GLND/SMC renamed to reflect new goals, focus

By MICHELLE KRUPA

Known for more than a decade as GLND/SMC, Notre Dame's unrecognized gay, lesbian and bisexual student organization has changed its name to OUTreach ND.

The name change evolved from the group's shift in focus from political activism to a more service- and support-oriented spirit, according to executive board members.

"The constitution is in the process of being revised," said group co-chair Alyssa Feldman.

GLND/SMC, though not officially recognized by the administration, saw itself as the activist voice of gay, lesbian and bisexual students on both campuses, speaking out as well as offering support groups.

But the OUTreach ND executive board realized that not all participants want to be part of both activism and support, according to Massoud.

"I think we have to realize that just because people are gay and lesbian doesn't mean that they are activists and want to join the students' rights struggle," Massoud said. "It just means that they want to be supported — that they are human beings."

As the group moves away from activism, it must decide whether it will petition the University again for official recognition — something it denied GLND/SMC. Instead, the administration formed a University-sponsored group supervised by two faculty members.

Heilbrun said getting University recognition is not among OUTreach ND's priorities right now. But it likely will top the agenda in future, largely because of what Heilbrun calls the group's unique nature — it is run by students, for students, which also sees as an advantage.

"We're not going to petition for University recognition this year because we're in the process of so many changes, and we're doing just fine how we are," Heilbrun said. "We're the only place where students can get support that is student-run ... We're going to focus on that and an attempt to get recognition might come in the future."

Massoud said the emergence of the Progressive Student Alliance has enabled OUTreach ND's shift in focus. For example, PSA recently sponsored a rally.
I know what you did at Reckers.

In this age of global humanitariansim, we talk a lot about compassion for our fellow brethren. That’s fine and dandy, but if any kind of change is going to happen, it’s got to go to an individual level where we find ourselves the most vulnerable. That’s right. In public restrooms. But something happened to me last week that threatened all hopes for such a change.

I was reading a novel and enjoying a latte in Reckers when I realized I needed to use the restroom. There I was, going about my business, and as I reached for the toilet paper coil, I experienced every sputterer’s nightmare. The roll was empty. And I had foolishly forgotten to replenish the stash of travel Kleenex I keep in my backpack.

That’s right. In Editorial Page 7. I keep in my backpack. Swelling at the compassion of humanity. I stood next to me. My savior! With my heart foolishly forgotten to replenish the stash of travel Kleenex I keep in my backpack. Swelling at the compassion of humanity. I stood next to me. My savior!

“IT, I’m so sorry to interrupt you, but I’m out of toilet paper over here. I couldn’t believe her response. "No." She actually said no! My heart sank at this capacity for humanity.

I was in my most vulnerable state of humanity and my fellow brethren extended me the most basic of human necessities.

Completely stunned, I cried out, “Excuse me! I need toilet paper!” - and again she emphatically replied, "No." Some Notre Dame students are not going to help me out of my personal peril! How could anyone do this to someone?!

What is this world coming to? How can we still have compassion for one another when we can’t even treat one another as human beings in the one place that epitomizes our humanity? It must start here. To all of those who do share toilet paper in public restrooms, I thank you! Amen! Continue your activism and concern! We need you!

But why continue our compassion to simply passing toilet paper under the stall walls? Too often we wash our hands and run the hot water over the sink and somehow unknowingly the presence of others. Why do we isolate ourselves? It’s just standing in the stall walls! Shatter the silence! Say hello to those around you, ask how their day is going, what their major is, where they’re going from and when they’re headed.

"It’s just standing in the stall walls! Shatter the silence! Say hello to those around you, ask how their day is going, what their major is, where they’re going from and when they’re headed."

I’m talking about the blue turquiose Keds with bright white laces. (Who knew peace. But it must begin in the bathroom.) With rage, I returned to the Reekers lounge in search of my Judas. But alas, to no avail.

Professor disagrees with affirmative action protest

BERKELEY, Calif.

Responding to students’ questions regarding a proposed faculty walk-out, UC Berkeley Chancellor Robert Berdahl told an ethnic studies class yesterday that although he cannot support canceling classes, he does support the right of professors to express their opinions.

"The faculty who are critical of Proposition 209 are trying to be conscious about affirmative action," Berdahl said. "I cannot condone them not being classes. They have every right as faculty, however, to express their concerns through the appropriate channels.

Berdahl spoke to approximately 100 students as a guest lecturer. Professor Ling-Chi Wang’s introductory ethnic studies class yesterday morning. During the class, he addressed a variety of topics ranging from the necessity of admission exams to his stance on the affirmative action walkout.

Wang told students that it was a good move for Berdahl to give an opinion about a political issue because of his position as head of the university.

"He is bound by law; none of us could have any doubt about his commitment to affirmative action," Wang said. "He cannot be overly associated with any political institution. He cannot lobby for or against a law because he is an officer of the state."

History was made last Thursday night when about 20 students of varied race and ethnicity came together in the Barker Center in the Thompson Center to form the first Harvard chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP). The membership of the meeting was the first up to a meeting held last week with Julian Bond, the NAACP’s national chair. At the earlier meeting, Bond expressed his support that the NAACP has an organization for blacks, and encouraged people of all races to consider membership.

Kamal Latham, a student at the Kennedy School of Government (KSG) who was elected president of the Harvard chapter last night, said Bond’s opinion prompted him to realize a vision about the NAACP’s president. Latham said he realized the organization is different from ethnic organizations on campus simply because “it is not an ethnic organization. It is just the hub of a bicycle wheel.”

Beliefs in science and God are not mutually exclusive, according to Father Michael Buckley, who gave the opening lecture on science and religion this weekend at the Lilly Fellows Program in Humanities and the Arts.

"Nothing less than a revolution has occurred in the world of inquiry," said Buckley, whose lecture drew upon the changing views of philosophers and scientists over time.

Buckley quoted John Dewey from the first half of the twentieth century, repeating Dewey's statement that religion was doomed and dying before the longevity of the scientific method.

Buckley contrasted this view, however, with that of Max Planck, who saw the fields of religion and science as compatible. Science, he said, provided objective truth while religion gave subjective values.

Buckley noted that past scientists tried to redefine God as a central concept in events to accommodate their scientific beliefs, and today, however, God has returned as a force.

"It is the scientists who are taking the lead from the theologians," said Buckley. "They ask, "Why is there something rather than nothing?"

Buckley drew from the writing of Stephen Hawking and other physicists to give modern scientists' views on the possibility of God.

Science, said Buckley, can ground theology's search for a supreme being called God. He pointed out that for the greater part of history, humanity put its trust in science to answer theologically associated questions such as "how was the universe created?" and "how was man created?"

Buckley noted that sometimes the "how" question can create the most problems between science and religion. For example, Buckley asked how God could exist both timeless and yet personal within time. Drawing from Catholic theology that God is an infinite mystery, Buckley admitted that theology accepts that such questions are unanswered.

"Catholicism has found no great scandal in this ignorance," he said.

Buckley said that fundamental constants found in physics provide him with the most compelling sign of some cosmic design. Science also provides an expanding field of facts in which to judge theology. He said that if theology is an alive field, then every human discipline will feed into its content.

Since the Universities of Europe and colonial America treated theology in a scholarly manner, it is understandable that theology should exist in an academic context.

"The quest for understanding is necessarily a collaborative one," he explained.

Buckley is a Jesuit priest and the Canisius College chair of theology and director of the Jesuit Institute at Boston College. He is also a historian and a philosopher.

Chat focuses on Gospel, God's image

Father Ken Maley tackled the symbolism in the Gospel according to John and people's different perceptions of God in his Fireside Chat Monday.

"Why is there no reference to the Eucharist during the last supper in John's gospel?" asked Maley in the first of a five-part chat series. "For decades I thought that this was the way of saying that love of neighbor was equal to love of God."

Maley explained that there is nothing accidental in John's gospel.

"What happens if everyone believes that everyone else is a child of God?"

"If you treat everyone as if you had a part in creating him, all problems would go away," Maley said.

Maley said that as humanity evolved, it came to understand God literally as a father or parent. He said if he could take the essence of a human and blow it up, he would have God. In such a way, then, each human becomes a holographic image of God.

Maley recognized that many people would have problems with this idea.

"Many of us grew up in families where we were not told that we were the greatest thing that existed," he said.

Addressing questions about how he explained the destructive element of God, Maley answered that he did not believe a destructive side of God exists.

"I have not figured out the perception of evil in the world," he said. "Things I once considered evil often turned out to be saving things in my life."

Once humans learned to control and manipulate their environment, they took the next step of reshaping the idea of God, he said. Maley believes that love and the law became mixed, making love God's tool.

Jesus' message of love built upon this idea of a law-giving God. Recalling a boy he saw in the Holy Land yelling at a dog, Maley expressed the idea that every problem could be solved if all humans viewed the rest of humanity as something they could love.

"A lot of students want to get involved with community service on a weekly or monthly basis, but because of classwork and other activities, it can be hard to figure out how to do it," said Kors. "Saint Mary's in the City offers students a chance to do something for one day and connect with the community, even if it's only going to paint walls.

Junior Jamie Auerbach was one of these students. "I haven't really had time to volunteer on a consistent basis this semester, but it's something that I really enjoy, and I think that everyone should try it," she said. "I'm glad that I was able to come out and work. It's about more than just interaction; sometimes what we're doing — like painting and cleaning up — can be more beneficial than interacting with people.

Another obstacle students face in volunteering on a regular basis is transportation, something that Saint Mary's in the City provided. "It's easier now that I've brought my car to do things on a consistent basis," said Suzanne Webber, a sophomore. "It's really great when a lot of people come together for an effort like this."

"Generally, college students live pretty sheltered lives," she added. "It's almost backwards the way that we're sent here to prepare for the real world, and then don't know much about it. Community service integrates those things."

Furthermore, Kors said, one-day events such as Saint Mary's in the City can often serve as a springboard for future volunteer opportunities. "A lot of the student volunteers were talking to the St. Margaret's volunteers, asking questions, finding out what they can do to help," said Kors. "It's great to see that volunteer relationship starting — that's where the value of these things is."

The volunteer relationship is something that Schneider is excited about cultivating. "I'm looking forward to having a close relationship with Saint Mary's," said Schneider. "Our women can use the help. The students can also benefit because our women are great teachers in life issues. These women can learn from each other."

Kors also expressed hope that students would continue to develop the relationship. "Once the second floor is opened, students can help staff the clothes room," said Kors. "We can also have a party when the room is opened. There is a lot that we can do to help specifically staff St. Margaret's.

Kors expressed hope that the project will be continued next year. "Right now, we're focusing on finishing what we've started and developing our relationship with St. Margaret's," she said. "If we see that St. Margaret's still has needs that we can help, we'll continue to do what we can. Right now, they have more needs. If we target another agency next year, Saint Mary's in the City will do the same thing."

The project's impact, according to Schneider, is invaluable. "We never could have done this without the women of Saint Mary's. We are very, very grateful."

"WE NEVER COULD HAVE DONE THIS WITHOUT THE WOMEN OF SAINT MARY'S. WE ARE VERY, VERY GRATEFUL."

for inclusion of sexual-orientation in the University's non-discrimination clause, a venture that would normally have been undertaken by GLND/SMC. Massoud said the group will also organize service-oriented activities, such as preparing lunches for the Center for the Homeless. Massoud stressed that its support groups will not disband and will still help members deal with their personal experiences with sexuality.

The group's official renaming comes on the heels of Sunday's National Coming Out Day and the Academic Council's willingness to consider adding sexual orientation to the University's non-discrimination clause. "We wanted to change the name on a special day," Hellfrung said. "We've sort of been going around as OUTreach ND for a month or so, but a lot of people didn't know who we were. Now they know that we're not just some random group, but that we have a long history at Notre Dame."

Meetings for Saint Mary's in the City during the 1998-99 academic year will be held on the second floor of St. Mary's.
Muslims protest scarf policy

ANKARA

Thousands of Muslims demonstrated joined hands and marched Sunday through central Ankara on the 8th anniversary of a head scarf ban in schools and public offices. Police shot and killed one person in an argument over a traffic jam and used tear gas to disperse the crowd. The Anadolu news agency said the shooting took place as some 2000 people were marching, including a group of soccer fans on their way to a match. A truck ran into a traffic jam caused by the demonstrations, killing a 25-year-old soccer fun and wounding two police officers in Ankara, Konya, Kastamonu, and Istanbul, DAE. Police arrested mostly women in scarves or black Islamic chadors, carried banners reading "The West Overlook To Johnston Buck," and "Respect Belief, Free Thought."

Bombs strike Corsican ports

BASTIA

Three bombs exploded minutes apart from each other Sunday afternoon in Corsica's two main ports, in the latest attacks against a government crackdown on the French island. There was no claim of responsibility for the blasts, which caused some damage but no injuries. But suspicion fell on Corsican mili­tants waging a 23-year-old campaign for greater autonomy. A few minutes later, a second explosion occurred near the center of Ajaccio on the western side of Corsica. One blast struck a group of people. Sixteen others, mostly tourists, are said to be hospitalized. Sixteen others, mostly tourists, are said to be hospitalized.

Yeltsin cancels ceremony

TASHKENT, Uzbekistan

President Boris Yeltsin, on his first trip out of Russia since May, canceled a welcoming ceremony in Uzbekistan on Saturday because he wasn't feeling well, his spokesman said. Yeltsin appeared stiff during another public appearance after arriving in Tashkent, the capital of this Central Asian nation. At one point, he stumbled and had to be supported by Uzbek President Islam Karimov. But the two later held a one-on-one summit, as scheduled. The trip is Yeltsin's first high-profile foray since an economic crisis swamped his country in August. The 67-year-old president has spent most of the last two months out of the limelight and out of the Kremlin, holding meetings in his country home outside Moscow.

US bombers prepare for Kosovo action

Belgrade

U.S. bombers moved into position for possible NATO airstrikes on Yugoslavia and a U.S. envoy accelerated talks with President Slobodan Milosevic on Sunday after reporting no change in the leader's tough stand on Kosovo.

Richard Holbrooke and Milosevic held discussions late into the night Sunday, meeting for the sixth time in seven days in talks that signaled U.S. determination to search for a peaceful way out of the deadlock. Holbrooke said early Sunday that he would "continue an intense effort to find a peaceful, acceptable, fully verifiable compliance system as an alternative to the other choices" — meaning the use of force. But he also said NATO would meet today to authorize action if his mediation effort fails.

In Washington, national security adviser Sandy Berger told CNN that Milosevic "is not in compliance as of this point.

"He can come into compliance or he can face military action by NATO" at any time, Berger said.

The Americans and Europeans are demanding that Milosevic halt the crackdown he launched Feb. 28 against the separatist Kosovar Liberation Army.

The major obstacle appears to be Holbrooke's demand that Milosevic agree to an expanded international monitoring mission to verify compliance with demands of the U.N. Security Council.

Those demands include an immediate cease-fire, a withdrawal of special troops in the province, allowing refugees to return home and begin­ning talks with ethnic Albanians on Kosovo's future.

Kosovo is a province of Serbia, the main republic of Yugoslavia. About 90 percent of its 2 million people are ethnic Albanian, and most of them want independence or substantial self-rule.

Meanwhile, journalists heard sporadic gunfire Sunday and saw white and gray smoke rising from about six houses in the ethnic Albanian village of Makrnjal, about 20 miles west of Pristina.

Ethnic Albanian rebels claimed the activity was part of a Serb police operation. Police prevented the jour­nalists from getting closer than about a half mile from the village.

The Pentagon is continuing military preparations if Holbrooke's mission fails. Six U.S.-B-52 bombers arrived in Britain on Sunday and a contingent of A-10 and-tank planes flew from Germany to Italy.

Pope decrees Jewish-born saint

Associated Press

VATICAN CITY

Under towering marble figures of the Jews who founded Christianity, Pope John Paul II on Sunday decreed the first Jewish-born saint of the modern era: Edith Stein, a nun killed in the gas chambers of Auschwitz.

From now on, the pope said, Catholics should com­memorate all the Holocaust's murdered Jews each year when they mark the day Stein died — Aug. 9.

"In the martyr Sister Teresa Benedicta of the Cross so many differences meet and are resolved in peace," John Paul, using the name Stein chose when she became a nun, told the thousands filling St. Peter's Square.

"The value of her testimony is to render ever stronger the bridge of mutual understanding between Christians and Jews," he said, calling Stein an "eminent daughter of Israel and a faithful daughter of the church."

It was a day filled with remarkable gestures of reconcili­ation. The Roman Catholic Church putting all its ceremony, pomp and grandeur to a tribute to a woman of Jewish heritage.

Relatives of Holocaust vic­tims — Stein's family — sharing a dais with the leader of Germany, Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

Stein is believed to be the first Jewish-born saint since the early days of the church, said the Rev. Simmon Fernandez, who oversaw the process toward canonization.Incomplete records and the prevalence of con­versions, voluntary and forced, make it impossible to verify the claim.

Stein was born into an Orthodox Jewish German family on Yom Kippur, the Jewish Day of Atonement, in 1891. An atheist, she joined the Roman Catholic Church in 1922 and later became a Carmelite nun.

In 1942, Adolf Hitler's regime ordered all the con­vent of the Netherlands shipped to Auschwitz to punish the Dutch bishops for speaking out against it.

Stein was offered a chance to escape deporta­tion, the pope said, but turned it down.

"Why should I be excluded?" she quoted her as say­ing.

"If I cannot share the fate of my brothers and sisters, my life is, in a certain way, destroyed."

Stein was in a chapel praying with nuns of her order when the Nazis came to arrest her.
The avalanche was coming. Joey game under hostile circumstances, this awful line of thinking by getting a (that's an accomplishment). Then the difference between talented and good.

The game was a huge test for Notre Dame. Not because Arizona State is a great ball club (they most certainly are not), but because this game had much of the Arizona heat and with on the first series. His blanket covering was in relative anonymity than any of the student affairs All-Americans to paint the Arizona "A" blue and gold on the side of a mountain for the student body to leave their mark.

But the football team was still struggling. While we had scored following the Brock Williams interception on a nice drive, we were buried deep in our own territory (the worst situation for a punter) and we needed even more of a lift. In walks Hunter Smith with one of the best punts you will ever see — 75 yards in the air and a 4-yard roll just for good measure. Notre Dame was no longer going to enter on the edge of that cliff MSU was able to push us off. Hunter had given us some breathing room. It was time to kick some (bum).

Against another foe, 'Army's on the way!' Another loss, another chant whose origins are unknown. By the way, what was going on with that blackout. Did Keith Jackson spill his martini on the control panel? It was probably midway through the third quarter before either he or Bob Grine realized the broadcast was not on or that the game was under way. After that, I extend a heartfelt compliment and congratulations to Jim "ExceptionHandler".

The season is over. The verdict: Notre Dame was no B, not merely inhabitants of a state.
Where's the Representation?

The recent effort by the Student Committee on gay and lesbian Student Needs to establish a formal student group is commendable. However, religious minorities' representation is certainly better than nothing.

Last year the Strake Foundation narrowly survived a seemingly endless parade of "academic freedom." Nonetheless, in my opinion, it was the Strake Foundation that was winning. Readers can find the subtlety of the argument in the Viewpoint section of The Observer (free of charge, I suppose), all of which can be summed up in two unforgiving words: "change" and "chaste.

"Change." Where were the visiting lecturers to "chasten" admirably the Strake Foundation? It is clear that GLND/SMC doesn't have much of a budget, something that we Catholic students might be good about spending a bit of theulsion in the discussion in the academic tradition in which the Students Committee is operating. How the student Standing Committee take a position on the truly equal representation of gay and lesbian Catholics?

"Chaste." Does the Student Committee have any opinions at all?

I don't think so. This is the inclusion of Bible quota tions in both the "Spirit of Inclusion" (Our Lord, Romans 12:9) and the "Network" symbol ("Whoever welcomes you on my account welcomes me.") Is this "appropriate representation"?

We Need Courage to Challenge Rampant Hatred at ND

As I walked home from Fr. Morrissey, my head was filled with the words of hate which I had just heard on our supposedly Catholic campus.

Moments before, I had been sitting in the library and reflecting on the growing problem during the prayer service of some individuals of the Gay/Lesbian support group off the front door, was loudly declaring that, "Homosexuals do me no good, they are like dogs." I then turned to my roommates and said "If the people who are going to the sign. The terrible irony in the situation comes from the fact that this young man was wearing a "What Would Jesus Do?-bracelet. I'm not sure about you, but I don't think this would spur a high education to someone simply because they love a member of their own gender.

I was quite shocked to see such a blatant and current display of pure hate and discrimination. It certainly disturbed me, and it started me thinking about the racism, homophobia, and sexism that can't be fixed running rampant on this campus.

A few minutes after this first incident, I overheard two other conversations. The first: "Mike, what is this all about?"

"Well, you should go with [Name]."

"Hey, no. I wouldn't touch that filth with a 10-foot pole.")

The second conversation followed along similar lines, expect it ended with "Yeah, I got to get with one of them McGinley chicks.")

Both those conversations occurred within a few minutes of each other. Other than the reality that God knows I've heard too many similar conver sations over the years to even attempt to count. It is perhaps better and more sensitive to the misguided of these men.

I think that most of us who are students at the University based on a religion that advocates love and equality. We Catholics have been called time and time again to reflect on the love of our brother, and love each other, to respect our fellow man. Yet, how many do the teachings of the Faith cry of "Haggots" echoes through our pep rallies. Our administration pushes one of the best professors I have ever met, a man of great strength and courage, to resign, simply because he was a homosexuals. We publish and read Right Reason, a magazine that spreads homophobia and racism from behind a thin veil of Catholicism. We sit around and we joke, we write cute inscriptions like, "Mike is a faggoont our roommates white boards, or we prank a first year student at the St. Paul's of the College who voicemail messages saying, "You're a homo!"
Meanwhile, the strake Foundation's goal is something so subversive as creating a peaceful and harmonious society for all students. In short, it is the dream of a society free from "vegetarian-baby-killers.") Meanwhile, any minority who does speak out about the oppression he or she faces here is ridiculed and told basically to "suck it up," that they have it easy. Meanwhile, numerous students are too afraid to admit their sexual orientation to their friends, because they know the pure hatred and anger to which they would be subjected themselves. This all seems quite hypocritical coming from the students who have the right to education, to love, to accept each other, no matter what our differences, no matter our shortcomings.

Look around, and you'll see quite a long way away from this. We are unable to look at one another as truly and truly, and unimportant as sexual orientation. That would require understanding, compassion, and time. It's much easier for all of us instead to simply label each other, to avoid contact and understanding, and to hate from a distance. I'm not sure what I expect to achieve through this letter. I understand both sides to be truly and other than their difference from you. This might sound a bit strange, but if you think about it, it makes a lot of sense. When you hate somebody because of something that is dif-

We must stand up and be counted. Do not let us be the right decisions to make, then Notre Dame has failed us twice through lack of education.

Please pray for Eddie Murphy’s comeback

It’s not ‘Beverly Hills Cop’ nor is it ‘The Nutty Professor.’ But which Eddie Murphy actually shows up in his latest?

“Holy Man”

By MIKE Mcmorrow
Scene Movie Critic

Eddie Murphy, as everyone from the ages of 15 to 30 knows, has had a dry spell in recent years. The unreserved and obviously funny stand-up comic experienced his Golden Age during the years of “Beverly Hills Cop,” “The Golden Child” and “Coming to America” — a time when he was perceived as coveted as the most widely recognized funny person in the media. He put movie-going audiences on a spell of “Murphy humor” — dark and light, dirty and clean, shameful and shameless.

“The Nutty Professor” was among his funniest films. It most efficiently caters to his talents — his ability to impersonate, his ability to be vulgar yet still lovable and his ever-present slickness in every move he makes.

Audiences relish in the Murphy of “Cop” and “Blow,” the man who was probably his laziest before his fall as they wonder why he attempted to strut from the Murphy we used to know and love.

Unfortunately, his future began to look more and more bleak as his capture on the comedy crowd of the 1980s began to dissipate. Dud after dud aside Eddie seems more pathetic than funny these days as his humor seemed to be in dire need of a Travolta-esque comeback.“Holy Man” does not do much for his comeback either.

Again, he seems to have strayed from his talents with this most recent effort, in which he plays a holy-rolling drifter who meets Ricky (Jeff Goldblum), a home-shopping executive whose station is in the pit of pits. Ricky has car trouble one day and — G as the holy-rolling Murphy refers to himself — plays the Good Samaritan by helping him out. Soon after he’s helping Ricky out with his rags by becoming a salesman on his home-shopping network.

Of course, G becomes an instant success. Sales skyrocket and before we know it, he becomes a TV phenomenon. But Ricky’s new boss, played by Robert Loggia, is the malevolent executive who wants G to play on the air, why? Because G is having con science problems, and G doesn’t want to expose such a saint to the and passions of the media.

E d d i e M u r p h y should not get scripts for m o r a l i t y p l a y s , b u t rather for comedies.

The acting in “Holy Man” seems somewhat parallels “The Wedding Singer,” because it does not allow Adam Sandler to unleash.

The same goes for Murphy with “Holy Man.” Here is a suggestion. Take a look at those dinner-table scenes in “The Melmen” that’s not funny, it’s a satire that’s terrifically awful. Comedies play that painful no one, “Holy Man,” which looks like an attempt at all three, faces this problem as well.

And we will not even mention the “love story” between Goldblum and Murphy that has no synergy with the rest of the movie, much less chemistry between the two players.

How much more so of this can the movie-going public take? Murphy has made it a habit in recent years to be completely inconsistent in script, casting and direction. So how do we expect any things else?

The offensive line is just as twisted. The quarterbacks throw bullet passes, and the lighting-fast receivers manage to catch anything thrown to them.

The game features 18 offensive plays, and although this may be meager compared to other football games, no one really follows them.

A running play can easily turn into a Hall Mary. And if you go with a fake punt, you can see how fast your punter can put the pedal to the metal as he scrambles down the field.

Even if you are all about hyper-realism in video games, you cannot watch this game without begging to play, because of the additional frustration.

It only takes seconds until you realize why “NFL Blitz” is being hailed as the best football game ever. Whether you are playing against a buddy or the computer, the game is remarkably engrossing and addicting. Even those who could care less about sports games or video games in general are not immune to Blitz’s incredible game play.

Beating the Desert Heat

By JOEY CAVATO

TEMPE, Ariz.
Arizona State marched into an electric Sun Devil Stadium atmosphere, with faithful fans donned in gold shirts as bright as the desert sun.

By half-time the electricity was drained from the stadium, and it wasn’t just because of a failed transformer. A bruising Notre Dame running attack and an opportunistic defense responsible for three interceptions took the fire and electricity out of most of the sell-out crowd.

By the end of the 28-6 drubbing of the Devils, the only cheer heard was “We are N-D.,” as the Irish fans cheered their team while the players proudly displayed their helmets in the air.

“I am really proud of this football team,” head coach Bob Davie said. “The assistant coaches and the players deserve all the credit.”

Davie has his team completely turned around from his debut season, as its record stands at 4-1 as opposed to the 1-4 start last season. The Sun Devils fell to 2-4.

Joey Goodspeed said the Irish secondary intercepted three Kealy passes, setting up one touchdown and scoring one of their own.

Goodspeed said: “Me, (and the other fullbacks) Josey Murray and Jamie Spencer go out and compete every week and hopefully make each other better. I was fortunate enough to be out there.”

The Irish got over 140 yards from the fullback position as the Devils were more concerned with containing Jarious Jackson and Autry Denson.

“We know that that’s going to be a big play for us,” Goodspeed said of the fullback trap that burned the Devils on numerous occasions. “They have to respect Autry and Jarious.”

After the two teams traded punts to start the game, the Devils marched into Irish territory behind the superb running of J.R. Redmond, who totaled 87 yards in the first half. But Brock Williams ended the threat when he picked off Ryan Kealy’s pass at the 13-yard line.

The Irish then gave the Devil defense a steady dose of Jamie Spencer’s strength, a hint of Autry Denson’s quickness and a touch of Jarious Jackson’s passing to go on the scoreboard first. Jackson hit Malcolm Johnson from seven yards out, rapping an 11-play, 87-yard drive that quickly quieted the Sun Devil stadium.

The two teams played the game of field position for the rest of the quarter, as neither offense could sustain a drive. The Devils appeared to be winning that battle and had a golden opportunity with the Irish backed up at their own goal line. With his heels at the back of his own endzone, Hunter Smith boomed a 79-yard punt into the high desert sky that got the Irish out of trouble and pushed the Devils inside their own 20.

“Not to boast, but that was the pivotal play of the game,” Smith said. “We were excited, not necessarily to redeem myself (after the Stanford game) but just to get back to where I need to be. If I had gotten the roll, it might have gone even further.”

Three plays later the Irish secondary came up with another momentum changing play. A'Jani Sanders took a tipped Kealy pass and scrambled 25 yards untouched to give Notre Dame a 14-0 lead.

“Our secondary just made plays,” Deveron Harper said. “We made plays on our running game, too. We just stuck together and play hard.”

TEMPE, Ariz. Cornerback Deveron Harper, echoing the words of former Irish head coach Dan Devine, summed up the team’s 28-9 victory only minutes after time expired.

“The team that won’t be beat, can’t be beat,” Harper said as blood seeped through the bandage taped across his nose.

It was that scene that epitomized the gutsy defensive performance it took to beat the emotionally drained Sun Devils on their home field.

“I think on defense we played well,” said Dave. “I don’t know if some guys make some plays or not.”

Some of the biggest plays were made by the often-criticized secondary.

Brook Williams, A’Jani Sanders and Deke Cooper each intercepted errant passes from Arizona State quarterback Ryan Kealy, who gave way to redshirt freshman Chad Elliott in the fourth quarter. The three Irish picks were the most since Nov. 15, 1997, when Notre Dame beat LSU 24-6 at Tiger Stadium.

“It started with the defensive line, ended up with the linebackers and then fell back to the secondary,” said Cooper. “Everybody was getting a rush on the quarterback and that helped the secondary a lot.”

What ended in jubilation could have begun in tragedy for the Irish, however. On the game’s first play, Kealy barely underthrew receiver Lenzie Jackson, who had beaten Williams’ coverage and could have easily scampered 76 yards for the score. But instead, Williams tipped the pass away.

“Obviously Brook Williams’ interception at the beginning of the game was big,” said Dave. “Big only begins to describe it.”

ND-M Johnson 7-yard pass from J. Jackson (Sanson kick), 5:57.

Second Quarter

ND-Sanders 25-yard interception return (Sanson kick), 12:27.

Third Quarter

ND-Denson 1-yard run (Sanson kick), 4:45.

Fourth Quarter

ASU-Redmond 1-yard run (run failed), 10:40.

ND-Denson 1-yard run (Sanson kick), 4:45.

30 seconds into the second quarter. Hunter Smith bobbled a monstrous 79-yard punt, giving the Sun Devils poor field position at their own 18 yard line. Kealy dropped back on first down and let one fly – into the waiting arms of Sanders. The center safely sprinted 25 yards for the touchdown, and the first points by this year’s defensive unit.

“I was a little bit surprised,” said Sanders. “But you hope for plays like that, and when they come you just try to take advantage of them.”

Cooper’s first interception of the season came in the third quarter, and served as the final nail in Kealy’s coffin.

“I think it was cover two, and Harper tipped it off,” said Cooper of his pick off. “It was just about to go out of bounds, and I scooped it up before it went out of there.”

Against Arizona State, everything the Irish secondary has spent the season preparing for materialized.

“In practice we were working on deep balls, planting and driving on the out, everything that we did today,” said Cooper.

After four weeks of opposing teams using strong aerial attacks aimed directly at exploiting the Notre Dame secondary, Saturday’s game proved the group means business.

“It was a great confidence builder [for the secondary],” Sanders explained. “We were a little bit shaky, but you have to be confident going into every game.”

...we did today,” said Cooper.

Nothing can rattle Notre Dame's renewed confidence

By KATHLEEN LOPEZ

Stranger things have happened.
No one is quite sure where or when, but many who turned out for the game know that the amount of mistakes and quirky mishaps will not be repeated anytime soon.

Still, not even silly penalties & delay-of-game calls on the kickoff, offensive pass interference — or power outages could slow the Irish down. On a day of mishaps, the Irish stood strong.

Initially, Notre Dame prepared solely for the heat, but quickly found themselves in the middle of a bigger mess.

"Everything was going wrong," A.Jani Stanek said. "I didn't even see the ball hit my foot."

But the most bizarre and arguably most unexpected event happened in the middle of the halftime show.

With a few minutes remaining, Sun Devil Stadium lost almost all of its power. Only the bare essentials were allowed to run off the emergency generators. Translation: no scoreboard, no replay, no play clock.

ABC could transistor only the remaining minute of the third quarter for its nationwide viewing audience.

Since when had Salt Lake was a loss... that attitude into Sun Devil Stadium and walked away the winner.

"I got a note from Coach Devine after we beat Purdue," Davis said. "It said, 'An old philosopher once said that a team that won't be beaten, can't be beat.'"

The Irish looked stronger than ever, dominating the Sun Devils, 28-9.

Rob Davie and his players took that motto to heart, proving that not even a loss of power can keep the Irish off the scoreboard.

GAME NOTES AND QUOTES

Fullback Joey Goodspeed, on his 60-yard run in the fourth quarter that left him five yards shy of the goal line:

"I'm not as fast as I thought I was."

Cornerback Deveron Harper, following his illegal kick of a live ball that led to ASU's only points of the first half:

"I said, 'Coach, take my eyes, I did not kick it.' The line judge disagreed."

"I thought it was an incomplete pass."

Punter Hunter Smith, about his 79-yard punt, the longest in 64 years and third-longest in Notre Dame history:

"If I had gotten the roll, it might have gone even further."

Bob Davie: "I thought there were several calls that were questionable in thatotball game, particularly in the third quarter. I thought our football team survived a lot of things out there."

A power outage in Sun Devil Stadium that began during halftime resulted in a second half without use of the scoreboard or public address system, and no ABC television coverage over the past evening out.

Notre Dame gained 263 rushing yards, highlighted by Goodspeed's 136-yard effort, against a Sun Devil defense that had allowed only 32 yards on the ground in its previous two games.

Former Irish head coach Dan Devine spoke to the team at its hotel on Friday, and joined Frank Kush at midfield for the opening coin toss. Devine won the toss for Notre Dame.

"The Silence of the Lambs"

Director: Jonathan Demme
Starring: Jodie Foster, Anthony Hopkins, Lawrence Bonney and Kasi Lemmons

By CASEY MCCULSKY

With the much talked-about movie version of Tom Morrison's novel "Beloved" opening this Friday, this week's movie pick is another Jonathan Demme film, "The Silence of the Lambs." This 1991 psychological thriller is one of the few films of the decade to be both intelligent and frightening effective.

The film begins with the FBI at a crime scene in search of the serial killer "Buffalo Bill." Special Agent Clarice Starling (Jodie Foster) is sent to interview the brilliant psychiatrist and serial killer, Hannibal "The Cannibal" Lecter, (Anthony Hopkins) with hopes that he will be able to reveal something about the mind of a murderer.

With knowledge that another victim is in the hands of the serial killer, Agent Starling realizes that time is crucial and she devotes most of it working with Lecter in order to save the kidnapped victim. It is her goal to enter Lecter's mind so that she may know exactly what "Buffalo Bill" is thinking.

Starling must play a game of cat and mouse with Lecter and try to get information without getting too close to him. Anthony Hopkins sinks his teeth into the role of Hannibal Lecter, brilliant psychiatrist and serial killer "Buffalo Bill" is thinking. Hopkins does a masterful job of portraying the mind of a murderer. His intense stare, his soothing voice and deliberate movements make the viewer feel as if he is in a horror flick.

Anthony Hopkins sinks his teeth into the role of Hannibal Lecter, brilliant psychiatrist and serial killer. Hopkins is only in the film for a total of 22 minutes, but his mind-boggling performance did earn him the 1991 Academy Award for Best Actor. "The Silence of the Lambs" accomplished what only one other movie — "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" — has been able to do at the Academy Awards. It swept all of the major categories including Best Picture, Best Actor and Best Director. "Silence of the Lambs" has become a classic and is a must-see for anyone who enjoys psychological thrillers.

With "The Silence of the Lambs," Anthony Hopkins has won an Academy Award and is up for Best Supporting Actor at the Golden Globes and the Screen Actors Guild Awards. He has also been chosen as "Best Actor" by a host of critics organizations including the Broadcast Film Critics Association, the National Society of Film Critics, and the Dallas-Fort Worth Film Critics Association. Hopkins is a true talent and his performance in "The Silence of the Lambs" is a testament to his skill.
Chad Chipache scored the second goal for the Irish on a delayed penalty in aggressive forechecking. Chipache got control of the puck behind the Laker net, and after his first shot hit the near post, he put it in his own rebound and put the puck up over Platt, who still recovering from the first shot.

Three minutes later it was Notre Dame power play. David Imman set up for a shot in the circle, but it was blocked by the Laker defense. Suozzo-Maize Van Arkel got to the loose puck in the low slot and jammed the puck into the net, just as he was being checked to the ice, earning a point on an opposing defensemen.

"Matt scored a big goal, and that was great for his confidence early in the season," said assistant coach of his tough forward. "It wasn't pretty, put it away at a key time of the game for us (on the power play)," The Irish had a two-goal lead entering the third period, and let the Lakers control the tempo. Notre Dame got caught napping three minutes in, when Jason Nightingale converted a pass from behind the Irish net to cut the lead to one. Urie scored his second goal to stretch the lead back to two, and in the last 15 minutes of the game, the Laker defense never got a quality scoring chance. They out shot the Irish 9-6.

The star of the period for the Irish was Ben Simon, who seemed to be on the ice for every key defensive zone faceoff, winning most of them. The Irish defensemen also shone, as Cornellus registered his first point with the Irish on his first period goal, and on numerous occasions Andy Jurkowski was finding joining the rush and forcing the offensive play.

THE NOTRE DAME HOCKEY
remained the top team in the nation for the fourth straight week as they earned a 2-1 win over Northeastern men's hockey, 2-1, in the second period for the Irish was Ben Simon, who seemed to be on the ice for every key defensive zone faceoff, winning most of them. The Irish defensemen also shone, as Cornellus registered his first point with the Irish on his first period goal, and on numerous occasions Andy Jurkowski was finding joining the rush and forcing the offensive play.

Belles capture Saint Mary's Spectacular

BY RACHEL DEER

The Belles volleyed their way to this victory past week-end, raising their hopes for the remainder of the season.

Saint Mary's took home all three points of the game against the Notre Dame College Spectacular, defeating Defiance in four and Alma in four.

The Belles have won their last five matches, now placing them fourth overall in their division.

"This is definitely a big step for us," said junior Mary Rodivich. "We started slow, but picked up our game. We finally proved were a very good team and can beat very good teams."

On Friday, the Belles took on the Irish. They easily dropped them in three: 15-4, 15-7, 15-12. Assistant coach Jennifer Martin walked away with 38 assists and four service aces, while Rodivich put away 10 kills and two solo blocks. Angie Meyers helped out defensively, picking up 15 digs. They had to come out strong on Saturday to defeat Adrian College, and they did: 15-10, 15-11, 15-9.

Angie Meyers had 14 kills and 12 digs. Jayne Opholt followed right behind her with 13 kills. Brannina Carter came in strong, pulling up 18 digs to keep the play alive.

The Belles were excited to put two more wins under their belts, they had to be ready to face their toughest competition of the weekend. Alma College. This game was to decide the rankings in the NCAC.

Agnes Bill had a hot hand and grabbing 24 digs. Serving has been an ongoing problem. Joyce said.

The Belles moved to 10-11 overall and 7-4 in their conference.

They are away this week playing Calvin College on Wednesday and at Albion on Friday.

AMERICAN LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

Wells’ victory puts Cleveland on verge of elimination

Associated Press

CLEVELAND

The Yankees came to town in disarray, in disarray and in disarray. They're heading home in control and in reach of their ultimate goal - a trip to the World Series. David Wells pitched well enough to win. Chili Davis drove in three runs and Mariano Rivera got out of a hairy eighth inning Sunday as the Yankees defeated the Cleveland Indians 5-3 to take a 3-2 lead in the AL championship series.

New York saved its record-setting season with two wins this weekend at Jacobs Field, where its season ended last year. Now, the Yankees are one victory away from the season's final destination and the only place their fans will allow their magical year to finish. And for all his griping about the urgency to flee the Bronx and build a new ballpark, even New York owner George Steinbrenner will be happy to see the old neighborhood again.

Rivera, who gave up the eighth-inning homer to Sandy Alomar here last year in Game 4 that swung the series to Cleveland, this time got his team to the ninth. After Wells was pulled with one out in the eighth and New York leading 5-3, Jeff Nelson came on and hit Travis Fryman. Manny Ramirez singled and New York manager Joe Torre summoned for Rivera, who was also brought in with one out in the eighth last year before yielding Alomar's homer.

This time was different, though. Rivera got Mark Whiten to hit into an inning-ending double play that brought the Yankee charging out of the dugout. Now the Indians' lineup looked more like the Triple-A Buffalo Bisons than the defending AL champs on Sunday and who got an early bad-break bounce in Game 5, face the awesome task of trying to win twice in Yankee Stadium.

The Yankees, who won 62 home games during the regular season, will start David Cone on Tuesday in Game 6 against Charles Nagy. With the Yankees trailing in the series Saturday, Wells, who easily handled the Indians in Game 1, asked New York manager if he could pitch Game 4. An amused Torre said no, and Orlando "El Duque" Hernandez took care of the Indians Saturday.

Wells, who entered the game 6-1 in the postseason in his career and 3-0 vs. Cleveland, was switched to the lineup because of injuries and Indians manager Mike Hargrove was forced start three rookies.

Wells struggled early, allowing two runs in the first but once the left-hander settled in, he gave up just Jim Thome's homer in the sixth and finished with a personal postseason record 11 strikeouts.

Hargrove elected to start Chad Ogea, who won two World Series game the Indians last year, over Jarret Wright. Wright had been ranked by Boston in his first playoff start against Boston and again in Game 1 at New York, but Ogea didn't fare much better, failing to get out of the second inning after giving up four runs and four hits in 1 1/3 innings with three walks and two hit batters. Wright came in and allowed one run and two hits in six innings but walked seven.

There was a whole ballgame crammed into a 40-minute first inning.

The Yankees spent 22 minutes scoring three runs against Ogea on two hit batters, two grounders off Cleveland infielder’s gloves and an RBI groundout.

Saint Mary’s Swimming

Belles happy with season start

By KATIE FURMAN
Sports Writer

Saint Mary’s dove into its new swimming season this weekend with a splash.

In the Notre Dame Relays Friday night, the team finished fifth in six events, fourth in one event, and sixth in four events.

But the fifth-place overall finish did not disappoint anyone — the Division III Belles went up against all Division I and Division II schools.

For many, it was their first introduction to collegiate competition.

“It is a fun meet to get acclimated to competition in general,” said head coach Jim Cook.

“Everybody did a really good job for only having three weeks of training,” she added. “We had a really solid performance all around. We even had eight freshman swim.”

The swim team tallied against its competition, which was comprised of Notre Dame, Valparaiso, Butler, University of Illinois-Chicago and Marquette.

“I think we did well, but there is room for improvement,” said freshman Alicia Lesneskie. “We need to work on being more comfortable with competition and get some new freshmen more comfortable because they’ve never swam before.”

The freshmen indeed did make a contribution to the team’s success as they finished fourth and had tremendous times in the 1,000-yard freestyle.

Other events included the 400-breaststroke relay, won by Ann Yanda, Wendy Newman, Janelle Miller and Michelle Samreta. The group finished fifth, but all had excellent times.

Official times have not yet been released, but according to Cook’s estimations the meet was close to record-breaking.

“Nothing was really a second off the school record,” said Cook.

The 400 backstroke relay team also had its share of decent times, and it also finished fifth. These swimmers — Danielle Clayton, Janelle Miller, Tara Thomas and Noreen Gillespie — helped Saint Mary’s outshine last year’s results.

While the team placed fifth last year at the relays, Cook sees immense improvement, and a bright future.

“We’re going to be strong in the backstroke events, sprints, in the im and breaststrokes. The only weak link is that we don’t have a butterflyer and I am working on recruiting one now,” she said.

Alicia Lesneskie, while only a freshman, agreed with Cook. “As a team we have more swimmers and depth, depth is our strength.”

But a team will even question its strength going up against such stiff competition.

“When we walked in it was really intimidating,” said Gillespie. “I’ve swam for fourteen years, had it was intimidating. After the first relay, it was a lot of fun. Once we saw how fun it was we got into it.”

Even a five-month hiatus from swimming didn’t slow Gillespie down as she finished one second off her personal best.

I think coming out and competing against Division I teams was hard. Everyone was cheering though and there was a lot of team spirit,” she said.

Before the regular season begins, the team will head back to Saint Mary’s pool and train there for one week. As the women return home for break, the swimmers will train with their club or high school teams to stay in shape.

They then will complete their pre-season run with another week of training before diving into the big pool.

As the season progresses, the team also has an opportunity to travel to Florida to train over Christmas break.

The trip, from Jan. 2-9, will include training twice a day, from four to six hours, as well as the possibility of competing.

“My plan is to see how we improve this year, watching my swimmers from last year mature in and out of the water, getting better times, as well as more leadership,” Cook said.

McNew got the ball rolling just 5:08 into the game on a pass from junior Andrew Arie in the only first-half goal.

Both teams shot seven times in the half, keeping it an even contest. The Gaels stepped up their play in the second, out-shooting the Irish 9-6. But the Irish fended off the St. Mary's blitz, as Velho picked up six of his seven saves in the second. Freshman Shane Wallon scored his ninth goal in 12 games this season 7:54 into the second. Walston got the ball from midfielder Reggie McKnight, putting Notre Dame ahead 2-0. The Gaels only goal came late in the contest, as Jon Gordon took a Nair Kuro assist to the net with less than six minutes left to play.

The Irish will now finish up the regular season with a five-game stretch against Big East opponents that begins at home this Friday against Connecticut. Seventh in the Big East with a 2-2-2 record, Notre Dame will try to upset the first-place Huskies.

did ahead goals. Gerardo scored the first two goals of Friday's game to tie the Eagles' record.
At 53:44, Jenny Streiffer found Gerardo, who headed the ball from 10 yards out. The ball skimmed off the left post into the right corner of the net for a 1-0 Irish lead.
Gerardo struck again at 65:53 when she unleashed a blast from 20 yards out into the upper left corner of the net to give Notre Dame a 2-0 advantage.
BC's Meghan Moore made a game of it at 85:29 when she lofted a ball from the right end-line and into the left corner of the net.
Streiffer, however, put the game away when she answered 1:02 later. Her shot deflected off a BC defender and into the right corner of the net to close out the 3-1 win.
The Irish outshot the Eagles 29-1, but BC was able to score on its only shot, ending the Irish's six game shutout streak. The Eagles were content on playing just one forward on the narrow Natick High School football field.
Providence didn't fare much better against the Irish. Notre Dame went on a scoring spree, netting four goals in the first six minutes of Sunday's contest.
At 2:04, Lindsay Jones crossed the ball to Streiffer who fired a shot into the left corner of the net. Gerardo then scored the three goals for the Irish, all in the next four minutes. She added two assists on Jenny Heft's and Kelly Lindsay's goals, as the Irish took a 6-0 advantage at half-time.
Heft scored at 28:24 when her shot found the lower left corner of the net. At 30:46, Lindsay finished a give-and-go from Gerardo to close out the first half scoring.
Shannon Boxx and Heft each added goals in the second half to seal the 8-0 win.
The Irish tallied 30 shots on the afternoon and Shainya Ross made 13 saves for the Friars. LaKeysia Beene and Elizabeth Wagger combined for the shutout, as both of them recorded a save.
The Irish now have a week to prepare for a showdown with fourth-ranked Connecticut. The Huskies spoiled Notre Dame's NCAA championship bid last year by beating the Irish in the semi-finals.

BC's Meghan Moore made a game of it at 85:29 when she lofted a ball from the right end-line and into the left corner of the net for a 1-0 Irish lead.

SAINT MARY'S SOCCER

Comets top Belles, 5-1

By MOLLY MAYO
Sports Writer

Despite a hard-fought game, the Belles' soccer team dropped its match 5-1 against the Comets of Olivet on Saturday.

The Saint Mary's squad faced a tough Olivet team that is the second-highest scoring team in the league. Early in the game, no team could claim control of the ball.

Olivet passed well and kept the first half high-powered. The ball was mainly at Saint Mary's end of the field and goalie, Joanne Wagner, had some impressive saves.

Olivet's quickness kept both teams working very hard throughout the entire first half. They were physical. The Belles took some difficult shots on goalie Katie Barger of Saint Mary's, making many saves. They weren't going to give us anything for free.

Midway through the first half, Laura Fettuccine scored for Olivet.

Second time, the Belles had no shots on goal. Shortly after that, Olivet scored again on a corner kick, making it 2-0 Olivet.

Barger did not let their attacks go unanswered. She took the ball all the way down the field and scored for Saint Mary's, giving Saint Mary's the lead in favor of the Comets.

Then, near the end of the first half, Fiore opened again for Olivet and the teams went half-time with a score of 3-1.

When asked why he thought the ball stayed mainly at Saint Mary's end, coach Roberts Sharp said it was the Belles' attitude issue toward Olivet.

"In the first half, we went into defensive mode. The were getting too many shots off," said Sharp.

In the second half, the Belles appeared tired.

The defense was tough, but they could not seem to get the ball past mid-field to create offense.

Again, Wagner had some fantastic saves, but Olivet scored on an indirect kick because of a Saint Mary's penalty.

We played mostly defense. The had a near half in midfield and their 10-1 record shows it," said Barger.

The Belles looked a bit sluggish in the second half and Olivet took advantage.

Late in the game, they took a corner kick at Saint Mary's goal and the Belles accidentally blocked it in during an attempt to clear for Saint Mary's.

"This made it 5-1. The Belles played tough for the rest of the game, but did lose again," said Barger.

"Overall, (Olivet) got the ball too often and drove it through us too often," said Sharp.

Both teams hit well in the match, with Notre Dame actually out-hitting the Belles 2-1 in the match versus Connecticut (12-9, 3-0 Big East). The Irish dropped the last two games 12-15 and 14-16 to the underdog Huskies.

Both teams had a high number of errors. Although the Irish actually had a better hitting percentage, more assists and more digs than the Huskies, Connecticut used its advantage on digs to beat Notre Dame.

The key factor in the outcome of the match was Connecticut's ability to come through in the clutch.

Senior outside hitter Annette Rynne led the Huskies with her 16th double-double of the season, recording 15 kills and 13 digs.

The Irish had four players who hit more than .400. Schiebout continued her stellar weekend, leading the team with 17 kills, .552 hitting percentage, and only one error.

Sophomore setter Denise Boylan played a strong match, with nine kills and no errors. She also had 57 set assists and 14 digs. Treadwell, a captain, played a solid all-around match.

Three of the games in the match were decided by two points, and the fact that Fairfield came out on top in two of those put them over the edge.

The Irish regrouped from the two early weekend losses in time for a conference match Sunday against St. John's. Notre Dame defeated St. John's in three straight games, 15-12, 15-13, and 15-10.

Treadwell, Malinda Gorsalski and Krissey Kreher played well for the Irish. Treadwell and Kreher each had 11 kills. Treadwell added eight blocks and Gorsalski seven.

Notre Dame out-blocked St. John's 20-5, as well as out-hitting the Red Cloud. It was the third conference win for the Irish this season.

Notre Dame will have a few days from recovery from their four-match road trip before heading to North Carolina this weekend to take on Duke and North Carolina.

UConn snaps ND's conference streak

By KATHLEEN O'BRIEN
Sports Writer

On Friday, the Notre Dame volleyball team's 78-match win streak against conference opponents came to a crashing halt.

The team could not come together to win the tight games this weekend.

Dropping close matches to Connecticut and non-conference opponent Fairfield, both losses went to five games and were determined by only one points.

The team did rebound with a three-game win over Big East opponent St. John's. With the weekend's matches, the Irish dropped to 6-8 overall and 2-2 in the Big East.

After going ahead 2-1 in the match versus Connecticut (12-9, 3-0 Big East), the Irish dropped the last two games 12-15 and 14-16 to the underdog Huskies.

Both teams had a high number of errors. Although the Irish actually had a better hitting percentage, more assists and more digs than the Huskies, Connecticut used its advantage on digs to beat Notre Dame.

The key factor in the outcome of the match was Connecticut's ability to come through in the clutch.

Senior outside hitter Annette Rynne led the Huskies with her 16th double-double of the season, recording 15 kills and 13 digs.

Topping the Irish stats were Emily Schiebout's 17 kills and Lindsay Treadwell's 14 digs.

All three previous match-ups between Connecticut and the Irish took only three games, with Notre Dame the victor each time. Besides never having lost to a Big East opponent, the Irish had only been pushed to one five-game match since joining the conference, against Villanova in 1996.

The Fairfield Stags won their 10th straight match to move to 8-1 on the season with a closely fought victory over the Irish.

Both teams hit well in the match, with Notre Dame actually out-hitting Fairfield .415 to .319.

The Irish also had a good night at the net, tallying 21 blocks to the Stags' 8. However, the Irish succumbed to the 14-aces and superior digging of the Fairfield team.

"We made some critical upper-class plays tonight," said Fairfield head coach Todd Kress. "Everyone stepped up at key points for us."

Junior Liz Rower set the pace for the Stags, recording her second straight triple-double: 59 assists, 10 kills and 19 digs. Freshman Joanna Saunders recorded 17 kills in the match and hit .233.

The Irish had four players who hit more than .400. Schiebout continued her stellar weekend, leading the team with 17 kills, .552 hitting percentage, and only one error.

Rumor has it, Mona Lisa had pasta on her mind. Kind of like the authentic Italian pasta you'll find at Za'faro's.

Petticoone Alfredo, Spaghetti with rich Marinara sauce. And hearty Lasagne, just to name a few.

Come by soon for a real work of art. You'll smile, too.

Icers remain unbeaten with wins over Lakers, Broncos

By TED BASSANI
Sports Writer

For just the second time in 19 seasons of conference play, Notre Dame's hockey team started its conference season with two consecutive wins.

On Friday, the Irish skated past Lake Superior State with a 4-2 win, and on Saturday they thrashed Western Michigan, 7-1.

Lake Superior State came into the Joyce Center Friday night with a 7-0-1 unbeaten streak against the Irish, with the last Notre Dame win coming in November 1995.

The Lakers brought a young team, with 12 starters being either freshmen or sophomores, including their starting goaltender and the entire third and fourth lines.

But the Irish looked sloppy early on, drawing four penalties in the first ten minutes — two of which were for having too many men on the ice. Those errors put the Irish on the short end of a 5-0-3 power play.

And the Lakers took full advantage. Jeff Cheeseman stuffed a rebound shot into the Joyce.

The second Irish goal of Friday night's game against the Lakers slips by the goalie while sophomore Dan Carlson looks on.

Senior forward Monica Gerardo scored five times this weekend to pass Cindy Daws' school record of 61 career goals.

Gerardo leads Irish to victories

By BRIAN KESSLER
Assistant Sports Editor

Senior forward Monica Gerardo scored five goals this weekend to lead the second-ranked Notre Dame women's soccer team to conference victories over Boston College and Providence.

On Friday, the Irish defeated the Eagles 3-1 on a rainy Natick High School field and followed up that win with a 4-0 shellacking of the Friars on Sunday.

Notre Dame improved to 12-1 on the season and 7-0 in the Big East, but the real story belonged to Gerardo, who surpassed Cindy Daws to become the Irish's all-time leading goal scorer.

Heading into the weekend, Gerardo stood just two back of Daws with 59 career goals. With her offensive explosion this weekend, Gerardo now stands alone in the Irish record books.

"The record is something Monica really deserves," said Irish head coach Chris Petrucelli. "She has been a player that scored goals for us as soon as she came to our campus four years ago. It is not that Monica just scores goals, she scores big goals, like she

Irish split on west coast trip

The Irish ended their non-conference play for the season this weekend by splitting a two-game stretch in California against Santa Clara and St. Mary's.

Losing 3-1 on Friday to Santa Clara but rebounding yesterday with a win at St. Mary's, the men ended with a 4-1-1 non-conference record.

No. 22 Notre Dame scored first Friday, something the Irish did once before in the previous seven games. Notre Dame's offense was dominated the Irish. Its first goal came just six more minutes before they took the lead on a Michael Goehring penalty kick that slipped past him. Velho faced 15 shots while Davis saw just 11.

Revenge out west came last Friday when the Irish swung over to St. Mary's to complete the stretch in a winning style. Again, the Irish came out first, but this time were able to hold off a second-half surge to win their sixth of the season.

Junior Matt McNee and Shane Walton were the lone goal scorers for the Irish.
