Malloy: Future looks bright for ND programs

By GWENDOLYN NORGLE and Assistant News Editor

University President Father Edward Malloy addressed the Faculty Senate Wednesday night, and a number of issues topped his discussion.

Malloy responded to a number of questions concerning the progress of the Colloquy, the selection of the Provost, financial aid, staff shortages, and graduate education that were submitted to him by the Senate prior to the meeting.

In his opening remarks to this discussion, Malloy said, "There are reasons to be optimistic in looking toward our future." Although he pointed out a number of these reasons for optimism, Malloy described the lack of financial aid as a significant problem. "Financial aid looms very, very large to me," he said. "We hope to be able to build our financial aid resources. We have a dual strategy to continue as aggressively as we can to solicit funds."

Malloy mentioned tuition increases as another area of the main problems that the University must confront. "We have to try to reduce them as much as possible," he said.

Northwestern University, Malloy noted, has a lower tuition than Notre Dame, and it may serve as a role model for Notre Dame because it is run in a "healthy" way. "If we're going to be healthy and competitive, we have to struggle to bring our tuition down as much as possible," he said, adding that this will be "a daunting task."

According to Malloy, the fundraising campaign, which may help to lessen increases in tuition, is "well under way" and will be announced in the Spring of 1997.

Not just dry bones

Research program allows ND student to spend summer in Israel studying the remains of a Byzantine culture

By DAVE PREISSLER

Jenny Richtsmeier, a biology/anthropology major, got to see a lot of history this past summer as she traveled to Israel with Susan Sheridan, assistant professor of anthropology, to study the remains of an ancient group of Byzantine monks. Their mission: to construct a biocultural profile of the former inhabitants.

The two researchers wanted to examine the health of this fifth-century population, looking for answers to many questions: Who lived there? Did they eat well? Were they healthy?

They found that 97 percent of the bones they unearthed were male with an unusually high quantity of men being children.

"We started pulling the remains out, and we were just enormous! They weren't tall. They were just eating well. Even their teeth were beautiful — white, with no cavities. It doesn't look like they were even sick when they were kids," Sheridan said.

Sheridan has found the Undergraduate Research Opportunity Program (UROP), which partially funded the program, not only helpful for the professors, leading the projects, but also important for the students. She believes that undergraduate students should begin field research early in their careers.

Vitale provides scholarship

Fund to benefit those in 'spirit organizations'

By KAREN BELL

They're out there practicing come-run, half or shine: they're dedicated, talented and integral to the success of Notre Dame sports, but they're not our athletes.

They are the members of our "spirit organizations:" the marching band, the cheerleaders, the Irish Guard, the pom-pom squad and even the Legionnaire. Now, thanks to a new program initiated by sportscaster and Notre Dame alumnus Dick Vitale, some of them will have a little help in paying for school.

Vitale has established an endowed academic scholarship at the University, to be known as the Dick Vitale Family Spirit Scholarship.

Vitale, a college basketball analyst for ABC Sports and ESPN, is funding the scholarship to assist students with financial need who are members of such spirit boosting organizations. The scholarship, Vitale said, is for those who worked above the norm — he noted the hours of practice that went into the bands and cheerleading.

He felt these groups had as much of a financial need as the recipients of sports scholarships.

Vitale feels fortunate that the job he loves gives him the opportunity to travel across America and visit many colleges. However, he is still adamant that Notre Dame has something unique.

Having not missed a home football game in the last six years, Vitale has first-hand experience of the Notre Dame Spirit and "the Lady of the Dome that shines brightly — like a beacon for the values" he believes are intrinsic to the school and himself.

Class allows students to play stock market

By MELANIE LAFLIN

Dreams are coming true for senior finance majors who have found that they can invest in stocks without paying a dime. A new course offered by the College of Business Administration will allow students to invest real money, previously handled by the Student Investment Club, in real stocks.

"What makes this so unique is that not only are students bidding in the market, but are now also learning how to manage their investments," said Scott Malpass, Notre Dame's chief investment officer and assistant professor of finance.

The Applied Investment Management team-taught course provides students with the opportunity to blend the theory of investment with the practical demands of hands-on portfolio management.

The class seemed to "evolve over time," said Malpass and his teaching companions, Frank Reilly, the Hank Professor of Business Administration, and John Affleck-Graves, associate professor of finance, and Mark Yusko, the University's assistant investment officer, began to use their expertise with the Student Investment Club as a starting point to construct their theoretical as well as practical course.

"We sat in on a similar class at Ohio State and found their management of endowment money to be very insightful," said Malpass.

The course's academic aspects include an understanding of the processes of establishing and implementing a portfolio strategy, a study of the mechanisms of trading, and knowledge of current theories of market microstructure.

"Due to the amount of discussion and training involved, this fall's class could be open to only twenty-four senior finance majors. Each candidate had to apply and write an essay to be considered. The next spring and summer semesters will be open to graduate MBA's," said Malpass. The course began this fall by establishing portfolio management policies and objectives.
Christianity and military do coexist

Tomorrow the United States celebrates Veterans Day. Brandon Williams, a junior in Communications, was one of the best ROTC programs in the nation, is a group called Peacenet focusing on this theme.

The reason behind Peacenet's antagonist towards ROTC's "military presence" on campus is their view of Catholicism. The group's leader has been quoted as saying "the bond between student and militarism contradicts the Catholic Church's mission of this University. Christ preaches forgiveness, compassion, and love. We see the ROTC as anathema to this University. This high level relationship shows a true dedication to the Pentagon." This is a strong statement considering that a large number of Catholic individuals here who choose to become reserve officers.

Yes, Christ did teach "forgiveness, compassion, and love." However, the members of Peacenet need to take a quick reality check. No matter how forgiving, compassionate and loving men may be, there will always be an underlying bond between student and militarism which, in their view, is not in line with the teachings of Christ. As long as men like this are in those individuals who choose to become reserve officers.

Native American Hill to perform on campus

Native American comedian Charlie Hill will perform on Nov. 11 at 8 p.m. in the Hesburgh Library auditorium. An Oneida Indian from Wisconsin, Hill worked as a disc jockey, studied acting and was a member of a Wisconsin theatre group before becoming nationally famous as a performer on the Richard Pryor show. His first album, "Born Again Savage," was recently released by Headband Productions.

He now appears on numerous late night television programs, including Jay Leno's Tonight Show and David Letterman's Late Night. He also has a role in an upcoming episode of the television show Roseanne.

ROTCl ceremony honors vets

The Army, Navy, and Air Force ROTC units of the University of Notre Dame will conduct their annual Veterans Day Retreat Ceremony in honor of fallen comrades today from 4:30-5:15 p.m. at the campus's flag pole north of the Law School.

Speaking will be Maj. Gen. James M. Lyle, commanding general of the U.S. Army Cadet Command at Fort Monroe, Va.

Lyle's military career has included two tours of Vietnam as well as service in Germany and military postings throughout the U.S.

He has taught military science at Lehigh University and was director of training in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations and Plans in Washington, D.C.

Lyle's decorations include the Army Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Bronze Star, Purple Heart, Meritorious Service Medal, Air Medal, Joint Services Commendation Medal, Army Commendation Medal, Army Achievement Medal, combat infantryman's badge and parachute's badge.

Lyle earned his bachelor's degree in physical education from the College of William and Mary and his master's degree in educational administration from Lehigh University.

His military education includes the Armor Officer Basic and Advanced courses, the Army Command and General Staff College, and the Naval War College. He is a graduate of Basic Airborne training.

Describing the progress made in terms of the Colloquy, Malloy mentioned new campus buildings and his goals for study abroad programs. According to "very compar­ative indicators," Malloy said, "we know we had to take some dramatic action" with the University libraries. He called the library holdings "unimpressive," but said that it is "a sign of improvement" that 15 new endowed library collec­tions were added to the Hes­burgh Library and the Law Li­brary.

As a "second level of need," Malloy addressed the necessity of office space on campus.

"The new plan to create more library and office space appears to be working," he said, due in part to the conver­sion of Flanner Hall.

However, there are still "lin­ginger questions about shelving and book preservation," he said. "We must try as shrewdly as possible to build it into our operating budget to avoid hav­ing to build a new library facility." Needs such as these are difficult to present to benefac­tors, Malloy said.

Describing the development of other campus structures, Malloy said that the new bookstore store will be comparable to the Barnes and Noble on Grape Street, noting that one of his star players, Tyler, was worth a million dollars.

The letter he received from a certain company was worth a million dollars." Needs such as these are not the only significant increases in the staff of the University libraries. There will be comparable to the store will be worth additional.

Expressing his goals for the Study Abroad Program, Malloy stated his interest in having all students graduate with the ability to speak "at least two" lan­guages.

Although the University is "far from" this goal right now, he said, it is "an exciting possi­bility." Malloy would also like to double the number of students who go abroad because this would expand the "opportunity for service," he said.

Malloy also described goals that are continually being striv­en for in terms of salaries for members of the Notre Dame staff.

Among these goals are the University's ability to pay fair wages and benefits, maintain the educational benefits for staff members' children, and provide safe working conditions, opportunity for advancement, and long-term job security.

"We're the largest employer in our community," Malloy said. "It is a wonderful privilege to be a part of our community," he was honored, and he stated that his primary concern is for the welfare of all workers, not just the 65 percent of the staff that is female.

He said he wanted the staff salary average to be 110 per­cent of the South Bend average. In commenting on the pro­cess of selecting Nathan Hatch as the new Provost, Malloy said that the "hardworking" execu­tive committee was "one of the best I've ever worked with. They kept in the forefront the best interest of the Univer­sity." The questioning of the candidates was "appropriate" and "not belligerent," he said. Another topic discussed by Malloy was the development of graduate education at Notre Dame.

He expressed the importance of seeking out the very best graduate students and im­proving this search "to the point of quality that we'd like it to be."

In speaking of the progress made in the graduate program, Malloy said, "The great univer­sities have to target and have to begin to make hard decisions. We are fortunate to be in a growth mode. The growth needs to be selec­tive and well thought out. I believe that every college and school needs its share of resources, I'd like to see a dis­trust." Malloy listed some of the increases in the base budgets of the Law School and the Business School, among other colleges, noting that "these funds will be used to enhance com­petitiveness."

The letter he received from Jamie Sotis (the Fighting Irish basketball coach) was worth a million dollars. Vitale was the head coach of the National Basketball Asso­ciation's Detroit Pistons in 1978-79 following a highly suc­cessful tenure in the same pos­i­tion at the University of Detroit, where one of his star players was former Notre Dame assist­ant basketball basketball coach Terry Tyler.

Vitale joined ESPN in 1979 and has been with ACE since 1988. He was honored this year with a CableACE Award for his color commentary on ESPN's college football broadcasts. In addition to his sportscasting, he is a popular motivation­al speaker and the author of four books, including his recent religious book "Holding Court: Reflections on the Game I Love."

consistent with those of Notre Dame, including a commitment to basic moral values of fair­ness, respect for human life, defense of human rights and social justice.

Students manage a "live" portfolio that was started with $120,000 previously handled by the college's Student In­vestment Club.

Based upon weekly funda­mental and technical analyses of individual companies, stu­dents as a class vote on invest­ment decisions. By the middle of October, the students' in­vestments had earned more than $10,000 in a bull market. The course also includes tours of institutions such as the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, the New York Stock Exchange, research and consulting firms, investment firms, and major brokerage houses.

As to whether the class will someday be able to use the University's endowment money to invest in stocks, "That would be somewhere down the road, maybe after three to five years of the course's existence, we'll keep an open mind to it," said Malpass.
Service project benefits neighborhoods

Annual Festival joins students with residents

Special to The Observer

Students from the University of Notre Dame will join residents of South Bend's northeast neighborhood on Saturday, November 11 from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. in order to clean up the neighborhood around the intersection of Howard and St. Peter's Streets.

The Fall Festival is held annually and is sponsored by Notre Dame's Center for Social Concerns as well as student government in cooperation with the Northeast Neighborhood Association.

The project will bring hundreds of student volunteers into the residential area just South of campus to cut down dead trees, rake leaves, pick up litter and other debris, clean out basements, haul away broken appliances and furniture, and plant tulip bulbs donated by Notre Dame's landscape services department.

More than 250 student volunteers participated in last year's Fall Festival. Organizers of this year's event hope to match or exceed that number.

A barbecue for volunteers and residents will follow this year's cleanup at 1 p.m. in Kelly Park, on the southwest corner of Howard and St. Peter's.

For further information on the festival, call Greg Zuschlag at 235-5547 or 277-0893 or Kristin Beary at 634-1277.

Manhattan quintet to perform

Special to The Observer

The Saturday Brass Quintet will perform a concert Sunday, November 12 at 4 p.m. in the Arts Auditorium of the Snite Museum of Art.

The program will include "Suite for Two Trumpets" by Henry Purcell, Richard Danielpour’s "Urban Dances Book Two," Charles Ives’ "Variations on America," "Music of Brass" by Ingolf Dahl and "Ricochet" by Kenny Turner.

Tickets are $5 general admission and $2 for students and senior citizens.

The concert is sponsored by the University of Notre Dame's Department of Music.

The Saturday Brass Quintet is made up of Charles Olsen and Tom Hoyt on trumpet, Pete Schneitter on horn, Thomas Hutchinson on trombone, and Kyle Turner on tuba.

The five, a quintet-in-residence at the Manhattan School of Music, perform traditional Renaissance, Baroque and classical works but also act as advocates of contemporary music.

They have commissioned and premiered more than a dozen new compositions by such notable composers as Anthony Davis, Arvo Part and John Harbison.

The quintet frequently gives masterclasses at the Juilliard School and the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.
Man sues for arrest in bombing

By PAUL QUARY
Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY

A Jordanian-American who was strip-searched and led through a crowded airport in handcuffs hours after the Okla­homa bombing sued the gov­ernment Thursday for more than $1.9 million.

Abraham Ahmad, 32, of Ok­lahoma City claimed that he was singled out because of his Middle Eastern appearance and name and because he was fly­ing to Jordan. He was held for more than two days before he was released.

He was cleared of any wrong­doing and was never officially described as a suspect in the April 19 bombing of the federal building.

"No one should ever have to go through the mistreatment I went through," said Ahmad, who broke down in tears at a news conference in front of the courthouse, across from where the federal building once stood.

"This ordeal has left me and my family hurt and emotionally scarred."

The complaint filed on Ah­mad's behalf by the American Civil Liberties Union claims false arrest, false imprison­ment, abuse of process, inva­sion of privacy, injury to reputa­tion and defamation.

AGU attorney Louis Bourgeois said the bombing, which killed 169 people, unleashed a storm of anti-Islamic sentiment.

"Federal employees revealed information about Mr. Ahmad's detention and his purported link to the bombing to the press," the complaint alleged.

The leaks "led to a rash of defamatory press reports, a tidal wave of press harassment of the other members of the Ahmad family, and hostile and abusive behavior by the Ah­mad's neighbors and other lo­cal residents."

Justice Department spokes­man Carl Stern in Washington said the agency had not received a copy of the lawsuit.Ahmad, a naturalized American citizen, left Oklahoma City for his native Jordan about two hours after the bombing. Federal officials detained him for five or six hours in Chicago, where he was fingerprinted and questioned.

The agents eventually put Ahmad on a flight to London since he had missed his flight to Rome.

When he arrived in London, British agents detained him, strip-searched him, handcuffed him and "paraded through the airport so that other pas­sengers could see him," according to the complaint.

SMC honors Hessert as Shannon Scholar

By MAUREEN HURLEY
Saint Mary's News Editor

Kathleen Hessert is a pio­neer in the communications field, with achievements ranging from interviewing three United States presi­dents to starting her own major communications firm. Last night, she spoke to Saint Mary's students and faculty, as her alma mater honored her as a Shannon Executive Scholar.

The Shannon Executive Scholar Program was found­ed by professor William Shannon and his wife in 1993. The program brings distin­guished alumnus from vari­ous majors, such as Hessert, back to the Saint Mary's community through class­room lectures, seminars and discussions.

"I was determined I would go into broadcasting," Hessert said. As graduation approached, she sent out 106 resumes, receiving 67 responses and 7 offers. "Any response I got, I showed up at their doorstep," she said.

And persistence paid off. Hessert became one of the pioneering women in broad­casting, journalism, capturing the honor of being the first woman to solo-anchor in upstate New York.

She worked for nearly a decade as an anchor, pro­ducer, reporter and talk show host for CBS and NBC in the northeast.

Hessert said she loved the "adrenalizing" of the job. "One day, I interviewed a United States president in the morning, and a few interviews throughout the day, then rode an elephant the same night," she said. "I spent 10 years in broadcast­ing, and I loved every minute of it.

In 1984, Hessert started her own communications speaking and consulting firm, Communications Concepts. Hessert stated that "my typical client is a multi-billion dollar firm," in­cluding the CIA, Southern Bell, AT&T, Miss America and Nike.

Her firm branched out to add the Sports Media Challenge division. Clients include the athletic depart­ment of the University of Notre Dame, the NBA, and the NFL, along with Olympic athlete Bruce Jenner. Hessert wrote and produced the NFL's media program.

Believing in your own potential is the key to suc­cess, according to Hessert. "Many women don't have the guts to do that," she said.

"You need to stick your neck out, and use the strengths you have to make a difference."
McNamara questions general on history

By KATHY WILHELM

JI ANGI, Vietnam

When former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara met the enemy’s leading strategist Thursday, he raised a question he’d saved for 30 years: What really happened in the Tonkin Gulf on Aug. 4, 1964?

Both sides agree that North Vietnam attacked a U.S. Navy ship in the gulf on Aug. 2 as it cruised close to shore. But it was an alleged second attack two days later that led to the first U.S. bombing raid on the North and propelled America deep into war. Many U.S. historians have long believed either that the Johnson administration fabricated the second attack to win congressional support for widening the war, or that the White House had only flimsy evidence of a real attack. McNamara was Johnson’s secretary of defense at the time, but even he admitted Thursday that the administration may have made “serious misjudgments.”

For McNamara, Giap’s word was the clincher. “It’s a pretty damned good source,” he said.

Support weakens for Yeltsin

By JOHN IAM

MOSCOW

Public confidence in Boris Yeltsin’s ability to govern Russia appears to be slipping as the president remains in a hospital with heart trouble, a poll showed Thursday.

Only 32 percent of those questioned by the Mnenie polling organization believed Yeltsin’s health permitted him to carry out the responsibilities of president.

Another 39.9 percent said Yeltsin could do his job because of his health. A similar poll conducted a year ago found that 32.3 percent believed Yeltsin could do his job even though his health was rocky, but 28.7 percent did not think he could.

The poll was based on telephone interviews with 1,051 Moscow residents from Nov. 1-3.

The margin of error was 3 percent.

Yeltsin entered the hospital two weeks ago for the second time in less than four months for treatment of a serious heart ailment.

He is not expected to return to work in the Kremlin before December.

On Thursday, he met in his hospital room with Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev to discuss the war in Bosnia, European security and other issues.

At the end of the meeting, Yeltsin instructed Kozyrev “to defend Russian interests in Europe, and in the Russian settlement in particular,” the Interfax news agency reported.

The agency said Yeltsin expressed confidence in Kozyrev, who has previously come under presidential criticism for allowing Russian foreign policy to drift.

Yeltsin’s chief spokesman, Sergei Medvedev, told Associated Press Television that the president was getting better and increasing his workload daily.

Medvedev said reports Yeltsin might have to travel abroad for medical treatment were unfounded.

He also said the United States had offered help.

Argentinian plane crashes killing 53

Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES

An air force plane slammed into a mountain in a rainstorm, and rescuers who reached the remote area on Monday said all 53 people on board were killed.

The Fokker F-27 twin-engine plane crashed Wednesday night, diving into a deep ravine in the Cordoba Mountains, about 500 miles north-west of Buenos Aires.

Rescuers on foot and by helicopter reached the rocky crash site on Mount Champamy at dawn and said there were no survivors among the 48 passengers and five crew members.

Bodies and wreckage were scattered over a 500-yard area, said police Inspector Jose Carreras in the small town of Villa Dolores, 12 miles from the crash site.

The plane was traveling from a base in the southern oil town of Comodoro Rivadavia.

Air force spokesmen said the passengers were mostly sergeants, their wives and children who were on their way to a military academy at Cordoba.

Gen. Juan Paulik, the air force chief of staff, said weather conditions in the area were "very poor," but the cause of the crash was under investigation.

Residents of the sparsely populated ranch area told rescuers they heard a low-flying plane followed by an explosion, then saw flames on the mountainside.

The crash was the second armed forces-linked tragedy in Cordoba province in less than a week.

An army-operated military plane blew up in the town of Rio Tercero last Friday, killing 13 people and injuring more than 300.

Lugar criticizes rivals for mean-spirited tone

By MIKE GLOVER
Associated Press

JOHNSON, Iowa — Indiana Sen. Dick Lugar said Thursday his "mean-spirited" Republican presidential rivals have turned off mainstream voters and would be "dead on their feet" in a race against President Clinton.

Lugar said the increasingly conservative Republican presidential campaign may please party activists, but it makes Clinton look better and better to voters.

"Lugar, stuck in single digits in polls on presidential preference, said surveys show growing negative ratings for leading Republican contenders such as Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole.

"They are out there walking around as candidates, but they're dead on their feet," Lugar said. After several candidate meetings at which I've listened to all of my fellow candidates, it offers a competition as to who is the most mean-spirited, the toughest, pounds them in the head the most times that night," Lugar said.

Richardsmeier's experiences prove that it is beneficial for students to start early. She learned hands-on field techniques such as the proper removal, washing and labeling of bones and how to establish the gender of human remains.

"The field work is important. Everyone has taken the classes [and] the graduate record exams. The field work helps you stand out," she said.

Richardsmeier found, though, that she learned not just from the research. She also experienced the unusual environment surrounding her work. Just a few miles away from her excavation, the habitual violence of that area of the Mideast continued.

In one particular happening, her group, which included some Jews, found their vehicle stuck in dirt. And even though much tension exists between the Jews and Arabs, a group of Arabs driving by stopped to help their group out.

Although Richardsmeier went for the excavation in Yehad alone, she said that her summer experience cannot hurt her from continuing her education in graduate school and then on to a career like Sheridan's.

The undergraduate student explained, "They are out there walking around as candidates, but they're dead on their feet," Lugar said. After several candidate meetings at which I've listened to all of my fellow candidates, it offers a competition as to who is the most mean-spirited, the toughest, pounds them in the head the most times that night," Lugar said.

GDP race for the White House

WASHINGTON

Two-time presidential candidate Jesse Jackson said Thursday he's thinking anew about running in 1996 now that retired Gen. Colin Powell has ruled out a potential White House bid.

Less than 24 hours after Powell announced he would not run, Jackson said that he has met with his advisers to "assess the landscape."

"I still have the fire in my belly and clear vision in my head about what a president ought to do to make the nation better," said the founder of the National Rainbow Coalition and presidential candidate of 1984 and 1988.

"I have a plan to revitalize our economy to make us more fiscally responsible, to change our priorities, to make us more humane," he said. Jackson said it was premature to say when he would reach a decision.

Lugar criticizes rivals for mean-spirited tone

By MIKE GLOVER
Associated Press

JOHNSON, Iowa — Indiana Sen. Dick Lugar said Thursday his "mean-spirited" Republican presidential rivals have turned off mainstream voters and would be "dead on their feet" in a race against President Clinton.

Lugar said the increasingly conservative Republican presidential campaign may please party activists, but it makes Clinton look better and better to voters.

"Lugar, stuck in single digits in polls on presidential preference, said surveys show growing negative ratings for leading Republican contenders such as Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole.

"They are out there walking around as candidates, but they're dead on their feet," Lugar said. After several candidate meetings at which I've listened to all of my fellow candidates, it offers a competition as to who is the most mean-spirited, the toughest, pounds them in the head the most times that night," Lugar said.
Arafat travels to Israel to honor Rabin

By DAN PERRY

TEL AVIV, Israel

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat made his first visit to Israel since the peace process began, visiting the widow of Yitzhak Rabin Thursday night to offer his condolences.

Government spokesman Uri Iromi said Arafat and his entourage arrived at the Rabin home in north Tel Aviv around 10:15 p.m. (3:15 p.m. EST) and stayed briefly.

Arafat’s presence in Israel was kept secret until he returned to his home in the autonomous Gaza Strip.

Dromi quoted Arafat as telling Leah Rabin that the slain premier was “a hero of peace” and that he had had a personal friend. “He will be sorely missed by both me and the peace process,” Dromi quoted Arafat as saying.

Mrs. Rabin replied that her husband had considered Arafat “a full partner in peace” and wished him success in seeing Palestinian conciliation.

Arafat stayed away from Rabin’s visit, his meeting with Mrs. Rabin, and a peace rally Saturday by a religious Jewish extremist who was not secure.

JEERUSALEM

As the possibility of giving up land to the Palestinians loomed ever larger, extremist rabbis’ rhetoric grew more ruthless: Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was a criminal. A traitor. He deserved to die.

Five days after an assassin echoing their edicts shot Rabin dead, fringe rabbis are coming under increasing attack by mainstream religious leaders who accuse them of corrupting society. On Thursday, they called for the ouster of their extremist colleagues. “These people must be thrown out” of their jobs, said Yehuda Amital, a rabbi at a West Bank religious seminary who counsels dialogue with Palestinians.

Another West Bank rabbi, Yosef Bin-Nun, said he would “fight to the death” against rabbis whose recent religious rulings named Rabin as a traitor and called for his death.

A solution to frostbite?

Hayley Rivas

The walking time from "South of Joyce Center to LaFortune" is 11 minutes, 20 seconds, but only at a brisk walk. For a leisurely stroll the trip will take an additional 10-15 seconds.

These figures come from "Parking Lines" a flyer published by the Parking Services Section of the Office of University Security/Police. The double-sided flyer clearly outlines recent parking changes, construction detours and road closings.

At temperatures to continue to drop, that 11 or 12 minute walk might seem more like an eternity. With the closure of the BI lot around the stadium, the University decided to bump faculty and staff into the CI lot which formerly served as off-campus parking. In turn, the off-campus student parking lot was relocated to the JACC parking lot, or "south of Joyce Center." Of course, the University's main concern will have to make sure that a solution is for the good of order for the construction of the stadium to be successful. Their view is probably correct. Both the Ad Hoc parking committee and the Parking Services Section has done a credible job in assessing student and faculty concerns and trying to accommodate them according to the available space.

Unfortunately, off-campus students are at the bottom of the parking food chain and will be forced to make do with the current arrangement, even if new spaces are practically in Turtle Creek's back yard.

Although it may be little consolation, students who are walking longer distances should know that they aren't alone — faculty and support staff members are facing longer up to the class walk. Showing up late for work is generally frowned upon.

As a consequence off-campus students are walking greater distances doesn't mean that they should be forced to arrive as class with frostbite. The uniquely unpleasant combination of South Bend's waiting winds and biting temperatures may just make this new arrangement more difficult for students headed in to the Main Building, LaFortune or South Quad.

One way to alleviate the possibility of exposure cases would be the establishment of a University operated shuttle service running during the months of December, January and February.

Buses could run from the new parking lot near the JACC to Main Circle, Library Circle or LaFortune during prime hours of the day for off-campus students. The shuttle service would be of prime value on weekdays mornings when students are headed onto campus with regularity.

If that plan does not sound feasible, why not roll shuttle buses over to Turtle Creek, Campus View and Lafayette Square? Such a plan would eliminate the hassle of winter driving and would certainly be more environmentally sound.

Unlike many other issues of student concern, few obstacles appear in the way of establishing a shuttle. Student Government has indicated a willingness to sponsor the event, and Phil Johnson of Campus Security said the shuttle plan has been raised in the past, but specifics were never negotitated.

In any event, the success or failure of the idea will probably boil down to dollars. But it seems logical that if student organizations found cash to fund failures like Weekend Wheels, there must be funds for a more practical service, such as this one. Some timely leadership by Off-Campus student senators could probably make the difference.

After all, preventing frostbite is a worthy goal.

ND/BC oneness shown in action

Dear Editor:

In the wake of the Notre Dame/Boston College football game, and the intensity of the rivalry which has developed between the two schools, I would like to call our communities' attention to an act of kindness and hospitality that far outweighs the competition that exists between our schools.

A ten-year-old boy from my hometown of Brighton, Mass., named Christopher Neiman is one of the biggest Boston College football fans around. Sadly, Christopher is dying of cancer and probably won't be with us much longer.

Hearing of his plight and his devotion to Boston College, several members of the Eagles' program have taken the time to get involved in his life. The BC players have adopted Chris, visiting him at home and trying to cheer him during his illness. Last spring, Coach Dan Henning asked Chris what he would like most in the world, and Chris told him it would be to see BC play Notre Dame. Henning arranged for Chris and his parents to fly out with the team for last Saturday's game.

When the Notre Dame Student Government heard about Chris, they decided to make his trip as special as possible. President Jonathan Patricia, Vice President Dennis McCarthy and their chief of staff, Mark Mitchell, arranged for a campus tour, a meeting with Ron Poulus and several other Irish players and gave Chris the opportunity to go on the field for the presentation of the Ireland Trophy. In addition, the football office provided an autographed ball for Chris. Unfortunately, Chris' condition has been worsening. He was able to make the trip, but was too sick to participate in any of the planned activities.

I wanted to express how truly impressed I have been with the care and concern of the BC players and the ND Student Government and players. The level of hospitality and willingness to help this young boy was truly touching, and will surely make his short time with us as pleasant as possible. With all the talk of animosity between Notre Dame and Boston College, it is important to see how the two schools can come together where a human life is concerned. It shows how much the schools truly have in common.

"A dice is seldom welcome; and those who want it the most always like it the least."

—Philip Dormer Stanhope
Dork' identifies other possible choices

Dear Editor:

Josh Ozersky, you were correct in saying that you shouldn't use year 'Thursday forum to humanize the reader'. I know what you did was show your true ignorance (on the subject of alcohol use and abuse, both here at Notre Dame and elsewhere).

Let me begin by saying that I feel horribly that Rob Holtz didn't die, because of the circumstances of his death, the manner in which he was killed, and also because of something as seemingly meaningless as drinking and driving. But, that's the whole point; drinking and driving is not necessarily a bad thing. What it means is that hundreds of people lose their life day due to the inexcusable act of drinking and driving by either themselves, or someone else. The saddest thing about this is that it is preventable. There was no reason for Rob to die. He had no business behind the wheel of a car. And, it is preventable. With 18 hours of someone else, possibly you or someone close to me, I feel that the outsourcing of regret and sympathy would be entirely different—there would be none.

Drinking alcohol is not necessarily a bad thing if done responsibly. But, when it comes right down to it people do not drink responsibly. Unfortunately, you have to drink responsibly. I feel that it is an irresponsible behavior. I'm sorry, but there are other options available to people like you who think they must drive when they are drunk. Granted, taking a bus or walking may not be good choices, but there are other choices. Other lifetime sports also were taught in volleyball, basketball, and cash contributions totaling almost $12,000. Norwest Bank donated $12,000 to help fund the student leadership effort. Three local labor organizations contributed $1,500. K-Mart, Target and Meijer provided award prizes. Honors Golf Carts contributed two carts for our coaching staff. Cellular One contributed six mobile phones to help coordinate daily operations. Notre Dame made in-kind and cash contributions totaling almost $200,000.

Kristen Janowski-Dates, a counselor at Madison Center, served as our activity director during the summer and her organization did an outstanding job making this program a success.

We hope someday to document how NYSF changes the lives of our program participants and the student leaders. We have come to truly respect the students who took part in the program, and we're looking forward to seeing them again this coming November.

Periodically, the Snite invites distinguished scholars to speak on their own art work or the work of others. These speeches usually deal with exhibitions currently on display at the Snite, primarily the traveling exhibits in the O'Shaughnessy Galleries. Another activity held throughout the year is storytelling. This event takes place on eight Saturdays annually and is run by volunteer students, faculty, and other members of the Notre Dame community. Each session begins with folk music which is followed by stories told throughout the museum. What makes these stories especially captivating is that they are told in the galleries amidst the art. Every Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Sunday, the Snite shows movies in the Annenberg Auditorium within the museum. The movies vary and include foreign films, such as "Exotica," cult favorites like "Clerks," and even popular modern motion pictures like "Terminator 2." In the auditorium, the Snite also hosts concerts presented by the department of music. These concerts feature musicians from across the globe as well as from Notre Dame. Upcoming concerts include a performance by the Saturday Brass Quintet on November 12 and a solo concert by violinist Professor Christine Ruthjog on November 16. The Snite makes an effort to involve itself in the education of all students at Notre Dame. For those students with a specific interest in art as a major, the museum offers multi-ple internships. For other students, a more commonly used program is "Curriculum Guided Tours." established by current Curator of Academic Programs Diana Matthias. This program's purpose is to expand the artistic appreciation of the common student through a non-art-related class. The tours focus directly on the subject of each course. For example, a tour for a French class would view those works of art that will further French literature and history. A day of Women event will be a day-long conference running from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m., featuring women from the Michiana area. Women at the Snite: Edna entertainment in the Lives of Women

Judge for St. Joseph County, Karen a nurse practitioner, Jill esky, an instructor at Saint College, and Sharon
, the chair of Notre Dame's

Department of Government. In keeping with the entertainment portion of this year's theme, the women will focus on the role the media plays in the United States legal system. In the wake of the O.J. Simpson Trial, the ladies will show how the media transformed that case into an entertainment bonanza and explore the other ways the media influences legal decisions.

The second group of women all participate in educational professions. Nan Plummer, Linda
Brookshire, Maritza
Robles, and Martha
Kline will discuss teaching and a woman's place in education in today's society.

After a break for lunch, a group of women involved in the media will speak about their professions and how entertainment has influenced the media in recent years. There is a common belief that the news at times leans toward entertainment rather than the truth in order to keep people interested. Deanna Francis of the South Bend Tribune, Robin Alexander from WYME, Gail Martin from WNDT, and Ellen Crooke of WNDU will share their feelings on the subject.

The final group of women to speak are all involved with music. "In addition to the speakers, I try to get some music or some dancing or both," said Matthias. This group of women fill that role. Nancy Menk of Saint Mary's College will speak about the conducting that she has done in her life, while Mary Anne Ballard and Rosie McCormick will perform. Ballard is an accomplished viola player, while McCormick is a folk singer.

All of the women will discuss the role the media has played in their lives. There will be opportunities for questions and answers throughout the day. Once the festivities end, a reception will be held in the atrium of the Snite.

The Day of Women is a wonderful opportunity to see and hear active, intelligent, interesting women talk about things that are important to them," says Matthias. Admission is free, and all are welcome.

Congratulations to all of the winners and thanks to all who entered. Winners, please pick up your mystery prize at the Observer Office in LaFortune.
Hostotler, Brown, lead high-powered offense into game at Meadowlands

By Barry Wilner

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. The Oakland Raiders, who claim they are on the road every week, are making a trip to the Meadowlands this weekend. They have split with the Giants in two visits to the Meadowlands, and are 2-0 against the Jets. Earlier this season, the Raiders routed the Jets 47-10 in New Jersey.

Having moved from Los Angeles to Oakland too late this year to relocate their training complex, the Raiders are ready to face Giants in their home state. The Giants have been strong in their home state, and the Raiders are a free agent and has not played in the Meadowlands this season.

They are tough to get through. They've done a good job for us tonight," said Raiders guard Pat Hickey who grabbed nine rebounds in the game. "He's a great player. He's had a great season."

Starts & plucks

The Raiders carry a 3-1 record into Sunday's game with the New York Giants. They have a plus-1 turnover ratio, with 25 takeaways and 17 fumble recoveries, both tops in the NFL. And the Raiders have 29 sacks. The Giants have given up the most total yards in the league, but Raiders cornerback Phillippi Sparks said, "We're going to have our hands full."

While the Raiders have been successful road warriors, the Giants (3-6) have been decent hosts. They are 2-2 at home.

Even on an off night, Jordan owns Cavs

The Associated Press

Michael Jordan overcame a lackluster first half and scored 29 points Thursday night, and Scottie Pippen had a triple double as the Chicago Bulls beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 106-88. Pippen had 18 points, 13 rebounds and 12 assists for the Bulls, off to their first four games for the first time since 1987. The Cavs have lost their first four games for the first time since 1989.

Both teams played without a starting forward. Dennis Rodman sat for Chicago because of a strained calf muscle that the team said would probably keep him out at least one more game. Rodman told a radio station he might miss a month.

The Cavs were without Tyrone Hill, still hospitalized with weakness in his right arm and leg because of a car accident Tuesday night. Bobby Phillips led Cleveland with 26 points and Chris Mills scored 19.

The Bulls in general, and Jordan in particular, merely went through the motions in the first half, building a 51-47 lead even though Jordan and Pippen were a combined 6-of-16 from the floor. Jordan had six points at the half.

But Chicago picked it up late in the third quarter after Cleveland went on a 9-2 run, capped by Danny Ferry’s short bank shot, for a 67-64 lead.

Jordan answered with two straight 3-point shots and Pippen followed with a dunk for a 72-67 lead Chicago never relinquished.

Knicks 103, Pacers 95

Two nights after getting a broken nose, Charles Smith scored 21 points off the bench, keying a third-quarter spurt that helped the New York Knicks hand the Indiana Pacers their first loss of the season, 103-95 on Thursday night.

In a contentious game that illustrated the bitter rivalry that has developed between the teams, 54 fouls were called, with 26 points and 14 rebounds and four blocks and John Starks scored 18 points.

Rodman out for one month

The Associated Press

Chicago Bulls forward Dennis Rodman said Thursday he will be out about four months with a leg injury, but the team said his status is day-to-day.

Rodman told Chicago radio station WSCK-AM that he ripped his left calf muscle trying to jump on the last play of Tuesday’s game against the Toronto Raptors.

He said it feels similar to an injury he suffered three years ago that caused him to sit out for a month.

“I know it’s a month,” he told the station in a telephone interview from Cleveland, where the Bulls are playing the Cavaliers. “It’s kind of disappointing.”

Bulls spokesman Tom Smithburg said Rodman made the trip to Cleveland for Thursday’s game and would be examined by team doctors Friday.

Tuesday night’s 117-108 win over the Raptors was his best game with the Bulls — 11 points, 13 rebounds and six assists.

Rodman is known for his hair color changes, tattoos, a brief romance with Madonna, missing practices, suspensions and saying outrageous things. After signing with Chicago, he said he would sit out the season unless his $2.5 million salary was raised. He quickly dropped the matter.

The 6-foot-8 forward, who has led the NBA in rebounding four straight seasons, came to the Bulls in a multi-demanding season trade with the San Antonio Spurs. The Bulls gave up backup center Will Perdue in the trade.

Many here wondered how he would fit in with Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen — two players he had been at odds with when he played for the Detroit Pistons. But Rodman has behaved himself so far and the three have performed well together on the court as the Bulls have started 3-0, their best season start in years.

Packers thin at quarterback

By ARNIE STAPLETON
Associated Press

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Joe Montana wasn't interested in coming out of retirement to help an old friend.

So, Green Bay coach Mike Holmgren must do with two journeymen quarterbacks and even a wide receiver to face division-leading Chicago Sunday if Brett Favre can't.

Both the Packers (5-4) and Bears (6-3) expect Favre to start Sunday despite a severely sprained left ankle that kept him on crutches and out of practice all week. If Favre can't go, Holmgren is leaning toward Bob Gagliano, 37, whom he summoned Monday from the tennis courts of Santa Barbara, Calif., as his starter.

Gagliano shared snaps with the No. 1 offense this week with T.J. Rubley, who foolishly cost Montana a loss to Minnesota last week.

The No. 3 quarterback will be split end Mark Ingram, who used to throw passes to Andre Rison at Northwestern High School in Flint, Mich., 13 years ago. The Packers even signed road Scarlet Bob McCoy to the practice squad.

Holmgren, who worked with Montana as quarterbacks coach for the 49ers in the 1980s, playfully tried to talk Montana into a comeback in a phone call Wednesday.

"I said, 'Before you say no, listen to my proposition,'" Holmgren recounted. "He said he hadn't touched a football in a while and he likes what he's doing."

Montana, who retired on April 18 with a year remaining on his contract with the Kansas City Chiefs, has been relaxing with his family and doing studio work for NBC-TV.

Packers spokesman Jeff Blumb said Holmgren and Montana, who are good friends, talk frequently and Holmgren's efforts were "in jest."

After what happened in last week's 27-24 loss to the Vikings, however, Holmgren can't be blamed for trying.

Favre sprained his left ankle when guard Aaron Taylor fell on him, putting his NFL-leading streak of 24 consecutive starts in jeopardy, not to mention Green Bay's once-promising season.

Top backup Ty Detmer was lost for the season with torn ligaments in his right thumb, and No. 3 Rubley, a former part-time starter with the Los Angeles Rams, came in with the score tied at 24 and blew it.

Gagliano is 7-6 as a starter, but hasn't played in a regular-season game since Dec. 17, 1992.

"I'm not saying it's going real good," Gagliano said. "You hear people say to take it a day at a time. Well, I'm kind of taking it a moment at a time."

Of course, Favre said he'll be the one taking snaps Sunday, and the Bears say they're preparing for Favre, not Gagliano or Rubley or Ingram.

"Brett Favre's a great competitor. We expect him to be out there Sunday," said defensive tackle Jim Flanigan, who leads the Bears with 7 1/2 sacks.

Also proclaiming he'll bounce back is Green Bay's defensive leader Reggie White, who strained a ligament in his right knee Sunday when he collided with fellow defensive end Sean Jones, who sustained a concussion.

"It's coming along. Let God do his work," said White, who's been walking without noticeable discomfort.

Jones said he'll play. And wide receiver Anthony Morgan (ankle) said he'll be ready, too.

"I'm not going to miss this game," said Morgan, a former Bear.

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Mike Holmgren doesn't want to hear people say to take it a day at a time.

"I'm taking it a moment at a time," Holmgren said Wednesday.

But Holmgren's time is up. With Favre, normally Green Bay's No. 1 offense this week with the score tied at 24 and blew it.

Gagliano is 7-6 as a starter, but hasn't played in a regular-season game since Dec. 17, 1992.

"I'm not saying it's going real good," Gagliano said. "You hear people say to take it a day at a time. Well, I'm kind of taking it a moment at a time."

Of course, Favre said he'll be the one taking snaps Sunday, and the Bears say they're preparing for Favre, not Gagliano or Rubley or Ingram.

Ed Bell returned from injury to make nine saves as the Chicago Blackhawk goalie helped defeat the Vancouver Canucks for the 10th straight time, 5-2 Thursday night.

Five different players scored for the Blackhawk, whose streak against Vancouver includes a four-game sweep in last season's playoffs. Bell also went 4-0 against the Canucks this season, outscoring them 25-10.

The Canucks outshined Chicago 51-25 in the second period on 3-on-2, 2-on-1 and 2-on-0 breaks. The Blackhawk also had two power-play goals after entering the game in a 1-24 make 24 advantage slump.

Bell hurt his back against Toronto on Oct. 26, when he later started the Blackhawk on a 3-1-3 skid. He wasn't allowed to return to the lineup, as Vancouver had at least a dozen power plays in the game. Bell made save after save as the crowd chanted, "Ed-die! Ed-die!"

The Blackhawk started up 4-0 on first-period goals by Chris Chelios, Gary Suter, Sergei Krivokrasov and Denis Savard. Chelios' goal, at 4:59, came on a power play. Suter scored at 9:21 after Tony Antonine stole Russ Courtnall's pass to start a 2-on-1 break. About 2.5 minutes later, Krivokrasov capped a 3-on-2. The barrage ended, at 22:4 seconds left, in the period, as Vancouver again got goals from Shane Hirsch and Murray Cranford fed Savard on a 2-on-0 break.

Bell received no support from his teammates, Vancouver goalie Kirk McLean was pulled in favor of Corey Hirsch, who played the last two periods.

Flies, Flames 1

After watching his former team on television beat the defending Stanley Cup champion, New Jersey Devils, Joel Otto said that "everyone made sure the Calgary Flames wouldn't have that opportunity against his Philadelphia Flyers.

Otto broke open a third-period scoreless tie with a goal and later added an assist as the Philadelphia Flyers defeated the Flames 3-1 Thursday night. "It was a new experience," said Otto, who had spent Sunday night watching the Devils-Flyers game at the Meadowlands. "I make no secret that I wanted to play a good game against them. I know a lot of faces over there. I'm sure I will be different when we go to Calgary."

Women's Basketball

Henderson, Ivey, commit to play for Notre Dame

Special to the Observer

The Notre Dame women's basketball team got a little taller and a little quicker yesterday.

Julie Henderson, a 6'3" center/forward from Ann Arbor, Michigan, and Niele Ivey, a 5'8" guard from St. Louis, Missouri, signed National Letters of Intent to attend the University of Notre Dame beginning in the fall of 1996.

The powerful Henderson, currently playing for Huron High School, is averaging 12.0 points and 10.0 rebounds this season, after helping lead Huron to their second consecutive South Central Conference championship last season. A two-time all state selection who also played for two years at Greenhill High School, Henderson has guided both schools to a 73-15 record during her four-year career. "Julie is a great rebounder who fills a lot of our needs in this area," commented Irish head coach Muffet McGraw. "She is very aggressive around the boards, and is a versatile player who has a good shot away from the basket."

The speed comes in the form of Ivey, a multi-talented guard with a lethal shooting touch. The all-time leading scorer at Cor Jesu High School, Ivey led her school to a perfect 31-0 record and the Class 4A state championship in 1995. Ivey is also the school's all-time steals leader, and poses a triple threat to the opposition, as evidenced by her averages of 18.1 points, 6.9 rebounds, and 5.0 assists last season.

Among her many accolades, Ivey was the 1995 Missouri Player of the Year, and was invited to Olympic Festival try-outs last spring. "Niele will help us out immediately," commented McGraw. "She is a tremendous defensive player with excellent quickness and speed on the court."

Lanza earns spot on All-Big East squad

By DYLAN BARMER

While the Irish men's soccer team's first season in the Big East was fraught with difficulties, it can at least be said that they didn't go unnoticed by their conference peers.

One thing which remains etched in their collective minds was revealed yesterday, when senior forward Bill Lanza was named to the All-Big East Second Team.

Lanza played in just 14 games due to injuries this season, starting 12 matches. In limited time in those games, Lanza amassed six goals and 11 assists for a team-high 23 points. Lanza, who currently stands ninth on the Notre Dame career scoring list with 29 goals and 25 assists (83 points), has a year of eligibility remaining after missing all of the 1994 season with a leg injury.

In eight Big East games, Lanza tallied a goal and seven assists. The Irish, beset by injuries and hampered by inexperience, finished the 1995 season with a 9-10 overall record, and a 4-7 mark in Big East play. Their eight conference points weren't enough for the team to qualify for the Big East tournament, as they finished just tenth out of twelve Big East teams.

January 2: Tom Krug sets a school career record by throwing five touchdown passes, including a last-minute strike to Meyers to pull the Irish within one. Jur­ous Jackson comes in to run the option to perfection and the two-point conversion gives the Irish the lead. The ghosts of David Gordon and Remy Hamilton are finally destroyed as Ne­braska’s last-second field goal sails wide right. NCAA qualification at stake

By B. J. HOOD
Sports Writer

It’s time to find out who the nation’s best cross country teams are.

The Notre Dame cross country teams travel to Purdue on Saturday to run in the district IV meet. The meet is very important, as the top three men’s teams and the top two women’s teams will qualify for the NCAA championship meet.

The Notre Dame women’s team started the season by winning the Buckeye Invitational and finished second at the National Catholic Invitational at Notre Dame. The women have struggled lately, which has frustrated the runners and Coach Joe Plane.

"They certainly have not run up to their potential," Plane said. "There is some talent there, I wish I could put my finger on why they’re not running better."

Senior Maureen Kelly has led the squad this year, finishing first on the team at every meet so far. Plane has also been impressed with freshmen Mary Volland and sophomore Mieke Walsh. "Mary Volland and Mieke Walsh have done a good job," Plane noted.

The men’s team has seen consistent efforts all season. The Irish have had a strong group in front in seniors Joe Dunlop, Derek Martius, and Derek Seiling, junior Matt Althoff, sophomore Jason Remig, and freshmen Antonio Arce. All six of them have finished first or second for Notre Dame this season. Plane made special mention of Martius.

"Derek Martius has run very well," Plane complimented. "The Irish have run against tough competition this season, and Saturday will be no different. Notre Dame’s teams will face tough competition from Wisconsin, Michigan, Bowling Green, Marquette, Michigan State, Loyola, and host Purdue. Thirty-nine teams are in Notre Dame’s district, though not every team will run. The men run at 11:00 Saturday morning with the women to follow at noon.

Twenty-two teams will qualify for the NCAA meet. The top three men’s teams are guaranteed to advance, while only two women’s teams are assured of qualifying. However, there are at large spots among the top teams advancing to the championships, so the women would have a chance to qualify if they finish in the top three.

Plane thinks the men have already run well enough to qualify, so they only need to perform like they have previously to advance. "They (the men) have run solid and consistent, and if they keep it up (on Saturday), they’ll have a good shot of qualifying," Plane said. "The women) need to run as a group... they’ve been reluctant to be a front running group."

On Saturday, the Irish will find out how good they really are. If Plane and company have their way, they will run like one of the best teams in the nation. Or at least the district.

Irish hope to halt losing skid

By MIKE DAY
Sports Writer

Struggling to keep their heads above water, if sea level indicates receptability, then the Notre Dame hockey team is in dire need of a life preserver.

Heading into tonight’s contest against Illinois-Chicago and Saturday evening’s matchup with Ohio State, the Irish have dropped five straight games to fall to tenth place in the conference's lesser known hockey programs.

“We have to win these two games with our back against the wall,” said junior right wing Tim Harberts. “We know that we can play much better than we have to this point. We just have to go out and execute the game plan.”

While Harberts has emerged the past two weeks after a slow start, the offense as a whole has struggled after starting the season off strong. Averaging only 3.38 goals per game, the unit has reached their oppo­nents’ nets just six times in their last three games.

Freshman right wing Brian Urick (10 points) and senior center Jaimie Ling (eight points) have been solid all sea­son long, but their teammates must step up this weekend to sweep the Flames and Buck­eeyes. Junior center Terry Lorenz is beginning to reach 1994 form after recording just one point in his first three games.

“I owe a lot of my success so far this season to Terry Lorenz,” said Urick. “He has done a good job of getting me in position to score, and he’s made it a lot easier for me to make the adjustment in my first season here.”

The Flames enter tonight’s matchup ranked eighth in the conference with a 3-1-2 overall record, including a 1-1 mark in CCHA play. Junior center Mike Perron (eight points) and fresh­man center Chuck Mindel (eight) are the team’s top scor­ers, while sophomore center Adam Lord is expected to start at goalie.

Believe it or not, the Buckeyes currently boast a 3-1-1 record and rank first in the league in defense with a 1.50 GAA. However, to this point, Ohio State has played a sched­ule that rivals toilet paper in terms of softness.

“It is important that we get a win this weekend in terms of momentum and confidence,” said head coach Dave Poulin.

“We need to start making those adjustments and get to where we want to be defensively.” Otherwise, treading water will just get harder and harder.

However, they have a golden opportunity to turn it around with a Saturday evening’s matchup against two of the players determine who plays by how they play,” said Poulin. “Different players are judged in different ways. It is not OK though for a good player to not play up to his ability.”

The Notre Dame defense has been a huge question mark all season long.

“Different ways.

The team is still learning a new system, and it takes time to adjust to a different style and a different coach,” said Poulin. “We need to start making those adjustments and get to where we want to be defensively.”

Regular season closes with conference foes

Squad travels to Providence, Boston College

By MICHAEL THOMPSON
Sports Writer

This weekend the Notre Dame volleyball team finishes off its conference play at Providence and Boston College. Coming off of a loss at the hands of the top-ranked Nebraska team, the Irish look to bounce back against their last two regular season opponents in an effort to gain some momentum going into the Big East Championships.

The always effervescent Carey May commented positively about the Nebraska match. "Overall, it was a good experience, we now realize how we have to play to accomplish what we want to accomplish as a team." Going into this weekend, the Irish lead the Big East standings in Kills, and they'll be taking their 382 and 366 kills into Rhode Island.

Last night, Notre Dame dropped an exhibition contest to Giesen (Germany) 71-63 in one of those games the Irish are hoping they got out of their system. "That was a good display of basketball," head coach John MacLeod said, "I'm being real generous here. It was not a good night for Notre Dame."

Generosity appeared to be the theme of the night as the Irish totaled 23 turnovers and missed numerous open shots. Those missed shots accounted for the abysmal shooting percentage that allowed Giesen to take a 29-25 lead into the locker room at halftime. "We just weren't hitting shots. We were getting good open shots, we just couldn't get them to drop," senior forward Ryan Hoover added. "We shot like 28 percent. Maybe you shoot that bad that you're not going to be in any games."

By rounding up to the nearest decimal place, the Irish concluded the night shooting 29 percent which can largely attributed to the 10-3 lead before the shooting began. "We couldn't get into a groove and our offense was stifled because of it. We just weren't getting it done," senior Marc Derosa added. "We didn't set up our own shots, we played too much defense."

However, there was no much offense by either team in the first half. Following the populace of empty benches, the Irish were never able grab the lead. After an Anne Air-jump shot put Giesen ahead by two, the German team would never look back. For Giesen, James Shields had 25 points, while Allg and Kevin Lynch each tallied 13.

Even though this trio may have seemed unknown, all three have had extensive experience. Lynch spent two years with the Charlotte Hornets, while Shields played at Richmond and Allg at Champhane. Currently, the team is on a break from its European schedule and has already been working together since the middle of the summer. "We have been practicing the entire summer," Shields said. "We're excited to get back in the gym and turn our focus to the postseason."
