosing public universities over private institutions due to their inability to afford their higher costs, contrary to popular belief.

UCSC Professor Morton Schapiro said that middle-income students like Williams, Harvard and UCSC may have a hard time getting financial aid there, so they're all going to the public universities like UCSD and Stanford.

In response to a proposal in 1992 asking that middle-income students be offered merit aid to private universities, some professors responded that students were considering going to public universities instead.

Campuses Editor

The study was inspired by the Stanford Committee on the Status of female undergraduates, which recommended that students be given more merit aid to private universities.

The study also points out that the program being renamed, the study was the first step bringing public and private universities closer together.

The report recommended to the president's office that administrative units should encourage and finance efforts by departments in the recruit­ment, retention, and graduation of women; require the adminis­
Invasion of the PC bandits

Just how far should inclusive language go?

The other day I returned to my room to find two of my section mates studying for an introductory theology exam or quiz or some other sort of nefarious test of their Biblical proficiency. Not wanting to disturb this section of students, I left my book bag and was about to leave when I heard one of them say something that would again beg to differ; what is it exactly that lends the faculty of the theology department is so nobly concerned with? I imagine the potential damage that the very name of this institution, the presence of a crucifix in every classroom and, God forbid, the existence of a chapel in the building is clearly a patently historical event in the 21st century, the phrase "too little, too late" does come to mind. I'm afraid we'll have to chalk up our "bizarrely radical" and "absurd, if not mildly offensive, process."

The real question is how far inclusive language should go and whether or not one has the right to be offended by it. In other words, while the efforts of those professors who choose to require the use of "BCE" and "CE" are too appreciated by the budding Madeline Murray-O'Hare of the campus, the phrase "too little, too late" does come to mind. I'm afraid we'll have to chalk up our "bizarrely radical" and "absurd, if not mildly offensive, process."

The简单 fact is that if one chooses to utilize the PC-ization of Jesus or "common" as the reference point at the basis of our religious calendar, then the phrase "too little, too late" does come to mind. I'm afraid we'll have to chalk up our "bizarrely radical" and "absurd, if not mildly offensive, process."

Oh, well, for one have always enjoyed the irony inherent in the fact that even the most vitriolic of atheists must at least subtly acknowledge the divine when they date a letter or refer to historical events.

I suppose that proponents of the PC-ization of the calendar could attempt to formulate the argument that their new terminology is more historically relevant. They might contend that "Common Era" is a more accurate description than is "The Year of Our Lord." Hmmmm. I would again beg to differ; what is it exactly that lends the degree of community in the last two millennia that was not found in ancient times? Has some sort of political hegemony been achieved that could be characterized as "common" over the previous 2000 years? The rise of Christianity as the primary religion of the Occidental World is the only "common" characteristic to begin history in the 1 CE.

The simple fact is that if one chooses to utilize the birth of Jesus Christ as the reference point at the basis of the calendar - as opposed to, for example, the foundation of Rome, Mohamed's flight to Medina or the scientifically determined age of the Earth - one should acknowledge the event in question by name and not by a nebulous and entirely trumped up term. This is doubly true at a university dedicated to the teachings of and service to the man whose birth marked the beginning of this "Common Era."

Chris Kratoool is a sophomore government and international studies major living in Flanner Hall.
Zamarelli sisters
in the 'business'

Has any one noticed the size of the squirrels lately? The once scrawny rodents have grown to the size of toaster ovens and are now emitting very threatening growling sounds. I think they are talking to each other and plotting their take over of campus. In August they were all too small and weak to attempt an offensive as big as taking over a university of 8,000 students, but now they want the statue of Mary atop the dome to be removed by force.

Third, they want the University meets the squirrels demands or the University will be taking to each other and plotting their take over of campus. In August they were all too small and weak to attempt an offensive as big as taking over a university of 8,000 students, but now they want the statue of Mary atop the dome to be removed by force.

Finally the squirrel community is demanding that Monk have his horse heads in our bed just to let us know they are watching us. Many people view Zamarelli's father as a family. This is not at all surprising considering that the Zamarelli's' father is the agency's owner. Their mother, a Saint Mary's graduate, also has her real estate license and their 21 year old brother, Frank, is a successful agent.

The license was not easy to obtain. While many students were holding down jobs at various stores, camps and offices, Maureen and Theresa were learning how to measure rooms for listings and properly close on houses. They got up at 9 a.m. drove an hour to Cleveland, and attended classes at the Hondonas Career Centers until 8 p.m.

57 years ago, the Zamarelli's grandson started a small real estate agency in Warren, Ohio called Zamarelli Real Estate. Over the years, it has grown into a large, leading agency with 36 real estate agents. More importantly, it has developed a reputation for making people feel secure and excited at the prospect of buying a new home. This is true not only for home buyers, but for the agents and especially for the Zamarelli sisters.

Many people view Zamarelli Real Estate as a family. This is not at all surprising considering that the Zamarelli's father is the agency's owner. Their mother, a Saint Mary's graduate, also has her real estate license and their 21 year old brother, Frank, is a successful agent.

Our dad's main goal has always been to guide us in what he feels is a good direction so we always have something to fall back on. Our dad's main goal has always been to guide us in what he feels is a good direction so we always have something to fall back on.
Thurman's shot propels Razorbacks to SEC win

By JIM O'CONNELL
Associated Press

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. - Scotty Thurman's jumper with 11 seconds to play gave No. 9 Arkansas a 94-92 victory over No. 5 Kentucky Sunday, the Razorbacks' first win in the Southeastern Conference.

The game was the first for Arkansas' seniors, 13-3 and since its first loss in Walton Arena last Tuesday to Alabama. The Razorbacks appeared in trouble of dropping to 2-4 in the conference when an 11-0 Kentucky run left Arkansas down 59-52 with 13:18 to play.

But Thurman, who won the opening tipoff with a slam dunk, scored seven of Arkansas' last 13 points while the Razorbacks outscored Kentucky 16-2 in the final four minutes.

"It's kind of bittersweet," Thurman said. "I've been wanting to win here in Walton Arena." Thurman contributed 22 points to the Razorbacks' victory.

ARKANSAS 94, KENTUCKY 92

Follow-up

By JIM O'CONNELL
Associated Press

Spring Break Bahamas Party Crosses 6 Days! 8799 includes 12 Meals & 6 Free Parking @ Beaches & Nightclubs A Huge Party Cater to Jamaica 7 Nights Air & Hotel from $429 Spring Break March 1-7

Florida's Spring Break Beaches! PANAMA CITY OCEANVIEW

Perfect for Family Fun! Spring Break Package一直到1-1000

Winston-Salem, N.C. - Tim Duncan scored 19 points and grabbed 10 rebounds in the first six minutes of the second half, and No. 16 Wake Forest made just 3 of 27 shots after that.

The Demon Deacons (12-4, 2-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) are seeking their first road win in 15 years at Wake Forest. After that, they went on to dominate the game with 10 of 12 first-half field goals, including five in a row.

Wake Forest's defense held Kentucky to 2-39 shooting in the first half and 21 of 51 in the second half. The Demon Deacons shot 17 of 37 in the second half and 46 of 72 overall.

"We felt we had a good chance of winning before the game," Wake Forest coach Linda Hillman said. "But when we started the second half, we put the game away." Hillman added 11 points and 13 blocked shots.

Arkansas scored the last 12 points of the game, including 7-2 in the final two minutes.

"They're a great team," Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall said. "They make you work for every shot."

"They're a great team," Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall said. "They make you work for every shot."

Wake Forest made just 2 of 16 three-pointers, including 1 of 9 in the second half.

"They're a great team," Kentucky coach Joe B. Hall said. "They make you work for every shot."
Young Floyd grabs Senior Skins title

By KEN PETERS

KOHALA COAST, Hawaii

Raymond Floyd missed three birdees tries as the stakes and the tension mounted Sunday in the Senior Skins Game, then rolled in an 8-footer at No. 17 to win the richest hole — $290,000 — in skins history.

The birdie put for more than a quarter-million dollars came after Arnold Palmer had missed from 10 feet and Jack Nicklaus from 14 feet at the par-4, 411-yard 17th hole and gave Floyd the Senior Skins title for the second consecutive year.

Floyd also led the first day of the 1995 tournament, with $130,000. His $420,000 total, like his single-hole earnings at No. 17, was the most money won in a skins competition either on the Senior Tour or the PGA Tour.

At 52 the youngest member of foursome, three years younger than Nicklaus and Lee Trevino and 13 years younger than Palmer, Floyd dominated the event over the Mauna Lani Resort course by winning 14 skins.

Nicklaus won the other four skins and $120,000, including $40,000 by sinking a putt for an eagle-3 at the final hole. He won two holes, including a prize money carryover at No. 7, the first day.

Palmer, who had won two of the past three Senior Skins, could not make the money puts this time, including his birdie try at No. 17. Trevino, coming back from November neck surgery, was not at full strength and had to compensate with lower club selections to make up for his lack of distance.

The gollers grew more serious and intense while considering more serious money piled up the first seven holes Sunday were tied. The pressure showed on the greens.

Floyd missed a 20-foot birdeee try at No. 11, with $60,000 at stake. He missed a 10-footer at No. 14, at $170,000 up for grabs. Then at No. 16, he could not make an 8-foot birdeee putt that would have won him $250,000.

He made up for all that on the next hole. Trevino was away and left his 24-foot short at No. 17. Nicklaus rolled his ball dead on line, but it stopped 4 inches short of the hole. Palmer, setting up over the putt once, then stopping and backing off to set up again, hit his putt off-line too short.

Floyd, meanwhile, played a little break to the right, rolled the ball at precisely the proper pace and it dropped into the center of the hole.

Floyd and Trevino had halved No. 10 with birdies Sunday. Nicklaus and Palmer birdied No. 13, and the other holes leading to the drama at No. 17 all were tied with pars.

Signing freeze on agenda when talks resume

By RONALD BLUM

NEW YORK

Baseball players will start arriving in Washington on Monday for a meeting of the union's executive board that will be followed by the resumption of negotiations with owners.

Mediator W.J. Usery has called for talks to resume Wednesday. On Tuesday, the union's board will discuss whether to continue the signing freeze. No player has signed a major league contract since owners implemented their salary cap plan Dec. 23.

Some agents, most notably Scott Boras, want the freeze to end. The agents who represent the most players, Jim Bronner and Bob Gilhooley, and Randy and Alan Hendricks, want it to continue.

"I don't know what's going to happen," said Eugene Orza, the union's No. 2 official. "I don't believe there is an overwhelming majority one way or the other. All the pros and cons of continuing it and ending it are going to be discussed." Union leader Donald Fehr hasn't given his opinion publicly, but he is said to think that continuing the freeze will help the union's case in Congress and the courts. A complete rejection of the system by players prevents clubs from forming the rosters they intend to use once the strike ends and keeps all the striking players under the same rules.

The 38 restricted free agents initially would be hurt most if the freeze continues. In order to switch teams, they must sign offer sheets by Feb. 6, allowing 10 days for their current clubs to match the offers by the Feb. 15 deadline.

The restricted free agents include pitchers Steve Avery, Andy Hawkins, Alex Fernandez, Ken Hill, Ramon Martinez, Jack McDowell, Kenny Rogers and John Wetteland. Boras represents Avery, Benes, Fernandez and Rogers.

Hill and outfielder Marquis Grissom are thought to have agreed orally to deals with the Florida Marlins, Hill for $25 million over five years and Grissom for $27.5 million over five years.

If they can't sign by Feb. 6 — which coincidentally is the deadline President Clinton has set for progress — owners say they can't switch teams under their new system.

A player's current club could then make what's called a "final tender," offering at least a 10 percent raise over what his 1994 earnings would have been without a strike. If the club did that, the player would be considered signed for 1995. But the union says the strike won't end until players got an "appropriate" deal. If that's the case, whatever new system is agreed to will have other rules and different deadlines.

Spring Break Seminars
March 12-18, 1995 Experiential/Service Learning Center for Social Concerns

APPALACHIA SEMINAR
— Service Learning at one of ten sites in the Appalachian region
— One credit Theology

MIGRANT EXPERIENCES SEMINAR
— Work in the fields with migrant workers
— Assist agencies that serve migrants
— One credit Theology

ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUES SEMINAR
— Examine recycling, solid waste centers directly
— Consider ethical aspects of environmental concerns
— One credit, Chicago-based seminar

WASHINGTON SEMINAR
Our Violent Society
— Direct contact with political, agency, and church leaders in Washington, D.C.
— Service and political awareness opportunities
— One-credit Theology or Government

Applications Available Now at the CSC
Application Deadline Extended for all Seminars until Thursday, February 2, 1995, 10:00 p.m.

“THE FINEST IN OFF-CAMPUS HOUSING”

—FOUR AND FIVE BEDROOM TOWNHOMES
—TWO BATHROOMS
—SECURITY SYSTEMS
—KITCHENS WITH DISHWASHER, WASHING MACHINE
—DISPOSAL, REFRIGERATOR, AND RANGE
—WASHER AND DRYER IN EACH UNIT
—GAS HEAT
—CENTRAL AIR CONDITIONING
—PROFESSIONAL MANAGEMENT
—24 HOUR MAINTENANCE
—ONE MILE FROM THE NOTRE DAME CAMPUS

NOW LEASING FOR NEXT SCHOOL YEAR

232-8256

Monday, January 30, 1995

The Observer • SPORTS

page 13
Penguins stay perfect, Flyers earn draw

By DAVID GINSBURG
Associated Press

LANCASTER, Pa.  It appears as if the Pittsburgh Penguins have adjusted quite nicely to life without Mario Lemieux.

Jaromir Jagr extended his goal-scoring streak to five games, and had two assists Sunday as the Penguins kept their perfect record intact by beating the Washington Capitals 4-1.

Kevin Stevens, Jagr and Ron Francis scored in the opening 7:44 to propel the Penguins to their fifth straight win, including four on the road. Pittsburgh and Quebec are the only remaining unbeaten teams in the NHL.

Lemieux decided in August to take a medical leave of absence and sit out the entire season. While it seemed certain that the Penguins would surely miss his offensive prowess, such has not been the case — not yet, anyway.

"The guys who were expected to score have been doing the scoring for us," coach Ed Johnston said. "The guys we’ve got have blended in very well for us and we have become a closer-knit club."

Jagr has five goals and a team-best nine points for the league’s most prolific offense (23 goals). The 22-year-old forward has scored in 14 straight games dating back to last season.

He has not carried the weight alone. Stevens has four goals, while Francis and John Cullen have points in every game.

The Penguins have endured stretches without Lemieux before, but this time is different because they know he won’t be back to work his magic.

"It’s a great opportunity for the forwards," said defensemen Larry Murphy. "They’ve played well in the past, but we’ve always been looking for Mario to come through the door. Now they know they’re going to get ice time if they play well because we aren’t going to see Mario this year."

Pittsburgh also had to deal with the absence goaltender Tom Barrasso, who underwent surgery on his right wrist on Jan. 20. He hasn’t been missed, either, because Ken Wregget improved to 5-0 by stopping 30 shots Sunday.

"We understand what Mario and Tom mean to the team and we know they’re not going to be there, but we also understand what we have to do to fill the void," Jagr said.

The only shot that eluded Wregget was a power-play goal by rookie Jason Allison with 9:01 remaining.

"I’m not putting any extra pressure on myself," Wregget said. "I know what I can do and I know what the guys can do."

The Capitals’ power-play power went 1-for-8, falling twice in a 5-on-3 situation, and is just 4-for-35 this season. Washington played the final two periods without leading scorer Joe Juneau, who aggravated a hip flexor.

"We were very erratic," coach Jim Schoenfeld said. "More than that, we made some mental mistakes that cost us and had some guys who didn’t show up to play. When that happens, there’s no way we can win."

Capitals defensemen Sylvain Cote said Washington probably didn’t expect the Penguins to be so good without Lemieux.

"I don’t think we took Pittsburgh’s offense seriously," he said. "I thought we weren’t as aggressive as we should have been."

Pittsburgh scored on its first shot against Washington goaltender Olaf Kolzig. Cullen threaded a pass between two defenders at the blue line to the streaking Stevens, who turned the breakaway into his fourth goal at 2:20. Jagr then converted a 5-on-3, scoring on the rebound of a blast by Murphy at 4:06. Francis made it three goals in five Pittsburgh shots when he beat Kolzig from the right circle.

"Down 3-0 that quickly, it’s tough mentally to come back from that," Kolzig said.

It became 4-0 at 5:20 of the second period when Jagr sent a centering pass to Luc Robitaille, who deflected Kolzig before scoring on the glove-side.
NEW YORK

Patrick Ewing had 35 points and 15 rebounds as the New York Knicks used their physical defense to shut down the league's highest-scoring offense, beating the Phoenix Suns 107-88 Sunday.

Phoenix's total was a season low, as the Suns saw a seven-game winning streak snapped.

New York also ended the Suns' team record road streak at nine victories.

It also was the Suns' first loss in 10 games against an Atlantic Conference team.

After getting outscored 17-5 to end the first half, Phoenix continued to sputter in the third period as the Knicks went on a 19-8 run. By the time the game began, New York had a 69-50 lead. Ewing had eight points during the spurt and 12 points in the quarter.

John Starks added 22 points for the Knicks. Anthony Mason had 19 rebounds for the Knicks, who dominated the boards 63-36.

The victory avenged a 21-point loss Dec. 16 at Phoenix and New York bounced back from a 15-point setback at Charlotte Friday.

Danny Ainge's 22 points paced Phoenix, and Charles Barkley had 20 and nine rebounds, but only two points in the second half.

Rattled by the Knicks' defense, the Suns couldn't hit from inside or outside and trailed 79-58 going into the fourth quarter. They missed layups and jams, shot airballs from 3-point range.

The closest Phoenix got during fourth quarter was 11 points, after Elliot Perry and Dan Majerle hit consecutive 3-pointers and Ainge sank two free throws.

Andersen Consulting grew on the average of 20% per year.

It could be the difference between getting ahead. And hanging your head.

Andersen Consulting will be conducting both full time and summer intern interviews on February 6. Please see Career and Placement Services for details.

Will your company grow as fast as you do?

Almost every company's recruiting ad promises you rapid growth. But before making any decisions, ask them how fast they're growing. After all, you're going to have trouble moving up if your company isn't.

Over the last five years, while economic conditions have staid many organizations, Andersen Consulting grew on the average of 20% per year.

Compare that figure to any other firm you're considering. It could be the difference between getting ahead And hanging your head.

Andersen Consulting will be conducting both full time and summer intern interviews on February 6. Please see Career and Placement Services for details.

Suffocating defense

shuts down Suns

By WENDY E. LANE

Bulls, Pippen rout Warriors

By RICK GANO

Associated Press

CHICAGO

Scottie Pippen returned from a one-game suspension to score 27 points, and B.J. Armstrong had 16 in the first quarter Sunday as the Chicago Bulls started quickly and routed the Golden State Warriors 116-94.

Pippen was suspended and fined for throwing a chair across the United Center floor last week after he'd been ejected from a game against San Antonio.

But Sunday was he in complete control against the outmanned Warriors. He didn't holler, he just played, making 9-of-13 shots, collecting 11 rebounds and handing out eight assists.

Armstrong hit his first five shots and seven of 17 in the opening quarter as the Bulls bolted to a 33-13 lead after one period. Armstrong finished the game with 19 points.

Golden State, losing for the 12th time in 14 games, played without Chris Mullin, Tony Seikaly and Ricky Pierce, all out with injuries.

Tim Hardaway led the Warriors with 18 points and Latrell Sprewell, bothered by a sprained right foot, had 12.

The Bulls built the lead to 69-39 at the half. Pippen scored 11 of his 19 first-half points in the second quarter and finished the half with nine rebounds and seven assists.

Chicago, which has still won only three of its last nine games, shot 53 percent in the opening half to only 32 percent for the Warriors.

The lead ballooned to 102-65 with one quarter to play. The Bulls led by as many as 39 points. Pippen was removed from the game with 2:48 to play in the third and didn't return.

TUESDAY'S SUPER BOWL SCHEDULE

The first round of Super Bowl tickets for the first time will go on sale Tuesday.

They will be available from Super Bowl Ticketing, a joint venture of the NFL, the office of the Super Bowl host city and the professional sports service company Ticketmaster.

Tickets are available for the game Dec. 13 in Pasadena, Calif., between the New York Giants, an NFC East team, and the New England Patriots, a AFC East team.

Tickets are $125 for the general United Center section and $250 for the reserved section.

Tickets can be purchased at Ticketmaster outlets in Chicago, at United Center box offices and by calling Ticketmaster at 312-827-3333.

For more information call Super Bowl Ticketing at 317-952-3333.

NBA

Chargers lose down the middle

By STEVEN WINE

Associated Press

MIAMI

San Francisco beat San Diego every which way and down the middle most of all.

Twice in the first five minutes of Sunday's Super Bowl, quarterback Steve Young chose the middle. It worked.

Twice in the first five minutes of Sunday's Super Bowl, quarterback Steve Young chose the middle. It worked.

Twice in the first five minutes of Sunday's Super Bowl, quarterback Steve Young chose the middle. It worked.

Twice in the first five minutes of Sunday's Super Bowl, quarterback Steve Young chose the middle. It worked.

Twice in the first five minutes of Sunday's Super Bowl, quarterback Steve Young chose the middle. It worked.

Twice in the first five minutes of Sunday's Super Bowl, quarterback Steve Young chose the middle. It worked.

Twice in the first five minutes of Sunday's Super Bowl, quarterback Steve Young chose the middle. It worked.

Twice in the first five minutes of Sunday's Super Bowl, quarterback Steve Young chose the middle. It worked.
Young shines as 49ers win fifth Bowl

By DAVE GOLDBERG
Associated Press

MIAMI

Steve Young huged the Super Bowl trophy as if it was the most precious thing in the world to him.

It is. Young obliterated the shadow of Joe Montana that had haunted him for five years with a record six touchdown passes as the San Francisco 49ers over­whelmed San Diego 49-26 Sunday, became the first team ever to win five Super Bowls.

Then he finally released the emotion that he’s bottled up all season.

“All along I felt like I was playing well but I never had this game to fall back on,” said Young, a two-time league MVP, but labled a “loser” because the Niners fell a game short the last two years when they lost to Dallas in the NFC title game.

“Steve Young proved that he is truly the greatest quarter­back of all time,” said Delon Sanders, who brought the Niners the in-your-face attitude and finally got the Super ring he sought.

If ever a Super Bowl lived up to its billing, this one did. It was supposed to be a rout and it was, as an NFC team won for the 11th straight year. San Francisco was fast finding 18 points and could have won by 55 if it hadn’t released after going up 35-10 early in the third quarter.

“We knew we were gonna kick their butt but we couldn’t say nothing,” Sanders said. “They never had a chance to beat us. The real Super Bowl was last week against Dallas.”

But Sanders wasn’t the show.

“His six TD passes broke the Super Bowl record of five five years ago by Montana, who led San Francisco to its four titles. Terry Rice, playing with the flu and a shoulder separ­ation, caught three of them and Ricky Watters caught two more and ran 9 yards for a third score.

“This is something you’ll never forget,” Rice told Young as the quarterback cradled the Vince Lombardi Trophy after the game.

Young agreed.

“You can’t describe the feel­ing. That’s why we’re the ultimate team game,” he said.

“When you get there, you share it with 50 other guys. It’s geo­metric — 50 times 50 — the elation you feel is just gro­tto.

Young, the unanimous MVP, finished 24-for-36 for 325 yards without an interception. He also was the game’s leading rusher with 49 yards on five carries before leaving with 5:39 left.

That overshadowed all kinds of achievements, including the record-tying three TDs by Young and Watters and the record set by linebacker Ken Norton, who after winning two titles with Dallas signed with the 49ers as a free agent, and became the first player ever to play on three straight Super Bowl winners.

It took exactly 4 minutes and 55 seconds for San Francisco to demoralize the Chargers, playing in their Super Bowl for the first time. Touchdown passes by Young of 44 yards to Rice and 31 yards to Watters did the trick.

But more important to Young, it was a smashing vindication in his exorcism of Montana’s ghost. More important to the 49ers, it completed the single­ minded mission of winning the Super Bowl after losing the NFC title game three of the last four years.

Young demonstrated his elation after his fifth TD, a 15- yarder to Rice. He celebrated lying on the ground with his arms сигналы and an 8-yard pass to Rice tumbled into the end zone.

But those two were only part of what may be the best offense ever.

“That’s the best offense you’re probably ever gonna see,” Seau said. “They give you a lot of mixtures of run and pass but that passing game is one in 1,000.”

“They’re the best I’ve ever seen,” said San Diego coach Bobby Ross.

And the three TDs each by Rice and Watters was another reminder — the only other players to score three touchdowns in a Super Bowl were both 49ers — Rice in 1990 and Roger Craig in 1985.

Rice, who twice received intravenous fluids before the game for flu-like symptoms and then played most of the game with a slightly separated shoul­der, caught 10 passes for 149 yards, and administered the quick shock — splitting the San Diego secondary for the first TD just 1.54 into the game. He also caught second-half TD passes of 15 and 7 yards.

“Jerry Rice with one arm is better than anyone else with two arms,” Young said.

But it was the quick TD that probably squeaked all the thoughts the Chargers, 18-point underdogs, might have had of an upset.

“We’ve scored quick like that all year,” Young said. “That’s one of our strong points.”

Largest teams in their first Super Bowl, they clearly had the jitters.

They dropped passes, took silly penalties, missed tackles and generally did what most AFC teams have done over the past 11 years — lose big. Only two of the 11 straight AFC teams have won. The average margin in the first 10 was 38- 15. Coincidentally, that was the score by which the 49ers beat the Chargers on Dec. 11 in a regular-season game in San Diego.

“I don’t know whether we were the best or what,” Ross said.

The highlight for the Chargers was the 21-yard scam­ble by Young, the fourth a 51-yard TD run.

Welcome Back to the Interfaith Campus Ministry Study
Old Members and New Ones
Meeting

When: Tuesday, January 31, 7:00 p.m.
Where: Conference Room / Badin Hall Campus Ministry Office
What: Discussion on Matthew Ch. 15 - 16.
Fr. Al D’Alonzo, Director
For more information, call 631-5242
All-around effort destroys UWM

Senior captain reaches 1000th point plateau

By K.C. GOYER
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame women's basketball team had a roll call scoring effort Friday night as every player contributed to the 96-50 win over the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

First on the list was senior co-captain Letitia Bowen. The game started at 7:00 pm Friday night with Coach McGraw presenting Bowen with the game ball with which she became Notre Dame's all time leading rebounder.

Four minutes later, the whistle blew for the jump ball to start the game, and Bowen was just 5 points shy of the point milestone in her career. By 7:06 pm, she was the 10th player in the history of Notre Dame women's basketball to accumulate 4 digits.

Bowen hit two free throws immediately after the tip. The next trip down the floor, Bowen was 18 games. She got a chance as the Irish went 9-0 run early to set up a comfortable 18-5 lead. Notre Dame outscored the Panthers 49-25 both halves of the game.

The Irish full court press was their deadly weapon as they stole the ball 23 times in comparison to their opponent's 4. "We wanted to key on the transition game," McGraw said. "This was a chance for us to put our name on the ball every time it went up as she grabbed a game high 11 rebounds. Poor also contributed 7 points.

Wisconsin Milwaukee never got a chance as the Irish went on a 9-0 run early to set up a comfortable 18-5 lead. Notre Dame outscored the Panthers 49-25 both halves of the game.

The Irish full court press was their deadly weapon as they stole the ball 23 times in comparison to their opponent's 4.

"Based on available cash line.

WE'RE LOOKING OUT FOR YOU.
To apply, call 1-800-CITIBANK.
Greg Janson pointed to the Irish's 16-year old kids from just four that area. "Right now, we're deficient in that area."

Notre Dame's guards have grown up. Led by junior's ballhawking defense, the Irish forced 18 Eagle miscues and committed just seven. The Irish scored 18 points off turnovers, while Boston College managed -18 points in the Irish's 74-68 win over Boston College, including two key three-point baskets to defeat two-second-half rallies.

Twice he hit three-pointers to guard," Notre Dame coach John MacLeod said. "I'd like to think our defense was responsible for some of their problems. In the first half, we were particularly aggressive."

Notre Dame got 16 of those 18 points off turnovers in the first half, leading by as much as 11 before Boston College cut the lead to seven at halftime. The margin hovered between five and seven for most of the entire second half, with Hoover hindering any Eagles' charge. Twice he hit his three-pointers to defeat second-half rallies.

"It felt like we were taking an awful lot of threes," said Hoover, who finished 6-for-15 from behind the arc, "I think our defense was responsible for some of their problems. In the first half, we were particularly aggressive."

Notre Dame's guards have grown up. Led by Justice's ballhawking defense, the Irish were able to pick up the slack for some of their problems. "They gave us a lot of different looks (defensively). We had the chance to cave in but we didn't." WHAT NEXT?: After success in the first half, we were partic-

Irish heart condition, known as Wolff-Parkinson-White Syndrome, was discovered about two weeks ago and he underwent surgery last Tuesday. He was expected to rejoin the team only a week or 10 days after the operation, but the illness will sideline him a little longer. "He's having a heck of a time," MacLeod said. "He needs a break."
CROSSWORD

ACROSS
1. Came up
2. Good farm soil
3. Son of Seth
4. 1981 John Lennon hit
5. Formerly
6. Songbird
7. "Blithe Spirit" playwright
9. Wearing out point for pants
10. Creek
11. Not much time downpour
12. Pitcher
13. Hebrew dry
14. "For 25 bucks I'll shovel a path to your snow blower."
15. Formerly
16. Point for pants
46. Within: Prefix
47. Kind of hammer
48. Succinct
49. Ty comforts
50. Cut
51. On Bateam
52. Morgue counterparts
53. "Aloe" diner
54. Pussey
55. Round of
56. Neither check in love
58. Tie fabric
59. Bills solo
60. Varieties (now Burkina brand)
61. Military awards
62. Polly, to Tom
63. Fast planes
64. Lilies
65. Song
66. Seasonal work
67. Come out even
68. Bridge feat
69. Heinz number
70. Happening
71. "O - Night!"
72. "Once in Love"

DOWN
1. Bristles
2. "Cheer (for)"
3. Helen's dry martini
4. City of witch hunts
5. Pitch tents
6. Temperature extreme
7. -- even keel
8. Lots of lots
9. Military awards
10. Artifact animal
11. Not much time
12. Pitcher
13. Calendar a la Variety
14. Eggs and cheese dish
15. Aquarium fish
16. 1965 March site
17. Lm lowi--
18. Muffin, e.g.
19. Boats
20. Misty
21. "Not guilty,"
22. Aquarium fish
23. Steak
24. "A" resolution
25. Tugboat
26. 1965 March site
27. Lm lowi--
28. Agreements
29. Miss Barrymore
30. Love -- downpour
31. Astronaut Shepard et al.
32. "No, no!"
33. "Please don't -- up" (now Burkinia Faso)
34. TV newsman David
35. "I'm --"
36. Dream of India
37. Lilas
38. Muffin, e.g.
39. Boats
40. Fat East weight
41. Poly., to Tom
42. Fast planes
43. "Once in Love"
44. "Once in Love"
45. "Kaleidoscope"
46. "One of the --"
47. "Come out even"

ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE

- DILBERT

- FONDLES

- CALVIN AND HOBBES

- BILL Watterson

- SCOTT ADAMS

- MIKE PETERS

- CLOSE TO HOME

- JOHN McPHERSON

- THE OBSERVER

- TODAY

- LONGFORM

- THE DEPARTMENT OF RESIDENCE LIFE and Housing at Saint Mary's College announces the 1995-96 Resident Advisor Selection Process. Applications are available at 178 LaMans Hall. Applications are due February 3 by 4:30pm. For more information contact Steve Orr at 284-4522.

- CASH meeting Monday February 6th in the Montgomery Theatre in LaFortune. All interested welcome. Any questions call Stella Apollinaris 84989.

- "Crossing the Racial Divide: Relations, Marriages, and the Sexually Mixed" 7:30pm, Mon. January 30 in the Library Auditorium. Mr Terry F. Wilson from UC Berkeley. Reception immediately following."

- "Prelaw Society Meeting: What should juniors and seniors be doing NOW? Nominations for the new prelaw offices and a discussion of Prelaw Society aims will be the topics of the meeting. Refreshments will be provided at 7pm Monday, January 30 in 120 Law School.

- Notre Dame

- North Dining Hall

- Hunan Sweet & Sour Chicken

- BBQ ribs

- Chocolate Cream Pie

- South Dining Hall

- Turkey Rice Soup

- German Chocolate Cake

- Saint Mary's College

- Mediterranean Potluck

- Roasted Sweet Potatoes

- Bavarian Green Beans

---

Celebrate a friend's birthday with a special surprise: an Observer ad!
Men's Basketball

Eagles get a taste of new east

Turnovers, experience give rival BC a look at soon-to-be conference foe

By JASON KELLY

One of Notre Dame's new neighbors visited Saturday hearing gifts.

Boston College welcomed the Irish to the Big East early, offering 18 turnovers as a housewarming present that Notre Dame translated into a 74-68 win.

It won't always be that easy. Boston College represents the bottom of the Big East, but for this year at least, Notre Dame can brag about a perfect record against conference competition.

"They've seemingly more ready to play in this league than we are," Boston College coach Jim O'Brien joked, "and we've been in it since it started."

As for the more immediate concerns, the Irish improved to 12-7 behind 20 points from Ryan Huoer and a season-high 17 from Billy Taylor. But the biggest basket belonged to Lamarr Justice, who rolled in a leaner as the shot clock expired with 3:27 left, giving Notre Dame a 69-63 lead.

Without that basket, Boston College could have trimmed the lead to two after trailing by nine just four minutes earlier.

"We put ourselves in a position to win, but we were never able to come up with the big basket or the big stop," O'Brien said.

Turnovers told a big part of the story, as they were never able to come up with the big basket or the big stop, O'Brien said. Turnovers told a big part of the story, as they are often do in games involving Notre Dame. This time, though, it was the opponent consistently coughing up the ball.

Without trusted freshman point guard Chris Herren, who injured his wrist early this season, the Boston College backcourt resembles, well, some Irish teams of the recent past.

Hockey

Losing skid halted

By MICHAEL DAY

There just might be a light at the end of the tunnel for the Notre Dame hockey team after all. And it's possible that one may not even need an electron microscope to see it.

Indeed, things finally fell into place for the Irish on Saturday night, as they thoroughly dominated Ferris State on their way to snapping a five game losing streak with a 7-2 victory.

Junior Brett Bruinius and sophomore Terry Lorenz led the way with two goals apiece, but it was a complete team effort that got the job done before 2257 fans at Ewigleben Ice Arena in Big Rapids, Michigan.

"We definitely came out ready to play," said Lorenz. "We were due to have a big game, and fortunately, everybody played well from start to finish."

After falling behind early in a 6-3 loss to Lake Superior State on Friday, Notre Dame was determined to jump out to a quick start against the Bulldogs. And that's exactly what they did.

Just 34 seconds into the game, the Irish took advantage of some sloppy FSU play at the defensive end to go up 1-0. Lorenz found freshman Kyle Andrusiak wide open on the right side, and Andrusiak subsequently slid the puck past Bulldog goaltender Rich Nagy for his seventh goal of the year.

Junior Brett Bruinius and sophomore Terry Lorenz led the way with two goals apiece, but it was a complete team effort that got the job done before 2257 fans at Ewigleben Ice Arena in Big Rapids, Michigan.

"We definitely came out ready to play," said Lorenz. "We were due to have a big game, and fortunately, everybody played well from start to finish."

After falling behind early in a 6-3 loss to Lake Superior State on Friday, Notre Dame was determined to jump out to a quick start against the Bulldogs. And that's exactly what they did.

Just 34 seconds into the game, the Irish took advantage of some sloppy FSU play at the defensive end to go up 1-0. Lorenz found freshman Kyle Andrusiak wide open on the right side, and Andrusiak subsequently slid the puck past Bulldog goaltender Rich Nagy for his seventh goal of the year.

Junior Brett Bruinius and sophomore Terry Lorenz led the way with two goals apiece, but it was a complete team effort that got the job done before 2257 fans at Ewigleben Ice Arena in Big Rapids, Michigan.

"We definitely came out ready to play," said Lorenz. "We were due to have a big game, and fortunately, everybody played well from start to finish."

After falling behind early in a 6-3 loss to Lake Superior State on Friday, Notre Dame was determined to jump out to a quick start against the Bulldogs. And that's exactly what they did.

Just 34 seconds into the game, the Irish took advantage of some sloppy FSU play at the defensive end to go up 1-0. Lorenz found freshman Kyle Andrusiak wide open on the right side, and Andrusiak subsequently slid the puck past Bulldog goaltender Rich Nagy for his seventh goal of the year.

Andrusiak's goal set the tone for the Irish. With 16:35 remaining in the first period, the Irish struck again, as Bruiniaks sent Nagy to the showers with his eighth goal of the season to put the Irish up 2-0.

New goaltender, same result. Freshman Jeff Blashill replaced Nagy only to be greeted by junior center Jamie Ling's tenth goal and 34th point of the year. Defenseman Garry Grubker and left wing Jamie Moreshead were credited with assists on the play that gave the Irish an insurmountable 3-0 lead.

Bowen tops century mark

The senior captain sets a milestone as the Irish destroy the Panthers of UWM

By TIM SHERMAN

O'Brien joked, "and we've been in it since it started."

As for the more immediate concerns, the Irish improved to 12-7 behind 20 points from Ryan Huoer and a season-high 17 from Billy Taylor. But the biggest basket belonged to Lamarr Justice, who rolled in a leaner as the shot clock expired with 3:27 left, giving Notre Dame a 69-63 lead.

Without that bucket, Boston College could have trimmed the lead to two after trailing by nine just four minutes earlier.

"We put ourselves in a position to win, but we were never able to come up with the big basket or the big stop," O'Brien said.

Turnovers told a big part of the story, as they were never able to come up with the big basket or the big stop, O'Brien said. Turnovers told a big part of the story, as they are often do in games involving Notre Dame. This time, though, it was the opponent consistently coughing up the ball.

Without trusted freshman point guard Chris Herren, who injured his wrist early this season, the Boston College backcourt resembles, well, some Irish teams of the recent past.

Irish perfect in Big East... for this year

By TIM SHERMAN

With Saturday's 74-68 victory over Boston College, Notre Dame finished its Big East regular season with an undefeated record. 1-0.

O'Brien practices what he preaches, as his current crop of freshman was a consensus top ten recruiting class according to those who profess to know such things. However, he understated the Irish.

The Notre Dame class of 1998 thus far has been just as impressive as B.C.'s. Although the trio of Pat Garrity, Derek Mannner, and Brian Watkins had their troubles during Saturday's win, they have been a pleasant surprise. Along with a handful of other youngsters such as Marcus "the mason of the charity stripe" Young, they have shown that they can compete next season in the Big East, traditionally, one of the nation's strongest conferences.

"They will match up pretty well (in the Big