ND classes find a shortage of TAs

By ERIN LaRUFFA

Associate News Editor

Whether there are 50 or 250 students in a lecture class, large courses can seem impersonal. However, in these large classes, may give interesting and insightful lectures, but it is difficult — if not impossible — for one person to answer every question and grade every paper of all the students crammed into a lecture hall.

That’s where teaching assistants — better known as TAs — come in. "From a student’s perspective, TAs can add a personal dimension to a course that is a large one," said Diane Murray, associate dean of the College of Arts and Letters. A graduate student can become a TA for a course related to his or her field of study. Among other things, TAs commonly grade papers, answer questions and lead small discussion groups, particularly in classes too large for professors to handle the workload on their own.

Despite the importance graduate TAs are to undergraduate education, academic departments sometimes have a difficult time finding enough of them. The government department, for example, has been challenged by a small pool of potential TAs.

In recent years, as the number of undergraduate government majors has increased, the number of graduate TAs shrank, according to Michael Coppedge. As the department’s director if graduate studies, Coppedge is responsible for assigning TAs to undergraduate government courses.

The number of students enrolled in a class is the biggest factor the government department uses to determine whether a class has a TA and how many TAs each class has, according to Coppedge. When determining TA assignments, he said he tries to equalize the student to teacher ratio among the different courses.

However, that ratio can vary from year to year depending on the number of TAs available, Coppedge said. The reason for the recent shortage in government TAs has to do with the fact that the number of Rape victim speaks out to community

By SARAH RYKOWSKI

Saint Mary’s News Editor

Editor’s Note: Kelly and Justin are pseudonyms.

For Kelly, facing reality was the hardest part to recover.

This is the first time I’ve sat down and shared my story," Kelly said. "It took me nine months to go in front of people and say, ‘I was raped.’”

Kelly, a junior at Saint Mary’s, shared her story of rape and recovery in a Regina Hall event Tuesday evening.

Kelly came to Saint Mary’s in 1998, a wide-eyed, naive freshman. She went to the orientation sessions about

Stop, drop and roll

Members of the Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s communities reflect on fire safety:

How safe are the University and College?

University Fire Chief John Antonucci said, "The University has always been a very proactive system. We try to move forward in order to protect students.

The University had been planning to upgrade the fire protection and alert system for about two years, but last winter, the project became a priority after three students died in a residence hall fire at Seton Hall University in New Jersey.

"Residence hall fires have been on the increase," said Antonucci. "Seton Hall brought to life problems that exist throughout the country.”

Sister Kathleen Beatty, Lyons Hall rector, agreed. "They really want this place to be top-notch as far as fire protection. Seton Hall was a wake-up call for everybody. A huge tragedy makes people look at their own systems.”

This summer, not only were the ineffective voice systems in the Golf Quad dorms supplemented with blaring alarms in each room above the door, but new fire protection systems were installed in seven residence halls. Pangborn, Fisher, Lyons, Howard, and Breen-Phillips received new alarms and new sprinkler systems; Walsh had a new alarm system installed and Knott and Siegfried got sprinklers in each room.

Antonucci added that the heat-sensitive sprinklers will deposit water per minute into the room.

see FIRE/page 10

Notre Dame installed new sprinklers and fire alarms this summer to ensure students’ safety on campus. Because of recent fires at college campuses around the country, University fire officials are working hard to prevent tragedy from occurring at Notre Dame.
OLDER AND WISER

The stare from the woman down the aisle said everything, and my first instinct was to retreat like a wounded puppy. But this was no time to back down.

So last weekend, as I stood — a case of a six pack in each hand — at one end of the soft drink aisle in a local grocery store and a middle-aged white woman stood at the other, I decided to act. While she reached for pop on an upper shelf, she shot me a damaging, suspicious look, which I cast off, all the while perusing 2-liter labels and walking her way.

The cases still in hand, I was within 10 feet of her when she concluded that I had perused all the boundaries. She let the three 2-liters she was still trying to obtain crash to the floor, grabbed her purse from the cart parked not even a foot from her and nestled it in an arm length before she walked.

I walked past her, only half-surprised by her jarring reaction to me but nevertheless a little disappointed by her somewhat stigmata.

I remembered feeling the same kind of pain years before. I remembered being 13 years old and waking up in the dawning hours of a South Bend summer morning, the tennis courts at the nearby Howard Junior high school awaiting me. I remembered arriving, intent on perfecting my serve on the cracked, old cement surface and practicing my backhand against the chipped green-painted backboard that hung on one side of the chainlink fence that surrounded the three courts. It was calm, and the rising sun and warm air promised a bright, invigorating day.

But then I remembered my serenity being shattered.

I remembered the flashy lights and blaring voices of two police cruisers approaching my tennis haven. I heard the unerring noise of doors slamming as officers exited the vehicles.

Then I remembered the boom of their harsh voices. I recalled my realization that the 13-year-old boy who had, up to this point, always assumed that this sort of thing only happens to other people — the "bad guys." But I felt like a bad guy — lying on the ground and being handcuffed, having the officers put my handcuffs on my young back while they interrogated me and pointed their guns at my head.

And yet, as suddenly as they had arrested me, I remembered the policemen lifting me off the ground, freeing my hands and informing me that they, too, were not surprised by her reaction.

I wonder if they could smell the fear that surrounded the three of us.

We all remembered the policemen lifting me off the floor. We all remembered the flashing lights and blaring voices of the police.

The memory has added family communication prior to attending the University is the key to reducing alcohol and drug consumption.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — For most students, living in a residence hall represents freedom from the constraints of their parents and their upbringing. However, a growing number of students are discovering that the independence they enjoy at college does not come without its consequences.

The University of Minnesota is exploring a parental-notification policy for students who apply to the university. The policy is designed to improve communication between parents and students and to help prevent alcohol and other drug problems.

"ALC OPINION"

The family of Jesse Gelsinger had filed a wrongful death suit against the University of Pennsylvania and others involved with Penn's Institute for Human Gene Therapy, Monday, a year and a day after the teenager died while participating in a gene therapy research program.

The complaint, filed in Philadelphia Common Pleas Court, claims Gelsinger's death was a direct result of negligence by Penn. HIGT Director James Wilson and the two other scientists who ran the experiment in which Gelsinger was enrolled. In addition, the suit alleges that Penn's negligence by the two other scientists who ran the experiment in which Gelsinger was enrolled.

The suit also alleges that Wilson and then-Health System CEO William Kelley owned several gene therapy patents that were financially supported by the government and other entities.

The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, the Children's National Medical Center in Washington, D.C.; HIGT investor Genove, Inc. — founded by Wilson and Dr. John Caplan — and the renowned director of Penn's Center for Bioethics, are also named in the suit.

"UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA"

Penn hit by gene therapy lawsuit

"UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND"

No rules govern computer porn

COLLEGE PARK, Md.

Viewing pornographic materials in non-classroom computer labs is not explicitly banned on the University of Maryland. But before students run out and start downloading as fast as they can, there are certain guidelines in place governing First Amendment rights, a campus official said.

Because of the fine line between protecting these rights and violating the ever-evolving sexual harassment laws, the actual policy set by campus officials is deliberately vague, according to an article written by Rodney Petersen, director of the campus organization Project NERTHS. However, he points out that other types of material, such as child pornography, violate state and federal laws, as well as campus policy. Under the direction of Petersen, the project set out to "determine the responsible use of university computing resources through policy enforcement and user education designed to inform community members about the legal and ethical implications of computer use," according to NERTHS mission statement.

"LOCAL WEATHER"

5 Day South Bend Forecast:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Day</th>
<th>High</th>
<th>Low</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Wednesday</td>
<td>69</td>
<td>52</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Thursday</td>
<td>66</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Friday</td>
<td>66</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saturday</td>
<td>66</td>
<td>50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sunday</td>
<td>66</td>
<td>45</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

"NATIONAL WEATHER"

The AccuWeather® forecast for Monday, September 20.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>City</th>
<th>High</th>
<th>Low</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Miami</td>
<td>91</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>New York</td>
<td>82</td>
<td>68</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boston</td>
<td>80</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chicago</td>
<td>77</td>
<td>63</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Los Angeles</td>
<td>80</td>
<td>65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>San Diego</td>
<td>79</td>
<td>64</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Construction plans near completion at Saint Mary's

Activities center and Madeleva renovations are coming soon

By SARAH RYKOWSKI
Saint Mary’s News Editor

The winds of change continue to whirl Saint Mary’s campus. A new Student Activities Center is in the works and the major renovations due on Madeleva Hall are on the way through the planning stages.

Right now, both projects are still in paper. and no dates have been set for the transfer from paper to reality. “They are progressing at the same stage,” said Keith Dennis, vice president for Finance and Administration at the College. “We are working on the definition of what kind of space we need and we actually have some floor plans and preliminary cost estimates.”

As the College continues to gradually expand enrollment, the space becomes more and more important: Madeleva Hall houses almost all classes and faculty offices, except for science, modern languages, nursing and education courses. Noble Family Dining Hall, where the new Student Activities Center will stand, becomes more and more cramped, as does the office space in Le Mans Hall and Haggar Student Center.

“Most of the changes being made are to make better use of existing space for the current enrollment and to better serve a population of about 1700 students,” Dennis said.

According to Dennis, the Student Activities Center will house the bookstore and Dining Hall, bank offices, ATM machines, and the Post Office.

“The Student Center will be the main gathering place on campus,” Dennis said.

Linda Timm, vice president for Student Affairs, has the latest set of plans for the facilities, although nothing is in stone as yet.

“The plans... are the most recent set I have,” Timm said. “The architects have been working on another revision and we will likely have access to those in the coming weeks.”

According to the plans, the Dining Hall will contain three small meal/meeting places along with a 130+ seating area that could be partitioned from the general dining area, much like the Wedge Room in the current Dining Hall.

“There will be the opportunity to provide multiple concepts for dining,” Dennis said. “The facility is going to be flexible so that these options can be changed as tastes and opportunities change.”

According to Timm, the Student Center will also contain a cafe with Internet capabilities, a coffee bar, travel agency, general store, copy shop, a large lounge, off-campus student lounge, a TV lounge, a resource center for campus ministry, the president’s dining room, student activities offices, multicultural affairs office, SURF, student government offices, catering offices, the Blue Mantle office, an Observer office, a 100 seat theater style room, and three meeting rooms.

“With the number of students growing, the student center will become more important. Madeleva Hall becomes more and more cramped. as does the office space in Le Mans Hall and Haggar Student Center. The classrooms are being renovated at the same time the center is being designed.”

According to Dennis, the changes to Madeleva are expected to be quite dramatic.

“They include renovating a majority of the classrooms by adding technology and adjusting class sizes.”

According to Dennis, the students will not be the only ones to benefit from the changes to Madeleva.

“The faculty and staff offices will be standardized and renovated to provide windows and other amenities,” Dennis said. “Departments will be relocated to make better use of space.”

Timm sees a catalyst in increasing awareness on campus.

“The task force is to keep the issue alive and promote a strong educational component,” said R. a r e n F l i n t a u, dean of faculty.

With the help from the faculty members on the task force committee, sweatshop specific material can be made available to interested faculty and students.

“To真人the faculty will do is bring speakers to campus and set up curriculum for professors that incorporate sweatshop issues,” said Capillo.

The next meeting for the task force will be in early October. By the end of the meeting they hope to have a draft of their year goals and all they hope to accomplish.

“It’s coming along,” said VenderWerven, "and the goal is to get this up and running as quick as possible.”

Three part-time Americancos positions available at La Casa de Amistad

La Casa de Amistad is in need of three dependable, energetic and organized individuals who are currently enrolled in classes. An education award is given with the completion of the required hours (20hrs/week), in addition to your salary.

If interested, call: Adrianna Genera-Wurst or Carlos Baldizon Martinez at (219) 233-2120

Sponsored by the Mendoza College of Business
continued from page 1

sexual assault, but she did not take them seriously.

"I thought it was definitely not something that would happen to me," she said. "I went to a good Catholic school."

She moved into a double, and quickly ran into the party scene with her roommate. At one of these parties, she followed her roommate out to Notre Dame to party every Friday and Saturday night.

"We drank a lot," Kelly said. "It wasn't unusual for the two girls. Since it was a Friday, Kelly and her roommate decided to head over to Notre Dame to party every Friday and Saturday night."

Then the two girls walked around campus to see what else was going on.

They soon found another party, and Kelly drank some more. Later, when she asked her friends how much they saw her drink, they said four beers.

"I really don't know how much I drank that night," she said. "After that we went to Reckers. At 3 a.m. we went back to St. Mary's."

Kelly was tired, but decided to go down to the writing center to check her email.

A male acquaintance at Notre Dame, Justin, instantly messaged her while she was in the writing center. Justin asked her if she wanted to get together. She agreed, and met him in the Le Mans parking lot at about 3 a.m.

"I was very tired. I wanted to go to sleep," she said. "He stopped in Angola. We started kissing. I guess he must have said 'Don't take your virginity like five times.' I was passed out, but I knew it was happening.

Afterwards, she went back to her dorm, still adrift, aware that something had happened, but in denial.

"I woke up the next morning covered in blood," Kelly said. "I thought myself that it didn't happen. I tried to play it off."

Later that day, Kelly told her roommate what had happened.

"Then I realized that this was a problem I had trusted, but I didn't even know his last name."

She turned down the phone with what little information she had, and discovered who he was and found out he was a baseball player.

"He was a baseball player," she said. "He would have told his friends."

Her friends were trying to give her advice, but she was already blocking the incident out. Her roommate left to go to the Korean House, and she decided to let another friend take her to the clinic.

An hour later, she went looking for her friend and found that friend just leaving to go party at Alumni again, unwilling to take her to the clinic.

Kelly decided not to go to the clinic after all.

"I went back and took a shower and went to bed," Kelly said. "I told myself I had to go to the clinic and do a rape kit. It had already seemed like so long ago."

She woke up the next morning and, after trying to do homework, realized that all she was doing was writing prayers to God to allow her to die over to the clinic and do a rape kit. It had already seemed like so long ago.

"I went back to the writing center and was instant Messaging another friend, and told him she wouldn't be back because she was going to 'hope fully be in heaven' by then.

She went back up to her room and went to sleep.

She was in the middle of an email saying who the parents when her roommate came and said that her RA wanted to see her.

"I was put on suicide watch, and every noon I had to go to a counseling office called to make sure I was okay," Kelly said. "It was really embarrassing."

"Then I decided to phone Justin," she said. "I called him up with questions about what happened that night. 'Oh, we hooked up,' and laughed. Then he wanted to know when we were going to The Observer."

On Thursday of that week, Justin interviewed Kelly. He wanted to know how she was feeling.

"He said, 'Should I put this incident behind me?'' Kelly told her audiance. Later in that conversation, Kelly said she had some very serious questions about that night. In the transcript she printed of their conversation, he allegedly admitted that he might have gone against her wishes. He admitted that he did rape her, she said. He even apologized.

"He finally admitted to it," Kelly said. "He said he was sorry.

That weekend, she went home and told her parents what had happened. "I am glad I told my parents," Kelly said. "It was also one of the hardest things I have ever done. My dad was shaking. He went to Notre Dame, and two times since then he has come to me and said, 'I live with the burden that I failed you as a father.'"

She said it wasn't a bad fault.

Kelly tried counseling, but nothing was coming of it, and she decided to move on with her life.

"Moving on didn't happen," Kelly said. "I was very suicidal. My roommate was horrible, and I think she was the only one. I was having a really rough time, during February and the end of March."

Burying Sexual Awareness Week at the end of March, Kelly saw a list of statistics on rape.

"I matched every one," Kelly said. "Fresmen, naive, and doesn't report it. I said, 'I can't believe I'm a statistic.'"

However, it was what she read later that week in The Observer, a full-page ad, which spurred her to action. It read, "You may think he took everything from you, but he didn't take your voice."

"He killed me inside, but I still had my voice," Kelly said."

After that, she made an appointment with Notre Dame Security, and they took her statement.

The next fall, she was called into the LifeHSE office, and given a contact person and a copy of du Lac. She decided to press charges after talking with a student from Notre Dame who was herself a survivor of sexual assault.

"I wasn't prepared for it," she said of the hearing. "I decided to go myself, and I regret that a lot.

Her story and Justin's did not agree, according to Kelly. She said he was allowed to bring in character witnesses, none of whom she was. She said he told the committee that she was "Just after the jocks."

"I was not," Kelly said. "I was a student manager. I love Notre Dame."

She then told her roommate the committee that Kelly was probably making it up, according to Kelly.

A week later, she went in again and was told of the verdict.

"We have a decision now," they said. "There was no violation of du Lac. He will receive counseling on relationship issues," Kelly recounted. "I told my contact person, 'I must not believe this is happening.'"

She met with the Campus Alliance for Rape Elimination (C.A.R.E.), who told her she had a right to a transcript of the hearing. She said she didn't tell her that since she wasn't a Notre Dame student, she was lucky to come over and be a part of the hearing at all.

In desperation, she went to Linda Timm, vice president of Student Affairs at Saint Mary's.

"Dr. Timm helped me so much," Kelly said. "She was amazing. I also spoke with Father [Mark] Poomon [vice president of Notre Dame Finance] at Notre Dame, who said he was sorry. He hoped that I would seek pastoral care. But I still wasn't satisfied. I still felt a lot of guilt. I was drinking that night I got in his car."

Her turning point came that fall break when she was in a serious car accident.

"It was a legitimate way for me to die," Kelly said. "I realized then that there was there for a reason. I could get better. I needed someone to tell me I wasn't to blame. I was okay. I started to realize that I wasn't alone, that God was there to protect me."

While Kelly did write an anonymous letter to The Observer last year, she felt that wasn't enough. She spoke to Regina Hall students in an effort to educate students to the facts that they were not alone.

"One of the main things I want to go over is the fact that 1 in 4 women in their lifetime will be raped," Kelly said. "It's not just a statistic."

Kelly also advised her audience to go to the clinic immediately and get help. Kelly herself took a shower and did not go to the clinic, and thus had no physical evidence to prove her case to outside authorities.

There are so many places you can go to get help," Kelly said. "If anything ever happens, just go to the clinic. And if it happens to your friends you have support to believe them, to help them. In most cases we come forward are not lying. If they won't go, you yourself to get help. It's a lot for you to deal with."

Although she did not get the result she wanted from the Notre Dame hearing, she was grateful that they heard her case.

"Technical they don't have to hear [Saint Mary's] cases," Kelly said.

New BALANCE GOLD helps give your body sustained energy, plus 23 essential amino acids and minerals in a 40-30-30 ratio of carbs, protein and dietary fat efficiently hidden in peanuts, caramel and a rich chocolate flavor. Now if only we could make it look like a little cartoon character. Want to learn more? Log on to Balance.com.
World News Briefs

NATO foils Kosovo bomb plot: NATO-led peacekeepers foiled a plot to detonate a bomb in Kosovo, following a massive search Tuesday in a Serb enclave outside the province's capital. Hundreds of NATO-led peacekeepers swept into the Kosovo Serb village of Gracanica, just outside the capital, Pristina, before dawn, uncovering explosives, weapons and detonators, peacekeepers said.

Arrests made in Croatian death: The top U.N. official in Bosnia said Tuesday that a Croatian army general and three Bosnian Croats arrested in police sweeps in Bosnia and Croatia are suspected in the assassination of anti-corruption politician Jozo Luetar, a Bosnian Croat deputy interior minister. U.N. authorities name Ivin Artushak, a Croatian army general, as the main suspect.

National News Briefs

Morning-after pill on agenda: Anti-abortion lawmakers pushed through a proposal Tuesday aimed at prohibiting the use of federal funds to distribute the so-called morning-after pill at the nation's public schools. The drug can be used after unprotected sex to stop a pregnancy, and House supporters of the proposal said 180 schools across the country distribute it at school-based clinics. A similar proposal had been included in the Senate version of the education spending bill being negotiated by House and Senate conferees.

Man files suit against Girl Scouts: A graphic designer for the Girl Scouts has filed a discrimination lawsuit alleging that the organization has refused to promote him because of his gender, according to court records made public Tuesday. Joseph Pecca's lawsuit says that in his 15 years last week are suspected in the assassination of anti-corruption politician Jozo Luetar, a Bosnian Croat deputy interior minister. U.N. authorities name Ivin Artushak, a Croatian army general, as the main suspect.

Indiana News Briefs

Indiana selects assistant coaches: Dan Panaggio, a three-time coach of the year in the CBA, and Julius Smith were hired as assistants Tuesday by Mike Davis, Indiana's new basketball coach. Panaggio compiled a 313-191 record in nine seasons with the Quad City Thunder, the most victories of any active CBA coach. Smith was an assistant at Southeastern Louisiana last season and before that, he was at Tulane in that capacity for eight years. Davis was promoted from assistant to interim head coach last week after Bob Knight was fired.

THE OBSERVER SERVFTIONS

World News Briefs

Cuba

Hijacked Cuban plane crashes

Associated Press
KEY WEST

A small plane that left Cuba with 10 people aboard Tuesday was hijacked before it crashed into the Gulf of Mexico, authorities said. One man was killed and the others were found clinging to debris and rescued by a cargo ship.

The crew of the Chivis Dream, a Panamanian-registered freighter, recovered one body and the survivors — three men, three women and three children — from rough seas near 300 miles off the Florida coast about five hours after the plane took off, the U.S. Coast Guard said.

One man had severe head and neck injuries. A Coast Guard cutter planned to meet the freighter Tuesday night and pick up the survivors. The most seriously injured were to be flown to Key West for treatment.

Details of who was on the flight and where it was going were unclear late Tuesday. Based on the last radar location given by Cuban air traffic controllers and an emergency beacon signal picked up by a U.S. AWACS plane, the Coll was believed to have gone down about 90 miles southwest of Key West, U.S. officials said.

The survivors were pulled from the water more than 200 miles west of that area, the Coast Guard said.

Coast Guard Rear Adm. Thad Allen said he is "not really sure" why there was such a vast discrepancy between where the plane was believed to have crashed and where it actually did.

"In a lot of these cases, as they emerge, there is a lot of confusion," Allen said.

Cuban officials initially reported that as many as 18 people were on the plane, but Allen said the survivors told the ship's crew that 10 were aboard.

Peru proposes March elections

LIMA

Peru's government outlined plans Tuesday for elections in March to choose a successor to President Alberto Fujimori, but the main opposition leader insisted the voting should be sooner.

It's not clear whether the armed forces will go along with either plan, and the military — which may hold the key to a peaceful transition — has been silent so far.

Fujimori, forced to loosen his decade-long grip on power by a bribery scandal engulfing his shadowy intelligence chief, announced Saturday he would deactivate the National Intelligence Service and call new elections in which he would not be a candidate.

Justice Minister Alberto Bustamante said the elections to replace Fujimori and the Congress would most likely be held in March and the new president would be sworn in July 28, Peru's traditional inaugural date.

"The elections could be in March but the one who has to call them is the president," Bustamante said. Peru's opposition, growing increas-ingly suspicious of Fujimori's announced plans to give up power, demanded a much quicker timetable for him to leave.

Alejandro Toledo, who pulled out of May's presidential runoff after charg-ing Fujimori planned to rig the results, insisted the new vote be held within four months and an interim govern-ment formed to oversee the election.

"We need a government that has legitimacy, that respects the people's will and doesn't twist it as they did on April 9," he told a rally of thousands of supporters Monday night, referring to the tainted first round.

Brazil

Jozef Paredes is surrounded by relatives as she shows reporters a photo of her daughter, Mercedes Martinez, and her son-in-law, Angel Lenin Iglesias, in Las Palacios, Western Cuba. Martinez and Lenin, along with their two children, were aboard the plane that Lenin was polling before it crashed into the Gulf of Mexico Tuesday.

Associated Press
Professors: campaigns are not focused on the issues

By MARIBEL MOREY
News Writer

According to David Leegh, professor of government, campaign themes are not about issues, but about which groups will benefit from the kind of leadership the candidate would bring to the office.

"Bush has downplayed policy and has concentrated on the image as a likeable, down-to-earth person," said Joshua Kaplan, associate director of undergraduate studies and assistant professional specialist in the government department.

"Gore is carefully following Clinton, using policy with broad appeal," he said. "In my opinion, both candidates have learned a lot from Clinton, on how to campaign successfully. He's a model on how to win an election."

Putting personality aside, the two candidates have presented mainly domestic issues. "I would guess that the issues are domestic issues: social insurance which includes social security, Medicare, prescription drugs and everything else related to the high-costs people face with an illness," said Leegh. "The second issue would include the responsible use of anticipated surplus." Kaplan agrees with the importance of these issues. "Now more of the issues are coming out which includes prescription drugs and defense spending and obviously they're important, but it's not clear that the issues make a difference in this election."

With a surplus the money can either go back to the people in the form of tax breaks or pay out part of the national debt. "Ironically, although Governor Bush argued for the tax cuts, he saw that he wasn't gaining many votes so he came back down from that," he said. "Now he's addressing the same type of issues as Gore — making a living and having a strong economy."

Issues are the quality of education and access to education, said Leegh. "Bush presents the education vouchers in a way that 'this is something different,' but it's a familiar Republican value," said Kaplan. "Just like Clinton said, I'm a new kind of Democrat. Bush says he's a new kind of Republican."

Bush has taken a middle-ground angle in this campaign. "More emphasis on personality ... Governor Bush is trying to carve out new territory. He hasn't presented himself as an advocate for the traditional Republican Party," said Kaplan. The Republicans face the problem of overcoming the policy of benefiting the minorities (the rich).

Close to the issue of personality, but somewhat unique is the Clinton fatigue. Some people think we need a change because they're tired of the Clinton administration, said Leegh. "For those voters, it doesn't matter who the Republican candidate is as long as it's now a Democrat," he said.

When asked for the most important issues in this election, Leegh declined to answer. "I don't think on this. I watch how each candidate tries to get an advocacy of this issue," he said. "It's too premature to say which is the most important issue."

Instead of debating issues on nationally televised stations, the candidates are trying to sweet-talk their way through the back roads of the country and portraying themselves as the true underdog. "In the outcome, we'll see whether this was persuasive or not," said Leegh.
Continental General will replace faulty tires dramatic new in the tire industry
Continental General Tire announced Tuesday that it will replace for free about 160,000 tires that can lose part of their tread.

About 140,000 of the 16-inch ContiTrac AS tires were original equipment on about 38,000 1998 and 1999 model year Lincoln Navigators made by Ford Motor Co. Another 20,000 were sold as replacement tires.

Charlotte, N.C.-based Continental said warranty and claims data shows 62 of the tires have lost sections of tread when exposed to heat.

The problem can lead to severe damage to the vehicle, but there have been no reports of accidents causing serious injuries or deaths, the company said.

Continental and Lincoln referred to the move as a "customer satisfaction program" rather than a safety-related recall like the one announced last month by Bridgestone/Firestone Inc. That company is recalling 6.5 million Firestone tires that have been linked to 103 U.S. traffic deaths, most involving rollovers of Ford Explorers.

"We have a tire that is not performing to the quality standards that we set for ourselves," said Bernd Frangenberg, president and chief executive officer of Continental. "This case does not involve any rollover, any fatalities, any serious injuries or any litigation. We only know of one minor injury.

Lincoln spokesman Jim Cain said the warranty and claims data for the Continental tires were analyzed as part of Ford's investigation into the Firestone tires.

Lincoln and Continental officials met Tuesday with the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration to discuss their findings. A NHTSA official said the agency would open an investigation to make sure the replacement campaign is adequate.

Owners of 1998 and 1999 Navigators should visit their Lincoln dealer for a tire inspection. If the tires are covered by the replacement program, they will be exchanged for free, including mounting and balancing.

Continental said it is shipping tires overnight to Lincoln dealers and expects that all replacements will be completed within eight weeks.

College drafts sweatshop policy

On Aug. 31, Saint Mary's finished a final draft of their sweatshop policy. With help from students, faculty, administration and Worker Rights Consor- tion (WRC), the policy proposed many ways the school can stop the mistreatment of workers around the world.

One way the policy hoped to ensure the protection of workers was through a monitoring system. The different purchasing departments of Saint Mary's will require information from their vendors on how factories are run.

"I have asked for vendors code of conduct," said Sandy VenderWerven, manager of Saint Mary's bookstore, and member of the anti-sweatshop committee. "I think they are taking it seriously. Some vendors have provided list of their factories. Jansport and Gear (vendors) have come out with global mission statement.

But some wonder if a vendor's written code of conduct represents the actual working factory.

Whether they enforce those written codes is where the WRC comes in," said VenderWerven.

The WRC, a non-profit organization, will serve as the eyes and ears for their college and university members. They will form groups to go out to vendor's linked factories and report their findings to the involved colleges and universities. But it is up to each individual college to decide what to do with the information.

"The task force is to keep the issue alive and promote a strong educational component."

Karen Ristau, dean of faculty

The next meeting for the task force will be in early October. By the end of meeting they hope to have a draft of their year goals and all they hope to accomplish.

"It's coming along," said VenderWerven. "And the goal is to get this up and running as quick as possible."
students starting the graduate program in 1997 and 1998 was needed for the past few years, a class of graduate tudents entered the graduate program.

Although law students have not experienced this problem is even more pronounced in undergraduate departments that do not have a corresponding graduate program.

TA

continued from page 1

experienced this

Although the chemistry department has been experiencing this

Although

have a need for TAs. Therefore,

in undergraduate departments

students in

with high enrollment, professors in the department still have a need for TAs. Therefore,

to department chair Alexander Lappin.

Students interested in becoming a TA at Notre Dame changed their mind before

EQUITY

in the second year of the College of Architecture's masters' degree program.
"It takes a lot of energy, but when you see your students progress... it's really satisfying."

Before beginning her masters' degree work, Dacanay said she was interested only in establishing a private architecture practice.
However, her experience as a TA has been so positive, she said, that she now wants to incorporate teaching into her career.

Dain Rauscher Wessels will be at the Notre Dame Career Fair on September 21 from 6:30 PM to 8:30 PM and September 22 from 10 AM to 3 PM

Meet with Notre Dame graduates Ed Lagerstrom (MBA), Niall Cannon, Mike
Monroe and other Investment Bankers from Dain Rauscher Wessels

What you need to know about Investment Banking

#1 rank in IPO aftermarket performance with a 381% return
#1 rank in combined IPO and Follow-on aftermarket performance with a 248% return
Raised over $13.2 Billion in Capital in 1999

Completed a record high 101 domestic equity offerings in 1999
A Managing Underwriter on 4 of the top 5 IPOs from 1999 and the first half of 2000

Top 5 Performing IPOs

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Rank</th>
<th>Company</th>
<th>Return</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>Brocade Communications Systems</td>
<td>5763%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>Redback Networks</td>
<td>3015%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>Juniper Networks</td>
<td>2470%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>Tibco Software</td>
<td>2045%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5</td>
<td>Ariba, Inc.</td>
<td>1605%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Source: Cowen & Company

(1) Top 5 IPOs in 1999 and first half of 2000 is measured by % appreciation from IPO to 6/30/00.

Dain Rauscher Wessels
Cheney: Gore talks the talk, but doesn’t walk the walk

FRESNO, Calif., September 20, 2000

Seemingly deputized to rough up Al Gore, Dick Cheney said Tuesday the vice president has a pattern of "saying one thing and doing something else."

While he's often referred to himself as a "man of few words," George W. Bush's Republican running mate found many words to paint Gore as a hypocrite.

On Gore and Hollywood, Cheney said the vice president criticized the marketing of violence to kids and then "raised millions of dollars from the same movie moguls who are corrupting our children."

On Gore's misrepresentation of costs paid by his family for an arthritis drug, he said: "Clearly, Al Gore is going around the country making up stories about his family." On tort reform, he said the Clinton-Gore administration claimed to support limits on lawsuit awards to win favor with Silicon Valley technology companies, but then vetoed that step "after cutting a deal with trial lawyers."

What's going on with the low-key Cheney? Juleanna Glover-Weiss, speaking for him, said his tougher tone is a "natural evolution."

"As we get closer and closer to Election Day, you'll see more contrast," she said. "Running mates are often used as attack dogs while presidential candidates run a more positive campaign, but it's taken Cheney a while to become pointed in his criticisms of Gore."

Cheney said the vice president shifted positions on Hollywood to mollify his financial backers in the entertainment industry.

"We've seen him on the one hand campaign that he's on the side of moms and dads and then used as attack dogs while he goes and raises money from the same people," Cheney told reporters during a campaign swing through California. "He'll say virtually anything to any audience and switch from audience to audience."

Cheney and his running mate, Sen. Joseph Lieberman of Connecticut, took in $4.2 million at a Beverly Hills fundraiser Monday night where the vice president took down earlier warnings that he would sanction Hollywood for marketing violence to kids.

"He threatened the media industry with retribution or regulation if they didn't shape up within six months and then yesterday he said well, he really didn't mean it, he just wants to nudge them a little bit," Cheney said.

Cheney said he opposes any kind of censorship to stop studios from marketing violence to children and said the best way to stop the practice is to "hold the industry up to public condemnation" when they aim "unacceptable behavior" rather than go "hobnob with the same folks," said Cheney.

For a second day, Cheney criticized Gore for using figures in a study to represent what his family actually pays for the arthritis drug Lodine for his mother-in-law and his dog.

Gore had tried to make the point that companies charge far more for a drug sold to humans than for the same drug sold for pets, but the costs he cited were not those of his family.

Cheney voiced some frustration that missteps in the Bush campaign seem to get more attention than Gore mistakes.

"When a Republican misspeaks, that's big news," Cheney said. "I think it's equally important to ask a question about a vice president who simply makes up things out of whole cloth and repeats them over and over."

---

Interfaith Christian Night Prayer has MOVED...

Same Awesome Prayer  Same Awesome Music
New Awesome Location: Morrissey Chapel

InterFaith Christian Prayer

TONIGHT
Every Wednesday @ 10 p.m.
MORRISSEY Hall Chapel
ALL ARE WELCOME

---

Wednesday, September 20, 2000
The Observer • CAMPAIGN 2000
Fire
continued from page 1
when the temperature reaches around 150 to 165 degrees. Until smoke reaches the hallway, however, the only sprinkler in the room where the fire originates will be activated.
"The new system is much more sensitive overall than the old one," Beatty said.
At Saint Mary's, sprinkler systems are placed in every room, in every residence hall except McCandless Hall. "I think there may be some who say fire sprinklers are a bit of an over­ kill, but our policy has always been that the school should make every room as safe as possible," said McCandless Hall junior Colin Grady feels confident he would escape unharmed if there were a fire in his dorm.
"I know the rules. Stop, drop, and roll.

CAMBODIA

Explosion kills two in capital city

Associated Press

An explosion near the royal palace in central Phnom Penh killed two people and injured nine Tuesday, police said.
It was not clear if the explosion was caused by a bomb or some other device, fire chief so Chiv, an intelligence officer with the national military police.
Unconfirmed reports said a man driving a motorcycle threw a grenade, his said.
The blast occurred at a street corner in Don Tuol district, a mixed residential and business area.
"What we know is that one lady, a bread seller, was killed," so Chiv said. "We found her body in her house along the street when the explosion happened."
He said 10 people, including one child and three women, were hospitalized, most with serious injuries. One of the injured died, he said. He did not know the identity of the dead person.
This appears not related to politics," the said.
A relative of the dead woman waived from the balcony of the building where she lived as police carried her body away. Blood was splattered on the street.
No other details were available.

IRAN

Female activist applies to run for president

Associated Press

TEHRAN

A little-known woman conservative activist said Tuesday
she hopes to be the first woman to run for president in Iran.
"I've made my decision
in last year's presidential elections. I'm going to fight in the polls as an independent,"
Farah Khosravi, 41, told The Associated Press.
She spoke on Women's Day, celebrated on the anniversary of the birth of Fatima, daughter of Islam's prophet Muhammad.
Nineteen-year-old Maryam Akhozi marked the day with a training flight, making her the nation's youngest woman pilot.

Reformists who support
Khatami believe Khosravi's candidacy would be a publicity stunt by hard-liners.
"Hard-liners are trying to discourage Khatami from running or at least try to undermine his votes through different tactics, including bringing forward a woman candidate," said reformist
lawmaker Fatemeh Haqipour.
Khosravi would be "no serious challenge" to the popular president, who said in his first speech after winning the election last June,
"I'm going to fight in the polls as an independent."

Farah Khosravi
presidential candidate

"I'm going to
for president in Iran as a woman"

"I've made my decision to run... I'm going to fight in the polls as an independent."

Still, 20 years later, she remains a leader in medical research.

But I never left GE."

We didn't become Fortune's magazine's America's Most Admired Company* by accepting the status quo. We got there by hiring and training courageous engineers with the courage to think innovative and revolutionary ways.

No other company can match the diversity of opportunities at GE. Because we have small company attitudes with large company strengths, we set no limits, no boundaries. You can move from industry to industry, discipline to discipline, and never leave GE.

We're a leader in every business we compete in, and we're looking for leaders with the same perspective.

Come learn about GE's entry level training programs for business majors at the Business Career Forum
September 21st
Mendoza College of Business
6:00-8:30 PM

Note: Forum held on the 22nd from 9:30-3:30.

Learn about us at www.gecareers.com

We bring good things to life.
Senate changes U.S. policy, approves China trade bill

WASHINGTON  The Senate voted Tuesday to permanently normalize trade with China, hoping to open American products and ideas and writing the end to a half-century of U.S. policy isolating the communist giant.

The 83-15 vote, sending the bill to President Clinton for his signature, represents the biggest step in U.S.-China relations since President Nixon's 1972 visit to the Great Wall and ends the divisive annual debates over U.S. trade policy toward the Communist country.

In the past, those arguing that the United States must do more to bring China's communist government into the international community prevailed over critics warning that Congress was putting profits ahead of principle.

"We will find, I believe, America has far more influence in China with an outstretched hand than with a clenched fist," Clinton said after the Senate vote. "The more China opens its markets to our products, the wider it opens its doors to economic freedom and the more fully it will liberate the potential of its people."

The House passed PNTR, or the permanent normal trade relations bill, last May. The legislation, backed by a powerful coalition of business and farm groups, was praised by U.S. Trade Representative Charlene Barshefsky, who said it was "as important as any on China since 1972, with the opening of China" by President Nixon. She said it marked a "historic milepost" in the rocky relations that have existed since Mao Tse-tung brought the communists to power in 1949.

"This historic legislation will be remembered as the key that opened the door for America to sell its products and services to the world's largest emerging marketplace," said Robert Burt, chairman of The Business Roundtable, an association of CEOs.

The bill revises a 1974 law under which trade relations with communist states are subject to annual review. Since the 1989 crackdown on the Tiananmen democracy movement, congressional critics of China have made concerted, if unsuccessful, efforts every year to rescind normal trade status because of Beijing's human rights and weapons proliferation abuses.

The bill to make trade relations permanent is an outgrowth of a U.S.-China agreement last fall under which China, as a condition for entering the World Trade Organization (WTO), made major concessions in reducing barriers to market entry. China is expected to join the WTO later this year or early next year, and the United States, in order to enjoy the benefits of China's commitment to WTO free-market rules, must grant permanent trade status.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., stressed that it will still be up to Americans to take advantage of new market opportunities. "Passage of PNTR will be one for the history books, of profound implication to the United States, but once it passes then we Americans have to put our shoulders to the wheel, we have to follow up."

With WTO entry, China's tariffs on U.S. made manufactured goods would fall from an overall average of 25 percent to 9 percent by 2005. Duties on America's primary food products would drop from 31 percent to 14 percent.

China would be required to open its financial and service industries to American companies, allow greater outside ownership in its telecommunications industry and allow Americans full distribution rights within the country.

Agriculture exports alone could grow by some $2 billion a year, helping reduce China's current $65 billion trade surplus with the United States.

"We wanted to be the first ones here. This has big potential for agriculture states like North Dakota," said North Dakota Gov. Ed Schafer, chairman of the Republican Governors Association, in a call from Beijing where he is heading a state trade delegation. Under the pact, he said, China must increase its quota of tariff-free wheat imports fivefold to 350 million bushels a year.

"One out of eight jobs in Illinois depends upon exports and passage of this critical measure means that Congress' vote will impact the lives of 600,000 Illinoisans and their families," said Illinois Gov. George Ryan, a Republican.

Sponsored by The Nanovic Institute for European Studies The Cushwa Center for the Study of American Catholicism

The Faces Of Holy Cross

LaPierre, Indiana Brisbane, Australia

The New Team at Moreau Seminary

G'Day Mates!

www.nd.edu/~vocation

The Papacy in Crisis:

Pope Pius XII and World War II

September 23 9am-12:30pm

Hesburgh Library Auditorium

Guest Speakers

Michael Phayer, Marquette University
"Pius XII in the Eyes of His Contemporaries"

John Pollard, Cambridge University
"Pius XII: the Man, the Pontificate, and the Historical Problem"

Jose Sanchez, Saint Louis University
"Why Pius did not make a strong protest: Perception and Reality"

Stewart Steinlin, New York University
"Pacelli, Germany and the Reichskonkordat of 1933"

Sponsored by The Nanovic Institute for European Studies
The Cushwa Center for the Study of American Catholicism

Sophomores & Juniors!

$SCHOLARSHIP$ AVAILABLE NOW!

AF ROTC - Producing Leaders for the Air Force and Building better citizens for America

Non-competitive Scholarships - $17,480 annually, are available for select majors for sophomores and for ALL juniors!

Don't waste a moment! Contact Captain Klubeck at 831-4676, or Klubeck_f@nd.edu

ANSWER THE CALL

availablenow@ndu.edu
"A female Irish Guard? You have to be kidding!"

"I got it from a reliable source. Read The Irish Observer to learn more."

"Whoa shit?"

"Molly Kinder."

I am sure that similar conversations were echoed, either on the telephone, in e-mail, or in face to face interactions throughout the Notre Dame student body and alumni network. I like the rest of the Notre Dame community, was in shock, as well as pleasantly surprised, when I read the front page article in The Observer. I began to reflect on the changes that I had witnessed since my family became affiliated with the University.

In 1980, I attended events sponsored by the Black Alumni of Notre Dame (BAN) and heard many discussions about Frazier Thompson ’47, the first African-American student to graduate from Notre Dame. During a meeting, Thompson awakened the student body and judges proved us both wrong. The student body and judges proved us both wrong. The student body proved me wrong.

TheObserversharing in the actualization of a vision to learn to talk about race. This newspaper is the only entertainment where, no matter how many times you go back, you never know the outcome."

"Yes, the student body has recognized the contributions of all students and have been instrumental in cracking the glass ceilings and making new traditions. The collaborative efforts of the Campus Life Council, Student Government and staff members of Multicultural Student Programs and Services, Residence Life, Student Activities and Campus Ministry resulted in grassroot initiatives such as the Prejudice Reduction Workshops and the Learning to Talk about Race Retreats. The latter are being conducted on other campuses following Notre Dame’s presentations at national conferences. Also, the creation of the Practicum on Diversity Education course has added to the dialogue of respect versus tolerance. Thank you to Student Affairs for sharing in the actualization of a vision to make the University truly welcoming to all.

The resurgence of the Latino Studies Program through the Latino Institute speaks to the University’s additional commitment to diversifying the academic arena. The institution is cross listed with other departments, Dr. Gil Cardenas and staff who are renown in the Latino/Hispanic academic field. Julian Samora, who began Notre Dame’s first Latino Studies program several decades prior and led to establish the same at the University of Michigan where it still flourishes after his death is wondering why it took the University so long.

With the rebirth of the Notre Dame Program comes the enhancement of the African-American Studies Program. This year the program welcomes four Erskine Peters Fellows, who are in the process of completing their dissertation. The Provost office has also hired several additional African-American faculty of tenure and junior status in the department of psychology, government and English. For their success, we as a community must support their endeavors.

Notre Dame has come a long way since Frazier Thompson graduated in 1947, but the journey is not over. How will we get there depends on each of us. Are we open and receptive to the faculty of color or do we spend time challenging them and their credentials? Do we respect the contributions of all our project team members regardless of race, ethnicity, gender, etc.? What personal commitment have we made to Notre Dame and ourselves?"

Wednesday, September 20, 2000

Endure a little healthy revolution

“Do you feel tired, rundown, listless? Do you poop-out at parties?” If you know where this quote is from, then you are very cool in my opinion. But seriously, are you tired, worn down, but no worries because we have an answer, revolution! If you say long live France, as in, “Vive la France,” you can almost hear the excitement in the words invoke.

By now, though, if you are thoroughly encouraged by my penetrating perception into the human spirit, it ought to have occurred to you to ask, where do I sign up? What do I do? Who do I talk to? Just as an effective staple has to have more than three heads of cattle, an effective insurrection also has to have more than three participants. Sadly, you will just end your life more quickly instead of making it more exciting by mutinying all by yourself. You’ve got to have friends. Friends are key. Friends and bits of protest signs. I inadvertently also forget to mention that the modern rebellion must be peaceful. It really must, otherwise you just get blown to bits, besides it’s not very chic. I’m reminded of the age-old saying that you can bring a lot of bees to honey... but if you try to, for example, use poison gas and bombs, you will simply destroy all the bees. Something like that. The point is, the modern rebellion is about feeling alive, going against the man (i.e. government), not making the entire world. I believe I have made my point.

Alright, so now we’ve talked out what is ailing us, discovered the malady if you will — that nagging, why get up in the morning, let me drown myself in fine beer attitude. Then, we’ve decided upon the general remedy, “Vive la Revolution!” We’ve planned out the necessary equipment — people, lots of people and placards. Are we done? Heck no, living is not easy, so how can better living be any easier?

There remain two items on our agenda. First, what are we going to put on our signs and chant out loud so all the fuzz (police) can hear? It has to be something catchy and fun to say, after all, we are trying to be exciting. I am reminded of a somewhat famous movie from the late seventies about a prison revolt. I never saw the movie and I don’t think many people really care much about the movie. But most people, people who are in the know, have heard the chant, “Atica! Atica!” a time and a place, and it, like “Vive la France,” is highly inspiring. Secondly, you really have to have something to rebel against; the Establishment is simply passe.

Don’t worry, I have pondered what to rebel against: the bookstore. Yes! The beautiful, but suspicious bookstore right here on ND campus. And why? Well, now to the crux of this article, the textbook monopoly. Sure profit margin goes on everywhere; the ND bookstore and Copy Shop are perhaps only using good business savvy, but the point is, do we have to take it? Sure there is. A perfect time, the beginning of the year, you are still fresh. A perfect problem, a highway robbing, thriving, book, blackmarket-like, trading business going on in our own backyard. Don’t sit by idle, twiddling your thumbs. Make signs. Gather friends. Take a stand and feel alive, really alive. Get a loudspeaker and make uproarious demands upon the bookstore and the Copy Shop. I suppose one could also just boycott the bookstore’s monopolistic business. Stage a sit-in, the Shambles, at South Dining Hall, be certain to use hand-cuffs or it just won’t be the same. You won’t feel quite as alive. But remember, you got this wonderful idea yourself.

Anna Barbour is a junior theology and pre-med major. Her column appears every other Wednesday. The views expressed in this column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

Endure a little healthy revolution

Upholding higher standard for Irish fans

Promote ND image to those who view our actions

Here are a few notes on Matthew Lester’s letter. I don’t take back seat to tradition.

1. He’s right. There are some things about Notre Dame he does not understand.

2. It is not disrespectful to WNDU to interview Purdue fans in the student section. Interviewing is their business.

3. It is never appropriate to throw something at an unsuspecting person. It has nothing to do with being a “fan.”

4. It does not matter how students at other schools behave. We strive to be a cut above. The opponent section is never the bench mark.

5. In the last paragraph of Matthew’s letter he said that people outside of ND, “may refer to our proud tradition and class, but do not expect us to not be fans.” Our tradition and class is dependent on us living up to it. Going to a school with a good reputation does not give you a license to be a jerk. The reason we have a good reputation is because our students have earned it in the past. If you don’t act like a “Notre Dame student,” then you are erasing the work of 158 years.

Matthew is not the only one on this campus who feels that Notre Dame is held to a higher standard. However, it is our proud tradition that we embrace and exceed these standards. When we fail, it is a discredit to our reputation. Plenty of Notre Dame haters smile every time they hear of a Notre Dame fan acting without class. Don’t ever give them the satisfaction. Instead, realize that every time you come in contact with someone outside of our Notre Dame family, it is an opportunity to spread the Notre Dame spirit.

Steven Reed
s@smc.edu
Carroll Hall
September 19, 2000

Need for class is obvious

Somebody help me out here. I can’t tell if Mr. Lester was being sarcastic in his letter on Tuesday, or if he is truly so misguided as to think that being hostile to visiting fans is part of Notre Dame tradition. I’d like to give him the benefit of the doubt and think that Mr. Lester is trying to make some sort of sarcastic point, but I’ve just got this sinking feeling.

Okay, I’ll admit I’ve been known to act like a complete idiot at Notre Dame football games. In the past, I’ve been so emotionally involved in what happened on the field, that I’d yell out some terrible things. I’ve felt my blood boil at the site of visiting fans in our student section. I’ve wanted to run out on the field and strangle the ref.

But when the game was over, and I had some time to reflect on my behavior, I always came to realize what a buffoon I’d been. That’s why I can’t begin to understand what Mr. Lester is trying to say. Anyone that would throw something at opposing fans is an embarrassment to the ND community. Anyone who would throw something at opposing fans on camera is just plain stupid. Anyone who thinks that criticism of such acts is unfair needs a reality check.

We are ND. Cheer loud. Be proud. Don’t be foolish. If you don’t want to live up to the standard, find someplace with a lower standard.

Go Irish.

Matt Quirion
Class of ’00
September 19, 2000

Letters to the Editor

Crossing over both ways

I would like to commend you on finally representing students who attend both ND and SMC. However, your article stresses Notre Dame students who take courses at Saint Mary’s and barely mentions students who have a major at both schools. I want to let you know that every day Saint Mary’s students cross Route 33 not to go to a party or a sporting event, but to go to class.

Elizabeth Warburton
junior
September 19, 2000

Upholding higher standard for Irish fans

Promote ND image to those who view our actions

Here are a few notes on Matthew Lester’s letter. I don’t take back seat to tradition.

1. He’s right. There are some things about Notre Dame he does not understand.

2. It is not disrespectful to WNDU to interview Purdue fans in the student section. Interviewing is their business.

3. It is never appropriate to throw something at an unsuspecting person. It has nothing to do with being a “fan.”

4. It does not matter how students at other schools behave. We strive to be a cut above. The opponent section is never the benchmark.

5. In the last paragraph of Matthew’s letter he said that people outside of ND, “may refer to our proud tradition and class, but do not expect us to not be fans.” Our tradition and class is dependent on us living up to it. Going to a school with a good reputation does not give you a license to be a jerk. The reason we have a good reputation is because our students have earned it in the past. If you don’t act like a “Notre Dame student,” then you are erasing the work of 158 years.

Matthew is not the only one on this campus who feels that Notre Dame is held to a higher standard. However, it is our proud tradition that we embrace and exceed these standards. When we fail, it is a discredit to our reputation. Plenty of Notre Dame haters smile every time they hear of a Notre Dame fan acting without class. Don’t ever give them the satisfaction. Instead, realize that every time you come in contact with someone outside of our Notre Dame family, it is an opportunity to spread the Notre Dame spirit.

Steven Reed
s@smc.edu
Carroll Hall
September 19, 2000

Need for class is obvious

Somebody help me out here. I can’t tell if Mr. Lester was being sarcastic in his letter on Tuesday, or if he is truly so misguided as to think that being hostile to visiting fans is part of Notre Dame tradition. I’d like to give him the benefit of the doubt and think that Mr. Lester is trying to make some sort of sarcastic point, but I’ve just got this sinking feeling.

Okay, I’ll admit I’ve been known to act like a complete idiot at Notre Dame football games. In the past, I’ve been so emotionally involved in what happened on the field, that I’d yell out some terrible things. I’ve felt my blood boil at the site of visiting fans in our student section. I’ve wanted to run out on the field and strangle the ref.

But when the game was over, and I had some time to reflect on my behavior, I always came to realize what a buffoon I’d been. That’s why I can’t begin to understand what Mr. Lester is trying to say. Anyone that would throw something at opposing fans is an embarrassment to the ND community. Anyone who would throw something at opposing fans on camera is just plain stupid. Anyone who thinks that criticism of such acts is unfair needs a reality check.

We are ND. Cheer loud. Be proud. Don’t be foolish. If you don’t want to live up to the standard, find someplace with a lower standard.

Go Irish.

Matt Quirion
Class of ’00
September 19, 2000

Letters to the Editor

Crossing over both ways

I would like to commend you on finally representing students who attend both ND and SMC. However, your article stresses Notre Dame students who take courses at Saint Mary’s and barely mentions students who have a major at both schools. I want to let you know that every day Saint Mary’s students cross Route 33 not to go to a party or a sporting event, but to go to class.

Elizabeth Warburton
junior
September 19, 2000
Fall TV season premiers with fresh faces

By MATT KILLEN

While television viewers gear up for an onslaught of new shows this fall, some have been waiting months to see their favorite programs return to the tube with all new episodes. Though the Olympics have made them wait even longer than usual, this year’s summer of waiting will reward viewers with a particularly solid line up of some great returning shows.

The most anticipated of these shows is NBC’s “The West Wing,” coming off a record nine well-deserved Emmy awards including Best Dramatic Actor for Martin Sheen and co-star Hob Lob. This season’s premiere, after “The West Wing” is perennial favorite “Law & Order,” premiering on Oct. 18 at 9 p.m., “Law & Order” returns for its eleventh season, this time without Det. Assistant District Attorney Adam Schiff (Steven Hill). As the only remaining original cast member, Hill has quit at the end of last season. His gummy-yet-understated style will be missed.

Replacing Hill will be Diane Weist (“The Horse Whisperer,” “The Birdcage”). While the DA’s role on the show is relatively minor, it will still be interesting to see how everyone’s favorite assistant district attorney, Jack McCoy (Sam Waterston) will react to his new boss. Undoubtedly, it’s in the Waterston.

Another show will be joined by returning cast member Bestara Arman as his assistant Abbie Carmichael. On the other side of the show are D e r e k v e r s B r i s c o e and Green Green and J e r r y O r b a c h and J es s i c a L . M a r t i n, respectively. While Green founds occasionally during his freshman outing on the show, time will hopefully have a soothing effect on his acting prowess. Roundings things off on “Law & Order’s” cast is their returning boss, Lt. Anita Van Buren (Epatha Merkerson).

Another show on the side of the law is ABC’s “The Practice,” which begins its fifth season at 9 p.m. on October 8. After Bobby Donnell (Dylan McDermott) enjoys CBS’ “CSI” ratings, he is the latest to be killed off on “The Practice.”

Another season of “The Simpsons,” which includes S in e “Terminator 2: Judgement Day” (read: abducted by aliens) in last year’s finale. It eventually becomes Scully’s new partner, acting as the skeptic to Scully’s newfound belief.

Aside from Mulder’s shocking disappearance in last year’s final episode, Scully’s revolution of her personal life will be dealt with alongside with the Cigarette Smoking Man (William David and his alleged “bouth”). Series creator Chris Carter promises a thankless return to the program’s horror-based roots, staying away from the comedic and high-concept episodes that were all too frequent in last year’s season.

This will be a welcome change, as the past two seasons of the show have been marred in a lack of focus. It’s time for “X-Files” to go back to its roots, changing the beginning. While the addition of new partner for Scully is a risky move for the show (hard core “X-Files” fans can be hard to please), it’s a gamble that both Carter and FOX hope to pull off.

Scuirvivor” is back until January. And while it’s time to return the week of rerun of the “Survivor” phenomenon to opposite the Olympics. Also, be happy that the start of the new fall season will bring the network’s disastrousDirective to the rescue: “Big Brother.” While it was an interesting concept in the past, it has become more than a bit of a drag.

Who will be next ‘Survivor’ of new fall programs?

By MELISSA RAUCH

Although the Olympics may have caused a slight delay, the new fall season of television is finally here. In addition to favorite returning shows, the networks are offering 41 new programs to entice viewers to the couch every week.

Amazingly enough, viewers will be without their reality TV for a time, as the next season of “Survivor” is not set to air until next year. Instead there will be many familiar faces on the tube, as numerous film and television stars (including John Goodman, Michael Richards, Geena Davis, and Bette Midler) will be appearing in new vehicles. Viewers will also notice a trend towards shows aimed at older audiences, combating the WB’s teen craze of recent years.

What follows is a rundown of the new shows: their stars, their premise, and familiar favorites to win viewers' hearts their chance of survival.

Sunday

Only two networks, NBC and the WB, have scheduled new shows on Sunday, as ABC, CBS, and FOX already have strong lineups in place. NBC offers "Ed" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.), a drama focusing on a New York attorney who loses his job, leaves a cheating wife, and moves to his quirky Mid-western hometown to open a bowling alley. Though the characters are relatively unknown, the combination of eccentric characters could make for a tough competition from "Touch Me by an Angel" and "The Simpsons."

At 9 p.m., the WB presents "Hype," an improvisation-sketch comedy show that is a cross between "MadTV" and "Whose Line Is It Anyway?"

Monday

The prolific David Kelley ("The Practice," "Ally McBeal") has created yet another new show set in Bean Town, "Boston Public" (8 p.m.). Although set in a high school, the FOX show focuses on the drama of teachers for a change. Consider it everything you never wanted to know about the teachers and everything you never wanted to know about what your history and English teachers were doing together.

If the teachers are just too much too handle, switch over to CBS at 8:30 p.m. and watch the funny ladies on "Yent Liar," a sitcom about two sisters with different styles of raising their respective families. Although the show is supposed to be about the sisters, it is their husbands — funnyman Anthony Clark ("Boston Common") and Mike O'Malley ("The Mike O'Malley Show") — who will likely steal the spotlight.

If hard-nosed, gritty drama is what you're looking for, the WB's "Hard-Nosed," a cop show will center on the bed-hopping, backstabbing shenanigans of obscenely good looking and wealthy individuals.

On FOX, John Goodman stars in his familiar image as Roseanne's husband, Dan Conner, to portray a guy on "Norm." "Norm" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.). The show has suffered major production problems — having to reschedule and reshoot its pilot — but with a great guest cast like Mykelti Williamson, the show still has a chance of survival.

After "Norm," FOX airs "News" (9 p.m. - 9:30 p.m.), a sitcom produced by David Letterman's Worldwide Pants production company about an Indiana weatherman's transition to life in the Big Apple. Aaron Spelling brings to NBC his latest campy, night-time soap opera "Titans" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.). Like the '60s classic of the same name, the show will center on the bed-hopping, backstabbing shenanigans of obscenely good looking and wealthy individuals.

On ABC, John Goodman stars in his familiar image as Roseanne's husband, Dan Conner, to portray a guy on "Norm." "Norm" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.). The show has suffered major production problems — having to reschedule and reshoot its pilot — but with a great guest cast like Mykelti Williamson, the show still has a chance of survival.

Following "Norm" on FOX is "The Street" (9 p.m. - 10 p.m.), a drama focusing on a group of young and attractive stock traders on Wall Street. "The Street" offers an interesting premise on its show "Bell," but my guess is nobody will watch either.

Finally on Wednesday, ABC offers "Gideon's Crossing" (9 p.m. - 10 p.m.) a Cold War drama starring Andre Braugher ("Homicide") as an oncall oncologist who uses unconventional methods to help patients when traditional treatments fail. With "Chicago Hope" off the air, "ER" aging rapidly (not to mention missing George Clooney), Gideon can hopefully fill the hospital drama void.

Tuesday

Aaron Spelling brings to NBC "It's a Bitch," a drama set on the WCW wrestling scene. Jerry O'Connell stars as the WCW wrestling scene. Jerry O'Connell stars as a computer genius solving unusual, cyber-related mysteries in "Freakylinks" (9 p.m. - 9:30 p.m.). This show has a strong lineups in place. As the WB presents "The Fugitive." In case you missed the original series on the WB, the show will center on the family." C.S.I." (9 p.m. - 10 p.m.), a gritty crime-solving drama about forensic experts in Las Vegas.

On FOX, Ethan Embry ("Can't Hardly Wait") stars as a computer genius who is on the Internet (www.freakylinks.com). For those who always thought "Beverly Hills, 90210" was really a comedy, the WB presents "Grose Pointe" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.). The show offers an interesting premise on its show "Bell," but my guess is nobody will watch either.

Wednesday

Finally, FOX broadcasts "Girlfriends" (8 p.m. - 8:30 p.m.), the WB's many female pinup stars, Nikki Cox ("Unhappily Ever After"), as a Las Vegas showgirl who marries a professional wrestler. Uh, no comment.

Friday

Jerry O'Connell stars as the hunky detective, a la Peter Falk's "Pink Panther" character. Unfortunately, early reviews have not been positive and word has it that Jerry himself gave the pilot a thumbs-down.

Also on NBC "WB's" (9:30 p.m. - 10 p.m.), starring David Alan Grier ("In Living Color") as a secret service agent devoted to the position of guarding the first lady, played by Delta Burke.

Switching channels, viewers will find Oscar winner Geena Davis on her own ABC sitcom, appropriately titled "Geena" (9:30 p.m. - 10 p.m.). She plays a career-oriented woman who marries a man with two children and must learn to be an instant-mom.

Finally, FOX offers an alternative to all these comedies with James Cameron's "Dark Angel" (9 p.m.), a sci-fi drama about a girl who uses her superpowers to fight a post-apocalyptic world from military bad guys. With Cameron as producer, the cinematography and special effects will likely impress audiences, but it sounds like a "Buffy" rip-off, only without the cute costumes and witty dialogue.

Thursday

Aaron Spelling brings to NBC his latest campy, night-time soap opera "Tits," a story of an advertising executive who, in a lark, uses stage names. "Tits" offers the promise of a soap opera that is unlike any other.

On FOX, Ethan Embry ("Can't Hardly Wait") stars as a computer genius who is on the Internet (www.freakylinks.com). For those who always thought "Beverly Hills, 90210" was really a comedy, the WB presents "Grose Pointe" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.). The show offers an interesting premise on its show "Bell," but my guess is nobody will watch either.

At 8 p.m. on CBS, the other "Wings" brother, Tim Daly, stars in "The Fugitive." In case you missed the original series on the WB, the show will center on the family." C.S.I." (9 p.m. - 10 p.m.), a gritty crime-solving drama about forensic experts in Las Vegas.

On FOX, Ethan Embry ("Can't Hardly Wait") stars as a computer genius who is on the Internet (www.freakylinks.com). For those who always thought "Beverly Hills, 90210" was really a comedy, the WB presents "Grose Pointe" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.). The show offers an interesting premise on its show "Bell," but my guess is nobody will watch either.

Saturday

Receiving a Saturday night time slot usually means it is the least watched TV night of the week. Only two new shows will be premiering, both on CBS.

"That's Life" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.) focuses on Lydia De Lucca (played by Heather Paige Kent), a 36-something New Jersey girl who decides to go back to college after dumping her fiancé. Saturday night on "The District" (10 p.m. - 11 p.m.), everyone's favorite "Coach" (Craig T. Nelson (not Bob Davie!) returns to television as the new police commissioner cracking down on corruption in the nation's capital.

Most of the new fall series will premiere in early October. All show times above are given in local listings. For those who always thought "Beverly Hills, 90210" was really a comedy, the WB presents "Grose Pointe" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.). The show offers an interesting premise on its show "Bell," but my guess is nobody will watch either.

Saturday

Receiving a Saturday night time slot usually means it is the least watched TV night of the week. Only two new shows will be premiering, both on CBS.

"That's Life" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.) focuses on Lydia De Lucca (played by Heather Paige Kent), a 36-something New Jersey girl who decides to go back to college after dumping her fiancé. Saturday night on "The District" (10 p.m. - 11 p.m.), everyone's favorite "Coach" (Craig T. Nelson (not Bob Davie!) returns to television as the new police commissioner cracking down on corruption in the nation's capital.

Most of the new fall series will premiere in early October. All show times above are given in local listings. For those who always thought "Beverly Hills, 90210" was really a comedy, the WB presents "Grose Pointe" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.). The show offers an interesting premise on its show "Bell," but my guess is nobody will watch either.

Saturday

Receiving a Saturday night time slot usually means it is the least watched TV night of the week. Only two new shows will be premiering, both on CBS.

"That's Life" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.) focuses on Lydia De Lucca (played by Heather Paige Kent), a 36-something New Jersey girl who decides to go back to college after dumping her fiancé. Saturday night on "The District" (10 p.m. - 11 p.m.), everyone's favorite "Coach" (Craig T. Nelson (not Bob Davie!) returns to television as the new police commissioner cracking down on corruption in the nation's capital.

Most of the new fall series will premiere in early October. All show times above are given in local listings. For those who always thought "Beverly Hills, 90210" was really a comedy, the WB presents "Grose Pointe" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.). The show offers an interesting premise on its show "Bell," but my guess is nobody will watch either.

Saturday

Receiving a Saturday night time slot usually means it is the least watched TV night of the week. Only two new shows will be premiering, both on CBS.

"That's Life" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.) focuses on Lydia De Lucca (played by Heather Paige Kent), a 36-something New Jersey girl who decides to go back to college after dumping her fiancé. Saturday night on "The District" (10 p.m. - 11 p.m.), everyone's favorite "Coach" (Craig T. Nelson (not Bob Davie!) returns to television as the new police commissioner cracking down on corruption in the nation's capital.

Most of the new fall series will premiere in early October. All show times above are given in local listings. For those who always thought "Beverly Hills, 90210" was really a comedy, the WB presents "Grose Pointe" (8 p.m. - 9 p.m.). The show offers an interesting premise on its show "Bell," but my guess is nobody will watch either.
Major League Baseball

Stein hands in stellar performance in Royals win

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. After missing the first half of the season, Blake Stein is making up for lost time.

Stein, a South Florida State College pitcher and Kansas City Royals right-hander called his performance in Tuesday night's 5-1 win over Anaheim one of his strongest ever.

"That's the best command I've had of all three pitches in my entire career," he said.

I was throwing fastballs for strikes, breaking balls for strikes and changeups for strikes — and pretty much doing it in whatever count I wanted to," he said.

Stein (7-4) was sidlined from April through June by a broken right forearm. He's 6-1 in his last 10 starts.

He struck out three and struck out a season-high eight in eight innings. He walked three batters in the first three innings but only one more after that and lowered his ERA from 5.24 to 4.89.

Mike Sweeney extended a team record with his 136th RBI and closed within two of the 200 hit plateau. Sweeney, Joe Randa and Carlos Beltran hit RBI singles in a three-run fifth inning for Kansas City, which avoided dropping to a season-worst 4 1/2 games behind.

Sweeney scored his 100th run of the season. Randa's single, Beltran's three-run hit off Mike Hampton with two on is the most by a Royals player in a game since 1997.

"I don't think you have to tip your hat to Stein," Angels manager Mike Scioscia said. "He pitched a terrific ballgame, particularly later in the game. It's the first time he started using his off-speed pitches behind in the count. He kept us off-balance.

Sweeney is trying to become the fifth Kansas City player to record 200 or more hits for the season. Teammate Johnny Damon has 187, Carlos Beltran 201; the Royals have never had two players in it season.

Mariners 5, Devil Rays 2

Mike Cameron homered, tripled and drove in two runs as the Seattle Mariners won for just the third time in 14 tries this season.

The Devil Rays' loss means they're 3 1/2 games behind the New York Yankees in the AL East.

Seattle began the day with a 2 1/2-game lead in the AL East over Oakland, which played a doubleheader at Baltimore.

The Mariners marked the longest winning streak of the year for the Devil Rays (0-7 since May 12-9) allowed two runs on five hits in 6-2-3-2 innings, scoring his third home run of the season.

''I've been getting big ones in key situations,'' Cameron said.

Tampa Bay Devil Rays

First baseman John Olerud homered leading off the ninth and Antonio Alfonseca relieved with one out as Tampa Bay defeated defending league-leading 42nd save in 46 career attempts.

---

Schools

- Los T & Fou ND
- NO FOOTBALL
- OFFICE
- 289-9280
- THANK
- WANTED
- DINING
- SOUTH SIDE OF EDISON ROAD.
Tennis

Turango wins straight sets in debut to advance

SYDNEY, Australia

Jeff Tarango won his Olympic debut at age 31 to assure the U.S. tennis team of having at least one player in the second round of men's singles.

Tarango beat 17-year-old wildcard Diego Camacho of Bolivia 6-0, 6-1 on Wednesday (Tuesday night EDT).

"It was a tough match emotionally for me," Tarango said. "It's been a long time coming, me getting to play this type of match. The first six or seven games I felt like I was swinging as hard as I could and the ball was hardly going anywhere."

Two Americans, Todd Martin and Vinne Spades, lost first-round matches Tuesday. The other U.S. entrant in men's singles, Michael Chang, played later Wednesday.

Top-seeded Lindsay Davenport, the 1996 gold medalist in women's singles, won her opening match against Paolo Suarez of Argentina 6-2, 6-2. That made the U.S. women 3-0, with No. 2 seeded Venus Williams and No. 3 Monica Seles winning Tuesday.

"The competition is very strong here, mostly from my teammates," Davenport said. "Obviously, we would like to sweep the medals. We think we have a good chance to do that."

Tenth-seeded Russian Elena Dementieva, a semifinalist at the U.S. Open earlier this month, was eliminated by wildcard Miroslava Vavrince of Switzerland 6-1, 6-1. In men's play, No. 7 Tim Henman of England lost to Karol Kucera of Slovakia 6-3, 6-2.

Tarango became the oldest man to compete for the United States in Olympic tennis since Titanic survivor Richard Norris Williams, who played in the 1924 Games at age 32. Williams was no relation to the Richard Williams who is Venus' father.

Despite early jitters, Tarango had little trouble with young Camacho, who weighs just 136 pounds and has no professional ranking. "He's just not strong enough or ready for this level yet," Tarango said. "But in the future he could be a good player or."

Tarango swept the first 10 games and completed the victory in 49 minutes.

Swimming

Heyns falters in preliminaries

SYDNEY, Australia

Penny Heyns, who set a remarkable 10 world breaststroke records in a two-month span last year, couldn't maintain her momentum in the Olympic pool.

Heyns won't get a chance to defend her 1996 gold medal after finishing 20th in the 200-meter breaststroke preliminaries Wednesday (Tuesday night EDT). She swam 2 minutes, 30.17 seconds — about 6 1/2 seconds off her 1999 world record — and didn't even make the semis.

"I feel a real pain about it," the 25-year-old South African said. "You never know how you're going to handle setbacks or disappointment until you get there, and it's pretty neat experience."

Heyns won golds in the 100 and 200 breaststrokes at the Atlanta Olympics, becoming a hero in her homeland. She was the first South African in 44 years to win an Olympic medal after decades of isolation because of apartheid.

She came to Sydney as the favorite in the breaststroke events. She'll most cherish the bronze medal she won in the 100 Monday.

"I wanted to go out there, enjoy the ready room, enjoy the crowd, enjoy my fellow competitors and what swimming offers you," she said. "So often we're so focused on the gold medal or the world records or our personal swims that we miss out on everything else."

Heyns swam in the same preliminary heat as Agnes Kovacs of Hungary, who broke Heyns' Olympic record from Atlanta. Heyns lost to Megan Quann in the 100 breaststroke final. But she left an indelible impression on the 16-year-old American.

"She has pushed me so hard," Quann said. "When I swim in practice, it's her I see in my mind. I just keep seeing her world record time.

Heyns will leave Sydney with her world marks in the breaststrokes intact. They were part of her 10-records-in-two-months streak last year.

"I think it'll be hard for anyone to ever do that," she said. "I feel at peace about my career. I feel like I've done everything I wanted to do and way more than I ever expected." Heyns may go into missionary work as a way to define her life by something more than medals and world records.
GYMNASTICS

Americans fall just short of podium with fourth-place finish

Associated Press

The six sprite-sized Americans were sitting as close as piano keys on the edge of the arena floor tonight, telepathically willing each other to succeed with a spirited effort in the women's Olympic team final. The competition for the defending gold medalists was over. All they had left was the hope for an opening that would usher them onto the podium for a bronze medal—the perfect cure for the team's dysfunctional state.

But as soon as the Chinese revealed a steel-belted focus on the vault, the moment the Russian Yelena Zamolodchikova blew the tip of her finger like a slick-shot to punctuate her spectacular floor routine, the American optimism was slowly nudged by the reality of an undesirable fourth-place finish. The USA Gymnastics plan had officially failed.

To prevent the plunge of the United States women's program, to stop the embarrassing decay that was so evident at the 1996 Games, something had to be changed. And that was exactly what happened last night by the USA Gymnastics president, Bob Colarossi, to whip up a medal. But tonight, while the dominant Romanians, easy winners with 154.608 points, were being draped with gold in the Super Dome, while the Russians (154.401) touched the silver medallions and the Chinese (154.008) cherished their bronze reward, the United States team members were venting their frustrations backstage.

They were just 1.075 points behind the Chinese at 152.933, but that was the difference between harmony and discord among the Americans. That was the difference between celebrating Karolyi's impact as national team coordinator and railing against it. Belsa should not have had so much control," said Jamie Dantzer, who scored a 9.712 on the floor exercise.

"The personal coaches were given no credit. He gets so much credit when we do things right, but everyone else gets blamed when things go wrong," said Steve Byrücki, the assistant USA coach.

"There were a number of girls on this team that he didn't make a connection with," said Byrücki.

One of Byrücki's gymnasts, Dantzer, was Exhibit 1. She resented the treatment she received from Karolyi after she rolled her ankle last week. Tonight, Dantzer said she had been ignored by Karolyi, who openly criticized her for being inconsistent in qualifying. "It's so not fair," Dantzer said, "I wasn't treated as a person." Some of the gymnasts supported Karolyi, at least to an extent. Two of the remaining members of the Magnificent Seven — Amy Chow and Dominique Dawes — were in Atlanta to feel the power of Karolyi's persuasiveness up close on the floor. Chow and Dawes praised Karolyi for being a motivator, but Dawes wondered if his faith in her had waned over the years. If so, she wanted to prove him wrong in her final competition. Dawes helped give the United States a chance to medal tonight by scoring a 9.7 in the team's best event of the night; the uneven bars. After the team scraped by on the treacherous balance beam—with no dazzling scores, but no disastrous falls, either—the Americans ended their night on the floor exercise.

"We had hope," said Kristin Maloney, who scored a 9.737 on the floor, and was part of a great last effort by the United States. "We knew we were still alive. Then, we had to watch and wait."
SYDNEY, Australia

A Bulgarian weightlifter was stripped of his silver medal and a hammer thrower from Belarus was kicked out of the Sydney Olympics in the first positive doping cases of the games.

The International Olympic Committee said Wednesday (Tuesday night EDT) that it has taken away the silver in the 56-kilogram (123-pound) weightlifting class from Ivanov, who tested positive for furomamide, a diuretic.

Ivanov, a gold medalist at the 1992 Barcelona Olympics and former four-time world champion, kissed his barbell after he had clinched the medal Saturday, the first full day of competition.

The other banned athlete was Vadim Devyatovsky, a hammer thrower from Belarus, who tested positive for components of the banned steroid nandrolone in an out-of-competition sample on Sept. 12 in the athletes' village. IOC medical commission chairman Prince Alexandre de Merode said the expulsions were ordered on the basis of positive results of the "A" samples. In the past, no sanctions were taken until after the backup "B" sample was tested.

The Bulgarian and Belarussian teams have both asked for the "B" sample to be analyzed.

IOC director general Franco Carrard said Ivanov had already left the Olympic village. Devyatovsky had been scheduled to start competing Saturday.

With Ivanov stripped of the weightlifting silver, the standings were revised. The original third-place finisher, Wu Wenxiong of China, moved up to take the silver, while China's Zhang Xiangxiang was elevated from fourth place to the bronze.

Carrard said officials are considering arranging a new medal ceremony.

Ivanov, 29, was the Olympic champion at 114 1/2 pounds in 1992 in Barcelona. He won gold at the world championships in 1989, '90, '91 and '93.

Devyatovsky, 23, finished second in the hammer at the junior world championships in 1996. This season, he has improved his performance from 2.5 feet-10 1/2 inches to 266-11.

The IOC tests were the first drug positives from the games themselves but only the latest in a slew of doping cases announced in Sydney, where more drug tests will be conducted than ever before.

De Merode said 13 athletes have been suspended for failing tests prior and during the games so far.

On Tuesday night, Alexander Bagach of Ukraine, the 1999 world indoor shot put champion and 1996 Olympic bronze medalist, was suspended by international track officials for testing positive for steroids for a third time.

Simon Kibot, a member of the Kenyan 1,600-meter relay team, also was suspended for testing positive for steroids.

Neither will be allowed to compete in Sydney.

The ruling council of the International Amateur Athletic Federation announced those suspensions after an eight-hour meeting.

The World Anti-Doping Agency, a new international arm of Olympic sports designed to conduct uniform out-of-competition testing, also reported a positive steroid test to Nigerian 1,000-meter runner Dupe Osime.

She was among 45 Nigerian athletes initially chosen for the country's provisional Olympic team but was not among the 30 brought to Sydney.

Weightlifting has been filled with pre-games cases. The International Weightlifting Federation kicked out the seven-member Romanian team Sunday because three lifters — including two on the Olympic team — had failed drug tests this year.

But the federation lifted the ban on the five "clean" lifters the next day after the Romanian Olympic Committee agreed to pay $50,000 fine. Such a waiver is included in the WIF's rules.

The decision led to widespread confusion, with the IOC medical director declaring at one point that Romania couldn't buy its way back later, after a frantic round of phone calls and meetings, the reinstatement was accepted.

WADA tests have found at least nine suspected positives out of 20 "elevated" results since last April.

Most ND Students Make Healthy Choices

When ND students choose to drink, men have 5 or fewer drinks per evening; women have 3 or fewer.

1 drink = 1/2 oz pure alcohol which is approximately

10 oz 5% beer * 4 oz 12% wine * 1 oz 100 proof liquor

Want to make a few extra bucks? Come work for Observer Sports!!! Call 631-4543
Meyers steps into leading role for Belles on court

By CECLA OLEK
Sports Writer

Angela Meyers has come a long way since she began copying her sisters' participation in volleyball in fifth grade.

"I had two older sisters who played, so I would follow them around and was always the little tag-along," she said.

Now a junior at Saint Mary's, Meyers is a long way from the days she used to look up to her sisters. Leading a young Belles team hungry for wins, co-captain Meyers now finds the younger members of the team looking up to her.

Meyers has made it a personal priority to guide the younger girls on her team.

"This season, I just want to be a leader on the court, get everyone going, and really be there for the younger girls," Meyers said.

Struggling to break out of the 0-9 rut the team finds themselves in at the beginning of the season, as co-captain, it's critical for Meyers to keep a positive outlook. The 0-9 start, while tough on paper, isn't a true reflection of the team, Meyers said.

"We are very young this year, but we're learning to play as a team," Meyers said. "There's a lot of heart and desire. Our attitudes are what are going to get us by."

Leading on and off the court, Meyers specialties lie as an outside hitter and in defense, leading the Belles defensive core.

"Angela is Division I caliber on defense," said coach Julie Schrueader-Biek. "She digs everything. I have officials throwing out compliments about her at our games. Her digs are just unbelievable."

Senior co-captain Victoria Butcko believes that Meyers' presence and leadership on the team keeps the team motivated.

"Every team has a spark and she's the spark in our team," Butcko said. "We count on her so much."

The coach thinks so, too. "Angela is a godsend on this team," Schrueader-Biek said. "She is our glue. I've only coached her one year, but I feel very honored to have inherited her."

Meyers echoes the sentiment about her coach.

"She is the best coach I've ever had. I've never wanted to win more for a coach than I do for her."

Meyers said that some of the most enjoyable moments of her season are the long bus rides to away games that provide the opportunity to get to know the girls on her team.

"I always want to win, but I play because I like being on the court and playing with the girls," Meyers continued. "It's a really nice way to get away from school pressures."

Defender Angela Meyers hits the ball over the net in Saint Mary's loss to Kalamazoo. As co-captain of the 2000 squad, the junior has become a role model for younger players.

---

FOOTBALL
HEAVEN DAY
AT BW-3

Come Watch
NOTRE DAME vs. Michigan State!

Lots of Prizes Including a Gas Grill,
3 Pair of Notre Dame Tickets!
$.25 Wings during the game!
"WASSSSSAPP" CONTEST!
WING EATING CONTEST!

BW-3, 123 W. WASHINGTON, DOWNTOWN South Bend
ROWING

U.S. Men’s 8 team fails to live up to expectations

Associated Press

“Things aren’t going so well for the U.S. men’s eight crew that was supposed to revive an American gold-medal tradition. Although the three-time defending world champions were supposed to revive an American gold-medal tradition.”

Wednesday, September 20, 2000

American gold-medal tradition.

Although the three-time defending world champions won a qualifying heat Wednesday (Tuesday night) 2-1/2 hours before the race against the three-time Olympians from Australia, the U.S. was second in a first-round race. They did so by a miniature margin.

Wednesday, September 20, 2000

American gold-medal tradition.

The United States, the only country to qualify in all 11 events, has yet to lose a boat through two rounds of qualifying.

The men’s eight came to Sydney favored to end a 36-year Olympic championship drought and armed with advice and inspiration from their golden predecessors of 1964. The wait for another victory has been especially long for a country that won 11 of the first 14 Olympic titles, including eight straight from 1920-56.

Now, there’s the chance the men’s eight could be shut out of a medal for the third straight time, which has never happened.

“We have some things to figure out,” said Pete Cipollone, U.S. men’s crew member. “Today came down to pulling — a street fight. We’ve got to be a little smarter next time.”

The women’s eight won its heat and the women’s quadruple sculls finished second in another, sending both to the finals. A second-place finish for the men’s lightweight double sculls advanced it to a semifinal on Friday.

Now, there’s the chance the men’s eight could be shut out of a medal for the third straight time, which has never happened.

“The men’s eight could be shut out of a medal for the third straight time, which has never happened. We have some things to figure out,” said Pete Cipollone, U.S. men’s crew member. “Today came down to pulling — a street fight. We’ve got to be a little smarter next time.”

The women’s eight was proud of how they bounced back from a second-place finish in their qualifying heat Monday.

“It was actually a big difference today,” said Linda Miller of San Diego. “We approached the race a lot more aggressively. Our goal was to really attack the first 1.000 and control the race, and that’s what we did. We’re ready for Sunday.”

The men have until then to work out their kinks.

They’ve already tried minor adjustments like moving from the athlete’s village to a quieter, warmer hotel that’s an hour closer to the venue. They’re considering the major change of moving guys around the boat.

Another option is calling some of their friends from ’64 and seeing if they have any ideas.

The relationship between the past and the present was Teti’s idea. “I have the same club that spawned the men’s eight straight from 1964, the oldest of seven living members of that squad, the oldest of whom was born six months before the ’64 team’s golden predecessor.”

One or two at a time, the seven living members of that crew plus their coach, Al Rosenberg, have passed on advice and inspiration to the 2000 team. Rosenberg even climbed into the boat, sat and got on the water with them.

“We have a ton of reverence for them,” said coxswain Pete Cipollone. “We have some two- and three-time Olympians here who don’t have any medals, so they recognize how difficult it is to win.

“When those guys came in, everyone was like, ‘Wow! Impart your wisdom on us. Go ahead and tell us anything you want.’

Little of their talks had anything to do with stroking oars. It was mostly reliving the glory days.

“If you’re an elementary school basketball player, wouldn’t it be great to sit down with Michael Jordan and pick his brain a little bit? I think it was the same situation with these guys,” Teti said.

For Cipollone, it was the chance to ask the questions he never asked the late Bill Knecht, a ’64 crew member who rowed at the same club in southern New Jersey as Cipollone’s father.

“As a young boy I always wanted to ask him what it was like. I was too much in awe of the guy to actually bring up the subject,” Cipollone said. “Now I want to dedicate my performance to Bill Knecht.”
Football

Davie wants road win to build more team confidence

By BRIAN BURKE
Sports Writer '98 (a 45-23 loss). It didn't matter if we played that game out here on that practice field," Davie said. "When you have a punt blocked early in the game, when you throw interceptions for touchdowns, and when you give up big plays on defense, it doesn't matter if that game's in your back yard when you play like that. Once again, it's all about the preparation. I think we're a more mature football team, but we'll find out.

The Fighting Irish will need every ounce of maturity they can muster. Their schedule is currently rated the most difficult by the NCAA, and for the first time in Notre Dame history, they will open the season with four consecutive opponents that were all ranked at the time of the contest.

Among the most pressing issues for Davie will be containing State's monster tailback T.J. Duckett. Only a sophomore, Duckett has averaged an incredible 211 yards rushing and 7.2 yards per carry in his first two games this season. "I think he's a guy you've got to stop him before he gets started. When he gets heading north and south and just takes it on a straight line, he's a heck of a player," Davie said. "So it's trying to hit him, trying to knock that ball out of there, trying not to give up the big play, and stay in your gaps. I think that's probably the single biggest thing. With him he's real patient. When he finds the gap, he just hits it.

On the other side of the ball Davie addressed the need to give second time starting quarterback Gary Godsey more opportunities to move the ball. Last week Purdue was able to shut down Notre Dame's backfield because of a conservative game plan. Against Michigan State, Davie plans to diversify the offense in such a way that more is placed on the shoulders of his young signal caller. "I give Purdue credit because they did line up and show one thing and then just didn't do really a good job with our snap count of being in something different when the ball was snapped. So it is not like we were overly simple with Gary," Davie said. "But also, I give Michigan State credit. They have good coaches and good players. They are going to do the same thing. We have got to have more latitude in what we are doing. We have got to do some things differently to allow us to have a chance to run the football." The biggest factor, however, might be avoiding the type of avalanche early that Notre Dame faced two years ago in East Lansing.

More than just scoring out here in this stadium is one thing. Playing up there is another thing. That is why I am still in a wait-and-see attitude.

"Playing out here in this stadium is one thing. Playing up there is another thing. That is why I am still in a wait-and-see attitude." - Bob Davie

Irish head coach

Sophomore quarterback Gary Godsey leads the Irish offense in Notre Dame's 23-21 win over Purdue Saturday. The Irish will face their first road test this weekend when they travel to east Lansing to take on Michigan State.

Full Time and Summer Career Opportunities in Engineering, Finance & Accounting, Information Technology, Manufacturing, Marketing & Market Research, Product Development, and more!

P&G markets more than 300 brands in business units including: Beauty Care, Health Care, and Corporate Ventures, Food and Beverage, Fabric & Home Care, Baby Care and Feminine Care, and Tissue Towels, to nearly five billion consumers in 140 countries.

For more information on the wide variety of opportunities and Product Development

Careers in: Engineering, Manufacturing, Information Technology, and Product Development

Monday, 9/18 - Industry Day Information Session - McKenna Hall (CCB) 100 & 112, 7:30 - 9:30 pm
Wednesday, 9/20 - Industry Day Career Fair - Joyce Center (North Dome) 10 am - 4 pm

Careers in: Finance & Accounting, Marketing & Market Research, and Information Technology

Thursday, 9/21 - Mendoza College of Business Career Fair - COBA, 6 - 8:30 pm
Friday, 9/22 - Mendoza College of Business Career Fair - 10 am - 3 pm

Please bring copies of your resume!

To Apply, visit us at: www.pg.com/careers/applynow AND be sure to sign up on GOIRISH!

PA&G

Supported by Career and Placement
WOMEN’S SOCCER

Belles plan to get season back on track against Spartans

By SARAH KRYKOWSKI

The Saint Mary’s soccer Belles are looking to turn around a season slowly slipping from their grips.

After three losses in a row and a tie at Olivet, the 2-3-1 Belles face the Spartans of Manchester today, and the players are bound and determined to come away with the victory.

“I just feel like we’re on a roll,” Belles sophomore Shawna Diamont said. “We’re totally psyched for the season.”

It certainly doesn’t hurt that the Belles shut out the Spartans 2-0 in 1999, their second year of varsity play. Nor does it hurt that this season.

Spartans finished 3-15-1, to the Belles record of 9-6-2 overall.

“I think us beating them last year is great and gives us an edge,” Jessica Klink, Belles co-captain, said. “That just makes us want to play harder because they’ll be coming out wanting to win.”

The Belles will have the advantage of a full roster on their side for the first time this season. Veterans Heather Muth and Adrian Kirby return to the lineup, and freshman Wendy Irwin enters a collegiate game for the first time after sustaining a stress fracture in preseason practice.

On the Spartans’ side, they are 1-5 under new coach Scott Stan, with losses to Ferris State, Alma, Bethel, Adrian, and Rose-Hulman, picking up their only victory against Thomas More.

Klink was a four-year starter at Trinity Christian College, and is the school’s all-time leading scorer with 86 career goals.

In the 8-1 defeat of Thomas More, sophomore Heather Zawadski had a hat trick, while freshman Nichole Conner and senior Sarah Thomas finished with two goals each. Rachel Stein, a junior on the Spartans, finished with one goal and two assists. Sophomore goalie Laurie Veltiner recorded eight saves.

But Saint Mary’s has talent enough to stretch its winning streak against Manchester to two.

Stephanie Artink, the dynamic freshman midfielder, leads the Belles with two goals, both scored on penalty kicks. Artink is tied for first place in the MIAA for goals. Heather Math sits at sixth in the MIAA with her points in the home opener against Alma. Freshman Kristin Greenwood is tied for third for assists in MIAA games.

“Definitely our goal is to be more offensive,” Klink said. “We need to get our shots in.”

After blazing a trail to victory against Alma, Saint Mary’s struggled, both offensively and defensively, but since its loss to Olivet, its confidence has returned full force.

“Our confidence returned last week,” Klink said. “We’ve been very defensive lately.”

The Belles face Manchester in a home match at 5 p.m.
Clary continued from page 28
dure used to identify potential problems. On June 23, a Friday night, John went to Strong Memorial for an MRI.

The next day, Kevin dropped his family off at their house after one of John's seventh grade baseball games. He was on his way to pick up a piece of fresh post to mount a satellite dish at a local hardware store when his car phone rang.

"My wife called and said there was a message on our answering machine from John's doctor," Kevin recalled. "He said John has a brain tumor.

Surviving the worst

When John came home that January afternoon, he was preparing for an outing with his Boy Scout troop. Moments later, his mother went upstairs and told her son the neurologist had called. It was like, "I want to go to this function," John said. "Then, said, 'Damn it. not now.'"

Starting in March, John had eight weeks of whole brain radiation for which he wore a customized plastic helmet. He went to the hospital every day after school and received 10 minutes of radiation per visit. After the first phase of radiation, John received focused radiation in the right temporal lobe (above his right eye).

In the middle of June, John then began 11 months of intensive chemotherapy, performed in six-week cycles. He alternated medications between pills and injections. Due to the medicine, John lost most of his hair and more than 50 pounds. At his lowest, John weighed only 89 pounds. "I could run my fingers through my hair and a clump (of hair) would be in my hand," John said.

Notre Dame offers reprieve

Following the first visit to Strong Hospital in January, one of Kevin's friends, Gary Hatton, contacted the Notre Dame football office and requested an autographed piece of Notre Dame football. David obliged and continued to stay in contact with the Clarys over the next few months.

Meanwhile, in the late summer, Kevin found out he and his son would be going to the Oct. 3 game against Stanford. So Kevin wrote a letter to Davie and asked if he could stop by the office and say thank you for the support Davie had shown during his son's ordeal. "At the time, I thought that may have been our last trip (to Notre Dame)," said Kevin, who did not attend Notre Dame. "It wasn't looking good for John. So we said if the trip as a goals to look forward to. We wanted to think about the future instead of dwelling on John's condition.

The day before the game, Kevin and John went to Davie's office, where the coach gave John an autographed football and a Notre Dame hat. "We figured we'd be out of there in five minutes," Kevin said. They were wrong. The day had just begun.

Davie then told the Clarys to report to Gate 1 of the stadium where a student manager would give them a tour of the field, the locker room and the press box. After they finished, Jay Sawvel, a graduate assistant coach, invited the Clarys into a conference room where the team was meeting.

"When we walked in, the entire room stood and gave John a standing ovation," Kevin said. "It was one of the more emotion moments of our life." The captains from the 1998 team, Bobbie Howard, Kory Minor and Mike Rosenblad, presented John with more Notre Dame paraphernalia, including a jacket.

Following the meeting, Davie arranged for the Clarys to have dinner with the team in the Joyce Center before that night's pep rally. "I was sitting at the table with the players and I was like, 'What the heck am I doing here,'" John said. "It was touching." They sat in the third row near the center at the pep rally then went back to their hotel room.

The next afternoon, the Irish beat the Cardinals 35-17 and improved to 3-1 on the season. The score was secondary in the Clarys' minds.

"During the game, I looked at John and said, 'Look at everybody in the stadium,'" Kevin recalled. "How many people had dinner with the team last night?"

John and Kevin returned to the locker room and celebrated with the team. They stood on the side of the room, staring at the visitors.

Following his post-game news conference, Davie walked past the reporters, TV cameras and sports information people. On his way to the locker room, Kevin found Davie standing outside the locker room and said goodbye.

"Coach Davie asked, 'When are you coming back to Notre Dame, Mr. Clary?'" Kevin recalled. "I said, 'As soon as I can. As soon as I can.'" With all the other stuff he's got going on in his life, he still remembered us. Just taking that extra minute for us was amazing.

A guardian angel

Dressed in blue cargo pants, a long-sleeve paisley shirt and a well-worn white Notre Dame hat with a navy blue brim, John sat at table five during last year's Notre Dame-Bay head reception. The Clarys were one of the more emotion moments of our life," Kevin said. "As soon as I can. As soon as I can."

Kevin then told the Clarys about his wife. When she (this) told me, I just broke down," John said. "It's a marathon," Kevin said. "It won't go away easily."

Another well-known Clary's memory of Davie.

Besides fulfilling their Notre Dame dreams, Davie also planned another trip for the Clarys. During their meeting in October 1998, Davie said John was wearing a Green Bay Packers hat and asked if he had ever been to Lambeau Field. "Yes, he has," was the answer.

"I have never seen Davie, Kevin said. "I have never seen Davie, but I have never seen Davie."

So, thanks to Davie, John lived another fantasy. He attended the Packers' game later that month. When Davie found out that, he phoned his friend, current Green Bay head coach Mike Sherman, and told him that Kevin and John would be coming to Wisconsin.

Theirs are people I will never forget," Kevin said. "There are people I will never forget."
Soccer
continued from page 28
Campbellone passed the free kick over the Irish defense to John Schaller, who headed the ball past Irish goalkeeper Greg Tait to pull the Vikings to within one. "That was frustrating," Apple said of the goal. "We talked about it before the game ... our number one goal tonight was a shutout. One set play and one lack of concentration on our part and a moment of forgetting what we need to do on defense and they get in and get a goal."
But that was the last time Cleveland State had a scoring opportunity. "Our defense played a good game overall," said senior co-captain Stephen Maio. "But we made a couple of mental lapses and that’s how they scored. We just lost our focus for that one play."
"Those back four guys — Greg Martin, Stephen Maio, Conner Laffose, and Andy Forster — they cover for us really well," Apple said. "If one of them get beat, there is always another one coming. I wasn’t too concerned except for that one set play."
The Irish outshot the Vikings 17-4. Sophomore Erich Braun led the Irish offensive attack with four shots.
"He’s a huge part of our attack," said Apple.
When Braun wasn’t in the game, the Irish appeared disor­ ganized and didn’t communicate well. "We were a bit casual at times, and that has to be worked on next game," said Apple.
Braun almost scored his first goal of the season in the 79th minute. The talented sophomore fired a shot past Kryger that appeared headed for the net, but Cleveland State defender Ole Christian Haugen kicked the ball away just inches before it entered the goal.
The Irish host Big East foe Seton Hall next on Friday night in their second game of a five­game homestand. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Freshmen make immediate impact

Freshman Justin Deiter didn’t want to ride the pine when he started his colle­ giate soccer career. He wanted to be an impact player from the start. "I don’t like to come in and say ‘Oh, well, I am freshman. I shouldn’t play,’" he said.
"Outside looking in" wanted to make an impact right away. Me and Coach talked during recruiting and he said I could contribute right away. That’s what I wanted to do. I wanted to go some­where I could play and not sit my whole freshman year."
"The Parade All-American from White Lake, Mich. waited no time in making his presence known. Starting his fifth game of the season Tuesday night, the 6-foot-1 midfielder scored the game-winner in Notre Dame’s 2-1 victory against Cleveland State. His first collegiate goal came off a great give-and­go with fellow freshman Chad Riley.
"I got the ball with my back to the goal," Apple said. "I saw him running so I just touched it to him and he finished it."
Riley’s assist gave him four points for the year — good for second on the team.
Riley and Deiter are just two of the six freshmen playing big roles for the Irish early in the season.
"They are very good play­ers. That’s why we brought them here and we are very happy with them," Irish head coach Chris Hope said. "They’re all have existed on national team experience. We knew they were going to be impact players right away."
Tuesday night, Cleveland State felt the Irish fresh­ men’s impact.
Four freshmen started the game for the Irish and five saw significant playing time.
On offense, in the midfield and on defense, the Irish freshmen were constantly making plays. Greg Martin started for the sixth time in an Irish defense that has shut out three teams and held the Vikings to just three shots. Martin also contributed to the Irish offense with two shots. While Martin has been solid defensively, the biggest freshman impact has been on offense. In addition to Deiter’s goal, the freshmen played a role in the first goal as well. On the first goal, Deiter broke free 30 yards out and bounced a shot of the Cleveland State keeper. Riley collected the rebound, dribbled to his left and was fouled hard in the box before he could shoot. Senior Griffin Howard buried the ensuing penalty shot to give the Irish a 1-0 lead.
Freshman Kevin Richards almost picked up a point in his first start as well. Several times the speedy midfielder from Bermuda beat a defender to the ball but his crosses passing just missed their marks.
Of all the talented fresh­ men, Richards might be the fastest. With 22:30 left in the first half, Richards raced past his defender towards a loose ball.
Although the defender had two turns on him and a better angle to the ball, Richards was a step ahead of his defender. He might have had a clear path to the goal had a Cleveland State player tackled him from behind to draw a foul. With every game, the freshmen grow more accus­ tomed to their roles and more comfortable with the collegiate game. Although Richards described the game as "faster and more physical," he seemed to fit into the flow of the game easily.

Dettter said he is adjusting well to the collegiate game as well.
"The first two games of the season I was playing the forward position but the last two games he moved me back to center midfield where I’ve been playing most of my life," said Dettter. "It feels good to get back in there."
Watching the freshmen, it seems though they have a sense for where each other are at all times.
"Riley, Richards and Dettter are always just a touch pass away," said Apple.
This is not a coincidence, according to Riley. Most of the freshmen class have played together for a few years and are close friends.
"The freshman class is really close," he said. "We do a lot of things together. We study together and I have class with almost every one of them. We’ve known each other since we were 16 through the Olympic development pro­gram."
"It’s easy to forget, how­ever, that these talented play­ers are just 18-year-old kids.
They still get fooled by older players and make mental mistakes.
Martin drew a thoughtless yellow card in the 31st minute.
After a Cleveland State player slipped past him toward the ball, Dettter fouled him to stop a break­away. Instead of dropping back on defense, Junior Martin booted the ball up the field and drew a yellow card for delay of game.
With every mistake, how­ever, the freshman learns.
With every success, they gain confidence. Watching them, Apple learned and developed now is certainly exciting. "In two years the Irish Class of 2004 might lead the men’s soccer team through the NCAA tournament then ever before."
The opinions in this col­umn are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.

NBCOLYMICS.COM
A CO-PRODUCER OF NBCOLYMICS.COM © Quokkaports
We Bring good things to life.
www.gecareers.com

“Fighting Irish Special”

Sunday-Monday-Tuesday-Wednesday 5:00 - 7:00 PM
LARGE CHEESE PIZZA $5.55

Notre Dame Saint Mary’s
271-1177 Monday-Thursday 11 am - 1 am
Sunday-Saturday 11 am - 3 am
Sunday Noon - 1 am

The most popular # on campus

What’s more valuable than bronze, silver or gold?

Bragging rights

The Collegiate Olympic Medal Race is on!
Follow the tally with the GE College Medal Tracker, only on NBCOLYMICS.com.

Need to get the word out?

Use The Observer’s free online classifieds.

Check them out at The Observer’s website:
http://observer.nd.edu
SWIMMING

Medal-winner Krayzeburg sets 200-meter backstroke record

Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - American Lenny Krayzeburg, who already has one gold medal at the Sydney Games, set an Olympic record in preliminaries of the 200-meter backstroke.

Krayzeburg, world record-holder in the event, cruised through the heats (Tuesday night EDT) in 1 minute, 58.40 seconds. That broke the record of 1:58.47 set by Spain's Martin Lopez-Zubero right seven years ago.

Krayzeburg is an overwhelming favorite to win the 200 after capturing gold Monday in the 100 backstroke. Spotting his time on the scoreboard, he gave a subtle grin and wave to the crowd, followed by a thumbs-up to the crowd.

"I wasn't thinking about the record," Krayzeburg said. "I just wanted to swim a good race.

The native of Ukraine, who became an American citizen in 1995, should face a tougher challenge from 17-year-old Aaron Peirsol of Irvine, Calif. He was second-fastest in qualifying at 1:59.10, advancing to the 16-man semifinals.

"We bring out the best in each other," Krayzeburg said.

Lenny Thompson, American's most-decorated female gold medalist, qualified third in the 100 freestyle prelims, her final chance to win a gold of her own. It won't be easy with Inge de Bruijn in the field. The world record-holder was top qualifier in the morning prelims at 54.77 seconds.

Dara Torres of Beverly Hills, Calif., who already has an individual bronze medal at these games, was 54.92, followed by Thompson's 55.12.

"It was fine for a morning swim," said Thompson, of Boulder, N.H. "I expect to be faster tonight (in the semis). I'm recovering better than usual.

Thompson was expected to be de Bruijn's top challenger in Sunday's final. Thompson is four times an Olympic medalist and was favored in the 100 freestyle at the 1992 Barcelona Games.

De Bruijn is favored to win her second gold medal in Sydney, having set a world record of 53.80 in the 100 freestyle on May 28. In all, she's the world's record holder in three Olympic events.

"It felt really good. Very nice and smooth," de Bruijn said of her preliminaries swim. "It's going to be a very, very close race. I'm looking forward to it.

de Bruijn and countryman Pieter van den Hoogenband are two of the biggest stars in the pool, quite an accomplishment for a tiny European nation best known for soccer and skating.

Van den Hoogenband has a gold in the men's 200 freestyle and is setting up another Aussie-Yank showdown in the world's premier breaststroke event.

American swimmer Lenny Krayzeburg cruises to an Olympic record in the 200-meter backstroke preliminaries Tuesday.

Sydney Games have drawn to an end without another Australian, a bit brighter for them. The last American individual gold medalist was Stylianos Rosolimo of Greece in the 200 freestyle in 1992.

But all of Thompson's gold medals have come in relays. In addition to a bronze in the 100 butterfly, she was part of the U.S. team that set a world record in the 400 freestyle relay.

"This is going to be one of the toughest races," said Thompson, swimming in her record fourth Olympics after leaving the sport after the 2000 U.S. trials. "I'm going to be 27.83. Beard won silver in the event as a 14-year-old at the Atlanta Games.

"It was easy, probably the easiest 200 I've done this year," Kowal said. "This event is pretty open. Whichever swimmer wins on Wednesday, Sept. 20, 2000

Wednesday, September 20, 2000

SYDNEY 2000

Hamstring injury sidelines Miller for 100 meter sprint

Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) - Marion Jones' quest for five gold medals at the Sydney Games just got a lot easier.

Inger Miller, second to Jones in the 100 and 200-meter races at the U.S. trials and considered one of Jones' chief competitors both events, will miss the 100 and is questionable for the rest of the Games because of an injury.

Miller said Wednesday (Tuesday night EDT) that she strained her left hamstring while training Sept. 7, two days before coming to Sydney. She said she plans to try to run the 200 and the 400-meter relay.

"It's been a difficult decision for me," Miller said. "I have three events, and so in making that decision, I didn't want to jeopardize any other events.

"I'm hoping a few more days will help me heal and I'll be able to run the 200 and the relay.

The first round of the 200 will be Sept. 27.

Miller said she has been training, but hasn't been able to sprint hard.

"I'm disappointed that I am not following my plan, but I've got to go with the flow," she said. "I've got other chances. I think by Wednesday, things will look a little bit brighter for me.

Karen Dennis, head coach for the U.S. women's team, said Miller was seeking medical advice before deciding whether she had a chance of running in Sydney.

"I know there's a possibility that Inger will not run," Dennis said Tuesday night.

The injury to Miller, a silver medalist in the 100 at the 1999 world championships, was the latest blow to a U.S. track team that had already lost two other athletes with strong possibilities of earning medals in Sydney.

J. Hunter, world champion in the shot put and Jones' husband, is out following athroscopic knee surgery. Regina Jacobs, among the favorites in the woman's 1,500, had to withdraw because of a respiratory ailment.

Miller, who won the world championship in the 200 last year after Jones dropped out because of a back injury, has been battling with Jones since the two were in high school in southern California a decade ago.

Miller ranks second in the world to Jones in the 100 and 200, and had been considered one of the biggest roadblocks to Jones sweeping those events.

"Last year when I was very successful in the 100 and 200 meters at the world championships, I did not ask the Lord, 'Why me?' She said. "So I'm not going to ask 'Why me?' now.

Miller, who won the world championship in the 200 last year after Jones dropped out because of a back injury, has been battling with Jones since the two were in high school in southern California a decade ago.

Miller ranks second in the world to Jones in the 100 and 200, and had been considered one of the biggest roadblocks to Jones sweeping those events.

"Last year when I was very successful in the 100 and 200 meters at the world championships, I did not ask the Lord, 'Why me?' She said. "So I'm not going to ask 'Why me?' now.
Visit The Observer on the web at http://observer.nd.edu/
Cancer victim finds strength in meeting with Davie

By TIM CASEY

Amidst the sea of gold, green and blue clad Irish fans seated in the south endzone on Saturday were Kevin Clary and his 15-year old son, John.

They arrived in South Bend from Pavillion, N.Y. on Friday morning, attended the football luncheon that afternoon, heard Rudy speak, visited the Grotto and the Basilica before the game, then sat down in seats 10 and 11 in Section 117, row 17, just prior to kickoff.

Sounds like a typical football weekend. But unlike their counterparts, Kevin and John did not really care if the Irish ran an isolation or a counter on second down. Or if Gary Godsey found an open receiver. Or if Coach Bob Davie inserted Clifford Jefferson into the game.

They were content with just being there.

"There are a lot of people in the stands who spend the entire game criticizing somebody," Kevin said. "I'll turn around and say 'stop.' There's more to it than that. They'll make a critical remark about Coach Davie and I'm like 'Do you know him? Have you met him?'

The Clarys have. And they'll never forget their experience.

Sickness strikes home

John woke up early on May 16, 1997, the day after his 12th birthday. While preparing for the weekend.

"I'll have a seizure," he said.

Then John disappeared. Then John's seizures began.

Kevin and John Clary take a tour of the Notre Dame locker room in October of 1997. Bob Davie and the Irish gave the Clarys a warm welcome to Notre Dame.

Men's Soccer

Irish battle Vikings to 2-1 non-conference win

By ANDREW SOUKUP

Freshman Chad Riley had another strong performance for the Irish and Justin Detter scored the first goal of his collegiate career as Notre Dame men's soccer team defeated Cleveland State 2-1.

"We could have played better, but I'm satisfied with the result," Irish head coach Chris Apple said.

With the non-conference win, the Irish improve to 2-1-1, while the Vikings fall to 1-4-1.

From the beginning of the game, the Irish dominated play with their speed and quickness, but were consistently stymied by the strong wind.

"The wind made a huge difference," Riley said. "In the first half, my passes were floating in the air, the balls coming to me were just stopping in the air. In the second half, we had the wind and we were just running at people."

The Irish finally scored at 53 minutes in the second half. Justin Ratcliffe blasted a shot at Cleveland State goalkeeper James Kryger, who deflected the ball away towards the top of the penalty box. Riley raced to the ball and took two dribbles to his left before a Viking defender tripped him. Senior Griffin Howard fed the ensuing penalty kick past Kryger and into the left corner of the net.

Notre Dame took advantage of a breakdown in the Viking defense to score its second goal only 1:28 later. Detter passed off to Riley, who quickly returned the ball back in to Detter. The freshman faked out a defender, dribbled once to his left, and blasted a shot to the left of Kryger to put Notre Dame up 2-0.

"I played the ball into Chad Riley, and he fed it back to me real quick," Detter said. "Some guy came up on me, so I just pushed it around him. I knew where the goal was and just shot it. Luckily, it went in."

Cleveland State scored its only goal at 62:22. After Irish defender Andreas Forstner was called for tripping, Viking Adam O'Shea scored the goal.

see CLARY/Page 24

see SOCCER/Page 25

EYESI O LACAYOThe Observer

Freshman Justin Detter out jumps a Cleveland defender Tuesday to head a ball in Notre Dame's 2-1 win. With the victory, the Irish improve to 3-2-1 on the season.

SPORTS AT A GLANCE

at Calvin College

Thursday, 7:30 p.m.

at Loyola Marymount

Thursday, 7 p.m.

at ITA National Clay Course

Thursday-Sunday

at Michigan State

Saturday, 3:30 p.m.

Cross Country

National Catholic Invite

Friday, 5 p.m.