Racial slur leads to hearing

Confrontation moves to Student Affairs

BY MATTHEW LOUGHRAN

A racial slur hurled at three minority students three years ago has led to an investigation and administrative hearing by Student Affairs, according to Jennifer Warlick, one of the students involved.

Jennifer Warlick of the Department of Presidential Affairs, Associate Professor of Sociology Jennifer Warlick of the Department of Presidential Affairs, Associate Professor of Sociology Albert VanDoren, who had been a student at Saint Mary's in the 1990s, said she and her roommate were pushing their car toward B-2 after it broke down on Sept. 8 at 12:30 a.m. on Buell Road, when two cars pulled up behind them.

"Our car was not even dead for five minutes when the first car pulled up beside us," said Hannah. "It had four people in it, they pulled on by and left us behind. Then the second car pulled up next to us (and one of them) stuck his head out the window and shouted the racial slur at us.

Hannah wrote a letter that The Observer published on Friday, Sept. 20. In her letter, Hannah quoted the person in the second car as saying, "Get out of the way you g-damn niggers!"

Hannah and her roommate identified one of the people in the first car as a student in her roommate's class. According to Hannah, the unidentified student leaned out the window and said, "Ignore those guys back there, they're drunk," indicating the second car.

She says that this stopped her off the people in the second car and were students. She and her roommate say that on Friday, Sept. 13 they identified the student who hurled the epithet at them. The girls met with the Office of Student Affairs on Monday, Sept. 16, and submitted a written report on Tuesday, Sept. 17.

Jeff Shoup, director of residence life, when reached for comment said, "We can neither confirm nor deny any investigation of a student. That is confidential.

He did speak generally about how the absence of two cars pulled up to them and the racial slurs were handled.

VanDoren highlights environmental duties

BY MICHAEL LEWIS

It is the responsibility of businesses, not politicians, churches, or schools, to serve and restore the natural beauty of the world, according to Charles VanDoren.

VanDoren spoke as part of a series of lectures on literature and films on business ethics put on by the Notre Dame Center for Ethics and Religious Values in Business. He expressed his lecture around the necessity of ethical conduct in business.

"Why should businesspeople and women be required to be more virtuous than anybody else?" he said. The answer is that it is up to businesses to deal with social, political, economic, and especially environmental problems.

VanDoren likened the situation of business people to the moral dilemma of a group of people watching a girl being swept away by a rushing river and debating whether they should act. Her death imminent, a few individuals in the group (figuratively representing business people) constitute the only element that both understands her predicament and has the physical ability to save her.

He said the advances that humanity has made sometimes become the problem itself, especially in an area he describes in his book, "Nature, Science, and Art: On the Shortcomings of the Previous System which Imprisons Us and Deprives Us of Our Natural Callings." The greatest invention, he said, was man. All else stems from that.

VanDoren said there are two main schools of thought by people who try to explain nature, science, which attempts to define nature and art, which tries to depict nature. However, the dominating school of thought (nature is rational) and of art (that people can imitate nature) are corrosive.

The world's oldest war is the one between man and nature, and according to VanDoren, nature is losing. The world

Students dissatisfied with recurring homogeny

Editor's note: In light of Multicultural Week at Saint Mary's College, this is the first in a series exploring diversity in the Saint Mary's and Notre Dame Community.

By BERNADETTE PAMPUCH

News Writer

While the Saint Mary's Office of Multicultural Affairs is busy celebrating Multicultural Week Sept. 30 - Oct. 4, many Saint Mary's students are concerned about the shortcomings of the office itself.

"In my dealings with the Multicultural Office in the last four years, I haven't felt like the door is open to students for me to just talk about racial issues that have been bothering me or even just for information," said senior Tracy Hollingsworth.

Multicultural Office's sentiments are not unique among minority students on campus, said Alex, whom have perceived both a lack of interest in the actual situations of students and too much emphasis on the needs of faculty and administrators.

In the past two years, the Multicultural Office has taken great strides to help faculty increase their knowledge of a more diversified student body, reflecting an increase from 59 total minority and international students enrolled in 1987 (when the Minority, International and Non-Traditional office was first established) to today's 125 students. Recent programs have included travel grants for faculty and administrators, funding to help introduce new curricular to classes, the planning of multicultural events, and a multicultural award to recognize faculty or administrators who have made a significant commitment to diversity on campus.

Hollingsworth and others point out, the College's commitment to diversity and increasing enrollment has not necessarily been mirrored with help for the campus's Native American, Asian and Latino theme.

Hollingsworth, a social work major, points to a personal experience from last year when she approached the Office about helping fund her participation in a national conference on race and ethnicity.

"When I first heard about the conference I went to see if they could help fund it, they were funding five faculty members to go, but no students. They told me that faculty had first priority," she said. She went on to express disappointment in an office supposedly committed to diversity on campus.

Freshmen Glowingrainbow and Laura Jamieson acknowledged that they have had very little contact with the Office of Multicultural Affairs aside from an invitation to a introductory dinner on diversity and a panel of prospective majors.

"They've never called me to check up on me personally or invite me to help out (in planning activities) or anything like that," said McDonald. Glowingrainbow added that she had very little knowledge of the Office at all and mostly "heard about activities through friends.

The activities around this week, controversy resulted last year over what some students perceived as a lack of resources for activities centered around a Latino theme. This year's Multicultural Week reflects Native American, Asian and Latino programs as a result of the discerning voice by Saint Mary's students in meetings with the office's director, Marcia Ramirez.

Students took advantage of the last year attempted to ensure the addition of more elements of Asian culture, said that "last Hello again. No, this column is not about the injustices of the system again. Inside you will find a political position or social commentary whatsoever. Instead, the column will begin and end with quotes from a 1966 book by the University of Notre Dame's John W. McCormick. Those who have not returned to this area due to a possibly terminal illness.

"I remember walking down the Main Quad (front of the Dome) in that cool, heavy, wet air with the leaves changing all around me - wet leaves on the green grass... You can't imagine how wonderful it was for a little 17 year old kid who never had anything and came from nowhere to be at Notre Dame." As much as I proclaimed my dislike for the University's paternalistic policies in this very space just two weeks ago, the truth of this experience cannot be denied by anyone who has set foot here before.

Notre Dame is a very special place. The announcements for Saturday's football game stated that this is one of the most beautiful campuses in the country. The school is small enough that you never get lost in the shuffle and large enough that you can be a part of the university.

Whether you are in the backwoods of maine, New York or St. Louis, California, everyone has heard of The University of Notre Dame. There is even a steamboat named after her in the Amazon basin whose only goal in life was to be a part of the Golden Years. But if you have ever had a heart attack, you understand why it is so hard to recover from this disease that is so common in women.

Notre Dame is a member of the Association of Jesuit Colleges and Universities. All members have their own unique look at the world. Different schools have different priorities. At Notre Dame, the priority is to keep the school's tradition alive.

The deal sets aside 7,500 acres, most of it owned by the University of Notre Dame, for a public preserve in an old-growth redwood forest 10 miles north of the city. The preserve will be run by the university, which has issued reduced-guilt guidelines stressing compensation for injuries caused by the disease.

OSU rowdies arrested in bW-3 weekend brawl

Observer Staff Report

Several Ohio State fans couldn’t leave town last week-end without running into trouble with the law.

Four Ohio residents were arrested Saturday at BW-3, 123 W. Washington St., on charges of disorderly conduct and public intoxication, according to Sgt. John Williams, assistant public safety officer for the South Bend Police Department.

Stefanie Paier, 22, of North Jackson, Ohio; David Sidenstricker, 24, of Amlin, Ohio; Douglas Sandholt, 22, of Circleville, Ohio; and Jeffrey Ford, 25, of Toledo, Ohio were those arrested, according to Williams.

All were released from the county jail on $100 bond and will appear in St. Joseph County Superior Court on Oct. 16.

Two females suffered minor cuts under their eyes, and BW restaurant reported at least $600 in damage, including broken tables and glasses, police said.

Police arrived at the scene after restaurant employees called to report a large fight. The fight had ended by the time police arrived, Williams said.

Employees told police that the fight began after verbal taunting between Notre Dame and Ohio State fans intensified. The primary instigators of the fight left the scene before police arrived, according to police reports.

Those arrested allegedly disregarded officers’ orders to leave, police said. The South Bend Tribune contributed to this report.

SUB smoke leads to LaFortune evacuation

Observer Staff Report

Last night, the second floor of LaFortune Student Center went up in smoke. Literally.

According to Tom Quarannillo of the Notre Dame Fire Department, a smoke machine in the Student Union Board (SUB) office was set off, filling the room with smoke, thus triggering fire alarms at 8:06 p.m.

Students were evacuated from LaFortune, and were only allowed to reenter after the building had been completely cleared of the smoke and the alarms were reset; a delay of approximately 15 minutes.

Dave Austin, Patrol Captain of Notre Dame Security, stated that the machine, which was used for a previous SUB event, was accidentally activated and could not be shut off.

Officers did not know that the smoke was artificial until they arrived on the scene.

However, Quarannillo stated that the machine should not have been stored in the room. “Smoke machines should not be in any room facility with a smoke detectors. It’s just a common sense issue.”

Awareness week expanded

By ALLISON KOENIG

Residence Hall Association President Nikki Milos attended the Monday evening meeting of the Student Activities Board in hopes of gaining support for Alcohol Awareness Week from October 14th-18th. Alcohol Awareness Week at Saint Mary’s College is usually sponsored solely by the Residence Hall Association. Milos feels that the week has lost effectiveness because the activities are redundant from year to year. She cited financial restraints as one reason for the repetition of the Alcohol Awareness Week events.

"RHA has very little funding, and that’s why I’m coming to you," stated Milos. Milos requested SAB’s financial and moral support in order to put more powerful mechanisms back into the week. She feels that the issue of alcoholism and underage drinking on campus should be a concern for all branches of student government.

Milos’ main petition for the Student Activities Board included bringing comedienne Wendi Fox to Saint Mary’s. Fox is a recovering alcoholic who is very serious about alcohol issues, yet presents information in an entertaining manner. SAB voted to provide half of the money needed to bring Fox in for Alcohol Awareness Week. SAB Coordinator Lori McKeough agreed that other branches of student government should be involved. She advised Milos to petition Saint Mary’s Board of Governance for the remaining necessary funds.

"We are seeing a lot of this kind of collaboration between the student government branches. If ISG agrees to help, we can name the sponsor as Student Government Association (SGA), which is all of the branches combined," said McKeough. "It’s a relatively new term, but it is a very appropriate one in cases like this.”

Crackcup Comedy Cafe Chaiwoman Mia Rinehold, who will be in charge of booking Fox, is excited about bringing a female comic to Saint Mary’s. "Getting a comedienne on campus this year was one of my goals," said Rinehold. "I’m glad that her appearance here will take place during such a relevant and important week.”

In other SAB news, hypnotist Jim Wand will be making his annual appearance on campus this Thursday evening in Carroll Auditorium. Admission is free, and all are welcome.

Also, elaborate plans for a Halloween party have been set in motion. Potential attractions include a murder/mystery game, and a candy and cookie reception in Haggar Parlor.

NASA privatizes industry

By MARCIA DUNN

Cape Canaveral, Fla.

In the biggest change in the history of the space shuttle program, NASA is turning over day-to-day operations to private industry beginning Tuesday to save money.

"Today is the first day of a new space program in America," NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin said Monday in announcing the $7 billion, six-year contract with United Space Alliance, a joint venture of Rockwell International Corp. and Lockheed Martin Corp.

Officials promise the shift will be gradual, with shuttle flight safety the 'No. 1 priority.'

In the short term, not even NASA and its contract employees will see much difference.

NASA still will give the final "go" for launch and make the important decisions during a shuttle flight, as it has for the past 15 years. It will retain ultimate responsibility for shuttle safety and hire the astronauts. And it will still own the four space shuttles.

But it will case itself out of the routine, day-to-day work, such as preparing the shuttles for flight, training the astronauts and operating Mission Control. Those duties will belong to United Space Alliance.

"Don’t expect shuttle ads anytime soon, though," she said. The shuttles seats sold to the highest bidder. Mayber that will come later, said Kent Kent, USA’s chief executive. Much, much later.

The contract, which was announced Monday but was actually signed late last week, designates United Space Alliance as the single prime contractor for shuttle operations. NASA will assign what are considered "extension options" that could bring the contract’s total estimated value to $12 billion over 10 years.

NASA was formed in August 1958 by combining NASA’s three former contractors—Lockheed, McDonnell-Douglas, and Boeing—into one. It has spent $3 billion-a-year shuttle program.

However, since Rockwell and Lockheed Martin already handled most of the shuttle work, the next significant cut, which will be made this summer, could significantly affect the contractor's revenues and future plans.

Child abuse case aimed at Academy

By ALEX DOMINGUEZ

ANAPOLIS, Md.

A former midshipman was sentenced to 90 days in prison Monday for molesting a 2-year-old girl, the second child abuse case this year involving a Naval Academy student.

In the wake of this and other scandals, including a major drug scandal involving the school’s student government, academy officials have ordered everyone to undergo counseling.

Jeremy Coale, who pleaded guilty in August to molesting the 2-year-old girl, was sentenced Monday in U.S. District Court to 90 days in prison, all but 90 days suspended. He was also given five years probation and ordered to undergo counseling.

Coale made lengthy statements in which he basically said he was sorry and was trying to get better,” before he was sentenced by U.S. District Judge Raymond Thibodeau, prosecutor Laura Kessling said.

Coale, 20, of Grand Rapids, Mich., is the second former midshipman this year to be sentenced for child sexual abuse. In June, Patrick Michael Chaplin, 25, a former leader of the academy’s Big Brothers and Big Sisters program, was sentenced to four years in prison for exposing himself and sexually molesting a 13-year-old boy in his hometown of Rockwall, Texas.

Child had spent weekends with a couple who volunteered in a program that shipped a home away from home.

Prosecutors said Coale abused the child in March and April, 1995, when he was a midshipman at the academy.

Coale admitted in April that he molested the child, but resigned from the academy after his arrest.

Chemical suits used in Gulf

WASHINGTON
Defense Secretary William Perry said today he had ordered his staff to investigate a report that commanders in Desert Storm ordered troops to disregard reports of low-level nerve agents on the battlefield — even as those commanders enjoyed the protection of chemical warfare air filters in their headquarters.

"I'm very distressed that some people seem willing to believe the worst about the military and the Pentagon. I'm very concerned about that. We people seem willing to believe the worst about the military and the Pentagon. I'm very concerned about that. We need a separate January 4th, Perry added.

He made the comments dur­ing a photo session in his office. The Birmingham News, in a report Sunday, cited log reports compiled for Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf at his headquar­ters in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, to assess the threat of chemical weapons in the 1991 war against Iraq.

The report said U.S. comman­ders, who had sealed their headquarters in Riyadh with airlocks and used to chemical warfare filters for ventilation, told troops to ignore Czech reports of low-level nerve agents.

"Told them to disregard any reports coming from Czechs," the logs say.

The Czech reports were made two days after the air war began in January, 1991.

In the logs, a military officer responded to incoming reports of low-level nerve agents.

"Predictably, this has become — is going to become a problem." Perry added.

JERUSALEM

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat has been in Washington for President Clinton’s Mideast summit since Tuesday, a senior Palestinian official said today.

Clinton had called Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and Arafat to arrange for the summit, which comes after seven months of fruitless negotiations. Some people died last week in the worst fighting between Israelis and Palestinians in decades.

The crisis began after Israelis enraged the Palestinians by opening a new entrance to an archaeological tunnel that runs alongside one of Islam’s holiest sites.

Today’s statement from a PLO official in Cairo came after reports that Arafat had postponed his return to the head of the sinking ship.

The deadline to reach a deal in the Mideast fight is 6 p.m. EDT, but the specter of more violence.

For Netanyahu, the summit is his most important test since he was elected as prime minister in May, defeating the Labor Party that launched the peace process with Arafat.

Eurotunnel, the troubled operator of the Channel Tunnel, suspended trading in its shares Monday as it negotiates with creditors to refinance its debts.

The deadline to reach a deal with the banks was midnight in Paris, or 6 p.m. EDT, but negotiations were extended through the weekend.

Court-appointed negotiators, who work for Jean-Pierre Matti, president of the French commercial court, was on hand to review any compact that emerged.

Earlier, Eurotunnel suspended its share trading in London, Paris and Brussels, saying it was doing so pending the review by Matti.

This happened to coincide with the birth of the "Seattle Sound," or "grunge," or whatever Baby name the music industry preferred any given week to call its creation. Within two or three years, the music industry had already dumped Seattle in favor of Los Angeles as music's new capital because it was a more eye-catching "alternative" music, which previously could not fit into any given genre, had become a genre all its own. The media picked up on this concept, and, voila, the "MTV Generation." Thus was born yet another name.

The idea behind "Generation X" was originally the same behind the "Existentialists" label: a name for a group of people who have nothing in common, and that is what they have in common. Needless to say, this is contrac­dictory and somewhat stupid. For example, those described in the book Generation X were 22 to 25 years old in 1990, making them 28 to 31 today. I am 24. My high school classmate who just began his college career, turns 18 this November. According to the media, these ages—24, 18—constitute a "generation." I've never heard a bigger crock.

Now, the title "Generation X" has been applied, like "alternative music," to nearly everything that is not related to Baby Boomer. The label appears in every printed and electronic media available almost daily; it is repeated like a mantra or cliché; it is a condensation, or reminder, as if to say, "You are Generation X. You are named."

To back up this cock-eyed labeling, the media compared Generation X to the "Lost Generation," the high society of the Roaring Twenties with their flappers and their speakeasies, their young New Yorkers and their Al Capone. The Lost Generation essentially parted their way into the Great Depression because it refused to do anything constructive or worthwhile. One could say that this cur­rent generation similarly has no focus—except that there is no single, current generation.

Generations are created by cycles of war and peace. The World War II genera­tion's males went away en masse, and people actually buy it. Students wear baseball caps backwards and rings on their ears, noses, and various other body parts, in an attempt to look different; and as a result everyone winds up looking the same.

One look at the self-appointed voice of this "generation," MTV, will tell you the current social order: boredom. On MTV's "Beach House," California teenagers with too much time on their hands wear sequined dresses and bicy­cle helmets while a crowd peels them with a few hundred plastic floor hockey balls.

On "Singed Out," faithfully repro­duced here at Notre Dame last spring, a shallow "Generation X-er" can find his or her appropriately shallow "mate" by eliminating those contestants who don't have large breasts or small noses and then asking them to shriek as loud as possible into a microphone. On "Road Rules" and "The Real World," evidently the goal is to make a group of trendy spoiled brats live together for a short amount of time and take turns screwing and squabbling with each other on television.

What has happened—the section of American society which formerly resist­ed the label "Generation X" has now gleefully accepted it. Generation X has become a self-fulfilling prophecy, and the media can pat itself on the back for once again being allowed to resort to backhanded clichés instead of providing real communication between age groups. And the Generation X-ers love it. They love having a collective name, because it gives them a group identity. Having a name gives them a sense of purpose, controls and pointless though it may be. Having a name means they no longer have to worry about being individ­uals any more.

And so, to quote Ed Brubaker, "Once again, the mainstream media has stolen youth rebellion and sold us back a bland version at a higher price. By portraying today's youth as slackers, they've given us permission to be lazy and stupid."

Upper-middle-class bored Californians think they're punk rockers because they dye their hair pink and complain that their rich parents haven't died yet. Sak's Fifth Avenue sells "grunge" clothing, torn-up, faded blue jeans and plaid shirts, and people actually buy it. Students wear baseball caps backwards and rings on their ears, noses, and vari­ous other body parts, in an attempt to look different; and as a result everyone winds up looking the same.

It's the new and improved James Dean story: Rebels Without A Brain. Except, now, the counterculture has become the establishment, and the establishment's laughing all the way to the bank.

Just add a touch of humor to a beautiful face and you have your own TV show, people of the opposite sex adore you and people of the same sex respect you. This was hard for even Jenny McCarthy to imagine just a few short years ago.

Jenny McCarthy was raised in an Irish Catholic family on the south side of Chicago. Her parents as well as her three sisters are supportive of her career. The three sisters are talent aggregated as the super-model, with all three being breast-enhanced 34C, and being voted Miss America each year.

As a child Jenny wrote letters to Wonderwoman, but never wrote the young Jenny back. This fact has helped Jenny McCarthy adopt the extraordinary personal style she has. "I know that when the little boys and girls come up with adoring faces, I try to make their three seconds worth the three hour rate. I'd feel horrible if I did anything else."

Following her graduation from Mother McCauley High School (where she ran track, played softball and floor hockey, yes, she said floor hockey), she attended Southern Illinois University for two years where she majored in nursing. She left college three years ago and ventured to California by herself to pursue her dreams of becoming a model. "At first everyone said that I couldn't do it," McCarthy explained in Coach Holts' office. "I went to four agents and they all said, 'No, get out of here, we don't want you.'" Later on, Jenny sent her first calendar to those four hapless agents.

When Holtz learned of her early turmoils as a model he jokingly asked, "What did they have dogs as clients?" Eventually, she got a "great manager" and current boyfriend Ray Manzella, and she scouted her way to Chicago, where she has achieved celebrity status. "Every time there was a door that shut I kept going. I just wanted to show people I could do it." Not bad for a girl who used to sell cole slaw at a Polish Grocery Store.

Right now, McCarthy is on a tour promoting her new CD and book, which she described as a cross between homecoming queen and class clown. The CD is fun and the book is serious, and it's affordable. "To this McCarthy explains, "I just wanted to show people I could do anything!"

The best part of winning is that you have spent all night winning and the next day the TV show is on. McCarthy capitalizes on the trend by releasing a compilation of fourteen surf tunes. When asked how she compiled the collection she explains, "I put together the songs that I thought were the coolest, like Hawaii Five-0. Manzella boasts, "It's the best composition in the genre, and it's affordable." To this McCarthy began her antics, "Affordable, school's out, sort it up, let's go out on a surfing safari."

During her tour, McCarthy stopped in South Bend to sign autographs at the South Bend Mall and well over 1500 fans showed up. McCarthy explained that this is because she was at a showcase of casual concerts and the tour is a fun way to meet fans. When asked how she feels about the tour, McCarthy explained, "It's sort of like gambling, I don't know what to expect."

And where does she want her career to go? "I see myself doing the best part of this year's trend." McCarthy explains, "I see myself doing a book on the web minus Bob Barker."

So, you're wasting time surfing the net, looking at the typical useless home pages, when you could instead be making serious money or winning a new car on the web? Yes, that's right. It's game shows on the web minus Bob Barker — so tell them what they've won, Baby! There is no need to buy a rowell, it's all free. Check out http://www.riddler.com. This site is highly addictive. The object is to collect monetary units called riddlets by winning games and then trading them in for prizes. It's sort of like gambling, but the riddlets have no intrinsic value since you get them for free whenever you run out. You can play solitaire games like answering the daily riddles that could stump even Alex Trebek, test your trivia knowledge in "Mental Blows," or solve the crossword puzzles in "Gridlock." But if you want to earn the big bucks fast, you have to risk it all for what's behind door number two, and play multiplayer trivia over the web called "King of the Hill" or multiplayer crossword puzzles called "Checkered Flag."
As anyone who has been treated by the infirmary here on campus can attest to, antibiotics seem to be an extremely common treatment for a variety of ailments. However, recent studies prove that these frequently used "wonder drugs" are rapidly losing their potency.

Antibiotics are the most commonly used drugs to treat diseases caused by bacteria. Researchers have found that almost all diseases, including some that were previously eradicated, are now more resistant to antibiotics than they were before. This trend is due to the overuse and misuse of antibiotics.

Drugs that were once highly effective against bacteria are now proving less effective as bacteria evolve to resist them. This evolution is driven by the continuous use of antibiotics, which encourages bacteria to develop resistance mechanisms.

For example, in the 1940s, antibiotics were considered a miracle drug with almost no side effects. However, in recent years, the overuse of antibiotics in livestock and agriculture has led to the development of antibiotic-resistant bacteria in humans. This has made it difficult to treat infections with conventional antibiotics.

The future of antibiotic use as we know it today is uncertain. Many believe that the era of antibiotic-driven research is over. In fact, the antibiotic era, which lasted from the 1940s to the 1980s, has already passed. The development of new antibiotics has slowed, and the number of approved antibiotics has decreased.

In addition to the antibiotic resistance issue, the general public is also culpable. The overuse and misuse of antibiotics can lead to resistance, which means that the antibiotics that were once effective are now ineffective. This is a serious concern because it means that infections that were once easy to treat can now be more difficult to cure.

So what are you waiting for? Time is money!

Michigan State gains another victory
By KATHY HOFFMAN

LANSING, Mich. — Michigan State coach Nick Saban didn’t exactly smile Monday, but his explanation is a lot less grim now that his team has won another game.

"It was a very good team win for us," Saban said Monday, referring to the Spartans’ Saturday tounching of Eastern Michigan, 47-0.

"Maybe for the first time in this season, we’re coming together as a team.

The Spartans (2-1) take on Iowa (2-1) at Kinnick Stadium on Saturday in the conference opener for both teams. It will be the 23rd meeting between the teams, with Iowa owning a slim 15-14-2 edge over Michigan State.

Redshirt freshman quarterback Bill Burke, who handled his first game last Saturday, will be the starting quarterback this week. Saban said that Burke earned the right to start Saturday, and he said that quarterback Gus Orson still could be a contender for the top spot in later games.

"Gus has had a pretty good attitude this week," Saban said during his weekly news conference. "I would be disappointed in him as a competitor if he didn’t feel that he’s taken the attitude that he’s going to work hard.

The Spartans had to turn to Orson after junior quarterback Todd Schultz was injured in the Sept. 7 game against Nebraska. Orson finished the Nebraska game and led the Spartans’ losing effort (30-20) against Louisville Sept. 21.

Saban said Monday that Orson and Burke were told last week that both would be sharing time in practice.

"They both had a good practice week," Saban said. "But we wanted to see what Bill Burke could do.

Burke ended against Eastern with eight completions in 25 attempts for 166 yards and two touchdowns. He missed his first eight attempts before connecting on a 49-yard touchdown pass to Nigea Carter in the first quarter.

"Bill was a little nervous at the beginning of the game," Saban said. "But as the game went on, he settled down.

The Michigan State coach repeated his weekly theme that his players have to be more consistent and play for the entire game.

Saban said the Spartans will have a tough time getting ready for Iowa because Iowa is coming off its second loss of the season, a 3-0 defeat at Indiana on Friday night — yet another shutdown. After losing to DePaul, the Irish responded rather well, tying a strong Connecticut team and venturing into the season. These two contests kept the Irish undefeated in the Big East. So how will the squad respond this time around?

Acknowledging the comparisons between the Broncos and Blue Demons, senior Chris Mathis said, "These teams have improved, but we’re playing against ourselves tonight. We have to be focused on this game.

Head coach Mike Bertielluci assured that the Irish are not overlooking Western Michigan.

"They are big for us. We and DePaul pretty decent teams," explained Bertielluci. "We definitely are a very tough environment at those places.

The coach was referring to the small size of the field at the two schools. This factor tends to help the home team to contain its opponents and vents teams like Michigan and DePaul to properly balancing their attack.

Bertielluci also mentioned the magnitude of the game from Western Michigan’s perspective.

"It’s huge for them," commented Bertielluci. "They get extremely excited to beat Notre Dame.

Another concern for the Irish has been scoring. Their 5-2-2 record is not as accurate a condi-tator of the way the offense has performed. In nine games, the Irish have managed just ten goals, two of which were scored in overtime. Friday night also marked the third time that Irish have failed to score a goal in regulation.

"It’s not a matter of changing our winning philosophy, Bertielluci, addressing the scoring situation. We have the best players in the right positions to score. We have to focus on what we need to do if we want to win.

Eventually the Irish offense is bound to come around, and when it does, watch out. This team is capable of winning games with their smothering, always forcing teams to step up and do it alone. If one or two players can step up, the offense may take off.

But remember, this is just the beginning of Big Ten play. We have a number of games with our talented personnel, led by linebacker Jarrett Irres and corner Charles Woodson, on the schedule.

On Monday I’m scared of everybody, said Barnett. It’s not a matter of changing our winning philosophy, Bertielluci, addressing the scoring situation. We have the best players in the right positions to score. We have to focus on what we need to do if we want to win.

"You show me a coach who’s confident enough in to play Michigan and I’ll show you a guy who is a nut," Northwestern's Gary Barnett said.

"On Monday I’m scared of everybody, Barnett said. "On Friday, I’ll be ready to go."

Northwestern trailed the Wolverines 13-16 in the second half last season but rallied for the victory in front of 104,000 fans. It was probably the most important football win in school history.

"We had what we referred to as a lot of belief without evidence and this year we have the evidence behind us that we can play with a team like Michigan and beat a team like Michigan," the Wildcats' coach said. "We're the team that Michigan didn't beat all season.

"It’s hard to think that four years ago when I was here you looked at Michigan and would say that was a team that could compete with us. It’s hard to think that four years ago when I was here you looked at Michigan and would say that was a team that could compete with us."

"We legitimately feel we can compete with them in this one," Barnett said.

NOTES: Northwestern has won back-to-back Big Ten openers for the first time since 1969 and 1970. The Wildcats are ranked 22nd.

Barnett is concerned about the Wolverines’ unpredictable defensive schemes, which make their talented personnel, led by linebacker Jarrett Irres and corner Charles Woodson, even more effective.

The team wasn't sharp in pre-game warm-up drills. The opening kickoff return was a slap in the face revealing immediate problems on coverage; special teams coverage was a slap in the face revealing imprecision of last week's practices. The simplicity of the offense to make changes when faced with unexpected stunts, blitzes, and twists showed hesitation and confusion. But these are all lessons to be studied.

Dave Krieg will run the Chicago offense.

Krieg, who turns 38 on Oct. 20, led the Bears to a 19-17 victory Sunday over the Oakland Raiders. After a slow start, he completed 11 of 15 passes for 123 yards as the Bears scored on each of their final four possessions. The last time Chicago had the ball, Krieg connected with Curtis Conway twice for 32 yards during a 13-play, 66-yard drive that set up Jeff Siener's 36-yard field goal with 11 seconds left.

"Dave played great, making great decisions and keeping us in a position to win," said Krieg, who was hospitalized for five days last week. "Then finally, he took one drive at the end to put us over the top."

Their three-game losing streak behind them, the Bears (2-3) now need Krieg to pull out a victory over Green Bay. He has a 5-0 regular-season record against the Packers.

"It'll be fun because people from back home will get to watch the game," said Krieg, a Wisconsin native. "But it's a division game, which is more important than anything else.

Football Ticket Exchange Information!!

Keeping in mind both the needs of students for a suitable ticket exchange program and the need to suppress unlawful selling/scalping of tickets, the Athletic Department and the Athletic Resources Department of Student Government have come up with the following Football Ticket Exchange Program for the '96 season.

1) Ticket exchange will be available for all six (6) home football games

2) Each student ticket holder may exchange a maximum of two (2) student issue tickets for general admission tickets during the course of the season.

3) The exchanging of tickets will take place on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of the week prior to game week, at the ticket office in the Joyce Center, from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

4) The number of tickets available for each game will vary by game, depending on the circumstances surrounding that game (see chart)

5) Upon exchanging tickets, all students will be asked to sign a contract asserting that the tickets will not be unlawfully sold.

6) *Any student wishing to exchange his or her ticket must be present at the time of the exchange, with the school I.D., ticket booklet, and $16

Center. Litchfield's team posted a 22-12 mark last season from which they return five starters.
The Cardinals are lead by hitter Jennifer Schilling and Liz Cohren. Schilling marks a very good .301 hitting percentage while Cohren leads BSU's blocking scheme with a 1.5
blocks per game average.
Brown sizes up their match with Ball State, "They're a very, very good blocking team and I think that's their strength. If they have a weakness it is probably their passing and ball control, so I think we are going to work on serving aggressively and try to keep them out of their offense.
Brown continued to explain the non-physical aspects of the game, "The other thing is that this is definitely a very big match for them. They always got fired up to play Notre Dame and I am sure they are going to have a lot of fans here and that it is going to be pretty emotional."

Defense dominates
interhall contests

By ADRIAN WILKERSON

It should be said that football, like life, must go on. So with that in mind, IH football action resumed Sunday with three exciting games at Stepan Fields north.
ZAHM 13
CARROLL 2
Zahn used several key defensive efforts to secure the victory and improve their record to 2-0.
The first half of this game displayed tremendous defensive efforts by both teams.
Turnovers by both offenses could have spelled disaster for either team. However, the worst that happened was when Zahn allowed Zahm into field goal range, which was no good.
The second half of the game found Zahm ready to break out of the offensive drought that plagued them in week one.
After stopping Carroll from cashing in on a Zahm fumble, guard/back Chris Orr hit Mike Garko with a long touchdown bomb. With the extra point, Zahn doubled their offensive production for the year.
Carroll pulled within range of a victory by doing absolutely nothing at all. Early in the fourth quarter, a bad punt snap deep in Zahm territory rolled out of the end zone. The resulting safety reduced the Zahm lead to 7-2.
Late in the fourth quarter,
Zahn sealed their second vic-try with a sustained drive capped off by a 29 yard Mike Bailey touchdown pass, which sealed the final tally at 13-2.
Zahn coach Jerry Fitzgerald had this to say about his revitalized offense. "They (the offense) really struggled in the first half, but really started to gel in the second half. We just need more repetition."

ALUMNI 16
ST. EDWARD'S 0 Alumni again used quick offensive production to run away with a convincing 16-0 victory over St. Ed's.
The brunt of the scoring for the Dawgs fell on Matt Mammolenti, who was responsible for 10 of Alumni's points.

During the initial part of the quarter, after a long drive, Dave Schank produced a 25 yard touchdown run. After Mammolenti ran in the two-point conversion, the Dawgs jumped out to a 2-0 lead.
In the second quarter Mammolenti, who had been pivotal in putting Alumni in scoring position during both first quarter drives, added a third touchdown. With the two point conversion, Mammolenti helped Alumni increase their lead to 16-0.

O'NEILL 3
SORIN 0 Fans of great defense would have loved the finale for the day. Offense was nowhere to be found in this matchup between the O'Neil Angry Mob and the Sorin Screamin' Otters.
For three and a half quarters neither offense moved the ball effectively. Both defensive lines would not permit fumbles deep in each team's territory to be converted into scores.
A Sorin fumble late in the game deep in their own territory allowed O'Neil to drive the ball into field goal range to secure the victory

In a battle between teams fighting to establish themselves following poor season-opening games last week, the Gamecocks outplayed the Fighting Irish. In the second quarter, the Gamecocks crushed the Fighting Irish, establishing an early lead into half-time. The Gamecocks led 7-0 in the second half, thanks to a strong defense and excellent offense. Led by quarterback Mark Rule and running back Drew Klusterman, the Gamecocks dominated the game, scoring two touchdowns on the way to a 19-0 victory.

The defense, led by linebacker Joe Lang, and defensive back "The Murmans" Murray, anchored the defense. Said Mark Rule, "We ran right through the Secondary played tight defense.

Early in the second quarter, the Gamecocks began to drive their offense 44-yard line and marched down field for a touchdown. Tailback Chris Pollina scored on a 6-yard run. Placekicker Mark Nicholson added the extra point, giving Off-Campus a 7-0 lead.

Perhaps the only questionable spot of the first half was the four-and-one at their own 30-yard line. The offense fumbled the ball, but the defense forced a turnover and recovered it. The Gamecocks led into half-time.

In the fourth quarter, the Gamecocks went on the board. Three plays later, tailback Mark Perez hit Voitier with another pass. Keough then kicked the game-winning field goal. The Gamecocks won their second game of the season, belonging to the off-campus defense.

75 Days of Student Government

As of October 1, 1996, Student Government will have been in office for 75 academic days. Have we completed our major platform issues? Have we listened to your concerns?

Are we really “Connecting You?”

- Book Fair: An alternative to the Hammes and an easy, effective way to buy and sell your books on-line.
- Ticket Exchange: An opportunity for you to exchange up to two student tickets for GA’s each season.
- ATM: One new ATM at the JACC for your convenience on football weekends and special events.
- Opening Mass and Student Faculty Picnic: A way to start the year with better relationships between students and professors.
- OSU Pep Rally: Organized by students, for students. A great way for us to come together and show great spirit and unparalleled sportsmanship.
- Presidential Election Events: Voter registration, absentee ballot information, and campaign issues made easy.
- The Guide: New and improved, with better information on the classes and professors you want.
- Board of Trustees Report: A thorough recommendation and proposal to the Board of Trustees on the need for increased social space on campus.
- Gender Relations Task Force: Offering a student perspective on what is needed to improve gender relations at ND.
- Connection Forum: An opportunity for you to voice your concerns at an open forum with Seth and Megan.
- Increased Access: Everything we do is on-line for your information.

We are YOUR student government. Please contact us with your thoughts on what we have accomplished. Don’t hesitate to make your voice heard at 631-7668 or stop in at 203 LaFortune. You can also reach us at http://www.nd.edu/~studegov.
Kalamazoo match-up focuses on defense

By KELLY COUGHLIN
Sports Writer

As the season progresses, along with the maturity and the confidence of the young Saint Mary's soccer team, strong defensive play throughout the past week has brought home a record of 1-3 for the Belles. Now holding a record of 2-7-1 halfway through the season, the Belles remain focused on improvement.

Led by the dominating offensive line, the Belles initiated a strong attack against Anderson University on Wednesday. The Belles contained the opposing offense through clinical ball handling and effective communication. Building confidence within minutes, the Belles buried Anderson at the end of the first half. The Belles continued to dominate throughout the remainder of the game.

Several members contributed to the 5-0 run, including freshman Katy Barger, juniors Daft Blumer and Eileen Newell, and sophomore Janice Weathers connecting on two goals.

Friday's contest didn't prove to be as "Belle dominating" against Hope College. After disappointing referee call, the opposing team received a penalty kick, converting for the lead in the middle of the second half. The Belles sought back but time proved to be their enemy as they were defeated 0-1 by Hope College.

The weekend was rounded out with a tie, 1-1 against John Carroll University on Sunday afternoon. Several adjustments to the Attacker's playing field brought about some confusion for the starting minutes of the game, but the Belles quickly regained control, ending in a final score of 1-1. Endurance fell on the side of Saint Mary's throughout overtime, but both sides remained unable to connect for the winning goal. Freshman Emily Moriarty was the lone scorer for Saint Mary's.

The Belles face up against Kalamazoo College today, who prove to be a very strong defensive team. The Belles are looking to improve on their recent record and bring home a victory.

Pang named volunteer coach

Former ESPN Hockey League goaltender and current ESPN broadcaster Darren Pang has been named to the newly created position of volunteer coach at the University of Notre Dame.

"We are delighted to have a very unique one and Darren will help immensely in the athletic and mental aspects of playing in the nets at a high level," said freshman Charity Ozbolt, who beat the odds by succeeding in the NHL despite his 5-foot-5, 155-pound frame.

"I have a great respect for Dave Poulin, for what he did in the NHL and for his decision to return to Notre Dame," added Dave. "Dave is a classic over-achiever who has succeeded in so many things because of his big heart, a love for hockey and an unwillingness to quit."

"And when I got the call from Dave to be part of the program at Notre Dame, I thought it would be a perfect fit. We have the same love for hockey and similar goals, which include putting Notre Dame hockey on the map as a highly competitive national power."

Belles secure double victory in triangular

The Saint Mary's Volleyball team won both of its matches at the SMC triangular on Saturday, ending a five match losing streak. The Belles topped North Central College 15-7, 15-3, 8-15, 15-4 in the first match, handily defeating Carroll College 15-4, 15-2, the last game of the day, bringing their record to 11-0.

Going into their own triangular, the young Saint Mary's squad felt they had something to prove. "We wanted to be intense and prove to ourselves that we were the best team out there," said freshman outside attacker Agnes Bill.

Not since defeating Hanover College on September 18, 1996, have the Belles felt the thrill of victory, and for a short time Saturday it seemed as though the losing streak might continue. After beating North Central early in the first two games, the Cardinals came back taking the next two with little effort. "Our passing broke down and we weren't as aggressive," said freshman Charity Ozbolt, who beat the odds by succeeding in the NHL despite his 5-foot-5, 155-pound frame.

"I have a great respect for Dave Poulin, for what he did in the NHL and for his decision to return to Notre Dame," added Dave. "Dave is a classic over-achiever who has succeeded in so many things because of his big heart, a love for hockey and an unwillingness to quit."

"And when I got the call from Dave to be part of the program at Notre Dame, I thought it would be a perfect fit. We have the same love for hockey and similar goals, which include putting Notre Dame hockey on the map as a highly competitive national power."

"The position of goaltender is a very unique one and Darren will help immensely in the athletic and mental aspects of playing in the nets at a high level. I'm convinced he will represent the program and the university to the highest degree."

In addition to his continuing association with hockey as a broadcaster, Pang served from 1991-1994 as the goaltender coach for the University of Illinois-Chicago, a former rival of Notre Dame in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association.

"I'm convinced he will represent the program and the university to the highest degree."

"Some players return to hockey because they love to remain part of the game, but I do it because I love teaching goaltenders and I have a passion for the game of hockey," said Pang, who beat the odds by succeeding in the NHL despite his 5-foot-5, 155-pound frame.

Irish linkster’s claim second Big East Championship

By TIM SHERMAN
Sports Editor

Last fall, the Notre Dame men’s golf team became the first Irish squad to win a Big East championship. Sunday, they became the first squad to win consecutive Big East titles.

On the strength of Brad Hardin’s 70-74 and Joel Hepler’s 78-74, the Irish claimed championship, two of them Big East, is a great feeling. We couldn’t ask for anything more.

And they couldn’t have asked for it to be much closer. With just three holes left to play, George Thomas’ squad looked to be in great shape, holding a seven-stroke advantage over the field. However, the pressure took its toll.

Senior Brian Donohue, who fired an opening round 70 to share the lead entering Sunday, had an uncharacteristic turn home. The co-captain finished the round bogey-double bogey-triple bogey for a 81 but the margin his teammates had built up was enough for the crown.

“I knew he wasn’t playing well enough to make it a blow-out so Coach Thomas was starting to sweat,” Hepler said. "We were all sitting at the scoreboard adding up the score and getting updates from the course." With tougher Sunday pin placements on the par 71, 7,002 yard course, the Irish slowly gave back much of their once 11 stroke lead, but Hepler’s improvement was key.

“I was happy with the way I came back,” Hepler said. "I was disappointed with Saturday but I just wanted to make the most of Sunday. Knowing I wasn’t playing for the individual title took the pressure off.”

Hardin, though, did have a great shot at medalist honors, but Seton Hall’s Mike Costigan carded a 73 to take the title.

Loss equals lesson

Team looks to regroup

By DAVE TREACY

As disappointing as it is to accept, the only thing for the Notre Dame football program to do after the loss to Ohio State is to move on. Despite questions and concerns, problems and pessimism, the Irish must treat the game as a history lesson: something to learn from.

"I would be shocked if this football team closed shop," head coach Lou Holtz announced. "And it isn’t going to close shop. There is no way that is going to happen."

There are lots of questions that the team needs to answer. Questions about intensity. Questions about mental errors. Questions about coaching decisions.

"The game, you still felt in the fourth quarter we had a chance to win," Holtz recalled. "Findsight, I look back on fourth down and 11 from their 26, probably should’ve kicked a field goal, but at that time I thought we needed a touchdown. We [quote]

Ball State next on netters’ list

By JOE CAVATO

About a third of the season is in the record books and the Notre Dame volleyball team looks like they could be headed for one of their best seasons ever. After a ten day break the Irish have been just as difficult schedule which intensely helps but they also have very good hands for blockers. And, Jim helps by telling them little things so they can improve which really helps." Brown’s squad has accomplished these feats and are ranked twelfth in the country despite several key injuries. Junior setter Carey May, dislocated her shoulder before the season and is near her return. Coach Brown explains her progression.

"It is doubtful she will play against Ball State. We are just trying to get her in more and more. We want to get her into a situation where she can go a whole practice. I’m hoping that this weekend she can maybe get in and set a game or two. It is kind of a day to day thing and we see what she can do see VOLLEYBALL / page 15
