Washington students reflect
A year after the attacks, students remember the shock felt in the nation's capital.

Notre Dame, Saint Mary's remembers the lost victims
The memories of loved ones lost on September 11 still burn in the hearts of family members.
American's misunderstand Arab hatred

By MEGHANNE DWENES
Assistant, News Editor

Major news networks broadcasted images of Palestinians reeling in the streets on Sept. 11, leaving many educated Americans asking Why do they hate us?

Scott Appleby, director of the Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies, asked at a Sunday panel discussion on terrorism that the "why" is not representative of the whole of Islam and it was small extremist faction that carried out the terrorist attacks. The geopolitical development of those states is ongoing and understanding the conflicts, said Appleby.

With the Islamic world conspiracy theories abound and facts are distorted, leading many Muslims to perpetuate negative stereotypes. Appleby provided four reasons for why terrorism directly relates at the United States from the Islamic world. The government's relationship with Islam is blurred for Muslims, Appleby said. "I wonder if the United States is the puppet of a Zionist Other Israel is the surrogate of the United States. This hostility stems from the overshadow and repression within the culture. Many Muslims carry a deep sense of humiliation. In several ways the US foreign policy is holistic and the Islamic reign was permitted to be established in this region, democracy would emerge, but the Islamic government is too concerned about its oil, said Appleby. The United States has made Saudi Arabia an ally for strategic and self-interested means, despite its anti-democratic system, said Appleby.

We don't need the oil to heat the homes for the needy poor but for our second homes, yachts and four cars.

Scott Appleby
Professor

With regard to self-interested means, Appleby said that America can be too pragmatic, narrow and shortsighted. Achieving and goalful political will will be necessary for this to be overcome.

Americans are compelled to look at situations and believe that they are the peacekeepers. Father Theodore Usborne, president emeritus, said Tuesday, when there is a disaster the United States and Red Cross will be the scene with manpower and financial aid, but that doesn't mean very small percentage of our gross national product.

In this world of conflict, the United States, as well as the United, is asking who the enemy is. "We are one of the candidates," said Appleby.

Contact Meghanne Downes at mdwonne1@nd.edu.

Sept. 11 classes in popular demand

By JESSICA DALISING
News Writer

In the aftermath of Sept. 11, Notre Dame has added semester-long courses that deal with 9/11 and related to the terrorist attacks.

"The events of Sept. 11 have changed the way we see many issues and have provided us with a real teachable moment," said Renee Tynan, assistant professor of management.

These classes have proved to be popular among students as many of the classes filled up early. The class "Problems of Contemporary Violence: Terrorism, War, and Peace After Sept. 11" filled up immediately when registration opened Sept. 1.

Robert Johansen, director of graduate studies in the Kroc Institute for International Peace Studies, said this class dealt specifically with the global role of the United States along with the meaning of human security and how to achieve it.

"The class helped people to understand that acts of terror are political acts," said Linda Melchor, Notre Dame student. Even the abroad programs courses of offered University of Notre Dame, the London Program offered Democracy in the Age of the Web, dealing with terrorism and the Internet effects American conceptions of security and democracy. A. James McAdams, professor, said, "We will consider threat to national and privacy and democratic liberties (presented by the Web).

Many professors decided to restructure the content and duration of courses to examine issues related to Sept. 11. Heidi Arizzone, assistant professor of American Studies left the final two weeks of her DART War course open to focus on development in the war on terrorism.

I could not get into any of the Sept. 11 classes because they were all filled before my DART time.

Meghan Hahn
Notre Dame student

Contact Jessica Dalising at jdalasing1@nd.edu.

In memorial

NOTRE DAME

Tri-military flag raising ceremony with prayers and the playing of "Taps." Thuggles at Pasquerella Center, 7 a.m.

Rosary prayer service led by Notre Dame students, Grotto, Noon.

Memorial Mass celebrated by Father Edward Maguire, President, Reflecting Pool Hesburgh Library, 5 p.m.

SAINT MARY'S

Memorial prayer service led by Marielis Eldred, Regina Chapel, Noon.

Mass for Peace and Justice, Holy Spirit Chapel, Le Mans Hall, 9:30 p.m.

Thanks for your help.
Threats too close in Washington

By JASON McFARLEY
News Writer

I only had a stay. A week before terrorists slammed a jet liner into the Pentagon, Lauren Berrigan quit her internship at the symbol of America's military might. Berrigan, 21, was studying in the Notre Dame London Program, craved a job with better organization and more direction.

On Sept. 11, 2001, she saw her former office transformed into smoldering rubble, and she instantly regretted ever walking down the block.

"Where I had worked was right close to the damaged area of the building," said Berrigan, now a senior. "It's a little strange to say, but in a lot of ways I felt guilty for not being there and experiencing what the other workers did that day.

Berrigan was one of 19 students studying in Washington last fall when planes hit the Pentagon, topped the twin peaks of the New York skyline and went careening into a smoldering, 11-story office building, said her time in Washington was one of the biggest lessons she's learned. Berrigan's time in Washington ultimately was positive, too. She eventually wanted to work and live in the city.

As a result, many of the students were traumatized by the events that followed in their lives. Many stayed out like the great majority of British citizens, however, did not pose the slightest threat to the safety of American students. In the week following the attacks, flowers, sympathetic notes and candles filled Grosvenor Park, where the U.S. Embassy is located. Throughout London British flags hung at half-mast. And Sept. 14, the third day after the attacks, was declared a national day of mourning throughout the United Kingdom.

Contact Jason McFarley at jmcfarley@nd.edu.

LonDomers felt shock from far out in the ocean

By JAMES GAFFEY
News Writer

Sept. 11, 2001 started out as a typical Tuesday for four Notre Dame students studying abroad in London last semester. It was a day when the students were frantically searching for the first plane when the first plane was hijacked and crashed into the Pentagon.

"LonDomers" were in class at the time; some were wrapping up their work at the Trafalgar Square in the classroom building's library; some were working in their apartments on Edgeware Road; and some, undoubtedly, were sipping pints in a quaint English pub.

They were focusing on adapting to a different culture; the familiarity in America for the sake of personal growth, was something they had left behind for the semester.

But the news of the World Trade Center's collapse struck Notre Dame London students just as deeply as if they were back home. The territonal attacks of Sept. 11 put LonDomers in an awkward position - they felt the shock and pain of having one's own country attacked and yet were strangely removed from it.

Christine Bryant first got word of the attacks while in the computer lab of the London classroom building. The person sitting next to her received an Instant Message from a friend in America and shouted out to everyone in the room. Soon students were frantically attempting to log on to CNN.com to find out more and sharing details as they uncovered them.

"They were focusing on adapting to a different culture; the familiarity in America for the sake of personal growth, was something they had left behind for the semester. But the news of the World Trade Center's collapse struck Notre Dame London students just as deeply as if they were back home. The territorial attacks of Sept. 11 put LonDomers in an awkward position - they felt the shock and pain of having one's own country attacked and yet were strangely removed from it."

"The site was blocked at first because there was so much traffic," said Bryant.

As a result, many of the students in the computer lab filed into the basement of the building to watch the news with dozens of students. They spent all night watching the news, suspension of normalcy.

"One of the biggest lessons I've learned is there are a lot of people who hate us what we stand for. They can either make us feel better by simply attacking us. When we're going, I think most likely we'll keep going," she said.

Contact James Gaffey at iggaf@nd.edu.

What does September 11 mean to you?

"I was in London at the time and I didn't realize that the plane was going to hit the Pentagon right away, but we were in London at the time, instantly Neoconservative on a cell phone."

"It means more than just a day of mourning in America. Americans act as if they were the only ones affected but it [affected] the whole world, not just America."

"It's one of the most significant events in American history. The Middle East is no longer foreign to us because they were brought to our homeland."

"It's only been a couple of weeks since terrorist attacks and we're feeling like the issue is one that's going to be around for a while."

"I feel like we have a new and daunting task in front of us to make ourselves a safer world."

"It's a hard to find the words to describe it. It's like we've opened ourselves up to new — or the world has changed — everything down to our perception of peace and safety."

"We need to find a way to communicate and work through this. We need to stay strong and unite as a nation."

"I hope we're all able to come together as a nation and work for the sake of personal growth, was something they had left behind for the semester. But the news of the World Trade Center's collapse struck Notre Dame London students just as deeply as if they were back home. The territorial attacks of Sept. 11 put LonDomers in an awkward position - they felt the shock and pain of having one's own country attacked and yet were strangely removed from it."

"The site was blocked at first because there was so much traffic," said Bryant.

As a result, many of the students in the computer lab filed into the basement of the building to watch the news with dozens of students. They spent all night watching the news, suspension of normalcy.

"One of the biggest lessons I've learned is there are a lot of people who hate us what we stand for. They can either make us feel better by simply attacking us. When we're going, I think most likely we'll keep going," she said.

Contact James Gaffey at iggaf@nd.edu.

LonDomers felt shock from far out in the ocean

By JAMES GAFFEY
News Writer

Sept. 11, 2001 started out as a typical Tuesday for four Notre Dame students studying abroad in London last semester. It was a day when the students were frantically searching for the first plane when the first plane was hijacked and crashed into the Pentagon.

"LonDomers" were in class at the time; some were wrapping up their work at the Trafalgar Square in the classroom building's library; some were working in their apartments on Edgeware Road; and some, undoubtedly, were sipping pints in a quaint English pub.

They were focusing on adapting to a different culture; the familiarity in America for the sake of personal growth, was something they had left behind for the semester. But the news of the World Trade Center's collapse struck Notre Dame London students just as deeply as if they were back home. The territorial attacks of Sept. 11 put LonDomers in an awkward position - they felt the shock and pain of having one's own country attacked and yet were strangely removed from it.

Christine Bryant first got word of the attacks while in the computer lab of the London classroom building. The person sitting next to her received an Instant Message from a friend in America and shouted out to everyone in the room. Soon students were frantically attempting to log on to CNN.com to find out more and sharing details as they uncovered them.

"The site was blocked at first because there was so much traffic," said Bryant.

As a result, many of the students in the computer lab filed into the basement of the building to watch the news with dozens of students. They spent all night watching the news, suspension of normalcy.

"One of the biggest lessons I've learned is there are a lot of people who hate us what we stand for. They can either make us feel better by simply attacking us. When we're going, I think most likely we'll keep going," she said.

Contact James Gaffey at iggaf@nd.edu.
Friends and family remembered

By SARAH NESTOR
Saint Mary's News Editor

While America remembers last year's terrorist attacks, the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's communities mourn the loved ones that they lost.

A loving niece

Amy Jarret, 28, loved Notre Dame football and came with her brother, Jay Jarret '91, to at least one home game each year. Her ties to Notre Dame started with her grandfather, the late Aram P. Jarret, Sr. '38, her father Aram P. Jarret '65, and uncle Father Peter Jarret '66, rector of Kough Hall.

"Amy had a good love for life and a great love for people," Peter Jarret said.

While Jarret, 28, began working for United Airlines when she was 23 years old, she loved meeting new people and the freedom of being a flight attendant. Her family experienced little anxiety about her chosen career.

"She was completely suited to it," Peter Jarret said. "Though she was engaged to be married so I think she was looking to get out of it."

When United Airlines flight 175, en route from Boston to Los Angeles, crashed into the south tower of the World Trade Center no one in the family suspected that Amy Jarret had been working that flight.

A call from United Airlines an hour later let the family in New Smithfield, R.I., know that Amy Jarret had been scheduled to work the flight, another call confirmed that Amy Jarret had been on flight 175.

"It's been hard on the family because her body was never found," Peter Jarret said. "Instead the family has been finding other ways to remember her; dedicating a memorial in New Smithfield and through memorial masses for her."

A role model alumna

Suzanne Kondratenko, a Saint Mary's 1996 humanistic studies alumna, loved her time at college and spoke so highly of Saint Mary's that she convinced her sister, Caroline Kondratenko, Saint Mary's senior, to apply.

"I spent a lot of time here visiting her when I was younger," Caroline Kondratenko said. "I've always tried to follow in her footsteps.

Suzanne Kondratenko made the most of her time at Saint Mary's, earning a student independent study and research grant, spending a year abroad in Rome and graduating at the top of her class.

"She was extremely brilliant, independent, but family was very important to her and she always found time for us," Caroline Kondratenko said. "She had a great sense of humor and always loved you. You had to know her to experience it."

Suzanne Kondratenko was a senior operations improvement consultant for Keane Consulting Group in Chicago. She was on assignment in New York City for a meeting with the Ann Corporation when one of the planes struck the south tower of the World Trade Center.

Suzanne Kondratenko was last seen heading down the stairs from the 90th floor of the second tower.

Two weeks after the attacks, while the Kondratenko family still searched for Suzanne Kondratenko in New York, Caroline Kondratenko left for Rome, following once again in her sister's footsteps.

"I was in denial for a long time and it was tough being so far away from what was happening," Caroline Kondratenko said. "It was a great experience though and I knew how much she had loved it there."

Today, the Kondratenko family is in New York City visiting Ground Zero, the place where Suzanne was last seen.

"We are going to the memorial services in New York City together, it's a chance for our family to spend time together there," Caroline Kondratenko said.

A loved brother

Timothy Byrne was a bond trader who worked on the one hundred fourth floor of the second tower of the World Trade Center. He loved working in the Twin Towers, so much that one of his brothers had given him a framed photo of the complex for a Christmas present the previous year.

"He was an athlete, he played lacrosse and liked to ski, he was a volunteer firefighter," McDermott said. "His friends, as well as his family knew he was always looking out for them, he was devoted to serving others."

Shortly after the south tower fell O'Neill's family began to fear for his safety, but amid the chaos they hoped he had safely reached the center.

In honor of the young man that graced so many lives, McDermott will be here with the support of the Notre Dame family.

"It was really tough being out here when it happened," McDermott said. "It was the Notre Dame campus, friends and the Mass that helped, so that I didn't even feel homesick. I don't know what I would have done without that support."

While there are a few from the thousands that lost their lives on Sept. 11, they represent the dreams that ended, the families forever separated and the realization that life is so delicate.

Contact Sarah Nestor at nestor@saintmarys.edu

Wednesday, September 11, 2002
Students reflect on life after Sept. 11

Community voices safety and security concerns

By MEGHANNE DOWNES Assistant News Editor

8:45 a.m. 9:03 a.m. 9:43 a.m. 10:10 a.m.

With each explosion America's sense of pride and security was chipped away. Americans were awakened to not only a black New York sky, but to the reality that they were no longer untouched and were in fact vulnerable.

A year after September 11 with Osama bin Laden not caught and war with Iraq imminent, Americans undoubtedly are cautiously reassured. Americans are removed from potential problems.

Some students vary on their feelings regarding the effectiveness of the new security measures. Jacquelyn Kramer feels safe and would not hesitate to fly on an airplane. All students are not as assured as Kramer is. "As far as being safe, I really don't think about it. I see the airport stuff and we are supposed to feel safe but I don't think it is that easy. I certainly don't feel safe because of a guy in uniform," said Chester.

"We have this elitist view that they [other countries] will listen to us because it is us, but we are always interfering and it doesn't mean that they will listen. We take it too far. It's not our duty to be there. It's foolish of us to think people will listen to us at all times," said Chester.

University Police stand in front of the Grotto softly lit by candlelight at the Sept. 11 vigil service Tuesday night.

Jacquelyn Kramer feels safe and assured as Kramer is.

Alicia d'Alessandro, Notre Dame sophomore, said that the attacks showed what we take for granted such as walking freely in an airport.

"Some are cautiously reassured by the belief that a sense of calm has returned to the nation after the initial wave of panic. "I feel safe because I feel like everyone is more aware now of their surroundings and what's going on, although there is still a threat," said Courtney Zephino, Notre Dame sophomore.

U.S. plans quiet 9/11 memorial observances

NEW YORK

The nation will remember last Sept. 11 mostly in silence, with few sounds other than bells tolling, military jets roaring in tribute and the reading of victims' names. At the World Trade Center, felled by two of the four hijacked jetliners, family members and dignitaries will read the names of the 2,801 dead and missing Wednesday morning, to begin and end with moments of silence and include readings of the Declaration of Independence and the Gettysburg Address.

Thousands were expected to gather Wednesday in the Pennsylvania field where the fourth hijacked plane crashed. Wednesday's ceremony at 10:06 a.m., the time of the plane crash, will include a moment of silence and a reading of the 40 victims' names as bells are tolled.

President Bush will visit all three disaster sites Wednesday, traveling from the Pentagon to Pennsylvania to New York's Ground Zero. Bush will address the nation Wednesday night from Ellis Island, with another symbol — the Statue of Liberty — as his backdrop.

see REFLECTION/page 4
What’s Going Down

Car broken into Between 8:30 p.m. Monday night and 7:26 Tuesday morning, a car parked in D2 north was broken into.

Solicitor given a warning
NDSP apprehended an individual in a parking lot who was asking for money. The individual was issued a no trespass warning letter and released.

Money taken from drawer
Money was reported as being taken from the unlocked desk of an unlocked office in the Galvin Life Science Center.

Car vandalized
A car was reportedly vandalized on St. Joseph Drive Monday evening.

There are no suspects.

Unlock ed bike stolen
An unlocked bike taken from a bike rack on the west side of the Heshburg Library between 9:00 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Monday.

South Dining Hall

Today Dinner: Baked cheese ravioli, pesto sauce, pretzel sticks, mexican beef pie, BBQ chicken, grilled tofu, lemon, turkey breast, bread stuffing, long grain and wild rice, orange rings, grilled chicken, oriental vegetables, corn succotash, pork, arroz con pollo

Today Dinner: Baked cheese ravioli, mexican beef pizza, sauteed mushrooms, spinach pie, green bean casserole, tiny, noodle casserole, fried perch, roasted top round, cajun chicken breast, seasoned fried, buffalo chicken, taco kits

What’s Happening @ ND

• Memorial Mass celebrated by Father Edward Malloy, president, reflecting Pool Heshburg Library, 5 p.m.

• British drawings from the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Allan J.

• Nineteenth-century European photographs from the Journals Schulz Collection, Snite Museum, all day.

What’s Happening @ SMC

• Mass for Peace and Justice, Holy Spirit Chapel, Le Mans Hall, 9:30 p.m.

• Student Diversity Board meeting, HCC 304, Noon

• Blue Mantle meeting, HCC 304, 4:40 to 8 p.m.

What’s Cooking

North Dining Hall

Today Dinner: Broccoli cheese soup, minestrone soup, Hawaiian pizza, roast, champagne rice pilaf, apple crisp, baked cajun pollock, cheese and vegetable pie, long grain and wild rice, winter blend vegetables, oatmeal, bacon slices, scrambled eggs, sausage gravy and biscuits, hash browns, grilled turkey on kaiser, California casserole

Today Dinner: Broccoli cheese soup, tomato soup, buffalo chicken lasagna, Hawaiian pizza, roasted turkey breast, bread stuffing, apple crisp, broccoli and tofu, tuna casserole, potato pancakes, applesauce, spinach, BBQ ribs

Contact Tom Haight at thaight@nd.edu

Corrections

The Observer regards itself as a professional publication and strives for the highest standards of journalism at all times. We do, however, recognize that we will make mistakes. If we have made a mistake, please contact us at 631-4541, so we can correct our error.
Prominent feminist author speaks at Saint Mary's

By MELANIE BECKER
News Writer

Through joint sponsorship of the Center for Women's Leadership (CWL) and the Women's Studies department, feminist author Paula Kamen spoke to about 50 people at Saint Mary's Tuesday about the evolution of females in society. Kamen, whose book "Her Way" explored 20-year-olds vision of the future of women's movements, talked about the independence women have gained over the past 30 years, which has given them greater career options and sexual control.

Feminism and its implications were also addressed. Kamen stressed feminism is a way to give women a chance to express their individualism. The ideals of feminism, she said, are not to encourage women to be more like men, but for them to gain more knowledge, political power and economic stability so that they can make their own decisions. While many women continue to have families, others choose to pursue careers.

The audience raised questions about the struggle between religion and lifestyle issues espoused by Kamen. Kamen concluded her talk by saying women should listen to their own voice in making personal decisions. Additionally, Kamen said that women are given the right to follow their own morals and values.

"I think that the amount of people that showed up shows what an important topic this is in the community," said junior Mary Beth Brovnick.

Contact Melanie Becker at beck09510@saintmarys.edu

---

Bush highlighted ACE and Notre Dame graduate

By TERESA FRAILISH
News Writer

In his Sept. 5 speech at the South Bend Regional Airport, President Bush pointed specifically to teacher and 1995 Notre Dame graduate Ricardo Rios as an example of how Americans could serve their country. Rios, whom Bush met and introduced to the crowd at the airport, teaches sixth grade children at St. Adalbert Catholic School in South Bend through the Alliance for Catholic Education.

The ACE program is a two-year service experience that places college graduates in understaffed and Catholic schools nationwide. While teaching, volunteers earn a tuition-free master's degree in education and receive a stipend to cover their living costs.

Bush founded the Freedom Corps, an umbrella organization that encompasses Amercorps, a sponsor organization for ACE, upon entering office. As a fairly new teacher, Rios said he hopes to help develop each of his student's potential and be sensitive to their learning styles. "The biggest challenge is to tap into the individual needs of the students," he said. "Children learn in different ways."

Rios, who was looking for a teaching position, said he feels optimistic about teaching and experiences that they can accomplish anything as long as they put forth the attitude and effort," said Rios.

Teachers who help their students be successful, Rios wants to offer different types of instruction for his sixth-graders. Teachers aren't perfect, Rios said, but he often emphasizes teaching. "You can't really have an off day," he said. "It's exciting because (the children) make you laugh."

Over the course of the year, Rios hopes to improve as a teacher and empower his students. "I hope that my kids see that both my teaching and experiences that they can accomplish anything as long as they put forth the attitude and effort," said Rios.

Rios found that, of all the service teaching options available, ACE offered the best environment for the children's lives. The ACE program also provides participants with financial aid, which is important, said including flight supervisor Mary Beth Brovnick.

ACE's positive reinforcement and as well as mentor teachers during the summer sessions. Rios is basically set up for success," said Rios.

In addition to the ACE program itself, Rios also considers his experiences at Notre Dame as a significant factor in initially stimulating his interest in service with children. After spending one semester of his sophomore year studying abroad in Mexico, Rios felt his outlook on society had greatly broadened.

"That experience gave me a greater world perspective," said Rios. When deciding to work as a volunteer teacher, Rios reflects back on his time in Mexico to help him make the choice to enter the ACE program.

While at Notre Dame, Rios also participated in a wide array of service opportunities with children, including working with children's after school programs at La Casa de Amistad and helping Hispanic families to learn English through the Buen Vecino program. Rios tutored children at Notre Dame's Northeast Neighborhood Center and worked as a resident advisor in Zion Hall during his senior year.

Contact Teresa Frailish at tfracjs@nd.edu

---

UNIVERSITY OF NOTRE DAME INTERNATIONAL STUDY PROGRAM IN ATHENS, GREECE

INFORMATION MEETING

With Juliet Mayinja, Assistant Director International Study Programs And Returning Students

Thursday, Sept. 12, 2002
5:00-6:00 PM
129 Hayes-Healy

Applications available on-line: www.nd.edu/~intstud/
GRADUATE STUDENT UNION

GSU outlines the upcoming year

By ANDREW THAGARD
Assistant News Editor

The Graduate Student Union began its first meeting of the academic year Tuesday by discussing proposed changes to its constitution and outlining the organization's goals for the coming year.

In a fast-paced meeting due mainly to President Tim Dale's commitment to limit each monthly meeting to one hour, members considered changing the constitution to give all committee members voting rights. The constitution currently only allows elected academic department representatives to vote, although in the past committee chairs have exercised a right to vote despite it being unconstitutional. The suggestion, according to Dale, was a move to align the constitution to practices within the meeting.

"There are several things within the constitution that either seem ridiculous or make no sense," Dale said.

The GSU, however, quickly became locked in debate as members questioned the logic behind diluting the power of elected members and giving some of it to representatives appointed by the president. In the end, members decided to maintain the current wording of the constitution but allow an open discussion at each meeting to determine who could vote.

Members unanimously approved stipend increases for the Social, Healthcare and Orientation Committee Chairs and approved the organization's 2002-03 budget. They also voted to allow the president to make himself or any voting member chairman of the meeting.

Any of the motions that outline constitutional changes will have to pass again at next month's meeting in order to go into effect, as dictated by the organization's constitution.

Reflection

continued from page 1

to protect those who can't protect themselves." Chiriboga supports the United States but feels as though it may be overstepping its bounds. "The United States does a good job helping people, but it is too involved and let people resolve things on their own. It's their fight," said Chiriboga.

Chiriboga recognizes that while this position may help the United States it may negatively affect the international community. "The world won't be able to feel safe until the United States and Mideast relations improve. If we allowed Iraq the situation won't improve. Instead of using force, the United States should try to improve relations with those people but I also think that maybe it's too late," said Chiriboga.

Contact Andrew Thagard at athagard@nd.edu

F-16s to fly over Stadium before Notre Dame-Michigan game

Special to The Observer

Two U.S. Air Force F-16 fighter jets piloted by University of Notre Dame alumni will fly over Notre Dame Stadium just before the start of Saturday's football game between the Fighting Irish and the University of Michigan. The flyby is part of a national observance of POW/MIA Day.

Since 1979, POWMIA Day has honored repatriated soldiers and those still missing and accounted for during American wars abroad. Ceremonies are held throughout the United States and around the world on military installations and ships at sea, with national veterans and civic organizations, and at state capitols, schools, churches, and police and fire departments.

Ask About

It'll Get Your Motor Runnin!

Call Meghan Downes at 234-3140

downsni@nd.edu

Welsh Hall's

FOOTBALL 101

"NOTRE DAME STYLE"

Thursday September 12, 2002
9:00-11:00 pm
Coleman-Morse Center

Guest speakers
ND Leprechaun and Cheerleaders
Refreshments

ND GRAD
Source of ND Student Directory
Homeschool Group
Call Marie at 234-3004

RÉSUMÉS

Anyone can write a résumé — but will it be effective?
A+ Résumés is the answer.
 • Résumés that work
 • FREE consultation
 • Located near campus
A+ Résumés
234-3140
www.alsurec.com

ND GRAD
Source of ND Student Directory
Homeschool Group
Call Marie at 234-3004

RÉSUMÉS

Anyone can write a résumé — but will it be effective?
A+ Résumés is the answer.
 • Résumés that work
 • FREE consultation
 • Located near campus
A+ Résumés
234-3140
www.alsurec.com
U.S. raises nation's terror alert level

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

The Bush administration raised the nationwide terror alert level to its second highest level, closed nine U.S. embassies overseas because of specific threats to security at federal buildings and landmarks in America as new international terrorism warnings trickled in of bomb attacks, suicide attacks and other strikes feared prior to the Sept. 11 anniversary.

Americans were urged Tuesday to be alert but unhobbled — go to work, to school, on trips — despite specific threats against U.S. interests abroad and less credible concerns that higher alert levels might attack America again.

After a hectic series of telephone calls and late-night meetings, President Bush's top advisers decided Monday to recommend raising the level from code yellow — significant risk of attack in the next 30 days — to orange — a high risk. Bush met twice with the advisers Tuesday morning, the last time in the top-secret Situation Room, before telling them, "Let's do it." But despite evidence of a plot against the United States, Sept. 11 anniversary and intelligence gathered in the last 48 hours — some from a high-ranking al-Qaida operative — prompted the decision. Tom Ridge, Bush's homeland security director, said plans for multiple attacks on U.S. targets in southeast Asia were in "an operational phase."

Code orange is the highest alert level imposed since the establishment of the system in March. The only higher status, code red, was raised in the wake of a severe risk of attack on U.S. soil based on credible evidence.

The president said that we have heard recently remind us of the pattern of threats we heard prior to Sept. 11." Bush said on the eve of the anniversary, "We have no specific threat to America, but we're taking everything seriously."

From immigration officers to meat inspectors, government workers were put on high alert as security precautions riddled measures taken immediately after last year's attacks.

Vice President Dick Cheney canceled a Tuesday night speech and was taken to a secret location to protect the presidential candidate in case of an attack. He will remain in seclusion at least through the Sept. 11 observances, a senior administration official said.

Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld ordered that live aircraft missions be stationed near launchers that had been deployed around Washington for a training exercise.

Across the country, access to public places and events. Colorado Gov. Bill Owens, announcing security measures at the state Capitol, told residents, "You should probably bring your driver's license to the building."

The government sent a separate alert to local law enforcement around the United States on Tuesday warning of a possible terrorist attacks, prompting discussions in communities on how best to respond.

"Echoing the words of Attorney General John Ashcroft in a news conference earlier, the alert said: "Reporting also indicates that lower level al-Qaida operatives and sympathizers view the Sept. 11 time-frame as a possible time to launch in small strikes to demonstrate that their worldwide presence and resolve are not at all dispersed, unsophisticated strikes are possible."

Local police were on edge. They urged residents to report any suspicious activity.

"There's no such thing as a stupid phone call," said Lt. Kelly Willis, spokesman for the Des Moines, Iowa, police department. "We're here to be bothered."

Among 15 or so U.S. diplomatic posts closed overseas, the embassy in Jakarta and a consular office in Sarabaya, both in Indonesia, were shut down due to what officials called credible and specific information about suicide threats.

A U.S. military helicopter flies over the Pentagon in Washington. The Bush administration increased security measures in response to terrorist threats.

Bush to ask U.N. for help with Iraq

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

President Bush said Tuesday that he will ask the United Nations Sept. 11 anniversary and intelligence gathered in the last 48 hours — some from a high-ranking al-Qaida operative — prompted the decision. Tom Ridge, Bush's homeland security director, said plans for multiple attacks on U.S. targets in southeast Asia were in "an operational phase."

Bush said that we have heard recently remind us of the pattern of threats we heard prior to Sept. 11." Bush said on the eve of the anniversary, "We have no specific threat to America, but we're taking everything seriously."

From immigration officers to meat inspectors, government workers were put on high alert as security precautions riddled measures taken immediately after last year's attacks.

Vice President Dick Cheney canceled a Tuesday night speech and was taken to a secret location to protect the presidential candidate in case of an attack. He will remain in seclusion at least through the Sept. 11 observances, a senior administration official said.

Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld ordered that live aircraft missions be stationed near launchers that had been deployed around Washington for a training exercise.

Across the country, access to public places and events. Colorado Gov. Bill Owens, announcing security measures at the state Capitol, told residents, "You should probably bring your driver's license to the building."

The government sent a separate alert to local law enforcement around the United States on Tuesday warning of a possible terrorist attacks, prompting discussions in communities on how best to respond.

"Echoing the words of Attorney General John Ashcroft in a news conference earlier, the alert said: "Reporting also indicates that lower level al-Qaida operatives and sympathizers view the Sept. 11 time-frame as a possible time to launch in small strikes to demonstrate that their worldwide presence and resolve are not at all dispersed, unsophisticated strikes are possible."

Local police were on edge. They urged residents to report any suspicious activity.

"There's no such thing as a stupid phone call," said Lt. Kelly Willis, spokesman for the Des Moines, Iowa, police department. "We're here to be bothered."

Among 15 or so U.S. diplomatic posts closed overseas, the embassy in Jakarta and a consular office in Sarabaya, both in Indonesia, were shut down due to what officials called credible and specific information about suicide threats.

A U.S. military helicopter flies over the Pentagon in Washington. The Bush administration increased security measures in response to terrorist threats.

FBI searches Islamic leader's home:

Federal agents Tuesday searched the apartment of a prominent local Islamic leader charged with document fraud and a judge ordered him held without bail pending trial. FBI spokeswoman Beth Anne Steele wouldn't disclose details of the search. Sheikh Mohamed Abdrahmans Kariye pleaded innocent to felony charges of unlawful use of a Social Security number and unlawful possession of a U.S. government document. A trial is scheduled for Nov. 5.

Map shows miners didn't have updates:

A newly discovered map appears to show that lower level coal miners didn't have updated maps showing their location. The map, found by federal investigators shows more extensive digging in an abandoned mine that was not shown on maps being used by the nine miners, mine safety officials said.

Iraq appeals to Arabs to confront U.S.: In conflicting signals, a senior Iraqi official on Tuesday called on Arabs to rise and "confront" America, barely a day after another official said Iraq wanted to be a trade partner, not a battlefield.

"Confront" is an often-cited code word for military action that Saddam Hussein to the war on Iraq, urging Arabs to confront the United States, talking to like-minded leaders to the presidential retreat.

Liberians have frequently allied himself with Bush on foreign policy, and in a letter to a newspaper to be published Wednesday, laid out his strongest case yet in support of the U.S. demand for ousting the Iraqi president, saying preventive military action was legitimate if Baghdad doesn't change its ways. U.S. allies and members of Congress have urged Bush to give them more evidence that Saddam's nuclear, biological and chemical weapons programs pose a direct threat.

In his U.N. speech Thursday, the administration official said, Bush plans to respond with a challenge of his own: "What more do we need to know?"

Outside experts and U.S. officials say Iraq probably has stocks of chemical and biological weapons and could make a nuclear bomb if it could obtain enough nuclear material.

World News Briefs

Iraq appeals to Arabs to confront U.S.: In conflicting signals, a senior Iraqi official on Tuesday called on Arabs to rise and "confront" America, barely a day after another official said Iraq wanted to be a trade partner, not a battlefield.

"Confront" is an often-cited code word for military action that Saddam Hussein to the war on Iraq, urging Arabs to confront the United States, talking to like-minded leaders to the presidential retreat.

Liberians have frequently allied himself with Bush on foreign policy, and in a letter to a newspaper to be published Wednesday, laid out his strongest case yet in support of the U.S. demand for ousting the Iraqi president, saying preventive military action was legitimate if Baghdad doesn't change its ways. U.S. allies and members of Congress have urged Bush to give them more evidence that Saddam's nuclear, biological and chemical weapons programs pose a direct threat.

In his U.N. speech Thursday, the administration official said, Bush plans to respond with a challenge of his own: "What more do we need to know?"

Outside experts and U.S. officials say Iraq probably has stocks of chemical and biological weapons and could make a nuclear bomb if it could obtain enough nuclear material.

National News Briefs

Medical helicopter crashes in S. Dakota: A medical helicopter crashed while taking a patient to a hospital in Sioux Falls, killing all four on board, officials said Tuesday. The helicopter, missing since late Monday, was found Tuesday morning in a field southeast of Doland in northeastern South Dakota, Gov. Bill Janklow said. "There are no survivors," he said. The CareFlight air ambulance, leased by Avera St. Luke's Hospital in Aberdeen, was on its way from Aberdeen to the Heart Hospital of South Dakota in Sioux Falls with a patient, the pilot, a flight nurse and a flight medico, officials said.

Police investigate Buzz Aldrin: Detectives are investigating a complaint that retired astronaut Edwin "Buzz" Aldrin punched a man in the face at the Luke Hotel on Rodeo Drive, a police statement said. Aldrin, a professor at his Alma matter at Northeastern Illinois University, is to swear on a Bible that he'd been to the moon.

A newly discovered map appears to show that lower level coal miners didn't have updated maps showing their location. The map, found by federal investigators shows more extensive digging in an abandoned mine that was not shown on maps being used by the nine miners, mine safety officials said.
New shuttle service gets students around campus

By SHANNON NELLIGAN
South Bend, Ind.

In an attempt to keep students out of the rain and snow between class times this fall, Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s considered the shuttle schedule by eliminating seven stops, including LeMans and Holy Cross Halls.

According to Dan Skendzel, Notre Dame’s director of administrative services, the stops that were eliminated either had a low rate of student use or could be easily served by a nearby stop.

Prior to the implementation of the new plan for the shuttle schedule, there was a consensus between Notre Dame and Saint Mary’s student government and administration to amend the service. A portion of this decision was based on ridership data provided by the shuttle operator, Coach USA.

“Preceding years the shuttle has been very unreliable, arriving and departing stops at various times because it could not possibly make all of its scheduled stops in the allotted time,” Skendzel said.

The revised schedule hopes to create a dependable 40-minute loop around Notre Dame, Saint Mary’s and Holy Cross. A second bus services the LaPeggie Clinic and Robinson Learning Center on weekday afternoons.

According to Rebecca Sparrow, Saint Mary’s freshman, who rides the shuttle from McCandless Hall, the shuttle is occasionally early or late in the evening, but it is still faster than walking to and from the two campuses.

Although the new schedule has yet to increase efficiency and timeliness, Melissa Peters, LeMans Hall director, said, “There have been no complaints about shuttle service at this time.”

The change in bus stops has not posed any security issues and has caused few complaints.

“At this time there have been no official reports of security problems due to the location of the bus stops,” said Dan Woods, Saint Mary’s interim director of security.

Contact Shannon Nelligan at snelligan@nd.edu

Speaker highlights effect of Russian privatization

By CHRISTINA CEPERO
News Writer

After the tumultuous decades of crime and corruption, which occurred during its rocky transition from 75 years of Communism to a capitalist economy during the 90’s, Russia has emerged as a prosperous country.

This month Notre Dame welcomes Russian economist Victor Supyan, visiting fellow of the Kellogg Institute for International Studies and deputy director of the Institute of the USA and Canada Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences.

On Sept. 10, he gave a presentation entitled “The social and economic consequences of the Russian privatization” at the Hesburgh Center for International Studies.

Supyan reviewed Russia’s current economic situation. Its economy has been growing steadily since 1998 after experiencing a deep depression. Supyan said this economic growth is not directly connected with privatization as was initially expected.

Rather, the four main reasons for economic success have been:

- Import substitution (meaning focusing on the domestic market)
- Solid growth in export volumes
- Better tax collection
- Increased domestic investments

Supyan then discussed the three different approaches to privatization Russia considered. The first, most liberal approach was based on the proposition that the state’s property should be sold to anyone who was willing to buy.

Although this would have been the most economically efficient method, it was not realistic because no one, including criminals, had enough capital to buy the enterprises at twice the market price, and it would also be socially unfair.

The second approach to privatization involved privatization through trade unions and the socialist and communist parties who supposed that the enterprise assets should be entitled to utilize these potential shares of state property.

The actual approach to privatization Russia employed in 1992 after the fall of the Soviet Union in 1991 most resembled the last "but was actually based on the shared interest among several social forces," said Supyan.

It had the following six main objectives:

- Attract foreign investment because companies did not make serious changes in organizational and managerial structures, and it did not add to effective management.
- To create a stable middle class.
- Voucher privatization failed to fulfill its goals of economic effectiveness and foreign investment because companies did make serious changes in organizational and managerial structures, and the voucher privatization process was not efficient.
- The scholarship includes a $3,500 credit to each student’s tuition account and a commemorative pewter plate. The two students are the 15th and 16th recipients of the scholarships.

Collect Calls
Save The Max

1-800-MAX-SAVE
(1-800-629-7283)

+ *Plus set-up. Interstate/8p.m.-7a.m.

50% More Talk Time
WWW.10-10-226.COM

Le Breakfast Le Brunch Le Lunch

Welcome Back

Now Hiring
Flexible Hours
Great Place to Work
127 S. Michigan St.
South Bend, IN 46601
288-7337

New shuttle service gets students around campus

The revised schedule hopes to create a dependable 40-minute loop around Notre Dame, Saint Mary’s and Holy Cross. A second bus services the LaPeggie Clinic and Robinson Learning Center on weekday afternoons.

According to Rebecca Sparrow, Saint Mary’s freshman, who rides the shuttle from McCandless Hall, the shuttle is occasionally early or late in the evening, but it is still faster than walking to and from the two campuses.

Although the new schedule has yet to increase efficiency and timeliness, Melissa Peters, LeMans Hall director, said, “There have been no complaints about shuttle service at this time.”

The change in bus stops has not posed any security issues and has caused few complaints.

“At this time there have been no official reports of security problems due to the location of the bus stops,” said Dan Woods, Saint Mary’s interim director of security.

Contact Shannon Nelligan at snelligan@nd.edu

Speaker highlights effect of Russian privatization

By CHRISTINA CEPERO
News Writer

After the tumultuous decades of crime and corruption, which occurred during its rocky transition from 75 years of Communism to a capitalist economy during the 90’s, Russia has emerged as a prosperous country.

This month Notre Dame welcomes Russian economist Victor Supyan, visiting fellow of the Kellogg Institute for International Studies and deputy director of the Institute of the USA and Canada Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences.

On Sept. 10, he gave a presentation entitled “The social and economic consequences of the Russian privatization” at the Hesburgh Center for International Studies.

Supyan reviewed Russia’s current economic situation. Its economy has been growing steadily since 1998 after experiencing a deep depression. Supyan said this economic growth is not directly connected with privatization as was initially expected.

Rather, the four main reasons for economic success have been:

- Import substitution (meaning focusing on the domestic market)
- Solid growth in export volumes
- Better tax collection
- Increased domestic investments

Supyan then discussed the three different approaches to privatization Russia considered. The first, most liberal approach was based on the proposition that the state’s property should be sold to anyone who was willing to buy.

Although this would have been the most economically efficient method, it was not realistic because no one, including criminals, had enough capital to buy the enterprises at twice the market price, and it would also be socially unfair.

The second approach to privatization involved privatization through trade unions and the socialist and communist parties who supposed that the enterprise assets should be entitled to utilize these potential shares of state property.

The actual approach to privatization Russia employed in 1992 after the fall of the Soviet Union in 1991 most resembled the last “but was actually based on the shared interest among several social forces,” said Supyan.

It had the following six main objectives:

- Attract foreign investment because companies did not make serious changes in organizational and managerial structures, and it did not add to effective management.
- To create a stable middle class.
- Voucher privatization failed to fulfill its goals of economic effectiveness and foreign investment because companies did make serious changes in organizational and managerial structures, and the voucher privatization process was not efficient.
- The scholarship includes a $3,500 credit to each student’s tuition account and a commemorative pewter plate. The two students are the 15th and 16th recipients of the scholarships.

Collect Calls
Save The Max

1-800-MAX-SAVE
(1-800-629-7283)

+ *Plus set-up. Interstate/8p.m.-7a.m.

50% More Talk Time
WWW.10-10-226.COM

Le Breakfast Le Brunch Le Lunch

Welcome Back

Now Hiring
Flexible Hours
Great Place to Work
127 S. Michigan St.
South Bend, IN 46601
288-7337

New shuttle service gets students around campus

The revised schedule hopes to create a dependable 40-minute loop around Notre Dame, Saint Mary’s and Holy Cross. A second bus services the LaPeggie Clinic and Robinson Learning Center on weekday afternoons.

According to Rebecca Sparrow, Saint Mary’s freshman, who rides the shuttle from McCandless Hall, the shuttle is occasionally early or late in the evening, but it is still faster than walking to and from the two campuses.

Although the new schedule has yet to increase efficiency and timeliness, Melissa Peters, LeMans Hall director, said, “There have been no complaints about shuttle service at this time.”

The change in bus stops has not posed any security issues and has caused few complaints.

“At this time there have been no official reports of security problems due to the location of the bus stops,” said Dan Woods, Saint Mary’s interim director of security.

Contact Shannon Nelligan at snelligan@nd.edu

Speaker highlights effect of Russian privatization

By CHRISTINA CEPERO
News Writer

After the tumultuous decades of crime and corruption, which occurred during its rocky transition from 75 years of Communism to a capitalist economy during the 90’s, Russia has emerged as a prosperous country.

This month Notre Dame welcomes Russian economist Victor Supyan, visiting fellow of the Kellogg Institute for International Studies and deputy director of the Institute of the USA and Canada Studies, Russian Academy of Sciences.

On Sept. 10, he gave a presentation entitled “The social and economic consequences of the Russian privatization” at the Hesburgh Center for International Studies.

Supyan reviewed Russia’s current economic situation. Its economy has been growing steadily since 1998 after experiencing a deep depression. Supyan said this economic growth is not directly connected with privatization as was initially expected.

Rather, the four main reasons for economic success have been:

- Import substitution (meaning focusing on the domestic market)
- Solid growth in export volumes
- Better tax collection
- Increased domestic investments

Supyan then discussed the three different approaches to privatization Russia considered. The first, most liberal approach was based on the proposition that the state’s property should be sold to anyone who was willing to buy.

Although this would have been the most economically efficient method, it was not realistic because no one, including criminals, had enough capital to buy the enterprises at twice the market price, and it would also be socially unfair.

The second approach to privatization involved privatization through trade unions and the socialist and communist parties who supposed that the enterprise assets should be entitled to utilize these potential shares of state property.

The actual approach to privatization Russia employed in 1992 after the fall of the Soviet Union in 1991 most resembled the last “but was actually based on the shared interest among several social forces,” said Supyan.

It had the following six main objectives:

- Attract foreign investment because companies did not make serious changes in organizational and managerial structures, and it did not add to new investments.
- Voucher privatization failed to fulfill its goals of economic effectiveness and foreign investment because companies did make serious changes in organizational and managerial structures, and the voucher privatization process was not efficient.
- The scholarship includes a $3,500 credit to each student’s tuition account and a commemorative pewter plate. The two students are the 15th and 16th recipients of the scholarships.
Business

Stewart investigation complete

◆ Results sent to Department of Justice

Associated Press

WASHINGTON
Lawmakers asked the Justice Department on Tuesday to begin a criminal investigation into whether Martha Stewart lied to a House committee about receiving inside information before selling her ImClone stock.

"As members of Congress we believe it is our obligation to forward specific and credible information in our possession that could suggest a federal crime has been committed," the Republican and Democratic leaders of the House Energy and Commerce Committee wrote to Attorney General John Ashcroft.

Share of Stewart's company, Martha Stewart Omnimedia, jumped almost 10 percent immediately after the lawmakers' announcement Tuesday afternoon. Analysts said investors apparently viewed the referral to the Justice Department as preferable because it spares Stewart from having to appear before Congress under subpoena.

The shares closed Tuesday at $9.05, up 50 cents, or 1.6 percent, from a day earlier in afternoon trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Stewart's attorneys said they welcomed the committee's action because the Justice Department is the appropriate authority to address questions related to her stock sale.

"I strongly disagree with the analysis of the committee and its staff but am pleased that the matters will now be exclusively in the hands of professional law enforcement authorities who are trained to conduct a responsible and thorough investigation," said Stewart attorney Robert Morvillo. "I'm glad that the political aspects of this matter will now terminate and am confident that the investigation will lead to Ms. Stewart's exoneration."

At the Justice Department, spokesman Mark Corallo said the agency will review the lawmakers' letter. He declined comment.

Stewart is a friend of former ImClone chief executive Sam Waksal, the only person so far charged in the federal investigation of ImClone Systems Inc., which he founded. He pleaded innocent last month to charges of securities fraud, perjury, bank fraud and obstruction of justice.

Stewart sold nearly 4,000 shares of ImClone stock on Dec. 27, a day before the company's application for federal review of its highly touted colon cancer drug, Erbitux, was denied.

"I think that she did that innocently," Stewart lawyer James Fitzpatrick said on CNN's "Moneyline" Tuesday night.

Committee spokesman Ken Johnson said panel investigators negotiated with Stewart's attorneys until shortly before the announcement, offering not to seek a Justice Department probe if she would agree to appear voluntarily and testify at a hearing next week.

In the letter, the lawmakers said they have been prevented from resolving discrepancies and "suspicions of communications" involving the stock sale.

The domestic design tycoon has refused repeatedly to be interviewed by committee staff members, they said, and her attorneys have said Stewart, if subpoenaed, would invoke her Fifth Amendment right not to incriminate herself.

Pieces of evidence obtained by the committee "cause us to be deeply skeptical of Ms. Stewart's accounts and raise a serious question as to whether those accounts were false, misleading and designed to conceal material facts," the letter to Ashcroft said.

Port Authority sued over WTC tanks

Associated Press

WASHINGTON
A utility and five insurance companies filed a $314 million lawsuit blaming the Sept. 11 collapse of a 47-story World Trade Center complex on the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey's negligence in monitoring diesel fuel tanks in the building.

The lawsuit, filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, said the Port Authority, owner of the trade center complex, was responsible for the collapse because it poorly controlled the design, use and occupancy of 7 World Trade Center.

In particular, the lawsuit claimed, the Port Authority failed to properly monitor multiple diesel fuel tanks installed in 1999 to provide power to the city's emergency command bunker on the building's 23rd floor. The Port Authority denied the lawsuit's accusations.

The building also housed a secret CIA station, believed to be the most important CIA domestic station outside Washington. It was near the two 110-story trade center towers that collapsed after they were struck by planes hijacked by terrorists.

It was believed to have sustained little structural damage and collapsed due to fire alone, the first freestanding steel structure to do so. Consolidated Edison Co. of New York Inc. and five of its insurance companies — including Aegis Insurance Services Inc. and Lloyds — accused the Port Authority of failing to apply, interpret and enforce safe engineering practices and standards commonly used for high-rise office buildings throughout the state.

They said the Port Authority also did not properly apply, interpret and enforce New York City and state fire safety rules and regulations.
Flight 93 victims' families visit crash site a year later

Associated Press

SHANKSVILLE, Pa. - Friends and family of the victims of United Flight 93 today shared their grief and memories at the crash site Tuesday, a day before a public ceremony marking the one-year anniversary. Preparations for Wednesday's event were put on hold for two hours as the nearly 500 people walked on the grassy field in western Pennsylvania to remember their loved ones, who investigators believe overpowered the hijackers and prevented the plane from reaching its target.

Reporters and the public were barred from the site, where 44 people died - including the four hijackers - when the plane went down Sept. 11 just outside Shanksville. Family members later described the gathering as a healing way to remember the passengers, friends and crew.

The gathering was "solemn and sad," and yet celebratory," said Alice Hoglan, Bingham, was killed. "It was very healing. It was a joyful event for me." The parents in question, who have not been identified, are serving jail time for the boy's welfare. The boy's parents could have attended public memorial in a field a few hundred yards away from the crash site.

Utah questions the right to revoke parents' guardianship

By MEAGAN ANDERSON

The Daily Universe

PROVO, Utah

The parental rights of a mother and father are in jeopardy after the Utah Supreme Court convened Friday morning.

The argument in this case is whether the state of Utah has the right to terminate parental rights of a mother and father who do not live in Utah.

The parents in question, who have not been identified, are serving jail time in Texas and Oklahoma after being separately convicted of sexually abusing children.

The couple's 13-year-old son has been in Utah state foster care since 1998, when his older sister, who had unlicensed guardianship, was unable to care for the boy and turned him over to the state. The state of Utah has found the boy's biological parents unfit and determined that their parental rights should be terminated. Amina Mitchell, attorney for the boy's mother, Utah has the authority to make decisions about the boy's foster care, but it does not have jurisdiction to terminate parental rights.

Utah officials say the boy's parents were notified of the termination proceedings but chose not to participate.

Incarcerated parents communicate all of the time," said Martha Pierce, an attorney defending the boy's welfare. The boy's parents could have communicated their concerns by telephone or by video with Utah State attorneys but no contact was made, she said.

Mitchell recognizes the boy's biological parents do have legal ground to oppose the ruling, but feels strongly that they should not maintain their parental rights.

"This is not a case of the child behind the federal constitution," Mitchell said. "The boy is here and his parents are elsewhere."

According to Jim Shirley, attorney for the boy's mother, Utah has the authority to make decisions about the boy's foster care, but it does not have jurisdiction to terminate parental rights.

The case involves Utah's right to terminate parental rights, a matter of state law, Mitchell said. The court decision, which was first issued in 1998, is aimed at protecting a child's best interests.

UC-Berkeley students receive hate e-mail

By EMMA SCHWARTZ

Daily Californian

BERKELEY, Calif. - University of California-Berkeley students planning Wednesday's 9/11 memorial continue to receive hate messages - a result of their widely publicized statement against distributing red, white and blue ribbons.

Students began receiving hate e-mails and phone calls after a conservative campus publication, The California Patriot, ran an online article on the decision made by the event's planning committee to ban out red, white and blue ribbons during the memorial. Some students received more than 200 hate e-mails each - many containing racial slurs - over the issue.

"You're nothing but an anti-American hate monger," said an anonymous e-mail sent to Graduate Assembly President Jesica Quindel. "You offend and disgust me and other veterans of this great country."

ASUC President Jesse Gabriel and members of his office said they also received hate messages. Students who received hate messages said they have been unfairly singled out and added the messages have taken away from the memorial's importance.

The controversy has detracted from the idea of grieving the loss of life," Quindel said. "We're trying to include all voices and are being ostracized and seen as wrong, which goes against American ideals. I think that shows the irony of trying to be patriotic."

California Patriot writers said in a statement released Tuesday that they intended for their article to ignite a reaction but did not mean for it to result in hate messages or harm those involved in planning the memorial.

UC-Berkeley students receive hate e-mail

By EMMA SCHWARTZ

Daily Californian

BERKELEY, Calif. - University of California-Berkeley students planning Wednesday's 9/11 memorial continue to receive hate messages - a result of their widely publicized statement against distributing red, white and blue ribbons.

Students began receiving hate e-mails and phone calls after a conservative campus publication, The California Patriot, ran an online article on the decision made by the event's planning committee to ban out red, white and blue ribbons during the memorial. Some students received more than 200 hate e-mails each - many containing racial slurs - over the issue.

"You're nothing but an anti-American hate monger," said an anonymous e-mail sent to Graduate Assembly President Jesica Quindel. "You offend and disgust me and other veterans of this great country."

ASUC President Jesse Gabriel and members of his office said they also received hate messages. Students who received hate messages said they have been unfairly singled out and added the messages have taken away from the memorial's importance.

The controversy has detracted from the idea of grieving the loss of life," Quindel said. "We're trying to include all voices and are being ostracized and seen as wrong, which goes against American ideals. I think that shows the irony of trying to be patriotic."

California Patriot writers said in a statement released Tuesday that they intended for their article to ignite a reaction but did not mean for it to result in hate messages or harm those involved in planning the memorial.

"You're nothing but an anti-American hate monger," said an anonymous e-mail sent to Graduate Assembly President Jesica Quindel. "You offend and disgust me and other veterans of this great country."

ASUC President Jesse Gabriel and members of his office said they also received hate messages. Students who received hate messages said they have been unfairly singled out and added the messages have taken away from the memorial's importance.

The controversy has detracted from the idea of grieving the loss of life," Quindel said. "We're trying to include all voices and are being ostracized and seen as wrong, which goes against American ideals. I think that shows the irony of trying to be patriotic."

California Patriot writers said in a statement released Tuesday that they intended for their article to ignite a reaction but did not mean for it to result in hate messages or harm those involved in planning the memorial.
Nine United States embassies closed worldwide

Associated Press

JAKARTA Nine U.S. embassies in Asia, Africa and the Middle East were closed, and U.S. military bases and embassies in Europe enforced tightened security Tuesday, the eve of the anniversary of the Sept. 11 terror attacks.

Shortly after dawn broke in New Zealand Wednesday, Prime Minister Helen Clark planted trees on the grounds of the U.S. Embassy to commemorate the attacks.

"This date has been forever etched into our memories," Clark said. "The world will never forget the place which took the tragedy. Those attacks were acts of utterly incomprehensible violence which shook us all profoundly."

In Australia, flags flew at half staff and people began laying wreaths at makeshift memorials early Wednesday.

"This day has been forever etched into our memories," Helen Clark
New Zealand Prime Minister

In Europe, extra security was ordered at airports, government offices and embassies.

The Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, dedicated most of its Tuesday edition to the anniversary of the terror attacks.

"The duty of memory is accompanied by another imperative that unites all of humanity: the duty to conquer fear," the newspaper said. "The absurd and bellicose logic of terrorism also feeds on fear, on the fear that it provokes."

Italy assigned 4,000 soldiers to protect "sensitive sites," while Belgium ordered "strict vigilance" for its security authorities. German police said they were stepping up security at Frankfurt airport, continental Europe's biggest.

"Now, we always have to consider the unthinkable," Belgian Interior Minister Antoine Duquenne said.

The U.S. State Department warned Americans to remain especially vigilant, saying there was a "continuing threat of terrorist actions, which may target civilians and include suicide operations."

About 10 unarmed London police officers, backed by armed soldiers, were on duty at the U.S. Embassy on Green Square, where security has been stepped up for the anniversary of the terror attacks.

"Monstrosity is always lying in wait, it's out there, and it is always possible."

Jean-Pierre Raffarin
France Prime Minister

Orthodox Christian Fellowship Club

Michiana's Best Salsa Dance Party

Every Thursday 8 p.m.
$5 Cover / $3 with Student ID

Must be 21 with valid ID

Club Landing • 1717 Lincolnway East • South Bend, IN

Bachata • Samba

Tired Of The Same Old Steps?

• Free Dance Lessons
• Chicago's Best Salsa DJ's

All are invited to the first meeting of the year on Thursday, September 12 at 9:00pm in 108 DeBartolo.

For more information please email us at jlokhamp@nd.edu

Wednesday, September 11, 2002
The Observer • INTERNATIONAL NEWS
page 9

Rakia is on alert for the 2002 World Cup, the most populous Muslim nation

"When we know that the al-Qaeda network is still far from defeated," Ambassador Ralph Royce said. "We must always remember the attacks."

"The absurd and bellicose logic of terrorism also feeds on the fear that it provokes."

Italy assigned 4,000 soldiers to protect "sensitive sites," while Belgium ordered "strict vigilance" for its security authorities. German police said they were stepping up security at Frankfurt airport, continental Europe's biggest.

"Now, we always have to consider the unthinkable," Belgian Interior Minister Antoine Duquenne said.

The U.S. State Department warned Americans to remain especially vigilant, saying there was a "continuing threat of terrorist actions, which may target civilians and include suicide operations."

About 10 unarmed London police officers, backed by armed soldiers, were on duty at the U.S. Embassy on Green Square, where security has been stepped up for the anniversary of the terror attacks.

"Monstrosity is always lying in wait, it's out there, and it is always possible."

Jean-Pierre Raffarin
France Prime Minister

Orthodox Christian Fellowship Club

Michiana's Best Salsa Dance Party

Every Thursday 8 p.m.
$5 Cover / $3 with Student ID

Must be 21 with valid ID

Club Landing • 1717 Lincolnway East • South Bend, IN

Bachata • Samba

Tired Of The Same Old Steps?

• Free Dance Lessons
• Chicago's Best Salsa DJ's

All are invited to the first meeting of the year on Thursday, September 12 at 9:00pm in 108 DeBartolo.

For more information please email us at jlokhamp@nd.edu
The Observer
The Observer is the independent, daily newspaper published in print and online by the students of the University of Notre Dame de la Reine and Saint Mary's College. Editorial content, including advertisements, is not sponsored by or affiliated with the administration of either institution. The Observer reserves the right to refuse advertisements based on content.

Policies
The Observer is the independent, daily newspaper published in print and online by the students of the University of Notre Dame de la Reine and Saint Mary's College. Editorial content, including advertisements, is not sponsored by or affiliated with the administration of either institution. The Observer reserves the right to refuse advertisements based on content.

The news is reported as accurately and objectively as possible. Unsolicited editorials represent the opinions of the majority of the Editors of the Observer. Assistant Managing Editor and department editors.

Contact Us
Office Manager/General Info.: 631-7471
Fax: 631-4027
Advertising:
631-4542
observer@nd.edu

Managing Editor/Art/Dr., MS.: 631-5451
Managing Editor/Art/Dr., MS.: 631-5513
News:
631-5525
observer.campus@nd.edu

Editors:
631-4542
observer.campus@nd.edu

Scene:
631-5440
observer.scene@nd.edu

Sports:
631-5473
observer.sports@nd.edu

Saint Mary's:
631-4324
observer.saintmarys@nd.edu

Photo:
631-8767

Systems/Web Administrators:
631-4859

The Observer Online
Visit our Web site at: http://observer.nd.edu for daily updates of campus news, sports, features and opinion columns, as well as comments and reviews.

Fly the flag proudly
It is with a heavy heart that I read Anna Nussbaum's letter printed in The Observer Sept. 4. While I expect to see a certain degree of liberalism from some college students, I saddened me to no end that even Domers can be so misguided. There has been an American flag flown in the front yard of my house every day since July 4, 1975. It flew at half-staff from Sept. 11, 2001 until our president asked that flags be returned to full-staff. It will fly again at half-staff this Sept. 11.

There are people on my street that are not of the United States, and some are not American citizens. Am I not being "hostile" to them by flying an American flag? I spent part of my summer in Canada and would never again give a thought to asking them not to fly a Canadian flag because I felt they were being inhospitable. I expect the same from people who are not American and who live on my street, are at Notre Dame or are guests anywhere else in our country.

When our Marines (you know, the men who die to give you freedom) capped two Jima, did they put up an Earth flag? When my grandfather, an Italian-born American immigrant who fought (to protect your freedom) in the American Navy, did, did they lay on Earth Day flag on his casket? The NYC firefighters raised a flag at Ground Zero after America (not Earth) was attacked by Muslim terrorists, was it an Earth flag? Do our armed forces, who are fighting at this very moment to preserve your right to hold your opinion that we should not fly American flags on the anniversary of the attack on America, wear Earth flags on their uniforms?

If you want to forget that it was America that was attacked, or you see the American flag as some sort of awful symbol, there are a number of places that call themselves colleges (Sanford, Berkeley, Kent State) where these sorts of ideas are embraced. The Notre Dame that I know is not one of them. I hope it never is.

Ms. Nussbaum suggests that this Sept. 11, I "chill with a group of people and sing." Well, I will, I will with my first grade class at our Sept. 11 prayer service at St. Charles Catholic School in Bucyrus, N.Y., USA. We will sing "God Bless America" (not "God Bless Earth"), and then the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" (Not the "Battle Hymn of Earth"), because our Republic is at battle, whether the Anna Nussbaums of the world like it or not. There is nothing wrong. Ms. Nussbaum, with a little idealism. There is nothing wrong with wanting world peace, most of us do. There is nothing wrong with holding the opinion that war is evil, even while there are brave men and women who have never met you fighting a war right now for you to keep that opinion. There is, however, something wrong with turning your back on your country. We've seen just how much the people of planet Earth are behind us in our war on terror. So you fly your Earth Flag, and I'll fly Old Glory.

Joseph F. Lombard
class of 1939

Sept. 11 observances unite students
The enduring image of Sept. 11 at Notre Dame will not only be crumbling towers and a smoke-filled New York horizon, but also 8,000 people blanketing South Quad under a pristine blue afternoon sky. Hours after hijacked planes crashed into the World Trade Center towers in New York City and the Pentagon in Washington, D.C., the Mass brought mourners together in a communual outpouring of prayer and grief.

On the first anniversary of the terrorist attacks, the lasting memory this year may be of Tuesday's candlelight vigil or today's Mass at the Hesburgh Library reflecting pool. What freezes these moments in time is not the uplifting words of priests or the beauty of a thousand candles glowing in the night sky. It's the spirit of cooperation and unity that represents the events.

Since the deadly attacks on U.S. soil a year ago, Americans have held the day of this anniversary in mind. First they grieved over it; now they're observing it. What they shouldn't do is compete over it.

While other people in other places hied over how best to remember Sept. 11, the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's community's proposed memorial applicable to all its members.

Why plan 200 Sept. 11 memorial services when two will do? Celebrating this anniversary and future anniversaries isn't about Americans putting on the best show or distancing themselves from one another with events that segre­ gates them rather than draw them closer.

What makes the memorials by the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's communities so special is their common goal. Their events weren't meant to out-do or one-­ up each other. The campuses mark the fateful date just as they do any other tragedy — in a spirit of faith and solidarity.

On campus today, students should see patriotism at its finest. The day will bring everyone together — students who studied abroad during the attacks, professors who lost family and community members who had no connection to the affected cities at all.

At a time when it's hard enough to agree on the country's military response to the war on terror, it's refreshing to see Notre Dame again offer an outlet for all students to express their various emotions about the event. On Sept. 11, Notre Dame drew students together with a Mass to unite them in mourning and prayer. One year later, it continues to encourage that spirit of community by helping students to come to terms with their emotions and memories in a collective outpouring of support and grieveance.

While students still remember the event the same way, it's encouraging that such a united front stands tall on the campuses of Notre Dame and Saint Mary's.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Observer,

Fly the flag proudly!

I am pleased to see Ms. Nussbaum's letter in The Observer Sept. 4. While I expect to see a certain degree of liberalism from some college students, I saddened me to no end that even Domers can be so misguided. There has been an American flag flown in the front yard of my house every day since July 4, 1975. It flew at half-staff from Sept. 11, 2001 until our president asked that flags be returned to full-staff. It will fly again at half-staff this Sept. 11.

There are people on my street that are not of the United States, and some are not American citizens. Am I not being "hostile" to them by flying an American flag? I spent part of my summer in Canada and would never again give a thought to asking them not to fly a Canadian flag because I felt they were being inhospitable. I expect the same from people who are not American and who live on my street, are at Notre Dame or are guests anywhere else in our country.

When our Marines (you know, the men who die to give you freedom) capped two Jima, did they put up an Earth flag? When my grandfather, an Italian-born American immigrant who fought (to protect your freedom) in the American Navy, did, did they lay on Earth Day flag on his casket? The NYC firefighters raised a flag at Ground Zero after America (not Earth) was attacked by Muslim terrorists, was it an Earth flag? Do our armed forces, who are fighting at this very moment to preserve your right to hold your opinion that we should not fly American flags on the anniversary of the attack on America, wear Earth flags on their uniforms?

If you want to forget that it was America that was attacked, or you see the American flag as some sort of awful symbol, there are a number of places that call themselves colleges (Sanford, Berkeley, Kent State) where these sorts of ideas are embraced. The Notre Dame that I know is not one of them. I hope it never is.

Ms. Nussbaum suggests that this Sept. 11, I "chill with a group of people and sing." Well, I will, I will with my first grade class at our Sept. 11 prayer service at St. Charles Catholic School in Bucyrus, N.Y., USA. We will sing "God Bless America" (not "God Bless Earth"), and then the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" (Not the "Battle Hymn of Earth"), because our Republic is at battle, whether the Anna Nussbaums of the world like it or not. There is nothing wrong. Ms. Nussbaum, with a little idealism. There is nothing wrong with wanting world peace, most of us do. There is nothing wrong with holding the opinion that war is evil, even while there are brave men and women who have never met you fighting a war right now for you to keep that opinion. There is, however, something wrong with turning your back on your country.

We've seen just how much the people of planet Earth are behind us in our war on terror. So you fly your Earth Flag, and I'll fly Old Glory.

Joseph F. Lombard
class of 1939

Sept. 10
Stephen was home from Notre Dame for Christmas, 2001. He described to us how the University had responded on Sept. 11, and that was when I knew, more than ever, that he was in a good place. Over 6,000 people had turned out for Mass on South Quad. As a member of the Notre Dame Corps, he sang with the Mass choir. Honestly, not only was I grateful he was where he was, I was also a little jealous.

We had a remarkably usual Christmas in Pennsylvania. Stephen helped out the men’s section of our parish choir on Christmas Eve, and the extended family gathered at my sister’s on the 25th. On Dec. 27, we made our usual visit to my grandmother in Queens, N.Y., over that year’s annual family visit to Lower Manhattan. We had trained to be an EMT after his junior year of high school, volunteering Fridays and Saturdays in the county and with the local ambulance corps during his senior year. Wanting to work in EMS at Notre Dame, he was told he needed to be certified as a firefighter. He took Firefighting I in Pennsylvania the summer after his freshman year and was hired as a part-timer by the Notre Dame Fire Department in August before Sept. 11. He felt part of the brotherhood of EMS workers and firefighters.

We took the subway into Manhattan early on Dec. 28. The public viewing ramp was slated to open the following Monday. Walking past the makeshift memorials and plywood barricades, we could only glimpse the site. People had laid flowers, hung pictures of loved ones and left mementos of every sort from all across our nation and the world there was a vibrant silence. Someone put a pamphlet into Firefighters. The cover photo showed people running for their lives from the smoke and deadly corpses of a collapsing tower. We kept walking and walking, seemingly around an endless perimeter, drawn to but still afraid of that unknown mystery. Barricades were manned by armed soldiers and IEDs were being examined scrupulously.

It seemed we had come nearly full circle. Our son had grown more and more silent and despairing. I finally said, “If you are sure you have to see this, and if you really do want to see it, then you have to go up to that checkpoint, explain your situation and show that soldier your credentials. We’ll wait here for you.”

He looked from the barricade to the soldier in the inner-circle ramp that went up to the site and back to us, turned and strode to the guard. We sheltered in the lee of an office building (we weren’t allowed inside because of security precautions) and watched. It was the coldest day of 2001. Stephen spoke to the soldier. He offered two IIDs. Each was thoroughly checked, each picture held up for comparison. More discussion.

Then — he’s in. Not a look back in our direction. Head down, he’s moving precisely as directed, as if in procession. (He didn’t spend all those years in Catholic school for nothing.) Up the ramp. Out of sight. Later we learned that he was told to be very careful about saying anything — that “victims’ family members could be there.”

Twelve minutes later he emerges, grim-faced as a 19-year-old can be. “Unreal doesn’t begin to describe it,” is all he can say.

We walk the long way back. He wants to leave his Notre Dame Fire Department shirt at the site for posterity. By this time there’s a crowd — we start to get separated. He points and calls out, “I’ll meet you there!”

We slowly make our way “there,” a triangular street corner, with sawhorse barricades I can lean on, wearily grateful. I still have the pamphlet that was pressed into my hand two hours earlier. It offers carefully non-denominational spiritual comfort. I slowly realize that the horrifying photo on the cover was taken from the spot on which I am standing. Now I’m the silent one.

Notre Dame, Our Mother, pray for us.

Joanne M. Carroll Dtownsing, Pa. Sept. 6
Graves' first career start a shutout for Reds

Associated Press

CINCINNATI Russell Branyan hit a solo homer to back Danny Graves and one that led the Reds to their second straight win since Los Angeles' Terry Clark hit a pinch-homer in the 10th inning Tuesday night.

Graves, Cincinnati's 31st-youngest pitcher since the Pirates Pirates 3-0 Tuesday night.

Cincinnati, which gave Graves his first career start, got its sixth shutout of the season and sent Pittsburgh to its 14th straight loss. The Pirates (63-82) are assured of a 100-game losing season.

The win of 13.153 was Cincinnati's third-smallest of the season.

Branyan's sixth-inning homer off Kip Wells (12-14), his 10th of the season, since the Reds acquired him from Cleveland on June 7, cleared the 40-foot "batter's eye" wall located 393 feet away in center field. He is the 10th Reds hitter and first since Mike Hargrove in 1976 to clear the wall since it was built before the 2001 season.

Jose Guillen and Aaron Boone added run-scoring hits in the eighth.

In Cincinnati's (6-10) pitched 3-1 in relief of Grady Goodwin (1-4), who allowed three runs in five innings. Armando Almanza entered the game late in the seventh.

Travis Hedges (1-0) earned the win in his 11th big league debut. Mets starter Pedro Martinez (2-3) gave up four runs and was ejected in the fifth inning after he plunked Gary Sheffield in the arm with a pitch. The Braves, who have baseball's best record, missed a chance to clinch themselves by losing Sunday to Montreal.

They were idle Monday when the National League Series began at Philadelphia, handing the Braves another division championship.

The team noted the accomplishment before the game, showing season highlights on the video board and unveiling a 2002 pennant alongside the 10 others that have been won since 1991.

New York's Roger Cedeno dampened the mood on the final pitch of the game, hitting into the center-field seats with the bases loaded.

Williams gave up four more runs in the second, including a mammoth homer by Mike Piazza. The left-hander was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the bottom half, leaving him with the shortest start of his career.

Moss might have escaped the second without any damage if Clipper Jones had not lost a flyball in the lights, giving Joe McEwing a lead-off double.

Wolf, who had been hitless in six at bats against the Mets, went 3-for-4, giving up five runs and seven hits in seven innings.

After falling behind, Philadelphia got a run from Tomas Perez's second-pitch RBI grounder, then tied it in the fifth when Bobby Abreu hit Wolf a double and scored on a single by Travis Lee, who had three hits.

Abreu was thrown out at the plate in the 10th inning after trying to score on a single by RussLM Lewis Castillo, who took the throw from Kevin Millar after Pat Burrell doubled.

CARDINALS, Brewers 3, 8 -

Matt Morris, activated from the disabled list before the game, struck out eight in seven innings Tuesday night as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Milwaukee Brewers 8-3.

Edward Perez hit a three-run homer and a sacrifice fly as his team hit a solo shot for the Cardinals, who have won seven straight for the first time since a nine-game streak from Sept. 8-22 last year.

St. Louis maintained a 51-game lead over second-place Houston and Central.

Wesley (16-7), who went on to complete the game, allowed only one batter through the fifth and the Cardinals rewarded him with a five-run outburst in the bottom of the inning.

"I'm not a big home-run hitter so it surprised me as much as it surprised everyone else," Redmond said.

"Actually I foresaw what was going to happen," Manns said about the double switch, made to allow Van Well and a pinch hitter for two pinch
two nights.

Mando hit a bases- loaded triple in the first inning for the Marlings, who sent the Pirates to their eighth loss in nine games.

"I don't see those things happening to me," Morris said.

"I'm not a big home-run hitter so it surprised me as much as it surprised everyone else," Redmond said.

"Actually I foresaw what was going to happen," Manns said about the double switch, made to allow Van Well and a pinch hitter for two pinch
two nights.

Mando hit a bases- loaded triple in the first inning for the Marlings, who sent the Pirates to their eighth loss in nine games.

"I don't see those things happening to me," Morris said.

"But I'm not a big home-run hitter so it surprised me as much as it surprised everyone else," Redmond said.

"Actually I foresaw what was going to happen," Manns said about the double switch, made to allow Van Well and a pinch hitter for two pinch
two nights.

Mando hit a bases- loaded triple in the first inning for the Marlings, who sent the Pirates to their eighth loss in nine games.

"I don't see those things happening to me," Morris said.

"But I'm not a big home-run hitter so it surprised me as much as it surprised everyone else," Redmond said.

"Actually I foresaw what was going to happen," Manns said about the double switch, made to allow Van Well and a pinch hitter for two pinch
two nights.

Mando hit a bases- loaded triple in the first inning for the Marlings, who sent the Pirates to their eighth loss in nine games.

"I don't see those things happening to me," Morris said.

"I'm not a big home-run hitter and feeling relaxed, waiting for the second game," Redmond said.

"But you always have to be prepared and when they told me I was going to pinch hit, I didn't even have a chance to think about it and had to catch a get ready.

He connected on Randy Wolf (1-0) for his first home run of the season. It followed a leadoff home run by MIA, Mordecai, who had three hits.

They are the 18th major league franchise to record at least 10 consecutive losing seasons, a group that included the 1945 to 1955 Reds.

The win of 13.153 was Cincinnati's third-smallest of the season.

Branyan's sixth-inning homer off Kip Wells (12-14), his 10th of the season, since the Reds acquired him from Cleveland on June 7, cleared the 40-foot "batter's eye" wall located 393 feet away in center field. He is the 10th Reds hitter and first since Mike Hargrove in 1976 to clear the wall since it was built before the 2001 season.

Jose Guillen and Aaron Boone added run-scoring hits in the eighth.

In Cincinnati's (6-10) pitched 3-1 in relief of Grady Goodwin (1-4), who allowed three runs in five innings. Armando Almanza entered the game late in the seventh.

Travis Hedges (1-0) earned the win in his 11th big league debut. Mets starter Pedro Martinez (2-3) gave up four runs and was ejected in the fifth inning after he plunked Gary Sheffield in the arm with a pitch. The Braves, who have baseball's best record, missed a chance to clinch themselves by losing Sunday to Montreal.

They were idle Monday when the National League Series began at Philadelphia, handing the Braves another division championship.

The team noted the accomplishment before the game, showing season highlights on the video board and unveiling a 2002 pennant alongside the 10 others that have been won since 1991.

New York's Roger Cedeno dampened the mood on the final pitch of the game, hitting into the center-field seats with the bases loaded.

Williams gave up four more runs in the second, including a mammoth homer by Mike Piazza. The left-hander was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the bottom half, leaving him with the shortest start of his career.

Moss might have escaped the second without any damage if Clipper Jones had not lost a flyball in the lights, giving Joe McEwing a lead-off double.

Wolf, who had been hitless in six at bats against the Mets, went 3-for-4, giving up five runs and seven hits in seven innings.

After falling behind, Philadelphia got a run from Tomas Perez's second-pitch RBI grounder, then tied it in the fifth when Bobby Abreu hit Wolf a double and scored on a single by Travis Lee, who had three hits.

Abreu was thrown out at the plate in the 10th inning after trying to score on a single by RussLM Lewis Castillo, who took the throw from Kevin Millar after Pat Burrell doubled.

CARDINALS, Brewers 3, 8 -

Matt Morris, activated from the disabled list before the game, struck out eight in seven innings Tuesday night as the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Milwaukee Brewers 8-3.

Edward Perez hit a three-run homer and a sacrifice fly as his team hit a solo shot for the Cardinals, who have won seven straight for the first time since a nine-game streak from Sept. 8-22 last year.

St. Louis maintained a 51-game lead over second-place Houston and Central.

Wesley (16-7), who went on to complete the game, allowed only one batter through the fifth and the Cardinals rewarded him with a five-run outburst in the bottom of the inning.

"I'm not a big home-run hitter so it surprised me as much as it surprised everyone else," Redmond said.

"Actually I foresaw what was going to happen," Manns said about the double switch, made to allow Van Well and a pinch hitter for two pinch
two nights.

Mando hit a bases- loaded triple in the first inning for the Marlings, who sent the Pirates to their eighth loss in nine games.

"I don't see those things happening to me," Morris said.

"But I'm not a big home-run hitter so it surprised me as much as it surprised everyone else," Redmond said.

"Actually I foresaw what was going to happen," Manns said about the double switch, made to allow Van Well and a pinch hitter for two pinch
two nights.

Mando hit a bases- loaded triple in the first inning for the Marlings, who sent the Pirates to their eighth loss in nine games.

"I don't see those things happening to me," Morris said.
AMERICAN LEAGUE

Burkett gets win in Red Sox rout of Rays

Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — John Burkett snapped a seven-game winless streak and Manny Ramirez homered for the second straight night as the Boston Red Sox beat the Tampa Bay Devil Rays 15-2 Tuesday night.

Doug Mirabelli and Nomar Garciaparra each hit a two-run homer for Boston, which began the day 7 1/2 games behind the Anaheim Angels in the AL wild-card race.

Burkett (11-7) gave up one run and six hits in seven innings for his first win since July 27. He had been 0-4 with a 4.87 ERA in his last seven starts.

Ramirez also hit an RBI double. He has seven homers and 20 RBIs against Tampa Bay this season.

Achey Huff extended his career-high hitting streak to 17 games with a fifth-inning homer for the Devil Rays.

Joe Kennedy (7-11) lost his third straight start, giving up seven runs and seven hits in six innings. The Devil Rays (46-96) have the fewest wins by an AL team after 144 games since the 1973 Toronto Blue Jays were 46-98.

Rivers added an RBI single to right in the seventh inning, giving him three RBIs on the day and four in his career as he tries to win a spot on New York's postseason roster.

Weaver (9-11), making his second start since Aug. 7, allowed four runs and retired 20 of his last 21 batters. He has had a tough time cracking the Yankees' deep starting rotation since being acquired from Detroit on July 5.

Steve Karsay pitched the ninth inning for his 11th save and seventh straight since Mariano Rivera went on the disabled list Aug. 7.

The Yankees didn't walk a batter for the sixth straight game, extending their walkless streak to 58 innings since Pettitte walked Boston's Nomar Garciaparra in the fifth inning last Wednesday.

Only 8.875 fans showed up for opener, a makeup of a June 6 rainout — New York's smallest crowd of the year.

With one out, Vander Wal scored on a passed ball by Brook Fordyce, narrowly beating Fordyce's throw to Sidney Ponson (7-6).

With one out in the fourth, Mondesi hit his 26th homer, giving the Yankees 209 on the season — second-most in franchise history. Led by Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle, New York hit 240 homers in 1961.

The Angels have won seven straight since Mariano Rivera hit his 28th homer in 1961.

The Yankees won seven of eight, reducing their magic number to 10 for clinching their second straight since Mariano Rivera hit his 28th homer in 1961.

Wright and Alex Arias, John Vander Wal, Chris Widger and Ron Coomer.

But it proved to be enough against the Orioles, who have lost 16 of 17 games.

After Chris Richard's RBI double gave Baltimore a 1-0 lead in the second inning, the Yankees tied it in the third.

John Vander Wal and Rivera opened the inning with line drives to left field. Marty Cordova just missed on diving attempts on both balls, putting runners on second and third.

With one out, Vander Wal scored on a passed ball by Brook Fordyce, narrowly beating Fordyce's throw to Sidney Ponson (7-6).

With one out in the fourth, Mondesi hit his 26th homer, giving the Yankees 209 on the season — second-most in franchise history. Led by Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle, New York hit 240 homers in 1961.

Rivers added an RBI single to right in the seventh inning, giving him three RBIs on the day and four in his career as he tries to win a spot on New York's postseason roster.

Weaver (9-11), making his second start since Aug. 7, allowed four runs and retired 20 of his last 21 batters. He has had a tough time cracking the Yankees' deep starting rotation since being acquired from Detroit on July 5.

Steve Karsay pitched the ninth inning for his 11th save and seventh straight since Mariano Rivera went on the disabled list Aug. 7.

The Yankees didn't walk a batter for the sixth straight game, extending their walkless streak to 58 innings since Pettitte walked Boston's Nomar Garciaparra in the fifth inning last Wednesday.

Only 8.875 fans showed up for opener, a makeup of a June 6 rainout — New York's smallest crowd of the year.

Pettitte left with a 2-1 lead after giving up a one-out double in the eighth to Luis Matos. After an error by first baseman Nick Johnson, Ramiro Mendoza got out of a first-and-third jam by getting Jerry Hairston to hit into a double play.

Mendoza allowed a ninth-inning homer to Tony Batista before Miko Stanton got the last out for his fourth save.

Baltimore starter Jason Johnson (4-13), bothered by an upset stomach, allowed two runs and four hits in 6 1-3 innings.

Blue Jays 5, Indians 4

On a night when a bunch of rookies played like veterans, a veteran made a rookie mistake that cost the Cleveland Indians the game.

Reliever Mark Wohlers made a throwing error in the ninth inning that allowed Shannon Stewart to score the go-ahead run as the Toronto Blue Jays beat the Indians 5-4 Tuesday night.

With runners on first and second and one out, Vernon Wells smashed a grounder back to Wohlers (2-4), who spun around and made a wild throw to second base.

Wohlers had plenty of time to wait for shortstop Omar Visquel to get to second and make the throw, but just rushed it, Indians interim manager Joel Skinner said.

"I just turned and fired and threw it to nobody," Wohlers said. "I knew as soon as I let it go, the result wasn't going to be too good."

The Indians and Blue Jays, both rebuilding, have a combined 25 rookies on their rosters.

Eleven rookies started Tuesday's game including both starting pitchers. Cleveland was mathematically eliminated from contention with the loss.

Indians catcher Victor Martinez, making his major league debut, hit a single to shallow left to drive in a pair of runs in the seventh and tie it at 4.

Martinez's first career hit and RBI chased Justin Miller, who was in control through six innings.

"I just threw my hands toward the ball and finally I got a little blooper, but I'll take it anyway," Martinez said. "I was so happy. That's all I can say."}

Ellis Burks hit his 28th home run, a two-run shot in the fourth.

MLB

Angels' Washburn under investigation for sexual assault

Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Angels ace Jarrod Washburn is under investigation by Anaheim police in an alleged sexual assault, the team said Tuesday.

The 28-year-old Washburn has not been charged with anything yet but has been turned over to the Orange County district attorney's office, said Scott Boras, Washburn's agent.

"This case is still under investigation and unfortunately, because of the nature of the case, we're not at liberty to go into details of exactly what is occurring and what may have occurred," said Sgt. Rick Martinez, an Anaheim police spokesman.

Angels spokesman Tim Mead said the investigation involves an alleged sexual assault.

KABC-TV, citing an unidentified source, reported a 16-year-old girl called police from an Orange County hospital room on Sept. 1 and made the allegation.

Write for Sports. 1-4543.
This is Citigroup.

We invite you to attend our recruitment presentation at 6:00 p.m. on Thursday, September 12, 2002 in the Center for Continuing Education, McKenna Hall, Room 210.

This year, her research helped launch a new business model in biotech.

In her final year, Janice spent hours examining literary manuscripts in The New York Public Library. Fourteen months later, she returned as an investment bank analyst to research a bio-tech startup. Janice believes this could only have happened at Citigroup. With a revolutionary business model that is quickly changing the industry, Citigroup recruits ambitious, highly talented people and allows them to find their own path to their potential. To find out more, come to one of our on-campus presentations or have a look online. Who knows? Perhaps Wuthering Heights is closer to Wall Street than you think. Citigroup.com © 2002 Salomon Smith Barney Inc. Member SIPC. Citigroup and the Umbrella Device are trademarks and service marks of Citicorp and are used and registered throughout the world. Salomon Smith Barney and Citibank are affiliated companies under the common control of Citigroup. Citibank and Salomon Smith Barney are equal opportunity employers M/F/D/V.

TENNIS

Sampras, Agassi will sit out Davis Cup to rest

NEW YORK

The all-American U.S. Open final between Pete Sampras and Andre Agassi took enough out of both players to keep them off the Davis Cup team.

Sampras beat Agassi to win the U.S. Open on Sunday, and told team captain Patrick McEnroe a day later that he wasn’t ready to play in next weekend’s Davis Cup semifinal match against France in Paris.

“I think Pete needs time to digest what happened and decide what he wants to do,” McEnroe said Tuesday. “I think he’s just worn out, and I certainly understand that.”

Once the United States’ top two players passed on the chance, McEnroe chose Andy Roddick, James Blake, Todd Martin and Mardy Fish to play France on the clay at Roland Garros, home of the French Open.

Roddick and Blake will play singles, and there is a good chance that Blake and Martin will comprise the doubles team. That pair beat Mahesh Bhupathi and Max Mirnyi, the U.S. Open doubles champions, to win the ATP Tour’s event in Cincinnati last month.

Sampras eliminated Roddick in the U.S. Open quarterfinals en route to his first singles title since winning Wimbledon in 2000.

“It’s time for the younger guys to take the baton and run with it,” said McEnroe, whose term as captain was extended by two years on Tuesday. “This is a big step, we’re relying on them.”

Sebastien Grosjean, Arnaud Clement, Fabrice Santoro and Michael Llodra were chosen last week to represent defending champion France in the semifinal, scheduled for Sept. 20-22.

The United States and France have met 13 times in Davis Cup play, with the Americans holding a 7-6 advantage.

The last match between France and the United States at Roland Garros was the 1932 final, which France won 3-2. France hasn’t played there since 1982, when it defeated Czechoslovakia in a quarterfinal.

“I think our chances are excellent,” McEnroe said. “Obviously, playing in Paris will be difficult, but we’re looking forward to it. The guys really wanted to play at Roland Garros.”
Miami receiver to miss next game after surgery

Associated Press

CORAL GABLES, Fla. - Miami receiver Andre Johnson will miss Saturday's game at Temple after suffering a shoulder injury during practice.

Johnson, who leads the team with seven catches for 100 yards and two touchdowns, had surgery Monday to remove loose particles. His arm was in a sling Tuesday, and Hurricanes coach Larry Coker said Johnson will not practice this week.

Coker did not set a date for Johnson's return but said he expects him to play Sept. 21 against Boston College.

The 6-foot-5 junior caught four passes for 56 yards in the top-ranked Hurricanes' 41-16 win over Florida on Saturday, playing with discomfort in his shoulder for the second consecutive week.

"It's something that's been bothering him, and something needed to be done," Coker said.

The surgery comes before what should be the easiest part of Miami's schedule - a three-game stretch against Temple, Boston College and Connecticut. After that, the Hurricanes have a week off before playing No. 5 Florida State.

"He was hurting a little bit last week, but it was a big game and he toughed it out," teammate Vernon Carey said. "Now he wants to get ready for the rest of the season."

With Johnson out, the Hurricanes will turn to Ethelric Sands, Kevin Beard and Roscoe Parrish. Coker said freshmen Akeem Jolla and Ryan Moore also will play Saturday against the Owls, a team Miami has outscored 180-24 over the last four meetings.

The Hurricanes also lost defensive tackle Santonio Thomas for the rest of the season. Thomas, a 6-foot-4, 302-pound junior, tore a chest muscle against the Gators.

He will redshirt this season, leaving him with two years of eligibility.

Thomas played sparingly the last two seasons. He was a backup behind William Joseph, Vince Wilfork and Matt Walters this year.

"He's in good spirits and in great shape," Coker said. "He's very upbeat about it. He said, 'Coach, you wanted to redshirt me anyway, didn't you?' I said, 'Maybe, maybe not.'"

Friedgen revamps Terps' ailing running game

By ANDREW LEVINE
Maryland Diamondback

COLLEGE PARK, Md. - The biggest difference in the Maryland Terrapins' running game Saturday against Akron may not have been the team's 30 carries or its 209 rushing yards, but rather the way the running backs ran - straight ahead.

In his short tenure as the Terps' coach, Ralph Friedgen has hammered home the importance of his running backs running from north to south. Many attribute his philosophy to the success of junior tailback Bruce Crawford, who improved greatly in that area last season on his way to becoming the ACC Offensive Player of the Year.

That element of the Terps' game was absent in their season-opening loss to Notre Dame, and they needed it to come from sophomore tailback Jason Crawford, who joined the Terps last season with a reputation as a big, punishing back.

Save for his first few runs against Notre Dame, Crawford didn't have many plays up the middle, either by design or last-second adjustment.

A decidedly different Crawford showed up Saturday when he entered the game in the second quarter. The 6-foot-2, 220-pound stiff-armed and bullied his way to 29 yards on six carries, including a six-yard touchdown run off a pitch from junior quarterback Scott McBrien early in the second quarter.

On his first carry, he took it straight up the middle and rumbled through a group of Akron defenders for a 12-yard gain.

"I tried to get in Jason's ear because I noticed against Notre Dame he was running more left-to-right," junior offensive guard Lamar Bryant said. "I told him earlier in the week he's 220 pounds and there aren't many backs in the ACC that are 220 pounds and if he tries to shake someone I'm going to hit him. I told him to just run north-south and run everyone over and when I saw him in the open field running someone over I was like, 'I pays attention.'"

Meanwhile, freshman Mario Merrills and senior Chris Jones - both elusive backs - were more decisive in their running and often capped off their carries with an extra burst.

"I saw it from all of them," Friedgen said of his team's hard-nosed running. "Even Mario, who was making cuts and running east-west most of the time, finished off going north-south. Their hard runs were pretty much right on."
Cavaliers acquire Cleaves in trade with Kings

Associated Press

CLEVELAND - Needing another point guard after trading Andre Miller earlier this summer, the Cleveland Cavaliers acquired Mateen Cleaves on Tuesday from the Sacramento Kings for forward Darius Miles.

After dealing Miller to the Los Angeles Clippers in July for forward Darius Miles, the Cavs were left with Bimbo Coles as the only true point guard on their roster. The Cavs are hoping the 25-year-old Cleaves, who was buried on Sacramento's bench behind Mike Bibby and Bobby Jackson, can solve some of their backcourt issues - and for forward Darius Miles, the 6-foot-8 forward from the Sacramento Kings for Cleveland.

Matted Cleaves

"I'm so excited because I really feel like I'm going to play and that's all I've ever wanted," Cleaves said.

He averaged 5.4 points and 2.7 assists in 78 games as a rookie with the Cavs last season before having knee surgery. Rookie Wagner played some point guard in college, but he's better suited as a shooting guard and the Cavs don't want to use him at the point unless they have to.

The 23-year-old Jones averaged 8.3 points and 6.0 rebounds in his first opportunity for him to earn playing time with the Kings.

"He's got something to prove," Cavs general manager Jim Paxson said. "There's an opportunity for him to earn minutes here. He's excited. He wants to play."

Cleveland is looking to add another guard, and Paxson said the team has been talking to 36-year-old free agent Rod Strickland. "We're having discussions, but nothing is imminent," said Paxson, who indicated the club might use its trade exception to acquire another ball handler.

For now, Cleaves gives the Cavs an insurance policy in case of injury to one of the injured point guards.

"It's a good spot, which is where we wanted to get," said Kings coach Rick Adelman. "We felt like we didn't need three point guards. This is going to add to our depth and flexibility."

Jones became expendable after the acquired Miles and re-signed restricted free agent Ricky Davis.

Murray recently released a statement expressing his displeasure with the Cavs' latest rebuilding effort, he closed by saying, "Play me or trade me." Paxson said he spoke with Murray's agent last week.

"I told him we expect Lamond Murray to come to camp to compete," Paxson said. "If something can be worked out and Lamond gets the best thing Lamond can do is be ready to play.

PGA Tour

PGA may cut Tour by 18 tourney players

Associated Press

The PGA Tour policy board is considering reducing the number of players in as many as 10 tournaments next year.

"It's a matter of daylight more than anything else," Olin Browne, a policy board member, said over the weekend at the Canadian Open. "It's one- out, two-out play. The idea is not to warm up in the dark or finish in the dark."

That was the case at the Phoenix Open this year, one of the events targeted for change. Because of frost delays and a late start, 21 players didn't finish the first round and 25 players had to return Saturday morning to complete the second round. The tour policy is for full-field events to have 144 players before April, and 156 players during daylight-saving times (with a few exceptions). Browne said the board has proposed reducing fields by 12 players at certain events. Among those targeted are the Sony Open, Phoenix Open and Nissan Open early in the season, along with Greensboro and Tampa Bay in the fall. The issue now goes to the Players Advisory Council, which will poll PGA Tour members. A final decision is expected at the next policy board meeting in November.

"Most members are not in favor," Browne said. "The board isn't in favor of it, either. I think we all agree that everyone should have as many opportunities to play as possible. But we should be able to start and finish in daylight."
College Football Polls

AP

1. LSU (16)
2. Texas (1)
3. Oklahoma (3)
4. Tennessee (9)
5. Florida State (1)
6. Michigan (1)
7. Nebraska (9)
8. Ohio State (7)
9. Virginia Tech (10)
10. Miami (7)
11. Washington State (1)
12. Oregon (1)
13. Florida (1)
14. Washington (14)
15. Michigan State (16)
16. Wisconsin (10)
17. Marshall (19)
18, Mississippi (20)
19. Colorado (13)
20. North Carolina State (18)
21. Notre Dame (21)
22. LSU (20)
23. Texas A&M (23)
24. BYU (24)
25. Penn State (25)

Coaches

1. LSU (16)
2. Oklahoma (3)
3. Texas (1)
4. Tennessee (9)
5. Florida State (1)
6. Michigan (1)
7. Nebraska (9)
8. Ohio State (7)
9. Virginia Tech (10)
10. Miami (7)
11. Washington State (1)
12. Oregon (1)
13. Florida (1)
14. Washington (14)
15. Michigan State (16)
16. Wisconsin (10)
17. Marshall (19)
18. Mississippi (20)
19. Colorado (13)
20. North Carolina State (18)
21. Notre Dame (21)
22. LSU (20)
23. Texas A&M (23)
24. BYU (24)
25. Penn State (25)

Major League Baseball

American League East

Team | record | per cent | GB
--- | --- | --- | ---
New York | 86-51 | .616 | 7-1
Boston | 83-54 | .611 | 3.6
Baltimore | 76-71 | .513 | 6.5
Toronto | 75-70 | .515 | 7.5
Miami | 62-88 | .426 | 12.5

American League Central

Team | record | per cent | GB
--- | --- | --- | ---
Chicago | 83-57 | .594 | 7-3
Cleveland | 80-61 | .551 | 10.5
Kansas City | 73-73 | .500 | 21
Detroit | 79-73 | .515 | 22.5
Texas | 67-77 | .483 | 24.5

American League West

Team | record | per cent | GB
--- | --- | --- | ---
Oakland | 91-62 | .598 | 0-0
Texas | 86-68 | .568 | 3.5
Seattle | 84-72 | .552 | 5-5
Chicago | 81-69 | .542 | 7.5
Louisville | 86-68 | .568 | 10.5

National League East

Team | record | per cent | GB
--- | --- | --- | ---
Atlanta | 76-71 | .513 | 2-2
Philadelphia | 79-67 | .548 | 4-4
Montreal | 71-74 | .500 | 6-6
Florida | 71-74 | .500 | 12.5
New York | 67-77 | .483 | 17.5

National League Central

Team | record | per cent | GB
--- | --- | --- | ---
St. Louis | 81-69 | .542 | 3-5
Arizona | 80-64 | .542 | 7-7
San Francisco | 80-64 | .542 | 10-10
Los Angeles | 76-68 | .529 | 17.5
Colorado | 70-59 | .530 | 22.5
Milwaukee | 59-74 | .455 | 37.5

National League West

Team | record | per cent | GB
--- | --- | --- | ---
Arizona | 80-64 | .542 | 7-7
San Francisco | 80-64 | .542 | 10-10
Los Angeles | 76-68 | .529 | 17.5
Colorado | 70-59 | .530 | 22.5
San Diego | 68-73 | .478 | 33.5

The Associated Press

Webber speaks publically about indictment

SACRAMENTO, Calif. - Chris Webber, making his first public statement since being indicted on federal charges, said Tuesday he did not lie to a grand jury and that he tried to help prosecutors in their case against a University of Michigan booster about his dealings with Ed Martin.

Webber, who led Michigan's "Fab Five" team to two NCAA title games, is facing the charge of lying to the grand jury and promising to fight the indictment.

"This case is about a man who befriended kids like myself, preying on our naivete, our innocence, claiming that he loved us and that he wanted to support us, but later wanting to cash in on that love and support that we thought was free," Webber said.

Webber, who was speaking to kids like himself about the pitfalls of athletics and those who prey on kids and young families. Hopefully, they can learn from this experience," he said.

Martin pleaded guilty in May in conspiracy to launder money, admitting he took gambling money, commingling it with other money to other NBA boosters.

Washington Wizards coach Doug Collins said Tuesday that Jordan hoped the insert would get his foot in better alignment and "take away some of the pain on outside of the joint" of his right knee.

"Based on last night's phone conversation, he's fine," Collins said.

Jordan's usual position last season was starting guards. Larry Hughes and Richard Hamilton are penciled in as his starting guards.

The Wizards on Tuesday signed Bryan Russell to start at small forward - Jordan's usual position last season - and Collins said recently signed Larry Hughes and Richard Hamilton are penciled in as his starting guards.

Webber, who had just finished a workout, said he was speaking out because "I wanted to show my supporters I am not running away from the situation."

In Brief

Baseball not affected by security

Major league baseball's schedule was unaffected by Tuesday's decision by the government to raise the United States' security alert warning to "high risk."

Sixteen games were scheduled for Wednesday, and baseball spokesman Rich Levin said no changes were planned.

The commissioner's office said last week that all major league night games on Sept. 11 will pause at 9:11 p.m. local time for a moment of silence in remembrance of last year's terrorist attacks.

Jordan fitted with shoe insert

Michael Jordan was fitted with a shoe insert this week to deal with discomfort in his knee as he confronts whether to return for another NBA season.

Washington Wizards coach Doug Collins said Tuesday that Jordan had surgery on the knee in February, cutting short the first season of his second comeback. He had said he plans to play another season if his health allows, and that his final decision won't be announced until shortly before the Wizards open training camp Sept. 1.

Collins said Jordan had surgery on the knee in February, cutting short the first season of his second comeback. He has said he plans to play another season if his health allows, and that his final decision won't be announced until shortly before the Wizards open training camp Sept. 1.

Collins said Jordan's future decision hinges on how he feels during a lunchtime trip Monday to his favorite fast-food spot, a custard stand in the suburban area of Waunakee.

"I haven't talked to him today," said Prieb, the husband of Brewers president Wendy Selig-Priest. "Based on last night's phone conversation, he's fine."
Irish sweep out 3-set victory over Crusaders

WOMENS VOLLEYBALL

Irish sweeps out 3-set victory over Crusaders

By MATT LOZAR
Sports Writer

For five consecutive seasons, Notre Dame has played Valparaiso in volleyball, and the result has been the same every time—an Irish victory.

Tuesday night, the Irish (5-2) swept the Crusaders 30-23, 30-21, 30-18 at the sweltering Valparaiso Athletic and Recreation Center.

"It was very hot and humid. The gym is not air-conditioned," Notre Dame coach Debbie Brown said. "I don't think it really affected us at all. We had plenty of water, but I don't think it affected our play at all."

The Irish started off slowly in game 1, but were able to take advantage of Crusader errors to seize control. Leading 12-10, Notre Dame won 14 of the next 18 points. During the run, setter Kristen Kinder had two of her six kills. The junior tri-captain finished with a game-high 750 hitting percentage and 11 digs.

"I thought we had a slow start, then we ended up playing pretty well," Brown said. "It was a good opportunity to play a large amount of people. I thought the people off the bench played especially well."

Freshman Meg Henican contributed off the bench with solid play in the back row, recording three digs.

Junior Kim Fletcher and freshman Kelly Corbett each had hitting percentages of .333. In game 2, Emily Loomis recorded five of her team-high 11 kills and registered two blocks. Notre Dame trailed 5-4 early in the game and built a 14-10 lead by capitalizing on nine Valparaiso errors.

"The Irish took control of the game and won by seven," Brown said. "Notre Dame built its lead in game 3 in a similar fashion to the first two.

With a 10-8 lead, the Irish won eight straight points en route to a 12-point win. Middle blocker Katie Neff led the charge with four kills and a block in the game. The team in general was just playing better and better as the match went on, so it was easier to contribute in game three."

Neff finished the match with seven kills, three blocks and a .462 hitting percentage.

Outside hitter Marlon Rugan led Valparaiso with nine kills and 12 digs.

Over all, the Crusaders combined for a team hitting percentage of .070 and had only four blocks. By comparison, the Irish hit .227 as a team and recorded 10 blocks.

"I think the way we started wasn't good in terms of going into matches this weekend," Brown said. "We did play better in game 2 and even better in game 3. The main thing we are taking home here is to play better from the beginning. It is going to be a challenging weekend."

"We are looking forward to the games in our tournament," Neff said. "That's going to be big for us. We are expecting to play well."

This weekend, the Irish return to the Joyce Center to host the Golden Dome Invitational. Notre Dame begins play in the tournament Friday against Northwestern at 3:45.

Contact Matt Lozar at mlozar@nd.edu

MENS SOCCER

Irish earn player of week honors

By BRYAN KRONK
Sports Writer

The accolades just keep on coming for the Notre Dame men's soccer team.

After garnering its highest national ranking in school history— at No. 5—it was announced Monday that two Irish players received individual honors for their outstanding play last week.

Sophomore Kevin Goldthwaite earned co-Big East Player of the Week honors for his solid defensive efforts against Seton Hall on Saturday. Goldthwaite tallied two assists against the Pirates, bringing his season total to three.

In addition, Irish freshman midfielder Erich Braun was named to the 11th college soccer News Team of the Week for last week. His two goals against Seton Hall in just over 10 minutes helped give Notre Dame this nomination. He now leads the Irish with four goals in three games.

Contact Bryan Kronk at bkronk@nd.edu
FOOTBALL

Michigan's Navarre looks to anchor offense

By KATIE McVOY
Associate Sports Editor

On Saturday Michigan will enter Notre Dame Stadium and not one of the players will have ever played on Notre Dame turf. The defense may not be so worried. Michigan's has been touted as one of the strongest defensive units in the country. But what about the Michigan offense?

The Wolverines offense will be facing a very solid Notre Dame defense, one that has shut down two teams' passing game and one team's running game. They will face off against a veteran defense. And they will face off amidst the yells and screams of a green student section and an alumni section that wouldn't put Michigan high on its list of favorite schools. So who can they depend on?

They will all tell you John Navarre.

"I have had confidence since he got here and took over for Drew Henson in 2000," said senior tight end Bennie Joppru. "He is playing with more confidence now, and I think that is very dangerous."

Navarre, who through 13 career passing yards and seventh on the career touchdowns list with 32. If he continues to play well this season he could move all the way to second on that list, finishing 2002 behind Elvis Grbac's 71 touchdowns record.

But those stats aren't as key this weekend when Michigan comes to Notre Dame as the fact that Navarre has game experience.

"I think anytime you would rather have a guy that has some experience in those kinds of games [road games]," said Michigan coach Lloyd Carr. "In terms of this game, I think that the fact that John has played in a lot of big games on the road will help him certainly."

Navarre started this season with a career-high 286 yards against Washington. But he hasn't faced a secondary like Notre Dame's. If he wants to add one more to the two-interception total this season, he's going to have to protect the ball.

"Protecting the ball is a big premium every game but especially against a team that is dangerous," Navarre said. "With the speed that they have and what they have done in the past couple of games, you have to be aggressive."

Navarre, who through 13 interceptions last season, would hate to add one more to the two-interception total this season.

Navarre took some heat last season and losing the ball was a contributing factor. But his team is focused on helping him keep the ball this season, even against a defense like Notre Dame's.

"I think [Navarre] has a lot more confidence," said junior running back Chris Perry. "Last year he took a lot of heat that he didn't deserve. But the supporting cast didn't help him out too much either. Everyone is a lot stronger and we know our assignments, which in turn makes everyone look a lot better."

But before he can focus on protecting the ball, he needs to just focus on the ball. The question buzzing around the weekly Michigan press conference on Monday was whether Navarre could focus on the game despite the distractions of playing in Notre Dame Stadium.

"If he wants to add one more to the two-interception total this season, he's going to have to protect the ball."

"You cannot look at the big picture and all the surroundings and noise," Navarre said. "You have to focus on what you are doing and what your offense is doing."

As Navarre looks to better his 58.3 career completion percentage amidst the hoots and hollers of Notre Dame stadium, Carr is worried about just one thing — communication.

"The question is if you have guys that can hear, and sometimes you can't hear," the coach said. "There are stadiums out there where you can't hear and you have to feel the guy next to you."

But those stats aren't as key this weekend when Michigan comes to Notre Dame as the fact that Navarre has game experience.

"I think anytime you would rather have a guy that has some experience in those kinds of games [road games]," said Michigan coach Lloyd Carr. "In terms of this game, I think that the fact that John has played in a lot of big games on the road will help him certainly."

Navarre started this season with a career-high 286 yards against Washington. But he hasn't faced a secondary like Notre Dame's. If he wants to add one more to the two-interception total this season, he's going to have to protect the ball.

"Protecting the ball is a big premium every game but especially against a team that is dangerous," Navarre said. "With the speed that they have and what they have done in the past couple of games, you have to be aggressive."

Navarre, who through 13 interceptions last season, would hate to add one more to the two-interception total this season.

Navarre took some heat last season and losing the ball was a contributing factor. But his team is focused on helping him keep the ball this season, even against a defense like Notre Dame's.

"I think [Navarre] has a lot more confidence," said junior running back Chris Perry. "Last year he took a lot of heat that he didn't deserve. But the supporting cast didn't help him out too much either. Everyone is a lot stronger and we know our assignments, which in turn makes everyone look a lot better."

But before he can focus on protecting the ball, he needs to just focus on the ball. The question buzzing around the weekly Michigan press conference on Monday was whether Navarre could focus on the game despite the distractions of playing in Notre Dame Stadium.

"If he wants to add one more to the two-interception total this season, he's going to have to protect the ball."

"You cannot look at the big picture and all the surroundings and noise," Navarre said. "You have to focus on what you are doing and what your offense is doing."

As Navarre looks to better his 58.3 career completion percentage amidst the hoots and hollers of Notre Dame stadium, Carr is worried about just one thing — communication.

"The question is if you have guys that can hear, and sometimes you can't hear," the coach said. "There are stadiums out there where you can't hear and you have to feel the guy next to you."

But before he can focus on protecting the ball, he needs to just focus on the ball. The question buzzing around the weekly Michigan press conference on Monday was whether Navarre could focus on the game despite the distractions of playing in Notre Dame Stadium.

"If he wants to add one more to the two-interception total this season, he's going to have to protect the ball."

"You cannot look at the big picture and all the surroundings and noise," Navarre said. "You have to focus on what you are doing and what your offense is doing."

As Navarre looks to better his 58.3 career completion percentage amidst the hoots and hollers of Notre Dame stadium, Carr is worried about just one thing — communication.

"The question is if you have guys that can hear, and sometimes you can't hear," the coach said. "There are stadiums out there where you can't hear and you have to feel the guy next to you."

But before he can focus on protecting the ball, he needs to just focus on the ball. The question buzzing around the weekly Michigan press conference on Monday was whether Navarre could focus on the game despite the distractions of playing in Notre Dame Stadium.
approach your personal budget from an indispensible link to the

THE OBSERVER

Published Monday through Friday, The Observer is a vital source of information on people and events in the Notre Dame and Saint Mary's Community.

Join the more than 13,000 readers who have found The Observer an indispensable link to the two campuses. Please complete the accompanying form and mail it today to receive The Observer in your home.

Make checks payable to:

and mail to:
The Observer
P.O. Box Q
Notre Dame, IN 46556

□ Enclosed is $100 for one academic year

□ Enclosed is $55 for one semester

Name ___________________________________________

Address _______________________________________

City State Zip

Copyright 2002 Universal Press Syndicate
SPORTS

Play ball

Wednesday, September 11, 2002

Following Sept. 11, 2001, sports show American spirit lives on

Associated Press

While this week will be a chance for Americans to reflect on the tragic events of the last year, this past weekend evidenced why sports are so important to this country's psyche. Whether it was the intensity of team competition or the beauty of a one-on-one battle, sports has done so much over the past 12 months to heal America's wounds. It has provided a brief escape from "the real world," and may be the only part of American society that hasn't changed post-Sept. 11 — that is, if you can't count the longer lines for security checks.

It was a banner weekend for most American sports, from the kickoff of the NFL season to the complete domination by Americans at the U.S. Open. More important is the fact that everyone got a chance to see that New York has started to recover and rebuild.

The NFL season started in spectacular fashion Thursday as 500,000 fans jammed into Times Square for a blowout concert, followed by a grand opening weekend was 1979. The only other time there were three overtime games on Square, the marketing and entertainment.

The kickoff party was the league's way of demonstrating the resilience of a city like the Big Apple. "They really wanted to show the country, and the world, that New York City is back," said John Collins, the NFL's senior vice president for marketing and entertainment.

That was only the beginning of an outstanding weekend for America's passion. The NFL saw three games decided in overtime, one in the final minute and 10 others decided by one touchdown. The only other time there were three overtime games on opening weekend was 1979.

Across town from Times Square, the U.S. Open was preparing itself for an All-American final on both the men's and women's side of the draw. The Williams sisters squared off against each other for the third time this season, and like the previous two, Serena got the best of Venus, who had America in her heart wearing a red, white and blue traditional tennis dress.

Two American old-timers renewed their rivalry in the men's final, as Pete Sampras won his 14th grand slam title, beating Andre Agassi. It was the first time the two had met in a major championship since Wimbledon in 1999. "Pete just played a little too good for me today," Agassi said. "It's great to hear New York cheer again. It was beautiful being here."

No offense to Agassi, but New York sports fans have had something to cheer about all summer long with the perennial success of the Yankees. America's pastime almost suffered a big loss, but the impending labor strike was averted at the last minute.

Everyone would have suffered — from the owners to the players to the peanut vendors. "America needs this. Especially with Sept. 11 coming up," said Tony Penzak, a fan sitting in a bar across the street from Wrigley Field. "You need to get people's minds off of it. And for something good to happen is great."

But not all American sports shined this weekend. The United States basketball team finished its first time in the final sixth at the World Championships. In Indianapolis, we didn't play the best of American basketball. They had been 58-1 in international competition when using NBA players. It was an outcome worse than anyone could have envisioned coming into the tournament, resulting in the country's best showing in history at a World Championships.

"I still think we're the best, the model for the world, but people are catching up. They beat us, and they beat us in our own country. We have to tip our hat to them." USA coach George Karl said.

While patriotism has been prevalent at sporting events since Sept. 11, the United States appeared to play without passion in this tournament. Americans were foreigners in their own home. Teams like Turkey, Argentina and Yugoslavia had rabid fans that spurred on their squads with a wild patriotic fervor. "We didn't play the right way, we didn't play with the passion of the other teams," Antonio Daniels said.

The American players seemed to have adapted the fans apathy. The stands were mostly empty when the Americans were on the court and those who did attend showed nowhere near as much spirit as their foreign counterparts.

Heck, there were more people watching U.S. Open on an outdoor 20-foot screen in midtown Manhattan than were at the fifth-place game which America lost to Spain. Despite the lack of spirit in Indianapolis, every weekend millions of Americans go to sporting events all over the country, ranging from NASCAR racing to college football. They provide a chance for us to forget for a few hours what is happening in our lives and live vicariously through those athletes and teams. It may have been taken somewhat for granted before the terrorist attacks, but the role of sports became increasingly evident afterward. And the Sheridan's role, which will hopefully never change.

SPORTS AT A GLANCE

FOOTBALL

Leading the pack

Just a little more than 500 yards away from 4,000, Michigan quarterback John Navarre will have to be cool under pressure and protect the ball against a serious Irish defensive attack on Saturday.

page 22

VOLLEYBALL

Notre Dame 3 Valparaiso 0

The Irish returned to play against the Crusaders Tuesday night after finishing the Loyola-Marymount Classic 1-2 over the weekend. Notre Dame swept Valparaiso in three sets for the win.

page 21

MENS SOCCER

After the Irish received their highest ranking in school history Monday, Irish players Kevin Goldthwaite and Erich Braun garnered individual honors for their play last week.

page 21