25th annual March for Life creates national attention

Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Right to Life members proudly display their banners and signs in the 25th annual March for Life, held in Washington, D.C., on Jan. 22.

They came to pray, and they came to protest. Hundreds of thousands of people gathered in Washington, D.C., last Thursday to mourn the loss of over 37 million unborn children.

It was the 25th anniversary of the annual March for Life, a movement which began in immediate response to the Jan. 22, 1973, Supreme Court decision to legalize the clinical termination of pregnancies.

"The number of people there, from all over, was overwhelming," said Notre Dame freshman Sheila McCarthy, representing Notre Dame/Saint Mary's Right to Life. 138 students, including five from Holy Cross College, joined the masses last week in expressing their pro-life beliefs; No Notre Dame priests, faculty, or administrators attended the protest.

"Notre Dame is the crown jewel of Catholic education in this country," stated sophomore Josh Guerra, one of the trip's organizers. "As a Catholic institution, it should give its full support to the pro-life movement, a major event of which is the March for Life. It is our character and our responsibility."

The Franciscan University of Steubenville and Christendom College are two of several institutions which completely shut down each year to participate in the march.

The combined efforts of Catholic, Protestant and Jewish groups illustrated the range of religious diversity supporting the pro-life movement. Diversity was also seen in the wide variety of age groups represented.

"One of the things I'm most impressed about is the amount of young people involved," said sophomore Jamie Kuhb, another organizer. "These are people who will be leading our country someday, and it gives me hope for the future."

An array of religious leaders, congressmen and special guests spoke at a rally before the actual march. The March for Life began at the Ellipse, the area near the Washington Monument, and ended at the Supreme Court.

Play of the Mind brings nation's women together

Over the weekend, Saint Mary's students, faculty and administrators joined representatives from 14 other women's colleges in The Play of the Mind Conference entitled "Borders to Bridge — The Women's College Challenge."

The event began Thursday with dinner, and concluded Sunday with a farewell brunch. The purpose of the conference was to explore issues facing women and women's colleges in the 1990s.

The weekend's activities included a guest faculty/student development professionals session, a host and guest team planning session, sessions on collaboration and leadership, and other discussion groups.

Some of the visiting colleges were: Smith College, Northampton, Mass.; Texas Women's University, Denton, Texas; Trinity College, Washington, D.C.; and Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga.

Sonia Gernes, English professor at Notre Dame, will help the Notre Dame Australian Club celebrate Australia Day today by reading poetry from her most recent book, "A Breeze Called the Fremantle Doctor," at the University Club at 4:15 p.m.

Gernes first conceived the idea for her book during her travels to Fremantle, Australia, in 1993, where she taught the first group of Notre Dame students involved in the study abroad program.

Originally from Minnesota and concerned about the heat in Fremantle, Gernes inquired about the availability of air conditioning in the Australian teaching facilities. She found that the classrooms were air conditioned but her apartment was not, because of a daily breeze called the Fremantle Doctor.

"My first thought was, 'Yeah, right.' My second thought was, 'A breeze called the Fremantle Doctor, that's nice, kind of like a streetcar named Desire.' I thought, that's a title.

"So I went to Australia with a title looking for the poem, and when I finally found one, it wasn't just a regular poem, it was a very long one," Gernes explained.

Her book is composed of three narrative poems: "The Indian School," "The Motes of Sleepy Eye" and "A Breeze Called the Fremantle Doctor." While in Fremantle, Gernes spent her Sunday afternoons in a building dedicated to poetry readings, folk singing and other events. Gernes learned that the building had once served as an asylum and she began to imagine the stories that lived behind its walls.

"Because I spent quite a bit of time there, that story of the breeze echoed in my mind as I began to imagine the women who had been in this building at different periods," said Gernes.

Although the three poems in "A Breeze Called the Fremantle Doctor" pertain to different subject matters, they all relate to a real and specific time, and deal with some kind of disability or difficulty. Gernes will concentrate today on the last section of her book which deals with Australia.

The Notre Dame Australian Club welcomes everyone to the reading and the reception following the event.

President Bill Clinton, who has now walked down this path before, was not that the president might never resign, he is choosing to pursue the program "Biography" on the Arts and Entertainment network said this week, "He seems to be in good health. It is that hard, back, and counter-punching." All this week, aides from respected, independently, Clinton has been operating without any appearance of distraction or distress. The real loser: The image of the U.S.

The first black to President Bill Clinton was not the same kind of thing that he does, involving in trying to dig up White-House Republican zealots grabbing at every single ties with the commander-in-chief and then, would ever have actually connected himself to the process.

There was no more speculation about Lombardi's future as UF president.

 Instead, there was only Gator spirit and unwavering support for a man who in the past week has been called by many legislators, students, faculty and friends the best president this university — or any in the country — has ever had.

The Thursday night rally organized by student government brought many to cheer and several to tears. It was more hopeful mood than that of last week when it became public that Lombardi had called new chancellor Herb Stiefel Herbert — the first Black to hold the position in Florida — an "Oreo." "It's like going to a football game," Rep. Bob Casey, B-Gamesaid, as he stood among students, community members, UF faculty and local and state politicians.

But this time, the fans in their orange and blue garb were cheering on one man with white hair and think, black glaucom who drives an old red pickup. "Chants of "Hell no, he won't go," were followed by screams of "We want Clinton." "We want Lombardi."

"I hope this will give him a little personal resolve and strength to fight some of the pressure from the Board of Regents," said Regent Sen. Avery Dial said. "The regents are not playing bully anymore. They have something going back in our court."

The real loser: The image of the U.S.

Robert Rhoan, usac finance committee chair, resigned from his office Thursday, citing "personal reasons" in his official statement. "I'm resigning because I think that student government is corrupt," Rhoan said in an interview. "USAC doesn't represent the students. They only represent university — or any in the country — has ever had."

Dillon turns up energy awareness

By TOM ENRIGHT
News Writer

While students at Saint Mary's and Notre Dame opened their pockets for holiday charities, the residents of Dillon Hall cut back. As the winner of the Dorm Energy Conservation Contest, Dillon had the smallest dorm energy consumption increase, 6.21 electric-kilowatt hours per person, over a one-month period.

"We were hoping to boost campus awareness of our individual roles in decreasing fuel consumption," said Karen Cardinal, a member of Students for Environmental Action and founder of the Notre Dame Environmental Coalition. The contest, sponsored by the Notre Dame Environmental Coalition, ran from October to November of last year. Despite the small increase in energy consumption by Dillon, other halls saw energy consumption increases as high as 37.8 kilowatt hours per person. Afflita Blum, the top four energy-aware dorms were Alumni, Keenan, Stanford, and O'Neill halls. The halls with the greatest increase in energy consumption included Carroll, Pasquerilla East, Knott, Welsh, and McGlinn halls.

"We held a section meeting and discussed ways we could conserve energy in our halls. The competition was also announced during our hall Mass," said Dillon Hall resident Ryan LaMonica.

Cardinal noted that differences in energy increases could be attributed to the different ages of dorms; in the newer dorms, residents have greater control over their thermostats. A possible correlation between the gender of residents and the energy consumption per person was also noted, although not studied by the coalition.

The coalition sponsored the competition this year in anticipation of the Global Climate Change Conference in Japan, the December event sought to decrease the use of fossil fuels worldwide. "It's a great opportunity for students to get involved," said Hupp.

Cardinal directed some energy conservation suggestions at the students themselves. "Keep your heat lower and wear sweaters instead of t-shirts when you are in your dorm. Also, students should turn off their dorm lights and computers when at class. They can be huge energy consumers," he said.

Cardinal also suggested that students use computers with screens that automatically shut off after a specific time period. The coalition will present Dillon Hall with a traveling plaque and $100 to a nonprofit environmental group.

The coalition consists of Recycling Irish, the Terra Club, Irish Outdoors, the Environmental Law Society and Saint Mary's Students for Environmental Action group. The coalition also plans to sponsor an Earth Week festival this spring, which will include speakers and visiting representatives from environmental groups.

One of the guests was Norma McCorvey, the anonymous "Jane Roe" of the historic Roe v. Wade case, which legalized a woman's right to have an abortion.

"I'm so sorry for what I've caused the last 25 years," she said. McCorvey converted to Catholicism in 1995 and is now very active in the pro-life movement.

As reported in a recent New York Times poll, 50 percent of Americans believe that abortion is murder, an increase from 30 percent 10 years ago. According to one of the congressmen, 67 of the 100 United States senators are pro-life.

Twice, both houses passed a ban on partial-birth abortion, an operation which terminates the baby in the birth canal minutes before it is to be delivered. Twice, President Clinton has vetoed the ban. Congress will attempt to pass the ban a third time this year.

"I went without any expectations, except just to see people on the street," said sophomore Kristy Katzmann, "but I came home so inspired. It was so uplifting, so powerful, the way so many different people came together for one cause. I felt that we had really done something and that this kind of strength will change things."

ND/SMC Right to Life saw an increase in the number of participants attending the march. Last year 34 students traveled to D.C., yet this year 138 joined the protest.

"Whether or not it's effective immediately, the students learned the perseverance of the pro-life movement," Kuhn said. The students stayed at the Catholic University of America, some in the gym and others in the Crypt of the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception, located on the campus of CUA.

The march ended on the steps of the Supreme Court, where a line of police officers separated the marchers from a handful of people supporting the pro-choice position by carrying signs that read "Get Your Laws Off My Body."

Pro-life signs were as diverse as the crowd which carried them, including the Notre Dame/Saint Mary's banner reading "Irish Fighting For Life." One particular pro-life sign had a plastic doll with a syringe penetrating its head, clearly demonstrating the abortion method of saline injection.

"We're talking about saving lives," said Guerra.

The theme for the march this year was "His Truth Keeps Marching On," an epitaph for the perseverance this event has displayed over the last 25 years. Nellie Gray, the president of National Right to Life, has organized and attended every march since its inception in 1973.

"It may seem like it's never going to happen," said senior Megan Moranah, "but we must remember that it'll come in God's time. We need to be vigilant and continue to evangelize in the spirit of prayer."

Kuhn and Guerra both hope next year will have the same amount of student participation, and that the faculty and administration will get involved as well.

NASA exchanges Mir astronauts

ASSOCIATED PRESS

SPACE CENTER

Despite an ill-fitting space suit, Soyuz astronaut Andrew Thomas moved into Mir on Wednesday. A student of the Soyuz suit is so tight he can't get into it. And the only spare, the suit belonging to David Wolf, a Mir resident for the past four months, is too big.

"It's basically unsalvageable," Thomas said, referring to Wolf's suit. After hours of haggling with the two suits, Thomas asked Mission Control in turn, asked Thomas whether he'd feel safe using Wolf's oversized suit in an emergency. He said he'd get by and would feel comfortable about the situation, at least for one night. Mir's commander, Anatoly Solovyov, favored Thomas moving into Mir.

After conference with their counterparts in Moscow, however, NASA flight controllers opted to have Thomas sleep aboard space shuttle Endeavour on Sunday night. And Wolf was instructed to sleep on Mir. That way, each crew could go in separate ways if the shuttle had departed so suddenly.

An hour later, after further talks with Moscow, Mission Control announced that the two astronauts could, indeed, swap places. It was later declared to be an official crew exchange.

The problem with Wolf's suit is that the sleeves are 6 inches too long for Thomas. Thomas is 5-8 and weighs 160 pounds, Wolf is 5-10 and weighs 180 pounds.

Thomas said he believes his spine stretched and he became taller in space — a common occurrence in weightlessness. It could also be that his suit was not sized correctly before the flight, he said.

It is the first time an American has encountered such a problem in the two years that shuttles have been dropping off astronauts at Mir.

Thomas, a 46-year-old Australian-born engineer, is in the seventh and final NASA astronaut to live on the Russian space station. If all goes well, a shuttle will swing by for him at the end of May.

"You know, you think you're psychologically prepared but things often turn around and surprise you," Thomas said Sunday amid all the trouble. "I think it's going to be tough."

Wolf said he plans to talk with Thomas about ways to cope with loneliness — provided the space suit problem is resolved — before Endeavour pulls away on Thursday.

"You have to keep a good rational grip on your mind to hold those feelings at bay," Wolf said.
The price of oil has tumbled to its lowest level in nearly four years, and the OPEC ministers who pushed themselves into the mess are confused and divided as they try to bounce back.

Several ministers have called an emergency meeting Monday to deal with the crisis — which of course is a windfall for oil consumers — but their timing and strategy may be off, analysts say.

The biggest player, Saudi oil minister Ali Naimi, won't attend, so the handful of ministers who do show up will be stuck in a position where they can make recommendations but not do anything about a glut of oil on world markets.

OPEC decided in November, under severe pressure from the Saudis, to raise its stated output at level by 10 percent, to 27.5 million barrels a day. But the group was already producing some 28 million barrels a day, and the economic crisis in Asia has destroyed all forecasts for a big growth in global demand for crude oil this year. As a result, oil prices have been in retreat.

OPEC's secretary-general, Hilwane Lukman of Nigeria, was privately denied it, "Of course I'm not happy. Nobody's happy," Lukman said. A lot of noise with no action by oil ministers this week could be bad news for the market, which also has been slumping as a result of a generally mild winter in the United States and Europe that has reduced demand for heating oil.

It's impossible to forecast the markets, but traders might well be further spooked if OPEC complains about its own overproduction but doesn't even make any moves to stop it, analysts say.

Other experts believe things aren't likely to deteriorate much more in the short term. "The damage is already done," said Geoff Pyne, who follows oil for UBS Ltd. in London. "It's hard to see how they can do worse. I don't see that they can do a lot of damage unless they're silly enough to try to raise expectations of a production cut." The Saudis have a good reason to stay away from any talk about cutbacks. Naimi was the minister who pushed the division plan at the last OPEC meeting in November to raise the stated output ceiling by 10 percent, and oil prices have dropped by around $4 a barrel since then.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was getting more than $18 a barrel before — compared to its official target of $21 — but saw prices plunge to a little more than $14 last week.

This creates a dilemma that will have the OPEC nations missing national budget targets, but any kind of reversal in policy would mean a big loss of face for the Saudis, the world's top oil producers.

Unfortunately for oil consumers in developed western nations, retail fuel prices have not dropped so much because taxes make up a big part of the bill.

Analysts say the most likely solution for OPEC might be a quiet — maybe totally silent — unilateral decision by the Saudis to pump less.

They'd be embarrassed to do something openly, as opposed to just cutting back in a quiet way," said Iain Droll, chief economist at the Center for Global Energy Studies in London.

The Saudis produce about one-third of OPEC's oil and have the greatest ability to lower — or raise — output.

The ministers from Iran, Nigeria and Kuwait who have planned the emergency meeting, one month ahead of schedule, make up a committee that monitors compliance, or really lack of compliance, with OPEC's assigned production levels.

Indonesia's oil minister, Bagus Sudjana, who serves as OPEC's president, was also expected to attend. Sharp divisions in the group became apparent last week, when officials in Venezuela, the biggest quota-buster in OPEC, accused Saudi Arabia of pumping way too much.

Analysts don't buy it, and the Saudis privately denied it, but the unusually nasty exchange shows that OPEC will have a hard time if it actually tries to regain control of the market by restraining output.

London members are Algeria, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Libya and Kuwait. Qatar, Saudi Arabia, the United Arab Emirates and Venezuela.
Anxious to cut a deal for immunity, the lawyer for Monica Lewinsky said Sunday that her 24-year-old client "will tell all that she saw and knew" to Whitewater prosecutors. The chips will fall as they may," he said.

Attorney William Ginsburg said he has verbally indicated to investigators what Ms. Lewinsky will tell them in exchange for immunity from prosecution.

"I will remain in Washington as long as it takes to see that the truth in every detail, wherever it may fall, comes out," Ginsburg said.

Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr was in his Washington office Sunday night, said Deborah Gershman, a spokeswoman for Monica Lewinsky said Sunday would compel Ms. Lewinsky's grand jury testimony as early as Tuesday when the White House said the president and Ms. Monica Lewinsky were caught in an intimate moment.

In a whirlwind of appearances on NBC, ABC and CBS, Ginsburg went out of his way to praise the president for his "excellent people" and "high performance," which, he said, "would compel Ms. Lewinsky's use immunity, Ms. Lewinsky's testimony could not be used against her. But she also would not have the blanket protection from prosecution that Ginsburg seeks.

President Clinton talked this weekend with heavyweight advisers brought back to Washington to help him through the crisis brought on by the allegations of a sexual relationship with Ms. Lewinsky and Ms. Lieberman categorically deny that either of them were given any verbal or other reports concerning, or witnessed, any sexual or intimate encounter," the White House said.

"Monica Lewinsky was not transferred to a statement on behalf of Lieberman. "I simply could not be further from the truth." Many Americans believe President Bill Clinton should resign over the sex scandal, according to a Los Angeles Times poll released Sunday.

Of 1,911 adults surveyed Friday and Saturday, 51 percent said Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath about an affair with Monica Lewinsky. The president or tried to obstruct justice by telling her to deny the affair, according to a Los Angeles Times poll released Sunday.

Ten percent felt he should resign regardless of how the Starr investigation turned out.

About one-third of the respondents said the alleged affair itself should prompt the president to resign.

"We have been feeling that presidents should only be the best and the brightest, and they have the highest possible morals," said respondent Julie Turen, 56, of Port Orchard, Ore. "But presidents are human beings, and in that case, we knew this was an issue."

An ABC News poll released Sunday found that 54 percent of respondents believe Clinton should be impeached if he lied under oath, and 50 percent believed he should be forced out if he told Ms. Lewinsky to lie.

But the ABC poll of 1,020 adults on Friday and Saturday, found that 54 percent believed he should resign if he lied under oath and 54 percent felt he should step down if he told her to lie. If he had the affair, 17 percent favored resignation.

Newsmen also conducted a poll, finding that 49 percent of those questioned favored impeachment if it is found that Ms. Lewinsky lied under oath. The poll of 751 adults found that his approval rating had fallen to 54 percent, from a high of 81 percent on Jan. 18, before the scandal broke.

Airline pilots seek to limit U.S. flight zones

Airline pilot Mikio Hayashida was flying an Airbus 300 from Tokyo to Japan's northern airport of Aomori two years ago when two blue dots suddenly popped up on his collision alert system. The dots indicated F-16 fighter jets above him. And if they kept coming he would have to make a dire decision: descend or climb — routes which would possibly injure some passengers in the process. Fortunately, the planes veered off before that was necessary.

But commercial pilots like Hayashida are now sounding the alarm over what they consider a high frequency of dangerously close encounters with U.S. warplanes based in Japan.

"I kept staring at the indicator, trying to calm down," Hayashida recalled in an interview just outside Tokyo's domestic airport. "I was afraid the jets might come really close."

In early February, a union representing 4,000 Japanese civilian pilots and flight attendants proposed to limit American military flight paths and tighten restrictions on the kinds of training missions.

U.S. planes are exempt from domestic rules that require Japanese warplanes to conduct low-altitude training away from civil aviation routes and limit them to a narrow corridor when flying over land. The Americans can legally train at very low altitudes over populated areas and fly without following instructions from commercial control towers.

Until recently, concerns over U.S. military activities were largely limited to Okinawa, where most American bases are located, and to neighborhoods near U.S. bases on the Japanese home islands.

Concern is spreading, however, because of the airline pilots' complaints of close calls and increasingly vocal protests by local governments and citizen groups against low-altitude training over populated areas.

Residents in the mountains of Hiroshima Prefecture say U.S. military jets have been buzzing their roofs since 1994 even though there are no American military bases in the state. Villagers say they sleep with their windows and increased anxiety. They say their cows are producing less milk and their babies are more cranky.

"Once I went up the hill to take pictures of the jet, and I was struck by its thundering noise," said Mamoru Kanda, an official in Gehikou, a town believed to lie along one of the low-altitude flight paths used by U.S. planes. "It seemed as if the jet was going to hit me."

Yoichi Endo, a city council member in Fusa, a town near an American air base, said at least 1,000 low-altitude flights by U.S. warplanes were monitored across Japan in 1996. The U.S. military defends low-altitude training as necessary and says safety precautions are followed.

"These are routine flight operations which have been going on for years," said Jon Nylander, spokesman for U.S. Navy forces in Japan.

He acknowledged there are seven flight paths used for low-altitude missions over Japan but refused to identify the locations or give the number of such flights.

Domestic aviation officials say low-altitude flying and close calls between civil aircraft and military jets are separate issues.

"They say measures should be urgently taken to improve safety."

Since Jan. 1, 1996, there have been 28 instances in which collision avoidance systems on civilian aircraft have been activated in response to approaching U.S. F-16s flying over Japan.
Where Were You When The Children Died?

Brandon Williams

A pro-abortionist, Selzer had arranged to witness an abortion as research. But here's what he saw as the abortionist inserted the saline solution: the needle jerked like a fishing line being tugged by a sunfish, then the motion grew fainter and fainter until, finally, it quit. Selzer wrote that he knew how many words have been written and spoken on the subject. It's almost starting to seem that people are tired of the issue itself. The March for Life was barely covered by the media, especially considering the immense turnout. I can't count how many times I have recently heard people proclaim, with a strong measure of frustration, "Let's not talk about abortion. No one is going to change anyone's mind anyway." But minds must change. The issue must stay on the forefront. Pro-lifers must remember why they are fighting. That is what I want to show in this column. I want to remind you what we are fighting for.

What has happened in the 25 years since Roe v. Wade, besides people formulating various philosophical arguments and catchy slogans to try to convince each other, legislators and a schizophrenic American public that their side is right? Marlin Maddoux wrote an essay on this very subject — I will only relate a few of the facts she brings to the forefront.

Since Roe v. Wade in 1973, 36 million unborn children have been aborted. To achieve the same mortality rate in the land of the born the entire populations of Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Kansas, Missouri, Indiana, Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and Minnesota would have to be methodically murdered over the next 25 years. Every day almost 6,400 children are aborted. That works out to nearly one child every 20 seconds. So, count to 20. Then count to 20 again. Each time you finish counting another child has lost their convulsing struggle to survive a doctor's assault.

So what has happened in the last 25 years? Thirty-six million innocent children have suffered and died. They are 36 million human-beings just like you and me. Who knows how many of them should have been at Notre Dame right now, filled to the brim with dreams of their future or of a better world? Who knows how many of them might have changed this world? Thirty-six million children have been robbed of that chance in the last 25 years. History has a funny way of putting things into perspective.

Recently, the pro-choice position seems to have shifted somewhat. Less people are making the claim that the unborn child's right to life must be respected above all else, in the same way that those of us who are pro-life must be respected above all else, in the same way that those of us who are pro-life must be respected above all else, in the same way that those of us who are pro-life must be respected above all else.

Dishonesty, Immorality Associated with Clinton

Kevin Patrick

One of his interests. Bill Clinton is 53 years old and had a relationship with an 18-year-old intern. I am 27 years old and would have some difficulty dating a 21-year-old if I was the reason I have no daughters. What kind of man, husband, or father is he? Using the presidency to prop up intersex is disgusting. This president has no moral authority. As a result of his actions I have no moral either. That is a scary thought.

I have my knowledge from my own experiences, which is far from the President's public statements. Recently it came to light that a man in high position is untrustworthy and is dictated to by his voters. In the effort of creating enough doubt so they can't convict him. That is exactly what Clinton is doing and has done throughout his political career — and it has worked. However, with the current jury of the American people, the tide is turning.

Through the noise of Super Bowl style media coverage of a National Enquirer/Hard Case Publishing book, some emerging issues beneath the surface:

As a 12-year-old in the fall of 1995: "She said a 12-year-old (ya, as if age is relevant) who still had a scar from the slit when the fetus was partially delivered in the first trimester, was told by her doctors to keep it up, wrap it around, and then let it down. The child was then partially delivered in the first trimester. The child needs additional treatment in order to live."

We're made, and the world's image of us is formed and justly, the National Organization of Women launched a nationwide campaign attacking him for, amongst those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

When we are made, the National Organization of Women launched a nationwide campaign attacking him for. Among those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

The wide-spread practice of abortion has desensitized us. The destruction of human life at one end has led to the current push to destroy it at the other end. Hence, we face the imminent reality of physicians killing elderly patients for utility's sake. Violence toward children in the womb has led toward violence outside the womb. It is not uncommon to hear on the evening news of another mother who dumped her newborn in the trash, or her infant to death, and then is released by a jury now made up of the dignity and value of human life. We have scientists receiving no abortion coverage at the White House? We have scientists receiving no abortion coverage at the White House?

Our Nations Holocaust: Reflecting After the March

Last Thursday, approximately 150 Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students traveled to D.C. to protest the Supreme Court's decision to legalize abortion. I was one of those.

Millions more abortions have been procured by abortionists, but the "morning after pill" today, in order for you to live as you wish. It's sad. It's sad. It's sad. Titanic will sail away with Oscars

By JOE LENSKI

Monday, January 26, 1998

Kate Winslet captured the hearts of audiences across the nation with her moving portrayal of Rose DeWitt Bukater in the year's biggest Oscar hopeful, "Titanic." The extra doses of corruption, eroticism, betrayal and loyalty provided the audience the opportunity to delve into the shadowy recesses of 40s Los Angeles. But the most superior movie experience of the year, which should also win awards for Costume Design, Visual Effects, Cinematography, and Art Direction, was the epic sea-disaster film "Titanic," by her captain, James Cameron, who will ride full-ahead with the bald guy for Best Direction. It took two movie studios to put up the over $200 million to produce this masterpiece, but every penny was well spent. This film is flawless, ushering the viewer aboard the doomed vessel to revel in its maiden glory, plunge with its death-throws into the icy grip of the ocean, and live through the triumph and tragedy of the love between Rose and Jack, the moving and powerful centerpiece of this saga. When I walked out of "Titanic," I was hollowed out from the inside, unable and unwilling to tear myself away from the human drama I just lived through and experienced. Very rarely does a film come along that has this overwhelming effect on the viewer, but when it does, immerse yourself in it, forget school or friends or money, shed the dampening cloak of reality, and swim in the ocean of dreams that unfolds before your eyes.

Davie’s recruiting beginning to pay off

By BETSY BAKER
Associated Press

It is likely only that it was an apparent surprise in part of Notre Dame head coach Bob Davie, but a 7-6 record this past season might have been the smartest recruiting move he has made.

Besides the fact that Davie is known as a successful recruiter because he needs for improvement under Notre Dame’s standard, he has added the key factors that has drawn 17 verbal commitments to the Irish for 1999.

With a week and a half left in the 1998 class, Davie hopes the class of 2002 is continuing to show up as a top-five recruiting class.

Some might argue that an underclass team with the promise of a national championship might be one of the biggest incentives for blue-chip recruits. On the contrary, the present recruiting process has changed and it is clear that come in and make an immediate impact on the team, with one of the most heralded college football traditions in the country, remains the biggest draw for the incoming Irish freshmen class.

Davie added two more recruits to the already solid group on last week and he is looking forward to continue to make magic.

Leading the class of 2002 is quarterback and 6-foot-3, 185-pound athlete from Shaker Heights, Ohio, Tyger Hicks, who will attend the Irish a little over a week after his Dec. 5 visit. Battle has been the third pick of the nation’s top quarterback prospects this year but he makes him unique in his versatility.

After leading Byrd High School to a 9-2 record in the state’s highest classification, Hicks passed for 1,907 yards and 22 touchdowns in his senior season last year.

Another possibility is moving to an end from his expected position as a fullback. Although Jamie Denson, 6-foot-2, 225-pound junior, could be the one of the reasons for that.

In 1998, the Irish have seven returning offensive linemen, one of the reasons for that, but Davie said that he saw me as an immediate left tackle for the Irish.

Davie also added wide receiver and 6-foot-3, 200-pound junior from Mater Dei High School in Santa Ana, Calif. McElroy is a USA Today, all-American selection who set Mater Dei school records for most touchdowns in a season, 133, and 33 touchdowns last season. McElroy said he will attend a program at Mater to meet with 4.11 total yards and 55 touchdowns.

Another pick for the Irish this year is a 6-foot-2, 225-pound fullback. Although Battle’s potential to move to an end, tenacious Fighting Irish defense that did the Friars in. After shooting 53 percent in a 102-93 loss to West Virginia on Wednesday, Providence slumped to a dismal 30.2 percent from the field, including a 7-of-32 spurt in the first half. From beyond the arc, the visitors completed only one of nine shots in the first half, and 4-of-17 for the game. The visitors were led by sophomores Meghan Hinds, who had 12 points on 3-of-12 shooting.

With the loss, the Friars fall 6-8 to 4-6 in the Big East. "Our intensity just was not there consistently," Providence head coach Jim Jabian remarked on the game. "We were really up and down mentally. I like Notre Dame's team. They're well balanced; they're fantastic. We just could not play consistently for 40 minutes against them." McGraw, however, felt that a great deal of credit had to go to the 2,056 fans that attended the contest, a season-high at the Joyce Center. "It is so great to see that kind of atmosphere out here. The team works so hard that it's great for the team to see that kind of support. We know people have been supporting us all along, but to have those kind of numbers ... that makes the game fun."

With the win, Notre Dame improves its record to 13-2 in the season and 7-3 in conference play. The Irish will travel eastward to face Villanova on Wednesday, before heading home to close the week in a Saturday afternoon contest against Seton Hall at the Joyce Center.

Utah shocks Chicago, 101-94

Malone's 35 keep Jordan, Bulls in check

Associated Press

Karl Malone scored 35 points and the presence of Bulls bad boy Dennis Rodman made little difference to the Utah Jazz, who did what they couldn't do in last year's NBA Finals — win at the United Center. Howard Eisley and Bryon Russell provided a big lift off the bench as the Jazz won 101-94 Sunday, handing the Bulls their second consecutive home loss this season.

The Jazz reached the midpoint of the season at 28-13 — the same record they had last season when they won 64 games and earned their first berth in the finals. But Utah lost the series 4-2, dropping all three games at Chicago as the Bulls won their second consecutive title and fifth in seven years.

Michael Jordan scored 32 points for the Bulls (30-13), who didn't sustain their 13th loss last season until the final game of the year. Chicago had its 17-game home winning streak snapped and now is 21-2 at the United Center, matching its home record for an entire past of the last two seasons.

The Bulls, who had been 38-0 at home against Western Conference teams since Jordan came out of retirement in March 1995, began a six-game road trip Tuesday and don't play at home again until Feb. 10. The loss also cost Phil Jackson the opportunity to coach the Eastern Conference in next month's All-Star game. Although the Bulls are a half-game ahead of Indiana, the Pacers have a 700 winning percentage to Chicago's 698, so Larry Bird will have the honor. Both Jackson and Bird have said they'd rather not be involved.

Rodman was back after being sent home before the Portland game and Rodman kept his New Jersey for missing that morning's practice. He had been out until the early hours that morning and didn't go to the practice because "I didn't feel like it." Rodman didn't start but played 34 minutes, grabbing 14 rebounds.

With Malone and star John Stockton resting on the bench, the Jazz opened the fourth quarter with a 15-0 run to take a 92-79 lead with 5:51 to play. Russell had all seven of his points and Eisley six of his 14.

The Bulls rallied to 98-94 on Toni Kukic's 3-pointer with 55-seconds left but the Jazz got a break when the 24-second clock was reset even though Stockton had let it run out on a shot with 36-seconds left. Utah kept the ball and clinched the game with a free throw by Stockton and two by Malone.

Pippen had six points and Pippens had four to 2points.

Broncos end 14-year AFC drought

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO

This was the sweetest homecoming of all for Terrell Davis. Davis, his Torrey High school retired his number and then retired Denver's four-game Super Bowl losing streak with an MPV performance in Sunday's 31-24 victory over Green Bay.

Davis became the catalyst for the end of a 13-game AFC losing streak by simply running over the Packers. He rushed for 157 yards and became the first player to rush for three touchdowns in a Super Bowl.

After Green Bay struck for the game's first touchdown, Davis brought the Broncos back. His 27-yard run punctuated his first TD drive, and he finished it off with a 1-yard plunge inside the shade of the Super Bowl trophy.

Moments later, he was back again, going 16 yards on first down into the Packers' next TD drive.
The third-year running back from Georgia gained 64 yards in the first quarter alone and seemed to give the Broncos hope so often in this game, a major injection of confidence.

When he went out with a migraine headache, missing much of the second quarter, Denver struggled. When he came back in the second half, the Broncos flourished.

He fumbled on his first carry after returning, leading to the tying field goal, but then he was the old Davis, helping the Broncos drive back downfield.

And when he barrelled into the end zone for the go-ahead touchdown at the end of the third quarter, it was a statement play.

And when Denver went on its winning drive in the final three minutes, Davis' 17-yard run put the ball at the 1. When he ran into the end zone, it provided the exclamation point on a brilliant game.

It has been that way all season for Davis, whose flashy end zone sprints after scoring TDs became a rallying point for a team that so often seemed to tock one.

His 1,750 yards rushing — best in the AFC — helped, too. Davis' fourth straight 100-yard playoff game and 10th this season pushed him into the record books, past Eric Dickerson with the most yards gained in a single season. He took Denver on his back at the start of the year and carried them to their ultimate goal at the end.

That's a long way from being a sixth round draft pick, largely ignore and passed over for bigger names like Ki-Jana Carter, Napoleon Kaufman, Jamison Webb and Rashaan Salahi.

It was the same way coming out of high school when he was a nose tackle and blocking back. He started out playing at Long Beach State for coach George Allen and after the program was dropped, he moved to Georgia.

“Tt's a great feel to have something I can point to and say, ‘This is my proudest moment.”

Terrell Davis set a Super Bowl record with three rushing TDs in the Broncos’ 31-24 victory over the Packers.

during Davis' most exciting games ever.

World-Class Research Institute?

Undergraduate Summer Internships

The Environmental Research Institute, a joint activity of Notre Dame & Argonne National Laboratory (ANL), in collaboration with the Center for Environmental Science & Technology will award up to three Summer 1998 internships at ANL in Argonne, IL, with a follow-up summer research appointment in the Fall. Stipend, room & board are provided for the 10-week program.

Student applicants should have research interests in an environmentally-related discipline (any field of study) concerned with or likely to contribute to the understanding, assessment, or improvement of the environment. Applicants must be US citizens or permanent residents, enrolled at Notre Dame, have completed their junior year by May 1998 and be registered to return in the fall of 1998.

For more details, contact the Center for Environmental Science & Technology: 152A Fitzpatrick Hall, 631-8376.
Applicants will be required to complete an application.

Deadline is February 23, 1998

in the Fall of 1998.
Kevin Turner scored 17 points and Illinois held No. 16 Michigan to its lowest point total of the season in a 64-53 win over the Wolverines on Nov. 30.

Illinois (13-7, 5-2 Big Ten) took control of the game early in the second half as a 9-0 run gave it a 42-30 lead with 15:47 left. Turner started the spurt by a 3-pointer by Matt Hazell. Brian Johnson added a free throw and Turner completed the run with a 3-pointer.

Michigan (15-5, 5-2) didn't score its first basket of the second half until Louis Bullock hit a jumper with 15:07 left. Michigan responded to the run with seven straight points over the next 2:45 as Victor Chernick scored on a baseline drive and dunk. Johnson made three throws and another by Hazell.

Jerry Hester had 15 points for Illinois, while Chernick added a season-high 10.

Macou Baston had 14 points for Michigan, while Bullock added 13, Jerol Ward 11 and Robert Stiver 10.

Michigan shot just 33 percent from the field (20-of-60) and Illinois was 21-of-56 (37.1 percent). The Wolverines shot their way into the top 10, matching the second-worst field goal percentage in the Big Ten this season (42.6 percent)

IIlinois led 16-14 with 11.4 minutes left in the first half when Turner, who scored six quick points, sparked a 13-4 run to put the Illini up 29-18 with seven minutes remaining. Illinois led 32-22 with four minutes left when the Wolverines went on an 11-0 run to cut Illinois' halftime lead to 33-30.

No. 21 Cincinnati 88, Rhode Island 82

Rubes Patterson scored 27 points, including two clinching free throws, and No. 21 Cincinnati outlasted Rhode Island 88-82 Sunday.

The Bearcats were 4-of-15 from 3-point range while the Rams were 10-of-30.

Cincinnati didn't score again until an overtime loss to Louisville last Sunday. The Bearcats are 3-1 since then.

Illinois wasn't a lot better, shooting 41 percent (23-of-56).

The Wolverines used their length to their advantage, outrebounding the Fighting Irish 42-35 margin. Illinois held the inside to its lowest point total of the season in a 64-53 win over the Wolverines on Nov. 30. Illinois (13-7, 5-2 Big Ten) took control of the game early in the second half as a 9-0 run gave it a 42-30 lead with 15:47 left. Turner started the spurt by a 3-pointer by Matt Hazell. Brian Johnson added a free throw and Turner completed the run with a 3-pointer.

Michigan (15-5, 5-2) didn't score its first basket of the second half until Louis Bullock hit a jumper with 15:07 left. Michigan responded to the run with seven straight points over the next 2:45 as Victor Chernick scored on a baseline drive and dunk. Johnson made three throws and another by Hazell.

Jerry Hester had 15 points for Illinois, while Chernick added a season-high 10.

Macou Baston had 14 points for Michigan, while Bullock added 13, Jerol Ward 11 and Robert Stiver 10.

Michigan shot just 33 percent from the field (20-of-60) and Illinois was 21-of-56 (37.1 percent). The Wolverines shot their way into the top 10, matching the second-worst field goal percentage in the Big Ten this season (42.6 percent).
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — Chamique Holdsclaw scored 24 points and Symone Ranfall and Tamika Catchings each added 22 Sunday as No. 1 Tennessee beat a ranked opponent for the ninth time this season, routing Vanderbilt 86-54.

The Lady Vols (21-0, 7-0 Southeastern Conference) opened the second half with a 24-2 run, harassing Vanderbilt (14-5, 3-2) into 0-16-10 shooting and five turnovers.

Tennessee's pressure got so intense that Rodja Redmond scored the game's first five points as Holdscclaw made her first five shots. But Kristen Clemens' free throw tied the game at 12 with 14:59 left. Catchings scored underneath and Holdscclaw made two free throws and another basket for a quick 7-0 spurt and an 18-12 lead.

The teams swapped the lead twice more with two more ties before Holdscclaw scored seven more of her 16 first-half points in helping the Lady Vols to a 37-31 lead at halftime.

No. 24 Duke 78, No. 19 Clemson 78-59
Nicole Erickson scored 21 points as No. 24 Duke easily upset No. 19 Clemson 78-59 Sunday and tied the Tigers for first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Duke led from start to finish against a higher-ranked opponent for the third time this month. The Blue Devils beat Virginia and North Carolina State last week.

Michele VanGorp added 16 points for Duke (14-5, 7-2). Hillary Howard had 14 points and eight assists.

Amy Green led Clemson (15-4, 7-2) with 14 points and Kerri Thomas had 10.

The Blue Devils scored the game's first eight points and led 43-28 at halftime. Howard scored 10 points in a span of 3:20, putting Duke up 23-11 with her second 3-pointer.

Duke led by as many as 25 points in the second half after a 10-0 run that featured consecutive 3-pointers by Erickson and a 10-foot jumper by VanGorp with 6:33 remaining.

Erickson was 7-for-10, including 5-for-7 from 3-point range. Duke shot 31-for-61, while Clemson was 22-for-46.

The Blue Devils had a 42-29 advantage on the boards, led by Peer Brown's nine rebounds.

No. 17 Wisconsin 67, Minnesota 54
LaTonya Sims had 15 points and 10 rebounds Sunday as No. 17 Wisconsin regrouped from a seven-point first-half deficit to beat Minnesota 67-54.

Kaite Voigt added 14 points for the Badgers (15-6, 4-5 Big Ten), while Kelley Paulus had 13. Wisconsin avenged a loss to the Gophers in the first round of last season's Big Ten tournament.

For Sims, it was her fifth double-double of the season and third in a row. The Badgers shot 46.4 percent from the field, while the Gophers finished at 37.3 percent.

Krysten Shaffer and Cynthia Kelley had 10 points each for Wake Forest (14-5, 6-9). The Tar Heels led 23-18 with 3:56 left in the first half. Then, Nikki Teasley had two free throws and a 3-pointer in the next minute, starting a 15-4 Tar Heels run.

North Carolina led by as many as 25 points, 71-36, after a steal and layup by Reid with 5:37 left. The Demon Deacons made only 15 of 54 shots and committed 25 turnovers. They were outrebounded 42-26.

The Boys of Winter surged into seventh place in the competitive Central Collegiate Hockey Association polls with a gritty, 2-1 overtime defeat of Bowling Green Saturday night at Bowling Green. The Irish (13-10-3 overall, 8-7-3 CCHA) were propelled to victory by senior captain Steve Noble, who scored two goals and assisted on a third, and by junior right wing Brian Urick, who notched his fifth game-winning goal of the season in 46 seconds into the overtime period.

Junior goaltender Forrest Karr improved to 6-1-1 on the season, making 30 saves. Three of Karr’s eight career victories have come at the expense of Bowling Green. Notre Dame now stands in seventh place ahead of Ferris State but remain one point behind Ohio State University.

The top eight teams in the CCHA advance to the coveted CCHA playoffs.

The Irish struck early in the game on the power play. Noble led the charge, carrying the puck down the left side. He fed it to freshman left wing Dan Carlson, who one-timed it into the net for his eighth goal of the season.

Bowling Green answered just 42 seconds later on a power-play goal of its own, sending the teams to the locker room tied at 1 after one period.

The Boys of Winter stretched their lead to 3-1 with two goals in the first nine minutes of the second period. Noble netted his second point of the game at the 5:11 mark, burying a slap shot that sneaked inside the left post. Freshman right wing Ryan Dolde followed Noble’s example four minutes later. He took a pass from Jeddhahal — who got hit immediately after the play — and streaked down the left side, angling into the crease as he nudged toward the goal. Dolder was able to slap the puck into the right corner of the net for a 4-2 lead.

But the home team came roaring back, eventually tying the game and forcing overtime. But the day belonged to the Irish and Urick. He took a pass from sophomore defender Nathan Borega and let loose a low shot that went through the legs of goaltender Shawn Timm, giving the Irish their 5-4 win and seventh place in the CCHA.

Ben Simon kept Irish hopes alive for a playoff spot in the CCHA.

Dr. Satinover is a practicing psychiatrist and psychoanalyst and is the former president of the C. G. Jung Foundation of New York. He holds degrees from MIT, Harvard, and the University of Texas, and is a former fellow in Psychiatry and Child Psychiatry at Yale and a former William James lecturer in Psychology and Religion at Harvard.

An Orthodox Jew living in Connecticut, Dr. Satinover is also the author of Homosexuality and the Politics of Truth, a widely applauded analysis of the current debate over homosexuality viewed from psychological, religious and scientific perspectives. Dr. Satinover will address the argument, advanced at Notre Dame as well as nationally, that the American Psychiatric Association’s 1973 vote not to treat homosexuality as a psychological disorder ought to end all discussion of the matter. He hopes that his talk will contribute a needed perspective to Notre Dame’s discussion of homosexuality.

Irish rewrite track record books

By KATHLEEN O'BRIEN
Sports Writer

 Stellar performances by four members of the Notre Dame track and field team will long be remembered, as they etched their names into the record books in only the second meet of the season.

Mike Brown smashed the record in the pole vault by over nine inches, cross country all-American JoAnna Deeter dropped nine seconds off the school record in the 3,000-meter run, Nadia Schonherr broke the 600-meter run record set in 1995 by running a 1:32.76, and Errol Williams tied the 55-meter hurdles record.

Many other runners also placed highly.

"It's a good place for me to be right now. I wanted to reach that NCAA qualifying standard and be able to approach the rest of the year without having to worry about that. I have a goal of jumping in the high 17's and, hopefully, I'll win the Big East again, qualify for nationals, and perform well at nationals," Deeter, in her first track race of the 1998 season, snapped the record set in 1995 by Sarah Rilley. Coming into the race with only two real track workouts since Christmas break because of illness, she ran a time of 9.46.

"I was real pleased with sophomore JoAnna Deeter," said distance coach Tim Connolly. "She set a school record and provisionally qualified for the NCAA's. She's really fit. We've just got to keep her healthy. Freshman Erin Olson also ran well in her first time in the 3,000-meters.

"I was really happy because it's the first meet, and you just really want to get started off on the right foot. I felt really good yesterday, and I plan to run a lot faster," said Olson. "I definitely want to get to the indoor national meet, run my own race, and get back into running with the best people in the nation. It should be an attainable goal.

"All I can say about Saturday is that God blessed me with a good coach, a good mental attitude, and a good race," said Williams, a captain, in her first track race of the 1998 season and enjoy the season. I don't see much that could change that at all."

"It's a good event for me to try to get my mind off the long jump. I'm really aiming towards doing the pentathlon this year. I really want to be in the Big East in the high jump and break the school record in the long jump if that's possible," Englehardt, a sophomore, said of the long jump. "It's a fun event for me to try to get my mind off the long jump. I'm really aiming towards doing the pentathlon this year. I really want to be in the Big East in the high jump and break the school record in the long jump if that's possible."

This may have been a break-through performance for the team, with four school records and provisional NCAA qualifications. It should be a confidence-builder as the Irish prepare to face their first head-to-head competition Friday. Both the men and women will compete against Indiana Friday, and the men will also take on Tennessee.

Other top performances were Danny Payton's 600-meter victory and Terry Wray's runner-up finish to Payton.

"I'm quite a sacrifice to give time up from the high jump to try the pentathlon. She deserves a lot of credit for that," Winsor said.

"Engelhardt, in her first-ever long jump, jumped almost 18 feet. She loved it, and if you ever want to be great at something, it's got to be fun. It's quite a sacrifice to give time up from the high jump to try the pentathlon. She deserves a lot of credit for that," Winsor said.

Irish cook Friars at ‘Jam the Joyce’

Green scores career high 22 points in rout

By BILL HART
Sports Writer

At any particular women's basketball game, the cheerleaders will throw out a couple of shirts to the crowd after a spectacular basket made by a Notre Dame player. By the end of the first half in Saturday's Notre Dame-Providence game, the leprechaun had to be wondering whether he would have enough to last the game.

In one of its most balanced and extensive scoring efforts of the season, Notre Dame's women's basketball team routed Providence 109-60 Saturday at the Joyce Center.

The game started off with a bang as senior Mollie McMillen converted a three-pointer in the first shot of the game. After a slow start, Providence was able to get on the board four minutes into the contest with a perimeter shot of its own by freshman Jen Gombos. The Friars came storming back, using a layup by freshman Monika Roberts to tie the game at 12 points. With a little over 10 minutes to go in the half, the game was knotted at 16 apiece.

Then, the rout began.

Freshman Ruth Riley, a major inside force for the Irish, jumpstarted the Notre Dame offense with a layup with 10:50 remaining in the first half. After a layup from sophomore Niele Ivey, a three-pointer from junior Sheila McMullen extended the lead to 10 points. Finally, a breakaway layup by Roberts ended the 35-11 Irish run by the half, though, the Irish held a 51-27 advantage.

"In the past few games I think I've struggled with my shooting," McMullen said about her performance. "But today, I really wanted to get going and after I hit that first three, it really helped get me focused."

In the second half, the Irish picked up right from where they left off. Freshman Kelley Steffen began the half with an easy jumper, while Ivey hit a three-pointer to push the lead over 30 points. It took almost three minutes for the Friars to get on the board through a layup by freshman Dana Trippany. In the next possession, Steffen drained the three-pointer to give the Friars their final points of the half.

"I thought we executed pretty well," McGraw said about the team's performance. "I feel we were playing very loose; we were working the ball well, passing the ball around. It was just a great team effort."

By the end of the game, Notre Dame had overpowered Providence, 109-60.

Enloe works overtime in wins

By SHANNON RYAN
Sports Writer

Eric Enloe apparently either loves the attention or thinks he's getting paid by the hour.

Keeping up his tradition from last week's game on Saturday, Enloe was the last Irish player on the Eck Pavilion courts in the game's 5-1 win over both DePaul and Miami of Ohio. Although the Irish had already secured wins that advance them to 3-0, Enloe played the matches to three long sets.

"Eric didn't play his smartest matches," head coach Bob Bayliss said. "But he had the guts, heart and character to come out on top.

With two eyes on him, the senior defeated DePaul's exhausted Dan Auger 6-0, 6-7, 6-2.

In the afternoon portion against Miami, Enloe stretched the match into the dinners hours. In front of a fan club that more resembled a weekend crowd than tennis fans, Enloe finally overcame Yvon Edoumou, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

The rest of the Irish, however, had a much easier and more concise time in front of a supportive crowd.

Ryan Sachire, playing at the No. 1 position, was able to pour on the pressure to defeat DePaul's Greg Tranquada, 6-4, 6-2.

His biggest obstacle was accurately reading Canadian Tranquada's serve. As the servers became more literate to the 6-foot-6 senior, he returned better and gained the win.

"I think I competed well," Sachire said. "I won the big points when needed. I fought hard."

Senior captain Danny Rothchild played true to character, eliminating early errors and subduing Conrad Nowak, 6-4, 6-3.

"I had a little trouble early but then focused on making him lose," Rothchild commented.

Andy Warford, playing at No. 5, did not play his best match but toughed it out against Iory McKinnely. The North Dakota native gained the fourth Notre Dame win, 6-4, 6-3.

"He wasn't as sharp as what we would have liked," Bayliss said. "But he sucked it up down the stretch.

Because Jakub Pietrowski sat out in the DePaul match nursing a sore elbow, Vijay Freeman bumped up the lineup.

The strategy proved a success as the senior easily won 6-4, 6-1.

Only the No. 2 position was void of success against the Blue Demons.

Brian Patterson waited a little too patiently for a break. After a slow start and weak returns, it never came. Despite beating Lucas Horack last year, he fell to the DePaul senior, 1-6, 4-6.

"I think I was just overconfident," Patterson said. "Maybe I took it too lightly. If I could have returned well, it could have been a lop-sided victory in the other direction."

Patterson took these words to heart after the 5-1 win over the Blue Demons and a mid-day break where DePaul defeated Miami 4-2. The junior came out strong and steamrolled Turkish Amin Sabdi 6-0, 6-2.

"I had a lot of fun out there," Patterson replied.

But fun wasn't the only change in his play.

"I changed my backhand return, and that made a big difference," Patterson said.

Rothchild and Sachire again made monstrous strides for the Irish by defeating two of Miami's best. Sachire breezed by Champa Halim, 6-3, 6-2, and Rothchild won 6-4, 6-1.
