WRC looks to expand reach on campus

Now that most of the students have settled in to life at Notre Dame, many of the campus activities groups are gearing up to kick off their years. Among these groups is the Women's Resource Center (WRC), which will have its first organizational meeting this Wednesday, September 6 at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Government Office in LaFortune. The meeting is open to all and is a prelude to the Center's Grand Opening on Sunday, September 20.

According to WRC President Erin Trahan, the Center anticipates the 1995-1996 year with excitement. The WRC's goals for this year include increasing the campus awareness of, and involvement in, the Center's projects.

"We hope to provide a space for students to work with other students on what we typically call women's issues," said Trahan. The central concerns of the WRC include eating disorders, sexual harassment, sexual assault and rape. The Center will serve as an arena for people to discuss these and other pertinent issues in an open environment, as well as offering information on a plethora of pertinent topics.

"We feel it is very important that students' views are represented in a free place. We want everyone to feel that they can come to the Center and get information and talk in a 'private setting,'" stated Trahan.

Through the dispensing of information, the WRC would like to act as a referral agency for other campus associations such as Sex Offense Services (SOS) and the Campus Alliance for Rape Elimination (CARE), in addition to national agencies such as the National Organization of Women (NOW). By this means, the WRC will broaden its scope and reach out to more campus-wide.

"We really believe that students need an outlet where they can take action on the issues they face daily," said Trahan. Furthermore, 1995-1996 marks a special year for the WRC because they are implementing a new program involving the South Page 5

Joining together with the Band

Alumni return for Northwestern

When the Band of the Fighting Irish rushes through the tunnel of Notre Dame Stadium onto the field Saturday, with the sounds of "Hike, Notre Dame" blaring into the stands, America's oldest collegiate marching band will not only be marking the beginning of a new football season. It will also be marking its 150th anniversary.

More than 600 alumni of the band will play with the present 306-member unit in a performance at halftime of tomorrow's game against Northwestern. Band members past and present will join together to play the Victory March and the 1812 Overture, among other songs.

The halftime festivities are part of a three-day celebration of the sesquicentennial that begins tonight with a performance at the pep rally at the Joyce Center and a rehearsal for tomorrow. The weekend concludes with a Mass and a banquet for band alumni and their families on Sunday.

Formed just three years after Notre Dame's founding in 1842, the marching band was among the first in the nation to incorporate pageantry, precision drill and picture formation. It played at the first Notre Dame football game in 1887 and has performed at every home game since then.

The band's best-known number, the Victory March, was written in 1908 by John and Michael Shea and was first performed by the band a year later, including practice sessions, games, pep rallies and other events. Band members play the Victory March more than 4,000 times annually. 4,000 times annually. That's an incredible number, but even so, Luther Snavely, director of the band, doesn't mind.

"I don't get tired of it," Snavely said, "especially when we're having a good time when we're having a good time.

Enter into virtually any classroom in Notre Dame, and the observant student will likely see at least one navy blue shirt with the profile of Knute Rockne emblazoned on the back.

The shirt is no ordinary CRED shirt to be worn before washing one's hands. Rather, it has become an annual rallying cry for the student body.

The '95 'Shirt tradition continues

The Shirt '95 is navy blue and features the slogan "Shake Down the Thunder," along with a lightning bolt and the likeness of Knute Rockne on the back. The字符 of The Shirt displays the Golden Dome along with the school name.

Tailgating 101: A Brief Introduction

I'd like to introduce you to one of the flame-outs this week ends on campus: The first-year tailgatin game. And whereas our Notre Dame football, there's tailgating. But some of you freshman novices may not yet know that tailgating is an art. There are rules and regulations. There are do's and don'ts. And so what— following, I'd like to introduce you to Tailgating 101 course. I've designed it from my own experiences and those of my tailgating colleagues.

DO'S:

• Travel in packs. That way one person in your group can distract the host of the tailgating while your accomplice makes off with some chicken wings or other free stuff.

• Despite conventional wisdom that says not to take beverages or other stuff from strangers, today is the exception. Today, it's not only allowed, but encouraged.

• Grab a couple of the bigger flags since they indicate bigger tailgating parties. However, beware of Zalmah men at tailgaters, or else you may catch up in any of their pregame contests involving the words "mad" and "nerf.

• Watch out for flying objects like frisbees and Nerf footballs. It's so embarrassing to get nailed with one of those, and they always seem to strike the head.

Sonja's tip: Use a fairly large group of people, yell names like John, Joe, and Mike. Then notice how many guys turn around to hear who's calling his name.

• Do take whatever they're giving out for free. (Emphasis is on the free stuff.)

• Do look for RV's with license plates from colleges. And appear at a hearing Thursday, where he was charged with murder.

Alumni Association offers tours of shelters

Special to The Observer

Friday afternoon tours of South Bend’s Center for the Homeless, hosted by Notre Dame’s cheerleaders, will be made available to University alumni and others visiting the campus during the Notre Dame-Northwestern football weekend.

The first Center for the Homeless Alumni Tours (CHAT) were organized last fall by the Notre Dame Alumni Association, and Edward A. Trifone, director of alumni community service, hopes to see them become a regular and popular feature of Notre Dame football weekends.

"CHAT participants don’t necessarily need to be Notre Dame alumni," Trifone said, "but they do need to share the goal of the Notre Dame alumni community service program, which is to foster positive change in society."

CHATs will begin each football Friday at 3:30 p.m., when alumni association vans will depart from Notre Dame's Main Circle (813 South Michigan St.). After the ten-minute drive to the Center, CHAT participants will tour its facilities with student and alumni volunteers, meet with center staff and guests, discuss ways in which alumni groups and individuals might become involved in similar programs, and return to the Main Circle by 5:30 p.m., with ample time for dinner before the pep rally, at which they will have reserved seats.

Most of Notre Dame’s 204 alumni clubs support and participate in community service projects in their regions.

Police warn of heavy traffic

Special to The Observer

The traffic control pattern implemented by area police agencies for Notre Dame football games will go into effect 30 minutes earlier this season. The one-way pattern on most streets surrounding the campus will begin three and one-half hours before each game in order to safely manage the heavy flow of traffic. The pattern will be reversed for one hour after each game.

Fans driving to Notre Dame via the Indiana Toll Road are urged to avoid exit 77 due to construction on U.S. 33 between Douglas and Cleveland Roads. From Chicago and the west, motorists are advised to use exit 72 (South Bend West) and follow Cleveland Road east to Juniper Road, then Juniper south to the parking areas.

General parking for recreational vehicles has been moved to White Field near the intersection of Douglas and Juniper Roads. Reserved parking for RV’s (those with passes purchased in advance) again will be on Gold Field near Eck Baseball Stadium. Both parking areas will open at 10 a.m. on Fridays before home games and will close on Sundays at 3 p.m.

FM status questionable for campus radio station

By KRISTI KOLSKI
Assistant News Editor

After a year of talk about converting to FM status, campus radio station WVFI still finds its home on the AM dial. WVFI has modified the station's image and play style because the decision remains in the hands of campus administrators, the conversion to FM has thus far been denied.

Regardless, WVFI vows to bring about even more change in the image of the station including greater focus on the students. "We are going to run like an FM station," stated new station manager Ken Maverick. "Our number one priority is to worry about ourselves in giving the best product possible." Giving the best product involves many renovations to the station.

Through additions such as a daily news, jazz and Sunday morning gospel show, the station hopes to a diversify so as to attract more listeners. Current plans also call for a new program show in conjunction with customary football game broadcasts.

"Our main goal is to involve more people," stated Maverick. Also in the works is a campus talk hour show with Student Body President Jonathan Patrick, Vice President Dennis McCarthy and possibly Vice President for Student Affairs Patsy O'Hara.

"We [WVFI] hope that shows like this would facilitate relationships between the students, the administration and student government," stated Maverick. Despite these changes, FM status is not guaranteed. Many obstacles remain.

Notre Dame already has two FM stations. The conversion would also require funds for updating the radio stations systems that are currently unavailable and difficult to raise because the station is not commercial. The movement for FM status has not been derailed. "We know we have to improve our product. It's just hard to take ourselves seriously when we know others don't take us seriously," stated Maverick.

Aside from administrative opposition, WVFI remains optimistic. According to Maverick, "we just hope the university recognizes these changes."

Church rates movies on morals

Number provides warnings of offensive movies

By DANA CALVO
Associated Press

WASHINGTON

Forget Siskel and Ebert. The Roman Catholic church is giving its own thumbs up or thumbs down to the latest movies.

The Catholic Communications Campaign next Wednesday will open a national ad-free movie review line giving "moral ratings" to the latest movies and videos.

"The morally offensive film is one that exploits sexuality and violence — like "True Lies,"" said Henry Herx, director of the campaign's office of film and broadcasting. Each review will provide a plot synopsis and an evaluation of content, entertainment value and moral qualities.

The rating system differs from the Motion Picture Association of America Inc.'s ratings by focusing on the film's overall moral message. Herx and his partner, Gerri Pare, review all of the movies.

"Die Hard: With a Vengeance" was replete with contemporary violence, terrorism as well as rough language," he said, so it is like "True Lies," got an "O" rating for "morally offensive." Others receiving that rating were "explicitly sexual" movies such as "Exotica" and "Two Girls in Love."

The campaign does not condemn themes of homosexuality as long as they are portrayed within "sensible bounds," Herx said.

Jack Valenti, president and chief executive officer of the Motion Picture Association of America, said supplementary rating systems by religious groups were a good idea. But the association will not change its own 27-year-old rating system, Valenti said. "This rating system is for everyone: Jews, Catholics, heretics, agnostics, everyone!"

The four movies that Herx gave an "O" rating for being "morally offensive" all received "B" ratings under the MPAA's system. Such a rating means no one under 17 should attend unless accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The campaign is the latest successor to the church's National Legion of Decency, which began rating films in 1936. According to Herx, the campaign has accounted for changing social perceptions.

The program will give six or eight students a training program about eating disorders. After their training, they will go into the local schools and give presentations about eating disorders and how to deal with them. "It is a service opportunity in that it involves the South Bend community. Eventually, we would like to include dorm presentations, as well," said Tranah.

Board rules management to blam for Detroit strike

By JENNIFER LOVEN

Associated Press

DETROIT

The National Labor Relations Board alleged Thursday that the strike against Detroit's two newspapers was the result of management's unfair labor practices. If the ruling is upheld, striking workers would be entitled to their jobs back when the dispute is settled.

The NLRB has lodged two previous complaints during the strike: One charges management unlawfully broke an agreement it would bargain jointly with the unions on economic issues; the other alleges that it involves the Community. Eventually, we would like to include dorm presentations, as well," said Tranah.

Beginning on September 10, the Center will be open Sunday through Thursday, from 3-5 p.m. and 7-9 p.m. "We'd really like to encourage everyone to get involved, especially underclassmen. ... it's a way for us all to get together and discuss the issues in a positive way."

Car bomb kills Indian top official, 12 others

By HARBKASH NANDA
Associated Press

CHANDIGARH, India Suspected Sikh militants blew up the car of Punjab's highest elected official Thursday, killing him and 12 others and raising fears that the state's separatist movement might revive.

Chief Minister Beant Singh was getting into his bulletproof car outside government headquarters in the capital, Chandigarh, when the explosion went off, Information Secretary S.S. Dawan told The Associated Press.

No one immediately claimed responsibility for the blast, but Punjab Police Chief K.P.S. Gill said suspicion fell on two Sikh separatist groups, the Babbar Khalsa and the Khalistan Liberation Force.

Both groups are among the survivors of the dozen militant outfits that were demanding a Sikh homeland called Khalistan, or "Land of the Pure.

The daring attack in a heavily guarded building could embolden Sikh guerrillas to strike again and embarrass Prime Minister P.V. Narasimha Rao's ruling Congress Party ahead of national elections.

The Congress Party had taken credit for bringing peace to Punjab, and Singh, the chief minister, had authorized a widespread crackdown on Sikh militants after he came to power in 1992.

As Sikh fans police in Punjab and the neighboring state of Haryana and the federal capital, New Delhi, went on alert, setting up road blocks at the state borders and checking all vehicles.

After initial confusion over the death toll, Gill told reporters that 13 people were killed and 16 injured. Most of the dead were the chief minister's armed guards. Singh's car and two other vehicles were ripped apart in the blast.

The bomb, which exploded as an estimated 15,000 people were preparing to leave work, blew out all the windows and spread panic throughout the 10-story building.

Gill also said police were investigating whether some of Singh's security guards were involved in the assassination. The chief minister leaves through a guarded door. His three cars are also guarded by elite commandos.

Gill said the explosion was caused by RDX, a chemical used in the 13 blasts that ripped Bombay in 1993.

Singh, 73, a Congress Party moderate, won the 1992 state legislature elections that ended years of federal rule.

He immediately began crushing the Sikh militancy, giving police sweeping powers to arrest suspects. Hundreds of militants were killed by police after he came to power, and human rights organizations alleged that police staged the clashes.

Sikh militants had led a fierce battle to carve out Khalistan, saying the federal government denied them their religious rights, a charge New Delhi denied. More than 15,000 people were killed in the uprising.

Rao has also been under pressure by his Congress Party members to hold elections in the neighboring state of Jammu-Kashmir, where a war between soldiers and Kashmiri militants has left 12,000 dead in the last five years.

India has blamed Pakistan for both uprisings, but Islamabad denies the charges that it trains and arms the militants.

Study finds MSG safe for consumption

By LAURAN NEERGAARD
Associated Press

WASHINGTON Although many people say they get sick from MSG, the flavor enhancer in Chinese food, the government concluded Thursday that it is safe for almost everyone and causes only mild, temporary reactions in a few people.

Scientific advisers to the Food and Drug Administration couldn't determine just who would experience these reactions — generally headaches and numbness or tingling — but said some asthmatic patients may be more susceptible.

The report by the panel also declared that there is no scientific evidence that any "free glutamate," the chemical family to which MSG belongs, causes or exacerbates severe diseases.

Still, the FDA said it would change the way some foods are labeled to include the free glutamate content, so that people who fear MSG and its relatives will know how much they're eating.

"For most people, this (glutamate) is not going to pose a problem," said FDA Commissioner David Kessler. However, he said, "We believe consumers should have information so they can avoid high quantities of glutamate."

The report infuriated some people who say MSG, or monosodium glutamate, makes them severely ill.

"When an individual only reacts when they ingest MSG, it's pretty clear," what is to blame, said Jack Samuels, 60, of Chicago, who says MSG causes his blood pressure to plummet suddenly to life-threatening levels.

Car bomb detonates outside police station

By RACHID KHIARI
Associated Press

ALGIERS, Algeria

A bomb-laden car exploded today in a crowded square outside Algeria's national police headquarters, killing seven people and injuring 100. Security forces did not say who was suspected in the blast, and there was no immediate claim of responsibility. Muslim militants have used car bombs in their struggle to topple the North African nation's military-backed government.

The explosion occurred just before noon in the crowded Bah El Oued district, near the city center. The neighborhood is regarded as a fiefdom of Muslim fundamentalists, but also houses the national police headquarters.

The bomb left a gaping hole in the street and blew out windows throughout the area. The explosion appeared to have done the heaviest damage to a high school across the street from the police headquarters. Classes are not yet in session after the summer holiday.

State-run radio said the car was driven by a suicide bomber. This report could not be confirmed. The Health Ministry said seven people were killed and 100 injured, six of them seriously, in the explosion. Security forces earlier had said 10 people were killed and 15 injured.

Algarian authorities have been engaged for more than three years in a battle with Islamic militants. More than 30,000 people have been killed. The militants' increasing use of car bombs is a change of tactics viewed by some as a sign of their increasing desperation.

Dozens of police, bayonets attached to their rifles, surrounded the seaside neighborhood, blocking all traffic except ambulances into the bomb site.

A witness, a passerby whose hand was slightly injured, said he heard two blasts, the first deafening him momentarily and the second knocking him to the ground. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

The bombing recalled the January suicide bombing of the Algiers city police headquarters that killed 42 people, mostly passersby. It was not immediately clear whether today's blast involved a suicide bomber or was the result of a booby-trapped car.

In mid-August two booby-trapped cars exploded at the Club des Pins, a seaside resort area west of Algiers where authorities house dignitaries, some state workers and journalists under heavy security. Two people were killed and seven injured in the blasts.

NATO launches second day of strikes

By SRECKO LATAL
Washington Post

Serbs began pulling tanks away from Sarajevo and made grudging moves Thursday toward seeking peace.
NATO, in no mood to accept half-measures, blasted the Serbs again with airstrikes.

The second straight day of airstrikes was not as severe as Wednesday's, when NATO and the United Nations began their aggressive new strategy. But a senior Pentagon official said that was only because the weather was so bad.

Heavy cloud cover prevented many missions from being carried out, and some aircraft returned to base without dropping their bombs because they could not see their intended targets, the official said on condition of anonymity.

Meanwhile, a U.S. envoy pursuing a diplomatic solution to the war reported a breakthrough in negotiations, saying both sides now agreed to a division that would give the Serbs less than half of Bosnia. But the tough job of actually drawing the map remained.

Capt. Jim Mitchell, a NATO spokesman in Naples, Italy, confirmed the latest airstrikes but declined to give details. Other NATO sources said more than 1,300 sorties were flown Thursday, bombing Serb ammunition storage sites in three different areas around Sarajevo.

At least two of the three ammunition storage sites attacked also had been targeted in some of the more than 300 sorties flown Wednesday, the sources said on condition of anonymity.

Sources in Pale, the Bosnian Serb headquarters southeast of Sarajevo, told The Associated Press that an army barracks and arms depot about 10 miles away had been hit late Thursday.

Bosnian Serb radio claimed five civilians were killed Thursday in NATO air attacks north of Sarajevo.

In light of the continuing airstrikes, Serb defiance appeared to be cooling. Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic said in a letter to the U.N. chief for former Yugoslavia, Yasshi Akashi, that his forces would not fire artillery at Bosnian "safe areas."

But he added that if the NATO attacks continued, it would "have the effect of hastening our preparations for a long-term conflict that the international community has no hope of winning."

Serbs also appeared to be moving heavy weapons from around Sarajevo. Peacekeepers observed three tanks moving north and out of the 12 1/2-mile heavy weapons exclusion zone the United Nations wants around Sarajevo.

The United Nations established the zone in the winter of 1994 and the Serbs initially withdrew weapons. But they pulled back and the zone effectively collapsed this spring.

A U.N. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Serbs did not say they were doing it to comply with the zone, but called the development "a very welcome sign."

In other good news: Bosnian Serb TV released a videotape Thursday showing alive the five European Union monitors who were feared dead. Bosnian Serb Information Minister Miroslav Toli said the men had left Serb territory for home, but that could not be independently confirmed.

On Wednesday, Serbs had said the five—three Spaniards, one Irish and one Dutch—were killed during the airstrikes. Toli said the men had to be protected from angry Serbs after the first NATO attack.

Alliance jets searched Thursday for two French pilots who were shot down Wednesday, but there was no word on their fate.

The Pentagon sent extra planes to reinforce the NATO arsenal arrayed against the Serbs. About 20 planes were being dispatched, including electronic warfare aircraft, fuel tankers, and command and control aircraft.

President Clinton, speaking in Naples, Italy, said he thought the new NATO bombing campaign was "the right response to the savagery the Serbs have unleashed in the past 48 hours in the Bosnian capital of Sarajevo."

"The campaign will make it clear to the Bosnian Serbs that they have nothing to gain and everything to lose by continuing to attack Sarajevo and other safe areas and by continuing to slaughter innocent civilians."

NATO Secretary-General Willy Claes told CBS News that there is just one reasonable solution for the Bosnian Serbs, namely, to go back to the table of negotiation and to show willingness to accept a compromise which is equitable and which is viable.

That may have come.

Envoy sees hope in peace talks

By HRVOJE HRANJISKI
Associated Press

ZAGREB, Croatia—The U.S. diplomat trying to sell Washington's peace plan for Bosnia spoke Thursday of progress in his talks, yet warned against letting expectations get too high. The envoy, State Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke was in the Croatian capital to brief Croatian and Bosnian government officials on his talks with Serb, Croatian and Bosnian leaders.

Holbrooke repeated reporters before NATO jets struck at Serb targets for a second day. He said the planned formation of a joint negotiating team "constitutes a procedural breakthrough, but it is only a procedural one," and he acknowledged that "tough negotiations lie ahead."

But it did end the more than yearlong argument "on who would speak for the Bosnian Serbs and ... we can now move into serious negotiations," Holbrooke said.

He repeated his onetime promise, Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic, have been feuding for more than a year over how to end the Bosnian war, began for the first time in some 10 years.

Miloivcevic is now desperate to jeopardize Sanctions imposed three years ago to punish Serb-dominated Yugoslavia for inciting the war and wants the Bosnian Serbs to acquiesce to terms they abhor.

Holbrooke briefed Croatian President Franjo Tudjman and Bosnian Foreign Minister Muhamed Sacirbey on his meeting with Miloivcevic before returning to Serbia last Thursday.

Second woman hopes to become Citadel cadet

By BRUCE SMITH
Associated Press

CHARLESTON, S.C.
The next woman who wants to march in the all-male corps at The Citadel is a military academy student and star athlete who has a brother in the college and a father who is an alumnus.

Nancy Mellette, a 17-year-old senior at a North Carolina military boarding school, is asking to intervene in the Shannon Faulkner case, according to federal court papers filed Thursday by lawyers who also represented Ms. Faulkner in her quest to become a cadet.

Ms. Mellette wants to join The Citadel in the fall of 1996. "I think she could do the physical part of it ... but I'm not too sure how they would treat her," Katherine Mellette, her twin sister, said outside the family home in suburban Columbia.

Her mother, Connie, said she admired her daughter for "having the courage to even try to take this step."

Ms. Faulkner fought a 2 1/2-year court battle to become a cadet at the state-supported military college. She became ill during the day of rigorous training known as "hell week" and quit five days later, saying the stress of the court battle and her isolation at the college threatened her health.

South Carolina Attorney General Charles Condon said he would fight Ms. Mellette's bid. "Obviously they're very adept at public relations," he said of the women's lawyers. "They've taken a bath in public relations and they've gotten a new and improved model."

Ms. Mellette is a second lieutenant in the Oak Ridge Military Academy corps of cadets, court papers said. She is on the cross-country, track, basketball and softball teams. Calls to Oakridge administrators to get comment from her were not returned.

Lawyer Val Vojdik originally said two women wanted to join the corps, but she said only one is pursuing the matter for now. She would not elaborate.

Ms. Vojdik would not say whether Ms. Mellette had approached the lawyers or they approached her after Ms. Faulkner dropped out.

Ms. Mellette has not yet applied to The Citadel, the school said.
University fights for prayer

Falwell leads lawsuit against NCAA ban

By DAVID REED

LYNCHBURG, Va. Jerry Falwell's Baptist college went to court Thursday to block a newly enforced no-glaring rule that forbids a football player from kneeling in prayer on the field to thank God for a touchdown.

Liberty University argued that the NCAA ban is religious discrimination and violates civil rights law. "The NCAA has enough problems with drugs and crime and violence, sex and rape to bother itself with the NCAA lawsuit against Jerry Falwell's Baptist college," Liberty lawyer Tom Neuberger argued in court that the NCAA had "put itself in the business of deciding what kind of prayer they are going to allow." He said the NCAA wants to force players to pray "where the fans can't notice it."

NCAA lawyer Henry Sackett, however argued that prayer is not mentioned in the rules and that the issue "a question of conduct, not of spirituality."

"When a person kneels in the end zone, nobody but that person and God knows whether he is praying or not," Sackett said. "But everyone is looking at him, and that is the point."

U.S. District Judge James Turk said he would rule Friday on Liberty's request for a temporary restraining order. Liberty's football season starts Saturday in Lynchburg, about 90 miles west of Richmond.

The 3-year-old rule, to be strictly enforced beginning Saturday, was designed to stop players from in-your-face showboating and other unsportsmanlike displays in the end zone. A team is penalized 15 yards on the ensuing kickoff for a violation.

The rule bans players from removing their helmets, taunting the crowd or opposing players, and posing or dancing after touchdowns or big plays. For years, spiking the ball on the ground after a touchdown has drawn a 5-yard penalty.

One provision specifically bans "any delayed, excessive or prolonged act by which a player attempts to focus attention upon himself."

Greg Summers, a spokesman for the National Collegiate Athletic Association, said a player cannot kneel in prayer because that is a delayed action, not a spontaneous one such as throwing one's fist in the air.

"They don't want anything that is choreographed," he said.

Nevertheless, the rule does allow a group of players to gather briefly in prayer on the field after a big play. Players can also pray on the sidelines.

The ban is being enforced this year at the behest of the rules committee, Summers said. He said he was unaware of any other legal challenge.

"The NCAA is overstepping its bounds. It's doing something that is not only unconstitutional, it's immoral, going against someone's religion," said Jarrod Everson, a freshman football player at Liberty.

Kevorkian faces trial

Associated Press

A judge on Thursday set a Feb. 12 trial date for Jack Kevorkian on charges he assisted in the suicides of two terminal illness patients in 1993.

Kevorkian also faces two assisted suicide charges in the 1991 deaths of two women. No trial date has been set in those cases.

Oakland County Circuit Judge Jessica Cooper set the February trial date in the deaths of a man and a woman who died by inhaling carbon monoxide in an apartment Kevorkian leased in suburban Detroit.

Kevorkian's lawyer, Geoffrey Fieger, said the cases will be tried jointly because one jury Michigan's assisted suicide law took effect in February 1993 and expired last November.

Cooper had dismissed the charges in January 1994, ruling that the law was unconstitutional. But the Michigan Supreme Court upheld the law in December.

On Wednesday, Circuit Judge David F. Breeck ruled that Kevorkian should face assisted suicide charges in the 1991 deaths.

Georgian denies part in bombing

By CHRIS BIRD

TBILISI, Georgia

An aide to the leader of a powerful paramilitary group was arrested Thursday in the murder of an injured Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze earlier this week.

A spokesman for the president's office said Ochobishvili, an aide to warlord Dubke Rasulov, had been arrested. A search of Ochobishvili's office in the parliament building, Shevardnadze escaped with casual scratches.

A member of parliament, Ionelaki actually works for Russia as a foreign minister, to power in Georgia in 1992, but Shevardnadze has since been trying to reduce his influence. He helped bring Shevardnadze, the former Soviet foreign minister, to power in Georgia in 1992, but Shevardnadze has been trying to reduce his influence. In recent months, Shevardnadze ordered the Mkhedrioni disbanded.

On Thursday, Shevardnadze looked fit and rested as he played host to Turkish Prime Minister Tansu Ciller on an official visit. With dabs of green antiseptic on his forehead, Shevardnadze signed a series of energy, trade, and economic agreements with Ciller.

"It is fortunate that I am coming to Georgia at this time, after my brother, Eduard Shevardnadze, was killed in a terrible attack," Ciller told reporters on her arrival.

Trade between the two countries has mushroomed since Georgia's independence from the Soviet Union in 1991. The two leaders met earlier this month to open a second border crossing, and have agreed on projects for transporting gas, producing hydroelectric power and improving road links.

They were discussing, however, by the route of a pipeline that would expect to carry dollars of oil from neighboring Azerbaijan and Central Asia.

Turkey, intent on feeding up its regional clout, and with an eye on millions of dollars in transit fees, is battling to have the pipeline routed through its own territory via Georgia.
Yeltsin faults bankers for Russian financial crisis

By DEBORAH SEWARD

MOSCOW

President Boris Yeltsin gave top Russian bankers a tongue-lashing in the Kremlin on Thursday, blaming them for a financial crisis last week that caused panic and forced a halt in trading.

Yeltsin also slammed his government for not repaying banks on time and in full for loans to the state, the president's office reported.

"The crisis has eased somewhat this week, but the markets were still nervous," said Robert Tilles, chairman of the International Chernoby Fund for Nuclear Safety, another non-government group.

Rumors that some large banks had become insolvent paralysed the fledgling market for nearly two days last week.

"We also have a nuclear waste storage facility in Moscow with a capacity equaling the amount of radioactivity released in Chernobyl," he said.

Israel's ambassador in Egypt has an unenviable job even in the best of times. Now, he's being labeled a war criminal - as yet, "the butcher ambassador.

Nearly a month after reports that Israel killed hundreds of Egyptian prisoners during the 1956 and 1967 wars, Ambassador David Sultan's smiling picture appeared on the front page of an Egyptian opposition newspaper with the headline: "The Israeli ambassador in Cairo participated in massacres of Egyptian POWs.

"He committed massacres of hundreds of Egyptians and buried them... after preventing them from drinking or eating for 48 hours," al-Shabab newspaper, which Sultan owns, said it learned this week. It did not offer any evidence, or name any sources.

Next to his picture was written "The butcher ambassador.

"The Islamist newspaper is the most rabble-rousing of Egypt's aggressive opposition papers and is among its favorite targets. But the broadside, which drew denial Thursday from the Egyptian-born Sultan and from Israel, points to the depth of reaction in Egypt to disclosures of POW killings.

While both governments have sought to play down the dispute, opposition groups in Egypt show no sign of letting the matter fizzle. Human rights groups, unions and opposition newspapers have castigated the Israeli government, urging a ban on visits by Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Sultan's expulsion.

Crackdown continues; 39 gangsters arrested

By CLIFF EDWARDS

CHICAGO

Thirty-nine reputed leaders and enforcers of a feared street gang were arrested today, and the interimr against them should "severely cripple" the organization, a federal attorney said.

Three separate indictments charge 39 alleged members of the Gangster Disciples with a 25-year conspiracy to distribute cocaine, crack, heroin and marijuana, and to extort protection money from street dealers in Chicago and its suburbs.

Each indictment contains more than 45 additional counts, ranging from narcotics violations to gun violations to racketeering.

"For more than two decades, this gang has terrorized entire communities, preying on young people in particular," U.S. Attorney James Burns said.

He added that the indictments should "severely cripple the highly organized criminal activities of the Gangster Disciples."

About 250 law enforcement officers — including agents from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and Drug Enforcement Administration, Chicago and state police — began rounding up those named in the indictments about 6 a.m. in the Chicago area, according to ATF spokesman Jerry Singer.

At least 25 alleged gang members were arrested; others were being sought.

A specially trained dog was flown in from the ATF's Washington office to detect drugs and firearms, Singer said. Some guns were recovered, he said.

Randall Sandborn, spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office, said the reputed leader of the gang, Larry Hoover, was already in prison but allegedly ran the gang from the inside. Hoover, serving 150 to 200 years in a 1973 slaying, was moved from state to federal custody.

Hoover pleaded innocent. A bond hearing was set for 2:30 p.m. Friday.

Police estimate the Gangster Disciples have 10,000 hardcore members.

INDIANAPOLIS

Opponents of a state law requiring a waiting period for abortions will have a tough time convincing federal courts the legislation should be thrown out, a law professor said Thursday.

"The long and short of it is the challengers face an uphill battle if they are going to persuade either the district court or the Court of Appeals to render it unconstitutional," said Daniel Conkle, a constitutional law professor at Indiana University.

Meanwhile, Indiana Right to Life said Thursday that it would file its own brief in support of the law, which primarily is being defended by the Indiana attorney general's office.

The U.S. District Judge David Hamilton issued a temporary restraining order Wednesday night preventing the law from taking effect as scheduled Friday.

Seven abortion clinics and a doctor who performs the procedure had filed a lawsuit against the law, saying it was intended to prevent women from getting abortions.

The law requires a woman to receive face-to-face counseling on the risks and alternatives to abortion, then wait at least 24 hours before receiving one. The information must be provided by a physician, physician's assistant, advanced nurse practitioner or midwife.

Backers of the law say it is intended to make sure women know as much as possible about the procedure, which they say has physical risks and can leave emotional scars.

Although opponents got the restraining order, after persuading Hamilton that the law could prevent some women from exercising their right to choose, that decision was based on limited information.

Hamilton has set a Sept. 13 hearing to determine whether he will issue a preliminary injunction, which would block the law until its constitutionality is determined. That will mean more in-depth proceedings.

"The fact that a temporary restraining order was issued does not mean a whole lot," Conkle said. "He is only indicating that he wants more time to look at the case."

The case could hinge on differences between Indiana's law and a similar Pennsylvania statute requiring a 24-hour waiting period that was upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1992.

Opponents of Indiana's law say it requires two visits to a doctor, which many low-income women cannot afford.

In formation can be given over the phone in Pennsylvania.

But when the Supreme Court decided the Pennsylvania case, it did so believing that law may have required two visits to a doctor, Conkle said.

Federal courts also have upheld such laws in Ohio, South Dakota, North Dakota, Mississippi and Idaho.

"I wouldn't say the challengers don't have a chance... but I do think they have an uphill battle," Conkle said.

Backers of Indiana's law, including some legislators and abortion opponents, said they would support a strong defense of the statute.

But some are concerned about what lies two key players in the case have to Demo­cratic Gov. Evan Bayh, who vetoed the bill because it did not exempt victims of rape and incest from the waiting period. The veto was overridden.

Attorney General Pamela Carter was a former executive assistant to Bayh, and Judge Hamilton was a former chief legal counsel to the governor.

Indiana law faces challenge in federal courts

Fuel cell postpones shuttle
Launch delayed; tardy mission aims for Friday
By MARCIA DUNN
Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. - An overheated fuel cell forced NASA to scrub the launch of space shuttle Endeavour just hours before liftoff today, delaying the already belated mission by one week.

One of Endeavour's three electricity-generating fuel cells failed early this morning, before NASA had even begun to fuel the shuttle. Technicians were able to restart the power plant, but it overheated again. Shuttle managers called off the launch at 3:30 a.m., just after the five astronauts woke up to prepare for their scheduled 11:04 a.m. liftoff.

Shuttle operations director Bob Steck said the fuel cell would be replaced, allowing for a launch attempt Sept. 7.

Until the fuel-cell trouble, NASA officials were most worried about thunderstorms that threatened to delay liftoff.

But that remained the least of their concerns today, as the shuttle had undergone unprecedented launch-pad repairs after NASA discovered singe marks on fuel cells in nozzle joints.

The Challenger disaster in 1986 was blamed on a leak of hot gas through a different set of O-rings.

Said Steck today that the latest mission "has had more than its share of hardware and weather woes."

"You have to look at it philosophically as you do when you're in this business," he said.

"There are times when the hardware's going to stick its tongue out at you. The problem, you find it, you fix it and you get on with what the mission is all about."

Engineers believe a valve on the fuel cell may have gotten stuck, said Pat Simpkins, chief of NASA's fuel-cell branch. The valve had been used for 1,700 hours, well below the limit, he said.

Beeswax interspersed with copper flakes is used to move the plunger that operates this valve. It's unlikely, though, that beeswax is to blame for the failure, Simpkins said.

The fuel cell heated up to 184 degrees Fahrenheit, 24 degrees above the limit. Fuel cells, located beneath the cargo bay, burn liquid hydrogen and oxygen to generate electricity throughout a shuttle flight. Each unit weighs 255 pounds and is 40 inches long, 15 inches wide and 14 inches thick.

Fuel cells are critical: The failure could force NASA to order a spacewalk to test tools and equipment on the International Space Station. Simpkins said.

"Physically, it was very difficult," the hardest part of the 115-day mission by far, Simpkins told The Associated Press. But he was back on terra firma. "This was a lot to do. This was probably up to the limit." He stayed in touch with his colleagues on the space shuttles, which were required before the U.S. shuttle Atlantis could dock in late June.

The work outside Mir was so grueling — shuffling docking equipment around, moving solar panels — that Deshurkov and cosmonaut Gennady Strekalov spent three or four days before each spacewalk exercising to increase their stamina. They were too tired to do much of anything for two days after each spacewalk.

Deshurkov says it's no wonder he lost 11 pounds.

Judge: Extradition law violates Constitution

WASHINGTON

A federal judge today struck down the nation's 148-year-old extradition law, ruling it violates the Constitution by allowing the executive branch to review legal decisions from the judiciary.

The ruling by U.S. District Judge Royce C. Lamberth prevents the extradition of two Chicago men sought by Canadian authorities on kidnapping charges. But the judge said the ruling would protect others awaiting international extradition — perhaps 250 people, according to court papers.

Lamberth said it appeared no one had ever challenged the law on separation-of-powers grounds and no court had raised the issue.

"It is certainly unfortunate that this fundamental flaw has gone on unnoticed for so long; however, the court will not further compound this error by turning a blind eye to the statute now. The court's duty is clear," Lamberth wrote.

Under the law, a federal judge conducts an extradition hearing for a person being sought by a foreign government. After considering the evidence, the judge determines whether the person is eligible for extradition. The judge then certifies the finding to the secretary of state. The State Department, part of the executive branch, ultimately decides whether to turn the person over to the foreign government.

The question in this case was whether the law gives the secretary of state the authority to review legal determinations.
Spell check alters ND bigwigs

With the advent of a new school year comes new adventures on the computer. For those of us who deal with computer literate individuals like me, the little goodies in a software package can often be a source of learning for hours.

I admit that I am a cyber-challenged hacker when it comes to surfing the net, but boy can I spell check a document like a pro.

I became fascinated with my spell checker when it tried to give me a "correct version" of my favorite word, "Molly." I can just see the great undercover international spy name for House Speaker Newt Gingrich's last name. "Gonorrhea" and "Jingoish" flashed in the window. Of course, my computer's thesaurus had no synonyms or words to offer. "Mongol," "Mongoish," so I still do not know what it means. Yet, I'll play with it. I'll use "Gonorrhea" just somehow seem to fit Newt's person.

Those accidental enlightenment gave me an idea to test Notre Dame names on my spell checker to see which synonyms or corrections could be conjured up in cyberspace. Since the beginning of the school year coincides with the beginning of football season, "Notel" came to mind as my first experimental word. "Holtz" was a "correct version" of House Speaker Newt Gingrich's last name. "Gonorrhea" and "Jingoish" flashed in the window. Of course, my computer's thesaurus had no synonyms or words to offer. "Mongol," "Mongoish," so I still do not know what it means. Yet, I'll play with it. I'll use "Gonorrhea" just somehow seem to fit Newt's person.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Opus Dei: The other side

Dear Editor:

I read with great interest Chuck Roth's article about Opus Dei (Aug. 12). Roth has written freely about a subject that he knows very little about. Instead of a thorough, line-by-line critique of Roth's article, I will offer some of my own experiences with "The Work" and let readers judge for themselves.

The first things I ever heard about Opus Dei were negative. A trusted parish priest, a high school youth minister, and unfavorable press coverage were enough to convince me that this was an organization to be avoided. Imagine my horror when, in 1991, my mother announced that she had joined Opus Dei. My father and I sat for hours and tried to convince her that she had made a huge mistake. I'm elitist, secretive, way-too-powerful, ultra-conservative,. etc., etc. But she wouldn't budge, and offered responses that seemed to confirm our accusations. I left for Notre Dame. A year later, however, I decided to spend the next year in Rome.

My mother, still unswayed, had discretionally hidden some books in my luggage, and I think she told people to tell people in Rome to get in touch with me. Grudgingly, I began to learn about Opus Dei. Yes, some things about "Opus Dei people" initially struck me as weird: they stop for various times during the day, read the gospels (in public), talk about religious stuff (a lot), and go out of their way to be super-nice to everyone.

For me, the turning point came that Easter when I decided to forgo my trip to the Greek Islands ("where Dionysian revelry is reborn"). Let's Go Europe), and stay in Rome for Holy Week. Opus Dei has their annual collegiate conference, UNIV, which turned out to be a much bigger deal than I expected. I met students from all over the world, from an Irish guy, I received a copy of "The Way," a spiritual book written by the recently beatified founder of Opus Dei, Josemaria Escrivá. I actually began to think about, well, heaven's stuff. It was about then that I realized the whole point to Opus Dei - they love God, they want to be friends with God, they want to go to heaven, and they want to take people with them. And, they're proud to be Catholic.

An RA last year told that had these feelings been known when I applied, I would not have been selected. Who can blame reason to acknowledge an association with overt antagonism like this? While an RA, I discovered some deep feelings of distrust on the part of C.S.C. priests, which seemed to be based upon their own ministry with people who had had a bad experience with an individual member of Opus Dei. I would encourage the C.S.C. to look beyond isolated incidents and try to see that Opus Dei does not in any way seek to undermine their good work on campus. Yes, there is a feeling of recruitment, but it is not to join Opus Dei, rather, encouragement to become a better Catholic.

The Church has approved of Opus Dei for many years now, and in my experience, there is no other organization that offers the same breadth of practical advice for one's own daily struggle. Perhaps it is time to recognize that this rumor-mongering here at Notre Dame is akin to silliness rivalry. After all, both organizations share the same destination, heaven. They are merely following parallel roads.

Professors answer anthropological criticism

Dear Editor:

You may all have noticed, that for several years now, a student in the Philosophy Department of Physics, has made repeated attacks on anthropological theory in the Viewpoint as well as other college publications. The Observer, and I have given his challenges and demands a lot of thought, and frankly, none of them make much sense to me. Up to now, Beeli shows no signs of tiring in his quest, and his letters still do not make much sense to me, they just seem very angry.

A whole lot of sense to me, they just seem very angry.

To come to my class as a guest lecturer to explain his views. In these letters, he seemed to be regularly expressing concern about the un-apologetic teaching of any evolutionary theory at NDU which not only undergoes... according to Beeli, is seen as a threat to God's truth. I think it might be worth it to invite Beeli to come to one of my classes on human evolution to present his views. I then sent the invitation in writing, and Beeli clearly was interested in delivering his position. After a brief introduction by me, he was given the remainder of a 75-minute class period.

I eventually dawned on me what was happening. Beeli was presenting a deeply flawed view of evolutionary theory. How could this happen? What would explain such an evolution? (which gives rise to qualitatively different phenomena and process) - only partially true. Some evolutionary processes (for example, mutation and genetic drift) can be random, but other evolutionary mechanisms such as natural selection and gene flow are not random. '... as the organism develops to a state of greater complexity' - incompetent. As some of the readers may have overheard the last four years or so. Beeli has a long history of writing letters in The Observer against anthropological theory suggesting that we end our deviance and follow Pufendorf's pipes. The letters usually demand that we apologize to you all for the error of our ways. This story may help you better understand his letters for his generally go unanswered.

I have wondered why Beeli has chosen to restrict his attacks in such a soft and woolly science as anthropology. Surely, as a member of the community of the 'pure' sciences, he would have more sport hunting a quarry truly discernible effects on phenotype or notational structures and process (sic) evolutions... which does not evolve during its lifetime. In my opinion, Beeli has made repeated attacks on anthropology in the Viewpoint as well as... to provide one example of research results of another group of scientists, and was so poorly informed about a topic with which he seems to be strangely obsessed... the Anthropology Department can... and... that still disagree with Copernicus and Galileo are irrelevant (at least we never hear of them any more). We can figure this out.

Aristotle's astronomy is today. We can know very little about evolution... except, of course, that they rect because not all evolution leads to greater complexity. In some cases, the statement would still be true. For example, if we assume that species, and you can hardly get less complex than non-existence.

As a result, Beeli's argument against evolution is a creationist one, and is very similar to creationism that was the official science 400 years ago against the idea that the Earth orbits the Sun. This radical idea was only accepted by the scientific community after 300 years of constant scientific, economic, and cultural upheaval. Creationism will someday be something more than a historical footnote, just as Aristotle's astronomy was a popular science for many centuries. I don't know if we will ever know if there is anything else we can do, but I would be willing to come to class to explain my views on the subject of evolution...
He said . . .

The first home football weekend I experienced at Notre Dame was certainly a momentous occasion. It was last year's Michigan game. What a great game to start off with! A twenty teams squaring off against another, ready to tear each other to pieces.

Being an Irish Catholic, I had heard so much about Notre Dame: the aura, the game, the tradition, the crowds, the pep rally, the tailgating, and the drinking. I had never experienced anything like that before. The Notre Dame campus transformed into a haven of football aficionados. I came back to my room around 4:00 p.m., Friday afternoon, only to find a group of upperclassmen hoovering around my room. Like buzzards, they wanted some fresh blood. With the excitement of tailgating, there's nothing like it before every pep rally. Naturally, being the naive freshman that I was, I took their word for it.

Eventually, we arrived at the pep rally. We were packed tightly into the Joyce ACC as if it was a can of sardines. The excited crowd gathered, trying to engage in a series of what appeared to be at the time, familiar catchphrases, like, "Chuck, the hand came onto the field, which was paraded up and down the sidelines. The neighboring parking lots had become a city of Whitefaces. It was a sight to see. Thousands of people camped out just to see a football game. The thought assuaged me. But, then again, they didn't camp out for just any football game. They camped out for a Notre Dame football game.

After the homecoming celebration, my companions and I entered the stadium and climbed what seemed to be an infinite number of stairs into the heights of the freshman section. Sighs, sounds, and smells flooded my senses as I made my way through.

I took their word for it. It was one of those people who chose ND for the academics and was shocked when everyone asked me for football tickets after I was accepted. My most vivid memories are of the first game I went to. My brother yelled, "Ooooo, he's running a yard field, intent on destroying each other in a huge violent tendency. Little did I know what an amazing meal of sausages and various brewed beverages could be gleaned from alumni who were there. I still vividly remember what an amazing sight it was: the aura, the game, the tradition, the crowds, the pep rally, the tailgating, and the drinking. SEALS BREEZE INTO THIRD ROUND

By BOB GREENE

NEW YORK

Monica Seles solved the winds and her opponent today to sail into the third round of the U.S. Open by defeating Erika de Lone 6-2, 6-1. But several seeded players fell on the fourth day of the year's final Grand Slam tournament.

Zina Garrison Jackson used her speed and experience to eliminate 10th-seeded Lindsay Davenport 6-1, 6-3 in women's singles, while Daniel Vacek of Czech Republic ousted No. 11 Sergi Bruguera of Spain in a men's second-round match 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

In other early women's matches, No. 11 Anke Huber defeated Anne Miller 6-0, 7-5. Nicole Arendt stopped Badakova of Bulgaria 7-5, 6-3. Japan's Nako Sawamatsu downed Janet Lee 6-3, 6-3. Sandrine Testud of France defeated Dominique Monami of Belgium 6-1, 6-4; and Angelica Galvadon of Mexico defeated Johanna Watanabe 6-3, 6-1. In other men's matches, No. 7 Yevgeny Kafelnikov of Russia stopped Portugal's Nuno Vilasques 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 and South Africa's Marcus Ondruska defeated Jerome Golmard of France 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Although she won comparatively easy, the second-seeded Seles, playing in only her second tournament following a 1/4-year layoff, was not overwheled. She looked as if she could be beaten by someone with a bigger game than de Lone, who was playing in her first Grand Slam tournament main draw since the 1991 U.S. Open, when she reached the second round.

Still, the 58-minute victory was Seles' 16th consecutive match win in Grand Slam tournaments, 16th straight in U.S. Open matches and ran her 1995 streak to 6-0. Playing in her 16th Open, Garrison Jackson used her quickness to get to every ball, then moved the kneeling Davenport from side to side until either she found an opening or Davenport made an error.

Except for 1993, Garrison Jackson has reached at least the fourth round on the National Tennis Center hardcourts every year since 1985, a stretch that also saw her lose to Martina Navratilova in the 1990 Wimbledon final. Shortly before this year's Open, she announced she had changed her plans and decided not to retire at the end of this year.

Davenport, at 6-foot-2 1/2 and 162 pounds, is one of the biggest hitters in women's tennis. But Garrison Jackson changed pace, not allowing Davenport to get into a groove, and kept her opponent on the move, rarely allowing her a chance to set up for her big shots.

"I know my game would give Lindsay trouble, I don't hit with a lot of pace and I move very well," Garrison Jackson said.

Davenport had more answers in the second set, but by then Garrison Jackson had presented even more problems. And Davenport didn't help herself, committing a bevy of errors and five double-faults, including on match point.

"She played an unbelievable first set and hit all sorts of great shots, good volleys, good groundstrokes," Davenport said of Garrison Jackson. "She didn't make very many errors. The first set was over then, you know, I got killed."

Johnson moves Mariners closer to wildcard

Associated Press

Seattle's Randy Johnson scratched from his start and Boston's Rheal Cormier didn't last much longer Thursday night as the Mariners scored six runs in the first two innings and beat the Red Sox 11-2. Cormier (6-5) was gone after two innings when Tino Martinez tried to stretch a single into a double. It was 6-1 after two innings — the second night in a row Boston spotted Seattle a five-run lead. But the Red Sox had no heroes similar to Wednes­day's five-run seventh.

Johnson moves Mariners closer to wildcard

John Valentin's leadoff home run in the seventh chased Cormier, who allowed two runs on nine hits with two walks and four strikeouts. Lee Guetterman pitched three innings for his first save.

The Indians scored five more runs in the eighth on Jay Buhner's three-run homer, Wilson's RBI single, and a fielder's choice by Felix Fermin. Buhner and Edgar Martinez had three RBIs each.

Albert Belle homered in extra innings for the second straight night Thursday, hitting a two-run shot in the 10th that lifted the Cleveland Indians past the Toronto Blue Jays 6-4. It marked the ninth time this year the Indians ended a home game with a home run. Belle has done it three times.

The Indians have won a season-high eight in a row overall, improving baseball's best record to 80-35. They swept the four-game series with the Blue Jays and are 11-0 in extra innings.

Jim Thome drew a one-out single in the ninth, the Indians sent the game to extra innings when Carlos Baerga — pinch-hitting for the first time all season — hit a sacrifice fly off Tony Castillo.

Baerga leads the AL in hits and had started all of the Indians' previous 114 games, but he was being rested following their 14th-inning win Wednesday night. Belle won that one with a solo drive.

Baerga's fly ball, which followed a single by Manny Ramirez and a double by Sandy Alomar, erased the 4-3 lead the Blue Jays had taken on an RBI single by Sandy Martinez in the seventh.

Toronto starter Ed Hurtdado matched a team record by throwing four wild pitches — the most by a pitcher in a game this season — and they cost him, contributing to each of Cleveland's first three runs.

The Indians scored twice in the first on Thorne's groundout and Baerga's sacrifice fly, after a wild pitch advanced runners to second and third.

Cleveland tied it 3-3 in the sixth when Belle doubled, moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on Eddie Murray's third single of the night.

Hill also hurt his own cause with a wild pitch during the Blue Jays' three-run fourth. Paul Molitor doubled, went to third on Roberto Alomar's infield single and scored on John Olerud's single. A wild pitch sent the runners to second and third, and Ed Sprague drove in a run with a groundout before Shawn Green hit an RBI triple.

He faced 12 batters, allowing five earned runs on seven hits and a walk. One of the four outs he got came when Tino Marti­nez tried to stretch a single into a double.

Maddox on fire as Atlanta defeats Houston

Associated Press

Greg Maddox posted his 13th victory in his last 14 decisions and became the NL's top winner as the Atlanta Braves beat the Houston Astros 5-2 Thursday night.

Maddox (15-2) checked the Astros on six hits as he pitched his third straight complete game and his major-league-leading ninth. Maddox, who had four strikeouts and one intentional walk, got 21 of the 27 outs on grounders.

Chipper Jones homered and Dwight Smith delivered a sacrifice fly in support of Maddux, who allowed two runs and two hits in seven innings.

At 3-1 lead after Shawon Dunston was caught stealing second, the Pirates took a 3-1 lead as Jack Wilson hit a two-run homer over the left-field wall for his 16th slam and a solo homer to lead three runs and four hits in 6 1-3 innings.

The Pirates lost since July 16, won eight major league starts and moved to within 10 games of being a wild-card berth.

McRae returned Thursday from a two-game suspension for arguing with an umpire in a June 30 game against St. Louis.

Phillies 6, Giants 0

Two months ago, Sid Fernandez was told by the Baltimore Orioles he was no longer capable of being a starting pitcher.

Now he is Philadelphia's best starter as it seeks a playoff berth.

Fernandez and two relievers held San Francisco to five hits and Gregg Jefferies and Mark Whiten hit back-to-back homers in the eighth inning, as the Phillies beat the Giants 6-0 Thursday.

Fernandez (6-1), who has won his last six decisions, allowed three hits in 6 2-3 innings before leaving with stiffness in his upper back. Ricky Bones hit four outs and Heathcliff Slomick pitched the ninth.

The Giants were shut out for the fourth time in their last 27 games, part of a 31-inning scoreless drought over eight times this season.

Having to rely on a starting staff they're still only six games back of the wild-card column.

"We're still in it," said Matt Williams, who is hitting in his last 14 at-bats and 7-for-40 in 122 since returning from the disabled list. "We're close enough to make a move."

Expos 5, Padres 4

With the Montreal Expos playing a day game after a night game in Miami, Dave Fletcher was expected to get the start.

Good thing for the Expos he didn't.

Fernandez hit a two-out home run in the top of the 10th inning to give the Expos a 4-3 lead in their 5-4 win Thursday over the San Diego Padres.

"I really wanted to give Dar­lin a rest because he was coming off a game in the night game," Expos manager Felipe Alou said. "I was very close to not starting him, but he's always hit pretty well against them."

Prior to Thursday, Fletcher's only at-bat for the Padres was 444, hitting safely in 4 of 9 plate appearances. Fletcher played left field and pinch hit.

Ashby was double-tie to the game at 1-1.

Fletcher's game-winning homer came off reliever Ron Villone (1-1). Reliever Willie Blair (1-3) pitched one inning, and Mel Rojas pitched the 10th and got the save.

"This guy (Villone) is out there throwing 94 mph to everybody. I was looking for an off-speed pitch," said Fletcher, who had a game-winning hit in the fourth inning against a two-out pitcher.

"I was going to go at it myself if he threw me that pitch again, I wasn't going to go at it and I'm really happy with my bat at it," just garnished fastball away and got early start on it. I got on top of a high fastball. I didn't hit that bad ball, but I hit the last good one enough to where it carried out."

Fletcher went 2-for-4 and scored twice, while Sean Berry went 4-for-5 with a home run, two doubles and two RBI.

"For some reason, Berry and Fletcher, they've always done well against us," Padres manager Bruce Bochy said.

"We battled back against a good pitcher (Pedro Martinez). He did a couple of solo homer beats us."

The Padres had a chance to win in the ninth inning when they loaded the bases with two outs. But Fraser got out of the jam.

Martinez made his first appearance of the season since throwing nine perfect innings June 3 in a win over St. Louis.

He allowed four runs on seven hits with six strikeouts in six innings. Ashby pitched six innings, allowing three runs and six hits, earning his 17th save.

Lasting, who had three hits Wednesday night, singled in David Segui in the third to give the Expos a 2-1 lead.
Paul O'Neill drove in runs with home runs and a single Thursday night to lead the New York Yankees to an 11-6 victory over California, the Angels' sixth straight loss.

O'Neill, who raised his season homer total to 19, hit a three-run shot in each of the first two innings off starter Brian Anderson (6-7) as the Yankees built a 7-0 lead. He led off the fifth with a solo homer off Mike Harkey and added an RBI single in the Yankee three-run sixth.

O'Neill faced Troy Percival, the sixth Angels pitcher, in the eighth, and was called out on strikes.

After an eight-game losing streak, the Yankees have won four of five and swept the three-game series against the Angels, who have lost nine of 11.

O'Neill's three homers marked the 20th time the feat has been accomplished by a Yankee in the regular season, and he became the 14th New York Yankee to hit three homers in a game, and the second this season.

Mike Stanley, who hit his 17th home run, became first to account for the Yankees' fourth run, hit three homers against Cleveland on Aug. 19 in a game which the Yankees lost 10-9.

O'Neill's eight RBIs were his career-high and the three-homer game was the first of his career.

Sterling Hitchcock (7-9), the first of four Yankees pitchers, allowed four runs on six hits in 5 2-3 innings. He walked four and struck out two.

California scored on Roy Hulider's RBI single in the third, and added three runs in the sixth, finishing off Hitchcock. The Angels scored on a throwing error by second baseman Pat Kelly, before pinch-hitter Spike Owen's RBI single and Greg Myers' RBI double off reliever Bob Wickman.

New York scored three runs in the sixth on O'Neill's RBI single before reliever Mike Butcher issued bases-loaded walks to Stanley and Don Mattingly.

The Angels added a run in the eighth and ninth.

White Sox 9, Tigers 0

A trade gave Lyle Mouton an opportunity, and the rookie outfielder is making the most of his chance.

Mouton had the first four-hit game of his career, including two singles in Chicago's eight-run second inning as the White Sox beat the Detroit Tigers 9-0 Thursday.

Starting the last seven games, he is batting .440 (11-for-25) and has scored six runs.

"I want to grab this opportun­ity, not wait it to be given to me," said Mouton, who has replaced Mike Devereaux, recently traded to Atlanta.

"You got to keep working because there is someone always behind you trying to take your job. The hardest part is not getting here, it's staying here."

Ozzie Guillen's three-run single was the key hit as the White Sox scored eight runs with two outs in the second inning.

Chicago sent 13 batters to the plate and had six hits against Mike Moore and Brian Bohanon in its highest scoring inning this season.

Alex Fernandez (9-8) scattered five hits, struck out five and walked none in his third complete game in 24 starts. It was his first shutout since July 8, 1994, against Milwaukee.

"I don't have any comments, they just beat us," Detroit manager Sparky Anderson said. "If we could have kept them from hitting in the second we would have been all right. I like the job Fernandez did. I thought he pitched super."

With the game scoreless, Robin Ventura walked with one out and Mouton singled. After runners moved up on an infield out, Mike LaValliere walked to load the bases.

Asked whether Moore would be removed from the rotation, Anderson said: "Who do we have? We'll see who will come up, but there is no chance that Mike will move out of the rotation."

A sacrifice fly by LaValliere in the fifth made it 9-0.

STILLWATER, Okla. - No. 2 Nebraska opened defense of its national championship with a dominating performance Thursday night, getting three first-half touchdowns from Lawrence Phillips in a 64-21 victory over Oklahoma State.

Phillips cleared Tuesday by the NCAA to play, had 125 yards at halftime and finished with 153 on 12 carries as the Cornhuskers rolled up 671 yards and beat Oklahoma State for the 22nd straight time.

They have not lost to the Cowboys since 1961, the only break a tie game - the longest streak since 1961, the only break a tie game.

First-year coach Bob Simmons saw his Cornhuskers, 3-7-1 in 1994, get mauled from the start by the Cowboys, 3-7-1 in 1994.

Phillips' eligibility was in question while the NCAA looked into a car purchased for a California state home, where he remains under investigation for a car bought by his guardian at a time when theCornhuskers reserves after Nebraska had opened a 50-7 lead.

Frazier, who missed much of last season due to a blood clot in his left leg, looked sharp. He ran for 64 yards on 16 carries, including a 79-yard touchdown run by Andre Thompson, who had 128 yards in 16 carries, broke off a 79-yard run. That set up a 2-yard touchdown run by Andre Richardson that made the score 16-7.

Phillips immediately put a halt to any Cowboys momentum, going 80 yards for a score on the first play after the kickoff. He added a 27-yard touchdown on the second possession but the defense made that mistake incidental by scoring on the first play after the kickoff.

Tommie Frazier added two touchdown passes and scored once on the ground. The Cornhuskers, 13-0 last year, won their 26th straight regular-season game - the longest streak in the country - and 18th in a row in Big Eight play.

Oklahoma State's offense was stopped by any Cowboys beaten, 67-14, in 12 plays with a fumble at midfield on the Cornhuskers' first possession but the defense made the mistake incidental by holding Oklahoma State to minus-15 yards in three plays.

Southern Cal to provide early test for Irish home win streak

By BETSY BAKER
Sports Writer

The eleventh-ranked Notre Dame volleyball team is not wasting any time showing their seriousness about this season. After nearly a month of vigorous preseason training, the Irish will open their season at home this weekend against Northwestern on Friday and ninth-ranked Southern Cal on Saturday.

Unlike last season, in which the Irish went ten matches before facing a ranked opponent, the team will dive into intense competition its first weekend of play. In fact, the Trojans are one of only four teams who placed a blemish on the 33-4 record of the Irish last season and this weekend’s reunion is long anticipated by players and fans alike. The Trojans finished the 1994 season with a 22-8 record, losing in the NCAA semifinals to National Champion Stanford.

The team remains excited about the chance of revenge against the Trojans, but is not looking past the match against Northwestern on Friday. The Wildcats are coming off a rough 1994 season in which they placed last in the Big Ten and finished up with a 15-20 record. However, the chance to redeem their standing could be good incentive for the Wildcats and definitely could be achieved by a victory over the nationally ranked Irish. Therefore, the Irish are assuming nothing about their season opener on Friday.

“The team is looking forward to this weekend, especially the match against USC, but we are looking at Northwestern first,” Irish head coach Debbie Brown said.

“We don’t know much about Northwestern, but they play in a tough conference, the Big Ten, so I expect them to be competitive.”

Still, no coach or player can resist the urge to look forward to an impending match like that which will take place on Saturday. Brown, a two-time captain of USC, knows firsthand the strength of the team that boasted a 72-1 record at home this weekend against USC.

“We have felt the last few times against USC that we haven’t been competitive,” Brown said. “But we have had a great pre-season and we have set high goals for ourselves this season.”

“In addition to that, we will have the home court advantage.”

The Irish have not lost a match in the Joyce Athletic and Convocation Center in 25 matches and will put that streak on the line this weekend. In the fifteen year history of the volleyball program at Notre Dame, the Irish post a 125-48 record at home.

These factors, in combination with the absence of two of USC’s top players, Kelly Kuebler and Vesna Dragicevic, may be the key contributors to an Irish victory this weekend.

Junior co-captain Jenny Birkner looks forward to this weekend as a chance to put their pre-season training into action, but puts special emphasis on the match versus USC.

“We have trained really hard, and we are just excited to play somebody else for a change,” Birkner said.

“And we can’t wait to play USC.”

Lanza back to lead Irish through Big East debut

DYLAN BARMER
Sports Writer

When the Notre Dame men's soccer team takes the field in its season opener against De-Paul University this Sunday at 2:00, they will do so possessing something that was conspicuously absent last season.

That something is Bill Lanza, the senior forward and magician who was forced to sit out all but one game last season after getting on a magnificent show throughout his sophomore year. Lanza is back to wreak havoc in the competition in Notre Dame's first season as a member of the Big East conference, looking to regain the form that he maintained throughout his sophomore season, when he registered 10 goals and 10 assists in 20 games.

Although his knee has recovered since he first wrecked it in a preseason game last year, Lanza suffered a bad ankle sprain this summer, and he is still working to get back to 100 percent.

"Right now, my ankle is the strongest it's been since I hurt it," commented the soft-spoken Lanza. "It's good to play on it, since that strengthens it, although I run the risk of it getting kicked."

If Lanza can return to his previous form, not many defenders will be kicking his ankle, as they will be too busy trying to catch up with him. The player who is described as "an elusive, quick, and creative player who can make things happen with the ball" in Notre Dame's media guide is excited just to be back on the field for now. "I'm really excited to play again this year," commented Lanza. "I hated it last year, not being able to play. I appreciate just being able to get on the field now."

For the time being, Irish head coach Mike Berticelli will use Lanza somewhat sparingly, probably limiting him to the first half of play for at least the first few games of this season. "Right now I am surrounded by great players," said Lanza, "I just look to get a goal early, as that seems to always open things up. We seem to struggle sometimes if we don't score early on in the game, so I look forward to being able to give it all my all for one half."

In a season of uncertainties and high hopes, much will be made of Lanza's contribution to the team, but for the time being, the Irish are just happy to have him back.

Senior forward Bill Lanza is looking to have a big season after sitting out almost all of last season with a knee injury.

Blue Demons first test for young, inexperienced Notre Dame squad

By DYLAN BARAMMER
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men's soccer squad will open its season at home this Sunday, when they meet DePaul University at 2:00 at Alumni Field.

The Irish are coming off a 1-1 preseason tie with #15 St. Louis University, and will be fielding a young, somewhat inexperienced team. Sunday's match will serve as a sort of casting call for a more solid lineup, as head coach Mike Berticelli looks to fit in all the pieces of the puzzle that were removed with last year's graduation of seven starters.

"We are a young team, we will have to evaluate our lineup throughout the first two or three games," said Berticelli. "A number of different players will get some playing time on Sunday. It's early still."

The Irish will be afforded such a chance to evaluate their team through the first two games against DePaul and Valparaiso, before their matchup with Big East rival Syracuse on September 10.

Although not on the level of a Syracuse, Berticelli is not looking past DePaul.

"We have a lot of respect for DePaul," said Berticelli. "They always play well, and they got a good recruiting class last year. We always have a good game with them." DePaul finished last season with a 12-5-1 mark, and will be returning two solid forwards in Cedric Thompson and Dan Stokes. Mark Suda, who scored 14 goals last year for the Blue Demons, is gone, as is goalkeeper Brett Rosenberger, whom Berticelli called "an outstanding goalie."

On the topic of goalkeepers, it is still unclear just who will get the starting nod from Berticelli on Sunday, although most of the signs seem to point to sophomore Peter Van de Ven, who played the entire first half against St. Louis. "Right now, I am leading towards starting Peter," said Berticelli. "I am also confident in starting Greg Velho, however."

In addition to Van de Ven and freshman Velho, the Irish are also keeping in mind freshman Gerick Short, who played the entire second half against St. Louis. In other words, this year's Irish team may feature a revolving cast of characters in goal, all talented, but lacking one crucial element: experience.

"All three will be constantly pushing each other," commented Berticelli.

The Irish defense seems to have been solidified a bit more, with sophomore David Mathis penciled in to start at marking back, and fellow sophomore Matt Zimmer at sweeper. The two will join Brian Engesser, the lone returning defensive starter, in the backfield.

Also winning a starting job was senior Bill Lanza, Berticelli plans to start him, although he may limit him to only the first half, as was the case in the game against St. Louis.

Since this weekend marks the first time Notre Dame plays a full slate of Big East games, one would expect the teams to know little about each other. That assumption is not different in the case of the women's soccer team, which is just the way they want it.

“We’re not refined enough to start looking at the other opponent yet,” women’s coach Chris Petrucelli said. “We’re going to be more concerned about ourselves.”

In that frame of mind, the No. 2 ranked Irish prepare to face Providence on Saturday and St. John’s on Sunday at Alumni Field. That field has been the site of 21 straight wins dating back to the 1992 campaign. They also boast a 70-9-1 mark over the seven years the women have played there.

In the face of these statistics, both schools know a win this weekend could not be a better way to open the season.

“A win would certainly set an elated tone for the rest of the season,” Providence coach Donna Hornish-Lisevick said.

“It would be a great accomplishment,” St. John’s assistant coach Cristin Burtis added. Burtis is taking over coaching duties after leading the Red Storm to their first-ever Big East women’s soccer tournament title last year. She was named the tournament’s most outstanding player.

She now looks to direct St. John’s back to similar glory with a different team makeup.

“We have a young team,” Burtis said. “We need to go out and try to pull everything together.”

Against the Irish, that means playing well in the middle.

“They have a strong midfield and we need to try and control it,” Burtis said.

The Red Storm look to forwards Julie Newman and midfielder Shannon Ristler to try and accomplish this.

“St. John’s will be difficult to play against,” Petrucelli added. “They don’t give up the big goals.”

As for Providence, the Friars are coming off a below .500 year in 1994 and are predicted to place fifth in the Big East this year.

“Last year was a rebuilding year,” Hornish-Lisevick said of last year’s 8-10-1 record. “This is a great season starter for us. We’re looking to come out strong and play a solid game.”

Providence will also attempt to control the middle with captains Amy Heseltine and Karen Staufler.

“They’re a veteran group,” Petrucelli said.

“They only lost three players and made the NCAA tournament two years ago.”

Heading into this weekend the Irish are relatively healthy compared to last year.

Relative, however, is the key word as preseason All-American selection Cindy Daws tries to recover from straining both quadricep muscles. Daws’ previous foot injury is also limiting her mobility.

“Cindy’s still struggling,” Petrucelli added. “I’ll depend on how she feels at game time that determines how much she plays.”

Ragen Coyne and Kate Sobrero, who are both recovering from injuries, will both play.
Soccer power strongest in ACC

By DAVE TREACY

Despite the recruiting of Notre Dame and the continued strength of Connecticut, the Big East still plays second fiddle to the ACC in the eyes of many coaches across the country.

North Carolina has again claimed the top spot in the Soccer America preseason poll, with fellow conference members Duke, Virginia, and Clemson also in the top twenty.

"The ACC is just a tough conference," said Portland assistant coach Bill Irwin. "Anytime you've asked to name a conference with dominating national power, they automatically come to mind."

There's no doubt the ACC will be at the top of the ladder this year," said Duke coach Bill Fenstermacher. "Our league has only gotten stronger with excellent recruiting."

"There's no doubt the ACC will be at the top of the ladder this year," said Duke coach Bill Fenstermacher. "Our league has only gotten stronger with excellent recruiting."

Portland, victim to a 1-0 defeat at the hands of the Irish last season in the semi-finals of the NCAA tournament, is joined by Santa Clara to represent the WCC in the poll.

Notre Dame and UConn are the lone representatives of the Big East in the preseason polls. However, many Big East coaches still predict the conference will be very competitive.

"Our conference has now ascended to the next level," said Connecticut assistant Wendy Logan. "We won't be pushed around by anyone."

Irish's season last year.

"Sometimes we feel that we don't get the respect we deserve," Petrucci said. "All people saw was that 5-0 game last year.

"That game wasn't a good indicator of anything," senior Ragen Coyne added. "We just need to put it behind us and work towards this season."

With the first game on the horizon tomorrow against Providence, that's exactly what the Irish have already done. "Last season has no effect on this one," Petrucci noted. "We still have something to work towards."

"No one even thinks about it anymore," Guerrero added.

What they are thinking about is getting the team underway after nearly a month of strenuous practices.

"Practices are tough because everyone is so competitive," Guerrero said. "Everybody is really excited about starting the season," Daws added. "It'll be good to get to what we've learned and put it into something."

Petrucci, the 1994 national coach of the year, will welcome back all but two starters from last year's squad.

Joining the two-time All-American Daws at the offensive end will be senior forwards Guerrero and Michelle McCarthy. Guerrero led the team last year with 21 goals while McCarthy recorded a single-season best of 18 goals.

"The kind of leadership I can show is by working hard and leading by example," Guerrero commented.

After a summer with the U.S. National Team, sophomore Holly Mamet returns to the midfield where she recorded 30 assists a year ago.

"Playing on the next level gave me some great experience heading into the season," Mamet said.

Junior Stacia Masters and Coyne will be spearheading the attack along with Daws and Mamet in the midfield. Coyne is returning after sitting out her junior year due to a stress fracture in her shin bone.

"There is no pain in my leg and it feels good," Coyne said.

On the defensive front, All-American co-captain Jen Renola will be providing the wall opponents have grown accustomed to around the Irish net. A year ago the junior posted a 23-1-1 mark and recorded nine shutouts.

Aiding Renola in the defensive backfield will be All-American Kate Sobrero along with senior Ashley Scharff and junior Kate Fisher.

"We've gotten faster on defense," Scharff said. "We've also gotten smarter through the experience we have gained."

The Irish will also be unveiling a new formation this year as the coaching staff has implemented a 3-4-3 system instead of a 4-4-2.

"This type of system poses more of an offensive threat," Daws said. If this threat produces more goals this season the Irish may see their one goal realized.

"Everybody wants to achieve and thinks they can achieve," Daws added. "The team can't wait to get going."

Petrucci said. "When the season ended in November, they were ready to play a week later."

That much anticipated week opens this Saturday as the Irish look to get back to another much anticipated week in November.

Bell's look to improve on rough season

By CAROLINE BLUM
Saint Mary's Sports Editor

Say goodbye to 4-12. For the Saint Mary's soccer team, last season's 4-12 record was just a bad dream.

This season, the team is not only equipped with a new coach, but a new freshman goalkeeper, a returning stellar defense, an improved offense, and a healthy team as well.

Solomon Scholz, the team's new head coach, is focusing his efforts on a strategy which is new to the team this season: encouragement. Since the first day of practice, Scholz has been firing up his team with confidence and friendliness. "I cannot believe that these women did not win more games last year," said Scholz. "The only solution that I can deduce would be that the team was not happy and not motivated. I have and will continue to take the time to insure the happiness and motivation of my team this season."

Scholz has also inspired the Belles with the belief that they were unfamiliar with last season's winning. "I have told my team that our goal is to win," said Scholz. "If we enter every game with the attitude that we are going to win, we will be a hard team to beat."

This philosophy has already had strong effects upon the team. Wednesday evening the Belles pounded the Town College in a scrimmage game, 4-0.

"We started the scrimmage rather slow, but by the end we were playing great. Our passing and communicating were working well," said starting forward Lisa Nichols.

Due to Scholz's belief that a strong offense wins the game, he has been concentrating primarily on offense at practices so far this season. "I see no problems in the defense so far this season," said Scholz. "Therefore, we have been concentrating on the offense. The defense enables the team to score—which is the reason why we're here."

At the end of last season, the team contained only eleven healthy players, which left the team with no substitutes. Scholz's roster this season, however, contains 23 players which provides for two teams of 11, and one walk on. The first team will be the game's starting lineup, but Scholz has reminded them that their places on the first team are not permanent.

"I am so impressed with the depth of ability in the team. For this reason, I had a very difficult time trying to figure out who to put where," said Scholz. "The players should all expect to see a fair amount of playing time this season."

The Belles' starting forward line this season will be led once again by junior Lisa Nichols and senior captain Tiffany Hacyzynski.

"Lina is a powerful forward," said head coach Solomon Scholz. "I expect to see great things from her this season."

Nichols was responsible for the team's first and last goals Wednesday. "Therefore this year we are more of a team," said Nichols. "Wednesday there was a lot of communication between us, and we exemplified more of a team effort. I'm really excited to see what will happen when we apply this to the regular season."

The Belles' starting midfielders will include junior Bridg Keyes, sophomore Eileen Nevel, sophomores Jane Ann Fewell, and freshman Mary Clingerman. Clingerman is one of two starting freshmen this season. Keyes, a key element in the midfield, was out all of last season due to a knee injury. The team is very thankful for her return, however, and Keyes has already made a showing for the team with a goal in the scrimmage on Wednesday.

The defense starting line will be led by senior captain Gaylene Davis, senior Rita Junior, senior lead captain Tina Brockman, and sophomore Sandra Gass.

"Sandra is an incredible defender. When joined with Tina, Gaylene, and Rita our defense is amazing," said Scholz.

Joanne Wagner, from St. Joseph, Michigan, is in the team's other starting freshman this season. In addition to being her high school's starting varsity goalkeeper the last three years, Wagner was named to the Michigan All-State team last season. This season, Wagner will assume the position as the Belles' starting goalkeeper, even though senior Anne Kushine will also see a lot of playing time at the position.

The only concern for the Belles this season in the team's health. Sophomore Debbie Diemer has already had complications with her right knee, and several of the players are covered with frightening bruises and pulled quads. Diemer's knee did not appear to affect her coordination and ability in the team. For this reason, I only solution that I can deduce would be that the team was not happy and not motivated. I have and will continue to take the time to insure the happiness and motivation of my team this season."

Great Expectations

Only championship will appease Notre Dame

By JOE VILUNSKIS
Assistant Sports Editor

As practice opened in the scorching heat of August, the players assembled at the 1995 Notre Dame women's soccer team began to define their goals. While their individual goals remained scattered, one common desire emerged from the various aspirations: Win the national championship.

To Irish soccer fans across the country this would seem the most logical step. After reviewing the most successful season in the sport's brief seven-year life-span, including a runner-up finish in the NCAA championship tournament, it would seem that this could be the only objective.

However, it might surprise some to hear that this is not the first year that goal has been set. "Our goal is to win a national championship this year," head coach Chris Petrucelli said. "That's the way it's been for the last couple of years."

Talk to any player and that goal might become redundant. However, each insists that the lofty nature of this goal does not add any extra pressure.

"It only becomes pressure if we let it become pressure," senior Rosella Guarroto said. "There probably is pressure, but no one is experiencing it," co-captain Cindy Daws said. "Coach does a good job of deflecting it."

"As these confident attitudes linger...

Big East welcomes Irish

Without having ever played a game as a member of the conference, the Notre Dame women's soccer program has been picked by the conference coaches to capture the 1995 Big East soccer title. Obviously, their reputation precedes them.

Notre Dame women's soccer has become synonymous with success over the last several years. Ranked No. 2 in the Soccer America preseason poll, the squad brings a new level of talent into the already competitive Big East conference.

Head coach Chris Petrucelli and his squad are anticipating a successful yet challenging freshman year. "We won't be as good as through any games this season. We're going to have to earn all of our victories," Petrucelli predicted.
