SMC board formally recognizes ‘The Alliance’

By LORI ALLEN
Saint Mary's Editor

In a decision termed "historical," Saint Mary's College Board of Governance (BOG) awarded recognition to a campus sexuality group last night, after almost a month of deliberation.

"Nothing in my experience at Saint Mary's has made me more proud to be a member of a community that truly values change," said senior Carol Jones, a founding member of the group. "The student voice will not only be heard by those present here today, but will resound in the years to come. Tonight we made history."

Logged in the College history books with official recognition as a campus organization in The Alliance of Lesbian, Bisexual, Straight and Questioning Women of Saint Mary's College. Known by its common name, The Alliance, the organization strives to provide a safe environment for those dealing with issues around sexuality.

The group aims to provide students with a physical space with a safe and welcoming atmosphere to hold discussions on sexuality.

The Alliance first proposed its constitution at the March 3 BOG meeting, and was tabled until the March 19 meeting. At this meeting, BOG members formed an internal research team to seek out unbiased information to educate the members of BOG, in order to then make an informed decision on the question of official recognition of The Alliance.

The research team reported arrived to conduct a search on campus ministry opinion, verification of club adviser, Catholic documents and the laity of the Catholic community.

The board voted in favor of The Alliance's constitution and approved club recognition at Saint Mary's College starting now, and continuing into the 1997-98 academic year.

"I feel very confident in the decision that the women of BOG have made. I had this confidence even before I knew the result of the vote because of the hard work, long hours and research that was put into making this decision. I have the utmost confidence in the decision that was made," said Carol Jones.

The College Democrats met last night to plan tonight's forum, which will target increased awareness about the non-discrimination clause.

The board voted for Student Affairs Patricia O'Hara raise the question of revision to the University's officers. O'Hara accepted the recommendation last April 2. Recently she reported that she has met the recommendation.
I dare you

Apathy and cowardice
Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Gore celebrates gradual improvements

Gore celebrates gradual improvements

No doot is too small to earn someone
Pat on the back from Vice President Al
Gore when it comes to improving government.

Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.

Are these the salient
Barriers to the future
Leaders of our country?
I'm sick of death
People who don't know
Or don't care what's going on.
Bar Hona? How
does your conscience
Tell you to win?
Women in the priesthood?
Let them argue about it.
Welfare reform?
Let them argue about it.
Students: AIDS exhibit evokes heartbreak, hope

By ALLISON KOENIG
Assistant News Editor

The faces belong to men, women and children from every race, class and culture. They speak of spirituality, careers, childhood, shock, marriage, strength and pain. They also speak about living with AIDS.

The stories are not just about AIDS. They're about the common bonds of being human. I don't think you'll hear any repeating stories in the exhibit," said Jason Dilley, the contributing artist for the exhibit arc living with AIDS. Although someone with AIDS. That's indicative of the disease serves as the common bond.

"I don't personally know anyone with AIDS, but I now feel as though I do. These are actual people," freshman Sophomore Pete Cesaro listens intently to the voice of an AIDS victim at the 'Face to Face' exhibit yesterday. Raul Gutierrez said, "AIDS needs to be exposed at Notre Dame because... it's one of those things we don't talk about here," he continued. A comment board is available for viewers to write personal reactions to the exhibit, and post for others to see. The reactions attest to the powerful effect of the exhibition.

"It's amazing how this can break your heart, and give you hope at the same time," read one anonymous note. "An incredible idea — you find yourself staring at the faces, but then looking away because it is so hard to bear," another stated.

"I think that AIDS education and warnings are starting to mean nothing to young people. What makes the exhibit work is what we find in education: to change behavior, we must change the feeling about the behavior. The exhibit compels passion, empathy about what happens in this disease," Dilley said.

"The exhibition really brings us to the here and now. It requires us to ask, 'How do I, as a viewer, think and feel about it,' or 'Do I not want to think about it?'" he concluded.

Today at 2 p.m., Dilley will make a mask of a community member’s face who has AIDS. He will be demonstrating mask making techniques in LaFortune during the course of the week. The exhibit can be viewed today through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m., and also Friday from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m.

See you next year...

Rob De Haan (center) and Melissa Faber presided over their last Graduate Student Council meeting last night. The new administration holds its first meeting next month.

Learn A New Language

Study Portuguese at Notre Dame

The language of Brazil, Latin America's largest and most populous country, a land of rich literature, fascinating music, natural beauty and international business opportunities

Learn fast: Intensive course
Fullfill the language requirement in 2 semesters

Contact: Department of Romance Languages

Abend-MUSIQue

Music for Ascension and Pentecost

9:30 p.m. Wed., April 9
Basilica of the Sacred Heart

Schola Musicorum
Free and open to the public.
Recipients
continued from page 1
by the funds are reportedly making rapid progress. Named head coach in 1964, Parseghian restored Irish football to national prominence and won two consensus national championships.

• Antonin Scalia, associate justice, U.S. Supreme Court, doctor of laws. Nominated to the Supreme Court by President Reagan, Scalia took the oath of office in 1986 after sitting for five years on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit. His legal career included his private practice in Cleveland, faculty appointments at the University of Virginia and Chicago Law Schools, and government service as an assistant attorney general in the Justice Department.

• Ann Claire Williams, federal judge, U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, doctor of laws. Appointed by President Reagan to the federal bench in 1987, she serves as an assistant U.S. attorney in Chicago and as a trial and supervising attorney.

Harris continued from page 1
said. "Looking out the window, I saw a man in a white uniform drawing. It looked like he was about to shoot someone," he added.

Williams and his roommate caught a brief glimpse of Harris' vehicle as it squeezed into a 10-meter wide space between his house and Norge's. "He barely missed hitting the gas meter," Williams said. "That could've blown up both houses." Noting the escape path, Williams looked out the window and counted at least five police cars following Harris.

"The guy jumped out of his car and just ran," Williams recalled. "The cops ran after him, and they caught him a few blocks away."

Norge expressed heightened concern about the situation. "I just feel that, since we are Notre Dame students, campus security should help a little — better patrolling, plus more concern about the safety of the areas where students live," she asserted. "We thought these areas were pretty safe," Norge said. "First, my neighbors see people in their back yard at night, then this drug bust happened. It makes us wonder if we're secure here at all," she added.

WVFI continued from page 1
release any further details.

Switching to FM would be the culmination of a plan that began several years ago. In the fall of 1994, WVFI's staff renewed its plan to attain FM status, a process that included demonstrating a professional commitment to the station.

Those steps were designed to meet FCC standards, which apply to FM stations but not to the AM band. Becoming an FM station would require WVFI to avoid any material not deemed appropriate for the airwaves, including songs with offensive or degrading language.

If approved, the switch to FM would expand the station's listening area. The present AM current limits the station's reach to the Notre Dame campus, excluding Saint Mary's and the South Bend community.

Approval from the University also has required that the station win greater support from student listeners. As recently as two weeks ago, current station manager Mike Flood announced measures to give air time to music that demographics professors favor, as well as to move to an FM frequency in March 1996.
RESIDENCE HALL ASSOCIATION

Only three tickets run in hall officer election

By P. COLLEEN NUGENT
Saint Mary's News Writer

Wednesday, the Saint Mary's College community will once again hold an election. This time, the College will elect its residence hall officers. LeMans and McCandless are the only residence halls with tickets running. "The other halls did not have any representatives at the mandatory meeting," said Barbara Nolan, the elections commissioner for the Residence Hall Association.

"But now the elections are closed and they will be reopened in the beginning of 1997-98 school year."

Jenn Cervantes, Courtney Morris, Betsy Lamora and Johann Tario comprise one of the tickets for LeMans Hall. With what they describe as taking the annual activities and building on them with new ideas, the candidates believe that they are capable of improving the overall atmosphere of Saint Mary's College. "We are looking forward to building on the old and incorporating the new ideas," stated Morris."

Melanie Garman, Carin Hansen, and Jen Nelson and Shelly Richter, make up the other ticket for LeMans Hall. Hansen and Nelson, former residents of McCandless and LeMans Halls, have been involved with Hall council since their freshman year.

"The incoming freshmen need to get involved through the activities that we have to offer," said Nelson. "A close family and residential environment through everyone's participation is going to be one of our main goals."

The tickets expressed ideas quite similar to those expressed by the ticket of Gina Gurrescia, Kat Rademacher, Penelope Kistka and Sharis Long, who are running unopposed in McCandless Hall.

SMC grads discuss careers

By CARA FORD
New Writer

Three Saint Mary's graduates with majors in psychology returned to campus last night to participate in a panel discussion with current students. Rory Cavanaugh, Karen Genovese and Erin Kopfer discussed their current occupations and answered any questions regarding post-college career options.

All three women stressed the importance of researching possible job opportunities early on in order to lower the amount of stress involved in seeking employment.

"Attending job fairs and researching possible job opportunities is helpful," said Cavanaugh, a sales assistant. Kopfer said her internship at a local hospital gave her hands-on experience and exposed her to several different career options. Kopfer currently works in Chicago as a recruiting administrator.

Kopfer believes her experience at a women's college contributed to her success in the business world. "Being assertive is definitely something you learn here, whether you realize it or not," said Kopfer.

Genovese, a graduate student at the Illinois School of Professional Psychology, advised students interested in graduate school to research their options and talk to current students within their program of interest.

"It is harder to talk to professors in graduate school," she said.

Genovese also offered personal insight in balancing school-work. "Stressing out in undergrad is completely worthless—it doesn't get you anywhere. Just relax and have fun," Cavanaugh offered similar advice. "You really have to manage your time well, but things have a way of working themselves out."

PPE

The Concentration in Philosophy, Politics, and Economics (PPE) is designed for undergraduates with special interests in the intersecting areas of political philosophy, political theory, and economic analysis. Most of our students go on to careers in law, public policy, or the academy.

PPE has three main attractions:

1. PPE integrates different approaches to politics and justice in a way not usually possible merely with a second major (and also requires many fewer courses than a second major);
2. PPE students interact closely with faculty members, both in courses and in advising and conversation (the student/faculty ratio in PPE's seminars and colloquia is about 10:1);
3. PPE students develop an intellectual community among themselves, especially through the Justice Seminar. PPE's intensive gateway course.

Every year about twenty highly motivated and talented students are admitted to PPE; check it out to see if it is for you. You can contact one of PPE's student consultants for the insider view:

Kara Arenas 4-4285 Arenas.1@nd.edu
Michael Williams 288-0116 Williams.108@nd.edu
Cristina Coronado 243-9172 Coronado.1@nd.edu

You can also contact Professor David O'Connor at O'Connor.2@nd.edu, or Professor John Roos at Roos.1@nd.edu. Applications and further information are available outside Professor O'Connor's office, 307 Decio. The application deadline is April 9. You may also apply electronically. Simply send Professor O'Connor an e-mail message, subject "PPE application," with the following information: name, address, telephone, e-mail, year you are in, expected major, courses you have taken in philosophy, government, and economics, your GPA, and a statement of no more than 300 words of why you are interested in PPE and why PPE should be interested in you. Acceptances will be announced April 10.
Alliance

continued from page 1
respect for the women of both organizations and I look forward to the future," said student body pres­ident Jen Turbak.

The incoming student administra­tion agrees. "I am pleased to see the hard work of the student leaders on HPC materialized in the decision. BOG thought for a long time before coming to this decision, and I am certain that we have made the proper decision," said student body president-elect Nikki Miles.

Associate professor of religious studies and department chair Joe Incandela was asked to assume the role of advisor to The Alliance.

The organization’s constitution also defined a board consisting of five women assigning the roles of Publicity Coordinator, Financial Coordinator, Correspondent, Group Facilitator, and Events Coordinator.

According to the organization’s mission statement, The Alliance looks to educate the larger campus communities on issues surrounding sexuality, create an open forum in which students freely and critically study the rich heritage of the Catholic tradition, and make the necessary recognitions to develop a mature religious life, cultivate a community life which responds to the needs of women in a way that is dedicated to the personal and social growth and foster an appreciation of differences and acceptance of diversity.

Initially we sought to educate stu­dents to be educated regarding their sexuality, but found a huge part of the success revolved around those backgrounds coming together, we knew that our goals had to be expanded to include all issues surrounding sexuality, not just sexual identity," said Incandela.

The Alliance is committed to its con­stitution a Policy of Non-Discrimination which seeks to set an example of acceptance, respect and inclusiveness for the Saint Mary’s community. The organiza­tion and its officers shall not dis­criminate on the basis of race, color, religious belief, national ori­gin, gender, disability, political affili­ation, or sexual orientation.

The College’s Board of Governance is the central student govern­ment organization which provides a forum for discussion of issues and policies that concern and affect students as well as the college community.

BOG seeks to actively facilitate communication between all aspects of the Saint Mary’s community and to make formal recommendations regarding issues and policies of the College in accordance with the con­cerns of the student body.

Lecture focuses on ‘making love’

By CHRIS SHIPLEY

The physicality and spiritu­ality of making love were con­nected in the second of a three-part discussion series entitled “Reclaiming Human Sexuality.” The forum, presented by Campus Ministry, featured speakers Fran Ferder and John Heagle who reflected on the ways in which love can be expressed in a relationship.

The pair discussed its discus­sion on the ways in which love can be expressed through friendship and honest, physical communication, and encouraged making love to not be the only way in which two people can make love.

"There is a lot more that goes into making love than just getting undressed, having sex, and having an orgasm,” Ferder stressed to the audience. "It is quite another thing to take your masks off, and let your guard down.”

Encouragement of commu­nication in a relationship is the explo­ration of friendship ensure that one can become a "professional listener," or one more in touch with their feel­ings, than the speakers offered. Making love, the two said, is taking actions enabling relationship to permeate the personal and the sacred.

"We must be in charge of our own self-disclosure. I can only say, ‘I am a lesbian, and I am proud of who I am and who I love,’ and our culture we are growing. It is a lot more than a casual, irresponsible sex is fun. Sally Jesse Raphael and all the others show us how we are really for inti­macy, and we must be in charge of this.”

Ferder and Heagle finally re­peated the goal to get that talk out. "We are trying to keep this interactive and brief,” said former College Democrats president Catherine Mullaly. "We want people to ques­tion, let’s set the goal to get that talk out.

Last fall, assistant vice president for residence life Bill Ryall denied the College Democrats request to host a rally celebrating National Coming Out Week. Organizers of tonight’s meet­ing deny that their planning connects with last fall’s events.

"I do not stemming from any specific past issues,” Mullaly asserted. "Also, revision of the non-discrimination clause should not be confused with a new section on recognition of GLDNSMCS, planners stressed.

The forum will be the first in a series of three meetings which the members of the College Democrats have planned.

Forum

continued from page 1
and that the issue currently remains under con­fidential consideration.

The deliberate pace of the proceedings has left some campus members dissatisfied.

"Why has it taken a year?” planner Matt Dull asked. "For us, this is a question of ‘Okay,’ this has gone on long enough. At least we deserve a response.”

"Basically, with the current clause, they’re saying it is just to discriminate,” asserted GLDNSMCS co-president Sean Mullaly. College Democrats plans on using tonight’s meeting to present their demand for a progress update.

Before opening the forum for audience discus­sion, Allison Dobson and Cooney will first lay the history of the revision process, why the revis­ions are necessary, why revision is a timely undertaking and why begun has it taken so long.

"We’re going to try to keep this interactive and brief,” said former College Democrats president Catherine Mullaly. "We want people to ques­tion, let’s set the goal to get that talk out.

In February, however, this young man with so much talent and potential chose to take his own life. His motivation for suicide was simple: he could not face the homophobia that permeated his world.

Now, 19 years later, in an effort to “bring this tragedy home with dignity and op­timism,” Mark Schubauer of Ester, Alaska has approached the Gay and Lesbian Alumni of Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s College (GALA-ND/SMC) with an idea and an offer. Through his own generosity, which was matched in GALA-ND/SMC’s 1996 annual fund drive, an endowed scholarship has been established in memory and honor of Jesse Raphael and Heagle. By the time the pair had spent much of the night together, Jesse Raphael and Heagle had won the battle to legally and judicially protect each other.

"The pair spent much of the evening challenging the trea­dency of popular culture to reduce sexuality and the expression of love to the act of sex,” in our culture we are con­stantly being told by the media and our culture that only casual, irresponsible sex is fun. Sally Jesse Raphael and all the others show us how we are really for inti­macy, and we must be in charge of this.”

Ferder and Heagle finally re­peated the goal to get that talk out. "We are trying to keep this interactive and brief,” said former College Democrats president Catherine Mullaly. "We want people to ques­tion, let’s set the goal to get that talk out.

Last fall, assistant vice president for residence life Bill Ryall denied the College Democrats request to host a rally celebrating National Coming Out Week. Organizers of tonight’s meet­ing deny that their planning connects with last fall’s events.

"I do not stemming from any specific past issues,” Mullaly asserted. "Also, revision of the non-discrimination clause should not be confused with a new section on recognition of GLDNSMCS, planners stressed.

The forum will be the first in a series of three meetings which the members of the College Democrats have planned.

Attention Government Majors!

Now is the time to apply for a fall 1997 Government Internship

Interviews will be held April 8, 9, 10, and 11 from 2:17 O’Shaugnessy Hall

For more information call Carolina Arroyo, 631-8248

The Hall Presidents Council is accepting applications for:

HPC TREASURER
HPC EXECUTIVE ASSISTANT
CAMPUS-WIDE OLYMPIC CHAIRPERSON
DATE WEEK CHAIRPERSON

Applications may be picked up on the HPC desk in the Student Government Office.

Due Date: April 10, 1997

GALA-ND/SMC Memorial Scholarship

In the winter of 1978, this campus was a happy place. The Irish were National Champions. A Notre Dame senior was accepted and planning on attending law school the following fall. By all accounts, his future looked bright. He was due to graduate from Notre Dame in May, and he was in love. The previous summer while employed at a vacation resort, he had met Mark, a fellow employee, with whom he hoped would be a permanent, loving relationship.

In February, however, this young man with so much talent and potential chose to take his own life. His motivation for suicide was simple: he could not face the homophobia that permeated his world.

Now, 19 years later, in an effort to “bring this tragedy home with dignity and optim­ism,” Mark Schubauer of Ester, Alaska has approached the Gay and Lesbian Alumni of Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s College (GALA-ND/SMC) with an idea and an offer. Through his own generosity, which was matched in GALA-ND/SMC’s 1996 annual fund drive, an endowed scholarship has been established in memory and honor of Jesse Raphael and Heagle.

Accordingly, GALA-ND/SMC is pleased to announce that it is accepting applications for the First Annual GALA-ND/SMC Memorial Scholarship in honor of this deceased former student, as well as members of the Notre Dame/Saint Mary’s Community lost to AIDS. This year’s award consists of two $1,000 grants to be presented to two gay, bisexual, or lesbian, or bisexual students from Notre Dame and/or Saint Mary’s College to honor leadership and to support the student’s participation in a six-to-eight-week summer service project benefiting the gay, lesbian, and bisexual community. Projects at agencies providing services to individuals with HIV/AIDS or agencies providing services to gay and lesbian youth are encouraged.

It is anticipated that the scholarships will be personally conferred by Mark Schubauer and representatives of GALA-ND/SMC this spring in South Bend.

The deadline for applications is Tuesday, April 22, 1997. Guidelines and application forms may be obtained from the Center for Social Concerns at Notre Dame or by e-mail request from GALANDSMC@aol.com.

The Gay and Lesbian Alumni of Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s College is an independent 501(c)(3) charitable organization with no affiliation to either the University of Notre Dame or Saint Mary’s College. HPC students are encouraged to maintain their pending their consent. GALA-ND/SMC may be contacted for further information at GALANDSMC@aol.com or (574)288-9765.

The Gay and Lesbian Alumni of Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s College is an independent 501(c)(3) charitable organization with no affiliation to either the University of Notre Dame or Saint Mary’s College. HPC students are encouraged to maintain their pending their consent. GALA-ND/SMC may be contacted for further information at GALANDSMC@aol.com or (574)288-9765.
Nanni extolls virtues of living in a community

By SARAH CORRKEAN
Sue's Mary's News Editor

For Lou Nanni, executive director of the South Bend Center for the Homeless, the key to building a meaningful community is to mend the torn fabric of society.

As part of the Saint Mary's College Justice Education Conversation series addressing whether it is still possible to live in community, Nanni explored the question based on his past experiences.

"As true Christians, we must seek to bring together disparate groups in our society so that each can discover the dignity, worth, and God-given potential of each other to build a meaningful community," said Nanni.

Nanni, an '84 Notre Dame graduate, joined the Holy Cross Associates in Chile after graduation. Along with five other Associates, the group lived in a home together and were forced to create their own community beside the greater community of the poor they served while in Chile.

The group encountered some problems and disagreements while living in close quarters, Nanni said. But after they discussed together what annoyed each one of them, problems were resolved.

"We were forced to come up with a list of people who were not contributing to the community, and I was on everyone's list," laughed Nanni.

Living with the other Associates in Chile, I learned about my limitations which is critical to building an interdependency with others," he added.

Reflecting on the experience and his attitude before his excursion in Chile, Nanni noted he had always thought community meant serving the guests.

But through experiences over the years, Nanni has seen a community develop has been at the Center for the Homeless.

He cited examples of guests who have so few material possessions and no family in other areas of the community, Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

"Participation may be low in some areas, but people are finding ways to volunteer in other areas of the community that are just as important," said junior Brenda Hoban.

Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

They need each other to help one another grow closer to God to become the type of Christians they want to become," Nanni noted.

Nanni extolls virtues of living in a community

"As true Christians, we must seek to bring together disparate groups in our society so that each can discover the dignity, worth, and God-given potential of each other to build a meaningful community," said Nanni.

Nanni, an '84 Notre Dame graduate, joined the Holy Cross Associates in Chile after graduation. Along with five other Associates, the group lived in a home together and were forced to create their own community beside the greater community of the poor they served while in Chile.

The group encountered some problems and disagreements while living in close quarters, Nanni said. But after they discussed together what annoyed each one of them, problems were resolved.

"We were forced to come up with a list of people who were not contributing to the community, and I was on everyone's list," laughed Nanni.

Living with the other Associates in Chile, I learned about my limitations which is critical to building an interdependency with others," he added.

Reflecting on the experience and his attitude before his excursion in Chile, Nanni noted he had always thought community meant serving the guests.

But through experiences over the years, Nanni has seen a community develop has been at the Center for the Homeless.

He cited examples of guests who have so few material possessions and no family in other areas of the community, Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

"Participation may be low in some areas, but people are finding ways to volunteer in other areas of the community that are just as important," said junior Brenda Hoban.

Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

They need each other to help one another grow closer to God to become the type of Christians they want to become," Nanni noted.

Nanni extolls virtues of living in a community

"As true Christians, we must seek to bring together disparate groups in our society so that each can discover the dignity, worth, and God-given potential of each other to build a meaningful community," said Nanni.

Nanni, an '84 Notre Dame graduate, joined the Holy Cross Associates in Chile after graduation. Along with five other Associates, the group lived in a home together and were forced to create their own community beside the greater community of the poor they served while in Chile.

The group encountered some problems and disagreements while living in close quarters, Nanni said. But after they discussed together what annoyed each one of them, problems were resolved.

"We were forced to come up with a list of people who were not contributing to the community, and I was on everyone's list," laughed Nanni.

Living with the other Associates in Chile, I learned about my limitations which is critical to building an interdependency with others," he added.

Reflecting on the experience and his attitude before his excursion in Chile, Nanni noted he had always thought community meant serving the guests.

But through experiences over the years, Nanni has seen a community develop has been at the Center for the Homeless.

He cited examples of guests who have so few material possessions and no family in other areas of the community, Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

"Participation may be low in some areas, but people are finding ways to volunteer in other areas of the community that are just as important," said junior Brenda Hoban.

Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

They need each other to help one another grow closer to God to become the type of Christians they want to become," Nanni noted.

Nanni extolls virtues of living in a community

"As true Christians, we must seek to bring together disparate groups in our society so that each can discover the dignity, worth, and God-given potential of each other to build a meaningful community," said Nanni.

Nanni, an '84 Notre Dame graduate, joined the Holy Cross Associates in Chile after graduation. Along with five other Associates, the group lived in a home together and were forced to create their own community beside the greater community of the poor they served while in Chile.

The group encountered some problems and disagreements while living in close quarters, Nanni said. But after they discussed together what annoyed each one of them, problems were resolved.

"We were forced to come up with a list of people who were not contributing to the community, and I was on everyone's list," laughed Nanni.

Living with the other Associates in Chile, I learned about my limitations which is critical to building an interdependency with others," he added.

Reflecting on the experience and his attitude before his excursion in Chile, Nanni noted he had always thought community meant serving the guests.

But through experiences over the years, Nanni has seen a community develop has been at the Center for the Homeless.

He cited examples of guests who have so few material possessions and no family in other areas of the community, Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

"Participation may be low in some areas, but people are finding ways to volunteer in other areas of the community that are just as important," said junior Brenda Hoban.

Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

They need each other to help one another grow closer to God to become the type of Christians they want to become," Nanni noted.

Nanni extolls virtues of living in a community

"As true Christians, we must seek to bring together disparate groups in our society so that each can discover the dignity, worth, and God-given potential of each other to build a meaningful community," said Nanni.

Nanni, an '84 Notre Dame graduate, joined the Holy Cross Associates in Chile after graduation. Along with five other Associates, the group lived in a home together and were forced to create their own community beside the greater community of the poor they served while in Chile.

The group encountered some problems and disagreements while living in close quarters, Nanni said. But after they discussed together what annoyed each one of them, problems were resolved.

"We were forced to come up with a list of people who were not contributing to the community, and I was on everyone's list," laughed Nanni.

Living with the other Associates in Chile, I learned about my limitations which is critical to building an interdependency with others," he added.

Reflecting on the experience and his attitude before his excursion in Chile, Nanni noted he had always thought community meant serving the guests.

But through experiences over the years, Nanni has seen a community develop has been at the Center for the Homeless.

He cited examples of guests who have so few material possessions and no family in other areas of the community, Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

"Participation may be low in some areas, but people are finding ways to volunteer in other areas of the community that are just as important," said junior Brenda Hoban.

Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

They need each other to help one another grow closer to God to become the type of Christians they want to become," Nanni noted.

Nanni extolls virtues of living in a community

"As true Christians, we must seek to bring together disparate groups in our society so that each can discover the dignity, worth, and God-given potential of each other to build a meaningful community," said Nanni.

Nanni, an '84 Notre Dame graduate, joined the Holy Cross Associates in Chile after graduation. Along with five other Associates, the group lived in a home together and were forced to create their own community beside the greater community of the poor they served while in Chile.

The group encountered some problems and disagreements while living in close quarters, Nanni said. But after they discussed together what annoyed each one of them, problems were resolved.

"We were forced to come up with a list of people who were not contributing to the community, and I was on everyone's list," laughed Nanni.

Living with the other Associates in Chile, I learned about my limitations which is critical to building an interdependency with others," he added.

Reflecting on the experience and his attitude before his excursion in Chile, Nanni noted he had always thought community meant serving the guests.

But through experiences over the years, Nanni has seen a community develop has been at the Center for the Homeless.

He cited examples of guests who have so few material possessions and no family in other areas of the community, Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

"Participation may be low in some areas, but people are finding ways to volunteer in other areas of the community that are just as important," said junior Brenda Hoban.

Nanni believes building community is a two-step process.

"The homeless need the community just as much as the community needs the homeless," said Nanni.

They need each other to help one another grow closer to God to become the type of Christians they want to become," Nanni noted.
Comets and cults: nothing under the sun

Matthew Apple

used to predict his victory at the Battle of Hastings. The widespread panic in response to Halley's unusually bright appearance in the first half of the 20th century was the impetus for H.G. Wells' book "In the Days of the Comet" and the source of Mark Twain's debunked remark that as he had come with the comet, so would he go. Halley's appearance in the northwestern American sky has brought its share of self-fulfilling disaster in the past month, instigating the third mass suicide of members of the international Solar Temple cult, this time in Quebec, and now linked with the celebrated deaths of the 39 members of the Higher Source group. The mass suicide in San Diego has spawned endless television and internet coverage and renewed interest in millenni­alism and cult death, as we all lean forward on the edge of our sofas to take in the morbid details. Cults abound throughout the United States and the rest of the world, but they receive little atten­tion until death attracts the media hounds.

Cults are, of course, nothing new. Webster's defines a "cult" as any group which follows religious rituals that are not accepted by the orthodox; thus the word "cult" always carried negative overtones, and often leads those in the accepted reli­gions to consider cult members old, extremist, or simply insane. Historically, all Christian societies have sheltered remnants of previous belief systems, whose adherents sometimes worshiped secretly, sometimes openly, and always persecuted.

The worship of the goddess Artemis or Diana in ancient Mediterranean civilization remained prevalent until the advent of Christianity, after which the goddess worship is referred to as the Cult of Diana. Many historians and anthropolo­gists see connections between the Cult of Diana and forms of Mother Goddess or witchcraft belief. Outside the Mediterranean world in other parts of the world affected by Christianity, the ancient Irish claimed as their highest power the god Lug, the light of the sun, the Scandi­navian and Germanic tribes believed in Wotan or Odin, and various tribes of the Native Americans of Central America worshiped gods of the sun and sky in various animal forms, all beliefs now relegated to the status of myth or transformed into saintly cults by Roman Catholicism.

But have religious cults become associ­ated with religious death by suicide solely because of 20th century media? Even the tendency of cults towards apocalyptic or post-apocalyptic survival is not new, not even in American history. Several groups of the later half of the 19th century's "Great Awakening" predicted the end of the world on specific dates, even changing the date twice when their predictions failed to come true. Time seems to have a great deal to do with the cult belief, the sense of change as promulgated by humanity's concept of time that creates this irrational need or desire to transcend the mundane. Apocalyptic views of the world aren't relegated solely to cults, however; Christianity itself contains the concept of the Second Coming, the Jewish tradition of Messiahism.

The cyclical renewal observed in nat­ural phenomena which is traditionally the basis for pagan cults and the concept of the Christian Resurrection are not connected by coinci­dence. Until the days of the Emperor Constantine in the 4th century A.D., Christianity's early history, as celebrated and "Hollywoodized" in fictional depic­tions of the Bome of Nero, was set on a religious path of persecution. Persecution came to an end not because Constantine became Christian, but because of his Edict of Milan, passed in 313, which forbade persecution of any forms of monotheism. Constantine himself was not baptized a Christian until he lay on his deathbed, throughout his life, he regarded as the head priest of the state religion of Sol invictus, "the Invincible Sun," and in the interests of unifying the various factions of his kingdom, Constantine deliberately blurred the differences between the three most popular monotheistic religions of Mithras, Sol Invictus, and Christianity.

In fact, it was at the Council of Nicaea in 325, presided over by Constantine, that the Church fathers declared the divinity of the man known as Jesus, named Yeshua, or Joshua, in the Greek, deciding the specif­ic nature of his divinity by a vote. Constantine was acknowledged as the new Messiah, and upon the monarch's death, forged papers were produced which gave Christianity the status of of­ficial state religion and the right to anoint kings. Starting with the incorporation of the pagan religions of the Near East and through the assimilation of the various pagan beliefs and iconography of Northern and Western Europe, Christianity today resembles more the pagan cults than it does its base in Judaism. But Christianity is called a religion, not a mythology, and not a cult, because as a system of beliefs even its various sects have essentially the same basic ortho­doxy, that of the Resurrection. Why, then, is the majority of the Western World fasci­nated and repelled by the seemingly irrational beliefs of what we call cults? Beliefs in UFOs, charismatic leaders who claim to be Christ, beliefs in the apoca­lypse, whether by divine or natural forces, if there is a difference, should come as no surprise to a devout Christian. A surface reading of Christian scripture reveals all manner of irrational images, including the most oft-quoted book of the Bible, Revelations. Unless one interprets Christian readings strictly esoterically, there seems no reason at all to believe what a few weeks ago in a Time poll of approximately 1,000 Americans, over 80 percent of the respondents professed a belief in Heaven as a physical place, and about half believed Jesus physically died and returned from the grave. How differ­ent is that from the belief that an extraterrestrial object, hiding behind a natural object, will spirit away the souls of believers to an otherworldly paradise?

Matthew Apple is a graduate student in the English Department. He can be con­ tacted at mapple@skynet.net or http://www.skynet.net/~mapple.
Suburbia: Relentlessly venturing into the wild

Adventurous outdoor recreation has become a rampant fad. It is politically correct and fashionable to engage in extreme outdoor sports and activities. Among the plethora of things such as mountain biking, kayaking, and climbing, the quest for an adrenaline rush is the most popular. The quest for the purest, distilled forms of such sports is individualistic. And this can be true, in the sense that in the quest for an adrenaline rush, what the media is presenting as the ultimate experience, the wilderness character of the site. Every part and parcel of land does not need to be "conquered," or "explored". It includes partaking in an activity such as trail building which opens up moose for more recreational use. In the creation of a new park, some of the wildness character is lost. To the relief of the sensible person, a niche stretch of woods might be acquired by the local conservation department, presumably saved from the cruel razor of the subdivision developer. But the wilderness character, under the unlikely banner of the conservation department itself. They cut useless, loop roads, cut culverts, and build trails on the spur of the moment. The wilderness character of the site is lost, something of that rare commodity, that sense that one is standing in a place that is immense in time and always will be, a refuge from all that is angle-cut and sterilized. For even of all the works erected in that wilderness, the trees still return and grow up through the clutter, and the boulders still show a lingering artificiality and old bricks will remain in the ground.

Human endeavors to beautify a wilderness by building a pavilion, by building a picnic area for recreation often compromises the wilderness character of the site. Are these people who've gone to the woods on the weekend and qui­ete a little now and then. And in the ultimate act of gull, they have named the subdivision "Wild Wings". Apparently, it's a good weight person shuffling through the leaf-litter will come across a mountain lion's tracks that we've been pleased to return home for Easter weekend, and I'm afraid the people who are the teem that the builders have destroyed, like warriors denning the skirres the enemies they kill. Guess this is what the buyers want— bigger houses that are spurred, by a shoe commercial, take to the woods on the weekend and ruin what they go to see while waving some pseudo-scientific, pseudo-historical flag that suggests the wilderness character of the site. It's time to stop hiding behind the liberal and think seriously about what education is and what makes a person educated. The mark of an educated individual is not the fact that they've read but rather they could find independent ly. There are many ways for students to reach this goal, and fortunately we offer a good selection of them at ND. While the content varies greatly from college to college, the basic methodology of instruction remains the same: students are challenged to develop and use basic skills to analyze issues, solve problems, and formulate their own reasoned opinions. At a good university, it shouldn't matter what course of study students choose; because they should develop the same fundamental skills, regardless of the major or minor they get there, but not when they leave.

As people become more obsessed with this desire to be wild, the demand for the construction of new recreational sites and the reworking of old ones seems to have increased. But the development of an area for recreation often compromises the wilderness character of the site. Every part and parcel of land does not need to be "conquered," or "explored". It includes partaking in an activity such as trail building which opens up more recreational use. In the creation of a new park, some of the wilderness character is lost. To the relief of the sensible person, a niche stretch of woods might be acquired by the local conservation department, presumably saved from the cruel razor of the subdivision developer. But the wilderness character, under the unlikely banner of the conservation department itself. They cut useless, loop roads, cut culverts, and build trails on the spur of the moment. The wilderness character of the site is lost, something of that rare commodity, that sense that one is standing in a place that is immense in time and always will be, a refuge from all that is angle-cut and sterilized. For even of all the works erected in that wilderness, the trees still return and grow up through the clutter, and the boulders still show a lingering artificiality and old bricks will remain in the ground. Human endeavors to beautify a wilderness by building a pavilion, by building a picnic area for recreation often compromises the wilderness character of the site. Are these people who've gone to the woods on the weekend and qui­ete a little now and then. And in the ultimate act of gull, they have named the subdivision "Wild Wings". Apparently, it's a good weight person shuffling through the leaf-litter will come across a mountain lion's tracks that we've been pleased to return home for Easter weekend, and I'm afraid the people who are the teem that the builders have destroyed, like warriors denning the skirres the enemies they kill. Guess this is what the buyers want— bigger houses that are spurred, by a shoe commercial, take to the woods on the weekend and ruin what they go to see while waving some pseudo-scientific, pseudo-historical flag that suggests the wilderness character of the site. It's time to stop hiding behind the liberal and think seriously about what education is and what makes a person educated. The mark of an educated individual is not the fact that they've read but rather they could find independent ly. There are many ways for students to reach this goal, and fortunately we offer a good selection of them at ND. While the content varies greatly from college to college, the basic methodology of instruction remains the same: students are challenged to develop and use basic skills to analyze issues, solve problems, and formulate their own reasoned opinions. At a good university, it shouldn't matter what course of study students choose; because they should develop the same fundamental skills, regardless of the major or minor they get there, but not when they leave.

As people become more obsessed with this desire to be wild, the demand for the construction of new recreational sites and the reworking of old ones seems to have increased. But the development of an area for recreation often compromises the wilderness character of the site. Every part and parcel of land does not need to be "conquered," or "explored". It includes partaking in an activity such as trail building which opens up more recreational use. In the creation of a new park, some of the wilderness character is lost. To the relief of the sensible person, a niche stretch of woods might be acquired by the local conservation department, presumably saved from the cruel razor of the subdivision developer. But the wilderness character, under the unlikely banner of the conservation department itself. They cut useless, loop roads, cut culverts, and build trails on the spur of the moment. The wilderness character of the site is lost, something of that rare commodity, that sense that one is standing in a place that is immense in time and always will be, a refuge from all that is angle-cut and sterilized. For even of all the works erected in that wilderness, the trees still return and grow up through the clutter, and the boulders still show a lingering artificiality and old bricks will remain in the ground. Human endeavors to beautify a wilderness by building a pavilion, by building a picnic area for recreation often compromises the wilderness character of the site. Are these people who've gone to the woods on the weekend and qui­ete a little now and then. And in the ultimate act of gull, they have named the subdivision "Wild Wings". Apparently, it's a good weight person shuffling through the leaf-litter will come across a mountain lion's tracks that we've been pleased to return home for Easter weekend, and I'm afraid the people who are the teem that the builders have destroyed, like warriors denning the skirres the enemies they kill. Guess this is what the buyers want— bigger houses that are spurred, by a shoe commercial, take to the woods on the weekend and ruin what they go to see while waving some pseudo-scientific, pseudo-historical flag that suggests the wilderness character of the site. It's time to stop hiding behind the liberal and think seriously about what education is and what makes a person educated. The mark of an educated individual is not the fact that they've read but rather they could find independent ly. There are many ways for students to reach this goal, and fortunately we offer a good selection of them at ND. While the content varies greatly from college to college, the basic methodology of instruction remains the same: students are challenged to develop and use basic skills to analyze issues, solve problems, and formulate their own reasoned opinions. At a good university, it shouldn't matter what course of study students choose; because they should develop the same fundamental skills, regardless of the major or minor they get there, but not when they leave.
Beck hopes to please when he invades.

By ASHLEIGH THOMPSON
Associate Accent Editor

One look at Beck Hansen, and what you'll probably notice is a mop of light brown hair, big puppy dog eyes, and the gangly physique of an uncoordinated adolescent. One listen however, and you'll hear the winner of the Grammys for Best Alternative Music Performance and Best Male Rock Vocal Performance, Spin's Artist of the Year, and the man responsible for the platinum Odelay, Rolling Stone's Album of the Year. That's a lot of attention for a 26-year-old high school dropout from Los Angeles.

Music critics around the world almost universally label him as the meaning of cool, while the industry dubs him the definitive pop-icon of the 20-something generation. So what is the appeal? Beck's sound seems about as ambiguous as the man himself. An undefinable mixture of folk, hip-hop, rap and blues, the music seems to extend in every direction from some knowing center. The listener can never predict where Beck's music or lyrics will venture, but a trip through Odelay — Beck's fourth album — will be sure to keep the soul grooving and the mindwheel spinning.

While "Devil's Haircut" and "Where It's At" were early radio favorites, there is no one bad track on the album. Each has its own flavor, its own ideology. Any critic who labeled Beck a one-hit wonder after the 1993 release "Loser," should listen to Odelay and beg for absolution.

A spokesperson from his label, Geffen, remarked of Beck in a recent Entertainment Weekly article, "What drives him crazy is people thinking of him as a goofball. He's very serious about his music, but he thinks there's too much angst in rock. He'd rather entertain.

And entertain he does. He currently finished touring with The Cardigans, and now totes both Germany's Atari Teenage Riot and The Roots along with him on this small venue tour. He wants to get close to the fans. He wants to bring coolness to his generation, reviving the retro-cult energy that seems to be flowing more freely each time he wears a cowboy hat or makes another MTV video.

But if one thing becomes apparent from following Beck's career and reading interview after interview — Beck is the media's underdog favorite — it's his frustration with banal lyrics, with being a slacker, with disposable culture, and the listener who doesn't really seem to listen.

In this vein of sincerity and eloquence, Beck explains his views on image in the newest Rolling Stone — the one with his boyish face blazoned across the cover. "People have this conception that I put on different characters. But to me, there's a definite continuity in what I do. If there wasn't, it wouldn't work."

Beck certainly seems concerned with his image, but in the manner opposite of many of his contemporaries. He fears being portrayed as something he is not, of being misrepresented. He mentions his long-time girlfriend Leigh with affection, since she knew him and cared about him before anyone else or fame ever did.

And only a person like this could want to be dressed in a rhinestone suit while holding the reins of a white horse for a photo shoot. Beck admits to using and reinventing a number of different styles and samples, but he insists on taking them further, creating something dangerous and new.

What Beck decides to do with his talent in the future can only be imagined. Coming from a family where his Dad was a bluegrass musician and his mother was hanging out in Andy Warhol's circles, Beck definitely understands his ability to invent and risk.

Even after watching a few videos, listening to Odelay or reading the barrage of interviews and articles generated after the Grammys, it's still hard to understand what Beck is all about — maybe because Beck is the fusion of all of those things, a quantity needing to be experienced. No one can dispute that he's outgrown his "Loser" phase, but he's not the only one winning. Through the ingenuity in his music, Beck scores points for his entire generation.

Tickets

for tonight's show are still available. They can be purchased at the LaFortune Information Desk or at the door. Tickets for students are only $15, and are $18 for faculty, staff, and the general public. Doors open at 7 p.m. and the show begins at 8 p.m.
In 1990 the Berlin Wall fell. I think it had something to do with politics and dissent and stuff like that—I don't quite remember. All I know is that if Atari Teenage Riot's LP Burn, Berlin, Burn! had been out back then, whoever wanted that wall down could have done the following: 1) Take 100 100-watt speakers and line them face up against the graffiti splashed cement. 2) Hook up a Bose stereo with a few thousand Deutschmark amp. 3) Lay out some chaise lounge chairs and frosty masses of Diinkleweiss bier. 4) Pop in the Atari Teenage Riot CD, kick back, and crank that volume knob full clockwise. 5) Press play. ATR’s sonic blast would have torn through that wall like a wet Kleenex and chunks of mauer would have blown away like snot in a sneeze or the blast scenes in T2 and ID4. Burn, Berlin, Burn! is revolutionary music that incites seizures, fist-fights, palpitations, whiplash, the runs, and headbanging in their simultaneously frightened and adrenalized audiences. It’s music constructed after downing extra-strong coffee brewed with Mountain Dew to wash away ten Snickers bars and grosses of Pixie-sticks. It’s Minor Threat and the Prodigy playing bumper cars, as drum machines click off at 180 beats per minute under scratchy samples of what sounds like Slayer, Sick Of It All, and Sonic Youth.

With song titles like “Destroy 2000 Years of Culture,” “Deutschland (Has Cotta Die),” “Raverbashing,” “Delete Yourself,” “Speed,” and “Into the Death” you won’t find ATR on VH1 anytime soon (although, ironically, they are playing here at Notre Dame). Alec Empire, the musical incubus behind ATR, grew tired of the sleepy, commercial techno scene in Berlin, and it shows as this bastard child wrecks havoc with eardrums and electronica until the acceleration knocks you to the floor—the new, true punk.

---

Every once in awhile, a group comes along and makes a definitive recording which masters the style in a particular genre better than anyone. Philadelphia’s Roots have created masterpieces in the fusion of jazz and hip-hop with both their debut, Do You Want More?!!!??!, and their sophomore effort, illadelph halflife. The beats of the Roots move like a slow ride through Philadelphia’s streets reminiscent of another Philadelphian’s, The Fresh Prince, hit “Summertime.” Guest appearances by Q-tip on “Ita! (The Universe Song)” and D’angelo on “The Hypnotic” mark two of the albums better tracks. The Roots are a group that is able to see through the posing that often accompanies rap—“What They Do” denounces the sucka MCs who are after only money. The video which can be found on MTV (of course) pounds this home with its satirization of rap and R&B videos’ poseur MCs, low riders, and booty-shakin’ b-girls. Unlike most rap groups the Roots perform as a live band with their two MCs, Black Thought and Malik B. laying down well thought-out lyrics. illadelph is a well calculated and complex work. With street corner bravado on cuts like “Respond React,” “It Just Don’t Stop,” and “Clones,” the Roots massage to avoid sounding cliched, blending their deep, ever-changing sonic backdrops. The backdrops combine R&B, jazz, and their own style of hip-hop to create an album that will remain as lasting a force as Grandmaster Flash, A Tribe Called Quest, or Dr. Dre. And while the Roots have been lost among the shuffle and hype of the East Coast vs. West Coast rap rivalry in recent months, their performance tonight should open more than a few eyes to the newest wave of rap; it will provide a welcome relief from the body assauling music of Atari Teenage Riot and serve as a stellar warm up for Beck who samples unrepentantly from rap.

---

It’s A

prove he isn’t a ‘Loser’

* Stepan Center tonight

...and the other attractions

atari teenage riot

Burn, Berlin, Burn! ★★★☆☆ (out of five stars)

the roots

illadelph halflife ★★★☆☆ (out of five stars)
FAX FOR CLASSIFIEDS
1-800-484-1607 code: 9883.

BOSTON
Kentucky coach Rick Pitino stepped into his new motivational book. The bad news, he is not writing.

The man many hope will return the Boston Celtics to the promised land, has thrown the character design that he created in 1998.

Gasper acknowledged that the missing piece made some potential choices that wasn’t until he re-read the story. Assistant Prosecutor Mike Nolan reiterated the statement in the retirement status.

Some people are saying that Nolan stated. Someone probably was.

Gasper acknowledged that the classes were made some potential choices that wasn’t until he re-read the story.

Assistant Prosecutor Mike Nolan reiterated the statement in the retirement status.

Some people are saying that Nolan stated. Someone probably was.

It’s not that the guy interested in coming here. I have a lot of interest, he said at a bookstore at Boston University, I’m excited about this new coaching career. I am interested with things that are going on at Kentucky.

Ivation, who led the Wildcats to the NCAA title in 1996 and in the final game of this year, which was 1. The media has been on his game.

Ivation, who led the Wildcats to the NCAA title in 1996 and in the final game of this year, which was 1. The media has been on his game.

Ivation, who led the Wildcats to the NCAA title in 1996 and in the final game of this year, which was 1. The media has been on his game.

By JIMMY COLEN

BOSTON

Kentucky coach Rick Pitino stepped into his new motivational book. The bad news, he is not writing.

The man many hope will return the Boston Celtics to the promised land, has thrown the character design that he created in 1998.

Gasper acknowledged that the missing piece made some potential choices that wasn’t until he re-read the story. Assistant Prosecutor Mike Nolan reiterated the statement in the retirement status.

Some people are saying that Nolan stated. Someone probably was.

Gasper acknowledged that the classes were made some potential choices that wasn’t until he re-read the story.

Assistant Prosecutor Mike Nolan reiterated the statement in the retirement status.

Some people are saying that Nolan stated. Someone probably was.

It’s not that the guy interested in coming here. I have a lot of interest, he said at a bookstore at Boston University, I’m excited about this new coaching career. I am interested with things that are going on at Kentucky.

Ivation, who led the Wildcats to the NCAA title in 1996 and in the final game of this year, which was 1. The media has been on his game.

Ivation, who led the Wildcats to the NCAA title in 1996 and in the final game of this year, which was 1. The media has been on his game.

Ivation, who led the Wildcats to the NCAA title in 1996 and in the final game of this year, which was 1. The media has been on his game.
University of Notre Dame
April 11-12 • Stepan Center

collegiate jazz festival '97

ALL-WEEKEND PASSES
Students, Faculty & Seniors: $6; General Public: $15

FRIDAY
Students, Faculty & Seniors: $3
General Public: $8

7:30 p.m. University of Notre Dame Jazz Band
8:15 p.m. Virginia Commonwealth Graduate Septet
9:00 p.m. Purdue University
9:45 p.m. Illinois Combo (Trio +2)
10:30 p.m. Virginia Commonwealth University

SATURDAY
Students, Faculty & Seniors: Free
General Public: $1

11:00 a.m. Free Clinic in Band Building
1:00 p.m. Northern Arizona University
1:45 p.m. University of Notre Dame Combo
2:30 p.m. University of Iowa
3:15 p.m. N. Arizona University Combo

Students, Faculty & Seniors: $5
General Public: $10

7:30 p.m. Central Michigan Percussion Ensemble
8:15 p.m. Western Michigan University Combo
9:00 p.m. University of Michigan
9:45 p.m. Western Michigan University
10:30 p.m. Judges’ Jam

JUDGES
Trumpet: Lew Soloff
Bass: Marc Johnson
Saxophone: Nick Brignola
Drums: Louis Hayes
Piano: Sir Roland Hanna
Critic: Dan Morgenstern

Don’t forget the CJF PREVIEW NIGHT Wednesday April 9 @ 7:30 pm in the Band Building ••• Free Admission & Refreshments
Royals squeeze past Orioles

By CRAIG HORST
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - Roberto Alomar heard boos, starting from the moment he was introduced.

Jeff King heard cheers, for his home run, double and final, winning fly ball.

Alomar made his return to baseball after a five-game spitting suspension, but the Baltimore second baseman was gone by the time the Kansas City Royals won their home opener 6-5 Monday on King's sacrifice fly in the ninth inning.

Alomar, 2-for-3 and, still, hobbled by a badly sprained ankle, left for a pinch-runner in the eighth inning.

It was Alomar's first official game of the season. He was suspended for spitting in umpire John Hirschbeck's face last September, but the penalty was delayed through the end of the 1996 regular season and playoffs.

Alomar's replacement, Jeff Rekoulet, singled home the tying run with two outs in the top of the ninth, but King won it in the bottom half.

A crowd of 40,052, the largest for a Royals' home game since July 4, 1993, booted Alomar during pre-game introductions and each time he came to bat.

But Alomar was cheered when he made a diving play in the second inning on a ball that took a bad hop at the edge of the infield grass. He threw out the speedy Tom Goodwin.

The score was tied at 5 when Bip Roberts took third on a hit-and-run single by Jay Bell. King, who had an RBI double early and his 10th career home run in the eighth, followed with a winning sacrifice fly.

Jamie Walker (1-1) got one out for the win.

It started with a walk to Brady Anderson, Rekoulet had an infield hit that made it 5-5.

Anderson, who is playing with a cracked rib, led off the game with a double, the 1,000th hit of his career. He later hit his first home run of the year after hitting 50 last season.

Brewers 5, Rangers 3

MILWAUKEE

Spring madness came early to County Stadium on Monday.

Mike Matheny hit a grand slam and the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Texas Rangers 5-3 in their home opener in front of 46,816 fans, many of whom littered the field with baseballs, causing three delays and threatening the first forfeit in the club's 25-year history.

The Brewers, who began a three-day "Spring Madness" promotion on Wednesday in which bleacher seats cost but $1, were nearly done in by their fans on Monday.

Although nobody was injured, the game was delayed three times, and Texas manager John Oates played the game under protest. He pulled his players off the field twice in the second inning, with the delays lasting 14 and 16 minutes.

Finally, Brewers manager Phil Garner and umpire chief Jim McKean took a micro­phone and admonished the fans to behave.

The start of the game also was delayed for several minutes when dozens of fans pelted the field with the baseballs they were given as they entered County Stadium, site of several ugly fan-player incidents in recent years.

The final delay came moments after Matheny's grand slam gave Milwaukee a 4-1 lead in the second. He connect­ed off Ken Hill (1-1) following a walk by Jeremy Burnitz and singles by Jose Valentin and Gerald Williams.

Oates instructed his team to take refuge in the dugout for a good five minutes when fans littered the field with baseballs.

With order restored, the Brewers made it 5-2 in the fifth when John Jaha scored on second baseman Mark McLemore's error. Mickey Tettleton homered in the sixth to make it 5-3.

Cal Ripken Jr. (1-0), whose first start was washed out in Texas last week, gave up two runs on two doubles in five innings, including an RBI single by Lee Stevens in the third that pulled Texas to 4-2.

McLemore led off the first with a wind-aided double, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Dan Palan's groundout.

Doug Jones pitched the ninth for his third save.

Hill surrendered four earned runs on seven hits in six-plus innings.

To our two favorite guys,
Happy 19th Birthday!

Love, Melissa & Molly

Notre Dame Communication and Theatre presents

based on the novel by John Steinbeck adapted by Frank Galati directed by Reginald Bain

Playing at Washington Hall
Reserved Seats $8, Seniors $7, All Students $6

Tickets are available at the door or in advance at the Lathrop Student Center Ticket Office. MasterCard and Visa orders call 631-0129

THE ROCKIES DOMINATE THE REDS IN HOME OPENER

By JOHN MUSMAN

DENVER

On a day when the Colorado Rockies washed everything to go right — the home opener, before a capacity crowd, everything — it didn't go right for Jeff Reed.

Jeff Reed hit a three-run home run, Jason Bates had his third hit, and Bill Swift held Cincinnati without a hit until the fifth inning Monday as the Rockies routed the Cincinnati Reds 18-2.

Reed and Bates were each off the start of the opening day series on the road since April.

At home, the Rockies traditionally have been busesome (25-26 last year), and they didn't disappoint the crowd.

Colorado jumped on Dave Burba (1-1) for five runs in the first inning and five more in the fourth to bring out the Oates.

"It all boils down to pitching," Rockies manager Ray Knight said. "I put a lot of pressure on you off the field when you are down four or five runs in the last inning. And I don't like being in that situation. And if you lose, you are not making contact in critical situations. It was 10-2 and we have the bases loaded but hit into a double play. A base hit in that situation puts us back in the ballgame."

In the first, Larry Walker had an RBI triple and Dante Bichette an RBI double before Reed's three-run shot.

The start of the game also was delayed for several minutes when dozens of fans pelted the field with the baseballs they were given as they entered County Stadium, site of several ugly fan-player incidents in recent years.

The final delay came moments after Matheny's grand slam gave Milwaukee a 4-1 lead in the second. He connected off Ken Hill (1-1) following a walk by Jeremy Burnitz and singles by Jose Valentin and Gerald Williams.

Oates instructed his team to take refuge in the dugout for a good five minutes when fans littered the field with baseballs.

With order restored, the Brewers made it 5-2 in the fifth when John Jaha scored on second baseman Mark McLemore's error. Mickey Tettleton homered in the sixth to make it 5-3.

Cal Ripken Jr. (1-0), whose first start was washed out in Texas last week, gave up two runs on two doubles in five innings, including an RBI single by Lee Stevens in the third that pulled Texas to 4-2.

McLemore led off the first with a wind-aided double, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Dan Palan's groundout.

Doug Jones pitched the ninth for his third save.

Hill surrendered four earned runs on seven hits in six-plus innings.

Help yourself help the earth
Sponsored by Terra Club
Questions? E-mail: earth@darwin.helios.nd.edu

Interested in an Environmental Career?

Come to the Environmental Career Information Day

Thursday April 10th 12:00 - 4:30 p.m. at the CSC

Students in all disciplines and all classes are welcome

Learn about jobs that work with the Environment at the career fair:

• US Environmental Protection Agency
• Hoosier Environmental Council
• Chicago Assoc. Planners and Architects
• SuperPower Waste Systems
• Indiana University - Purdue University, Indianapolis (IUPUI)
• School of Public and Environmental Affairs
• Advanced Pollution Technologies, Ltd.
• Solid Waste Management District of St. Joseph County

Group discussions
12:30 - 1:30 pm USEPA
1:00 - 2:00 pm Advanced Pollution Technologies, Ltd.
1:30 - 2:30 pm Mishawaka Utilities Water Department
2:00 - 3:00 pm Solid Waste Management District of St. Joseph County

More companies may be added!

Tickets are available at the door or in advance at the Lathrop Student Center Ticket Office. MasterCard and Visa orders call 631-0129

PAGE 14

The Observer • SPORTS
Tuesday, April 8, 1997

The Rockies drew 48,014 for their home opener, extending their consecutive sellout streak to 133 games — a major league record.

After going 28-53 on the road last season, the Rockies won four out of six on a sea­son-opening road trip, includ­ing their first three-game series sweep on the road since April.

At home, the Rockies tradi­tionally have been busesome (25-26 last year), and they didn't disappoint the crowd.

Colorado jumped on Dave Burba (1-1) for five runs in the first inning and five more in the fourth to bring out the Oates.

"It all boils down to pitching," Rockies manager Ray Knight said. "I put a lot of pressure on you off the field when you are down four or five runs in the last inning. And I don't like being in that situation. It was 10-2 and we have the bases loaded but hit into a double play. A base hit in that situation puts us back in the ballgame."

In the first, Larry Walker had an RBI triple and Dante Bichette an RBI double before Reed's three-run shot.
Irish finish in top 10 at Kirk Bell Invitational

By GENE BRTLAK

By the end of this season, women's golf coach Ross Smith said Irish grab fourth place finish at Kirk Bell Invitational. The team played an impressive round of 309, including the whole Big Ten field.

Less than a week after achieving their biggest victory in the 1990s, the men's golf team returned to action at the Johnny Owens Invitational. Unlike the first win they achieved last week against a weaker field, this week saw the men's team finish fourth in an 18-team field against some of the strongest competition they have faced all season.

The team returns to action next weekend at the Purdue University Spring Invitational.

Men's Golf
Johnny Owens Invitational Results

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>Player Finish</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Toledo</td>
<td>786</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miami (OH)</td>
<td>881</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marshall</td>
<td>887</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notre Dame</td>
<td>929</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. Kentucky</td>
<td>965</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>9. Brian Weeks 221</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>10. Todd Vernon 226</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>11. Brian Weeks 221</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>12. Brian Weeks 221</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>13. Brian Weeks 221</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Men's Golf
Johnny Owens Invitational Results

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>Player Finish</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Toledo</td>
<td>786</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Miami (OH)</td>
<td>881</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Marshall</td>
<td>887</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Notre Dame</td>
<td>929</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>E. Kentucky</td>
<td>965</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>9. Brian Weeks 221</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>10. Todd Vernon 226</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>11. Brian Weeks 221</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>12. Brian Weeks 221</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>13. Brian Weeks 221</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Women's Golf

Climbing Wall Orientations are available at the Rockin Memorial every Sunday at 1 p.m. and Wednesday at 7 p.m. (Call 4-1100 for more information.)

Special Olympics

Volunteers are needed to help Special Olympic swimmers. Practices are at Rolls Aquatic Center on Mondays and Wednesdays from 4:30-5:30 p.m. for more info, call coach Dennis Stark at 1-5983.

Recreational

Drop-in Volleyball Re-sports will be offering Drop-in Volleyball on Tuesdays from 7-10 p.m. in the Joyce Center. No established teams, no advanced sign-up necessary.

Recreational

Costing and Angling Clinic - Clinic includes three sessions, which meet on April 8, 15, and 22 from 6-7:30 p.m. Classes are held in the Joyce Center, Ralph and Etta O'Leary. Equipment is provided, but participants are encouraged to bring their own. The fee is $50 for the class and is open to students, staff, and faculty. Advance registration with the RecSports office is required.

Human Sexuality

Reclaiming Christ and Generativity Challenge

Every Human being is an image of God - an icon of the divine. Thus each of us, whether single or married, young or old, gay or straight, is invited to respond to God's invitation to 'grow into the full stature of Christ' and to 'multiply' - to give life to the world.
Sachire, Pietrowski storm Purdue

By JIM ZALETA
Sports Writer

The Notre Dame men’s tennis team improved its record to 15-4 with a victory over Purdue University on Saturday. The 11th-ranked Irish team came out strong after a much deserved rest.

The last match the team played was the win against Ball State on March 22.

The Boilermakers have fallen to the Irish in their recent meetings. Purdue, currently 10-4, faced an Irish team that has its sights set on the NCAA tournament in May. Notre Dame has participated in the NCAA tournament in each of the last six seasons.

The Irish opened the match playing hard and winning all three doubles matches by a score of 8-3. Junior Jakub Meyers. Keeping up with their Irish scramble to all ends of the court, Pietrowski and opponents, who made them struggle to all ends of the court. Pietrowski and Kupchick beat Bryan Harris and Jason Smith at No. 3 doubles. Since moving to this position the pair has compiled a 5-0 record. The pair is currently 15-9 in overall doubles play.

Sachire continued his hard work at the No. 1 singles spot. He defeated Purdue’s Gordon 7-5, 6-4.

“I have to credit Coach Bayliss and Coach Zurcher for all they have done with me this year,” Sachire commented. “They have helped me a lot. We always go out there with no fear.”

Sachire is currently ranked 42nd in the country, up from previous rankings.

“Sachire has a never quit, coming-back attitude, you see; see-what-you-got-attitude,” Bayliss said. “He plays without fear.”

Pietrowski won in two sets over James. Pietrowski, currently 17-14 overall, has seen difficult opponents as of late. He has continued to pull through for the Irish giving them big wins in the No. 2 spot. He is still has not entirely recovered from his elbow injury last season.

At the No. 3 spot, Simme lost a close first set to Meyers, 7-6, and then fell 6-1 in the second set.

Patterson improved his No. 4 singles record to 9-2. He easily defeated Greg Wessenberg 6-1 in the first set, but Wessenberg came back to take the second. Patterson turned on the heat though and won the third, giving him the match.

Rothchild lost in three sets to Jerad Harbaugh, but he has proven essential to the middle part of the lineup this season. His hard play has been overlooked, but he is one of the key players who deepens the Irish lineup.

Fifth-year senior and co-captain Marco Magnano played in his first varsity match Saturday for the injured Eric Enloe. Magnano won the match in two sets 6-4, 6-4 over Steve Brizendine.

“He stepped up and won one for the team,” Bayliss said.

His victory was a huge boost for the team. Enloe is expected to be in the lineup on Wednesday.

The Irish face what could be a tough match at Pepperdine Wednesday.

The Northwestern Wildcats will come to the Eck to play at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. The Northwest Western Wildcats will come to the Eck to play at 7:30 p.m.

“I expect a war,” Bayliss continued. “They are the best team in the Big Ten. They are extremely aggressive, big strong guys.

They have lost some very close matches this year to teams in the top 10. The latest being against No. 9 Pepperdine last week.

Sachire acknowledged that everyone has to be on their game to win. "The regional title could come down to this match-up," Sachire said.
Associated Press

May 17, 1997

New Orleans Saints star and former Irish player Ray Zellars was arrested early Tuesday, April 8, 1997, about 3 a.m. after Kenner police saw him traveling at a high rate of speed. He later failed a field sobriety test and had a blood alcohol level of 0.115, investigators said.

A 0.10 reading is considered legally intoxicated in Louisiana. Zellars, the second leading rusher on the Saints last year, had just completed a three-day mini-camp, the first under Mike Ditka, who was hired as the coach in January.

"We are aware of the situation and Ray Zellars was arrested early Tuesday morning," New Orleans Saints fullback Kenner, La.

Ray Zellars has been placed on the exempt list while he is being charged with DWI and having no license.

Associated Press

Tuesday, April 8, 1997

The Observer • SPORTS

Team names draw attention

By BETSY BAKER

There are many factors that motivate teams to play Bookstore Basketball. Some teams embrace the competition and the idea of becoming champions of one of the best athletic traditions at Notre Dame, while others just need to get in shape. Some teams like to go out and make a statement, whether it be with creative apparel or creative play, and still others just like to go out, play some ball, and have a good time.

Regardless of why a team is out on the court, there is one serious decision that goes into playing Bookstore Basketball — what to name the team.

Although they are few and far between, some teams decide to let their playing speak for themselves and go nameless, receiving the ever-creative "Team 272" distinction. But for the most part, creating a team name for Bookstore takes more time and effort than practicing for the tournament itself, with many of this year’s teams reflecting this.

Of course, every year brings the obvious references to the sexual repression that, as shown by the Bookstore names, apparently runs rampant at the university. It also pays testament to the student body’s affinity to the latest — literally, or someone or something fashionable or witty. However, this year’s names are often prettier and more creative than the play itself, but that’s one of the beauty parts about Bookstore Basketball — even if you can’t play basketball, you can still get some recognition for playing in the tournament.

You know what they say — it’s all in the name.

Wanted: Reporters, photographers and editors. Join The Observer staff.

If you need to do some catching up or want to get a jump on fall, summer classes at Holy Cross College may be just the ticket.

Take advantage of exceptionally small classes, a dedicated and caring faculty, and a convenient location just to the west of the University of Notre Dame campus. Credit earned is transferable.

You’ll enjoy summer activities even more, knowing that you’re also getting ahead in your studies. Write or call Holy Cross College Bookstore Basketball — or even if you can’t play basketball, you can still get some recognition for playing in the tournament.

Have something to say? Use The Observer classifieds.
Despite chill, Irish bats are hot

By T. RYAN KENNEDY

Despite chill, Irish bats are hot

Above all, Chicago State (7-18) and its thin 18-man roster is in town today for a 5 p.m. show against a Notre Dame team that dresses some 30 players a game and has won 11 of 12 games.

Freshman Tim Kalita (10-11) will take the mound for the Irish, and for those who have forgotten or never knew to begin with, it was Kalita who stamped five of the first six batters he ever faced with the letter "K." He finished his debut last week with eight strikeouts, despite losing 2-1 because the offense cooled to subzero temperatures.

"I expect him to do well." He's earned another start by attacking the hitters," said coach Paul Mainieri. "He lets it all hang out, and by that I mean he lets the fastball go and he throws strikes."

On the other side, Irish bats have inflicted mad slaughter on their opponents of late. Against a Chicago State team that has allowed some 27 home runs (to opponents' 10 surrendered),
Wagner, Armaine and Co. loom larger than life.

Ust himself has inflicted his share of damage. "We've just got to keep swinging the bats," Ust said. "Any time you can put away a team in one inning, that's an instant confidence builder."

As for the weather, Notre Dame seems to always possess the advantage, even against other teams that are accustomed to the kind of cold weather that continues to plague South Bend.

Mainieri's hard-nosed philosophy is an advantage unto itself.

"That's part of the game," said Mainieri. "It's something we've to deal with and it's something we'll have to deal with in order to win."
CUTR (April 21-May 20): Check your personal papers to make sure everything is in order. You will find that you are lucky today. GEMINI (May 21-June 21): You can expect good news today about some problems you are facing. VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 22): You have a natural ability to put a deal together. You may be forced to take a risk. This is good for financial gains if you are prepared to take a risk. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You have a natural ability to put a deal together. You may be forced to take a risk. This is good for financial gains if you are prepared to take a risk.

Saturday Magazine

DILBERT

HERE'S THE NEW ORG CHART. I HAD TO REARRANGE THE LAYOUT TO MAKE IT FIT.

WHY IS MY BOX LARGER THAN ALICE AND WALLY'S?

IT MEANS NOTHING...

NOTHING AT ALL.

OKAY, WHO TOLD YOU THAT EVERY YEAR, I FISH YOUR SECRETARY'S DAY CARD OUT OF YOUR TRASH AND SAVE IT FOR NEXT TIME?

WHAT?

CROSSWORD

ACROSS

1. Cobbler
2. City near Phoenix
3. "Hall-Hoody" singer
4. Med. sci. course
5. Part of A.P.
6. infield
7. Dancer
8. Jaamear
9. Persia, today
10. The Boy King
11. Sculpture in the Louvre
12. Maddox O'Hair
13. "Norma..."
14. Deborah's role in "The King and I"

DOWN

1. Naples noodles
2. Enter, as data: 1955 to the
3. Crew-Guts Pig's legs
4. Mother
5. The Super Bowl, e.g.
6. One of the Criminal's darlings
7. Nov. electors
8. Doctor
9. With the Kind of
10. "What a Fool"

Answer to Previous Puzzle

1. Former Feed offering
2. Orig. hit sticks
3. To our
4. Membreable
5. Count-calories
6. Can Bratzer
7. Mony
8. Precious metal
9. Loss-making
10. "Giant" star

Note: The crossword puzzle is designed for entertainment and may not represent real-life crosswords. The answers provided are for illustrative purposes only. The actual crossword puzzle may vary in complexity and may not include all the given answers. The intention is to provide a fun and engaging activity for readers.
SPORTS

TRACK AND FIELD

Irish tracksters look ahead after weekend success

By STEVE HARRIS
Sports Writer

Cochran matched Williams, winning the 400-meters (48.30) and 200-meters (21.93) over his competitors from Miami and Butler.

Other winners for the Irish were Jason Rexing in the 1500-meter (4:32.41), Derek Solling in the steeplechase (9:15.4), and Jeff Hojnacki in the 800-meter (1:51.6).

Jay Hefner captured the prize in the hammer throw (186-6), while javelin thrower Chris Smith (189.4 1/2) and shot putter Mike Fleisch (56-1-3/4) also came away on top for the Irish.

On the women's side, Alison Howard, Dominique Calloway, and Nadia Schmiedt emerged as double winners in their respective events, helping Notre Dame score 139 points on the day.

Howard won the 400-meter run in a stunning 54.66 before leaping 18-feet, 3 inches in the long jump. Not to be outdone, Calloway won the 100-meter (11.7) and 200-meter (24.25) despite tough competition from Miami.

Hurdler Nadia Schmiedt sparked Notre Dame in the 400-meter and 100-meter hurdles with times of (1:00.30) and (14.5), respectively.

The Irish return to action at a different position on the weekend's tri-meet between Miami (Ohio) and Butler. The women's side, Alison Howard, Dominique Calloway, and Nadia Schmiedt emerged as double winners in their respective events, helping Notre Dame score 139 points on the day.

Howard won the 400-meter run in a stunning 54.66 before leaping 18-feet, 3 inches in the long jump. Not to be outdone, Calloway won the 100-meter (11.7) and 200-meter (24.25) despite tough competition from Miami.

Hurdler Nadia Schmiedt sparked Notre Dame in the 400-meter and 100-meter hurdles with times of (1:00.30) and (14.5), respectively.

The Irish return to action next weekend at the Sea Ray Relays in Knoxville, Tenn., and at the Miami Invitational in Oxford, Ohio.

FOOTBALL

Secondary depth key for Irish

Veterans look to provide leadership on defense

By BRIAN REINTHALER
Assistant Sport Editor

The Notre Dame football program has traditionally relied on its front seven for leadership on the defensive side of the ball. In 1997, however, it is the secondary whose experience will be the key factor in the defense's success.

Besides returning senior starters Allen Rossum, Ivory Cooper and Jarvis Edison, the Irish have a plethora of younger talent with significant game experience.

"(The younger guys) are coming along just fine," said Rossum. "The whole secondary just has a lot of learning to do. When you see a guy make a mistake, you just make sure we point it out to him."

Due to injuries last season to Edison and sophomore A'Jani Sanders, players such as Betsy Guilbeaux and Deke Cooper were given an opportunity to cut their teeth at the safety positions.

Of all the players who saw their first live action in 1996, Guilbeaux, a rising junior, was, by far, the most impressive. Guilbeaux led the team with four interceptions and finished third on the squad in tackles with 62.

Senior Ty Guode and sophomore Devon Harper and Lee Lafayette are additional backfield options for new defensive coordinator Greg Maloney.

Among the projected starters, Rossum and Cooper are expected to be the veterans to whom the secondary will look for leadership. Each recorded 50 or more tackles and neither missed a single game for the Irish in 1996.

"We have the added responsibility of being seniors," Rossum commented, "but it's not really going to put stress on the secondary (to lead the entire defense)."

With spring football well underway, the competition for starting positions has begun. Although the depth charts will not be finalized before the incoming freshman are given a look in August, the backs with experience should be able to establish some job security during the spring.

The squad has tremendous depth at the... see D-BACKS / page 18