SMC establishes Justice Studies as new program

By PEGGY LENCZEWSKI
Same University's News Editor

Most social action programs start out very small: a group of people see a problematic situation and take steps to change it. At Saint Mary’s, a small, dynamic group of students and faculty came together in 1979 in order to deal with issues concerning social justice. Out of this small movement grew the Justice Studies Program, an interdisciplinary group of students and faculty which has been offered as a minor since 1985.

Esteem Bollatta serves as Justice Education Program Coordinator and says that a number of factors "cohered over a short period of time. "It happened coincidental with the beginning of the Church called for people to have more social responsibility, and to actually be the Church," she said. Because of this mandate, the lay community became involved, and there was a very strong feeling that anyone in higher education should provide leadership in social issues.

According to Bollatta, the Sis­ters of the Holy Cross has always involved them in social justice issues, but during the 1980’s, different colleges around the country were responding to a growing con­cern about social issues. The Justice Education Program seeks to fuse the theories and princi­ples of modern day social justice and the actual practices that lead to social justice.

However, what is unique about the Justice Education Program at Saint Mary’s is that it began within the college, it was not implemented by any administrators. "We always worked hard as a group of professors to come from within the college, " said Bollatta.

What is also unique about the Justice Education Program is that Res­idents Advisory Board, which has administrative oversight over the Social Justice Program, became a major group at Saint Mary’s that also deals with social and spiritual justice issues is that the program emphasizes a "tight relationship between theory and practice."

MIA MIAMI

Forecasters had to enlist extra help Tuesday to track four storms swirling in the open Atlantic in the busiest hurricane season in more than 60 years.

The National Hurricane Center sent both of its tracking airplanes to storm-chasing missions and got help from the National Oceanographic and Atmospheric Administration and the Air Force, whose planes provided close looks at the storms.

Two of the storms come down to the fact that it's been quite a while since we've had this active of a season, and there really isn't a lot of experience to go on," said Mike Hopkins, a forecaster at the Miami center.

The workshop doubled Monday, when Tropical Storm Karen and Luis developed rapidly in the far eastern Atlantic near the African coast, joining Hurricanes Iris and Humberto, both about a week old.

Karen and Luis became the 11th and 12th storms in the 1995 season, tying a 1933 record for the number of named storms formed so early.

VATICAN CITY

The American leading the Vatican's delegation to the U.N. where an observance was to be held Tuesday said she will work to build a consensus in the assembly where the U.S. position is expected to clash with the pontiff's. Vatican delegates were due to depart Wednesday to attend the Sept. 4-15 U.N. Conference on Population and Development in Florence.

"It's important to have a good presence at the conference," said John Paul, who told them. "For weeks, John Paul II shook hands and chatted with delegation head Mary Ann Glendon, a Harvard law professor, and others in the 25-member team, which includes eight Americans. "It's so important to have a good presence at the conference," John Paul II told them.

For weeks, John Paul II has been making clear that the Vatican will aggressively wage its campaign against abortion, forced sterilization, contraceptive use and other women's issues during the Beijing forum.

MAN arrested for camera foulplay

A lawyer in town to lecture on sexual harassment said last week he was especially concerned about the instant camera up her skirt and a picture. When the same "creep" did it to her again about 10 minutes later Friday, three to five young men chased him down and pinned him in the parking lot, she said, and the police were called. "I'd say it's slightly more than ironic to be there discussing sexual harassment and the workplace and to have this happen," said 43-year-old Diana R. Scott of Los Angeles. Richard Marquez, 38, was arrested on charges of creating a public nuisance and disorderly conduct.

"It's a very, very good job and I was wearing a very short skirt — was browsing in a shop. When she heard a whirring click, she said she turned around and spotted a man hunched over up her skirt. She said the man ran out, but when she heard the click again, she got angry. "I'm not sure what happened but here we were running through the store," she said. "I was yelling, 'Stop that guy!'" Police Capt. Ray Rael said officers had photographs on the man, and Scott identified herself as one of several subjects in the photos. Rael said the man was photographing women's underwear. "I went up and pointed to him and said, 'That's my boy,'" Scott said. "It just shows you have to do more than just talk about issues, you have to be pro-active."

The unmanned Galileo spacecraft heading for Jupiter is plowing through a dust storm, the heaviest it has encountered on its interplanetary voyage. Scientists aren't sure whether the electrically charged dust comes from a volcano on Jupiter's moon Io, from particle rings that circle the giant planet or from the Comet Shoemaker-Levy 9, which crashed into Jupiter's cloudy atmosphere last year. The need to instill a judicial board in all dorms was the focus of discussion at the first Hall Presidents Council meeting held yesterday evening at Siegfried Hall.

Tom Matzzie, judicial board chairman, spoke about student government's desire to instigate judicial boards campus-wide. "The judicial board serves as a way to settle dorm issues without having to go through Student Affairs. Every hall should have a board and a representative from every dorm to discuss matters with others across campus. If you don’t have one, we would be more than willing to help you start one, because we would really like to get every dorm going on this," Matzzie said.

Kristin Beary and Matt Schlatter, co-presidents of HPC, stated their desire to re-start a tradition that has been out of practice since 1977, called the Rockne Award. "We are still working on whether we have rights to the name, but in 1977-78 a 4-foot statue was passed around to whichever dorm had the most innovative ideas and events. It would be a monthly competition on which all the presidents would decide which dorm deserved the award," Schlatter said.

HPC has not yet decided which committees will be active this year, but it disposed the 24-hour space and security committees, deciding that Student Senate’s committees of these same names were more effective. Possible ideas for new committees included campus improvement and integration for the new dorms on West Quad.

"We have lately been making committees for the sole reason that everyone can then serve on one. I think it would be a lot better if we only had the committees that we need," said Gayle Spencer, supervisor of HPC.

From the budget, HPC had $12,000, so each dorm was allotted $500. Matching funds from Student Residences will also be given. In the attempt to improve gender relations among Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s students, a representative from Saint Mary’s will attend each HPC meeting. HPC members were also encouraged to attend Saint Mary’s hall meetings.

"We would like to improve things on a smaller scale rather than trying things campus-wide because that will change things a lot," said Samantha Manfiof rte, representative for Saint Mary’s. HPC intends to raise money for the Heartwalk, giving charity to a Notre Dame volunteer program in Jamaica, and helping out with a Madison elementary school project in upcoming weeks.

She has received grants from the British Council and the DAAD (German Academic Exchange Service). A former Fulbright scholar at SUNY at Albany, she has published articles on African drama, women's literature, and distance learning as well as serving as an editor of a number of books and journals.

"This is very exciting for the college, especially if we can turn this exploration into a pattern with other African Universities," said Dr. William Hickey, president of Saint Mary's. "She's a wonderful addition."

Dr. Lynonga, who was invited to give a lecture at Saint Mary's by the office of Multicultural Affairs in 1993, said she was excited about the upcoming school year. When asked if she would be attending any Notre Dame football games she said, "Definitely. I do want to go and get into the spirit and experience Saint Mary's and Notre Dame at the fullest."

"We try very hard to avoid the attitude that we have so much and others have so little. People usually know what they need and our students' role is to help them get it. "We're trying to encourage the students that this is a permanent way of being."

There are usually between eight to thirteen students in the Justice Education program at any one time. The program is run by several committees that consist of students and faculty. The faculty largely serves on a volunteer basis. Currently George Try from the Philosophy Department and Joe Incandella from the Religious Studies Department are serving in the Justice Studies Program.

Postal employee wounds 2

Mail clerk opens fire in Chicago suburb

By CLIFF EDWARDS
Associated Press

PALATINE, Ill.

An employee walked into a Postal Service mail processing center today and opened fire on coworkers, wounding two people, authorities said. The suspect was later arrested at his home.

The gunman shot one person in the second-floor sorting area of the U.S. Postal Service building in this northwestern Chicago suburb, walked down-stairs to the lobby and shot another man, witnesses said.

The man was in critical condition. All three workers were postal clerks, said plant manager Mark Tovey.

Worker Cynthia Murray said she heard two quick shots, then saw panic break out among the roughly 200 employees at the sprawling glass and steel building.

"People were just falling all over each other," she said. "I saw people crumble over people and I saw the smoke from the gun."

Clerk Maude Kelly said she's worked with both the victims and the gunman for about 20 years. All were friends, she said.

"I can't figure out why he did it. We've been here for a long time. (The gunman) was just a beautiful guy. We would joke and laugh together."

The suspect was arrested 20 miles away in his home in suburban Northlake, police said. He was identified by police as senior postal clerk Dorey Thomas.

Police Cmdr. Jim Haider said earlier that the lobby shooting occurred first.

Indiana court cuts credit for prisoners

INDIANAPOLIS

State prisoners have less incentive to earn high school and college degrees after an Indiana Supreme Court ruling cutting in half the time credit they can receive, an advocate says.

The court ruled that the Indiana Department of Correction is correctly interpreting a 1993 state law by deducting off time for academic credit from prisoners' original sentences, rather than from their release dates.

All Indiana prisoners can cut their original sentences in half if they behave while incarcerated, two years if he follows prison rules.

Prisoners can also reduce their sentences by up to six months for passing a general equivalency diploma test, by one year for earning a high school diploma or college associate degree, and by two years for receiving a bachelor's degree.

State panel narrows number of jail sites

A state panel today narrowed the number of potential sites for a new state prison from 12 to four locations.

Areas still being considered for the proposed 1,000-bed medium-security prison are Madison County near the Indiana Reformatory, Wayne County near Richmond, Miami County near Grissom Air Force Base, and the Jefferson Proving Grounds in Jefferson County.

Among the sites ruled out for now are areas in LaPorte, Newton, Hendricks, Cass, Henry and Jennings counties.

The Site Selection Committee based its preliminary review of sites on such factors as available acreage, topography, site access, existing utilities and buildings.

"These four sites stand out when you consider all the criteria," said Chris DelGuery, commissioner of the Department of Correction.

More complete evaluations of the four chosen sites will be made over the next several weeks, and serious discussions with economic development officials in those areas will begin.

Public input will be given full consideration at later meetings before a final site is chosen later this fall, DelGuery said.

"I certainly want to make sure in this review that we touch all the bases and listen to the community," he said.

The estimated $80 million to build the men's prison would have to be authorized by the General Assembly.

Security ‘tight’ at conference

By KATHY WILHELM
Associated Press

HUAROZ, China

Chinese officials will open the world’s largest meeting of women on Wednesday by releasing thousands of doves, yet the delegates themselves feel caged by tight security that they fear will get in the way of a successful conference.

Temper flared over China’s effort to contain the more than 20,000 participants in the Non-Governmental Organizations Forum on Women in Huairou, a rural suburb 90 minutes’ drive from downtown Beijing.

Although China had said free shuttle buses would be available to take them into Beijing, women who inquired about them were directed to taxis charging $24 each way.

Other participants complained that police searched their luggage on the driveway outside their hotels and apartment buildings, looking for forbidden political or religious materials.

China is believed to have located the forum of private groups in Huairou because of its fears that the delegates’ debates, protests and pamphlets would infect Chinese with a spirit of dissent.

Chinese officials announced Tuesday that marches or protests could be held only in one designated place, a Huairou schoolyard, and could not target China itself.

The forum of private groups is being held in conjunction with the U.N. Fourth World Conference on Women, a smaller and more sedate gathering of government delegations which opens Monday in Beijing.

The NGO women say they need to be able to attend the U.N. conference to lobby delegates and who need to mingle freely with each other to exchange ideas, make useful contacts and raise funds.

That is where the disorganization and security restrictions chafed. Delegates trying to find out where friends were staying got blank stares from registration workers.

Those staying at Huairou’s newly built apartment blocks who tried to exchange phone numbers found no numbers marked on the phones.

Many hotels told guests they could not bring other people to their rooms for conversations. Most barred non-guests altogether.

“To me it’s madness,” said Sonja Bendofor of Brazil.

“I don’t mind that there’s a leak in the toilet so there’s water all over the floor. What I mind is the isolation and the lack of facilities to do the work we’ve come to do. How will I go to the events I’m invited to? There’s where I’ll meet my donors.”

NGO Forum leader Supatra Masdif of Thailand, said there had been “a lot of rumors about all the bad things,” but she downplayed them.

Delegates are “very happy with the setup so when the forum starts everyone will have a good time setting their own agendas,” she said.

However, she acknowledged hearing complaints about too much security and said she told the Chinese about them. The Chinese replied that they want to ensure the women’s safety, she said.

"How was your summer?" You've probably heard this phrase a hundred times this week already, and, if you're like most people you are already growing tired of hearing it. However, it seems that people keep asking this question, whether or not they really care. Therefore, I'll tell you how my summer was.

My sister is returning to Saint Mary's; many of my friends have returned to South Bend for the school year. I guess I'll get used to the situation sooner or later, but at least right now, it feels strange, and it makes me sad. However, I am sure that this comes as no surprise to my friends or to those who have read my column before. But right now I would like to welcome the newcomers to the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's community, who may wonder why I feel such strong ties to my alma mater.

GARRY TRAUBE
From Twinkies to Yo-cream

I can always find something to complain about. My life never seems to be going as well as it should. The weather is too hot. I already have more homework than I can handle. Club 23 burnt to the ground.

Growing up in a suburb of Kansas City, I never had a worries in the world. The oldest of three, I spent days like these sneaking Twinkies after school and improvising fire flies just before 10 o'clock bedtime. On Sundays we'd all pile in family station wagon for mass, later followed by a pot roast supper.

Looking back on my formative years, I suppose I appreciate what I had. And in all reality, things haven't changed all that much.

Alright, the Twinkies have been replaced with Dunkin Donuts, and the bedtime has been extended; but my youth, without real responsibility, continues for nine short months.

So why does it seem so difficult to appreciate our college years as we look back on them?

College life shares with my childhood the Colhame of self-discovery at a time of rapid personal growth. This time it gives way to a world of adult responsibilities, an experience completely unique from any other I likely have.

At Saint Mary's and Notre Dame, many of us overlook the magnitude of our lives; focusing instead on the crap in their rooms trying to emulate life-size cardboard cutouts of Knute Rockne's. No, not the leprechauns, but our viewing of Notre Dame as an almost warped dated vision of what is truly ours instead of maintaining some antialcoholic plug.

So, do they do a good job? Were they courteous, quick, efficient? Were you pleased with the service? verbal tips are always appreciated, even if you don't do them. But hey, we're not likely to be negative. Actually, most people do have this dualism and try to keep reminding myself that Notre Dame isn't reality.

I tend to have a love/hate relationship with this place. Mostly hate, but it's not to be negative. Actually, most people do have this dualism and try to keep it balanced.

Notre Dame: Neverland or The Real World?

Oh well, it's that time of year again, when everybody piles up a lot of crap in their rooms trying to emulate the comforts of home with all those big hideous brown couches and those stupid life-size cardboard cutouts of Knute Rockne's. But you seem to be going as well as it should.

Likely is a senior in the mid-40s. She still has a 1019787jade.saint-marys.edu.

As a politically conscious Black woman that's hard to do, and I have to keep reminding myself that Notre Dame is not a demonic entity, despite some erroneous evidence. I do believe Notre Dame needs to be more student oriented. I think we tend to be more concerned with the job of who choose Notre Dame rather than the students who make Notre Dame. But I can see why this kind of thing has to be maintained.

We just got a freshman class who have significantly bought the ideal of Notre Dame. What is it? Is it really a real place or is it just a little bit behind the scenes?

A part of Accent's "Money" theme, Assistant Accent Editors Dan Cichalski and Angie Kelver catalogued every penny they spent over the course of eight days. The results are presented here because we thought it would be a nifty idea to try and figure out how to save money and cut costs. We will admit that two Omers may not be typical. But still, it's an interesting and amusing experiment. Try it for yourself and see what a spendthrift you are! Results will, of course, vary for all students depending on personal health, lifestyle, or the weather.

Angie's Week

Monday, August 21

$10.72. Books, books, books. Does anyone else feel like screaming "Ripoff City?"

$25.61. Shower shoes are an absolute necessity. There is not a drop of water around it. When I think about others that may have tread those tiles before me, money is really no object.

$1.81. Marlboro Lights. Yes, I know, what the Surgeon General says. Yes, I know it is a disgusting habit. The only word is habit. Addiction.

Tuesday, August 22

$4.20. Cheesies from the vending machine. Maybe I should have eaten more at lunch.

Wednesday, August 23

$1.73. Marlboro Lights. Why are smokers so discriminated against? If I want to smoke, let me smoke. It's obvious that I know the risks. How could I not? All we as smokers wish is to be left alone. Can't the world just leave us to develop lung cancer in peace?

Thursday, August 24

$5.00. Cover charge at one of South Bend's classiest establishments. Boy, I'll have to make sure my Mom gets a copy of this. Maybe I'll send one to Grams and Gramps too. They will be so proud.

Friday, August 25

$27.23. A couple more books for my classics. Gee, I was really worried that I wouldn't have enough reading to do already.

$1.05. I had a coupon for a small Blizzard for a buck at Dairy Queen. I certainly couldn't let it go to waste.

$1.93. Marlboro Lights. I know, my clothes smell, my teeth are yellow and my mouth is always dry.

Saturday, August 26

$1.78. Marlboro Lights. Please don't say a word. I really do plan on quitting sometime I promise.

$3.00. My contribution for a kid. Mom, please don't feel bad. It's not your fault. I didn't know you could just be a bad seed to begin with.

Sunday, August 27

$4.40. Cheesies. My only purchase for the day. Not too bad.

Monday, August 28

$1.81. Yup, you guessed it. No explanation necessary. $2.50 Vanilla latte from Cap'n-Cino's. I figured a little caffeine was really nothing to my body in the grand scheme of things.

Tuesday, August 29

Wednesday, August 30

$15.00. Donation for (ahem) refreshments for one of several Grams Hall Welcome Back Weekend parties. I know some of you were there. You're welcome.

$10.00. Dinner at Macri's Deli. They sealed us in the Norman Rockwell room so I padded my part of the tip.

Thursday, August 31

$2.00. Two dollars to see Sandra Bullock smile 43 times in "You Were Sheikining," which averages out to about 4 1/2 cents a smile. Perhaps the best two bucks I've ever spent.

Friday, August 29

$3.10. Purchased one copy of "Sports Illustrated." Destined to be one of the classic covers: a simple, black-and-white photo of Mickey Mantle. No words, no explanation, none needed.

Saturday, August 26

$17.50. A matted print of Edward Hopper's "Nighthawks." It's that one of a corner diner late at night with three people sitting at the counter. Several variations have been made, such as the "Boulevard of Broken Dreams" that shows Elvis Presley, James Dean, and Marilyn Monroe in the diner. I think they were spotted there last week.

Dan's Week

Monday, August 21

$261.88. This is the bill from that primary trip to the Bookstore. Mom and Dad will recognize this figure when it shows up in the mail in a few more weeks.

Tuesday, August 22

$13.01. Thirteen dollars for various stuff bought at the Bookstore-Grandma's birthday card, highlighters, notebooks, folders, and those sticky books for hanging stuff on the walls without drilling them.

$15.00. Dues for the Student Manager's Organization. Fifteen dollars for the privilege of being Publy. But I won't stop at the helmet painting. Hey, did you know they use real gold in the paint?

Wednesday, August 23

$6.20. Subscription rate for full delivery of "The New York Times." "All the news that's fit to print" and coverage of the Simpson trial as well will be on my doorstep every morning this semester.

Friday, August 24

$5.00. Donation for (ahem) refreshments for one of several Grams Hall Welcome Back Weekend parties. I know some of you were there. You're welcome.

$10.00. Dinner at Macri's Deli. They sealed us in the Norman Rockwell room so I padded my part of the tip.

Monday, August 25

$1.81. Two dollars to see Sandra Bullock smile 43 times in "You Were Sheikining," which averages out to about 4 1/2 cents a smile. Perhaps the best two bucks I've ever spent.

Saturday, August 26

$17.30. Round-trip train ticket to Chicago to view the Claude Monet exhibit at the Art Institute. Again, another unnecessary expenditure: three cars are sitting in the driveway at home and only two people are there to see-things that I won't be doing that regularly. It was an interesting week keeping track of the penny I spent. But it's nothing I'd want to do all year. I think it's more fun to just spend the money and know you're enjoying what you do or what you get for it rather than seeing how much you've got left after knowing what you had in the first place.

Monday, August 21

$157.43. A premium ad to buy and art for Michael Jordan's restaurant but then I would have had to tip the server as well.

$117.51. A matted print of "Edwin Hopper's "Nighthawks." It's that one of a corner diner late at night with three people sitting at the counter. Several variations have been made, such as the "Boulevard of Broken Dreams" that shows Elvis Presley, James Dean, and Marilyn Monroe in the diner. I think they were spotted there last week.

Agassi, Sampras advance easily in opening round

By STEVE WILSTEIN

NEW YORK - Impeccable in aces and immune to scorching heat, defending champion Andre Agassi blazed through the first round of the U.S. Open in 81 minutes Tuesday to push his winning streak to 21 matches. Agassi, seeded No. 1, shrugged off 15 aces by Bryan Shelton, drilled all the balls he could reach, and turned a potentially tough opponent into just another patsy, 6-2, 6-2, 6-2, as courtside temperatures soared into the 90s.

Playing gracefully and with nearly flawless precision from the baseline, Agassi picked up where he left off a year ago when he started his surge to the top of tennis. Shelton had only 14 — and double-faulted nine times while trying too hard to score an upset.

"I am used to that feeling of playing guys who are just playing, in a sense, outside themselves," Agassi said, dismissing the pressure of being the top seed at the Open for the first time.

"I don't spend too much time thinking about the ranking. I have never given a thought to it,

Rigorous schedule makes Purdue's blood boil

By STEVE HERMAN

Purdue's Boilermakers are eager to get their new football season going, although it's not exactly beginning with pushovers.

Purdue opens the new campaign Saturday at No. 23-ranked West Virginia. The next week, the Boilermakers return home to face No. 9 Notre Dame.

Rigorous schedule makes 19 days now, and the players are bored seeing one another, coach Jim Colletto said Tuesday.

"We’ve been practicing 18 or 19 days now, and the players are bored seeing one another," coach Jim Colletto said Tuesday.

"This schedule is going to test everybody in the program. I just read it's been ranked the eighth-toughest in the country, so we have to stay relatively injury-free."

He said the players haven't talked about being the underdogs.

"We figured it’s motivation enough just to play the first game on the road. You just have to show up and play. The game, as far as I can tell, is still 0-0," Colletto said in a telephone conference call from West Lafayette.

Purdue went 1-10 in 1993 and improved to 4-5-2 last year, although the Boilermakers did not win a game after the fifth week of the season. They return leading rusher Mike Alstott, a 240-pound fullback who could become Purdue's career yardage leader this season as the Mountaineers. He was the starter at the end of last year and in spring practice, Colletto said.

"But Corey is No. 2 and will see a good deal of action on Saturday. He's worked hard to do it, so he's earned the right to play. I hope he learned a lesson from it," he said of Rogers' academic problems.

Colletto's main concern going into training camp was the secondary, which lost some key players and lists three sophomores and one junior as likely starters.

"We’ve made an improvement in the secondary, but until we see a good deal of action on Saturday, we won’t know," said Ed Watson will start at tailback against the Mountaineers. He will be backed up by Corey Rogers, the Big Ten freshman of the year in 1991 who recently regained academic eligibility and has climbed from fifth in the pre-season depth chart to second.

"Ed Watson deserves to start. He was the starter at the end of last year and in spring practice," Colletto said.

Niners face Texas-sized competition in quest to repeat

By DENNIS GEORGATOS
Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO

An obsession with overtaking the Dallas Cowboys helped carry San Francisco to its fifth Super Bowl title last season. This year, the act the 49ers are trying to top is their own.

"It's just as demanding, but the weight of what we face is really our own past," said Steve Young, who's going for a record fifth straight passing title. "There's no one else, no other team. It's just ourselves. We just have to go out and extend ourselves beyond who we were last year."

The 49ers were a special team in 1994. Young set an NFL record for passing efficiency and won a second MVP award. Jerry Rice became the first player to win a record four consecutive Super Bowl titles. Haynes was the Super Bowl MVP. Young set an NFL record for passing efficiency and won a second MVP award.

The fortified 49ers denied Dallas an unprecedented third straight Super Bowl crown by defeating the Cowboys in the conference championship last January. The 49ers then beat San Diego 49-26 for a record fifth Super Bowl victory.

In bidding to repeat as league champions, the 49ers are taking a more businesslike approach. Young said the desperation that drove the team in 1994 has been replaced by a quiet resolve. "I think it'll be more professional and more dedication than obsession," club president Carmen Policy said. "It'll be kind of like the Cowboys in '93. They won the Super Bowl in that magical year of '92 when many thought they should've come to Candlestick and gotten beat, and they didn't. In '93, they felt a commitment to pursue and that professional dedication. "I'd like to see a duplicate. We win two, and then in '96 let's decide who's the team of the decade."

There are significant differences between the 49ers of 1995 and the 49ers of '94. Chief among them is whether free agent cornerbacks Sanders and Young, who's going for a record five straight titles, are among the teams competing with the 49ers for Sanders' services. "I don't think that we must have him," San Francisco coach George Seifert said. "But with the expectations and the things we have to do, you want to get all the talent you possibly can, whether it be Deion or any other player."

"We'd like to think that we're capable coaches. But we're all in this business long enough to realize the team that generally has the most talent and is put together best has the best opportunity to win this thing." Ricky Watters, San Francisco's rushing leader the past three seasons, is among the talent the 49ers lost. Watters went to Philadelphia through free agency.

Both coordinators are new-comers. Marc Trestman replaces Mike Shanahan, who left to coach Denver after three years as San Francisco's offensive coordinator. Pete Carroll, fired as New York Jets coach at the end of last season, succeeded Ray Rhodes, who ascended from defensive coordinator to take the Philadelphia Eagles' coaching job.

San Francisco also has 16 new players, including top draft pick J.J. Stokes. UCLA's career receiving leader, Stokes is expected to miss the first month of the season with a broken right hand.

"I think any time you have that type of change, there's a change in the chemistry of the team. All of that remains to be seen," added Seifert, a two-time Super Bowl winner as head coach who begins the season with an 84-24 career mark. The best winning percentage (.778) in league history.

The frontline players, with the exception of Ricky Watters and nobody knows what's going to develop with the team is intact from a year ago and I think we've helped ourselves with some of the fellows we've picked up," Seifert said.

Johnston calling his own shots

By MATT HARVEY
Associated Press

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. — It won't be quite like the old-time NFL quarterbacks calling all their plays, but West Virginia's Chad Johnston will have a great deal of freedom in directing the Mountaineer offense this season.

"Chad is intelligent, can read coverages that a lot of us can't read," said right Lovett Carroll. "That's his biggest strongpoint. Intelligence. (The coaches) allow him the freedom to call things when he wants to because of his intelligence and the way he can see things on the ball." Johnston, a 6-foot, 210-pound junior in his second year in the starting lineup, got 1,663 yards, 16 touchdowns and seven interceptions while completing 124 of 249 passes last season.

Coach Don Nehlen began giving him more freedom in changing plays at the line of scrimmage as the season progressed. Now Nehlen says he's comfortable with most of Johnston's decisions.

"Chad for the most part knows what we want to do," Nehlen said Tuesday. "If I have a great deal of respect for Chad and (backup) Eric Iglesias."

Johnston generally has the option of calling two or three plays when he comes up under center. He can change the call by using a few signals, take advantage of an expected blitz, stunt or zone.

"It's something we did last year, but we're emphasizing it more," Johnston said. "I'd say we're doing it over 50 percent of the time now."

It has worked well in practice and scrimmage, he said. Johnston has worked hard to earn the freedom.

"I really work at it and try to know as much I can about every opponent we play," he said.

going against each other. Notre Dame probably feels the same.

This season also marks the end of the contract between Notre Dame and Northwestern. However, third-year coach Lou Holtz would like to see the series he's grown accustomed to continued.

"I would love the series renewed if we could play our home part of the series at Dyche Stadium (the Northwestern home field)," Barnett says. "I think it's a good series for the Chicago area, but I would not be in favor of going back to Soldier Field."

Phillips still under investigation

By DAVE ZELIO
Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. — Nebraska running back Lawrence Phillips can play Thursday against Oklahoma State and in other games even though an NCAA investigation is continuing, the NCAA's director of eligibility said Monday.

Carrie Doyle said the NCAA has determined that Phillips’ lunch with an employee of California sports agent Steve Feldman will not affect his eligibility.

The NCAA continued to investigate two other issues involving Phillips, Doyle said. One involves the 1995 Mustang convertible that Phillips has been driving. Doyle would not identify the other issue, but the university has provided the NCAA with information about Phillips’ status as a ward of the state of California.

"He can play until the institution and legislative services determines that there are violations," Doyle said. "A fact scenario required that the young man repay the cost of the meal."

The NCAA's legislative services division, which determines if incidents are violations of NCAA rules, continues to work on the other two issues, Doyle said.

Legislative services director Steve Mallonee has declined comment, saying only that the case is under review.

Al Papik, NU's associate athletic director in charge of compliance, said the school has sent the NCAA information about the convertible, which Phillips has been driving since January.

The owners of a group home in Phillips' hometown West Covina, Calif., said they leased it for him. NU has provided information on Phillips' relationship with Tina McElhannon, the head of the group home.

Relaxed Holtz pleased with play and attitude

By TIM SHERMAN
American Sport Editor

The pessimism should have been thicker than Bobby Bowden's southern drawl yesterday at Lou Holtz's first weekly press conference of the 1995 season. After all, the Irish enter Saturday's debut against Northwestern coming off a 6-5-1 debacle in 1994 and with less depth than any time in recent memory. Any other year, this would be cause enough for Holtz to have a mild nervous breakdown.

Not only has Holtz enjoyed the attitude of the team, he has been relatively pleased with their play.

"They're really haven't been any major disappointments other than a few injuries," Holtz said. "We have a better offense at this point than last year. Our offensive line is the same one we settled on in the spring. We've been relatively injury-free except for a few small things here and there. They should be improved." Holtz was even able to look beyond the injuries when assessing the Irish.

"Charlie Stafford has a shoulder injury and may not be ready to go for Northwestern although he says he will," Holtz said. "But Emmett Mosley and Scott Sollmann have both made great improvements and I'm confident with them if Stafford is not ready to go." Holtz said.

With the present starting three of Paul Graismanis, Renaldo Wynn and Corey Bennett, "This be the best Northwestern we have faced. They controlled the ball against us last year and I'm worried that they will do it again Saturday."

But as much as the defensive line is a key concern, the secondary is beginning to come into focus.

"Allen Rossum is a starter and not because someone lost the job. He won it. About ten days ago he stepped forward and really began to play well. He has won that position."

Emmett Mosley will share receiving duties with Scott Sollmann against Northwestern. In that regard, he was typical Holtz.

"This may be the best Northwestern we are facing. They controlled the ball against us last year and I'm worried that they will do it again Saturday."

Northwestern head coach Gary Barnett says he will be bringing "a very hungry football team" into Notre Dame Stadium on Saturday.

Wildcats remain upbeat as opener approaches

By MEGAN McGrath
Sports Writer

If Gary Barnett read a transcript of Lou Holtz's Tuesday press conference, he might have access to the normally dour Irish head coach of stealing his lines.

Monday, the Northwestern coach looked forward to Saturday's opening match-up at Notre Dame with a great deal of optimism and enthusiasm, much like Holtz did Tuesday.

"I think we're very well prepared at this point and a very focused football team," Barnett said. "We're a very hungry football team."

Despite being underdogs to the host and eighth-ranked Irish, Barnett believes his squad has strength in the right places.

"As a good match-up as we return eight starters on defense and they return eight starters on offense."

The Northwestern defense is led by two-time Big Ten honorable mention honoree William Bennett. The senior free safety led the Wildcats last season with three interceptions and was second with 100 tackles. The Sporting News listed Bennett as a preseason All-Big Ten selection and named the Wildcat secondary the best in their conference.

However, for Barnett's own squad the quarterback role was up for grabs heading into the fall. Senior Steve Schuur and junior Tim Hughes shared the starting role last season, and Schuur was announced Monday as the starter against Notre Dame.

"Right now, we're a very anxious and hungry football team," Schuur said. "We're a lot more confident than before."
