Service learning plays significant role at SMC

By NOREEN GILLESPIE

"We’ve had a lot of individuals participate in community-based learning in their classes, but there has never been an effort to centralize it before," Kors said.

Centralizing service

The effort to centralize community-based learning is led by a steering committee comprised of Kors and professors Jan Pilarsky, Jeff Breene and Neumann, who for the past year has worked on a grant called "Embedded Service Learning in Teacher Education." A survey of professors this summer showed not only an interest for community-based learning in a larger capacity, but a demand for it.

"What we are finding out is that a lot of professors have used it and want it in their classes," Kors said.

Neumann, who has been using the program in her class for the past five years, said she noticed a difference in the quality of learning with the addition of the program.

"The connections that are made that are through community-based learning," Neumann said.

Web business joins business board

Dome Designs, a student-run Web design business, was approved last week as the newest member of the Student Business Board (SBB).

"As we grew and started to get more projects, we knew we needed to expand," said Kevin Campbell, co-manager of Dome Designs. "We’re partially subsidized by the University. We’re professional, but at student prices.

"We’ve had a lot of individuals participate in community-based learning in their classes, but there has never been an effort to centralize it before," Kors said.

Campbell said. "The Student Business Board watches our books, and that makes people more comfortable."

Marketing strategy

The biggest advantage of SBB membership is visible, centrally-located office space on the second floor of the Lafortune Student Center, Campbell said. The NCICDD could not provide Dome Designs with office space.

"As we grew and started to get more projects, we knew we needed to expand," Campbell said. "The Student Business Board watches our books, and that makes people more comfortable."

Gift funds seminar on Catholic social teaching programs

By ERIN LaRUFFA

News Writer

Notre Dame will be host a three-day seminar to discuss, propose and develop programs for the study of Catholic social teaching, thanks to a recently acquired $1020.966 grant from The Washab Center for Teaching and Learning in Theology and Religion. The gift will fund the summer 2000 session, dubbed "Teaching Catholic Social Teaching: A Programmatic Response," Todd Whitmore, an associate theology professor and the director of the Program in Catholic Social Tradition, applied for the grant and will direct the project.

"I’ve received this grant to help facilitate the development of programs of Catholic social teaching at a dozen Catholic colleges and universities in the United States," Whitmore said.

The group will reconvene on campus in summer 2001 to evaluate the programs implemented at the respective schools. At that time, the group will write a report for various academic administrators and Catholic bishops.

Whitmore does not yet know what schools will participate, but he hopes to get a mixture of small-college

INSIDE COLUMN

Out of the Woodwork

If the current presidential hopefuls leave you wanting someone a bit "alternative," you may soon have your wish. All indications show that actor Warren Beatty is "considering" running for the U.S. Presidency, which will soon be vacated by his moral equivalent, Bill Clinton. Beatty, known for challenging the status quo often through his movies, is apparently frustrated with the current list of candidates and would run as a Democrat to garner potential challengers Gore and Bradley as not "liberal enough." Sure, and that Pat Buchanan character profile is still up for grabs.

My objection to this latest possible candidate has nothing to do with the man's political views, nor does it concern hisorny movies. What bothers me most is the fact that yet another Woody Harrelson enters the fray. Last week we not only care with what he has to say, but that he has the right to tell us.

Not that I've always objected to all actor-turned-politicians. Ronald Reagan provided many conservatives with a role model and gave many liberals someone to blame for poverty, AIDS and that stain you can't quite remove from the carpet. Unfortunately, I can't decide whether the good things accomplished in the 1980's would have been won without Reagan gracefully from "The Munsters." Run for Senator in New York against Hillary Clinton and Bob Dole.

I also would like to point out that I am a staunch supporter of the First Amendment, even though it allows frequently hate speech and Barbara Streisand. However, television and movies are no respecter of time without reserving the right to inform me that they're concerned about the environment. Yeah, I'm concerned too, but not because some special interest group pays me to act concerned in cheap television commercials. Therefore, I respectfully request that our star-studded friends out in Los Angeles remember the man from Bunker Hill who is not going away.

Berkeley students protest criminal charges

BERKELEY, Calif.

University of California at Berkeley students hold a protest in front of California Hall Tuesday, demanding that Chancellor Robert Berdahl drop charge, against eight students who were involved in last year's takeover of various campus buildings in April. The students said they want a response within the next two weeks.

Members of the Third World Liberation Front demanded that all Office of Student Conduct charges, letters of admonishment and criminal charges be dropped. Additionally, the group called for the reinstatement of Sara Kaplan, a current graduate student who was dismissed from her job at the Recreational Sports Facility. In total, 51 students were arrested and charged by the Office of Student Conduct. Although 43 students were given letters of admonishment, eight students were punished more severely.

Kroc donation funds student conference

By LIZ ZANONI

A $500,000 gift from University benefactor Joan Kroc will endow an annual student conference on public issues and policy making.

The conference, to be organized and run by students, will be accompanied by a series of briefing papers on public issues intended to shape public debate, government decisions and the effectiveness of foreign policy discussion in other universities and colleges, said Robert Johansen, graduate director of the Kroc Institute.

"The conference will influence policy debates and encourage peace and justice value commitment more seriously," Johansen said.

By involving students directly in the policy making process, the conference organization hopes to send recommendations from students to government officials, Johansen explained.

The Kroc Institute for International Peace seeks to instruct U.S. and international representatives to stop violence and war through the promotion of peace.

Graduate students will be notified on or before April 1, 2000, and will work at either our major metropolitan daily newspapers. Previous internship or part-time experience at a newspaper is desired, or the annual student conference will allow students the chance to collaborate ideas and push them into the policy making arena. The conference hopes to spark additional interest in policy discussion among other Notre Dame students, ultimately contributing to what Johansen called "an expression of many student's voices."

Grant endows new professorship

Notre Dame received a grant from the Henry Luce Foundation to establish a new professorship in the Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies that focuses on the fundamentals of a peaceful and just world and the need for human rights, prosperous economies and the global ecosystem. In addition, the Kroc Institute offers an international graduate program culminating in a Master's degree in peace studies.

Johansen called "an official's desire to make issues such as those present in student discussion. Their joint efforts have attracted students from all over the world to study peacemaking while trying to achieve cross-cultural recognition. The annual student conference allows students the chance to collaborate ideas and push them into the policy making arena. 27th Annual Pulliam Journalism Fellowships

Graduating college seniors are invited to apply for the 27th annual Pulliam Journalism Fellowships. We will grant 10-week summer internships to 20 journalism or liberal arts majors in the August 1999-June 2000 graduating classes.

Previous internships or part-time experience at a newspaper is desired, or other demonstration of writing and reporting ability. Those who go through the Fellowships often find new professional opportunities opening up at other newspapers during and after the program. Winners will receive a $5,500 stipend and will work at either The Indianapolis Star or The Arizona Republic.

Opportunities for online training are available, along with reporting experience at our major metropolitan daily newspapers.

Early-admissions application postmark deadline is Nov. 15, 1999. By Dec. 15, 1999, up to five early-admissions winners will be notified. All other entries must be postmarked by March 1, 2000, and will be considered with remaining early-admissions applicants. Successful applicants will be notified on or before April 1, 2000, and will be asked to respond immediately with a letter of intent, at which time one-third of the cash grant will be mailed to the Fellow.

ing are crucial," Neumann said. "What we examine in the class is the question, "What does it mean to live the Christian life?"

"When a student can observe someone who is less fortunate than they are, there is a larger impact," she explained.

For Renner, the interaction she had with her charges was critical. She said she fostered learning she wouldn’t have found elsewhere, she said.

"At first, it was upsetting to see people in that condition," Renner said. "It is uncomfortable. But it makes you realize that it is your responsibility to take care of these people."

Smiling faces

But it was the reception she got from her charges that made Renner want to return, even after the initial shock of her first visit.

"None of them can talk," Renner explained. "But you could just tell they were so happy to see you when you walked in the building. Their eyes would just get so bright when I'd come in. It was such a rush to feel love for someone else, and shift the compassion from yourself."

Neumann, who has worked with community agencies such as St. Margaret’s House, Logan Center, AIDS Ministries of Northern Indiana, Center for the Homeless, Holy Cross Care Services, Diocesan House and Bets of Life, said the connections her students make in class impact the agencies as well.

"One of the goals of a lot of these agencies is awareness and education," Neumann said. "There is a benefit to the agencies as well."

Many of the agencies have developed invaluable connections with Saint Mary’s through the program, she said.

"Many of these agencies have said that they have focused on Saint Mary’s as their primary source for volunteers," she said. "Since we focus on two, three or five agencies, we are able to target places where students can be helpful."

However, while the experience has been primarily beneficial for the students involved, there is debate about whether community-based learning should be required.

Required learning

Neumann said scheduling and transportation have been two obstacles in working with the program.

"If it were to be required, the logistics of placing 430 incoming students with agencies would be a nightmare," Neumann said. "In addition, lots of students schedules are so hectic that I don't feel it is my place to require them to complete service. And many students do not have transportation."

Many of the reasons a student may have a poor experience could be that they rushed to get their hours in or were exposed to awkward situations. Kors said.

Yet that does not make the experience invaluable, she emphasized.

"I've had students write me five years later and say that even though the experience upset them then, that when they look back, it has been the most important learning experience in their college careers," she said.

Renner, who currently participates in community service unrelated to the program, agrees it has been one of her most influential experiences.

"I can confidently say that this semester, I began understanding people differently," Renner wrote in her final paper for Neumann. "Every person I met, or friend I spoke to, I reminded myself that we are all fighting battles of our own. Everyone else’s pain and frustration are every bit as real as our own, and often, far worse. By recognizing this truth and offering our support, we open our hearts and magnify our understanding of gratitude."

leges and large universities.

Whitmore said he hopes the grant facilitates intellectual study and the practice of Catholic social teaching. In a prepared statement, University president Father Edward Malloy echoed those sentiments.

"We want to make Catholic social teaching integral to undergraduate studies at all Catholic institutions of higher learning, as it should be here at Notre Dame, and to do so in a consistent and formal way," Malloy said. "Beyond its immediate benefit to the participating schools, this project will create models for other religiously affiliated colleges and universities."

The Warash Center is located at Wabash College in Crawfordsville, Ind. Its Web site explains that the center “seeks to strengthen and enhance education in North American theological schools, colleges and universities.”

The grant compliments Notre Dame’s concentration in Catholic Social Tradition created last year. The undergraduate program is designed to teach students about Catholic social traditions in areas such as theology, philosophy, economics and history.

Whitmore plans to serve as ongoing consultant for the CST concentration.

Baghdad police arrest car thieves

RAGHDAD, Iraq

Baghdad police have stopped car thieves so merrulously a special squad was formed to hunt them down, cornering them in a shootout that left one gang member dead, the weekly Al Mada newspaper reported Thursday.

Wednesday's arrests culminated a week-long investigation by an elite police unit tracking the activities of the four-man gang that had terrorized car dealerships in downtown Baghdad. Police Chief General Hamed Suba told the paper. Police identified the suspects as Ali Abbas, the gang leader who also is known as "the Monster," was killed in the shootout. Suba said. Another Abbas brother, branded, was shot and injured last week in a failed attempt by police to apprehend the group.

Phones increase auto accidents in Jordan

AMMAN

Chatting and driving don't mix, say Jordanian traffic officials who found a rise in accidents to the increasing use of cellular phones. The director of the State Traffic Institute, Lieut. Colonel Jamal Ali, said Thursday those who use their phones while driving are less alert. He cited a survey that showed road accidents increased four- to five-fold among drivers using mobile phones. The Traffic Division said 612 drivers and 17,177 others were injured in 34,834 road accidents in the kingdom last year. The death toll was 6 percent higher than that of 1997 and the number of accidents was 11 percent higher. A Public Security statistics add that Jordan loses 16 persons in road accidents for every 10,000 vehicles compared to one person in advanced nations.

"The government of Chavez wants a dictatorship in our country," said Orlando Ovalles, 42, a security worker in the Caracas city government. The march was led by Caracas Mayor Antonio Ledezma of the opposition party Democratic Action.

Chavez, who as a lieu­tenant colonel led a failed 1992 coup attempt, has come under fire from critics who say he is trampling Venezuela's constitution.

Assembly leaders told foreign correspondents on Thursday that they are launching a campaign to counter what they said is the international media's sensationalistic depiction of Chavez as a dictator.

Four assembly members including former presidential candidate Claudio Fermin, one of only six Chavez opponents elected to the 131-person assembly, will travel to Washington and New York next week to meet with political and business leaders.

"There is no dictatorship here," Fermin told The Associated Press, though he blamed "political police" by both anti- and pro-Chavez factions for producing "verbal shootouts."
University alumnus, benefactor dies

Special to The Observer

Notre Dame alumnus, parent and benefactor John McAndrews died Sept. 2. McAndrews graduated from Notre Dame in 1944 and received a master of science degree from the University three years later. He then joined E.I. DuPont de Nemours & Company as a chemical engineer at the Marshall Research Laboratory in Philadelphia.

He worked in a variety of supervisory positions within the company until 1966, when he became director of marketing for Remington Arms Company of Bridgeport, Conn., a DuPont subsidiary. He was elected president of Remington Arms in 1979 and held that position until 1986. During his presidency at Remington, he simultaneously served DuPont as group vice president for finishes and fabricated products from 1982-86. He was appointed group vice president for automotive products in 1986 and held that position until his retirement in 1989.

McAndrews and his brother, George, established the Patrick William and Ruth Louise McAndrews Memorial Engineering Scholarship at Notre Dame in 1977 in honor of their parents and established a law fellowship, also in honor of their parents, in 1986. McAndrews and his wife, Margaret, established Notre Dame's John and Margaret McAndrews Chair in mathematics in 1993.

A member of the Sorin Society's Founder's Circle, McAndrews became a member of the advisory council for the University's College of Science in 1979 and served as its chairman during the 1983-84 academic year. He retired from the council last May.

McAndrews is survived by his wife and five children, of whom two, Mary Ellen and Lawrence, graduated from Notre Dame in 1975 and 1977, respectively.
NYC continues battle against encephalitis outbreak

By DEEPTI HAJELA

NEW YORK

In New York City, where murder is down and the quality of life is up, there’s suddenly a deadly new menace: mosquitoes. Three people have died in the last few weeks in an outbreak of mosquito-borne encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain. Nine other people have been infected, and 60 other possible cases are being investigated.

Health officials in helicopters and on foot began spraying pesticide around the city last weekend to prevent the spread of the disease. Mayor Rudolph Giuliani said Thursday that forested or swampy areas in the entire city will be sprayed over the next several days and sporadically for the next several weeks, until the frost sets in, and again in the spring.

The spraying is aimed at stagnant pools of water where the bugs breed. The more dead mosquitoes, the better,” Giuliani said.

“The more dead mosquitoes, the better.”

Rudy Giuliani
mayor, New York

The disease originates in birds, which pass it along to feeding mosquitoes. Once encephalitis reaches humans via a mosquito bite, it cannot be transferred.

Although there have been relatively few confirmed cases, Nasci expressed concern that “a very large population” is at risk among New York City’s 7.3 million people. Children, the elderly and anyone with immune system problems can die from the disease.

The CDC sent a team in earlier this week to help New York City combat the virus, and a city hot line has been set up to help New Yorkers.

But people relaxing in flushing Meadow Park in Queens seemed unconcerned Tuesday afternoon, even though the park was one of the first areas targeted as a possible mosquito breeding ground.

“If I was meant to die by a mosquito, I would have died already,” said sunbather Anthony Ferro, 35.

Jim Guerin, 55, was catching some sun and enjoying a beverage with his wife. Neither was wearing any bug spray.

“There’s not that many good days left in the summer,” Guerin said. “It’s a concern of ours, but the illness is not a priority.”

St. Louis encephalitis, named for the city where the first cases were identified in 1933, is often treatable.

Doctors at Flushing Hospital reported the outbreak on Aug. 24 after identifying four patients with symptoms. The symptoms, which generally appear five to 15 days after a bite, include fever and headaches.

Facts about St. Louis encephalitis

- Primarily transmitted by mosquitoes
- Between five and 15 percent of cases are fatal
- Elderly people are at the highest risk for disease and death
- Previous epidemics have occurred only in the Midwest and Southeast

Giuliani said.

CIA reports on Iranian and N. Korean missiles

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

Over the next 15 years, North Korea and Iran are likely to develop missiles potentially capable of killing millions of Americans, the CIA said Thursday.

In an intelligence report with major implications for the Pentagon’s efforts to develop defenses against ballistic missiles, the CIA said Iraq posed an additional — though somewhat more distant — threat. It said it was questionable whether Iraq could test a missile with enough range to reach the United States before 2015, although the likelihood depends heavily on how much foreign assistance Iraq gets.

The report characterized the prospect of North Korea acquiring a long-range missile by 2015 as “most likely.” Iran’s prospect was judged to be “probable” and Iraq was labeled a “possible” threat.

These emerging missile forces “potentially can kill tens of thousands, or even millions, of Americans,” depending on their accuracy and whether they are armed with nuclear, chemical or biological warheads, it said.

The United States has no means of shooting down long-range ballistic missiles, although the Pentagon is spending billions of dollars to develop anti-missile missiles to shield the United States against a limited attack. Russia already has about 1,000 long-range missiles with about 4,500 nuclear warheads. China has about 20 missiles capable of reaching the United States.

The CIA report said short-range ballistic missiles, such as Iran’s Shahab-3 and North Korea’s No Dong, pose an “immediate, serious and growing threat to U.S. forces, interests and allies” in the Middle East and Asia. Those missiles do not have the range to reach U.S. soil.

The report also said the countries developing ballistic missiles also are probably working on “countermeasures,” or ways of disabling their missiles to overcome U.S. defenses.

Russia and China, which already have developed numerous countermeasures, probably are willing to sell these technologies, it said.

The report is a summary of a classified National Intelligence Estimate, the first the CIA has done on ballistic missile threats since 1995. In an October 1998 update of its assessment, the CIA told Congress that the United States was facing a growing threat from the spread of ballistic missiles.

The report released Thursday portrayed the threat from North Korea, Iran and Iraq as somewhat less immediate than did the bipartisan BUSKIN Commission.

Successful Careers Rely on Details

The Notre Dame coaching staff's failure to instill such an understanding of the details of the rules pertaining to defensive players cost the team the championship that year. How many times has Joe Paterno focused on the slightest flaw of an opponent and ultimately won because he noticed the weaknesses? I attended a game at Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh where Pitt was a formidable favorite over Penn State. Paterno's team won 7–4 because he noticed that the center would wiggle and then stay low after snapping the ball for extra points. A Penn State defensive player practiced hurdling over a bent-over center all week and successfully blocked the extra point during the game.

Outcome. A Penn State upset win.

The 1999 Notre Dame football team, if playing a near-perfect game, can beat any team in the country this year. While last week's game proved the Irish potential, last week's end zone antics may prevent the team from matching up against a Florida State or Penn State next New Year's Day. It is a lesson that Notre Dame coaches will most likely not repeat during their tenure under the Golden Dome. It is an event we should remember throughout our lives whenever we search for a sports metaphor to assist us with our careers.

The Law, Prayer and Partial Birth Abortions

Sometimes the truth does come out in a lawsuit. This month the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals will hear arguments on Wisconsin and Illinois laws forbidding partial birth abortion (PBA) except to save the mother’s life. In Plano v. Roe, Posner v. Doyle, Judge Richard Posner, writing for a 7th Circuit panel that held the Wisconsin law described PBA: “After the cervix (the mouth of the uterus) has been dilated, physician inserts a suction device into the base of the fetus’s brain, inserts a tube in the hole made by the suction, and removes the contents of the skull by suction, causing the skull to collapse. The physician then completes the extraction of the now-dead fetus.”

The PBA prohibition would prevent, if any abortions.

Surgical abortion is described by the abortionists as “the technique of extracting the child by suction or by drilling a hole in the fetus.” See for the complete statement. The court says that “in a suction curettage … fetal parts are delivered … into the vaginal canal.” After a part is evacuated, other parts of the fetus often remain in the uterus; the fetus may still be “living” e.g., if there is a heartbeat, thus bringing this procedure within the scope of the Act. Sometimes during the D&E, parts of the fetus protrude or are pulled through, the cervical before the fetus is fully removed. In some of these cases, the fetus may “exist” within the meaning of the Act … when part of the fetus is within the uterus and part is outside.

Several abortionists made similar declarations in Doyle. As Frederick J. Brockhaus, M.D., described a suction curettage: “At times I must make multiple passes through the uterus with suction before it is empty. Sometimes when part of the fetus is removed with the initial pass, the rest remains in the uterus still has a heartbeat.”

When Dr. Christensen refers to “disjoining of the fetus,” he means cutting or tearing the arms and legs off an unborn child. The abortion industry uses euphemisms to gain acceptance for the unborn child becomes a “fetus” or “the product of conception.” The attack becomes: “the termination of pregnancy” and “the procedure.”

Whether abortion helps or hurts any one person’s life situation is a question I can no longer answer. Yes, it is true that the instant an abortion is performed one life is lost while another is wounded. And a good Catholic education will instill in a person that abortion is wrong. However, life is an expert at homogenizing the black and white to make gray. The horror stories that Marie Suarez described can go both ways. For example would be the life of a 19-year old woman who finds her way in and out of therapy and mental hospitals because she was raped at the age of 13 by her father and bore his child. By 19, she has her hands full with three children from three different fathers. Obviously, the children are not the cause of her problems, but they do not help her situation. A feeling of being alone engulfs her to the point of such extreme anxiety that she cannot face her children in a stable emotional state. And what happens to her children? Raised in an environment with only one parent, who is herself still a child, do they have a chance for healthy, enjoyable lives? Or what about a young man of 20 who is on the end of a deceiving relationship with his girlfriend of two years? Both have only one year of college left, but the summer before their senior year is marked by an unexpected pregnancy. Should they try and mend their relationship for this child and in the interim give up a better future for themselves and later potential children? And what happens to this child who will be raised by parents who feel trapped and resentful because of their attempt to take responsibility for their actions? How does one measure the value of this child’s life? Is an aborted child better than a child that will be raised in much less ideal circumstances? Or should life always be placed first, even over poor conditions? These are just two of several examples that hit close to home. And in other lives like theirs, people will suggest adoption or other alternatives as the ideal choice to abortion. But, in reality, these alternatives do not always work as planned, for whatever reason. And the question that seems so hard to answer is the one concerning the quality of life. In this ever-growing world, should life overcome simply because it is life? Or should the potential quality of life be took into account when contemplating abortion? This is the view of the realistic and it will be labeled pessimistic, but reality presents a lot of children that do not, and sadly cannot, grow out of their bad habits. So maybe they are better off being nothing.

Emmy calls Raymond son

By MIKE VANEGAS
Scene Editor

As the new television season is born into the lives of Americans across the nation, little by little, the specter of the 1998-99 season diminishes into their collective memory. But, wait. The final adieu to the unspectacular but respectable sources of visual splendor of the past year is at last in the present. This Sunday, the 1999 Emmy Awards will reward the best of the crop, from the zaniest to the sharpest of the sharp, to the profoundest of the profound. Above all, the Emmy telecast should invite a new era of television-watchers to the tube. For this is the last Emmy telecast of the millennium, and the strength of the top shows, coupled with the demise of several long-running series, surely makes this past year a dividing marker between '90s in a precarious situation this year. David Kelly's dominance at the Emmys. Remember, Kelly's \"Ally McBeal,\" has hit the Emmys bigger than any other drama in recent Emmy history. With an astounding 16 nominations, \"The Sopranos\" leads both network and cable shows in number of nominations. The show also has won nominations in every major category for dramas, except Outstanding Supporting Actor. Including its special programming and movies, HBO itself won 74 nominations, only 8 shy of NBC's 82. Other than \"The Sopranos,\" the two shows that look to make the biggest impact come Sunday belong to television's most prolific writer David Kelly. With 13 nods apiece, \"The Practice\" and \"Ally McBeal\" look to continue Kelly's dominance at the Emmys. Remember, Kelly's \"Picket Fences\" won several major awards throughout its early 1990s run, including two Outstanding Dramatic Series statuettes, and \"The Practice\" surprised critics everywhere when it won that same award last year.

Here's a look at the races in Emmy's biggest categories:

Outstanding Supporting Actress in a Comedy
This category is perhaps the tightest of the major awards, as it includes Kristen Johnson of \"Third Rock from the Sun,\" Lisa Kudrow of \"Friends,\" Lisa Kudrow of \"Ally McBeal,\" Wendi Malick of \"Just Shoot Me\" and Doris Roberts of \"Everybody Loves Raymond.\" Johnson certainly contributes her share of over-the-top acting that makes \"Third Rock\" worth watching. She previously has won in this category, which puts her in a precarious situation this year.

Kudrow, the defending champion, is the only acting nominee from \"Friends,\" which consists only of supporting actors. Her Phoebe Buffet role leaped into a depth unseen in \"Friends,\" as she had her triplets, gave them up and dealt with it. If anyone can repeat as champion, Kudrow will be the one. Lucy Liu, who plays the coolhearted Ling on \"Ally McBeal,\" was a high point in a sometimes repetitive season. As one of the few minority actresses nominated, a win for Liu would certainly be some good PR for the Academy.

Wendi Malick, another first-time nominee, unfortunately does not have a strong show to support, as the other nominees do. Therefore her well-done efforts on \"Just Shoot Me\" can't level up to the just-as-good efforts on better shows.

The final nominee, Doris Roberts, proves that age doesn't matter when it comes to comedy. Playing Marie Barone, another of the man who everybody loves, Roberts' neurotic character excels at creating a pathetic desire to remain in her son's life forever.

Who should win: It's a toss-up.
Who will win: Kudrow

Outstanding Supporting Actor in a Comedy
The Academy probably had a tough time choosing five nominees for this category, as the choice candidate is a little more clear-cut. Nominees include Peter Boyle of \"Everybody Loves Raymond,\" John Mahoney of \"Frasier,\" Peter MacNichol of \"Ally McBeal,\" David Hyde Pierce of \"Fraiser\" and David Spade of \"Just Shoot Me.\"

Peter Boyle serves the similar purpose in \"Raymond\" that Doris Roberts does. As an older actor, he adds a pathetic sense of vulnerability to the cast.

MacNichol was probably nominated merely for the eccentric quality of his character, but he should not be recognized as support for the rest of the cast of \"Ally McBeal.\" John Mahoney and Pierce, though very strong comedic actors, must suffer for the less-than-stellar \"Frasier\" season. David Spade, though the most recognizable member of the \"Just Shoot Me\" cast, perhaps is the fun-
Ally and her really good friends

most of the five nominees. Who should win: Wyle
Who will win: Boyle

Outstanding Supporting Actress in a drama

With five nominees from "The Practice," this category certainly is up for grabs. sexist in a situation. With three of their female counterparts likely to fight for the crown, attention will be swayed from them, and they won't get enough votes.

Ratliff was only nominated because his last appearance on "Law and Order," and his girlfriend, Julia Roberts, helped the show to some late-season ratings jumps.

Bull is a victim of the "who is he" syndrome, and also won't make too many people sweat over choosing him. That leaves Wyle, who has come into his own as Dr. John Carter on "Ell." He has come a long way since his freshman year as an intern, and his development as a doctor has come just as far as his development as an actor.

Who should win: Wyle
Who will win: Wyle

Outstanding Actress in a soap operas category, will finally be let down this year.

As long as those supporting characters are up to par, the show will run into a no-win situation.

Sopranos," and "The Practice," will both have some fine moments, but they are not the No. 1 contender. Rahilly and Harris find themselves in a no-win situation.

Outstanding Supporting Actor in a comedy
Another strong category, the best actresses, according to the Academy, include Jenna Elfman of "Ally McBeal," Patricia Heaton of "Everybody Loves Raymond," Helen Hunt of "Mad About You" and Sarah Jessica Parker of "Sex and the City."

Though it wouldn't be surprising if Parker wins the Emmy in a respected film and theater actress role, he will not win the award for his female counterparts likely to win the award for their show and costar David Duchovny, both whom were snubbed in their respective categories.

Who should win: Anderson
Who will win: Anderson

Outstanding Comedy
The five nominees are: "Ally McBeal," "Everybody Loves Raymond," "Law and Order," "NYPD Blue," and "Sex and the City."

Newcomers "Sex and the City" and "Everybody Loves Raymond" need some Emmy experience before they start taking home the big cheese, while "Fraiser," which has won the past five awards in this category, will finally be let down this year.

This leaves a duel between the popular "Ally McBeal" and the ever more popular "Friends," considering the quality of the shows' seasons, "Friends" has the upper hand in this contest.

Who should win: "Friends"
Who will win: "Friends"

Outstanding Drama
The five nominees are: "ER," "Law and Order," "NYPD Blue," "The Practice" and "The Sopranos."

While the comedy category has been dominated by "Fraiser" the past several years, the drama category has shared the wealth a little more.

But that most likely will change come Sunday, when David Kelley's "The Practice" will run into the show as the favorite and take the final award of the night.

Who should win: "The Sopranos"
Who will win: "The Practice"
Catfish Hunter loses battle with Lou Gehrig's disease

Major League Baseball

Associated Press

Pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter, the model of control in a 15-year career, died Thursday of Lou Gehrig's disease, which left him unable to grip a baseball and "like a blind man," according to his wife, video. He was 53.

Hunter, for baseball's first big money free agent, died at his home in Holford, N.C., where he was 8 and hit his head on some concrete steps. He was unconscious for several days in the hospital, but improved and was sent home to his Pennsylvania County farm on Saturday in fair condition, according to Rev. Keven Vaughan, a family spokesman.

Hoford was the same county town where Hunter grew up to become one of the game's most dominant pitchers.

As the centerpiece of pitching staffs, first with the Oakland Athletics and then with the New York Yankees, Hunter won 224 games, produced five straight 20-victory seasons, a perfect game and a Cy Young Award.

It was at home in Hoford, however, that he returned each winter to enjoy the hunting and fishing of the small North Carolina town and where friends and family always called him "Jim" or "Jimmy," but never "Catfish."

That was where Athletics owner Charles O. Finley found Hunter, one of the first building blocks in his truly talented team, which won three straight World Series from 1972-74. Finley pinned the nickname on the pitcher, and Hunter went along with it. He loved a joke and when the owner decided his players should all have mustaches, Hunter was one of the first to grow one and collect the $300 bonus.

Hunter came up with the A's in 1965 and punctuated the team's move from Kansas City to Oakland with a perfect game against the Minnesota Twins on May 9, 1968. At the time, it was just the seventh perfect game in modern baseball history.

"I was a big game pitcher, a consistent pitcher who always kept you in the ball game," said Sando, the third baseman on that Oakland team. "He consistently pitched well in big games. He was a No. 1 starter, and you can't win without one."

Bando recalled Hunter as the ultimate team player, a guy who loved to sit around the clubhouse, spinning stories with a cup of coffee and a down to earth guy.

Bando remembered how Hunter loved the outdoors and did not let baseball interfere. Typical was when the pitcher won 20 games for the first time in 1971.

"What I remember most about it is that he had been up early in the morning (that day) fishing," he said. "He was a strong guy. He was back at 4 or 5 and went fishing. He got in about noon, showered, went to the ballpark, pitched ten innings and drove in the winning run."

By 1974, when the Athletics won their third straight World Series, Hunter was ready to become a baseball trailblazer. Finley had failed to pay an annual clause in his contract and the pitcher's grievance went to arbitration. He was declared a free agent, setting off a surreal scene in Hoford, where that day's activists were recruited to run for the team's minor league.

Finally, he settled on the Yankees, agreeing to a landmark $2.5 million five-year contract that was signed on New Year's Eve. Yankees owner George Steinbrenner never regretted the deal.

"Catfish Hunter was the cornerstone of the Yankees' success over the last quarter century," Steinbrenner said in statement Thursday. "We were not winning before Catfish arrived. He exemplified class and dignity and he taught us how to win."

Hunter was the second Yankees Hall of Famer to die this year. Joe DiMaggio died March 8 at age 84.

In today's baseball economics, Hunter's contract was a small-change deal. But it made him the highest-paid player in baseball history at the time, and set the stage for full-scale free agency, which began after the 1976 season.

"I was probably the first player who broke it open for other players to profit what they're worth," he said in 1987, shortly after he was elected to the Hall of Fame.

The contract made him baseball's highest-paid player, and he went ona workhorse the following two years, completing 51 of 75 starts and leading the team to its first pennant in 12 seasons.

"Catfish was a very unique guy," said Lou Pinella, a teammate on those Yankees clubs.

By forcing the Cadets to defend against deep passes, the Irish were able to run the ball between the tackles because there were less defenders close to the line. Deep passes opened running lanes for Irish All-American fullback Ray Einheadub.

Instructing the nation

After the Irish proved the effectiveness of a balanced offensive attack, teams across the country began to adopt the tact defensive style.

"It took a so-called smaller college to come East and display an attack so versatile and dazzling that it may revolutionize the older style of offensive play throughout the country," the New York Evening Telegram wrote on Nov. 1.

Points across the nation heard of a revolutionary pass which the Irish implemented in the second quarter against Army in 1913. With Notre Dame trailing 13-7, Dorais broke to the outside on a quarterback keep for five yards.

Facing second down, Dorais dropped back to pass, lobbing one to Joe Pliska for 30 yards.

Dorais again went to the air on the following play when he hit Rockne for another long gain of 35 yards. Rockne caught the next pass from Dorais for a 15-yard gain, and the Irish found themselves at the Cadet five-yard line.

Eichenlaub finished the Irish drive with a five yard touchdown run to give Notre Dame the lead 14-13.

Second-half control

While the Irish offense received much praise from the media, the Irish defense also played well, standing tall against a powerful Cadet rushing attack.

In the third quarter, with the ball inside the Notre Dame 1-yard line, Cadet halfback Paul Hodgson, who had earlier run for a touchdown, was tackled by Rockne for a loss. On second down, halfback Frank Milburn was slammed to the turf by the Irish.

With its ground game stalled,
Army attempted to pass for a touchdown but Dorais intercepted the ball and killed the Cadet drive.

After that goal-line stand,
Notre Dame's offensive sprung into life and scored 21 points. The Irish offensive explosion left little doubt of which was the better that Saturday.

"The first half was close, but West Point was lucky," The Chicago Evening Journal reported on Nov. 1. "In the second half, it was outplayed in every department of the game."

"Cleveland Rocks" is more than the catchy rock 'n' roll anthem Drew Carey used as the theme song for his TV show. It's the truth, and Cleveland never rocks harder than when the Browns are playing at home.

On Sunday night, when Cleveland returns to the NFL for the first time since 1995, Browns fans will experience a range of emotions that have been building up for four years. As their beloved Browns come running through the tunnel, 73,200 screaming fans will christen the new Cleveland Brown Stadium with a sound that's bound to shake the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame a few hundred yards away.

"Everybody will be hyped up," Browns cornerback Antonio Langham said. "We'll be hyped to go. We'll be excited to line 'em up and go for all we have to fight." Before the Browns can fight the Pittsburgh Steelers, they'll have to fight their emotions. Cleveland coach Chris Palmer has talked all week of the danger of his team being sky-high for the game. With so much attention being given to the Browns' rebirth in the NFL, Palmer doesn't want his players to get so caught up in the emotion of the night that they forget their assignments.

"You just have to try and stay focused," Palmer said. "Everything we have done this season has been a first time. Eventually, we'll get to where we have a regular week."

The expansion Browns haven't had that luxury this week. Not only is their first game against the rival Steelers, but it will be on prime time national TV as the final game of the NFL's opening Sunday.

Langham, one of three Browns who played in the last game in the old Cleveland Stadium, said Cleveland's first two exhibition games gave him a sense of how electric the opener will be. It will be impossible to remain calm, he said.

"I know early on I'll be hyped," he said. "It'll be running around and jumping around. But as so many point you have to calm down. If you don't have the right start, you have to calm down and get going."

Big Mac's 500th to be sold for big bucks

Associated Press

ST. LOUIS

Jim Shaerue, the 24-year-old architect who caught Mark McGwire's 500th home run ball, has decided to sell it during an Oct. 30 auction in Las Vegas that also will include Mickey Mantle's 500th home run ball.

"We talked to a lot of people," Shaerue said Thursday. "We talked a lot to my wife's family and my family. The more we talked about it, we started to feel better about selling it."

McGwire's ball, along with Mantle's, is the highlight of the auction, arranged by Michael Barnes, president of One-of-a-Kind Auctions in Festus, Mo.

Last season, Barnes helped Phil Ozersky, a 26-year-old researcher at Washington University, sell McGwire's 70th home run ball. Canadian comic book tycoon Todd McFarlane paid $3,000,000 for it.

Before this season began, Barnes offered $1,000,000 to whoever caught McGwire's 500th. The $1,000,000, however, was just an advance on what the ball might bring at an auction. Eddie Murray's 500th home run ball sold for $200,000, money that the seller put in a 20-year annuity that eventually will be worth about $500,000.

U.S. OPEN

Williams sisters set for semis

Associated Press

NEW YORK

So far, so good. Richard Williams, tennis father and coach, surveyed the U.S. Open draw before the tournament began and decided it wasn't that complicated. Forget the rest of the women's field, he said. His daughters, Venus and Serena, would make the final a Williams family affair.

That was 124 players ago.

The women's draw at the Open is down to the final four and the Williams sisters are still at it, one match away from making poppa's prophecy come true.

The next step on Friday will be the toughest of all. In semi-final matches, Venus Williams faces top-seeded Martina Hingis and sister Serena meets defending champion Lindsay Davenport.

Davenport and Serena Williams completed the semi-final pairings with three-set victories Wednesday. Davenport survived two match points and held off Mary Pierce 6-2, 3-6, 7-5. Then Williams defeated former champ Monica Seles 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

A day earlier, Hingis beat Anke Huber 6-2, 6-0 and Venus Williams downed Barbara Schett 6-4, 6-7, 7-5.

"I still have one more match," Serena Williams said. "My dad has been right about a lot of things. If I can do well in this match, I know it will be great."

Davenport and Hingis are entirely capable of upsetting the Williams plans. Both have won the U.S. Open and come into this tournament ranked 1-2 in the world.

Davenport has won 12 straight matches over the past two years at the Open and had not dropped a set until the quarterfinals against Pierce.

Hingis has been on a straight-set match through the tournament and reached the semifinals at the Open for the fourth straight year. She has one championship and one runner-up finish.

Hingis has a 7-3 record against Venus Williams, including victories in three of their last four meetings. Serena has beaten Davenport in two of their three meetings, both times on the same kind of hardcourts they're playing on at the Open.

That doesn't disturb Davenport, who will always have a warm spot in her heart for the National Tennis Center because she earned her first Grand Slam title there.

"I've had a good time trying to defend this title, whether it ends Friday, ends Saturday, whatever," she said.

For a while, it seemed Davenport might not reach the semifinals. Pierce hit a bump when Venus dropped the first set of her match against Mary Joe Fernandez before rallying.

If they win Friday, the Williams sisters would play each other for the fourth time. Venus has won the first three and Serena thinks she knows why.

"Venus is a more powerful player than I am," she said. "I use more of the court than Venus, although she's doing that a lot better now."

Bengals ink reciever to one-year contract

Associated Press

CINCINNATI
Wide receiver Carl Pickens ended his walkout Thursday and signed a one-year, $1.5 million deal against the Cincinnati Bengals.

He could play Sunday in Cincinnati's season opener against Mike Brown's Titans.

Pickens, the Bengals' career receiving leader, met for three hours with Bengals president Mike Brown. The deal was announced after the team finished practice and left the camp.

"We wish that this had been concluded earlier, but it's good that it's concluded so Carl can spend his golden years with the Bengals instead of retirement," said Brown, who attempted to set a light-hearted tone.

Pickens, 29, said he would sit out the season rather than return to the Bengals, who tagged him as their franchise player but were unable to get a trade offer that included a first-round draft pick.

Brown said the Bengals were trying to negotiate a long-term deal with Pickens, who will receive the average of the top five players at his position.

"Time changes everything," said Pickens, who faced the prospect of losing about $800,000 a week if he did not come to terms before Sunday.

NEW YORK
Cedric Pioline, twice a Grand Slam finalist but never a champion, continued his reign as king of the tiebreakers Thursday, reaching the semifinals of the U.S. Open with a 6-4, 7-6 (7-6), 7-6 (7-6) victory over Gustavo Kuerten.

In Saturday's semifinals, Pioline will face the winner of Thursday night's late match pitting seventh-seeded Todd Martin against Slava Donskoi. The other semifinal will send second-seeded Andre Agassi against No. 3 Yevgeny Kafelnikov.

Pioline broke Kuerten's serve once in the match, which lasted nearly 37 hours, but was able to force three tiebreakers, a shootout in which Pioline has been perfect this tournament.

Except for the extra points at the end of each set, it was an evenly played match between the hard-swinging Frenchman and the gallant, animated Brazilian, who has a Grand Slam tournament title in his resume, that coming in the French Open in 1997.

Six times Pioline has played a tiebreaker here and each time wound up with the two-point advantage.

"I'm trying to be aggressive," Pioline said. "If you stay back in a tiebreaker, you give an opportunity to the other player."

The tiebreakers highlighted what was one of the better matches in the final Grand Slam event of the year. Time and again, the two traded what appeared to be winning shots, only to see the other come up with a better reply.

On one such exchange -- the 19th point of the fourth-set tiebreaker -- Kuerten hit a topspin that Pioline thought was a winner, only to see the Frenchman grab a spot in the Open semifinals for the first time since 1993, when he lost to Pete Sampras. Pioline also fell to Sampras in the final at Wimbledon two years ago.

This year, Sampras pulled out of the tournament with a back bad.

Notre Dame runs to Valparaiso

Watson, Deeter pace 1999 squads

The Notre Dame men’s and women’s cross country teams began the 1999 season at the Valparaiso Invitational this weekend.

Participating in the Valparaiso Invitational are Western Michigan, Wisconsin-Green Bay, Marquette, Purdue, IPFW, Chicago State, Dickinson Junior College, Kendall College and Augustana.

The women are in the best shape to improve from the 1998 season. Senior All-American Deeter will be a favorite to win every meet and should contend for the NCAA title.

Senior Alison Klemmer comes off a 22nd place finish in the NCAA IV Championship last year and is a two-time All-American in the 10,000 meter for the Irish track team. Senior Erin Luby is one of the team captains and has two top 25 finishes in 1998.

Patty Bieze is also one of the top runners returning. Rice had back-to-back 27th place finishes in the Big East and district championships last year.

Freshman Jennifer Handley should make an immediate impact on the Irish roster. Handley qualified for the World Junior Cross Country Championships in 1999 and 1995. She also was fourth last season at the Canadian Junior Cross Country Championships.

The men will once again be led by junior Shay. Shay finished in the top two in the first three races last year and earned a NCAA invitation with a 10-place finish at the district championship.

Sophomore Watson should continue his improvements from his freshmen year. Watson finished seventh in the Big East Championships last year and had an impressive off-season.

Watson won the 1999 USA Junior Winter Cross Country National Championship, edging out second-place finisher Steve Slatery of the University of Colorado by two seconds.

That win enabled Watson to enter the 1999 World Junior Cross Country Championships in Belfast, Northern Ireland, where he finished 34th out of 155 runners and was the third American to cross the finish line, helping the U.S. team to a six-place finish.

Senior Ryan Maxwell returned for a fifth year in 1999. Maxwell finished fourth at the 1998 NCAA Iv Championship last year and seventh at the National Catholic meet.

Freshman Anthony Lopez will provide the Irish with some youthful depth. Lopez was a three-time event winner at the 1999 New Mexico state track meet and third in the state cross country meet.

Rolex honors former Irish captain at U.S. Open

Special to the Observer

PRINCETON, N.J. — Governor Pedro Rosselli, captain of the Notre Dame 1964 men’s tennis team and current governor of Puerto Rico, has been named one of two winners of the 1999 Rolex Achievement Awards and will be honored at a special ceremony held during the Rolex Invitational at the U.S. Open Friday evening at the “21” Club in New York City.

Rosselli graduated from Notre Dame in 1966 and captained the ‘64 squad that won the U.S. Intercollegiate Tennis Championship, including Wimbledon and the U.S. Open. Both winners were honored with a distinctive Rolex timepiece, a framed, calligraphic certificate and reserved seats at Saturday’s U.S. Open women’s & men’s semifinals.

In addition, the Rolex Achievement Award winners’ alma maters’ collegiate tennis programs each receive a $2,500 donation from Rolex Watch, U.S.A. The Rolex Tennis Achievement Awards were created in 1994 by Rolex Watch, U.S.A. and the Intercollegiate Tennis Association (ITA) to pay tribute to past participants in the world of collegiate tennis who have achieved excellence in their chosen careers. The man and woman honored annually by Rolex and the ITA as the Rolex Achievement Award winners are honored for both their professional successes and their contributions to society.

Rosselli has been governor of Puerto Rico since 1993 and was reelected in ’96. Since taking office he has initiated health-care reform to make private health insurance accessible to the entire population of Puerto Rico, cut income taxes by 20 percent, and has seen both unemployment and the crime rate plummet to their lowest level in decades.

Rosselli played No. 1 singles for legendary Irish coach Tom Fallon and received the 1966 Byron V. Kanaley Award, the honor given to a Notre Dame senior tennis team winner who has been exemplary both as students and leaders.

“Rolex said that since Rosselli was not only an excellent student, but also was an excellent tennis player, they would like to honor him in this way,” said Fallon, who won over 500 matches while coaching the Irish for 31 years from 1957-87. “He is one of the greatest ambassadors for Notre Dame and someone we think very highly of. This is a very fitting and deserving award.”

“The lessons learned on the court during a period of four years are a vital companion to the academic lessons of higher education,” said David A. Benjamin, ITA Executive Director. “The winners of the Rolex Achievement Awards are individuals who benefited from the lessons of intercollegiate competition, went on to great areas of accomplishment, and generously shared their good fortune with others around them.”

“Governor Rosselli was increased by his kindness when our team made a trip to Puerto Rico in 1994,” said current Irish head coach Bob Bagley.

“I went out of his way to arrange for a tour of the Governor’s Mansion. La Fortaleza, which was not at all expected considering his busy schedule. The Rolex Achievement Award winners are nominated by their alma maters — or by the current coaches of their alma maters’ tennis program — and the names of the nominees, 12 finalists are selected. The winner of the ITA’s men’s and women’s winners are then determined by the Rolex Achievement Awards Selection Panel.

After hard work of practice, the Saint Mary’s volleyball team is looking to leave its mark at this weekend’s tournament in Ohio Northern.

"After our second-place finish last weekend, we are hoping to play just as well or better this weekend," senior Kate Shales said.

The Ohio Northern Tournament — one of the season’s toughest — is run round-robin fashion. The top teams are determined by the total numbers of wins and losses.

"This is one of the most competitive tournaments of the season," said coach Randy Shields.

"All around everyone is at an improved level," Shields said.

Shields is looking to show this year’s competition that her team can be a real contender.

Porter, Spencer Barton and Reagan Bender. All three have starting experience and will combine to form a tough offense. Porter, despite missing part of last season with a shoulder injury, was an asset on offense as the team's second leading scorer on the year.

With a large portion of its starting backfield returning this season, an experienced and talented Panther defense could pose the biggest threat to an Irish victory.

Notre Dame has yet to score more than one goal in each of its victories, and despite delivering 16 shots on goal against Western Michigan, the Irish were not able to finish any offensive plays.

The Panthers have compiled an overall 1-2-1 record and 0-1 mark in the Big East so far this season. They dropped their latest game to West Virginia Mountaineers 3-1. Despite the losses, the offense has been a dominating force in the box, putting up an average of just more than 15 shots on goal in each contest.

The Irish are even in their series with the Panthers at 1-1-2. The last two meetings of the teams have resulted in overtime ties.

Ashley Dryer suffered a sprained ankle just before halftime of Notre Dame's 3-2 overtime loss to North Carolina last Friday night. Dryer did not practice this week, and her status for Sunday will be a game-time decision.

Even with all the injuries, the Irish, who were ranked fourth by the NSCAA and third by Soccer Times on Sept. 6, should handle the Red Storm easily.

St. John's does not have a single player on the All-Big East preseason first team; the Irish have four — goalkeeper Lackes, Beene and midfielders Grubb, Jenny Streiffer and Anne Makinen.

With veterans like Beene, Grubb, Streiffer and Makinen on the team, Waldrum said he doesn't think he will have any trouble motivating the team for game against St. John's.

"This group so far has no structure as a group that goes into the games lightly," he said. "I just haven't seen any indicators of a let down. I think everyone now, especially since it is so early in the season, is really excited to play.

"Maybe if this game were at the end of the season it might be a different story. But right now there is still a high motivation just to play somebody different," he said.

Offensive attack

In their last game against Duke, the Irish showcased a high powered offensive attack that scored four goals in the first half.

Waldrum said he wants to see that attacking-style offense continue against St. John's.

"I think we were very good in the first half against Duke," the first-year Irish head coach said. "We were able to get our midfielders forward and we were able to get in behind their defense a bit. Hopefully we'll be able to do that against St. John's too."

If the Irish offensive scores a lot of goals early, Beene should leave the game early like she did against Duke.

While Beene is an All-American and candidate for the Hermann award — given to the nation's best women's soccer player backup goalies Elizabeth Wagner and San Post are inexperienced.

They both played in the second half against Duke, and Waldrum hopes to get them in the game against St. John's as well.

"We want to get some experience, and right now there are very close," Waldrum said. "In these first few games, we want to get them both some time."

Irish hit the road to kick Panthers

By KERRY SMITH

The Irish men's soccer team hopes to put another notch in the win column as it hits the road to take on Northwestern Saturday.

Just days after losing a tough match to Western Michigan in overtime, the squad will look to get back on the winning track. Notre Dame opened its season with two wins before dropping to 2-1 on Tuesday.

Gerick Short and freshman forward Rafael Garcia earned weekly Big East honors for their performances in Notre Dame's two wins over Northwestern and Boston College.

The two were instrumental in both shut-out victories. Gerick shared midfielder of the week honors with Rutgers' Jon Conway, while Garcia was named rookie of the week. "I'm happy about it," said Garcia of the honor. "But it's just a small step toward a big season for the team. It means nothing compared to what I want the team to do in the Big East and the rest of the season."

The team broke into the National Soccer Coaches Association of America ranks for the first time this week at the No. 16 spot. The Irish hope to move up in the polls by securing a win against the Panthers.

A Big East rival, Pittsburgh is coming off a disappointing 6-9-3 1998 campaign in which it managed to pull off only one Big East conference win. Plagued by several overtime losses last year, the Panthers will focus on creating more opportunities this season.

Pittsburgh lost its two leading scorers to graduation, but hopes to replace them with forwards Chad Plagued and the rest of the season.

Senior forward Andrew Aris (left) and the Notre Dame men's soccer team travel to Pittsburgh Saturday. After a tough loss to Western Michigan, the team looks to improve.

Notre Dame brings new style football to East

By MIKE CONNOLLY

When most people consider Notre Dame football, they don't usually think of high flying aerial attacks that spread the defense and awe opposing coaches. Modern Notre Dame football is running the ball straight ahead and grinding an opponent into the ground with powerful backs.

When Notre Dame defeated Army 35-13 on Nov. 1, 1913, however, head coach Jesse Harper showcased a deep passing attack and All-American quarterback Gus Dorais.

After the game, the press was full of praise for Harper's squad and his revolutionary style of play.

"Coach Harper undoubtedly has put together the best 11 which ever wore the Gold and Blue," Lambert G. Sullivan wrote in the Nov. 2 edition of the Chicago Daily News. "The team is almost perfect in every detail of technical play. Dorais orchestrated a passing attack that kept the Army defense on its heels and prevented the Cadets from crowding the line. Dorais finished the day 12-14 for 243 yards with two touchdown passes and only one interception."

"Inventing" the forward pass It has been said that Dorais and then-Irish captain Knute Rockne, a left end, invented the forward pass for the game against Army. The pass, however, was not created in 1913; it had been around since 1906 when St. Louis University head coach Eddie Cochems began using it. In fact, the forward pass previously had been utilized by Notre Dame to defeat Michigan in 1909. Dorais and Rockne didn't invent the forward pass. They instead showed how it could be used by a smaller team to counteract the size advantage of its opponents. Harper created plans for forward pass use while head coach at Wabash, but it was not until...
In his first year as a starter, sophomore tailback Tony Fisher has showcased his receiving and running talents to become the featured back in the Irish offense. His talents give offensive coordinator Kevin Rogers one more weapon for his playbook. For more on Fisher, see page 3.
Irish look to take steam out of Boilers

By BRIAN KESSLER

Notre Dame invades West Lafayette, Ind., to take on Purdue, Saturday, with hopes of rebounding from last week-end's disappointing loss to Michigan.

"I think our players enjoy the challenge, but there is no question that we need to correct mistakes," head coach Bob Davie said. "We have got to eliminate the sloppiness. "We cannot pitch the ball on the ground," he explained. "We have had seven turnovers. We are fortunate it isn't in double digits the way we have pitched the ball. We need to improve and I think we can do that."

The Boilermakers are unbeaten in their last seven games, and Purdue is expected to try to avenge last year's fourth-quarter loss to Notre Dame.

"I think everybody realizes that they have done a great job with that program," Davie said. "You look at what they have done, I think 11 and 1 at home since Joe Tiller has been the head coach, you just look — they have won seven straight games; won two Bowl games against two really good teams. "They are an aggressive style team," Davie continued. "So we have got our work cut out for us. It will be a challenge going down there playing — once again playing away from home."

Davie and the coaching staff have spent the week focusing on the Irish, rather than the Boilermakers.

"As much as I respect Purdue and the challenge we have with going down there and playing, I am much more concerned, right now, much more interested, in our football team and the progress we make," Davie said. "That is the challenge we have."

The Irish, however, are concerned with stopping Heisman-hopeful, quarterback Drew Brees.

"Obviously you have to control the football, to try to keep them off the field with their offense," Davie said. "But they are such a quick strike offense that they are going to score points, so you can't just button it up and say you are going to just run the football in there. "You are going to have to create some plays to score some points. Because even though you control the ball and take away from their time at possession, they are going to score some points because it is a quick strike offense," he said.

The Irish have put up big numbers on offense so far this season. Quarterback Jarious Jackson threw for 302 yards against Michigan and the Irish rushed for 363 yards in the season opener with Kansas.

"It's definitely going to be a hard game," Davie said. "They are going to look at the Michigan tape and the Kansas tape, and they pretty much know what we're going to do on offense. It's no secret anymore, so we're going to have to play hard. It's not going to be a walk-over game."

Notre Dame hopes to keep control of the Shillelagh Trophy, awarded to the winner of each Notre Dame-Purdue match-up. The Irish hold a 46-22-2 all-time record against the Boilermakers.

Fisher adds new options to offense

Ohio's 1997 Mr. Football has found a home in Indiana and Notre Dame's backfield

By MIKE CONNOLLY
Assoc. Sports Editor

If Ohio State head coach John Cooper hates Notre Dame because of its TV agreement with NBC, sophomore tailback Tony Fisher could be the reason why.

"Mr. Football," as he was named Mr. Football in Ohio in his senior year, said that seeing Notre Dame on TV every week played a big part in his decision to wear the blue and gold rather than the scarlet and gray.

"Notre Dame was like a dream for me since I was growing up," he said. "That was all you saw on TV was Notre Dame football. Coming to Notre Dame was an opportunity to make a difference in a real world."

Hailing from Euclid High School in Euclid, Ohio, it was assumed that the high school that produced former Buckeye stars Robert Smith and Pepe Pearson would also send Fisher to Ohio State.

Many people put pressure on Fisher to stay in state and play for the Buckeyes.

"There was a great deal of pressure considering that Robert Smith was the only two-time Mr. Football in Ohio," Fisher said. "Plus since he and Pepe both went there it was just assumed that Ohio State offered me a scholarship. You know I felt a lot of pressure to go down there."

Fisher, however, wanted to make a name for himself and not follow in the footsteps of previous stars.

"Notre Dame gave me the opportunity to do something different. Most running backs and players from my high school went to Ohio State. Coming to Notre Dame gave me the chance to do something for myself."

Tony Fisher

The competition with Driver improved both backs' game, according to Fisher.

"I think it is making us both a better player," he said. "We know what we want to do and since we are going out there every day and competing in practice.

The competition for playing time was extremely close going into the Kansas game but Fisher was the starting tailback against the Jayhawks. He rotated every possession with Driver but distinguished himself with a 46-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter to give the Irish a 41-13 lead.

Fisher finished his first start with 111 yards rushing and two touchdowns.

"He made some of those runs by himself" Bob Davie on Fisher's runs against Kansas

"It helped me out a great deal," Fisher said. "I got the opportunity to watch Notre Dame's all-time leading rusher. When I would get into the game, Autry would tell me to just be relaxed. Now out here in practice and in the games, I am just trying to keep that same kind of focus."

That focus allowed him to slightly separate himself from Driver in the eyes of the coaches to become the more featured back in the Irish offense.

Despite Fisher's emergence as a solid tailback, head coach Bob Davie said that the competition for playing time is far from over.

"Tony Fisher, right now, as far as the different dimensions he brings with pass receiving, protection — all the things we ask a tailback to do — is probably a little more solid than Tony Driver," Davie said. "But it is still close."

ORLANDO, Fla.—Drew Brees and No. 22 Purdue gave Central Florida a taste of how tough life can be without Daunte Culpepper could be.

Brees threw for 273 yards and four touchdowns Saturday night as the Boilermakers matched their longest winning streak in 20 years with a season-opening 47-13 rout.

The victory was the seventh straight for Purdue. The Boilermakers won six in a row each of the past two seasons, but hadn't won seven consecutive since 1979.

Brees look up scheme for a record-breaking sophomore year with TD passes of 27 yards to Chris Daniels, 18 to Tim Straton, 2 to Randall Lane and 22 to Vinny Sutherland.

I felt really comfortable out there, there was no time when I felt pressure," Brees said. "Overall, you can play a lot better. But we did score 44 (actually 47)."

Safety Adrian Beasley set up touchdown opportunities for two of Purdue's four interceptions off Vic Penn, a junior college transfer making his debut as Culpepper's successor for Central Florida.

Mike Rose scored on a 25-yard interception return. The Boilermakers also got a TD pass from kicker Travis Borch to Chris Daniels scored on a 79-yard, second-quarter pass to Daniels, who tied with Jim Harbaugh for a third-quarter interception that allowed the Irish to come from behind to win.

Central Florida matched its national profile with four seasons under Culpepper, who was the 11th pick in this year's NFL draft.

Without him, it will be difficult to duplicate last year's 9-2 record.

Central Florida's September schedule is one of the toughest in the nation with all four opponents ranked in the Top 25. The Knights visit No. 4 Florida next week, then travel to No. 10 Georgia Tech and No. 4 Penn. 24-5 for 250 and one touchdown, began his college career with South Carolina in 1997 before spending last season at Garden City, Kan. Community College.

Four sacked him four times and also forced a fourth-quarter fumble by the quarterback.

"I didn't think we played well offensive, but we played solid defensively after the opening drive," Purdue coach Joe Tiller said.

Brees threw for 3,753 yards and 36 touchdowns a year ago, setting school and Big Ten records for attempts, completions, yards and TDs.

The junior didn't have one of his more productive games in Purdue's 35-7 rout of Central Florida in 1998, but moved the ball almost at will in building a 23-6 half-time lead this time.

Daniels scored late in the first quarter, taking a pass over the middle and using a burst of speed to elude two defenders and a couple of furs to get past two more would-be tacklers to get into the end zone.

Brees capped a 79yard, second-quarter drive by finding Straton alone on a play in which Central Florida had 12 men on the field. While the penalty was declined, the mistake was indicative of the kind of errors that hindered the overmatched Knights.

Central Florida marched 83 yards to open the game, taking the lead on Penn's 26yard TD pass to Kenny Clark. Central Florida bobbled the extra point when Mike Ledge snapped the ball over the heads of the holder and holder.

Seven minutes later, the Knights lined up and kicked Hodge snapped the ball through the end zone for a safety.

Purdue also blocked a punt, and Central Florida's Xavier Bozdeguez missed a 40yard field goal after the Knights recovered a first-quarter fumble at the Boilermakers 9.

Brees, who's tied with Jim Everett for third on Purdue's career TD pass list with 43, completed 26 of 42 passes and was intercepted once.

Boilermaker quarterback could burn Irish

By FRED GOODALL
Associated Press

It's the reignign Big Ten Co-offensive Player of the Year. The way, he set Big Ten marks for touchdowns, yards passing, total offense, completions and attempts in a single season. He has already equaled the number of touchdown passes that Notre Dame's all-time leading, Ron Poss, achieved in four years. One more thing: he's started 14 games in his career.

No wonder Irish head coach Bob Davie and his staff are concerned with Drew Brees.

"When you look at Purdue, you always start with their offense first because they do a tremendous job," said Davie at Tuesday's press conference. "It starts with the quarterback.

The thing about Drew Brees to me is his competitiveness and how mobile he is; how many plays he makes throwing the ball on the run. He has got a good presence.

"When he scrabbles outside of the pocket, he is really dangerous," said cornerback Clifford Jefferson. "He can scramble and find receivers wide open. That can really hurt us in a game if we let that happen.

From his first game as a starter a year ago, Brees has been on a tear. In last season's opener at USC, Brees threw the ball 52 times. Brees threw for 40 passes seven times last year, including an NCAA record 83 attempts against Wisconsin.

After leading Westlake to a cumulative 28-0-1 record in his last two years, Brees was named high school quarterback of the year.

Brees started 14 pro games in his first two years, including both Texas and Texas A&M. They feared an ACL injury he suffered as a junior may have an impact on college. Some coaches thought at foot-1 that he was too small for major Division I-A football.

Brees chose Purdue over Kentucky, where Tim Couch served as his host.

"He was somewhat of a leg­endary high school quarterback in the state of Texas," said Davie. "As far as he was committed to Notre Dame, I don't know if he was ever brought to our attention directly or if we evaluated him. But we're not alone in schools that didn't recruit him but wished they did."

A preseason Heisman favorite, Brees helped his cause in last week's 47-13 opening season victory at Central Florida. The junior completed over 60 percent of his attempts for 273 yards and four touch­downs Saturday night as the Boilermakers marked their longest winning streak in 20 years with a season-opening 47-13 rout.

The victory was the seventh straight for Purdue. The Boilermakers won six in a row each of the past two seasons, but hadn't won seven consecutive since 1979.

ACC showdown highlights weekend

Joe Hamilton leads Yellow Jackets into Seminole country

By BILL HART
Associate Sports Editor

Georgia Tech will try to dethrone the top seat in the country this weekend when it heads to Tallahassee, Fla., to take on No. 1 Florida State. History, however, is not on Tech's side. Eight straight teams have tried and failed to defeat the Florida State juggernaut at home, a streak that dates back to 1991.

This doesn't mean that the Ramblin' Wreck doesn't have a chance, though. With a highly successful air offensive in quarterback Joe Hamilton and receivers Dez White and Joe Burns, the Jackets might be able to exploit FSU's greatest weakness — giving up big plays in the passing game. This was illustrated best in last year's Fiesta Bowl, when Tennessee's Peerless Price caught passes of 76 and 79 yards en route to the national title.

Still, Florida State does have history on its side, and the manpower to back it up. Top-ranked Florida State was eventually able to wear out Louisiana Tech, 41-7, mostly due to three touchdowns caused by three Bulldog turnovers.

Wide receiver Peter Warrick tore up the field in his usual fashion, going for 121 yards and one touchdown on nine catches. Perhaps the most daunting stat facing Georgia Tech this week is that out of the eight ranked ACC teams ever to play in Tallahassee, only one team stayed within 20 yards of the Seminoles, a streak that dates back to 1991.

No. 14 UCLA at No. 13 Ohio State

Two of the top programs in the Big Ten and Pac-10 collide in this all-star match up, which may have BCS implications by the end of the year.

UCLA started its season on a positive note last weekend with a 28-7 win over Boise State. With the position vacuum caused by the departure of quarterback Cade McNown, it was the duo of Drew Bennett and Cory Paus that provided the offensive spark for the Bruins, completing a total of 20-for-34 for 248 yards and three interceptions. This weekend, however, it won't be injuries from last week that depletes the roster of the Pac-10 powerhouse. Suspensions have rocked the Bruins. Eleven players were suspended last week in a handicapped-parking scam, which means that 14 players will start for only the second time in their college careers.

As for Ohio State, a quick loss to No. 12 Miami (Fla.) in the Kickoff Classic marked the first time head coach John Cooper has lost his opener in his 12 seasons in Columbus. Most of the blame for the loss is being centered around quarterback Steve Bellissari, whose two fumbles late in the game allowed the Hurricanes to regain their momentum. After a 11-1 season marred only by a loss to the Spartans of Michigan State, the Buckeyes looked completely flat against the Hurricanes, with only 220 total yards for the game. In order to get back on track, some major offensive retooling will be needed.

Irish should forget Michigan, focus on Boilermakers

Is anyone else aware that Purdue is the team next up on Notre Dame’s slate and not Michigan?

With everyone still up in arms over the so-called controversy surrounding the Irish last week, I thought I’d reflect on the loss to the Wolverines ended our season. We were tagged for excessive celebration and a late hit penalty. We lost yardage. Michigan capitalized. They scored. They won. End of story. Let’s move on — remember, we still have ten more games to play this year.

True, I have forgotten to take into account that its 398 yards, 20 penalties. Both Clifford Jefferson and Vinny Rogers is very quickly turned to Notre Dame. When asked, Brees sheepishly acknowledged that he had thought about the game.

Irish's offensive line: Three starting linemen return from last year for Purdue. Only one returns for Notre Dame.

Purdue's D-line is the strength of the Notre Dame defense. Both Purdue's D.Es graduated last year.

Purdue's secondary: Tom Brady looked like the second coming of Motlama last week.

Intangibles: Jarius Jackson and company went into the Big House last week and hung in the game despite three turnovers and 10 penalties.

Overall The Irish rebounded from last year's first loss with eight straight wins.
Brees will be able to rekindle the ball with the Notre Dame's secondary, but he and the rest of the backfield cannot afford to get burned when Brees is checking his eyes. Senior Deveron Harper will fill the other corner and will need to set the tone like he did against Kainas with his 22-yard interception that shut-down return. He'll certainly have a lot of passes to pick off.

An offense free of fundamentals errors, this Purdue team has brought a defensive capable of doing far more damage to the Irish attack than occurred last week. In amassing 398 yards, Jarius Jackson and the offensive line must have done something right. But by getting sacked four times, botching five pitchouts and throwing four interceptions, the Boilermakers did not do us any favors.

In Kevin Rogers' option offense something new for the Irish? Of course, I'd like to think that our defense, even the Irish defense, will be able to contain Michigan.

Junior tailback Tony Driver fights off a tackle in Notre Dame's victory over Kansas earlier this season. Driver was the hero of last year's Purdue game, as he intercepted two passes by Drew Brees and led the Irish to a 31-30 win.

Getting back on track

Senior Joey Goodspeed rumbles through the Michigan defensive line. Goodspeed is battling Tom Lopienski for the starting job at fullback.

After a disappointing 26-22 loss to Michigan last Saturday, Notre Dame is anxious to get back on the field and return to its winning ways. The Irish get their chance tomorrow when they square off with the Boilermakers at Ross-Ade Stadium. Purdue has won its last seven games and is looking to return the Shillelagh Trophy to West Lafayette. The Irish look to get back on track and to steal a victory on the road.

Notre Dame holds a 46-22-2 advantage in the all-time series.
