Israelis mourn slain leader, country in turmoil

By KARIN LAUB
Associated Press

JERUSALEM

Tens of thousands of Israelis, many weeping, massed bearing flowers, silently filed past the simple wooden coffin of Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin on Sunday, in a final salute to the assassinated soldier, statesman and man of peace.

The parade of mourners came from all over the shocked and saddened country to a courtyard in front of the Israeli parliament. The procession was expected to continue all night until the start of a state funeral Monday attended by dozens of world leaders, including President Clinton.

Even as Israelis mourned, they tried to grasp the enormity of the upheaval thrust upon their country when a Jewish opponent of Rabin's peacemaking gunned him down.

Many gently placed bouquets of flowers on stone tiles near the flag-draped coffin in which lay the 73-year-old slain leader. Others gently placed flower bouquets on stone tiles nearby.

A Jewish settler from New York, Yaakov Genec, quietly sat in a corner, with a sign announcing he was on a hunger strike to protest growing violence.

Genec said he opposed Rabin's peace policies, but could not condone the behavior of Rabin's opponents. "I am here to say that the hatred of so many people led to this. I have encountered this hatred and I did not speak out," said Genec, who moved to Israel two years ago.

Rabin's assassination at a pro-peace rally in Tel Aviv on Saturday night stunned a nation that, despite increasingly bitter divisions over peace-making with the Arabs, had somehow denied that such violence could happen to them.

The suspect, Yigal Amir, a 27-year-old law student with links to the Jewish extremist fringe, told interrogators he wanted to stop Rabin's peace policies. He reportedly said his actions were based on rabbinical rulings that permit Jews to kill people who move parts of the biblical Land of Israel.

"There were many writings on the wall, but still we felt this could not happen to us," said Chaim Flaman, chief of the powerful Histadrut Trade Union Federation.

Rabin's death raised immediate questions about the future of Middle East peacemaking, especially the Israeli-PLO autonomy agreement on the withdrawal of Israeli troops from most West Bank towns and villages by the end of the year. Some delays were possible as Rabin's successor, Shimon Peres, puts together a caretaker government.

Born in Jerusalem in 1922, Rabin was the nation's first native-born prime minister and at the center of its history for more than 50 years. He joined the elite Palmach unit of the Hagana Jewish underground in Palestine, and fought in the siege of Jerusalem during the 1948 war.

He was the military chief of staff when Israel defeated three Arab armies in the 1967 Mideast war, Israel's ambassador to the United States, prime minister in the 1970s, and defense minister in the 1980s.

He was appointed prime minister after again Labor party won the 1992 elections, and his peacemaking with the PLO earned him the 1994 Nobel Peace Prize, along with Peres and PLO chief Yasser Arafat.

Dubbed "Mr. Security," Rabin was the one politician Israelis trusted enough to take the risks involved along the rocky path toward peace.

But the political climate had turned unprecedentedly venous in recent months, and Rabin personally had become the target of increasing vitriol by Israel's right wing, which called him a traitor and compared him to a Nazi.

A stunned nation tried to come to grips with the killing Sunday. "Rabin Murdered, Israel is hurting and crying," read the headline in the Yediot Ahronot newspaper.

Tens of thousands stood silently Sunday at the site of the assassination. A sea of memorial candles, bouquets, hand-written prayers and rabbi-photographed covered the spot where the Prime minister was shot. A sign in Hebrew read, "Why?"

"Rabin was looking to the future. He was looking out for us, the younger generation," said Amir Shavir, an 18-year-old Jewish settler from Tel Aviv. "They killed him. They killed my hope." "Rabin's coffin, draped with the blue-and-white flag bearing the Star of David, was placed in an army truck Sunday morning and, accompanied by six army generals and two police chiefs, was driven slowly from Tel Aviv up to Jerusalem through the rocky, eternal hills. Thousands of Israelis strained to catch a glimpse.

Rabin's coffin was placed on a black bier in the plaza outside the Knesset, the Israeli parliament. Rabin's widow, Leah, supported by her son, Yuval, and daughter Dalia, slowly walked toward the coffin. From time to time, she buried her tear-stained face in her hands, and slumped on Yuval's shoulders.

Yuval quietly recited the Kaddish, or prayer for the dead.

"Tens of thousands of Israelis then filled the Knesset plaza and spilled out into the streets for miles. Parents brought their children, carrying them on their shoulders. One man hobbled along on crutches."

The Observer
Confessions of a draft junkie

As I read the story on Opus Dei in the Sheffield (Ohio) Beacon a month ago, I became aware of a sad and disturbing reality. As much as we hoped it would, Notre Dame does not mean Notre Dame. Opus Dei is not the only cult on campus. There is one Thomas greater, and, I am a part of it.

For three years now I’ve wanted to scream for help. But who would listen?

The confession must be made. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert.

I've wanted to scream for help. But who would listen?

Kiper appears to us on our TVs. We try to talk to us about assignments and parties. I am sitting at my kitchen table rummaging through my sheets of stats and bins on 1995 prospective NFL draftees. Pro Football Weekly. Afternoon. The magical number is 240. The number of yards per carry. The number of yards per carry. The number of yards per carry.

I see my son, hurriedly trying to clean up the mess. I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor. I see my son, hurriedly trying to clean up the mess. I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor. I see my son, hurriedly trying to clean up the mess. I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor.

"What happened?" I ask.

"I don’t know," he says.

"Just getting a glass of water," he replies. I go to the kitchen table in utter disbelief. The draft is in only a month, how can water be more important than preparing for the draft?

A week later my wife leaves and takes the kids. They don’t mind. The draft is in a month.

I sit in a circle with thirteen other men and thirteen women. I look around. They all look normal. Why are they here?

I have a large Whirlpool in the kitchen. They wear bears sweatshirts and caps. They scream for beer and sausage. They chant "Pork Chuck, Pork Chuck." I pound my head on the kitchen table in anger. I pound my head on the kitchen table in anger. I pound my head on the kitchen table in anger.

I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor. I see my son, hurriedly trying to clean up the mess. I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor. I see my son, hurriedly trying to clean up the mess. I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor.

I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert.

I clear my head and stand up. I am here for a reason, and it’s time I face it.

I am sitting at my kitchen table rummaging through my sheets of stats and bins on 1995 prospective NFL draftees. Pro Football Weekly. Afternoon. The magical number is 240. The number of yards per carry. The number of yards per carry. The number of yards per carry.

I see my son, hurriedly trying to clean up the mess. I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor. I see my son, hurriedly trying to clean up the mess. I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor. I see my son, hurriedly trying to clean up the mess. I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor. I see my son, hurriedly trying to clean up the mess. I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor. I see my son, hurriedly trying to clean up the mess. I hear a crash as glass hits the kitchen floor.

I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert. I am a son of Mel Kiper, NFL draft expert.

Political correctness in California. Secession in Ken­ney. The 1995 Bears’ draft is the most negative action — by ZIP code, not race — in Minnesota. Not your usual ballot issues, they spice the political season. The Four-year election cycle, the November before a presidential contest for most voters means a break from the general elections. But constitutional amendments and local measures may be proposed any time. In at least 21 states, those will be most of the questions of public policy and the ballot will limit them to general elections. But constitutional amendments and local measures may be proposed any time. In at least 21 states, those will be most of the questions of public policy and the ballot will limit them to general elections.

STATE BILLS INCREASE IN IMPORTANCE

Political correctness in California. Secession in Ken­ney. The 1995 Bears’ draft is the most negative action — by ZIP code, not race — in Minnesota. Not your usual ballot issues, they spice the political season. The Four-year election cycle, the November before a presidential contest for most voters means a break from the general elections. But constitutional amendments and local measures may be proposed any time. In at least 21 states, those will be most of the questions of public policy and the ballot will limit them to general elections.

Three day trial in Texas shooting

Saddam’s son’s double tells all

LONDON

His feet, shod in expensive patent leather, twist in and out of the small window. He turns to the right, the left. Laif Yahia cannot shake the tastes and habits of his dou­ble, the man he hates most. Saddam Hussein, father. Odai. Yahia says Odai is a wife-beating, brandy-swigging, looking, conviving murderer. "So am I," says Yahia, who has changed from a quiet, introverted Iraq­ian exile to a bold, violent fanaticalHC. Excerpt, he quickly corrects himself, he was not a mur­derer. "I am trying to get rid of the way I get angry, the way I behave toward the way I get violent and want to hit someone," he said in a recent interview. "I have changed a lot. I cannot go to the hospital. I am no longer that person." Yahia now lives under the careful watch of Scotland Yard. Western officials will not comment on his story, but other Iraqi exiles cor­re­borate some of his charges about Odai’s behavior and there have been recent reports of离of Iraq and "caim" may be on the outs with his father because of his excesses.
Vietnam to release two jailed Americans

By KATHY WILHELM
Associated Press

HANOI, Vietnam — In a rare gesture of goodwill, Vietnam plans to release and deport two Vietnamese-Americans who have been jailed for two years for helping to organize a conference on democracy.

Nguyen Tan Tri of Houston, Texas, and Tran Quang Liem, whose hometown was not known, will be expelled before midnight Monday (noon EST), the official Vietnamese News Agency said Sunday in a three-sentence report.

"The decision was made proceeding from the Vietnamese government's goodwill and in response to the American government's request," it said.

The unusual releases come on the eve of the arrival of an American delegation that will discuss measures to improve trade and economic cooperation. Some of the proposals have political conditions. Tri, Liem, and seven Vietnamese were convicted August 12 of attempting to overthrow the government by organizing the aborted 1993 conference in Ho Chi Minh City. Tri was sentenced to seven years in jail and Liem to four years, while the Vietnamese participants were given terms ranging from four to 15 years.

The convictions, coming just one week after Secretary of State Warren Christopher opened a U.S. Embassy in Hanoi, were seen as a reaffirmation of the Communist leadership's determination to resist Western pressure for political liberalization.

Vietnam's leaders have signaled their eagerness for U.S. technology and investment but insist they have no intention of initiating Russia and East Europe in moving away from Communism.

Putting on the Finishing Touches
Saint Mary's student Bridg Coleman helps decorate Lemans Hall for a dance this past Friday.
Outlook among state’s black voters in decline

The Guide due to low professor response. The Guide has previously asked professors to distribute surveys to students. In Indiana, according to the census, turnout among blacks dropped from 34 percent of the voting-age population in 1990 to 25 percent in 1994. The state’s overall voter turnout in 1990 was 37 percent, and 36 percent in 1994. In 1995, only 15 percent of the electorate but only 9.5 percent of voters.

University appoints new faculty

Special to The Observer

The University of Notre Dame academic-administrative and faculty appointments for the 1995-96 academic year have been announced by the University’s provost, Timothy O’Meara.

Goodwood casinos to open

Associated Press

Gambling is already a $1 billion industry in Indiana and it will become even bigger with the opening of 11 riverboat casinos starting next month.

The new competitors have churches and fraternal organizations worried about the survival of their bingo games, raffles and Las Vegas nights. After all, there are just so many entertainment dollars to go around, said Donald Coffin, an associate economics professor at Indiana University Northwood.

“Clearly they are competing with each other,” he said. “One of the questions is what is the magnitude of the impact. It would surprise me if it is not substantial.”

Charity gambling drew $400,000 in wages in the fiscal year that ended June 30, with the money going to fund everything from church schools to the operation of fraternal lodges.

During the same period, the Indiana Lottery Commission reported wages totaling $400 million. The competitors for four Lake County casino boats alone predict joint revenues of more than $1 billion a year. Economists expect that to hurt charitable organizations in northwest Indiana that rely on gaming to raise money.

“I think the (Donald) Trumps will out-compete the churches,” said James Jennings, an economics professor at Purdue University Calumet.

“Grandma may still go to the church and grandpa to the Legion, (but) the younger folks may go to the boats.”

Riverboat casinos to open
Israel's fabled secret service failed to protect Rabin

By NICOLAS TATRO
Associated Press

JERUSALEM

How could it happen?

No country puts more emphasis on security than Israel. The Shin Bet secret service built an enviable reputation for protecting its leaders and preventing terrorist attacks. Security broke down, however, when bodyguards apparently mistook a young law student for a VIP driver and let him get close enough to shout Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin with a 9mm Barretta. Questions are also being asked about why Rabin was not wearing a bullet-proof vest. It's not as if there wasn't ample warning that an attack might come from Israel's religious right-wing. The suspect had links to right-wing extremists.

In recent weeks, angry debate over the future of the West Bank spilled into the streets with right-wingers heckling Rabin at public appearances, calling him a "traitor," "Nazi" and "terrorist."

His Cabinet ministers were also under threat, and extra bodyguards and armored cars were deployed. Housing Minister Binyamin Eliezer was targeted in an ambush. Education Minister Shalumi Atoni was punched in the stomach and his defender Yossi Sarid's car was forced off a highway.

Yossi Melman, an analyst and expert on intelligence, said security was "a total failure because the handwriting has been on the wall for the past month."

One reason was that few Israelis really believed that an Israeli would kill an Israeli. Gideon Efrach, former deputy head of the Shin Bet, said he thought that when Rabin was in the Arab West Bank town of Nablus, his bodyguards were "more psychologically alert" than they were in Tel Aviv.

"I also think that we all did not believe that such a thing could happen," said Efrach. The security instead focused on Palestinian militants, especially Islamic extremists who had threatened to get even for Rabin's reported decision to order the recent execution of the Islamic Jihad leader Fathi Shakkali in Malta.

"Israel's security underestimated the dangers of the Jewish right-wing and instead focused on Palestinian terrorism," said Ziad Azmi, a Palestinian peace negotiator. "Jewish fanaticism is not less dangerous than Palestinian." An official who spoke on condition of anonymity said Rabin refused to wear a bullet-proof vest. Melman said the Shin Bet should have insisted that he wear one and that the shots might not have been fatal if he had.

But Ehud Sprinzak, a professor of political science at Hebrew University, said Rabin would have refused to wear a vest anyway.

"We are talking about a very old soldier who went through all kinds of danger to save his life. He did not consider an assassination a serious danger," said Sprinzak.

Israel experts said the 25-year-old law student, who confessed to the assassination, Yi- gal Amir, fit almost exactly the profile of a religious right-wing extremist.

"The man who fell from the window overlooking the King David Hotel in Jerusalem in 1949 did not stand out either," said Sprinzak.

The most fitting tribute to Yitzhak Rabin would be to continue the quest for peace in the Middle East, world leaders said Sunday when they mourned the slain Israeli prime minister.

"Rabin, who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1994 for making peace with Palestinians, was shot to death Saturday night by a right-wing Israeli after speaking at a peace rally in Tel Aviv."

"Yitzhak Rabin himself always emphasized that the opponents of the peace process were구 not a particular group, who had no record with authorities, someone who thought the incitement of those present the prime minister as a traitor."

"To attempt to rip apart the movement toward peace in the Middle East, and to incite the Wall Street of bloody suffering and violence," said Schiff.

"He told them the answer was to carry with them the sword of tyranny will be killed by the same sword," said Rabin.

Confrontation flooded into Israel from all parts of the world, from presidents and monarchs alike. The pope ended his recent tour with the words: "Peace will still prevail." The pope ended his recent tour with the words: "Peace will still prevail." Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev said the peace process was now a "prophecy that cannot be denied." The pope ended his recent tour with the words: "Peace will still prevail."~
Milosevic condemns peace accord

By SLOBODAN LEKIC
Associated Press

DAYTON, Ohio - Serbia's President Slobodan Milosevic, the main power broker in the former Yugoslavia, has reacted angrily to a proposed Bosnian peace accord, believing he was misled by the peace conference's U.S. organizers about what its contents would be, officials close to the talks said Sunday.

The political groundwork for the current talks was laid over the past several months by Richard Holbrook, the U.S. assistant secretary of state who conducted a series of shuttle missions to the Balkans.

On the basis of discussions held during those missions and subsequent accords on Bosnia's constitutional principles and territorial division, mediators have come up with a draft agreement to end the war and establish a republic consisting of two ethnic entities. Parts of that document were circulated to the delegations Thursday.

"Milosevic is upset because he thinks the Americans brought him to Dayton on false pretenses," said an official familiar with the Serbian leader's reaction. "They want him to make concessions that were not mentioned during Holbrooke's talks with him" in Serbia.

The official spoke on condition that he not be identified, because of strict secrecy rules clamped on the proceedings by the organizers.

Mediators at the peace talks, which formally opened Wednesday, are reportedly zeroing in on Milosevic, deeming him the chief negotiator as the instigator of the conflict that has killed an estimated 200,000 people.

Despite having been authorized by the Bosnian Serbs to negotiate and conclude a possible agreement on their behalf, Milosevic faces strong opposition in Serbia if he is seen to be setting them out.

In the Bosnian Serb capital of Pale, Information Minister Mirolav Toholj already has denounced reports that Karadzic could be replaced, saying, "The Serbian people will never allow any foreign power to impose a puppet government."

And Milosevic faces even more worrying consequences if he antagonizes the powerful Yugoslav army, which has close ties with the Bosnian Serb military and particularly the charismatic Gen. Mladic.

Serbian negotiators "are sticking to what was agreed during Holbrooke's five missions to the former Yugoslavia," emphasized a report Sunday by Serbia's state-owned Tanjug news agency.

The agency, which often conveys official government positions, said the Serb delegation would refuse to accept any new proposals in the draft agreement submitted to the war parties that are "contrary to the spirit of earlier deals.

---

Winter is on its way

Locals begin to form at Stonehenge after a weekend where temperatures hovered around 30 degrees.

Clinton stands behind sending troops to Bosnia

Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Clinton used a magazine essay to make his case for sending U.S. troops to enforce a possible peace accord in Bosnia, saying the United States has an "urgent stake in stopping the war." Clinton said he would commit up to 25,000 U.S. troops.

But congressional Republicans have expressed worries that the troops might become targets or be drawn into a war.

Last week, the House passed a nonbinding resolution declaring that there should be no precommitment that U.S. troops would serve as part of a NATO peacekeeping force.

Clinton has said he would seek congressional support before sending any troops, although the administration maintains that approval from Congress is not required.

In his essay, Clinton said if any troops were sent, he would insist on NATO command and control of the operation. "Our troops will take their orders from the American general who commands NATO forces - no one else," he said.

"They will have clear rules of engagement, a carefully defined mission and a exit strategy," he said.

---

LASALLE BOOKSTORE

Your source for the best in theological and philosophical books!

Grand Opening Sale Nov. 4-11

Featuring books by:
John Paul II, von Balthasar, Congar, De Lubac, Aquinas, Maritain, Hauerwas, N.T. Wright, Mother Teresa, C.S. Lewis, Newman, Chesterton, Bonhoeffer and many more!
Also: Fathers of the Church, Vatican II documents, encyclicals, Bible and scripture study, prayer, lives of the saints.

We can special order any book you need!

LASALLE BOOKSTORE 237 N. Michigan St., downtown South Bend (at the corner of Michigan and LaSalle), 287-0349 Open 10-5 Tues - Fri; 10-4 Saturday

SUMMER STUDY IN Washington, DC
GRADUATE • UNDERGRADUATE STUDY ABROAD • HIGH SCHOOL PROGRAMS

The George Washington University
75TH ANNIVERSARY 1821-1996

1ST SESSION: MAY 22
2ND SESSION: JULY 8

For information call (202) 994-6360, Fax (202) 994-9133
or write us at 2121 Eye St., NW • Washington, DC 20052
for our Summer Sessions Announcement
E-mail: sunprogs@gw2.circ.gwu.edu

GW is an equal opportunity institution.
Military grapples with charges of harassment

By JOHN DIAMOND
Associated Press

WASHINGTON
Her F-16 score sheet said one thing: Maj. Jacqueline S. Parker qualified for the next level of combat fighter training. Her male commanders said another.

Time after time, word came from Parker to the higher-ups: Go back and do it over again.

“They’d say, ‘You’re just a little short of where you need to be,’ ” Parker recalled of her supervisors at the New York Air National Guard’s 174th Fighter Wing in Syracuse — known as “The Boys from Syracuse.”

“I’d say, ‘What is it?’ And they’d say, ‘Do you want us to lower our standards?’ ” Parker said in an interview.

As to whether well-qualified women will be promoted over less qualified men, “the answer is yes,” Dorn said.

Eventually, women into higher-ranking positions will ease rather than increase tension between the genders, Dorn predicted.

“Their effort to eradicate sexual harassment is pushing women into places where they don’t belong. Increasingly, it seems that as Jackie Parker and other women complain that they face higher hurdles than male counterparts, others in the military charge that the Pentagon is lowering its standards to meet a feminist agenda.

The Pentagon’s top personnel official, Undersecretary of Defense Edwin Dorn, rejects the favoritism charge.

“Nobody’s going to put somebody in a $5 million airplane if he or she is not ready to handle it,” Dorn said. “No commander is going to risk his or her career or the lives of the people in their unit merely to satisfy some symbolic goal.”

As to whether well-qualified women will be promoted over less qualified men, “the answer is yes,” Dorn said.

Eventually, women into higher-ranking positions will ease rather than increase tension between the genders, Dorn predicted.

“What are you doing this Christmas?”

Consider signing up for The MCT, “The Church and Social Action,” affectionately known as “Uplift Group.”

• 14 bldr experience in an inner city of your choice
• During the months of July - 11 Interners chosen by the host bldr.
• BE MTHL, LISTEN AND EXPERIENCE: the stories of people who vote, pray
• Talk with people who are heterogeneous
• EXPERIENCE soup kitchens, shelters and welfare agencies
• Meet people who are trying to make their city better for people who are not yet

Registration Deadline: Nov. 15, 1995

Oriental: Nov. 15, 1995 4-6PM
Harbor Umpire Auditorium

Follow-up meeting: Jan. 26, 1996 4-6:30PM

Registration available at the Center for Social Concerns, Campus Ministry and Multicultural Affairs (19 LaSalle - 2MC)

Student Affiliates Office --- 666C

Saint Mary's College Sisters of Notre Dame presents:

WHIMSICAL WORDS & SULTRY SOUNDS

Poetry Evening

Saint Mary's College Auditorium

Monday, November 6, 1995

8:00 PM

Downtown's Coffehouse

Harassment in the military

Women in the military

1993 1995

Army

59,760 enlisted

58,133 enlisted
512 filed 1,926
52

Navy

45,393

44,347

1,300 officers

1,265

Marines

7,348

7,704

10,908 146

Air

12,000

12,129

2,650

1,545

Total complaints

199,023 women

182,652 men

680 substantiated

Source: Department of Defense

Highly publicized cases as the death of Navy Lt. Kara Hultgren and the scuttled promotion of Adm. Stanley Arthur.

"Arthur is going to return to F-16 fighter training.

While Parker ponders the offer, others like her live in a military where the issue between men and women goes beyond gender and ego. As the percentage of women in the shrinking military increases, competition for plum jobs, such as fighter pilot, becomes more keen.

Women make up 12.5 percent of the military today, up from 10.5 percent two years ago.

"As the services have come down in size, as personnel have changed, there’s a lot of change going on and change often tends to be threatening," said former Navy Capt. Carolyn Prevatt, who serves on the Defense Advisory Committee on Women in the Services, a group that advises the Pentagon on gender issues.

Adding to the problem is lingering resentment from such Poland

Poles hold elections, Walesa challenged

By ANDRZEJ STYLINSKI

WARSAW

President Lech Walesa faced a tough challenge Sunday from a polished ex-Communist as Poles voted in their second presidential elections since toppling the Communists six years ago.

Though 17 names were on the ballot, the race boiled down to the former Solidarity leader Walesa and Aleksander Kwasniewski, leader of the reconstituted Communists and a former sports minister.

If no one wins a majority, the two top vote-getters will meet in a Nov. 19 runoff. Partial, official results were expected several hours after the polls closed Sunday night. Some 25 million Poles were eligible to vote.

Legging far behind in pre-election polls were former Solidarity adviser Jakub Kuroń, central bank chief Hanna Gronkiewicz-Waltz and Tadeusz Zieliński, the country's human rights ombudsman.

With presidential powers largely ceremonial, the election is not expected to prompt radical change. But it could alter Poland's image as it strives for NATO and European Union membership, though Kwasniewski says he supports those goals just as strongly as Walesa.

Sunday was cold and blustery across Poland, and 20 inches of fresh snow hindered voting in southern regions. Election officials would not offer turnout estimates until after polls closed.

Walesa, 52, voted in his hometown of Gdansk, and later received a bottle of champagne from supporters at the shipyard where the East bloc's first free trade union movement was forged under his leadership.

A devout Catholic, Walesa is backed by the Solidarity trade union and the Roman Catholic church. Many priests issued thinly veiled endorsements of Walesa from the pulpit Sunday.

Still, many Poles are disillusioned with Walesa, who as president has lost much of the popularity he enjoyed in leading the struggle that culminated in the Soviet bloc's dissolution.

Kwasniewski, 41, voted in Warsaw's wealthy suburb of Wilanow, then said he would swim and play tennis until results came in.

Shevardnadze may win presidency

By CHRIS BIRD

TBILISI

Pulling up to a voting station in his bulletproof Mercedes, Georgian leader Eduard Shevardnadze cast his ballot Sunday to pick a new president and parliament in an election he hoped to win.

Displaying a confident smile at applauding bystanders, Shevardnadze voted at a teachers' college in Tbilisi's Vake district.

"There's one name I know. I'll mark that one," he joked before disappearing behind the yellow curtains of a voting booth, having jumped the long line of waiting voters.

The car was gift to Shevardnadze from the German government after a car bomb attack against him in August. He was also surrounded Sunday by bodyguards.

About 3.2 million Georgians were eligible to vote in Sunday's elections, which will also decide the make-up of a new, 235-seat parliament. Preliminary results are expected early Monday.

Five candidates competed for the presidency, and nearly 3,000 were running for parliament. Elections in 19 of Georgia's 85 electoral districts have been postponed indefinitely because they are in the separatist regions of Abkhazia and South Ossetia.

Turnout by midafternoon was 50 percent - and 50 percent turnout was needed for the vote to be valid.

Shevardnadze, the 67-year-old former Soviet foreign minister, campaigned on a platform that he is the only guarantor of Georgia's recent - and still fragile - stability.
Vespers with Theodore Hesburgh

Back in the 60's, when the mass was in Latin, Notre Dame was an all male school and God was not yet dead, I came to know the Reverend Father Hesburgh, C.S.C. At times, I was a junior living in Dillon Hall with my roommate, Mike Green. It was midwinter, the days were long and early dark, bitter cold and numbing boredom. Mike and I had just opened our freshman math course. Now, this happened in my second semester grade deficiency intruded upon the space of the bright product we had been working for. By easing their anxiety. We would call "Ted the Head" you were going straight to Father Hesburgh to inform him that somehow, from our throw rug is still vivid."

"Let me just summarize the next several hours as 7-Up, rye whiskey, cashews and some kind of sticky sweet fruit punch. To this day, I have never again drank, sipped, even tasted whiskey of any sort. And the memory of spending hours working bits of cashews free from our throw rug is still vivid."

Darwinism, patent law and ND Law

The issue of Science magazine which has just reached campus is an annual overview of the human genome project. The issue gives graphic and textual emphasis to the importance of "model systems" in understanding the human genome. These systems include the genomes of the mouse and of an invertebrate worm, Caenorhabditis elegans. Perhaps local critics of the theory of evolution would want to challenge the significance of such research or recommend to their friends in Congress that funding for it be cut. Perhaps not. But if those faculty in the Notre Dame Law School, the Center for the Philosophy of Religion, and the Maritain Center, as well as one graduate student in the Physics Department, who arranged to put Darwin on trial at Notre Dame want the rest of us to think they know what we're doing. I'm sure they won't miss the chance to tell us what they think about the relation of this aspect of the human genome project to Darwin's intellectual legacy.

Since patent law isn't a priority at the otherwise excellent Notre Dame School of Law perhaps none of those who put Darwin on trial knows anything at all about molecular biology. If that's the case, the community can draw its own conclusions.

EDWARD MANIER

Professor of Philosophy, Fellow of the \reprinciple of Science, Technology and Values.

GARRY TRUDEAU

THE QUESTION OF THE DAYS

"The illusion that times that were better than those that are, has probably pervaded all ages."

—Horace Greeley
The error of Anti-Federalist opposition to Big Government

During the time I lived in Britain years ago, I acquired an interesting job-thehole. The income was quite good, and the environment was part of the attraction as well, since it was an American buying bee­

Now, as the peculiarities of economic globalization are coming into clear view, we find that our concept of "national" solution is coming into clear view. Economic globalization is spreading to all aspects of our lives, from the way we produce goods and services, to the way we think about political power and the role of government.

The Endangered Species Act, or ESA, was passed in 1973 by Congress. It was a response to the loss of biodiversity due to habitat destruction and other human activities. The act was designed to protect species that were considered to be at risk of extinction.

Today, many in Congress take a different view of the ESA. They argue that the act is too costly and that it leads to unnecessary regulations that hurt the economy. They also argue that the act is too inflexible and that it does not allow for the necessary flexibility to address the needs of both the environment and the economy.

Some of the arguments against the ESA are that it is too costly and that it leads to unnecessary regulations. These arguments are not entirely unfounded. The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals.

However, the arguments against the ESA are based on a misunderstanding of the act's intended purpose. The act was never intended to be a tool for the government to regulate the economy. Its primary purpose was to protect species that were at risk of extinction.

The arguments against the ESA are also based on a misunderstanding of the act's intended purpose. The act was never intended to be a tool for the government to regulate the economy. Its primary purpose was to protect species that were at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.

The act has been a source of some economic costs, and it has led to a number of regulations that can be burdensome for businesses and individuals. However, these costs and regulations are necessary to protect species that are at risk of extinction.
Notre Dame 35-17 Navy

Key Stat
Navy was penalized seven times for 61 yards. Two of the penalties wiped out touchdowns.

Player of the Game
Lyon Cobbins
The junior linebacker shined again, as he forced a fumble, recorded a sack, and made his fourth interception.

Quote of the Game
"I was pleased with the way he responded to it."
—Lou Holtz, on reliever Tom Powlus' performance

Irish get over Powlus injury, Navy option to post second half win

By MIKE NORBUT
Sports Editor

There's never been any question about it. Tom Powlus has always been Notre Dame's starting quarterback. Tom Krug, unless blessed with continuous flashes of brilliance that could possibly convince Lou Holtz to sit his star recruit, would always be reserved to a backup's role.

When Powlus left the field Saturday after being thrown to the ground on a sack by Navy's Fernando Harris, the team suddenly became Krug's. And the junior capitalized on the opportunity, leading the Irish to a 35-17 comeback win over an undisciplined Navy squad.

"For three years, I went to bed every night thinking 'If Powlus was hurt, would I even be on the field?'" Krug said. "I've never been on the field against a real team."

Krug's performance, however, was anything but a dream. He completed 5-of-8 for 90 yards and two touchdowns.

Circumstances add up to a fitting finale for seniors, but not stadium

The snowflakes fell softly upon Notre Dame Stadium. Peaceful, almost pleasant precipitation added just that picturesque post-card type effect to Saturday's proceedings. Complaints about the temperature already plummeting in early November aside, one couldn't help but basking back to the 1992 Penn State game.

The game marked the end of Notre Dame Stadium as we know it. Come next September, Navy is no Penn State and the 18 point victory hardly had students standing on the edge of their seat but one similarity beyond the weather does indeed exist.

Like the classic end to the Penn State series, Saturday's game will be long remembered by the legion of Irish fans who have ever set foot inside of the House that Rockne built but not for its drama.

The game marked the end of Notre Dame Stadium as we know it. Come next September.

Relief Pitcher
Ron Powlus' broken humerus gave Tom Krug (left) his long-awaited opportunity. He took full advantage of it.

—see page 2

Grabbing Victory

By MIKE NORBUT
Sports Editor

Notre Dame split end Derrick Mayes adjusts to a Tom Krug toss (left), gathers in the pass (above), and scores his second touchdown of his last home game (below). He finished the day with 4 catches for 81 yards and added to his career record for touchdown receptions.

The Observer/Rob Finch

The Observer/Rob Finch

Jock Strip

Circumstances add up to a fitting finale for seniors, but not stadium

Granting, Navy is no Penn State and the 18 point victory hardly had students standing on the edge of their seat but one similarity beyond the weather does indeed exist.

Like the classic end to the Penn State series, Saturday's game will be long remembered by the legion of Irish fans who have ever set foot inside of the House that Rockne built but not for its drama.

The game marked the end of Notre Dame Stadium as we know it. Come next September.

—see SHERMAN page 3.
Injury gives chance to
Krug and spark to Irish

By TIM SHERMAN
Associated Press

It had taken nearly two seasons, but people were finally started to put their fears to rest. No longer did a gasp go out when he put his head down to take a hit. In fact, it was becoming almost customary for him to jump up after being tackled and beginning to replace phrases such as
"Golden Boy", "Messiah", and "Savior".

That all ended at the 11:12 mark of the third quarter when Navy linebacker Derrick Mayes
chased down a scrambling Powlus and slung him to the turf. Powlus landed squarely on his left arm, breaking the humerus.

"Ron fell on his arm and the snap was four inches above his elbow," said Dr. Will Yergler, director of Irish sports medicine.
The bone was fractured completely across the arm. Right now, the alignement is satisfactory
so surgery will probably not be necessary. As long as the arm stays straight, a cast is all that will be needed.

While other healing process will be relatively simple, it will by no means be a quick recovery.

The healing time will be between four and six months," Yergler predicted.

That prognostication makes a bowlgame return of the question and spring ball very unlikely.

But at a time when Powlus' return was the furthest thing from Notre Dame's mind Saturday.
Powlus delighted with the Irish trailing 17-14. As much as the team's thoughts had to be with him, there was still to win.

Enter Tom Krug.

"I was really pleased with the way
Thomas Krug played," Irish coach Lou Holtz said. "I made some mistakes, but he did some good things."

Looking at the final stat sheet, those good things read:
5-8, 90 yards, 2
touchdown passes. Not too bad for someone most people assumed would be a career back-up.

"You've got to believe in something and stick with it," Krug said.
"I love Notre Dame and what it stands for.
It was great to get a chance to represent Powlus on the field. I thought I could have performed better but you always do.

His teammates were pretty satisfied with the play.

"Tom Krug played like a veteran and took it on himself to lead us," fullback
Marc Edwards said.

In fact, Krug led the Irish to three touchdowns in less than ten minutes.

"Ron's misfortune," Yergler predicted.

"I feel sick about
Ron's elbow," Holtz said. "I can use your tools a little bit better, but I never saw a fractured
humerus in a football player in my 22 years."

Navy's ensuing possession once the Irish had taken the lead gave Notre Dame
the ball at the Midshipmen's 36.

Three plays later, Krug found Mayes again, this time on a three-yard-aiming pattern in the right corner of the end zone.

"I think when you have more plays and more snaps, you can open your offense a little more," Krug said.
"You can use your tools a little bit better."

The ball then started rolling in Notre Dame's favor, as they stopped Navy on downs before executing a seven-play, 60-yard drive that culminated in an Avery Day 10-yard touchdown run.

It was quite a change from the first half, when the Irish were burned frequently by the Midshipmen option attack continued to plague the Irish

"You can't really get into the option unless you have a defense initially, as it was against Army.

"You can't really get into the option
until the second half," Rossom said.
"Ron took it on himself to lead us."

"Just wish him the best."

Navy quarterback Ben Fay, who was a last-minute replacement for starter
Charlie Stafford, was quick to praise the Irish
defense, however, as they struck again
in the second quarter.

Navy quarterback Ben Fay, who was a last-minute replacement for starter
Charlie Stafford, was quick to praise the Irish
defense, however, as they struck again
in the second quarter.

"Ron's one of my best friends and
one of the best players I've ever seen,"
Krug said. "It's easy with guys like Ryan Leahy and
Dusty Ziegler. I can't even see over them.

Krug was also having trouble seeing
past Powlus' misfortune.

"It's one of my best friends and
one of the best players I've ever seen,"
Krug said. "It's easy with guys like Ryan Leahy and
Dusty Ziegler. I can't even see over them.

Krug was also having trouble seeing
past Powlus' misfortune.

"Ron's one of my best friends and
one of the best players I've ever seen,"
Krug said. "It's easy with guys like Ryan Leahy and
Dusty Ziegler. I can't even see over them.

Krug was also having trouble seeing
past Powlus' misfortune.

"It's one of my best friends and
one of the best players I've ever seen,"
Krug said. "It's easy with guys like Ryan Leahy and
Dusty Ziegler. I can't even see over them.

Krug was also having trouble seeing
past Powlus' misfortune.

"It's one of my best friends and
one of the best players I've ever seen,"
Krug said. "It's easy with guys like Ryan Leahy and
Dusty Ziegler. I can't even see over them.

Krug was also having trouble seeing
past Powlus' misfortune.

"It's one of my best friends and
one of the best players I've ever seen,"
Krug said. "It's easy with guys like Ryan Leahy and
Dusty Ziegler. I can't even see over them.

Krug was also having trouble seeing
past Powlus' misfortune.

"It's one of my best friends and
one of the best players I've ever seen,"
Krug said. "It's easy with guys like Ryan Leahy and
Dusty Ziegler. I can't even see over them.
Navy in holiday spirit, give Irish victory

Penalties, turnovers kill Midshipmen's upset bid

By MIKE DAY
Sports Writer

With the snow finally falling on the campus, No. 15 Notre Dame will have been able to test its football team at home in a December night game. The Irish head coach Charlie Weisbrich. "If you give them the kind of Notre Dame that many opportunities, they’ll find a way to win.

While the Midshipmen self-destructed in key situations all day long, the turning point of the game took place midway through the third period. Already leading 17-14 and with momentum in their back pocket, Navy quarterback Ryan Fay found wideopen Ross Scott wide open for a touchdown. The scoreboard showed Navy 23, Notre Irish 14, and the Midshipmen seemed primed to end 31 years of suffering. However, the gunshot that rang across the stadium was not just the sound of another crime being committed on the streets of South Bend.

In some respects, it’s been a positive. While the Irish celebrated the showdown against Florida State in 1993 are sure to define the class of 1996. The Observer/Rob Finch

Ish cornetback Ali Ross return a kick-off for 38 yards. In addition, the sophomore recorded his third interception on the season.

“I was more of a case of us forcing turnovers and forcing them into just one thing, said Irish linebacker Kinnon Taum. “We hit them in there when things weren’t going our way, and we got back into our game by forcing them to make mistakes.”

While the Irish celebrated Christmas early on Saturday, the Midshipmen ended yet another season with emptied guns and some awfully sore feet.

If you give them the kind of Notre Dame that many opportunities, they’ll find a way to win. However, the gunshot that rang across the stadium was not just the sound of another crime being committed on the streets of South Bend.

In some respects, it’s been a positive. While the Irish celebrated the showdown against Florida State in 1993 are sure to define the class of 1996. The Observer/Rob Finch

Ish cornetback Ali Ross return a kick-off for 38 yards. In addition, the sophomore recorded his third interception on the season.

“I was more of a case of us forcing turnovers and forcing them into just one thing, said Irish linebacker Kinnon Taum. “We hit them in there when things weren’t going our way, and we got back into our game by forcing them to make mistakes.”

While the Irish celebrated Christmas early on Saturday, the Midshipmen ended yet another season with emptied guns and some awfully sore feet.

Sherman continued from page 1

14th, when the Irish take the field to face the Purdue Boilermakers, things will be different.

The differences may not be that major yet, but any change to a monument such as Notre Dame Stadium is highly significant. Just a quick glance at the field would tell you why.

That paintbrushed logo, the #1/#2 gem and the #1/#2

On the other end of the spectrum though, games like the "PTagon State game and the #1/#2 showdown against Florida State in 1993 are sure to go down in the annals of Irish football as classics.

Unfortunately, the only reason this game will join them is because of the circumstances and the fans, the players, and the Stadium deserved better.

Something like a 38-36 shootout against Southern Cal would have been fitting. This was not. Even 35-17 would have been acceptable. The Trojans, but it wasn’t meant to be. As we have learned very well in recent years, even the world or Irish football isn’t perfect. But don’t blame the Irish, they tried their best to keep it close.

They’ve had a knack for that over the past four years. In some respects, it’s been a positive. They added a few more memories to the memories have almost come to define the class of 1996. If Irish fans look back on things ten years from now, many of the most memorable games will be among the 24 home games of these last four seasons, whether they like it or not.

The 1993 Stanford comeback, the 1993 Boston College epic and the 1994 Michigan clash may very well not be pleasant memories, but they were special nonetheless.

In fact, memorable games have almost come to define the class of 1996. If Irish fans look back on things ten years from now, many of the most memorable games will be among the 24 home games of these last four seasons, whether they like it or not.

The 1993 Stanford comeback, the 1993 Boston College epic and the 1994 Michigan clash may very well not be pleasant memories, but they were special nonetheless.

In some respects, it’s been a positive. While the Irish celebrated Christmas early on Saturday, the Midshipmen ended yet another season with emptied guns and some awfully sore feet.
Irish wide receiver Charlie Stafford finished his career at Notre Dame Stadium with his third, and most spectacular reception of the year.

Lyron Cobbins is brought down following his fourth interception in three weeks (above). Cobbins also contributed 10 tackles, including this hit on Navy quarterback Ben Fay (below). Cobbins now has made 102 stops on the season.

Autry Denson paced the Irish rushing attack with 116 yards on only 16 carries, including a 24-yard touchdown scamper.

Notre Dame 35
Navy 17

Notre Dame Stadium
November 4, 1995

GAME NOTES

By MIKE NORBUT
Sports Editor

Derrick Mayes' eyes were misty after Saturday's game. And why not? It was his final game in Notre Dame Stadium. Irish coach Lou Holtz continuously told his seniors all week to not let their tears get in the way of blocking, tackling and catching the football. Mayes was a perfect example of the doctrine.

He shared a tear with the crowd and his family at Friday night's pep rally. But the tears were absent during his four-catch, 81-yard, two-touchdown performance against Navy Saturday.

"We tried to keep it as if it was another game," he said. "We all just knew what we had to do."

At least on the field, it was business as usual. Mayes especially knew his job description when quarterback Ron Powlus went down with a fractured humerus and Tom Krug had to come in to direct the offense.

"I encouraged (Tom Krug) every play," he said. "I let him know that in distress, I'm always there if he needs me."

Krug took the senior's advice, hitting him on two touchdowns passes in the second half that made the difference in Notre Dame's 35-17 victory.

Once the clock wound down, however, his eyes welled up, as he once again shared a tear, this time with the Notre Dame students.

Any regrets about staying for a senior year?

"Not at all," he said. "In the good times or the bad."

Fond Farewell: It wasn't just the seniors that were playing in their final game at Notre Dame Stadium. The stadium as we know it, at least. "It was our seniors' last game in the stadium," sophomore Allen Rossman said. "It was pretty much everybody's last game in the stadium as it is."

Underclassmen will be seeing a facility in flux next year, as plans to add on to the 66,075-fan seating frame will begin Monday.

The construction plans are set to be finished before the 1997 football season begins.

It's kind of ironic that the last game to be played in the old stadium was the women's interhall championship-Pangborn vs. Lyons.

Pleading the Fifth: The realization that hit Dusty Ziegler like a ton of bricks during the game seemed like a distant memory afterward.

"If we were to lose this game, it definitely would have been a reason to come back," Ziegler said. "Now, going pro is definitely an option for me," Ziegler said.

The senior offensive guard, who had been contemplating returning for a fifth year, didn't seem to concerned about the future, at least until this one is finished.

Seniors that could possibly be accepted for a fifth year are defensive tackle Renaldo Wynn, tight end Pete Chryplewicz, offensive guard Jeremy Akers, among others.

Greetings: Former Notre Dame head coach Gerry Faust made a guest appearance in the press box Saturday, slapping the back of any passer-by that was within an arm's length.

The present coach of Akron brought his son, Gerry, with him to visit with familiar Notre Dame executives and members of the media.
Role-playing demons lurk in the dorms and dungeons of Notre Dame

By SARAH CORSON

Dips echo as they fall from the dank, slimy dungeon walls as your breath quickens in time with your pulse. You know you are among the few who know the secret; something, some unutterable evil that could not be stopped by mere mortals. Your arm, which immediately brandishes a sword, is a testament to your resolve. No one dares to disturb the inky corridor. Kalslkrk, the notoriously gluttonous dragon of this dungeon, watches you and more seconds remain for your defense. All your force and strength streams to your sword, which immediately brandishes your glimmering sword.

Scattered through the basement is an abandoned weekday buildings, such occult games transpire during the dark and early hours of the weekends here at Notre Dame. The Legender’s League on campus is a sort of official university club of role-players, or gamers, and has been since the early ’90s. The club’s president, junior engineer major Rody Snyder, quoted their membership at forty, saying that each night they draw an average of five players. According to him, the Legender’s League only meets twice a year—to cough up the two dollar due and sign up for games. As President, Snyder is a dragon of this club, beside tracks a small gamebook library, and organizes the occasional tournament. "The yearly due-pittance gathering is supposed to maintain the library, but with the club’s meager balance, one book is a tall order," laughed senior gardener.

Gaming, he added, can be an expensive venture, considering that handbooks can range from $10 to $25. Prospective gamers can select “Star Wars,” “Dungeons and Dragons,” (D&D)—the four games currently being played on campus. In each game, a GameMaster organizes the movement of characters, invents settings, plot, and NPC (Non-player character) personalities. Participants in “Star Wars” can slip into the guise of a brawny Ewok warrior, a clanky Protocol Droid, or even a failed Jedi lusht. However, playing the main characters is strictly forbidden as death continuously threatens the characters. If Luke or Leia croaked, the future would be seriously bungled up.

"For historians or fantasists, role-playing is fun. It is a real escape from the mundane affairs of life," stated Szczepaniak-Gillece. "As with any imaginative, occult endeavor, some offended, concerned voices have gurgled up against the "witchcraft, Satanism, and overall corruption" of role-playing. Generally these complaints issue from Christian fundamentalists, but the Legender’s League has never had run-ins with Notre Dame’s Catholic administration, according to Snyder. He further affirmed that he has never known personally of anyone getting addicted to role-playing, though he conceded the possibility exists.

Most gamers tend to be males between 18-25, but women are slowly showing more interest. Szczepaniak-Gillece said, "When I started role-playing as a sophomore, I was the only girl at the Legender’s League meetings. I expected an attitude, but I got accepted and welcomed. It was real cool." Since her arrival, other women such as Medieval Club President Corrina Weber have joined.

Beyond the realm of pure fantasy, which focuses on story-telling and imaginative re-enactment, lie numerous historical societies for re-enactment. The Society for Creative Anachronism (medieval gurus), the Civil War Re-Enactors (tirelessly precise reenactors), and the avant-garde Regency people (late-19th-century-Franco-chefs) stand out as popular, historical improv theater.

For historians or fantasists, role-play extends the rare opportunity to become what one could not otherwise. Snyder perfectly synthesized the joy of gaming, "It is bizarre and hysterical to get creative people together and play off each other’s ludicrous ideas."

---

Army of Games, Countless Fantasies...

Futuristic
- Star Wars
- Star Trek
- Cyberpunk
- Paranoia
- Underground
- Shadowrun

War / Historical
- G.U.R.P.
- War Hammer
- Boot Hill
- Top Secret

Dungeons & Dragons
- Dragon Lance
- Spell Jamer
- Ravenloft

Present Day
- Wraith
- Live Action Vampire

Real History
- Society of Creative Anachronism
- Civil War
- Regency

Arms of Games

- Reinvent the movie within context
- Reinvent the show or movie within context
- Street-tough, cyber.detected
- Double-crosse
- Do-yourself political satire
- Battling gnomes and grolocks with uzis and prosthetic bodyparts

General Universal Role Playing. Your guess...
- Primitive armies swarms of combat figurines
- Old west shoot-em-up

Seductive, urbane 1920’s (feminist oriented)
- Transylvania-inspired horror/goth - beware!

Act out trevals of ghosts, faries, werewolves and vampires
- Hopefully not as seducitious as Alton Bandaras in "Interview"

- Make your own chain mail and wear it sword fighting
- Wear head to toe wood amidst cannon-fodder
- Prance around gay Paine 1880’s style

---

Associations

- Reenactment.
- Role-playing games.

---

Beginner Role Playing Games (BRPG) helps put on GenCon, where gamers swap handbooks, comic books, baseball cards, and colorful character exploits. In addition, GenCon yearly organizes gaming conventions. The Griffin-a fantasy book/Comic store next to LaSalle Grille—serves local gamers.

As with any imaginative, occult endeavor, some offended, concerned voices have gurgled up against the "witchcraft, Satanism, and overall corruption" of role-playing. Generally these complaints issue from Christian fundamentalists, but the Legender’s League has never had run-ins with Notre Dame’s Catholic administration, according to Snyder. He further affirmed that he has never known personally of anyone getting addicted to role-playing, though he conceded the possibility exists.

Most gamers tend to be males between 18-25, but women are slowly showing more interest. Szczepaniak-Gillece said, "When I started role-playing as a sophomore, I was the only girl at the Legender’s League meetings. I expected an attitude, but I got accepted and welcomed. It was real cool." Since her arrival, other women such as Medieval Club President Corrina Weber have joined.

Beyond the realm of pure fantasy, which focuses on story-telling and imaginative re-enactment, lie numerous historical societies for re-enactment. The Society for Creative Anachronism (medieval gurus), the Civil War Re-Enactors (tirelessly precise reenactors), and the avant-garde Regency people (late-19th-century-Franco-chefs) stand out as popular, historical improv theater.

For historians or fantasists, role-play extends the rare opportunity to become what one could not otherwise. Snyder perfectly synthesized the joy of gaming, "It is bizarre and hysterical to get creative people together and play off each other’s ridiculous ideas."

---

Monday, November 6, 1995
By SCOTT BOZIK
Accent Movie Critic.

 thời

Synopsis: Watch out Sicily, there is a new geographic region looking to establish itself on the international map of crime. Please extend a hearty cinema welcome to the Russian mob, and in the same breath, prepare yourselves for yet another movie about saucy female assassins. "Fair Game," the theatrical debut of our generation's Bogart and Garbo, is a visual spectacle confined to the narrow parameters of the incessant chase. Cindy Crawford and William Baldwin lead the audience through a relentless chase.

Jennifer dreamed of her demise at the hands of a ticket that in doing so you'll save this movie by themselves. In the end, "Fair Game" just doesn't satisfy Daddy's cinematic appetite and I am quite sure that this film is doomed to forever dolled down and collect dust on the shelves of video stores for years to come. Hollywood has once again decided that a pair of pretty faces is all that is required to produce a decent movie.

Hollywood has once again decided that a pair of pretty faces is all that is required to produce a decent movie.

By CHRISTINA FITSCAR and ERIN KELSEY
"Days of Our Lives" Correspondent.

A rough week for Jennifer.

Hello "Days" fans. We're back with the week's newest exciting news from Salem. The biggest news has to deal with Jack, Jennifer, and Peter. Stefano and Sarah back to Aremid in Peter's private jet. Jack watches a video of the "lady-in-white" supposedly crying to Hope. She verified that the sound on the video was definitely someone crying.

Jack, whose hopes were up, went to Army, the producer of his and Jennifer's show, and got sent to send him to Aremid to cover Peter and Jenn's wedding. With an excess in hand, Jack went to Aremid. While taking a nap, Jennifer dreamed of her demise at the hands of Jack's "lady-in-white." When she woke up, the "lady-in-white" actually choking him, she screamed and Peter, Sarah, and Jack came running.

Even after Jennifer showed Peter the monitor this had her heart, Peter attempted to dismiss this all as a dream. However, the next day, in Aremid that serves food, the Parrot man overheard Jack and Jenn speaking of the dream. He predicted that someone would die. Sarah came running in to see what was happening. The "lady-in-white" chased him. Jack, Peter, and Jenn went to look for this mysterious figure. Unfortunately, there is no middle ground in a brisk pat on their backs for these elements of "Fair Game" that are commonly associated with a good action or suspense movie, these shockingly infrequent appearances of genuine quality are too few and far between.

Hollywood has once again decided that a pair of pretty faces is all that is required to produce a decent movie.

Of course, Jenn disappeared as the Parrot man exclaimed, "And now the words I have you dread. Jennifer is dead." Everyone went ballistic as they looked for her. Taking Jennifer as odd as all of the "lady-in-white"s activities—earlier this week she was walking around drawing a picture of a tombstone and holding a picture of Jack, Jenn, and Abby up to it. (When will the "lady-in-white" finally end?) As Jenn swooned, the "lady-in-white" held a rock up to her head. Peter and Sarah spent trying to convince Kristen of Tony's "evil" plans to save her life. Laura and doctor-know-all Mike conceived ideas to go into the "lady-in-white" house. Unfortunately, Laura insisted on discussing old memories with Mike. Jack and Tony discussed cutting the "lady-in-white" out of the show. Speaking of gross sex, John and Kristen almost consummated their relationship. Fortunately, but not having the worst thing that John encountered this past week. In fact, far from the best. The majority of his week was spent trying to convince Kristen of Tony's "evil" plans and his involvement in Father Franco's death. (At this point we'd like to add a moment to reflect on Father Franco's brief life on the show and the good that he brought to Salem). What John doesn't know is that Tony is after him and is getting closer and closer to activating his plan. Luckily, Stefano found a pen on the floor near Tony's desk. He raced back for the attack, except that this time around it just isn't quite as poignant or plausible. While the father and son DîBër clan were basking over Stefano's new desire not to record more of the show, Stefano called John to ask about Belle. When John found out about Tony's attack, he once again flew into a rampage threatening to come over and get her. But "she-rock" Kristen got in the way by refusing to let John go. This was about the twentieth time this week between John and Marlena over Stefano, and even Marlena is beginning to question her motives to wanting Stefano to stay in her apartment. Could it be love?
Lemieux regains scoring touch

By KEN RAPPORT

If the NHL season has confirmed anything so far, it's just how much the New Jersey Devils tope as Stanley Cup favorites. How easy it will be for Mario Lemieux to regain his scoring title.

There were evident as the league completed its first month this weekend with Lemieux, last year's top scoring in a star-studded scoring binge and the Devils trying to get themselves out of an early-season slump: "It's been frustrating because we know how well he can hit it and it puts even more pressure on you," Neal Broten said.

After the Devils halted a four-game winless streak Saturday night with a 4-2 victory over the Los Angeles Kings, the defending Stanley Cup champions had been looking like anything but champions of late. But Saturday assured them a tie before Saturday night. Their slide had stopped considered in the Atlantic Division standings, where they suddenly found themselves in last place.

Two of the teams ahead of the Devils this past season — the Florida Panthers and Washington Capitals, who met in the first round during the defending champions defeated Philadelphia. Equally surprising was the play of the Scott Mellanby, who was among the league leaders in goal-scoring.

Lemieux had been playing with that same confidence that we played with at the end of last year's season," said Broten, whose team won the Presidents' Trophy and the Stanley Cup finals last season. "We started thinking it was going to be easy. Then we stopped working hard after that. You think we got insufficient.

Meanwhile, consistently is something that Mario the Devils have been looking worry about so far last year. Lemieux had a seven-point game last Tuesday against defending division champs the Philadelphia Flyers 7-4. That gave him 12 goals and 19 assists for a league-leading 31 points in only nine games. Not bad for someone who is making a comeback after sitting out for a year health issues. Lemieux admitted that full strength.

But Lemieux had a four-scoring champion, has been held out of some games this season to conserve his strength for the play Friday night in a 3-3 tie against the Flyers. "It's hard to watch on television, but I think it was the dumbest thing they could done Lamucco.

Lemieux isn't the only ex-Florida Panthers that was well in the first month. The Octavio, the worst team in the NHL for three straight years, are off to their best start ever. They've already been bunched with Pittsburgh, Montreal and Hartford in the tough Atlantic Division race.

The Senators' victories were the key for the nine points they managed in last season's lockout-shortened season and only one point from their next time best of 14 during the 1993-94 season.

The Canadiens were the first team this season to fire their coach, when Jacques Demers was dismissed, along with general manager Serge Savard. The reason was a 0-5 start by the Canadians.

But they quickly turned things around under coach Mario Tremblay, going on an six-game winning streak to move into the thick of the Northeast race behind the play of unheralded Brian Savage. Like the surprising Mellon in Florida, Savage was among the top goal scorers in the NHL and leads the league in the goal-scoring race.

The Calgary Flames didn't have a single victory as well as the Canadiens firing their general manager Doug Riseborough, after 1-8-3 start. The San Jose Sharks had the second worst team in the NHL and neither of the last team to win a game this season. The Sharks struggled St. Louis Blues 7-3 Saturday night.

The Senators acquired Lemieux's ex-wife for a power-play goal at 8:10. He was the ex-wife of the captain from the edge of a career taken on Monday by Mario Lemieux.

The Senators acquired Lemieux's ex-wife for a power-play goal at 8:10. He was the ex-wife of the captain from the edge of a career taken on Monday by Mario Lemieux.

That gave him 12 goals and 19 assists for a league-leading 31 points in only nine games. Not bad for someone who is making a comeback after sitting out for a year health issues. Lemieux admitted that full strength.

But Lemieux had a four-scoring champion, has been held out of some games this season to conserve his strength for the play Friday night in a 3-3 tie against the Flyers. "It's hard to watch on television, but I think it was the dumbest thing they could done Lamucco.

Lemieux isn't the only ex-Florida Panthers that was well in the first month. The Octavio, the worst team in the NHL for three straight years, are off to their best start ever. They've already been bunched with Pittsburgh, Montreal and Hartford in the tough Atlantic Division race.

The Senators' victories were the key for the nine points they managed in last season's lockout-shortened season and only one point from their next time best of 14 during the 1993-94 season.

The Canadiens were the first team this season to fire their coach, when Jacques Demers was dismissed, along with general manager Serge Savard. The reason was a 0-5 start by the Canadians.

But they quickly turned things around under coach Mario Tremblay, going on an six-game winning streak to move into the thick of the Northeast race behind the play of unheralded Brian Savage. Like the surprising Mellon in Florida, Savage was among the top goal scorers in the NHL and leads the league in the goal-scoring race.

The Calgary Flames didn't have a single victory as well as the Canadiens firing their general manager Doug Riseborough, after 1-8-3 start. The San Jose Sharks had the second worst team in the NHL and neither of the last team to win a game this season. The Sharks struggled St. Louis Blues 7-3 Saturday night.
Soccer
continued from page 20

The win over the No. 4 Huskies also means that Notre Dame will have an even stronger chance of hosting the regional NCAA tournament games at Alumni Field. For now, the Irish will have next week off with a bye they have locked up with a 17-2-2 record, designating them as one of the top eight teams in the nation. Those tournament pairings will be announced this morning.

In addition, the Big East tournament was only the latest in an increasingly longer line of solid performances. Against the Huskies, the Irish managed to get out in front first and never look back. Back in October when Connecticut dealt Notre Dame its first loss off the year, the Irish valiantly battled back from a slow start and forced the game to overtime. Yesterday, that was not the case.

On Saturday, a similar case was made when Van Laecke's goal off a corner kick from midfielder Holly Manthei came with under ten minutes left in the first half. The Irish proceeded to score two more in the second half on goals from Gerardo and Manthei. Midfielder Cindy Daws registered an assist on Gerardo's goal.

That triumvirate of Daws, Manthei and Gerardo also earned Big East post-season laurels as they were named to the first team. Gerardo also garnered rookie of the year honors after leading the Irish offense on Sunday. With an increasingly longer line of success, Notre Dame now has a chance to steal a national title.

Attention Juniors!!
Undergraduate Grants
Available for Summer Research on Topics Dealing with International Studies

Informational Meeting
Monday, November 6, 1995
4:15 p.m.
DeBartolo 120

Sponsored by the Kellogg Institute for International Studies
216 Hesburgh Center
Phone: 631-6080

---

Graf allegedly abused

Associated Press

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) - Steffi Graf's father, who is jailed on allegations of evading taxes on the tennis champion's earnings, allegedly beat and kicked her during training, Der Spiegel magazine said Sunday.

Quoting a former close associate of the Graf family, Horst Schmidt, Spiegel said the 57-year-old Peter Graf "treated her like a dog" when they were once at a training camp in Spain.

In one incident, Spiegel quoted Schmidt as saying Graf kicked his daughter when she dropped something and was kneeling down to pick it up. Spiegel said that Schmidt had told his story to tax fraud investigators Aug. 21, almost two weeks after Graf was arrested on the grounds that he was likely to flee prosecution.

Spiegel said that before Schmidt saw the kick, he had not taken Peter Graf seriously when the father would come down from the hotel room and say, "I've just now snacked her."

The magazine quoted Schmidt as saying that when he saw the kick, he warned Peter Graf, "You'll only do that one time." Schmidt was quoted as saying he never again witnessed Graf striking his daughter.

Efforts were unsuccessful to reach Steffi Graf, who is in New York where she has an apartment and where she will play in the WTA Tour Championships beginning Nov. 13.

According to Spiegel, Schmidt told investigators he did not break off his connection with the Graf family because he wanted to protect the tennis player.

---

AIM HIGH

GO FAR IN THE AIR FORCE.

Learn how far the Air Force Can take you. If you're a college graduate, you may qualify for Air Force Officer Training School. After completing Officer Training School, you can become a commissioned Air Force officer with:
• great starting pay
• medical and dental care
• 30 days vacation with pay per year
• management opportunities

Go far in a career as an Air Force officer. Call: AIR FORCE OPPORTUNITIES
TOLL FREE 1-800-423-USAF

---

The E & J Gallo Winery

Management Development Program

An accelerated program designed to provide in-depth knowledge of sales and marketing management. Participants achieve assignments in areas such as:
• Field Marketing Management - (Winery field consultants responsible for developing sales and marketing strategies)
• National Account Management - (Senior sales specialists responsible for maximizing the sales of Winery products through national retail chains)
• Sales Management & General Management - (Management professionals responsible for the overall operation of distributor sales organizations)

...just to name a few

Please accept our invitation to attend an informational presentation. We will further explain the Management Development Program and answer any questions you may have.

The presentation details:
Date: November 7, 1995
Time: 6:30 pm
Location: Morris Inn, Notre Dame Room
Attire: Casual

All majors welcome
Sponsored by The Notre Dame Marketing Club
NBA

Riley, Mourning make immediate impact in Miami

By STEVEN WINE
Associated Press

MIA-MI

The fanfare that accompanied Alonzo Mourning’s arrival in Miami failed to reach the sandwich shop where he had lunch prior to his first game with the Heat.

“A couple of people asked me if I played basketball,” Mourning said with a smile. “I said, ‘Sometimes.’”

Not everyone in Miami has heat fever, but it’s spreading. A capacity crowd of 15,200 cheered as Mourning and coach Pat Riley made successful debuts Saturday night with the Heat, who beat Cleveland 85-71.

The final 2,000 tickets were sold after Riley swung a six-player trade Friday to acquire Mourning from the Charlotte Hornets. The new coach and new center received standing ovations when introduced before the game.

“These nights just make you feel alive,” Riley said. Mourning played 33 minutes even though he knew only a couple of people asked me.

“They are going to be a good team with Mourning in there,” Cavaliers forward Tyrone Hill said. “They’re a whole lot tougher.”

Credit Riley too. He used aggressive, in-your-face defense to make the New York Knicks title contenders, and it looks as though Miami will play the same way.

Heat rookie Sasha Danilovic traded blows with Cleveland’s Chris Mills in the fourth quarter, and both were ejected. Danilovic needed 12 stitches in his face and mouth but made a point: The Heat (32-50 last season) no longer will be shoved around.

“The key to our success is going to be defense,” Mourning said. “We have enough young legs and young bodies that we should be able to move well so we can double-team and trap.

As for offense, Mourning figures he’ll provide a decoy. He had only one assist against the Cavaliers, but he plans to draw a crowd of defenders, then feed the ball to Danilovic, Billy Owens and Kevin Willis.

“The guys are going to get a lot of layups coming down the middle,” Mourning said. “If we take our time, we’ll be playing H-O-R-S-E because of all the double- and triple-teams.”

The next game is Wednesday against Houston and Hasheem Olajuwon, giving Mourning three days to become accustomed with Riley’s thick playbook.

Mourning said he has learned enough about the Heat to know where this season is headed.

“To the playoffs, no questions,” he said. “We’re going to be a team to be reckoned with.”

Irish
continued from page 20

“We are looking to balance the offense better,” Brown said. “At the beginning of the season, most of our outs went to the outside, but now we are mixing it up better.”

And that seemed to be the game plan. Lee led the team with 15 kills, but it was Jenny Birkner coming up big throughout the match. Birkner hit the game winner in the third to clinch the victory for the Irish.

The Irish improved their Big East record to 9-0 and their overall record to 23-5. Notre Dame plays number 2 Nebraska on Tuesday night in Nebraska.
Raiders prove they are among elite, 49ers continue slide

By JOE KAY
Associated Press

CINCINNATI
The Oakland Raiders weren't brilliant or flashy, just brutally effective.

The Raiders' punishing defense kept the Cincinnati Bengals out of the end zone until the closing seconds and Harvey Williams rushed for 134 yards and a touchdown Sunday as Oakland ground out a 20-17 victory. Oakland (7-2) got the game in hand early by running over Cincinnati's front line, and stayed ahead by disrupting the NFL's top-ranked passing attack.

Jeff Blake, operating behind an injury-ravaged front line, was sacked four times and completed 16 of 31 for a low 159 yards. Pat Swilling had three of the Raiders' sacks and Terry McDaniel intercepted Blake on consecutive passes in the second quarter.

Blake's 4-yard pass to Carl Pickens with 35 seconds left and his option run on the 2-point conversion moved Cincinnati (3-6) within a field goal, but Derrick Fenner recovered the onside kick to end it. Jeff Hostetler, recovered from a throat injury suffered two weeks ago, completed 17 of 29 for 178 yards and spent most of the afternoon handing off. The Raiders came out determined to run against a defense missing its leading tackler, middle linebacker Steve Tave.

Run they did. Williams had 73 on 13 carries in the first half alone — a bulky 5.6-yard average. He carried five times for 31 yards in a 57-yard drive capped by is 2-yard touchdown run up the middle late in the first quarter. The Raiders took control a few minutes later when Rob Holmberg deflected Lee Johnson's punt, which rolled 17 yards to the Bengals' 43. Two plays later, cornerback Carey Sawyer stepped in front of a pass for Tim Brown but failed to make the interception. Brown took the throw kneehigh, hobbled it, headed upfield, sidestepped safety Darryl Williams and went 34 yards untouched for a 14-0 lead.

Jeff Jaeger added a 37-yard field goal as time ran out in the half, and essentially clinched it with a 46-yarder with 2:46 remaining. The Raiders simply ran the ball for most of the second half to protect their lead. Oakland had worried about how its banged-up secondary would fare against Blake's deep passing. Joe King made his first start for the Raiders in place of injured free safety Eddie Anderson, and safety Derek Hoskins and cornerbacks Albert Lewis and James Trapp were limited by injuries.

Panthers 13, 49ers 7

SAN FRANCISCO
Call it what you want — shocking, stunning, inconceivable — but you'd better believe it. Carolina became the first expansion club in its inaugural season to win four games and defeat a defending Super Bowl champion, downing the San Francisco 49ers, 13-7 Sunday.

In the end, the 49ers were without their top two quarterbacks and committed five turnovers. Three occurred ininside the Carolina 10, including Tim McKyer's 96-yard interception return for a touchdown. Elvis Grbac went down with an apparent knee injury late in the fourth quarter, and 49ers were left with third-stringer Cary Conklin leading them on a last-ditch drive that fell far short.

Shut down by Carolina's defense and their own mistakes for three quarters, the 49ers finally scored on Derek Loville's 1-yard run with 13:43 remaining.
Senior Bill Lanza had 3 assists in the Irish’s 4-1 victory over Big East rival Villanova.

Perhaps this weekend can be seen as a microcosm of the Irish’s season. It had all the elements that went into this season, including an inconsistent offense and defensive ineptitude on the road, along with a brilliant performance from senior Bill Lanza.

After playing a solid game at Alumni Field on Friday night in securing a 4-1 victory over Big East rival Villanova, as well as head coach Mike Berteicelli’s 250th career win, the Irish dropped a 3-0 game to 49 Wisconsin in front of 517 hearty Cheeseheads.

With their season-ending shutout at the hands of the Badgers, the Irish finished with a 1-7 mark on the road, which looks very ugly when compared with their 9-3 mark at home. The Irish were shut out just five times this season, with four of those shutouts coming away from home.

To their credit, the Irish made the most of their last two games, which were played with the knowledge that there would be no Big East tournament in their immediate future.

On a brutally cold night, the Irish used four second half goals to dash Villanova’s own tournament hopes, putting on a clinic in ball control in the process.

The oft-injured but very determined Bill Lanza recorded three assists in the match, and four different Irish players registered goals as the Irish outshot the Wildcats by an 18-12 margin.

“This was a great win for us,” commented Chris Mathis, who scored the Irish’s first goal. “We wanted to win our last Big East game, and we wanted to win for coach (Berteicelli).”

The win would be the final victory of the season for the Irish, and the 9 victories on the season enabled Berticelli to record number 250 in his illustrious career. The historic win came in Berticelli’s sixth season at Notre Dame.

“I was proud with the way our team played this evening,” said an emotional Berticelli following the game. “We showed a lot of class and played with a great deal of intensity and heart.”

While they were able to play the role of spoiler against the upset-minded Wildcats on Friday night, the Irish couldn’t manage to pull off an upset against the mighty Badgers, who outshot the Irish by a lopsided 18-6 margin.

The Badgers used a pair of first half goals from senior Bryan Grimm to help secure a 3-0 win over the outmanned Irish squad, who have been held scoreless in their last three games away from the friendly confines of Alumni Field.
Icers show improvement but still fall short to Western Michigan

By MIKE DAY
Sports Writer

One step forward. One step backward.
The Western Michigan hockey team expected a cake walk this weekend. After all, they were 4-2 and the CCHA's highest scoring team, while Notre Dame ranked last in the league in defense and had lost four consecutive games.

Well, they were only half right. On Friday night at the Joyce Center, the Irish gave the Broncos everything they could handle, stretching the CCHA power to the limit like they never imagined. Despite a strong effort, the Irish lost the battle and the game 3-2, and the disappointment carried over to a 6-2 loss on Saturday night.

After giving up 26 goals in their previous four games, the Irish entered Friday night's contest in search of consistency at the defensive end. They responded with a solid performance, giving up just three goals to a squad that averaged 6.17 per contest.

"While we did have some mental breakdowns, there is no question that we competed much better against a good team," said Irish head coach Dave Poulin. "There is no comparison between the way we played against them and Boston College last weekend."

After falling behind 1-0 late in the second period, freshman Brian Urick responded the way he has all season. The team's leader in goals and overall points sailed the puck past Bronco goaltender Marc Magliarditi to knot the game at one with 1:32 left in the period.

"He (Urick) is playing really well for us at a position where we need production," said Poulin. "We knew that he was a talented player coming in, but he has come on for us even quicker than we imagined."

The Broncos gained a 2-1 advantage when center Jamal Mayers found the Irish net with just two seconds remaining in the period. After Western Michigan right wing Shawn Zimmerman extended the advantage to 3-1 early in the third period, the Irish cut the lead in half with just 1:13 remaining in the game.

Not to be outdone by Urick, freshmen Aniket Dhadphale and Craig Hagkull teamed up to give Notre Dame a chance for victory. Dhadphale received a pass from Hagkull in front of the net and powered the puck past Magliarditi for his third goal of the season.

"The freshmen as a whole have been great for us this season," said captain Brett Bruininks. "They have worked hard in practice from the first day, and that has translated into some success so far this season."

The Broncos held on to win the game 3-2 and seemed to build on the success Saturday night back at home. They belted to an early 4-0 lead and never looked back.

The Irish broke into the scoring column in the second period when junior right wing Tim Harberta snapped a scoring drought with his second goal of the season. Senior center Jamie Ling and sophomore defenseman Justin Thiel each tallied an assist on the play.

After WMU extended their lead to 5-1, Irish right wing Jamie Morshead responded with his second goal of the year off a pass from center Jay Matushak. The score cut the lead to 5-2, but the Broncos and Millar closed the door on the Irish with a late goal to secure the 6-2 victory.

"We played probably our best game of the season on Friday, so it was disappointing to lose the way we did after that," said Bruininks. "But we'll just keep on working and be patient, and eventually we'll get to the point where we can put together back to back good games."

With a 1-7 record, the Irish can't afford to be too patient.

Freshman Brian Urick is making an immediate impact, scoring a goal in a 3-2 loss to Western Michigan.
A sagittarius believe in "The F.A.O. Kuwaiti export"

"The Preowned Gab"

"Like a piper of in a horseback Colorado Queen of-- Springs"

"Boar's abode"

"Bolivian range"

"Boar's abode"

"Carbon 14 and others"

"On which a getter goes"

"From Muskegrove"

"Egg on"

"Nintendo real"

"Nine inches"

"Vasto"

"Star Trek" role

"C.I.A. formerly Garden, e.g.

"Get answers to any three clues

by touch-tone phone: 1-900-420-5666 (75¢ each minute)."

\[ \text{ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE} \]

\[ \text{DADDY'S OLD CARS} \]

\[ \text{YOUR HOROSCOPE} \]

\[ \text{FOUR FOOD GROUPS OF THE APOCALYPSE} \]

\[ \text{BRAIN TALK} \]

\[ \text{BIL WATTSERSON} \]

\[ \text{SCOTT ADAMS} \]

\[ \text{WWE HAVING AN ISO 19000 AUDIT THIS WEEK} \]

\[ \text{MUSIC} \]

\[ \text{THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1995} \]

\[ \text{DELBERT} \]

\[ \text{ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE} \]

\[ \text{DADDY'S OLD CARS} \]

\[ \text{YOUR HOROSCOPE} \]

\[ \text{FOUR FOOD GROUPS OF THE APOCALYPSE} \]

\[ \text{BRAIN TALK} \]

\[ \text{BIL WATTSERSON} \]

\[ \text{SCOTT ADAMS} \]

\[ \text{WWE HAVING AN ISO 19000 AUDIT THIS WEEK} \]

\[ \text{MUSIC} \]

\[ \text{THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1995} \]

\[ \text{DELBERT} \]

\[ \text{ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE} \]

\[ \text{DADDY'S OLD CARS} \]

\[ \text{YOUR HOROSCOPE} \]

\[ \text{FOUR FOOD GROUPS OF THE APOCALYPSE} \]

\[ \text{BRAIN TALK} \]

\[ \text{BIL WATTSERSON} \]

\[ \text{SCOTT ADAMS} \]

\[ \text{WWE HAVING AN ISO 19000 AUDIT THIS WEEK} \]

\[ \text{MUSIC} \]

\[ \text{THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1995} \]

\[ \text{DELBERT} \]

\[ \text{ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE} \]

\[ \text{DADDY'S OLD CARS} \]

\[ \text{YOUR HOROSCOPE} \]

\[ \text{FOUR FOOD GROUPS OF THE APOCALYPSE} \]

\[ \text{BRAIN TALK} \]

\[ \text{BIL WATTSERSON} \]

\[ \text{SCOTT ADAMS} \]

\[ \text{WWE HAVING AN ISO 19000 AUDIT THIS WEEK} \]

\[ \text{MUSIC} \]

\[ \text{THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1995} \]

\[ \text{DELBERT} \]

\[ \text{ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE} \]

\[ \text{DADDY'S OLD CARS} \]

\[ \text{YOUR HOROSCOPE} \]

\[ \text{FOUR FOOD GROUPS OF THE APOCALYPSE} \]

\[ \text{BRAIN TALK} \]

\[ \text{BIL WATTSERSON} \]

\[ \text{SCOTT ADAMS} \]

\[ \text{WWE HAVING AN ISO 19000 AUDIT THIS WEEK} \]

\[ \text{MUSIC} \]

\[ \text{THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1995} \]

\[ \text{DELBERT} \]

\[ \text{ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE} \]

\[ \text{DADDY'S OLD CARS} \]

\[ \text{YOUR HOROSCOPE} \]

\[ \text{FOUR FOOD GROUPS OF THE APOCALYPSE} \]

\[ \text{BRAIN TALK} \]

\[ \text{BIL WATTSERSON} \]

\[ \text{SCOTT ADAMS} \]

\[ \text{WWE HAVING AN ISO 19000 AUDIT THIS WEEK} \]

\[ \text{MUSIC} \]

\[ \text{THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1995} \]

\[ \text{DELBERT} \]

\[ \text{ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE} \]

\[ \text{DADDY'S OLD CARS} \]

\[ \text{YOUR HOROSCOPE} \]

\[ \text{FOUR FOOD GROUPS OF THE APOCALYPSE} \]

\[ \text{BRAIN TALK} \]

\[ \text{BIL WATTSERSON} \]

\[ \text{SCOTT ADAMS} \]

\[ \text{WWE HAVING AN ISO 19000 AUDIT THIS WEEK} \]

\[ \text{MUSIC} \]

\[ \text{THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1995} \]

\[ \text{DELBERT} \]

\[ \text{ANSWER TO PREVIOUS PUZZLE} \]

\[ \text{DADDY'S OLD CARS} \]

\[ \text{YOUR HOROSCOPE} \]

\[ \text{FOUR FOOD GROUPS OF THE APOCALYPSE} \]

\[ \text{BRAIN TALK} \]

\[ \text{BIL WATTSERSON} \]

\[ \text{SCOTT ADAMS} \]

\[ \text{WWE HAVING AN ISO 19000 AUDIT THIS WEEK} \]
Irish avenge early season loss to Connecticut to clinch Big East crown
By JOE VILLINSKI
Assistant Sports Editor

Lately, Amy Van Laecke has been there. Before, she was always there in the defensive backfield, doing the little things in a reserve role. Now, after a switch to the forward position, she's been there again. Still playing the same defense that earned her a starting spot, but with a new dimension. That dimension includes posing an offensive threat which Van Laecke proved to be a go-to weapon for Notre Dame this weekend as the Notre Dame women's soccer claimed its first Big East tournament with a 1-0 victory over regular season champion Connecticut.

Van Laecke was there to score the lone goal after freshman forward Monica Gerardo fired a shot from 20 yards out on the right side that UConn keeper Siobhan Harold saved but was unable to control. With the rebound out in front, Van Laecke rocketed a four yarder past Harold at the 17:08 mark in the first half.

In being there, Van Laecke also tallied the game winning goal against Rutgers on Saturday as the Irish prevailed 3-0. It only seemed appropriate that the Big East officials were then there to name the native of Granger, Indiana the Tournament's Most Outstanding Performer. For Van Laecke, the winning goal against Connecticut marked her eighth goal in nine games.

Irish goalie Jen Retola registered seven saves in the victory as Connecticut outshot Notre Dame 13-8, but could not solve the tenacious Irish defense or its goalie. Shutting out one of the quickest offenses among the collegiate ranks is only something the Irish can build on heading into the NCAA tournament.

Senior Ashley Scharff, junior Kate Fisher and sophomore Kate Sobrero anchor a defense that has now been responsible for 14 shutouts this season.

Irish continue to dominate
Prepare for match with top-ranked Cornhuskers
By MICHAEL THOMPSON
Sports Writer

It was raining kills Friday night as the Notre Dame volleyball team trounced the Red Storm of St. Johns University in the Joyce Center. From the onslaught the Red Storm seemed to be nothing but a mere drizzle, and the Irish came equipped with their rain gear.

As usual with Big East competition, it took the Irish only three games to finish off their opponent. The first game was a shut-out with the Irish winning 15-0. The second and third games were a little closer with victories of 15-6 and 15-4. The games, however, including the first one, were not as close as the scores suggest.

The match was highlighted by contributions from all the players on the team. Contributing heavily in the kill's department were Kristina Ervin and Angie Harris with 11 and 14, respectively. On the defensive side of the net, Jenny Birkner led the team with 13 digs, and Lindsay Treadwell threw down 6 shots leading the team in blocks.

Sunday afternoon brought with it a team from UConn that was ready for the Irish attack. The Huskies came determined to vie for the conference title, but one thing stood well in their way. With WNDU on hand for the event, the aura in the Joyce center was so thick, you almost needed a knife to cut through it. Notre Dame couldn't lose...and they didn't.

Led by the attack of Angie Harris, Jaimie Lee, and Jenny Birkner, the Irish were just too much for the Huskies. The first game was taken by the Irish by a score of 15-11. In the second and third, it was 15-8 and 15-5 as the Irish defense improved and the Huskies' offense tired.

Over the course of this weekend, the Irish looked back to form. "We've been working a lot on defense. I think that was really our downfall on full break," commented head coach Debbie Brown. And the defense was definitely present. The frustrated Huskies had serious trouble getting any shots through the combination of Jaimie Lee and Lindsay Treadwell at the net. Lee and Harris, the usual offensive threat, led the team defensively yesterday, recording 16 and 12 digs respectively, while Jen Briggs led all blockers with six put downs.

Irish in action

Football
- at Air Force
  - November 18, Time TBA

Volleyball
- at Nebraska
  - November 7, 7 p.m.
- at Illinois-Chicago
  - November 10, 7 p.m.

Women's Soccer
- at Calvin
  - November 11

Saint Mary's Swimming
- at Calvin
  - November 11

Men's Basketball
- vs. Australia National Team
  - November 9, 7:30 p.m.