University commissions firm to review campus jobs

By MEGAN McGrath

In an effort to improve working conditions for Notre Dame's support staff, the Department of Human Resources has commissioned a consulting firm to evaluate job descriptions and possibly restructure the classification process.

The department announced their plans to university employees this week. At a Gender Studies forum Thursday, Sept. 21, professors Jean Porter and Teresa Harris discussed several of the problems facing support staff at the University. In addition to the relatively low pay, which starts below that of secretaries and department chairs, many claimed that moving between categories was too easy.

"The University is not satisfied with the status quo," said Roger Mullins, Director of Human Resources.

Manley: Managers crucial

By MELANIE LAFLIN

Manley might have a lot to learn from Johnny Appleseed, sowing random seeds as he went. By doing so, he can get their assessment and involvement in the process," Mullins said. "We will be sitting down with staff, listening to their ideas and finding out what changes they'd implement.

At the forum, several secretaries and department chairs expressed frustration with the current system. Under the system, secretaries are placed into one of five categories. However, many claimed that moving between categories was too easy.

"For that reason we have commissioned a study of the system to take place in the next six to nine months," Mullins said. According to Human Resources, the consulting firm of Towers Perrin has been brought in to evaluate the classification of University support staff. Mullins also anticipates using extensive staff input.

"We are planning to put together staff committees so we can get their assessment and involvement in the process," Mullins said. "We will be sitting down with staff, listening to their ideas and finding out what changes they'd implement.

At the forum, several secretaries and department chairs expressed frustration with the current system. Under the system, secretaries are placed into one of five categories. However, many claimed that moving between categories was too easy.

see STAFF / page 6

Fuentes evaluates U.S., Latin American relations

By KARA PAVLIK

Carlos Fuentes, an interna- tionally acclaimed author, now finds himself assuming the role of a political figure in the quest for peace in Latin America.

Kicking off Saint Mary's week-long celebration of multiculturalism, Fuentes gave a speech in O'Laughlin Auditorium Saturday night entitled "U.S. and Latin America: A Shared Century." Fuentes' three-fold speech dealt with the history between Latin America and the United States, the regions' cultural differences and similarities, and post cold war policies regarding economic, political and social change.

"The history of relations has been a vast asymmetry of power," Fuentes said. Traditionally the United States has been treated as strong, whereas Latin America was looked at as weak. But Latin American culture cannot be seen in equal terms with the United States.

"Latin America was rarely seen in the Cold War years," said Fuentes. "Now that the Cold War has ended, cultural diversities need to be forgotten, problems created by history need to be forgotten." Key among establishing better relations between the regions according to Fuentes, people need to realize that Latin America and the United States share a long and rich cultural background. Both have a common culture consisting of Native American history, art, literature, religion, and self-government.

But in the establishment of this common culture, important groups were left out. And minority groups, such as women, have been limited in the United States' Anglo-Saxon history. "The United States is not truly modern if it does not include what was there at the creation. It's a tragic irony that history and happiness rarely coincide," says Fuentes.

In effect, with the Cold War over, Latin America and the United States are beginning to "shed the burden of history" and create an inclusive rather than an exclusive society. An openness to mutual richness will lead society, politics and the economy in a direction toward which the world can be Soon it may be Oprah with nine or ten. Forbes magazine's 1995 list of the 400 richest Americans, Oprah Winfrey stands at No. 399. Although she has a considerable way to go to become America's first black billionaire, the magazine said in its Oct. 16 issue, released Sunday. "She's been preparing for years."

"She couldn't describe the Columbus' Day event, which left in its wake. During the pre-game revelry, a police officer was kissed and spat on. The popular, college-crowd street, dropped pepper spray and ran. They then proceeded to ignore many of the choking, coughing students left in their wake. I watched as unfazed NDSU fans were herded like cattle from one corner to the next as the police continued to pepper spray the crowd. That night they sent in the riot police, dressed in gas masks, carrying gas masks, dressing in a gas mask, carrying pepper spray and ran. They then proceeded to ignore many of the choking, coughing students left in their wake. I watched as unfazed NDSU fans were herded like cattle from one corner to the next as the police continued to pepper spray the crowd.

Then they sent in the riot police, dressed in gas masks, carrying gas masks, dressing in a gas mask, carrying pepper spray and ran. They then proceeded to ignore many of the choking, coughing students left in their wake. I watched as unfazed NDSU fans were herded like cattle from one corner to the next as the police continued to pepper spray the crowd. That night they sent in the riot police, dressed in gas masks, carrying gas masks, dressing in a gas mask, carrying pepper spray and ran. They then proceeded to ignore many of the choking, coughing students left in their wake. I watched as unfazed NDSU fans were herded like cattle from one corner to the next as the police continued to pepper spray the crowd.
Council plans Women's Week

By Donna Mirandola

Saint Mary's College Student Academic Council (SAC) discussed plans for Women's Week at last night's meeting. The date for the week is set to be February 5-9.

Women's Week is important in order to "bring issues that affect women to the forefront," according to SAC Chairwoman Raquel Mitchell. Each day during the week will be filled with different activities concerning women's issues. Activities planned include an aerobics for charity night, a movie night featuring The Joy Luck Club and a night of female bands and singers at Clarissa D'Alloy's Coffee House.

SAC secretary, Dorie Wilkey remarked that the sessions are very important because, "some really effective techniques are taught."

Upcoming SAC events include the Lecture Series on November 8, at 7:00 in Stapleton Lounge featuring St. Patrick's College student, Katherine O' Shea. Also, the Choosing a Major Night will be sponsored by the Career Counseling Department.

The Joy Luck will be filled with different activities concerning women's issues. Activities planned include an aerobics for charity, lunch series featuring Saint Mary's College professors speaking on various issues still to be announced, The South Bend Police Department will offer a self-defense instruction course featuring a trained self-defense squad.

SAC secretary, Dorie Wilkey remarked that the sessions are very important because, "some really effective techniques are taught."

Upcoming SAC events include the Lecture Series on November 8, at 7:00 in Stapleton Lounge featuring St. Patrick's College student, Katherine O'Shea. Also, the Choosing a Major Night will be sponsored by the Career Counseling Department.

The Joy Luck will be filled with different activities concerning women's issues. Activities planned include an aerobics for charity, lunch series featuring Saint Mary's College professors speaking on various issues still to be announced, The South Bend Police Department will offer a self-defense instruction course featuring a trained self-defense squad.

The Saint Mary's College Women's Studies Department celebrated its tenth anniversary last night in Stapleton Lounge by having one of its founders, Dr. Penny Jameson, speak about her career during and after her twenty years at Saint Mary's. Focusing on the topic "Personal as Political."

Professor Gail Mandell, who has worked with Jameson since the early 1970's, said, "It was all Jameson's credentials, but the quality of her being that impressed me. It was the way that she could energize a group."

At a Stanford graduate with further education from the University of Wisconsin, Jameson joined the Saint Mary's faculty in 1970. Without a textbook, she taught the course, "The Psychology of Women." At this point, she realized that little research focused on women's psychology. Faculty members Ann Clark and Svier Miriam Cooney agreed with Jameson's belief that Saint Mary's College needed a Women's Studies Department.

After further research and planning by Jameson, she submitted a Lily Grant entitled, "Women of the Year 2000." By 1985, the Women's Studies Department was officially in place, putting Saint Mary's ahead of other colleges that did not yet have Women's Studies Departments. During her time at Saint Mary's, Jameson also established the Justice Educa-

Deloitte & Touche Consulting Group

"At Deloitte & Touche Consulting Group, we partner with clients to create change that produces results, results that show on our clients' top and bottom lines."

Deloitte & Touche Consulting Group is an international management consulting firm providing creative solutions to major clients in a variety of industries.

- Manufacturing
- Health Care
- Automotive
- Construction
- Government/Non-profit
- Corporate Strategy
- Reengineering
- Information Technology
- Litigation
- Outsourcing

We are currently seeking energetic and talented individuals to join our Business Analyst and Systems Analyst Programs in the Detroit Office. We are looking for candidates with a high level of achievement who possess both strong quantitative and interpersonal skills. We hope you will consider this challenging and rewarding opportunity to perform exciting and important work in the global business arena.

Please bring a resume and join us for our campus presentation.

Tuesday, October 3
The University Club - Main Lounge
7:30 - 9:30 P.M.

America's Heart Association
Fight Heart Disease & Stroke
SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7
11:00 AM - STEPAN CENTER
3 & 6 MILE RUNS
AND PANCAKE BREAKFAST
T-SHIRTS TO ALL FINISHERS
REGISTER IN ADVANCE AT RECSPORTS
$5.00 IN ADVANCE & $6.00 DAY OF RACE
STUDENT AND STAFF DIVISIONS
FOR MORE INFORMATION CALL RECSPORTS AT 1-610-364-2241

THE IMAGINARY INVALID

A COMEDY BY MOLIERE

TICKETS AVAILABLE AT THE BOX OFFICE OR CALL 631-8128
WEDNESDAY, OCT. 4 - 8:00 P.M.
THURSDAY, OCT. 5 - 7:00 P.M.
SATURDAY, OCT. 7 - 8:00 P.M.
SUNDAY, OCT. 8 - 2:30 P.M.

THE OBSERVER • CAMPUS NEWS • page 3

By KEVIN GALVIN

WASHINGTON

A federal arbitration board announced Sunday a new four-year contract between the U.S. Postal Service and a union, affecting about 365,000 employees.

The board's decision, which is final, provides two lump-sum payments, a pair of 1.2 percent raises, and annual cost-of-living adjustments beginning in the second year. It also reduces night-shift pay, but provides a separate one-time payment to employees represented by the American Postal Workers Union who agreed to the night shift in fiscal 1995.

"We had hoped to achieve a negotiated agreement with the USPS, but were unsuccessful and were compelled to follow the arbitration process," Postmaster General Marvin Runyan said. "It's time to move forward together and get on with the business of meeting the challenges of competition."

Contract declared between U.S. Post Office and unions

By BRAD GAYLE

Wednesday, October 4, 1995

The Observer • CAMPUS NEWS
Dexter's not his usual self.
You suspect the salsa.
So you call Dr. Nusblatt, your family vet back home.
The call is cheap.
(Too bad about the consultation fee.)

Live off campus? Sign up for AT&T True Reach Savings and save 25% no matter who, how, when or where you call in the U.S.

Life can be complicated. AT&T True Reach Savings™ is simple. Save 25% on every kind of call on your AT&T phone bill—direct dial, calling card, directory assistance, local toll, cellular, fax and modem—when you spend just $25 a month! No other plan gives you all these different ways to save
Just call 1800 TRUE-ATT to sign up. Save on every call. That's Your True Choice™
Governor preaches GOP unity

By JOHN HOWARD

PALM DESERT, Calif. A day after he folded his debt-riddled presidential campaign, Pete Wilson on Saturday urged California Republicans to unite, capture the Legislature and purge Democrat-backed GOP's followers.

The Republican governor, seeking to make peace with the GOP's rank-and-file who were angered with his presidential bid, suggested he would campaign on behalf of his party's candidates and help raise party funds during his remaining three years as governor.

He declined to talk to reporters following his address.

Wilson offered more than 1,000 Republican activists at the state party's fall convention that his highest priorities were capturing the Legislature for the GOP and delivering California's 54 Electoral College votes to Republicans in next year's presidential election.

"Nothing is more important for California than achieving united Republican majorities in the Senate and Assembly," he said, promising to back recall elections for renegade Republicans, such as former Assembly Speaker Doris Allen, "any other turncoat who is causing us to lose control of the state, or who stands in the way of the Republican agenda."

Allen, a Republican, served briefly as speaker with votes delivered by Democratic Legislator William Brown. She faces a recall in eight weeks.

Wilson apparently was referring to the current speaker, Assemblyman Brian Setzler, a Fresno Republican and Allen protege, who spoke of "any other turncoat." Setzler was elected in the closely divided, 80-member house with Democratic votes, plus his own and Allen's.

Wilson's often-squeaky voice did not falter once during his 20-minute address, and he appeared far more relaxed and animated than in recent days.

In a last-minute scheduling change thatcaused state party officials by surprise, Wilson appeared earlier Saturday before small groups of county Republican committees.

They have been among Wilson's most vocal critics. The California governor's political hopes could leave the state in the hands of a Democratic lieutenant-governor.

Wilson made his decision late Thursday after he told his staff that he would have to borrow to keep his debt-laden campaign alive, and even then be able to run just a bare-bones operation. He called top supporters around the country Friday morning to inform them he would quit the race just one month and one day after he formally jumped in.

"I hope I haven't let you down," he told his supporters. "I blame no one but myself. This is my campaign."

He was the first declared candidate to bow out.

"I believe, I believe those who had made a fantastic president," said Bruce Benson, the former Colorado Republican chairman who delivered speeches in the hands of a Democratic lieutenant-governor.

As they ushered him out of the field, politely, most of the remaining GOP hopefuls suggested they stood to gain.

Conservative commentator Pat Buchanan noted that he also had put curbs on immigration and affirmative action atop his social agenda. Texas

Wilson quits 1996 race, first to drop from field

By JOHN KING

WASHINGTON Out of money and trailing badly even in his home state, California Gov. Pete Wilson abandoned his bid for the 1996 Republican presidential nomination Saturday, saying he could not in good conscience pile up a huge debt.

"As much as your hearts and mine tell me to fight on, my conscience tells me that to do so would be unfair to all of us," Wilson said at a Sacramento rally. "To go on would simply be to run up an unacceptable debt."

Wilson made his decision late Thursday after he told his staff that he would have to borrow to keep his debt-laden campaign alive, and even then be able to run just a bare-bones operation. He called top supporters around the country Friday morning to inform them he would quit the race just one month and one day after he formally jumped in.

"I hope I haven't let you down," he told his supporters. "I blame no one but myself. This is my campaign."

He was the first declared 1996 hopeful to bow out.

"I believe, I believe those who had made a fantastic president," said Bruce Benson, the former Colorado Republican chairman who delivered speeches in the hands of a Democratic lieutenant-governor.

As they ushered him out of the field, politely, most of the remaining GOP hopefuls suggested they stood to gain.

Conservative commentator Pat Buchanan noted that he also had put curbs on immigration and affirmative action atop his social agenda. Texas

California is critical to President Clinton's re-election hopes, and his advisers had been threatened at Wilson's early troubles.

Clinton reacted with disbelief at news of Wilson's decision.

"No, are you sure?" he asked during a picture-taking session in the Oval Office.

"I respect the judgment that he would make or anyone who would make under the circumstances, since I've been through it," Clinton said.

Wilson's abrupt decision ends a campaign that started with considerable promise, if for no other reason than his standing as the governor of the nation's largest state, a proven fund-raiser from years of a come-from-behind-re-election win.

But those assets, ironically, became Wilson's biggest problems. He had pledged not to seek the presidency if conditions were not right, and breaking that promise cost him dearly. Not only did California voters voice their resentment, but Wilson found himself at odds with GOP back­ers who dug deep last year to return him to Sacramento and hesitated him now.

"Californians elected Wilson to govern," California conservative polster Mervin Field. "They felt his pledge not to run was important. When he decided to run, he just lost them." And predictions to the contrary that he was the Republican best suited to beat Clinton.

Wilson was also an awkward fit with conservative GOP primary voters because of his support for abortion rights.
Manley continued from page 1

orientation, employees have something in common. 'The problem with labor-management partnerships lies in its lack of shared experiences,' said Manley.

Both the Marine Corp and the Catholic Church, known for "shaping its members for a lifetime," have goals that often involves leaving the department." Ghilarducci and Porter expressed respect for Human Resources and the administration for moving in such a direction.

"I think the study is a positive first step," Porter said. "However, it's important to evaluate these positions often. There also needs to be room for flexibility of movement once someone is in their position."

Another important issue for Ghilarducci and Porter is the number of women occupying secretarial roles.

"The University needs to make a concerted effort to break up what has become a ghetto in the support staff and hire more men," Porter said. According to information distributed at the lecture, 97.7 percent of the academic support staff are female.

"I would endorse the idea, and the University would agree, that all staff are paid without regard to gender," Mullins said. However, Ghilarducci stressed at the forum that nationally, jobs which employ a female majority tend to make less than those dominated by men.

"The University is showing concern about the low pay, but I don't think they see it as a gender issue," Ghilarducci said, stressing that the point of the forum was not to charge Notre Dame with discrimination, but to raise its awareness of the experience of women in support positions. "We need to change institutions within a culture where women's labor is not always highly valued."

"It's a two-way street." Until the debt crisis, Mexico pumped nearly $50 billion into the U.S. economy. And workers from Mexico harvested 90 percent of all crops in California. According to Fuentes, if all of Mexico's illegal immigrants returned home, harvests would be non-existent. He added that the "pilgrims came to Plymouth Rock without visas and work permits."

Today—with the break down of communism—there is a movement toward political change. Latin America is depending less on government "the top and from the center." Grass-roots organizations are slowly attaining political power from the outskirts and encounter uphill fights to try and solve the economic crisis.

Still, the United States and Latin America share a common agenda. Both face problems such as crime, violence, and drugs. "No one holds the magical solution to social problems such as crime, violence and drugs," Fuentes said. "But we must share common experiences and cooperate the best we can."

Fuentes continued from page 1

changed, Fuentes said. Although Mexico's debt crisis of the 1990s has provoked a crisis of confidence throughout the nation, it has had little bearing on each individual Mexican's life. In Mexico, 1.5 million citizens live in poverty. By the year 2000, it is estimated that Latin America's population will increase until there are two Latin Americans for every one American. With a growing distinction between the wealthy and the poor, Mexico needs the support of the United States.

But support is a "two-way street." Manley, be able to succeed in this changing economy. "Businesses must realize employees are their partners," said Manley.

Manley currently heads the Vicksburg Group, a professional consulting firm that assists senior managers in measuring and enhancing the performance of leaders, front-line employees, and business partners.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

CS First Boston, a leading global investment bank, is recruiting for its Financial Analyst program. Positions are available in the Investment Banking Department. All University of Notre Dame Seniors are invited to attend the presentation.

PRESENTATION:
Tuesday, October 10, 1995
The Morris Inn
Alumni Room
7:00pm

INTERVIEWING SCHEDULE:
Investment Banking
Monday, January 29, 1996

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION PLEASE CONTACT:
Debra Johnson
Investment Banking
(212) 909-2584
France detonates bomb, despite protests

Associated Press

PAPETE

Tahiti ignoring international protests. France detonated its second nuclear bomb in a month Sunday in the South Pacific, hours after seizing the last Greenpeace ship around the test site.

The French Defense Ministry said the test on Fangataufa Atoll measured "less than 110 kilotons." By comparison, France's first test on Sept. 5 was 20 kilotons, slightly larger than the size of the bomb dropped on Hiroshima in 1945.

"This test was destined to guarantee for the future the sureness and viability of arms," the ministry said in a statement.

The first test drew worldwide protest and prompted 1 1/2 days of rioting in Papeete, the capital of French Polynesia and the staging area for both the nuclear tests and protesters.

The environmental group Greenpeace called the second test "an enormous affront" to the people of the South Pacific.

People have the right to feel extremely insulted by the activity of the French government," said Greenpeace spokesman in Papeete, Lynette Thorsen.

President Jacques Chirac announced the series of up to eight tests this summer, saying they would be finished by the end of May. The tests ended a three-year moratorium that allowed the declared nuclear powers but China had honored.

Chirac argues the tests are needed to modernize France's nuclear arsenal and develop computer test simulation, while critics say the blasts could encourage others to resume testing.

Protesters from Greenpeace have spent much of the past month in boats trying to enter the 12-mile exclusion zone around the two atolls, Mururoa and Fangataufa, which are about 750 miles from Papeete.

U.S. presses ahead with cease-fire

By SRECKO LATAL

SARAJEVO

U.S. envoy Richard Holbrooke took his peace mission to the third Balkan capital in as many days Sunday, trying to close the gap between the warring sides in the former Yugoslavia and forge a cease-fire.

But prospects appeared slim for a truce in Bosnia anytime soon, with government troops pressing an offensive in the west and rebel Serbs struggling to regain lost ground.

Holbrooke met Sunday in Zagreb with Croatian President Franjo Tudjman after inconclusive talks with the Bosnian government in Sarajevo and Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, the main peacebroker in the Balkans.

"Every time we talk, each side clarifies its views a little," Holbrooke said before leaving Belgrade, the Serbian capital, for Zagreb.

"But while both sides say they want to stop the fighting, they haven't agreed on how this would be done. We are working very intensively on it." Holbrooke, an assistant secretary of state, is trying to build on what Washington considers the best prospects yet for ending the war. The warring parties agreed last week in New York on a power-sharing scheme for a future government, although tricky details have yet to be resolved.

Earlier, they agreed to keep Bosnia as a single state, divided roughly in half between the Bosnian Serbs and a Muslim-Croat federation. Specific territorial division will require tough negotiations.

"As we said many times, the distance separating the two sides is very large on all the basic issues," Holbrooke said.

Milosevic, in a statement, said a cease-fire was a prerequisite for any high-level peace talks, after which "the cease-fire should transform into a permanent peace."

Tudjman and Holbrooke discussed the last Serb-held land in Croatia, an eastern stretch bordering Serbia. Holbrooke said afterward that reintegration of that land into Croatia was critical, but emphasized that it must be peaceful.

In an early August offensive, the Croatian army recaptured most of the territory its rebel Serbs had held since 1991.

The Prelaw Society presents:

How to Write an Effective Personal Statement

Dean Jack Pratt

Notre Dame Law School

Tuesday

October 3, 1995

7 p.m.

101 Notre Dame Law School

U.S. presses ahead with cease-fire

By SRECKO LATAL

SARAJEVO

U.S. envoy Richard Holbrooke took his peace mission to the third Balkan capital in as many days Sunday, trying to close the gap between the warring sides in the former Yugoslavia and forge a cease-fire.

But prospects appeared slim for a truce in Bosnia anytime soon, with government troops pressing an offensive in the west and rebel Serbs struggling to regain lost ground.

Holbrooke met Sunday in Zagreb with Croatian President Franjo Tudjman after inconclusive talks with the Bosnian government in Sarajevo and Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, the main peacebroker in the Balkans.

"Every time we talk, each side clarifies its views a little," Holbrooke said before leaving Belgrade, the Serbian capital, for Zagreb.

"But while both sides say they want to stop the fighting, they haven't agreed on how this would be done. We are working very intensively on it." Holbrooke, an assistant secretary of state, is trying to build on what Washington considers the best prospects yet for ending the war. The warring parties agreed last week in New York on a power-sharing scheme for a future government, although tricky details have yet to be resolved.

Earlier, they agreed to keep Bosnia as a single state, divided roughly in half between the Bosnian Serbs and a Muslim-Croat federation. Specific territorial division will require tough negotiations.

"As we said many times, the distance separating the two sides is very large on all the basic issues," Holbrooke said.

Milosevic, in a statement, said a cease-fire was a prerequisite for any high-level peace talks, after which "the cease-fire should transform into a permanent peace."

Tudjman and Holbrooke discussed the last Serb-held land in Croatia, an eastern stretch bordering Serbia. Holbrooke said afterward that reintegration of that land into Croatia was critical, but emphasized that it must be peaceful.

In an early August offensive, the Croatian army recaptured most of the territory its rebel Serbs had held since 1991.

The Prelaw Society presents:

How to Write an Effective Personal Statement

Dean Jack Pratt

Notre Dame Law School

Tuesday

October 3, 1995

7 p.m.

101 Notre Dame Law School
Israel to start West Bank troop withdrawal

By HILARY APPELMAN
Ann Arbor Press

JEJUSALEM

After 28 years of occupation, Israel will start withdrawing troops and shutting down the offices of its military government in the West Bank this month, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said Sunday.

The impending transfer of power set off protests among Jewish settlers, who accused the Israeli government of abandoning them.

Peres, speaking to the Associated Press by telephone from New York, said the troop withdrawal from the West Bank would probably begin "in several weeks."

He said Israel also would shut down the 12 offices of its military government in the West Bank. Shlomo Dove, a spokesman for the military government, said the first four offices would be closed next week, and the others within six months.

Peres repeated Israel's intention to have its troops out of six West Bank towns by the end of the year.

This was part of a compromise worked out between Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO chief Yasser Arafat just before they signed an accord Thursday in Washington on expanding Palestinian autonomy in the West Bank.

Israel has until March 30 to redeploy troops in the seventh city, Hebron, where 450 Jewish settlers live among 120,000 Palestinians.

The transfer of power in cities and villages will give the Palestinians control over almost a third of the West Bank, which Israel captured from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast War.

The Israel-PLO agreement faces stiff opposition from Jewish settlers in the West Bank. About 200 settlers burned tires and blocked traffic Sunday morning on the bypass road around Jericho and at an army checkpoint before the Allenby Bridge to Jordan. Eighteen protesters were detained.

The settlers said they were protesting Israel's plans to remove army roadblocks and expand the area of Palestinian self-rule around Jericho. Jericho, in the Jordan Valley, and the Gaza Strip have been autonomous since May 1994.

"They lied to us," David Elhiani, head of the Jordan Valley settlers' council, told Israel radio. "We will not allow Palestinian police into the Jordan Valley. We will fight with everything we have."

Israel's parliament is scheduled to debate the Israel-PLO agreement on Thursday. Peres said he expects it to be approved.

---

EARN CASH by DONATING

You could earn:

$30.00 after your first plasma donation!
$15.00 if you donate alone (first visit)
$10.00 if you show college I.D. (first visit)
$10.00 per person if you recruit someone and they donate
$30.00 TOTAL!

Help Us Save Lives

Must be 18 years old; proof of current address with photo I.D.

COME TO:

AMERICAN BIOMEDICAL
515 LINCOLNWAY WEST
SOUTH BEND, IN 46601-1117
234-6010

JAZZMAN'S NITE CLUB
525 N. Hill Street • 233-8505

Presents:

MONDAY, OCT. 2
MONDAY NIGHT LIVE AMATEUR STARSEARCH TALENT NIGHT PLUS

The kick-off of Trash Can Night. Live musical entertainment featuring nine groups from the Chicago area: DA • BOMB • E-JACK-U-LATION • FLOSH • STRAIGHT GIN • MAD CLAN • MS IESHA • MOE-HYPE • BOBBY "B" •

Doors open 7:00 p.m. - Shows start at 8:00 p.m. Student I.D. $5, required for admission 18 and over. $4.00 cover for an evening of entertainment plus Trash Can options. You want to find live entertainment of this variety this side of the east and west coast. Food available.

Senior Rap Up Groups

Sponsored by the Center for Social Concerns and Student Government

So you're a senior...

Excited? Confused?

Stressed about the future? Stuck in a rut?

Want to meet more of your classmates?

SICK OF THE DINING HALL?

Join Senior Rap Up Groups!!!

Once a month your group of 12 seniors will meet for dinner and conversation at a faculty member's home. In a supportive open atmosphere you can reflect on your experiences at Notre Dame and think about opportunities for the future.

Sign up THIS WEEK in NDH, SDH, LaFortune, Alumni-Senior Club or the Center for Social Concerns.
South Eastern Asia strict but order is maintained

VARANUSI, India

What day is it? What time is it at school? Did you get a fax? Is there one for me? How much is water? Does anyone know the exchange rate?

Myrna Maloney

A s I was putting out a cigarette on the bottom of my shoe, outside the terminal, our bus came over to me, grabbed my arm and led me to a trash can to make certain that I didn’t drop it on the ground—a crime which is punished by a $500 fine.

Following our stay in Malaysia, we headed south to the island nation of Singapore — yet another country with a style all its own. Even before our plane landed there, we joked about the consequences of dropping trash on the ground. Before we left the airport, though, we found that the laws there were no laughing matter.

“All I am putting out a cigarette on the bottom of my shoe, outside the terminal, our bus driver came over to me, grabbed my arm and led me to a trash can to make certain that I didn’t drop it on the ground—a crime which is punished by a $500 fine,” said ND sophomore Kevin Gaffney.

When I asked Dr. Pullapilly his opinion of the Singapore Justice System, he admitted that it was a really strict society but that “they are able to maintain order because of it. In the U.S.,” he said, “we have very similar laws to the ones in Singapore, but they’re not enforced at all. I liked Singapore and its strict rules.

It is like a utopia in the sense that the entire island is spotless and you’re confident in your personal safety,” commented Grenzehal.

Myrna Maloney is a junior spending the semester abroad.

THE OBSERVER
MORTAL DANTO O’yic E: 300, 1025, South Bend, IN 46614 (219) 631-7471
South Bend's Voice: 300 East John Street, South Bend, IN 46614 (219) 284-5503

Managing Editor: Elizabeth Regan

Business Manager: Joseph Edy

Advertising: John Potter... 5,000 per issue

Sports Editor: Mike Norbut, 631-5303

News: 631-5452

Features: 631-5452

Sports: 631-5452

Views: 631-5452

General Information: 631-7373

SPORTS

Poo, and laundry are a crime which is punished by a $500 fine. "As I was putting out a cigarette on the bottom of my shoe, outside the terminal, our bus driver came over to me, grabbed my arm and led me to a trash can to make certain that I didn’t drop it on the ground—a crime which is punished by a $500 fine," said ND sophomore Kevin Gaffney.

When I asked Dr. Pullapilly his opinion of the Singapore Justice System, he admitted that it was a really strict society but that "they are able to maintain order because of it. In the U.S.,” he said, “we have very similar laws to the ones in Singapore, but they’re not enforced at all. I liked Singapore and its strict rules.

It is like a utopia in the sense that the entire island is spotless and you’re confident in your personal safety,” commented Grenzehal.

Myrna Maloney is a junior spending the semester abroad.

QUOTE OF THE DAY

“The holy passion of friendship is so sweet and steady and loyal and enduring a nature that it will last through a whole lifetime, if not asked to lend money.”

—Mark Twain

DODONESBURY

GARRY TRAUBE
Republicans hinder lower-classes from higher education

Dear Editor: I used to think that the federal government supported youth in their pursuit of higher education. So needless to say, I was vexed when Congressional Republicans began debating an issue near and dear to the collegiate heart — student aid. Over the past several months of political harangue in both houses of Congress, it has become all too clear to me that the intention of the Republicans is to discourage federal support of higher education on the part of middle and lower-income students. I believe that, regardless of income, all people should have access to pricelessness, top quality education, all of which aid in the pursuit of the American Dream. Throughout his liberal cronies, has actively obstructed his pursuit of the American Dream. I have even had to wonder why those isolated ideals are, in fact, inadequate to facilitate the dreams of all Americans. Freedom should indeed be the starting point, yet the accumulation of personal wealth and success must not be its only derivative. Freedom ultimately anniversaries. Freedom should indeed be the starting point, yet the accumulation of personal wealth and success must not be its only derivative. Freedom ultimately obsessed responsibility. Freedom should indeed be the starting point, yet the accumulation of personal wealth and success must not be its only derivative. Freedom ultimately

@viewpoint@ Monday, October 2, 1995

LETTERS

Republicans lower hinder classes from higher education

Dear Editor: I used to think that the federal government supported youth in their pursuit of higher education. So needless to say, I was vexed when Congressional Republicans began debating an issue near and dear to the collegiate heart — student aid. Over the past several months of political harangue in both houses of Congress, it has become all too clear to me that the intention of the Republicans is to discourage federal support of higher education on the part of middle and lower-income students. I believe that, regardless of income, all people should have access to pricelessness, top quality education, all of which aid in the pursuit of the American Dream. Throughout his liberal cronies, has actively obstructed his pursuit of the American Dream. I have even had to wonder why those isolated ideals are, in fact, inadequate to facilitate the dreams of all Americans. Freedom should indeed be the starting point, yet the accumulation of personal wealth and success must not be its only derivative. Freedom ultimately anniversaries. Freedom should indeed be the starting point, yet the accumulation of personal wealth and success must not be its only derivative. Freedom ultimately obsessed responsibility. Freedom should indeed be the starting point, yet the accumulation of personal wealth and success must not be its only derivative. Freedom ultimately

Reader miffed at Apple

Dear Editor: I am writing this in response to Matt Apple's column of Sept. 26. Congratulations to Matt, you are the first writer who has succeeded in ticking me off enough to get me to respond (though I suppose my frustration with Observer writers has been growing for some time now).

Mistake #1: I don't know who you've been talking to, but most people who have even heard of New York Group Buffalo in with Upstate New York. As we all know Buffalo is in western N.Y. Bard College is Upstate, but Bard is.

Speaking of your alma mater, though you imply that we are unbelievably out of touch here, Bard is even more physically isolates than you. I'm talking about the Bard College community that you seem so proud of a greater reputation for being a collection of wealthy elitists and intellectual snobs than anything else.

Mistake #2: Don't write about interhall football if you don't know anything about it. You are overlooking some students and completely excluding those students. It is about whether they should have their own team (which will likely dominate because of the concentration of power and experience on one squad) or if they should be allowed to play for their former dorms (which many of the players are). You only showed your ignorance by choosing to address a topic you obviously know little about.

And another thing, you have a problem with the religion here! Everything is fine here. I'm not saying that we are perfect. No one enforces mass attendance like they used to, so what's your problem? A Catholic school can enforce Catholic rules and use religious symbols if it chooses.

I agree with you to a certain extent about the dorm issue, but remember that the Bard way is not the only way to deal with housing. You have no experience with Notre Dame dorm life. Many students (including myself) become closely connected to the dorm and their friends there and look forward to spending four years in the same home.

I also agree that we are sheltered here; Notre Dame is hardly representative of the so-called "real world". But there is plenty of opportunity to experience life beyond VP's walls - you just have to get off your rear and make an effort to do so.

Next time you sit down to write a bitter yet unsubstantial article for the Observer, take a walk on the campus (actually instead. Spend the time doing something worthwhile and talk to some of the people who have study and life.

Life is not perfect, even at Notre Dame. To make the best of our existence, we have to learn how to work around or break down the obvious and not so obvious barriers of privilege and the parameters that keep the game going your way. Actively accepting the fact that a lot of what we have is not enough and to your attitude do more to perpetuate life's problems than to solve them.

Remember, you chose Notre Dame. You don't have to be here. I'm sure no one is holding a gun to your head. You don't have to love ND, but quit acting like a high and mighty grad student who has already become so engrossed in the whole "Know thyself" .

I don't think Notre Dame is a utopia by any means, but The Observer should not become a forum for complaining about the school's faults (or constantly lauding the "spirit" and the "ND" that is always better than your college). You, sir, are in creative writing, so start using your creativity and address someone original.

---

ANNE ANDERSON

Paquita East
University of Notre Dame College Democrats

Perception of "normal" is skewed

Dear Editor: Marv, I'm pretty sure Lenardos angry in his Sept. 26 Inside Column! And why shouldn't he be? He's been mercilessly shacked under Bill Clinton's oppressive regime for three long years. The abuses? Apparently, he has not been encouraged to "succeed," become "rich," or even been inspired by our president. He has withstood biting criticism of his present, or prospective "normal," and has even had to bear governmental attempts to (gasp!) collect taxes. This unfortunate and disillusioned young man has been. "tricked, fooled, and deceived." Indeed, he has claimed quite a grievance — Bill Clinton, along with his liberal cronies, has actively obstructed his pursuit of the American Dream. Throughout his liberal cronies, has actively obstructed his pursuit of the American Dream. I have even had to wonder why those isolated ideals are, in fact, inadequate to facilitate the dreams of all Americans. Freedom should indeed be the starting point, yet the accumulation of personal wealth and success must not be its only derivative. Freedom ultimately

MARKH SUPRUK

Senior

Off-campus housing. You have

Tuck in the details. On Aug. 3, Congress passed a badly needed Appropriations Bill. This bill contained an unprecedented package of cuts in higher education funding, the details of which have yet to be completely ironed out, which may take until December. The Education Appropriations Bill cuts $10 billion from the Stafford Loan Program alone. It also denies the Perkins Student Loans to over 157,000 students nationwide and completely eliminates the State Student Direct Loan Grants Program. Out of all these programs, Stafford Loans are the most widely received form of student aid. Moreover, nearly half of all Stafford Loan borrowers have families incomes below $20,000 a year.

This bill will make higher education a privilege of the wealthy instead of a right which should be enjoyed by all.

Anne Anderson

University of Notre Dame College Democrats

---

ANNE ANDERSON

Paquita East
University of Notre Dame College Democrats
Ohio State had four plays that went for over 50 yards, including an 82-yard touchdown to Terry Glenn.

Player of the Game

Eddie George
The Buckeye tailback had 207 yards on the ground, including a back-breaking 61-yard jaunt. He scored twice.

Quote of the Game

"I was trying to catch it so it wouldn't hit my man, but apparently it was their man, right near me."

Emmett Hadey on the successful pass.

Ohio State Notre Dame
45-26

Dropping the ball

Three Irish second half turnovers turn into 21 Buckeye points

By MIKE NORBUT

Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, Ohio

Judging by the final score, it would seem hard to believe that Notre Dame dominated the first 30 minutes of play against Ohio State on Saturday. They even led 17-14 at halftime, much to the dismay of most of the record 95,337 fans in attendance at Ohio Stadium.

But Notre Dame's gold helmets turned into silver platters in the second half, as they handed Ohio State a 45-26 victory by way of three turnovers.

Two fumbles and an interception led to 21 Buckeye points in the third and fourth quarters, giving them a lead they would never relinquish.

"We shouldn't have lost the game the way we did," quarterback Ron Powlus said. "If they were going to beat us, they should have beaten us on a last second field goal or a last touchdown drive. We beat ourselves today. There's no question."

He'll get no argument from the other side.

"The name of the game was turnovers," Ohio State head coach John Cooper said. "We got some good breaks today."

The first of which came with 6:33 to play in the third quarter. Notre Dame's Kevin Kopka had just kicked a 22-yard field goal to put the Irish in front 20-14, and they stopped Ohio State after live plays in the following series.

Blindness to big game hype hurts stubborn Irish

COLUMBUS, Ohio

Walking down High Street in Columbus on Friday night, it was ubiquitous and incessant. Hundreds of psyched Irish fans screaming to the point of strained vocal chords the rallying cry of "We are ND."

For the Notre Dame faithful it is a chorus of pride, a declaration of devotion.

But recently, there has been a problem. We are ND, so what? What exactly does that mean these days. In all honesty, it beginning to border on obnoxious arrogance. Obviously, there is nothing wrong with being proud of your school and maybe even a bit boastful, but does attending Notre Dame make us any better than anyone else. As a master of fact, the air of supremacy embodied in those four Buckeyes make big plays, Irish don't

Irish secondary dominated by Buckeye offense

By TIM SHERMAN
Associate Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, Ohio
In a game check full of big plays, one stood out above all the rest. That all was wrong with the Notre Dame defense thus far.

With less than three minutes remaining in an already disastrous third quarter, Ohio State wide out Ricky Glenn caught a twenty yard curl from Bob Hoying. Cover man Allen Rossum had slipped to the ground in his effort to keep track of the dangerous Glenn. That was problem number one. Rossum has continuously had problem maintaining his feet when the ball is in the air.

Quite frequently, he has been in position to make a play only to lose his balance and allow the catch to be made. In earlier games, Rossum has been able to recover enough to make the tackle, preventing the very big gain. That wasn't the case though on the play in question.

After making the catch, Glenn slipped through a crack between Rossum and the Irish safety and was off to the races. That was problem number two.

Any time Rossum appears on the field, the opposing team needs to be aware. He is already an All-American sprinter in indoor track and very well may be the fastest man on the Irish roster.

So with 40 yards in which to run down the field, smart money was on the Irish keeping him out of the end zone.

Mysteriously, the more-than-fleet-footed Rossum was flat-out run by Glenn who cruised into the end zone with less than a more than adequate dive by Rossum in an attempt to bring him down.

"You don't want to get into a footrace with Terry Glenn," Buckeye coach John Cooper noted. "If Glenn outran Rossum, I guess that makes him the world sprint champion."

The play was not only shocking, it was crucial to the flow of the game. "That play really sparked us," Hoying said.

All day long, the big gainers did in the Irish. The big passes and big runs were disastrous," Holtz said. If it wasn't Hoying picking the Notre Dame secondary apart, it was Eddie George spraying through the defense.

The Irish defenders know that needs to stop. "We need to hang in there as a defense and remain focused," Irish linebacker Byron Cobbins said.

"We can't have big plays like they had because it just lets the crowd get into it," Notre Dame nose guard Paul Grasmann said. "The big plays here and there are frustrating." "We hold them for a few downs and then, ham a big play. That just hurts a defense."

And it kills any chance for the Irish to win the close contests that have become regular.

The Buckeyes scored three plays later. Quarterback Bobby Hoying hit tight end Rickey Dudley over the middle, and Dudley carried Irish tacklers into the backfield. Dudley was tackled five yards short of the goal line.

The completion helped to pad Hoying's stats a bit, but the Buckeyes quarterback still had a very effective day. He completed 14-of-22 passes for 272 yards and four touchdowns.

Irish

continued from page 1

was in favor of the Irish.

But a Brent Barlowsomer punt sailed a bit to Emmett Mosley, who muffed it. Ohio State back-up center Dean Kruezer was there to jump on the loose ball.

"Somehow I misjudged it," Mosley said. "When I went to catch it, I felt my man right there, and I figured it would be his, because it just let the crowd get into it," Notre Dame nose guard Paul Grasmann said. "The big plays here and there are frustrating." "We held them for a few downs and then, ham a big play. That just hurts a defense."

And it kills any chance for the Irish to win the close contests that have become regular.

The play was not only shocking, it was crucial to the flow of the game. "That play really sparked us," Hoying said.

All day long, the big gainers did in the Notre Dame defense and remain a problem not enough. Quite frequently, he has been in position to make a play only to lose his balance and allow the catch to be made. In earlier games, Rossum has been able to recover enough to make the tackle, preventing the very big gain. That wasn't the case though on the play in question.

After making the catch, Glenn slipped through a crack between Rossum and the Irish safety and was off to the races. That was problem number two.

Any time Rossum appears on the field, the opposing team needs to be aware. He is already an All-American sprinter in indoor track and very well may be the fastest man on the Irish roster.

So with 40 yards in which to run down the field, smart money was on the Irish keeping him out of the end zone.

Mysteriously, the more-than-fleet-footed Rossum was flat-out run by Glenn who cruised into the end zone with less than a more than adequate dive by Rossum in an attempt to bring him down.

"You don't want to get into a footrace with Terry Glenn," Buckeye coach John Cooper noted. "If Glenn outran Rossum, I guess that makes him the world sprint champion."

The play was not only shocking, it was crucial to the flow of the game. "That play really sparked us," Hoying said.

All day long, the big gainers did in the Irish. The big passes and big runs were disastrous," Holtz said. If it wasn't Hoying picking the Notre Dame secondary apart, it was Eddie George spraying through the defense.

The Irish defenders know that needs to stop. "We need to hang in there as a defense and remain focused," Irish linebacker Byron Cobbins said.

"We can't have big plays like they had because it just lets the crowd get into it," Notre Dame nose guard Paul Grasmann said. "The big plays here and there are frustrating." "We held them for a few downs and then, ham a big play. That just hurts a defense."

And it kills any chance for the Irish to win the close contests that have become regular.

The Buckeyes scored three plays later. Quarterback Bobby Hoying hit tight end Rickey Dudley over the middle, and Dudley carried Irish tacklers into the backfield. Dudley was tackled five yards short of the goal line.

The completion helped to pad Hoying's stats a bit, but the Buckeyes quarterback still had a very effective day. He completed 14-of-22 passes for 272 yards and four touchdowns.
Fumbles, interceptions give Buckeyes second half win
by TIM SHERMAN
Associate Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, Ohio

There are two variables in football that are often crucial to determining the outcome to clashes such as Ohio State's 45-26 victory over Notre Dame. Either the play of the special teams or the turnover game can turn a game one way or another.

On Saturday they both came together on one play to signal the downfall of the Irish. With less than seven minutes remaining in the third quarter, the Irish had just stopped the Buckeyes on third down and appeared to have all the momentum in their favor.

OSU punter Brent Bartholomew then lofted a 34-yard punt toward Emmett Mosley, who attempted to catch the wobbly kick in the midst of a crowd of Buckeyes.

"I called a fair catch and the ball drifted on me," Mosley explained.

"I didn't think my man heard the call so I attempted to catch it but it wasn't my man. If I knew it was their guy I wouldn't have tried to catch it," Mosley said.

But he did try, and more importantly, he failed, perhaps in a large part due to apparent interference from Ohio State.

Nonetheless, OSU recovered and proceeded to take the end zone in less than 3:30.

"The name of the game was turnovers," Ohio State coach John Cooper explained.

"They gave us four opportunities toward the end. The muffed punt was especially big because it was looking bad and we were behind.

That one play seemed to take all the fight out of the Irish squad that had been executing well in the first half.

The second half was an entirely different story as the turnovers mounted.

Fumble-till hurt the Irish in less obvious ways as well. A reverse on the kick-off following Ohio State's go-ahead score backfired when the exchange was bobbled.

All week long in practice the Irish had worked on the reverse that was designed for Autry Denison to take a hand-off from Emmet Mosley and spread up the left sideline.

The play appeared to be show-developing but the mishandled hand-off did nothing but further the malaise that the Irish had fallen into.

"Their turnovers hurt them psychologically," Cooper said. Ron Powlus, himself a major culprit, agreed.

"We beat ourselves, there's no question," Powlus assessed.

"We made the mistakes." The third mistake was the

A moment of confusion between Ron Powlus and Derrick Mayes led to a Shaw Springs interception. The play that finalized the fate of Notre Dame.

"As had been a problem in earlier games, Powlus couldn't handle a Birch-Kaczmarek snap. This time, though, Powlus was unable to recover and the Buckeyes took over at the Irish 15 yard line late in the third quarter.

Three plays later, Eddie George was celebrating in the end zone.

"Notre Dame played very well, but they made some mistakes and we were able to capitalize," said George, who ripped through the Irish defense for 210 yards and two touchdowns.

Sherman

continued from page 1

syllables has become a debilitating factor on the gridiron. The Irish seem to think that because they are ND, they have some God-given right to a victory. The team has all too often taken the outlook that no game is bigger than any other. The fact that every time the Irish take the field, the opponent looks at it as their game of the year has hit a career high. The enthusiasm of the team was just as big. John Cooper actually was successful in something. He convinced his team that this was big. It was huge - for the team, the fans, the opponents and the state. They played like it.

And why shouldn't they have looked at it as their game of the year. The team was ready for it.

The hype surrounding this game was more than hype. It was real. It was tangible. It was electric. It was unmatched. The enthusiasm of the Buckeyes fans was overwhelming, regardless of how many fannies were packed into the Horseshoe. The emotion of the team was just as big. John Cooper actually was successful in something. He convinced his team that this was big. It was huge - for the team, the fans, the opponents and the state. They played like it.

And why shouldn't they have looked at it as their game of the year. The team was ready for it.

Forget the past even. It had enormous ramifications for the present. The Buckeyes are more than legitimate Big Ten contenders and maybe even national title hopefuls, while the Irish had no chance to suddenly get right back to where they should be - on top.

Although the Irish played well if you take away the turnovers, the talent level is clearly down. Hence, the emotional level needs to be up.
With the hostile environment and his return to the Horse Shoe, coach Lou Holtz decided to coach from the field instead of the press box.

Irish running back Randy Kinder (above) kept the offense moving as he raced for his tenth 100 yard game. The Irish defensive line was unable to apply any pressure to buck-eye quarterback Bobby Hoying (below).

The Buckeye offense had the knack of finding the holes, and getting behind the Irish defense.

Ohio State 45
Notre Dame 26
Ohio Stadium
September 30, 1995

GAME NOTES
By MIKE NORBUT
Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, Ohio
It was his homecoming. Who could have expected anything different from Irish head coach Lou Holtz than for him to be on the sidelines Saturday? But it may not have had the effect that he hoped it would have.

"It was just business as usual," full-back Marc Edwards said. "He's a great force to have on your side, whether it be on the field or in the press box."

The last minute decision to be on the field was the idea of his defensive coordinator.

"I had really planned on being upstairs," he said. "Then Bob Davie felt that it would be better if I was on the field if I felt up to it, physically, and I felt I was."

But his appearance on the field did not really surprise Buckeyes coach John Cooper.

"Lou's a competitor," he said. "I told him before the game to make sure he didn't overdo it. I probably came back a little early myself from my first back surgery."

Irish running back Randy Kinder (above) kept the offense moving as he raced for his tenth 100 yard game. The Irish defensive line was unable to apply any pressure to buck-eye quarterback Bobby Hoying (below).

Holtz wore a stylish sweater vest to go along with his turtle neck that covered up part of his neck brace, his restrictive reminder of the surgery he had on his spine almost three weeks ago. The reminder came back to haunt him after the game.

"During the game, you get involved," he said. "Now that the game's over, I'm pretty well beat."

Fresh First: Offensive tackle Mike Roseenthal made the first start of his career in place of Mike Doughty. And what a time and place to make a debut. At Ohio Stadium in front of 95,000-plus angry Buckeyes.

"It was definitely a great experience," he said. "But it was pretty rough physically. Things happened as fast as I thought they would."

His nerves were calmed by a veteran to the big game scene.

"Ryan Leahy kept talking to me," he continued. "He made sure I was loose."

Trash Talk: Buckeyes cornerback Shawn Springs was not all that impressed with Derrick Mayes, Notre Dame's marquee receiver.

"I practice against guys like Terry Glenn and Buster Tillman, and let's not forget Joey Galloway last year," he said. "Mayes is pretty good, but I've faced better."

"(Michigan's) Amani Toomer, (Penn State's) Bobby Engram are good receivers."

So how did he justify getting beat by Mayes for 56 yard? "You can't dwell on one play," he said. "The most important play is the next play."

Three plays later, Springs intercepted a Powlus pass to eliminate a scoring threat.

94 Repeat?: Questions as to how Notre Dame will react to the loss is anybody's guess. Visions of a near-losing season in 1994 is still fresh in players' minds.

"We have leaders on this team, so we'll bounce back," nose guard Paul Grasmanis said.

"We have to bounce back," Powlus said. "What else are we going to do?"

Clueless: David Fong, sports editor for Ohio State's student paper, The Lantern, wrote a column before the game about his ties to Notre Dame.

"My best friend and I always dreamed of going to Notre Dame," he wrote. "But then he had good grades, and I didn't. He was smart. I wasn't."

"More to the point, his family was loaded, mine wasn't."

This guy really needs to proofread his work before he prints it. He could start sounding like a fool.
Who done it? Just 'The Usual Suspects'

By SCOTT BOZIK

Synopsis: Buckle up, passengers, and prepare to embark on a journey whose destination is somewhere before chaos, and right next to the wharf. We witness what is inexplicable meet up in the comfortable confines of a little hotel in San Pedro. All I can do, even with my impressive capacities, is to advice you to witness this big-screen phenomena and then try to let you glimpse it for your friends. Perhaps only then will you understand the quirkiness of the plot, which is pure expressionism at its most sophisticated.

Daddy: Once again I find myself in the comfortable surroundings of the Accent pages. It's been a while since I nested peacefully between the incessant ecclesiastical prattle of Father Neary or the excessive rambling of Irish Football recap ta part of the paper closely resembling, but not quite equivalent to, a legitimate sports section. I've always felt rather isolated here, insulated from distraction, and thus unable to bring the Notre Dame public the movie reviews they so rightfully deserve.

This week, through the power of the Accent Movie Critic, I bring to you an unattended little film in a medium accessible to all. Don't thank me, thank our awesome devotion to the medium of the Free Press. I honestly have a difficult time deciding where to begin my task. The movie itself faced a dilemma, such as the, the course of events in the story line transpires in the temporal format of Flashback with the initial action supposedly occurring "last"

The viewer is immediately thrust into a tense scene set in the overwhelmingly nautical surroundings of a Californian wharf. We witness what is obviously the bitter end of a Swedish plot of criminal proportions that has gone horribly astray (a less well-written version of the classic dead poet scene). The character portrayed beautifully by the deft use of actor Kevin Spacey. Silence of the Lambs gives one can't feel his legs, and who is the man in the bodega getting ready to kill someone? Most important of all, we are witnessing the events of this film from whose perspective are we watching these events? These questions I myself posed! This is due to the nauseatingly cute actor Kevin Spacey. The movie is. Not an easy question to answer, but one raised by a film that is impossible not to enjoy.

I find myself wondering why we don't see such a cast in more films. I would wager that is serves those off-campus students seeking to enrich their spiritual life and those off-campus students who are having spiritual difficulty. They encourage the students to visit the office in order to talk about their spiritual life, or to look into joining the various spiritual services provided by Campus Ministry.

Campus Ministry has recognized this problem and wants to help those off-campus students who are having spiritual difficulty. They encourage the students to visit the office in order to talk about their spiritual life, or to look into joining the various spiritual services provided by Campus Ministry.

Father Patrick Neary, along with students who work with other campuses or the Office of Campus Ministry (such as Patrick Neary and Father Patrick Neary), was asked about the atmosphere of the office, he described it as "wonderful. He also mentioned that students are encouraged to bring their friends to the office in order to share their faith experiences.

As an accent writer, I can talk about how to handle the spiritual issue behind a couple whose faith differs or discuss the issue of converting to Catholicism.

Concern for spiritual life sparks new office

By COLLEEN HERBERT

The University of Notre Dame's Campus Ministry is attempting to uplift the spirituality of the growing number of students who live off campus. The office deals with the same issues as the office in the library, such as the inclusion of Adult Confirmation preparation, Power Lunches, and the Notre Dame Encounter with Christ. The only difference between the two offices is that the office in LaFortune is focused on the off-campus student body.

When Patrick Barredo, a student who works with other campuses and Father Patrick Neary, was asked about the atmosphere of the office he described it as "low-key but deep." He also mentioned that students are encouraged to bring their friends to the office in order to share their faith experiences.

As an accent writer, I can talk about how to handle the spiritual issue behind a couple whose faith differs or discuss the issue of converting to Catholicism.

Upon seeing the need for a new office, Campus Ministry approached Student Activities. Through Student Activities, the Office of Campus Ministry has acquired a new office in the O'Hara Lounge in LaFortune where it is conveniently located adjacent to the information booth and office. This proves to be a very accessible location considering the amount of time students spend at LaFortune, making it a very central location on campus.

Many students at Notre Dame in their junior and senior year make the decision to move out of their dorm into off-campus housing. These students, upon leaving, tend to lead a different spiritual life from when they were on campus. There is no longer mass in their living quarters and, consequently, it is a challenge to remain at the same spiritual level as when living on campus. There is also a loss of community feeling that is predominant during dorm life.

Campus Ministry has recognized this problem and wants to help those off-campus students who are having spiritual difficulty. They encourage the students to visit the office in order to talk about their spiritual life, or to look into joining the various spiritual services provided by Campus Ministry.

Father Patrick Neary, along with students who work with other campuses, was asked about the atmosphere of the office, he described it as "beautiful. He also mentioned that students are encouraged to bring their friends to the office in order to share their faith experiences.

As an accent writer, I can talk about how to handle the spiritual issue behind a couple whose faith differs or discuss the issue of converting to Catholicism.

Concern for spiritual life sparks new office

By COLLEEN HERBERT

The University of Notre Dame's Campus Ministry is attempting to uplift the spirituality of the growing number of students who live off campus. The office deals with the same issues as the office in the library, such as the inclusion of Adult Confirmation preparation, Power Lunches, and the Notre Dame Encounter with Christ. The only difference between the two offices is that the office in LaFortune is focused on the off-campus student body.

When Patrick Barredo, a student who works with other campuses and Father Patrick Neary, was asked about the atmosphere of the office he described it as "low-key but deep." He also mentioned that students are encouraged to bring their friends to the office in order to share their faith experiences.

As an accent writer, I can talk about how to handle the spiritual issue behind a couple whose faith differs or discuss the issue of converting to Catholicism.

Upon seeing the need for a new office, Campus Ministry approached Student Activities. Through Student Activities, the Office of Campus Ministry has acquired a new office in the O'Hara Lounge in LaFortune where it is conveniently located adjacent to the information booth and office. This proves to be a very accessible location considering the amount of time students spend at LaFortune, making it a very central location on campus.

Many students at Notre Dame in their junior and senior year make the decision to move out of their dorm into off-campus housing. These students, upon leaving, tend to lead a different spiritual life from when they were on campus. There is no longer mass in their living quarters and, consequently, it is a challenge to remain at the same spiritual level as when living on campus. There is also a loss of community feeling that is predominant during dorm life.

Campus Ministry has recognized this problem and wants to help those off-campus students who are having spiritual difficulty. They encourage the students to visit the office in order to talk about their spiritual life, or to look into joining the various spiritual services provided by Campus Ministry.

Father Patrick Neary, along with students who work with other campuses, was asked about the atmosphere of the office, he described it as "beautiful. He also mentioned that students are encouraged to bring their friends to the office in order to share their faith experiences.

As an accent writer, I can talk about how to handle the spiritual issue behind a couple whose faith differs or discuss the issue of converting to Catholicism.

Concern for spiritual life sparks new office

By COLLEEN HERBERT

The University of Notre Dame's Campus Ministry is attempting to uplift the spirituality of the growing number of students who live off campus. The office deals with the same issues as the office in the library, such as the inclusion of Adult Confirmation preparation, Power Lunches, and the Notre Dame Encounter with Christ. The only difference between the two offices is that the office in LaFortune is focused on the off-campus student body.

When Patrick Barredo, a student who works with other campuses and Father Patrick Neary, was asked about the atmosphere of the office he described it as "low-key but deep." He also mentioned that students are encouraged to bring their friends to the office in order to share their faith experiences.

As an accent writer, I can talk about how to handle the spiritual issue behind a couple whose faith differs or discuss the issue of converting to Catholicism.

Upon seeing the need for a new office, Campus Ministry approached Student Activities. Through Student Activities, the Office of Campus Ministry has acquired a new office in the O'Hara Lounge in LaFortune where it is conveniently located adjacent to the information booth and office. This proves to be a very accessible location considering the amount of time students spend at LaFortune, making it a very central location on campus.

Many students at Notre Dame in their junior and senior year make the decision to move out of their dorm into off-campus housing. These students, upon leaving, tend to lead a different spiritual life from when they were on campus. There is no longer mass in their living quarters and, consequently, it is a challenge to remain at the same spiritual level as when living on campus. There is also a loss of community feeling that is predominant during dorm life.

Campus Ministry has recognized this problem and wants to help those off-campus students who are having spiritual difficulty. They encourage the students to visit the office in order to talk about their spiritual life, or to look into joining the various spiritual services provided by Campus Ministry.

Father Patrick Neary, along with students who work with other campuses, was asked about the atmosphere of the office, he described it as "beautiful. He also mentioned that students are encouraged to bring their friends to the office in order to share their faith experiences.

As an accent writer, I can talk about how to handle the spiritual issue behind a couple whose faith differs or discuss the issue of converting to Catholicism.
I

Nine more ways to procrastinate

By DAN CICHALSKI

It's 8 p.m. on a Wednesday night. You've been reading Plato since three with only a short break for dinner. Now it's time for a mindless study break where you can just sit there, relax, and not worry about that six-page paper which must annon the question. Based on his works, if Plato were alive today, would you be his bosom friends? It's time for television.

But what do you watch? You haven't watched "W2010" since high school, "Grace Under Fire" is out of the question since Brett Butler the actress has a deeper voice than Brett Butter the baseball player, and "Dateline NBC" is just not the kind of show you want to watch while taking a break from the books. "Hey," you say, "I wonder what this new show 'Central Park West,' is like?" CBS's new prime time dramas may not be the only rookie program that catches your eye. But how do you know which shows are worth your precious time? Read on. Several reviews for the shows mentioned below will give you an idea of which ones deserve your time and which ones will be off the air before South Bend's first snowfall.

Brotherly Love. (6:30 p.m. Sundays on NBC). Following the willings of "Blossom," NBC decided to hang on to the "Star Trek" concept with "Lawrence ("Whoa!"). His two younger, real-life brothers join him in this sitcom about a single mother raising three sons. In the rather serious plot, Joe returns unexpectedly after a long absence and is not immediately forgiven by his mother and step-brothers. His character is significantly more intelligent than the one on "Blossom," but the middle brother has adopted the "a few keys short of a keyboard" role. It is all about the antics of the youngest. As "The Cosby Show" and "Full House" have shown, a few years old the ancient will laugh huge almost every time. This show has promise although the pilot was not that hot. Overall grade: 5

Ned and Stacey. (7:30 p.m. Sundays on FOX). Thomas Hayden Church also steps into a new character with a higher IQ in this show about a couple living together in an apartment for convenience. Known as the simple-minded, meek Ichabod "Ones," Church now plays a businessman who will only get the promotion he's looking for if he is married. Though the two can't stand each other, Ned agrees to let Stacey move in (since she desperately needs a place to live) only if she'll marry him. Of course, they agree to freely date other people and Ned waits no time: he has a date the night they get married. This show had some hilarious moments and a well-acted serious scene at the end. It will probably be one of the more successful programs this fall. Overall grade: 7

Can't Hurry Love. (7:30 p.m. Mondays on NBC). This show features a one-season, "Friends" is already exciting other networks to attempt to duplicate its amazing success. CBS's entry is this show "Lex;" stars Nancy McKeon, from "The Facts of Life," about yet another woman who just can't seem to find a "nice guy" no matter how hard she tries. Her friends (one a female who has been around and another a love-em-and leave-em type guy from "The City), of course, have suggestions. The most laugh will come from her personal life. The humor is somewhat bland but still brings laughs and the opening is a simple instrumental with views of the New York City skyline.

The Client. (7 p.m. Tuesdays on CBS). John Grisham simply lacks the ability to write well for both page and television screen. Although several of his books have done very well and some have made decent movies, there is no room for them on TV, especially "The Client." The actors' southern accents are mediocre at best and John Heard's (in Tommy Lee Jones' role as the District Attorney) Atlanta drawl sounds a lot like Kevin Costner's New Orleans in "JFK." With all the other legal dramas on the air these days, there is an emptiness room for this one. Don't bother.

What the grades mean: 1-5: Won't see Thanksgiving. 6-6: Watch it while you can. It might not be here next year. 7-10: Everyone and their mother will claim they came up with the idea.

Overall grade: 2

Murder One. (9 p.m. Tuesdays on ABC). This show is a legal drama worth watching. ABC is attempting a lot with this one. They are hoping to capitalize off the (demented) interest in the O.J. Simpson trial combined with the strong following of "NYPD Blue" which is returning against last year's Rookie Show of the Year, "ER." After the first week we can see if this legal drama worth watching since they were stuck in the middle of the most popular night on television. Inserted between "Aladdin" and "The Single Guy" will get some of those viewers who like continuity or are just too lazy to think of something to do for half an hour. "Caroline" will do the same, but probably will have more people watching since "Seinfeld" and "ER" are such good programs. In "Guy," presenting the moves of a Los Angeles lawyer is accused of murdering a 15-year-old girl, he was having an affair with her older sister) that will be resolved in May. This scenario presents a problem, however, because in order to be completely aware of the developments, you would have to watch every week. This fact, combined with the move to Thursday's 9 p.m. time slot, will take away some of those who would be interested in watching.

Central Park West. (8 p.m. Wednesdays on CBS). First there was "90210," then "Melrose," next was "Models Inc.," and now there's "CPW." They should have quit while they were ahead. In fact, 7-10 p.m. about time they set one of these in New York, but it lacks realism (one character raises his hand, shouts "TAXI") and has one with in front of him within seven seconds). It has all the character stereotypes: a powerful business woman, a stuck-up goaded husband, a manipulative, yada yada yada. The show is so already involves with its demented plot that there is little room for improvement or expansion with some of the characters. This show is in the top 10 this fall, with the word "Models." Overall grade: 4

The Single Guy and Caroline in the City (7:30p.m. and 8:30 p.m. Thursdays on NBC). Two new shows are grouped together because they are stacked in the middle of the most popular night on television. Inserted between "Aladdin" and "The Single Guy" will get some of those viewers who like continuity or are just too lazy to think of something to do for half an hour. "Caroline" will do the same, but probably will have more people watching since "Seinfeld" and "ER" are such good programs. In "Guy," presenting moves of a Los Angeles lawyer is accused of murdering a 15-year-old girl, he was having an affair with her older sister) that will be resolved in May. This scenario presents a problem, however, because in order to be completely aware of the developments, you would have to watch every week. This fact, combined with the move to Thursday's 9 p.m. time slot, will take away some of those who would be interested in watching.

Overall grade: 3

Sols could be heard across the world this past Thursday. The only event worth discussing today is Billie's departure. It all started when Bo and Sean D. went to the island, and Mrs. (psycho) Horton got them out of there as well. They, not surprisingly, ran into each other, and Sean D. told his parents to act as if they were all a family once again. While their singing was a sad display, they all looked rather lovley-dovey just in time for Billie to see them. Billie ran back to Salen and told Bo and Hope's eventual love story.

Billie ended up asleep on Kristen's couch that night after a long talking session with Kristen. When Billie awoke, Kristen called the third musketeer, Jennifer, and they all cried and pigged out on ice cream for the day. After the conference, Kristen and Billie met up with John and Bo at the docks. Billie then made up her mind that, if Bo neglected to tell her about Hope being at the island, he still had feelings for Hope. Bo didn't tell her about Hope, so she said goodbye to Austin and Parts. Bo caught up with her at the airport, but she left him sobbing anyway.

Before Billie flew away, Bo had brought the final divorce papers to Hope, and Billie got to see her, she was all dressed up, beautiful. But Billie had remembered their supposed special anniversary, but she was mistaken. We don't blame Bo for not remembering. Hope and him had so many special days during their marriage Bo should have remembered one of them. We just want to take a special moment to remember all of the fun and excitement Billie provided for the show. Without her there would be few big stories, no drug stories, no Curtis Reed scandal, and, God forbid, no GED cooking stories, among other things. Billie, you were our favorites, and we'll miss you. Don't worry about Bo, because he's just disappointed all of Hope's hair at the moment. He'll come around someday.

Questions? Comments? Fan mail? Christina.N.Piscia@snid.edu
The Redskins, sensing a vulnerability in all phases of their most hated rival, responded with a stripped calf on the first possession.

The Cowboys defense put eight men up front and dared Wade Wilson to pass, and the 36-year-old backup didn't find his rhythm until it was too late.

The Cowboys' defense was pushed aside by a patchwork defense was

Many of Allen's 121 yards - on 30 carries - came on second and third efforts. Suddenly, his moves looked like Smith's, and quarterback Gus Frerotte's connections with receiver Michael Westbrook had the look of Aikman-to-Michael Irvin as the Redskins picked on cornerback Clayton Holmes.

The Cowboys, meanwhile, made the mistakes one would expect from the young, rebuilding Redskins. Smith lost a fumble for the second time this season, and Eddie Murray's 46-yard field goal and Allen's first TD made it 20-10 at halftime.

After a Chris Boniol field goal, Wilson (21-for-29, 224 yards, one interception) passed 28 yards to Irvin early in the fourth quarter to cap a 96-yard drive that closed the gap to 27-20. Another Boniol field goal made it 27-23 with 7:44 to play, but Wilson was picked off by Tom Carter.

By JOE KAY

CINCINNATI

The Shula vs. Shula sequel had a lot more drama in the same ending: Dad Don hugged son David at midfield and walked off a winner.

Don Shula threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to D.J. McCaffrey with 1:03 left Sunday, keeping the Don Shula's Miami Dolphins unbeaten with a 26-23 victory over Dave's Cincinnati Bengals.

Cincinnati (2-3) wasted a chance to tie in the closing seconds when Doug Pe ry's 45-yard field-goal attempt drifted a few feet wide left. Miami is 4-0 for the fifth time in club history and the first since 1992.

The two quarterbacks made sure the second father-son coaching match-up in NFL history eclipsed the original for excitement. The Dolphins simply ground out a routine 23-7 win last year.

Jeff Blake kept Cincinnati in it until the end by throwing three touchdown passes to Carl Pickens, the last a 10-yarder with 3:39 left for a 23-19 lead. Blake completed 13 of 19 passes for 175 yards, but his chance to send a game to overtime against Seattle two weeks ago was off again.

Don Shula grabbed the back of Dave's head when they met in a throng of reporters at midfield and pulled him tightly into a tender cheek-to-

Miami, in his first game back from a bruised chest, completed 25 of 48 for 300 yards, but let the game reach a tender finish by failing to finish off drives.

Pete Stoyanovich tied his career high with four field goals - 45, 39, 36, 34 overall for 213 yards. But there was plenty of time left for Marino, who is one of the main reasons that Papa Shula has 340 career coaching wins, the most in NFL history.

University of Notre Dame International Study Program at... Notre Dame Australia 1996-1997

Applications will be available...

INFORMATION MEETING

Tuesday October 3, 1995
126 DeBartolo
4:30 pm

Sophomores in the Colleges of Arts and Letters and Business Administration Are Welcome!

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1995
8 P.M. - 12 A.M. STEPAN CENTER
ADMISSION: $1

Shula family duel ends in Dolphin win

By JOE KAY

CINCINNATI

The Shula vs. Shula sequel had a lot more drama but the same ending: Dad Don hugged son David at midfield and walked off a winner.

Don Shula threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to D.J. McCaffrey with 1:03 left Sunday, keeping the Don Shula's Miami Dolphins unbeaten with a 26-23 victory over Dave's Cincinnati Bengals.

Cincinnati (2-3) wasted a chance to tie in the closing seconds when Doug Peiry's 45-yard field-goal attempt drifted a few feet wide left. Miami is 4-0 for the fifth time in club history and the first since 1992.

The two quarterbacks made sure the second father-son coaching match-up in NFL history eclipsed the original for excitement. The Dolphins simply ground out a routine 23-7 win last year.

Jeff Blake kept Cincinnati in it until the end by throwing three touchdown passes to Carl Pickens, the last a 10-yarder with 3:39 left for a 23-19 lead. Blake completed 13 of 19 passes for 175 yards, but his chance to send a game to overtime against Seattle two weeks ago was off again.

Don Shula grabbed the back of Dave's head when they met in a throng of reporters at midfield and pulled him tightly into a tender cheek-to-

Miami, in his first game back from a bruised chest, completed 25 of 48 for 300 yards, but let the game reach a tender finish by failing to finish off drives.

Pete Stoyanovich tied his career high with four field goals - 45, 39, 36, 34 overall for 213 yards. But there was plenty of time left for Marino, who is one of the main reasons that Papa Shula has 340 career coaching wins, the most in NFL history.
Rockies clinch NL wild-card spot on final day

By JOHN MOSMAN

DENVER

The upstart Colorado Rockies worked their way into the NL wild-card spot with a dramatic fashion Sunday, rallying from a six-run deficit as Larry Walker drilled a two-run homer and hit two-run homers to lead a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

Colorado will meet the Atlanta Braves in the first round of the post-season Tuesday noon at Coors Field. The Rockies had previously traded for the Wild Card, 69 years of Braves domination ended when the Rockies finished the season at 88-74 with seven games to play. The Rockies had a 10-run lead over the Atlanta Braves after the first inning.

The Rockies sent nine men to the plate in the fifth, starting the inning with four straight hits, including a two-out single by Mark McGwire, to lead off.

Wilson hit two-run doubles on back-to-back sacrifice flies.

San Francisco knocked out the seventh on the doubles by Phillips and pinch-hitter Dave McCarty.

The Rockies clinched the NL West Championship on Wednesday, September 28, 1995, with a 10-4 win over the Atlanta Braves.

The Denver Post reported, "The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play. Matt Williams hit his 23rd homer, a 442-foot, two-run shot off the second with the 434-foot solo blast. San Francisco batted around in the third, scoring five times on four straight singles in the first inning. Barry Bonds had an RBI single in the third, knocked in two runners with a double, and Rich Aurilia was 4-for-4 with back-to-back sacrifice flies. San Francisco's wild win total the seventh on doubles by Phillips and pinch-hitter Dave McCarty.

Bond and Aurilia left the game in the sixth inning after colliding on a foul popup. Bonds was hit by a pitch and Aurilia a cut on his scalp, with both injuries serious.

Notes: The Giants offered one-year contracts to their two new managers and training staff. The Rockies had won nine of their last 11 games and finished ninth this season, setting a club record. The Rockies finished the year with a league-leading 200 home runs.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.

The Rockies clinched the NL Wild Card spot with a 10-4 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first round of divisional play.
THE OBSERVER • SPORTS

American League

Stage is set for AL West to be decided in playoff

By JAIMIE ARON
Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — The Seattle Mariners blew their second chance to win the AL West, losing 9-3 Sunday to the Texas Rangers and forcing them to await the outcome of California's game to determine their playoff status.

If the Angels lost to the Oakland Athletics, the Mariners would have the first division title in their 10-year history. Their comeback from a 13-game deficit on Aug. 2 would have been the third-best in major-league history.

But if California beats the A's, the Angels will be in Seattle on Monday for a one-game playoff to determine the division champion. The winner would go on to play New York in Tuesday's wild-card game.

Seattle eliminated Texas on Sunday and clinched a tie for the division title on Friday. But the Mariners lost 9-2 Saturday, while the Angels beat the A's 9-3 to keep Seattle's magic number at 3.

Things didn't go well for the Mariners on Sunday as starter Tim Belcher (13-12) allowed a three-run home run by Mickey Tettleton in the first inning. Seattle put it to 3-1 in its half as manager Lloyd Moseby homered by Jay Buhner. It was his 40th of the season, tying him with the only Mariners other than Ken Griffey Jr. to reach that plateau in franchise history. Griffey has done it five times.

Seattle got a boost of momentum in the fourth when Dan Wilson blocked the plate and tagged out Tettleton as he tried scoring from first on a double by Ivan Rodriguez. But a successful safety squeeze later, Rodriguez bobbled over Wilson, who had dropped the relay anyway, and Beng Gil added an RBI double to increase Texas' lead to 5-1. It became 7-1 on fifth-inning double by Juan Gonzalez.

The Mariners got within 7-3 on a two-run homer by Mike Blowers in the sixth. His 23rd homer gave him 96 RBIs, leaving him just short of giving Seattle four 100 RBI hitters.

The Rangers scored two more in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Frye and a bloop single by Will Clark, who went 2-for-5 to finish the season at .302.

Kenny Rogers (17-7) started on three days' rest and allowed three runs on five hits, two walks and three strikeouts in six innings. Matt Whitfield worked the final three innings.

Even if the season continues an extra day for the Mariners, in a game that will statistically be considered a regular-season contest, Edgar Martinez and Buhner wrapped up impressive personal feats.

Martinez went 2-for-4 to raise his average to a career-high .354, easily sealing his second batting title in the last four years.

Buhner has 121 RBIs and 122 hits, giving him the best RBIs-hits ratio in baseball history. His .9918 is far better than the previous best of .9929 by Jim Gentile in 1961.

Angels 8, Athletics 2

ANAHEIM, Calif. — After wasting an 11-game lead in the AL West, the California Angels rebounded to force a one-game playoff for the division title by beating the Oakland Athletics 8-2 Sunday.

The Seattle Mariners, who hold a two-game lead on Saturday morning, dropped into a first-place tie by losing to the Texas Rangers 9-3.

California and Seattle, both 78-66, will meet Monday at the Kingdome in just the eighth regular-season playoff in baseball history, the first since 1980. Mark Langston (15-6) is scheduled to pitch for the Angels against Randy Johnson (17-2).

Chuck Finley (15-12), who beat Seattle on Wednesday to cut California's deficit to two games, allowed four hits in 7 1-3 innings and struck out nine.

ALLIED SIGNAL

&

The University of Notre Dame

A Dynamic Combination

Invitational Interviews
November 7 for:

• BBA
• BS/MS/PhD in AE/ME

Résumés Due October 28 in Career and Placement Office

Manufacturer of Aerospace and Automotive Products, Chemicals, Fibers, Plastics and Advanced Materials

Michigan City
101 Lighthouse Place
601 Wahash St., (219) 874-9442
Take I-80/90 west to Westville exit, go north on Huay, 421 for 5 to 6 miles to 8th St., turn left and go 2 blocks.

Fremont
Horizon Outlet Center
6245 North Old 27, (219) 833-6255
Take I-80/90 east to exit #144, follow the signs to SR 120, corner of SR 120 and SR 127
Belles bounce back

By STEPHANIE BEUK
Sports Writer

While last Monday's disappointing loss to Albion College temporarily derailed the Saint Mary's volleyball team's winning streak, the Belles got back on track this weekend at North Central College, recording two convincing victories over North Central and the previous weekend's foe, Carroll College. The team resumed its winning ways, extending its record to 8-5 and accumulating three consecutive wins.

The Belles dominated play on Saturday, Carroll gave them an early scare. After defeating Carroll in the first two games, 15-9 and 15-5, the Belles bounced back to win the third, losing 1-15.

Head Coach Julie Schroeder-Biek said that in the third game, she experimented with a middle/right attack strategy during that game and let Dickey said. "We totally lost them back in it." said Meyer.

Blocking was not the Belles' only strong suit Saturday. While middle attackers Sara Stroncek and Laura Schreeg combined for 13 blocks on the day, outside attackers Kelly Prosser and Meg Kelly had 25 and 23 kills, respectively. Prosser was also a standout defensively, with 34 digs.

"Kelly had a great day," said Schroeder-Biek. "She had good, hard hits that were not only well-placed, but not even touched by a blocker. She was seeing holes and hitting the line."

In past games, said the Belles have used the back row attackers who dug their heels in effective use of the back row attack strategy makes them a unique and dangerous team.

The Belles make a three and a half hour roadtrip to DePauw University Tuesday, and return to action Friday, vs. Normal/Washington at the Illini Quadrangulars.

The victory over the Wildcats was the 39th consecutive conference victory for the Irish. The team ended their reign in the Midwest Collegiate Conference with a 53-3 record without having lost a conference match since the 1991 season. Their 2-0 record thus far in the BIG EAST supports the first place pre-season ranking of the Irish in the conference.

The Irish will look to improve their undefeated conference record this weekend as they host their first-ever BIG EAST match when West Virginia travels to South Bend on Friday.

Legendary manager retires after seventeen years with Detroit

By DAVID GINSBURG
Associated Press

Baltimore Orioles Sparky Anderson will walk away from his job as manager of the Detroit Tigers with nothing but delightful memories and the hope that he will continue to be a part of the game he dearly loves.

Anderson will announce his resignation at a news conference Monday at Tiger Stadium. After winning 1,321 games and the 1984 World Series in 17 years with Detroit, he figures it's time to move on.

"I wrote all the stories I can write in Detroit," he said, leaning back in a chair while smokin' a pipe in the visitors' clubhouse before Sunday's finale, a 4-0 loss to the Baltimore Orioles.

"I've got to go to another city and write," he said. "Of course, I couldn't be a writer because I can't spell."

He can sure run a baseball team, though. Anderson, 61, has won 2,194 games with Detroit and Cincinnati, the third-highest total in baseball history behind Connie Mack and John McGraw. He is the only manager to lead two franchises to championships in victories.

But the Tigers have fallen on tough times lately. They finished 60-84 this year, their third losing season in the last four, although Anderson said he received the same royal treatment in good times and bad.

"I don't think any manager in the last 50 years has ever stayed in a place as long as I have and been treated that good," he said. "I've been treated like a king — and done a lot of losing."

It was just a summer job. Now it's the rest of your life.

Remember when your biggest career concern was running out of paper cups? And when it was easy to handle any summer job because it was just a summer job? Now you're graduating. You want a career that will challenge you every day and offer a variety of responsibilities. You want to work where the learning curve doesn't flaten out after a couple of years.

At Andersen Consulting, our challenges change daily, like the world in which we work. Our job is to help clients do what they do. Only better.

Come talk to us about a career with Andersen Consulting.

Andersen Consulting is hosting a Career Day today from 10:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m. Please stop by to talk with us in the LaFortune Ballroom. Casual attire is appropriate. All majors welcome. Come see how yours fits in with Andersen Consulting.

Do You Like to Make Money?

Well, Now you can do it for Student Government

BUSINESS MAJORS

Student Government is looking for a FUNDRAISING EXPERT.

Must be able to work with several different people & groups, to present a dynamic plan, and to get LOTS-O-CASH!

Pick up an Application in Student Government and Return it by October 4th, 5:00 pm

DIVERSITY IS POWER

Sponsored by:
Multicultural Executive Council

MULTICULTURAL FALL FESTIVAL

CULTURE ON THE QUAD
October 2-6
Fieldhouse Mall
4:30-6:00 p.m.
Performances By:
Native American Club
Hawaiian Club
Greek Club
Filipino Club
Troop ND

Fireside Chats
October 2-6
"Women in the Arts"
Notre Dame Room, LaFortune
12:15-1:15 p.m.
Monday: Professor Lyonga
Tuesday: Professor Alice Cheang
Wednesday: Sonya Gernes
Thursday: Diana Mythyus
Friday: Jill Godmillow

SPECIAL EVENTS
October 3
102 DeBartolo
7:00 p.m.
Eun-Sook Lee

October 5
Ball Room
7:00 p.m.
John Ole Tome

TASTE OF NATIONS
Friday, October 6
8:00 p.m.
Stepan Center
Entertainment by Sabor Latino
Irish

continued from page 20

By DYLAN BARMER

The Notre Dame men's soccer team continued to get back on track with a 2-1 victory over the Northwestern Wildcats this Sunday in Evanston. The win was the second consecutive victory for the 5-4 Irish, and marked their first triumph on the road in their past six away games, dating back to last season.

While the Irish dominated every aspect of the game, out-shooting the Wildcats 26-9 and compiling a 10-5 edge on corner kicks, they needed a pair of goals in a four minute stretch in the second half to secure a victory.

The Irish seemed to have the edge in the first half, outshooting the Wildcats 10-4, but were unable to capitalize on more than a few chances, a trend that the Bill Lanza-less Irish squad has shown perhaps too often this season.

"We had a lot of key opportunities in the game where we weren't able to just put the ball away," commented forward Ben Backlage, who scored Notre Dame's game-winning goal.

Notre Dame finally got on the board when sophomore forward Scott Wells put the ball past Wildcat goalie Matt Russ at the 65:26 mark of the game, 23rd of the season for Wells' counterpart Konstantin Koloskov and Tony Capasso. The goal was the first of Wells' career, and showed that the Bill Lanza-less Irish squad has shown perhaps too often this season.

"The Wildcats were able to stop freshmen Donner Greg Velho's bid for his second consecutive shutout when Aaron Stolberg tallied the lone goal for the now 2-7 Northwesterners, and is the fifth goal allowed for the powerful freshman from St. Louis.

The Wildcats were able to grab the equalizer off an unassisted goal just over four minutes later. Backlage's goal came off a Northwestern turnover in the fifth goal allowed for the powerful freshman from St. Louis.

The Irish were able to hold off a late equalizing goal, thereby preserving their fifth win of the season.

While the win was important for the banged-up Irish squad, the consensus following the game was that the team still needs to improve. With two games this coming weekend including a crucial Big East matchup against powerful Georgetown, the Irish need to come together as a team in order to remain successful.

"We have the ability to beat any of these teams," commented Backlage. "We need to get focused on just coming together as a team, and we have to learn to remain focused for the entire 90 minutes of every game."

"We have to show more of a killer instinct out there," echoed team captain Tony Capasso.

"We need to learn to put teams away when we have the chance. Too many times this season we've tended to go up 2-0 and then just sit back. The Irish have seen 2-0 leads against Rutgers, Indiana, and Boston College evaporate into losses in this young season. Notre Dame will look to continue their winning streak when they play host to Detroit and Big East rival Georgetown on Thursday and Sunday, respectively.

Notre Dame gets back to winning ways

The Notre Dame men's soccer team continued to get back on track with a 2-1 victory over the Northwestern Wildcats this Sunday in Evanston. The win was the second consecutive victory for the 5-4 Irish, and marked their first triumph on the road in their past six away games, dating back to last season.

While the Irish dominated every aspect of the game, out-shooting the Wildcats 26-9 and compiling a 10-5 edge on corner kicks, they needed a pair of goals in a four minute stretch in the second half to secure a victory.

The Irish seemed to have the edge in the first half, outshooting the Wildcats 10-4, but were unable to capitalize on more than a few chances, a trend that the Bill Lanza-less Irish squad has shown perhaps too often this season.

"We had a lot of key opportunities in the game where we weren't able to just put the ball away," commented forward Ben Backlage, who scored Notre Dame's game-winning goal.

Notre Dame finally got on the board when sophomore forward Scott Wells put the ball past Wildcat goalie Matt Russ at the 65:26 mark of the game, 23rd of the season for Wells' counterpart Konstantin Koloskov and Tony Capasso. The goal was the first of Wells' career, and showed that the Bill Lanza-less Irish squad has shown perhaps too often this season.

"The Wildcats were able to stop freshmen Donner Greg Velho's bid for his second consecutive shutout when Aaron Stolberg tallied the lone goal for the now 2-7 Northwesterners, and is the fifth goal allowed for the powerful freshman from St. Louis.

The Wildcats were able to grab the equalizer off an unassisted goal just over four minutes later. Backlage's goal came off a Northwestern turnover in the fifth goal allowed for the powerful freshman from St. Louis.

The Irish were able to hold off a late equalizing goal, thereby preserving their fifth win of the season.

While the win was important for the banged-up Irish squad, the consensus following the game was that the team still needs to improve. With two games this coming weekend including a crucial Big East matchup against powerful Georgetown, the Irish need to come together as a team in order to remain successful.

"We have the ability to beat any of these teams," commented Backlage. "We need to get focused on just coming together as a team, and we have to learn to remain focused for the entire 90 minutes of every game."

"We have to show more of a killer instinct out there," echoed team captain Tony Capasso.

"We need to learn to put teams away when we have the chance. Too many times this season we've tended to go up 2-0 and then just sit back. The Irish have seen 2-0 leads against Rutgers, Indiana, and Boston College evaporate into losses in this young season. Notre Dame will look to continue their winning streak when they play host to Detroit and Big East rival Georgetown on Thursday and Sunday, respectively.

Notre Dame gets back to winning ways

The Notre Dame men's soccer team continued to get back on track with a 2-1 victory over the Northwestern Wildcats this Sunday in Evanston. The win was the second consecutive victory for the 5-4 Irish, and marked their first triumph on the road in their past six away games, dating back to last season.

While the Irish dominated every aspect of the game, out-shooting the Wildcats 26-9 and compiling a 10-5 edge on corner kicks, they needed a pair of goals in a four minute stretch in the second half to secure a victory.

The Irish seemed to have the edge in the first half, outshooting the Wildcats 10-4, but were unable to capitalize on more than a few chances, a trend that the Bill Lanza-less Irish squad has shown perhaps too often this season.

"We had a lot of key opportunities in the game where we weren't able to just put the ball away," commented forward Ben Backlage, who scored Notre Dame's game-winning goal.

Notre Dame finally got on the board when sophomore forward Scott Wells put the ball past Wildcat goalie Matt Russ at the 65:26 mark of the game, 23rd of the season for Wells' counterpart Konstantin Koloskov and Tony Capasso. The goal was the first of Wells' career, and showed that the Bill Lanza-less Irish squad has shown perhaps too often this season.

"The Wildcats were able to stop freshmen Donner Greg Velho's bid for his second consecutive shutout when Aaron Stolberg tallied the lone goal for the now 2-7 Northwesterners, and is the fifth goal allowed for the powerful freshman from St. Louis.

The Wildcats were able to grab the equalizer off an unassisted goal just over four minutes later. Backlage's goal came off a Northwestern turnover in the fifth goal allowed for the powerful freshman from St. Louis.

The Irish were able to hold off a late equalizing goal, thereby preserving their fifth win of the season.

While the win was important for the banged-up Irish squad, the consensus following the game was that the team still needs to improve. With two games this coming weekend including a crucial Big East matchup against powerful Georgetown, the Irish need to come together as a team in order to remain successful.

"We have the ability to beat any of these teams," commented Backlage. "We need to get focused on just coming together as a team, and we have to learn to remain focused for the entire 90 minutes of every game."

"We have to show more of a killer instinct out there," echoed team captain Tony Capasso.

"We need to learn to put teams away when we have the chance. Too many times this season we've tended to go up 2-0 and then just sit back. The Irish have seen 2-0 leads against Rutgers, Indiana, and Boston College evaporate into losses in this young season. Notre Dame will look to continue their winning streak when they play host to Detroit and Big East rival Georgetown on Thursday and Sunday, respectively.
SPORTS

Irish turn over game to Buckeyes

By BETSY BAKER
Sports Writer

Monday, October 2, 1995

Notre Dame ties Cincinnati, squeaks by Ohio State in OT

By JOE VILLINSKI
Assistant Sports Editor

Heading into the 80th minute of both their games this weekend, the women's soccer team found themselves in an unfamiliar position. A position as foreign as the Ohio territory was to Irish sports teams this weekend.

Against both Cincinnati and Ohio State, the Irish trailed by a goal with ten minutes remaining in the contest. This position also signified that after eight games this season, two teams finally found a way to solve the tenacious Irish defense and score.

On Friday night, Notre Dame salvaged a 2-2 tie with the Bearcats of Cincinnati as reserve midfielder Julie Maund came off the bench to score with less than two minutes left.

"They were a lot more intense and emotional than we were," midfielder Ragen Coyne said. "They came out believing that if they played with 100 percent, they could win and they almost did."

"They were an average team where every player played the best that they could," Maund said. "They worked really hard."

Regan Coyne called Friday's tie against Cincinnati an 'eye opener.' The three goals given up by the Irish defense this weekend were the first goals for a Notre Dame opponent this year.

Maund scored after the ball came out at the top of the box and put it in the upper left corner of the net. Midfielder Holly M"anhel registered an assist on the goal.

"I was the most disappointed with the way we played," Maund added. "We didn't play the way we were capable of."

"The Irish fell behind for the first time all year as midfielder Paulette Angelechis scored five minutes into the game. The Bearcats maintained the lead until co-captain Cindy Daws scored on an assist from M"anhel to tie the game only to see the tie vanish six minutes later.

"We faced a difficult situation," Maund noted. "Everyone gets up to beat us and they played their best. We were kind of shocked."

Notre Dame may have also been shocked yesterday as they fell behind early again to Ohio State before pulling out the game in overtime 2-1. Daws scored the game winner.

Irish impressive in first Big East win

By BETSY BAKER
Sports Writer

The tenth-ranked Notre Dame volleyball team made a grand entrance into the Big East conference last weekend with victories over Georgetown and Villanova in its conference debut.

The Irish improved their record to 13-1 on the year and 2-0 in the conference with a fifth consecutive three-match victory since Texas handed them their first loss of the season the previous weekend.

The 15-11, 15-13, 15-6 Irish victory over Georgetown on Saturday handed the Hoyas their seventh loss of the season and their first conference loss, making them 11-7 overall and 0-1 in the Big East.

Sophomore Jaimee Lee's kill campaign continued to lead the Irish with 12 kills, with Junior Kristina Ervin right behind her with 11. On the defensive end, co-captain Jenny Birkner led the team in the dig column for the seventh time this season with 10. Junior middle blocker Jen Briggs collected three service aces in Irish win.

The victory on Sunday required a little more effort of the team as Villanova made many attempts, a few being successful, at stealing the lead from the Irish. The Irish fought back from a 12-8 deficit in the third game to clinch the victory 15-10, 15-4, 15-12.

"I was really pleased with the way we came back in the third game to close out the match," Irish head coach Debbie Brown said.

"I was impressed with Villanova because they played hard and really pushed us, but we showed good patience and came back strong."

The Irish were led again by Lee with 14 kills because they were capable of pulling out the game in overtime 2-1. Daws scored the game winner.

The Irish turn over game to Buckeyes