SMC students race for scholarship

Her sister once said only a symphony could begin to describe her.

Among other things, Suzanne Kondratenko was a sister to seven girls. She graduated in the top of her class from Saint Mary's College in 1996 and after spending time in Rome, it became one of her passions. Suzanne's sister Caroline is now a senior at Saint Mary's and also went on the Rome Program. Caroline says that her life so far, parallels her older sister's.

"She was the reason I ended up going. She's the reason I went on the Rome Program," Caroline said.

Suzanne was killed while working in the World Trade Center on Sept. 11, 2001. A scholarship has been set up in her memory to assist a student wishing to go on the Rome program. Peter Checca, an Italian professor at Saint Mary's and the director of the Rome program, spoke to Suzanne at her class reunion last year.

"Although she loved her work, her ultimate dream was to return to Rome some day and become the director of the Rome Program," Checca said.

The day of their conversation, according to Checca, Suzanne described how Rome influenced her and changed her life. "She'd be really glad just to give someone the opportunity to go," said Caroline.

Soon, Suzanne will have such an opportunity. This year's Oktoberfest Run/Walk to be held tomorrow will be in memory of Suzanne and raise money for the scholarship fund.

Joan Muecke, Abby VanVlerah and Courtney King, among others are establishing a team to run in Suzanne's memory. Muecke received some assistance going on the Rome Program and explains what a wonderful experience her sophomore year in Rome was to her.

Coordinators of the Paid Community Service Program say poor advertising and program stipulations may have contributed to a lack of student interest.

The program, which allows students to do service and receive work-study pay, has roughly 20 local agencies, said Cortney Swift, senior financial aid administrator.

"Many students tutor children in reading and math," Swift said, adding that the Center for the Homeless and Robinson Community Learning Center employ the greatest number of Notre Dame students through the program.

Junior Adam Senior is one of the many students who work at the Robinson Learning Center as a tutor and said he feels rewarded by helping others.

"When I do it, I don't treat it as just tutoring. It's more than just doing homework," Senior said.

According to Swift, 40 positions remain available in the service program and the program is still looking for students who want to work in the community.

"We're always looking for people to fill positions," Swift said.

The two employment programs that Notre Dame offers are Federal Work-Study and Campus Employment.

Any student who fills out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) is eligible for community service positions with some exceptions.

SMC pride

It began in 1843, when four Sisters of the Holy Cross Order came from Le Mans, France, with the dream to open a college in northern Indiana. One year later, in 1844, the sisters opened their first school and Saint Mary’s College was born. And 158 years later, the Sisters of the Holy Cross are still here, lending support to Saint Mary’s, as the College has educated thousands of women over the years.

How is that significant today? Today is the start of Saint Mary’s pride week. A week in which Saint Mary’s women, present and past, celebrate the College for its long history, students, graduates and each other’s accomplishments.

With the pride and encouragement that students receive from the College, the women of Saint Mary’s are always amazing me, whether it is mission work in China, internships that have resulted in patents or with beautiful poetry written in class.

While the brochures are true when they state that the campus is beautiful, dorm rooms are usually big, classes are small and that the College has some impressive rankings and statistics, there will be all at the bottom of my list of reasons for Saint Mary’s pride. For me, it is the students, professors and staff I know that make the College special to me.

No, Saint Mary’s isn’t for everyone and I’ll admit that. Despite the fact that Saint Mary’s was the only college I applied to, or wanted to go to, I didn’t even like it that much my freshman year. Taking initiative I applied for the Saint Mary’s Ireland program, hoping that a year away would provide me with a better college experience.

I’m not going to gush on and on about how much I love Saint Mary’s, but it did. My attitude towards Saint Mary’s also changed, I was sad about coming back but I couldn’t wait to the girls that were my family for a year.

Today Saint Mary’s will always represent the great friendships I have made, in my year in Ireland and while on campus. Friendships that I know I will always be there.

While primarily I will have positive memories of Saint Mary’s, it is not a perfect institution and the women who attend are not perfect. There are plenty of issues that upset me about Saint Mary’s the fact that there is not a recognized support for lesbian, bisexual or questioning women, that there is not a recycling program and even the fact that the dining hall closes at 7 p.m. all annoy me.

There are plenty of outlets to voice my concerns, whether at a Board of Governance meeting, talking with the hall director, even e-mailing or setting up an appointment with the College president or vice presidents. I may not like the answer I get, or agree with it, but from experience I have always gotten one.

So this week celebrate Saint Mary’s pride by celebrating the people you know at Saint Mary’s, by questioning what you don’t like about the College and working to change it for yourself and future generations.

Panel discusses college and religion

A panel of university presidents from prominent private Christian colleges gathered Friday afternoon in McKenna Hall Auditorium as part of this weekend's "From Death to Life" conference. The panel, entitled "The Future of Christian Higher Education," included Charles Dougherty, the president of Duquesne University, Robert Sloan, president of Baylor University, and Father Edward Malloy, president of Notre Dame.

Each speaker expressed different points important to the mission and identity of private Christian universities. Dougherty emphasized the unique role Christian universities play in a religiously pluralistic society.

"I think U.S. society is drifting towards an amorphous spirituality," he said. "There's a hunger for values in America, and our universities help fill that." The success of Christian universities is part of a new counter-movement to growing secularization in society, and for them to compromise their mission would be to lose both part of their identity and their niche in the economy, Dougherty said. Sloan, in his efforts to promote and improve education at Baylor, stressed the interplay between maintaining a Christian identity and making gains in the U.S. News & World Report rankings. One of Baylor's goals was to break into U.S. News' "top tier" of universities, while at the same time deepening his school's Christian roots.

"Christian faithfulness and academic excellence are not mutually exclusive," Sloan asserted. Where the pursuit of these goals conflicted, however, Sloan emphasized the higher ideal of offering a Christian education. "It is more important to be faithful than it is to be great," he said.

Sloan also revealed his theory that Christian universities, if well-run, can impact society in four distinct ways including educating students morally, preparing them for leadership, analyzing and critiquing culture, and replacing society's bad moral content with good. This final impact on society can be realized, according to Sloan, by putting things out into "the marketplace of ideas."

"There are always people suspicious of an institution like Notre Dame," Malloy said. "Some people equate pursuing a university's moral mission with mediocrity. I do not think this is the case."

Federal Work-Study are eligible for Campus Employment as long as their total financial aid (loans, University scholarships, private scholarships, work eligibility, etc.) does not exceed their cost of attendance Swift said.
"For students who qualify for federal work-study, we include additional inserts to promote the community service program," Swift said.
There are similar guidelines for those who qualify for campus employment, with a few exceptions: federal work-study requires students to work at an off-campus community service agency, said Swift.
"With Federal Work-Study, a portion of the students' wages are funded with federal dollars," Swift said. "The non-federal share varies by agency, however, most agencies pay a quarter of student wages and the remaining 75 percent is paid with federal dollars." Swift said.
However, Swift said that if students tutor reading or math in local elementary schools, the federal government funds 100 percent of the students' wages.
Despite the monetary benefit, Swift sees the program as a "great experience for students to work outside of the campus."
"Volunteer work is a huge component of the Notre Dame experience and paid community service is a good way for students, who can't afford to volunteer, to work in service positions," she said.

Death toll higher than thought in ferry sink

Associated Press

Dakar

In long, solemn lines, thousands of people poured over photos Sunday of the bloated bodies from one of Africa's deadliest ferry accidents, as the government said that nearly 1,000 people are now believed dead.

Only 64 people are known to have survived when the MS Joola capsized off Africa's West Coast in heavy winds last Thursday. On Sunday, the government said that 1,034 people were on board the ship, sharply up from the 797 it had first announced.

By Monday, Gambian and Senegalese sailors, divers and other searchers had collected 352 bodies from the ferry, the water and from the coast, where some were washing up, said Aminata Dibba, permanent secretary for Gambiain's presidency.

Six refrigerated ship containers with bodies inside were lined up in the capital's port, while hundreds more disintegrated bodies were offshore waiting to be brought in.

Authorities planned Monday to finish an investigation into what caused the Senegalese state-run boat to sink off Gambia, a former English colony about 30 miles across its widest point that divides north and south Senegal.

Grieving family members studied photos of the dead in hopes of identifying rapidly decomposing victims.

"Now there seems to be little chance they'll come back alive," said Tuna Jallow, 29, who lost three brothers on board.

"This is awful, awful, awful. I'm insensible," he said, pinching his eyes.

On Sunday, the government added the 55-member crew and said 185 passengers had boarded the doomed ferry at a second stop en route from southern Senegal, bringing the total aboard to 1,034, said Dijadi Touré, communication's adviser for Senegal's prime minister.

Authorities set up five "crisis centers" in Dakar to display photos of those retrieved from the wreckage. Boy Scouts rushed bottled water and food to more than 3,000 people who waited in lines throughout the day, officials said.

Ambulance teams tended to people who passed out from temperatures of about 92 degrees Fahrenheit.

Many victims' faces were too waterlogged to be recognizable. The bleary-eyed woman waited "Papa, Papa!" as she was helped away from a display.

At the port in Dakar, young men crouched in the shade, crying nervously.

GOP lawmakers, lining up behind President Bush, said it is unlikely that Saddam will allow inspectors unfettered access to search for weapons of mass destruction.

"He is going to allow them back in, because he has these weapons and materials and laboratories and he isn't about to give them up," said Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz.

Democrats, including House members visiting Baghdad, urged the Bush administration to work closely with the Japanese, the British and the French to get inspectors resume their work.

"You don't start out by putting the gun to their head and saying we're going to shoot you if you blink," said Rep. Jim McDermott, D-Wash, speaking from Iraq.

McDermott also suggested the president might be misleading the American people about the need for military action, something the White House swiftly denied.

Congress may consider the resolution this week, though negotiations on terms continue. Bush said Saturday that agreement was near and predicted that he would speak with one voice.

Democrats say they will not give the president open-ended authority and are seeking to put more emphasis on a multilateral approach.

The Senate's top Republican, Trent Lott of Mississippi, said Sunday that he wants the resolution that can attract as much support as possible.

"We're still working on language that can bring the largest number of Democrats and Republicans, House and Senate, together," Lott, R-Miss., said on CNN's "Face the Nation." Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., said, "The American people will want to shut down the nation's capital before we go back to business as usual."

The Kondratenkos, who have sent three of their daughters to Saint Mary's, hope that this will inspire a student with the same ambition and zest for life as Suzanne, the family said.

For Checca, he feels blessed to have known Suzanne. He said, "I overcome my sadness by remembering how much joy she brought to everyone who knew her."

Debt reform goal of leaders

WASHINGTON World financial leaders pledged Sunday to do everything possible to prevent stock market turmoil from derailing an uncertain global recovery and committed themselves to meeting an April deadline for unveiling a dramatic new approach for handling bankrupt nations.

IMF Managing Director Horst Köhler said the bankruptcy proposal forward was a major achievement for this year's annual meetings of the 184-nation IMF and its sister lending organization, the World Bank.

"This is a kind of breakthrough. ... There is a recognition that there is a gap in the international financial architecture," Köhler told a concluding news conference.

Delegates on Sunday approved a recommendation that the IMF staff develop for consideration by April a fully developed approach for allowing countries with unsustainable debt burdens to essentially declare bankruptcy and force creditors to negotiate more lenient repayment terms.

Protesters have sought to disrupt this year's discussions by shutting down the capital. Their efforts fizzled in the face of poor turnout and an overwhelming police presence.

Police prepared for as many as 20,000 demonstrators, but a much smaller number of mostly peaceful protesters used puppets and banners to display their unhappiness with global capitalism.

The IMF and World Bank's President James Wolfensohn said the protesters failed to appreciate the extensive reforms both institutions have undertaken to better respond to the needs of poor countries.

But both officials acknowledged that much more needed to be done to narrow the gap between rich and poor nations. 15 percent of the world's population controls 80 percent of the income.

"The quest for a more equitable world is the quest for long-term peace — something that military power alone can never achieve," Wolfensohn said.

At the concluding news conference, Wolfensohn ticked off a range of initiatives the World Bank has underway to improve drinking water in poor nations, educate millions of children not now in school and combat AIDS.

"We have to stop philosophizing and get on with the tasks," Wolfensohn said.

Finance officials said the sluggish economy is making harder their job of promoting prosperity. The stock market declines, economic turmoil in Latin America and anxiety about possible war in Iraq have contributed to the weaker than expected recovery.

Argentina was forced into default last week as investors fear Latin America's largest economy will soon default on its debt despite a record $30 billion loan approved by the IMF in early September.

Billionaire investor George Soros said that while this possibility was increasing, IMF officials were "asleep at the switch." A debt default, he said on ABC's "This Week," could have serious repercussions on U.S. banks with loans to Brazil and American companies with plants there.

Protesters

The former vice president helped stir up a labor struggle against the Bush administration for its policies on Iraq.

"They're just doing whatever they're doing," said Steve Stallone, a spokesman for the Shipyard Labor Union. "We're just doing whatever they're doing," said Steve Stallone, a spokesman for the Shipyard Labor Union.

Finance officials struck a much more positive tone. They said the United States, Europe and Japan had committed during the weekend meetings to address problems in their countries that were holding back growth.

Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill said Washington was doing its part to promote a global recovery. He said the expected the world's largest economy would return to solid growth of 3 percent to 3.5 percent "over the course of the coming year."
Let's say you're the President, and there's a terrorist attack on 1 April 2001. And let's say that America's intelligence systems (as they failed to do in reality) put together all the places and stated that a terrorist attack from a foreign group, Osama bin Laden's al-Qaeda in Afghanistan, would strike U.S. soil sometime in the next three months and kill thousands of Americans. Do you:

A. Launch a fierce preemptive attack, designed to destroy the threat before it can materialize, or

B. Petition the United Nations to draft resolutions, plead with the other four members of the U.N. Security Council to gain acceptance, and wait for Congressional approval?

Obviously hindsight tells us that the proper answer is the first. Yet common sense tells us that as well. You wouldn't know that by listening to those people against a preemptive strike against Iraq, though. I admit, the situation may not be quite as dire as the hypothetical posted above, but it's only tragic hindsight which has shown us how severe the threat al-Qaeda was 15 months ago. The threat Saddam Hussein poses may not be exactly the same, but it's similarly imminent and clear.

Our Commander-in-Chief, regardless of whether it's George W. Bush, George H.W. Bush, William J. Clinton — or, in our little hypothetical game, are the authorities with our Constitution to protect America and its citizens. Yet the President's opponents think of a million different reasons not to act, but can't grasp the fundamental reason why we should. Global politics and foreign policy can be complicated, but in this case, there are simple questions, and there are simple answers. Is Saddam Hussein a virtual 2001 terrorist? Does he possess weapons that can cause unimaginable horrors? Is he attempting to acquire nuclear weapons? The answer to all of these is yes. We've known this for years, of course, but a 50-page dossier issued last week by the British government reinforces these facts.

Another equally simple conclusion that can be drawn is that Hussein will not stop based on any international resolution made against him. He's violated more than a dozen U.N. resolutions already in the decade-plus since the end of the Gulf War. And history teaches us that in the face of a tyrannical threat, diplomacy not backed by the threat of force only emboldens the tyrant — it does not contain him.

The issue therefore be on those who do not support action against Iraq to provide a compelling case. So far, they have yet to come up with even a coherent case. Tom Daschle (D-S.D.), Senate Majority Leader and the highest-ranking Democrat in Washington, can only express "concern." Last week, he thought it over and heightened his rhetoric; he now expresses "grave concern."

Al Gore, who broke ranks with his own party and supported the Gulf War, admonished President George H.W. Bush for leaving Saddam in power, and served as Vice President in an administration which made several unilateral strikes against Iraq, made a speech last week in San Francisco that threw out that legacy and argued feely against it. Even The New Republic, which twice endorsed Gore for President, said the speech "sounded like a political broadside against a president who Gore no doubt feels occupies a post that he himself deserves."

And there are still grumblings internationally that an independent America that acts in its own self-defense is more terrifying than a man with weapons of mass destruction. German Justice Minister Berla Däubler-Gmelin compared George W. Bush to Hitler by saying Bush was using Iraq to shift the focus away from domestic issues in a political campaign. Ironically, this statement took place in the midst of the German election season; though the anti-Americanism played well and center-left Chancellor Gerhard Schröder won reelection, he thankfully relieved Frau Däubler-Gmelin of her duties.

To a certain extent, the objections are steeped in good intentions. While President Bush and his braintrust, buttressed by the support of British Prime Minister Tony Blair, have laid out a case for action against Iraq, they've been somewhat caught up in their mission to address some bigger questions. If preemptive action against terror networks and rogue states is going to be the Bush Doctrine, we should at least have an honest discussion about our rules of engagement in the future, if not for no other reason than to reassure our allies.

But that should not be used as an excuse to sit around and wait while the threat grows. In three months' time, Saddam Hussein may very well have a nuclear weapon. This would be a problem not just because he could detonate it on a White House, but also because it would give him leverage he doesn't possess now. It would be easy for him to invade Kuwait or Saudi Arabia if he can blackmail the United States with a weapon aimed at Tel Aviv, or London, or Washington. The United States and the United Kingdom are the only ones who'll stop him now; who will stop him then?

There have been months to talk about it. Action is needed now — not more talking.

Letter to the Editor
Joint committee examines honor code controversy

We write to thank The Observer for the attention it has given the recently revised Academic Code of Honor in a front page article on Sept. 25 and an editorial on Sept. 27.

Undergraduate students will soon receive, if they have not already, an email explaining in greater detail some of the more significant revisions of the honor code. The revision of the honor code and the attention it has been given will, we hope, heighten awareness of issues of academic integrity throughout the University.

In its Sept. 27 editorial The Observer raised an important issue regarding the faculty’s use of Turnitin.com, the online detection service the University has recently contracted. “While a service like Turnitin.com should be employed in cases where professors feel that this tool has been abused, I do not think that this is the case in any of the six months we began discussion of this issue at its first meeting today. There was not enough interest for and raising an important issue, we strongly disagree with its claim in the Sept. 27 editorial that “the honor code revisions and the contract with Turnitin.com indicate that truth [between professors and students] has broken down.”

On the contrary, trust and common commitment to academic integrity has never been greater. The revision of the honor code is the result of a great deal of hard and conscientious work, with wide consultation by faculty and students; the new code enhances the role of students, working with faculty, in the administration honor code procedures; and it was passed unanimously by the Academic Council, a body which includes both faculty and student representation. The University community should be proud of the joint efforts of faculty and students to defend and even strengthen academic integrity at Notre Dame.

Regarding the new service, this service was implemented as a tool to assist individual faculty and honesty committees to examine cases as well as to establish that dishonesty has occurred. We believe that this tool has been abused in some cases in which there is no prior suspicion of dishonesty in an important question, and a policy concerning its use will be debated and established by the students and faculty of the University’s Joint Committee.

“Biblical instructions not always relevant to modern times

This letter is in response to Beckey Gremmel’s Sept. 27 letter “Beckett and the Bible.”

So, Beckett — you don’t hate gay people? That’s great. You have gay relatives, right? You can’t be a law-breaker, can you? You can„too? Well, Hallelujah. (Pun intended.)

Something tells me — gut instinct — that you count your gay friends on your hands. And by that, I don’t mean that you only choose to have this many or that many gay friends. I say you count them on your hands so that you can say you have gay friends. ‘(Well, there’s Tommy, he’s one. And Amy, yeah, Amy’s two. And, well, no one knows about Mark, but I’m totally counting them.’)

The best defense to any argument — especially one you have such thin evidence to back up, like yours — is to use your own life as an example. But please, don’t use your friends and family as backup and then throw out a Bible quote that equates them with “thief, kidnapping, murder, greed, fornication, drinking and lawlessness.” I know Tommy, Amy and Mark would be so proud.

So since I’m assuming we’re taking the Bible so literally these days, you would tell me to shut my big yap (or stop my fingers from typing) and marry a man I don’t know and start making the babies, right? That’s only because you should start building a tent now, in which I can take stale once my period comes because a menstruating woman is unclean and unfit to be in society. (Shh, it’s a secret: this is what the Bible says, too. Not that gay people are wrong, wrong, wrong.)

I won’t directly quote from the Bible because there are so many different versions and so many different translations of the book o’ rules. And maybe a word you should start researching. Beckett, is this interpretation. Just because it’s written down, in a big, fat book o’ rules, doesn’t mean it has to be taken literally, or that we should be forced to follow it literally in the 21st century. Countless events, laws and changes have passed since the Bible’s inception, for example, the Civil Rights Movement, the Women’s Movement, Vatican II. Catholic doctrine has been interpreted over the years to adapt to modern society. In 2002, should sinners or law-breakers be made to wear a crown of thorns?”

Just because it’s written down, in a big, fat book o’ rules, doesn’t mean it has to be taken literally, or that we should be forced to follow it literally in the 21st century. Countless events, laws and changes have passed since the Bible’s inception, for example, the Civil Rights Movement, the Women’s Movement, Vatican II. Catholic doctrine has been interpreted over the years to adapt to modern society. In 2002, should sinners or law-breakers be made to wear a crown of thorns?”

Associate Provost and Vice President at Notre Dame
Although Notre Dame tends to pull in a number of big name bands each year such as U2, Dave Matthews or Matchbox 20, a look back at the University's history shows how hip Our Lady once was.

The 5th Dimension played brought Disco to the Dome in 1970.

Ike and Tina Turner played the ACC in 1971.

The Beach Boys drove fans wild at the ACC in 1970.

The Kinky Boots Beasts, junior Dave Andrukaitis, mock rock at an off campus thing one of the girls who was responsible for setting the whole thing up ran up to us and we thought, 'Oh no, here it comes. We're about to get an earful.' And she was clearly worked up, so we were expecting her to be making a mockery of her event, whereas she said, 'that was so funny,' Lodewyck said. "We really thought it was just going to be a one time thing," Andrukaitis said. And so the Kinky Boot Beasts were born.

Defying the fact that the Boot Beasts almost never practices, the group still manages to land an occasional gig. The band even attends those gigs when they can remember and/or are sober enough to find the correct address. "It really hasn't required any practice, although perhaps it should have. I find that being well practiced and together as a band is more of a liability for the Boot Beasts," Lodewyck said. The Boot Beasts describe their sound as one of creativity. And,

A Letter from Fr. Bill Lies, the CSC’s Executive Director

These are tough days in which we live. Sometimes we find ourselves wondering what’s ahead. The tragedies of terrorism and the ongoing realities of war and violence can, at times, pull us into feelings of hopelessness. Yet, in the face of the suffering, hope is among the most important gifts that each of us has to bring.

The motto of the Congregation of Holy Cross is ave crux spes unica, “hail the cross, our only hope.” It embodies the Christian paradox, that the cross is for us the sign of transformation, a symbol of our deliverance from darkness to light, from suffering to joy, from death to life.

In these days, more than ever, our faith must continue to lead us through that cross to that hope. We must pray and work for a just and lasting peace, both for ourselves and our distant neighbors. Each of us is called to play a part in the transformation that would bring this justice and this peace.

I invite you to consider ways that you might begin right here and right now to be a part of the world’s transformation. I invite you to push the boundaries of your classroom to the neighborhoods of South Bend and beyond and to enter the lives of those who live and study and work there.

Through the years, thousands have taken part in the many opportunities offered through the Center for Social Concerns and our many partners. Each has made an important difference. Very often their service and learning has transformed them and allowed them to be ever more impressive agents of transformation as they have continued to reach out long after their time at Notre Dame, Saint Mary’s and Holy Cross College.

Jesus called love the greatest of all commandments—to love the Lord God with all our hearts and to love our neighbor as ourselves (Mark 12: 28-31). It is not easy in these times—indeed, sometimes it seems impossible—but remains no less our challenge and our call. It is the foundation upon which we will build the justice we seek and the peace we long for.

Be a part of the transformation we are called to, and be transformed. Give yourself away. One or more of the opportunities on these pages will quite possibly change you forever.

Hospitability is an important part of the Center’s work on campus. Center hospitality includes: a coffeehouse and kitchen, a large multi-purpose room, seminar rooms, and a reflection room. These facilities are available for use by approved student and community groups. Contact the Center at 631-5293 to reserve rooms for lectures, films, liturgies, meals, other gatherings, and to inquire about the new policies surrounding vehicle use.

Dame's homegrown, Kinky Boot Beasts

when pressed, admit that they hope to emulate the sound of their idols Tenacious D lead by actor/comedian/musician/psychopath Jack Black. After all, as Lodewyck points out, they're both fat guys on acoustic guitars singing filthy songs.

"In all fairness, we suck. But we're funny and that's what we're going for," Lodewyck said.

The Boot Beasts don't claim to be the best band around (or even competent to have driver's licenses) but they do hope that the future of campus music will be much brighter than it is now. Lodewyck is encouraged by the number of musically inclined freshmen he has met this year and encourages them to follow in his footsteps of not sleeping on Tuesday nights and concocting interesting monikers.

Band names is, in fact, one of Lodewyck's fetishes. Since he began playing guitar seven and a half years ago, Lodewyck has been in bands named Horatio's Orgasm, Six Inches Between Us, The Vancouver Porn Ensemble, and The Salvation Airforce, to name a few.

"For a band like the Boot Beast, the name matters as much as the music, but it will never be as important as our good looks," Lodewyck said.

Though Lodewyck and Andrukaitis pride themselves on their lack of practice, both are, in fact, talented musicians. It's their taste that may have some of their audience raising eyebrows.

For example, at their gig on last Friday night (to which they "lost" their set list for), The Kinky Boot Beasts included a cover of Johnny Cash's "Folsom Prison Blues," a three second long piece called "A List of Things I Wouldn't Do To Have Sex With Anna Kournikova," and a medley of pop songs played to the same four chords.

"Our style is a total bastardization of all popular music," Andrukaitis said.

With Andrukaitis' impending departure at graduation Lodewyck plans to move onto more serious endeavors such as a venture playing trombone in a third wave ska band tentatively named Shigger in the Raw with former Skammunists guitarist Pete Balogh.

But the Boot Beasts, serious or not, do it for the fans. When asked if the pair got had lot of groupies, Lodewyck replied, "Sadly."

Editor's Note: This article is the first in a series featuring campus bands. Any bands that are from the Notre Dame, Saint Mary's or Holy Cross campuses that wish to have their group featured in the Scene section should send an e-mail to scene@nd.edu. No off campus bands, please.

New ‘Big Red’ emerges as Cyclones crush Huskers

Associated Press

AMES, Iowa — There’s a new big red to deal with in the Big 12. Iowa State suddenly has eclipsed Nebraska.

The No. 21 Cyclones plan for two touchdown and victories for another as the 19th-ranked Omaha of 20 Nebraska 34-16 Saturday. Adam Benike added three field goals and the Cyclones (Cyclone 4-5 Big 12, who handed 30 Cornhuskers (3-2-3) their first consecutively regular-season losses since 1976.

"I was ready for this one like never before," said Michael Wagner Iowa State running back. "It was time to shock the world. I guess we did it."

DanIELsen's wasn't nearly as surprised by the team's effort.

"Going it, I expected victory," said Danielsen, "but I felt like we were a better team. There was never a point in the game when I felt we were going to lose to Nebraska." Iowa State coach Frank Solich, whose team committed five turnovers, but only one in the fourth quarter in the last seven games. All four losses have since games.

"We'll either splinter apart or come together," Solich said. "There's no middle ground.

Iowa State beat a ranked team for the first time since 1993 and is poised to make a run for the Big 12 North championship. The 22-20 loss to Oklahoma was the Cyclones' largest of the season against Nebraska since a 34-0 win in 1989.

Thousands of red-clad Iowa State fans ran onto the field when the game ended, with many climbing the goal posts. Coach Dan McCarney was caught in the middle.

"I got a fat lip from a McCarney said with a smile. "I don't think they're going to miss me on purpose. That will get me a little danger- lous, but I'll try to fight my way out of that danger any time."

Iowa 42, Penn State 35

After blowing a 22-point fourth-quarter lead, Iowa State settled down during an overtime game and has felt only familiar.

C.J. Jones caught a 6-yard touchdown pass in the fourth quarter, and Penn State's fourth- down pass fell incomplete as the Hawkeyes (4-1) upset the 12th-ranked Nittany Lions 42-35 Saturday.

In the Big Ten opener for both teams, Iowa utilized 261 yards to lead Iowa (4-1, 3-0), and he threw to Jones in the second half, Iowa State had 21 points to make it 35-19.

Penn State entered this game with an early touchdown pass from quarterback Evan Royster, running the score to 10-0.

"Not to take anything away from our first three games, but those were preseason. This is what counts," Pete Carroll USC head coach.

I'll make those numbers look good when we go on the road."

The Beavers came into the game averaging 499.8 yards, and Derek Anderson was No. 2 in passing efficiency. Pressed constantly by the Trojans, the sophomore quarterback went 8-30 for 80 yards and lost two fumbles.

"We didn't play to have a shootout," Carroll said. "I played to have a big defensive game. We didn't feel like we could win that game by making them guess all day."

USC defensive end Oquirf Nazeli, who had two sacks in his first game, was determined not to let Oregon State get too comfortable. "You can't give them an inch, they'll take a mile," said Nazeli, whose tackles included three for losses. "When you shut them down, shut them out, lock it up and double-down it."

The defeat was Oregon State's 21st in the last 29 games against the Trojans -- the Beavers' last win came in 2000 -- and the 19th straight loss at the Coliseum dating back to 1960. USC holds an all-time edge, 55-8-4, including 37-4-3 in Los Angeles.

The Trojans had a 23-0 lead for 213 yards and threw one interception.

He connected with Williams on a scoring throw of 11 yards in the third quarter to pass Mike Rozier for the most yards in pass in the third quarter with the passing yardage.

"Offensively, we didn't play very well. I didn't play very well either," said Solich. "The defense won the game."

Tomlinson's 217 yards get Chargers by Pats

- Rams lose game to Cowboys and Warner to injury and fall to 0-4

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO

Yes, the San Diego Chargers are for real. Any doubts were left in the vapor trails of LaDainian Tomlinson and his teammates as they raced past the New England Patriots.

That was about as exuberant as the Chargers got, although a rare full house at Qualcomm Stadium went wild. The Chargers felt validated by the victory, but there's still three-quarters of the season left.

"It doesn't mean anything unless we make the postseason," said Tomlinson, who had the most yards rushing in the NFL this season.

It was also their first loss in 11 games against the Chargers, dating to 1992. "It's a feeling we haven't had for a while," Brady said. "We're all a little shellshocked right now. It's not that they're not a good team and didn't go out and beat us. But in a lot of respects, we beat ourselves.

When both Seau and safety Rodney Harrison are for real. Any doubts were left in the vapor trails of LaDainian Tomlinson and his teammates as they raced past the New England Patriots.

Attention Juniors:

Junior Parents Weekend is scheduled for February 14 through February 16 2003. There are still three positions available on the Junior Parents Weekend Planning committee. They are as follows:

Mass Chair: This position will require a moderate amount of time. This individual will be working directly with campus ministry, all the choirs, and various musical ensembles. In addition, they will be required to choose a homilist and priest to preside over the mass.

Hospitality Chair: This position requires a minimal amount of time. The person will be in charge of organizing and setting up the hospitality room in La Fortune for the weekend. They will also need to work with the sophomore chair to obtain sophomore volunteers for the weekend.

Halls Luncheon Chair: This position requires a minimal amount of time. The individual will be responsible to meet with the dorm committee members to organize and set up the lunches. They might also be responsible for organizing an off campus luncheon.

For applications for these positions go to 315 La Fortune. For more information about Junior Parents Weekend call 1-6128 or email us at jpw@nd.edu.

Thank you,

The JPW committee
European Ryder Cup coach Sam Torrance holds the Ryder Cup as his team surrounds him after Europe's stunning 15 1/2-12 1/2 victory over the United States Sunday.

Associated Press

Woods, Mickelson inspired the rest of a no-name cast to compete with them and also beat them; Montgomerie said. "It was a superb day for European golf."

The final score was 15 1/2-12 1/2, the largest margin by either side since Europe scored 16 1/2 points in 1985, the first time the Ryder Cup was played at The Belfry. Sam Torrance was the star that day, making the clinching putt. He was equally important as the European captain. "He took a hell of a gamble by front-loading his team like he did," U.S. captain Curtis Strange said. "Because if they don't do it well, in my mind it's over."

No one was more magnificent than Monty. He led the charge by beating Scott Hoch in the opener of a no-name cast against the partisan crowd into a frenzy early. Montgomerie was unsurpassed at The Belfry, never trailing in any of the 82 holes he played this week.

Phillip Price helped bring up the rear. A timid Welshman who is ranked No. 119 in the world, Price scored a surprisingly easy victory over Mickelson that deflated any American hopes of a come back.

In the middle was Niclas Fasth, who survived a spectacular finish by Paul Azinger, and Paul McGinley, who clinched the Cup with an 8-foot putt.

"Out of the shadows come heroes," Torrance said. "And that's where Paul McGinley and Phillip Price came."

"We don't give Sam's team enough credit because they can really play," Strange said.

Nebraska unranked for first time since 1981

For the first time in 21 years, Nebraska is not ranked in The Associated Press college football poll. The Cornhuskers (3-2) fell out of the Top 25 on Sunday after a 36-14 loss to Iowa State — ending a run of 348 consecutive polls.

Nebraska moved into the AP rankings Oct. 5, 1981, and remained among college football's top teams week after week after week until a second straight loss knocked it out. During the streak, Nebraska won two AP national championships (in 1994 and 1995) and was ranked No. 1 in 52 polls. The Huskers were 49-31-1 against ranked teams, with four of those losses coming in the team's last seven games dating to last season.

A 40-7 loss at Penn State on Sept. 14 dropped Nebraska from No. 8 to No. 18.

The next week the Huskers fell to No. 20 despite not playing. The loss to the Cyclones was the clincher — Nebraska received a grand total of 10 points in this week's balloting. No. 25 Colorado State had 206 points.

Florida (4-1), ranked No. 6 this week after a 41-34 victory over Kentucky, now owns the longest consecutive polls streak, at 208.

To match the Huskers' run, the Gators would need to be ranked in every poll for the next eight years.

Nebraska also fell out of the USA Today/ESPN Coaches poll.

Clemens to start Game 1 Tuesday vs. Angels

Roger Clemens gets the Game 1 assignment, and Orlando Hernandez is the odd-man out in manager Joe Torre's starting rotation for the New York Yankees' playoff series against the Anaheim Angels.

Torre said Sunday that Clemens will start Tuesday in the opener of the best-of-five series against the Angels, who enter as the AL wild-card team.

Clemens will be followed by Andy Pettitte, Mike Mussina and David Wells.

Clemens went 13-6 with a 4.35 ERA in 29 starts, but his numbers didn't influence Torre as much as his experience and leadership.

"I'm as confident with Roger as I am with somebody else. I really can't come up with a reason for it," Torre said. "Roger is Roger. He's been a leader for us. There is a certain step up when you hit the postseason."

Hernandez started 22 games for the AL East champs, going 8-5 with a 3.64 ERA in 29 starts, but his numbers didn't influence Torre as much as his experience and leadership.

Irish boats claim top 3 spots from Kansas

By CHRISTINE ARMSTRONG

Sports Writer

After an impressive finish last weekend in the Milwaukee River Challenge, the Irish rowed into the top three spots over Kansas in this weekend’s races on the St. Joseph River.

Cassie Markstahler (cox), Natalie Ladine, Ashlee Warren, Elizabeth Specht, Alice Burtak, Becky Luckett, Erica Drennen, Kerri Murphy and Kathleen Walsh led the Notre Dame A boat to a first-place finish in 13 minutes, 39.35 seconds.

The varsity B crew of Kathryn Long (cox), Kait Sedun, Ann Marie Dillhoff, Casey Bursauff, Meghan Boyle, Diane Price, Meredith Thornburgh, Katie Chenowith and Sarah Keefer finished with a second-place time of 13:51.91.

The Notre Dame C boat of Morgan Gibbons (cox), Kristin Mizzi, Shannon Mohan, Melissa Felker, Christy Donnelly, Danielle Stealy, Jenna Froberg, Sarah Palanadech and Megan Savage secured third place with a time of 14:04.08, just 17 seconds ahead of the Kansas A boat.

The Kansas B boat took fifth place with a 14:33.07 finish and the Notre Dame D boat of Caitlin Backish (cox), Katie O’Hara, Alicia Garcia, Katherine McCalden, Kristin Henkel, Leanne Ford, Faulk Shields, Rachel Polinski and Devon Hegeman finished with a sixth-place time of 14:48.78.

Finally, the Notre Dame E members, Becky Campbell (cox), Ann Mulligan, Tricia David, Andrea Ameni, Tori Blainey, Corrine Roman, Jennifer Connelly, Kristen Wright and Beth Franzosa pulled in a time of 15:14.52.

The team attributes some of its success this weekend to the home fans’ encouragement and support.

"It was a lot of fun for us to race on our home course and to actually have a crowd there to cheer us on," said "The team, which had been practicing in smaller boats, usually pairs, used this race against Kansas to strengthen its unity."

"I think we continue to get better with each race," first varsity eight rower Drennen said.

"Our goal is to raise the level of intensity each week this fall, and we definitely brought it up for this race. Also, to have three eights beat Kansas’s first boat is a testament to the depth on our team this year."

The rowers are satisfied with their performances so far, but will continue to push themselves more with each upcoming race, especially when the team races in Pittsburgh next weekend.

"The competition this weekend was not nearly as tough as what we will be up against next weekend in Pittsburgh," Ladine said.

"This weekend gave us the additional racing experience and heightened level of intensity which will help us tremendously, especially when the team races in Pittsburgh next weekend."

The team will compete in the Head of the Ohio Saturday in Pittsburgh.

Andrea Werner finished second at 231 (79-77-75).

"This win bodes well for the future," said Gebauer, describing the impact of winning their home invitational. "The team’s really excited. I think the high expectations made us really concentrate and focus on this week. Their sixth-place finish and this weekend."

"King also noted how the play of the younger members of the team will build for the future."

"The early success helps build a program," King said. "It's neat to have such young players who are mature enough to travel already, and it really makes us look forward to the future."

- Next up for the Irish is the Shootout at the Legends, held in Franklin, Ind., on Oct. 7 and 8.
- Freshman Suzie Haynes and senior Terri Talb also competed as individuals in the event. Haynes tied for 31st at 245 (85-82-78) while Talb tied for 64th with 255 (84-86-85).
- The Irish won the event for the second time in three years. They won the inaugural event in 2000 by 30 strokes over Princeton.

any one team that is dominating," said Belles sophomore Jen Concannon, who also had a pair of goals in the match. "Right now any team can take it, and we definitely feel we have a chance to take the top three spots.

Midfielder Emily Waggoner and defender Jen Hendrick also added goals to the Belles’ tally.

The Belles continue to show that they are a team on the rise. Only nine games into the season, they are two-thirds of the way to their six-win total from last year.

"Last year was sort of a starting over for our program," the sophomore Concannon said. "It kind of started with Bobby Johnston last season, and now Coach Pfau has come in and done a good job with the team this year."

The Belles next take on Kalamazoo College on the road Wednesday at 4 p.m. The game will be important for Saint Mary’s, as Kalamazoo is just a game behind in the MIAA standings at 2-2.

"The conference as really been turned upside down from last year," Irvin said. "The teams that were winning last year are losing now, so we think we definitely have a chance to move to the top of the conference."

Deep bench sparks Irish in pair of victories

By MATT LOZAR
Sports Writer

After watching her team blow a 15-6 lead in game one and fall behind big in game two, Irish volleyball coach Debbie Brown had to do something quickly to prevent the Irish from losing their first home Big East match.

Brown worked Kim Fletcher, Kelly Burrell and Meg Henican into the complete rotation and saw her team turn deficits of 20-10 and 29-24 into a 33-31 game two win.

Riding the momentum from game two's impressive comeback, Notre Dame defeated Connecticut 28-30, 33-31, 30-20, 30-20, 31-29.

The Irish's used the energy from game two's comeback as a springboard for the rest of the weekend.

"It was really important to win because you don't want to go down 0-2 and lose the momentum. I think it was huge for us," Brown said. "I am really surprised we won game two. It is really hard to come back from that big of a deficit with rally scoring, but we played very inspired and put some things together at the end. That game was very critical for us.

For the first time this season, Brown allowed Henican outside of the back row. Henican had been nursing a slight abdominal injury, but with the freshman finally healthy, Brown figured the time was right to unleash the top player of an impressive recruiting class.

"We just haven't had the opportunity to get [Meg] in the front row. I think it was time for us to see what she could do," Brown said. "It was one of those things where you see who is going to play well and who isn't, and you need a spark." Henican took full advantage of her time on the court.

"It was fun," Henican said. "We practice every day for stuff like this. I felt like I was well prepared."

Fletcher, a preseason all-Big East selection, got a kill on her first point and finished with 11 on the match. Meanwhile, Burrell saw her first significant playing time of the season replacing Kristen Kinder at setter. The freshman finished with 13 assists, four digs and five blocks.

"I think with the momentum we built at the end of game two, I thought it was important to keep those guys together (in the rest of the games) since they had a good chemistry on our right side," Brown said.

The Irish (11-3) dominated the Huskies (4-10) in game three and were cruising in game four before the Huskies battled back down 25-14. Connecticut won eight consecutive points and eventually tied Notre Dame at 27.

But a Husky error and an Emily Loomis block closed the gap and set the stage for the final match.

Before Sunday's match against St. John's (12-2), Notre Dame had never dropped a game to the Red Storm in seven previous meetings. The Irish took advantage of 22.5 team blocks, 12 from freshman Lauren Kelbley, to overcome their passing difficulties.

"When we were serving, blocking and playing a lot of defense, we did score a lot of points, but we were giving up a lot when we were receiving serves because we weren't passing very well," Brown said. "We didn't adjust to their servers and gave up several points in a row. That's something we have to do a better job of."

The Red Storm had a 12-8 lead in game three when the Irish took control. Winning 22 of the game's 30 points, including the last seven, gave the Irish their sixth straight win.

St. John's jumped out to an early 7-1 advantage in game four before Notre Dame used a timeout to regroup. The Irish tied the game at 9-11 on a Loomis kill and took the lead for good on Kelbley's kill at 19-18.

Despite two tough victories this weekend, the Irish are happy to start Big East action undefeated.

"It wasn't our best weekend," Kinder said. "We struggled a little bit. (Sunday) I thought the energy was better, but we didn't execute well. It's tough because we realize teams want to come here and knock us off because we are the leaders in the Big East."

Fit to be tied: Irish equal No. 19 Rutgers

By JOE HETTLER

It was another good performance for the No. 10 Notre Dame mens soccer team and another game without a victory. For the second straight game the Irish battled a ranked Big East opponent and still could not pull out a win, tying No. 19 Rutgers 1-1 in double overtime. Notre Dame lost to second-ranked St. John's 1-0 Thursday night.

"It's disappointing we didn't actually finish the job, but that'll come," Irish coach Bobby Clark said. "There's an old saying that you've got to be the bridesmaid before you can be the bride. So I think we've been the bridesmaid more than we should."

Midfielder Justin Detter scored his fourth goal of the season, while Chad Riley tallied his team-leading seventh assist of the year.

The Scarlet Knights took the lead in the 68th minute with a goal by Sam Castellano. But the Irish were able to match Rutgers' mark with Detter's game-tying goal in the 79th minute.

Notre Dame out shot Rutgers 21-13, forcing Scarlet Knight goalie Ricky Zinter to save 10 shots. Meanwhile, Irish goalie Chris Sawyer successfully defended four Rutgers shots.

"We actually played very, very well," Clark said. "It was an excellent performance. It was a tough weekend for us because I thought we played very well in the St. John's game and the Rutgers game and we only came out with one tie."

The Irish are now 4-2-3 on the season and 2-1-1 in Big East play.

Notre Dame headed into the contest having lost its last five games against Rutgers, and the Irish were 1-6 at the Scarlet Knights' home field. In its last six meetings with Rutgers, Notre Dame had been outscored 11-2.

"I think this is all tremendous experience for this team and I think you know it's going to come out right in the end," Clark said.

Notre Dame will face Big East foe Pittsburgh Oct. 4 at home before heading to Akron, Ohio to face the Zips.

Clark knows his team must be sharp against Pittsburgh if they hope to win their third conference game of the year. Pittsburgh, like Notre Dame, lost to St. John's 1-0.

"[Pittsburgh] is a very tough team," Clark said. "They're a big, strong team and it'll be another test. It's going to be one of those tough games, and if we take them lightly for one second, it'll be a very, very long evening for us. We've got to be absolutely fired to get back into the race for the [Big East conference title]."

Belles destroy Olivet squad of 11 players

By CHRIS FEDERICO
Sports Editor

The Belles soccer team smelled blood Saturday, and they went for the throat. Olivet arrived at Saint Mary's with only 11 players — just enough to field a complete team — and the Belles never let up on their undermanned opponents, defeating the Comets 6-0.

"They only had 11 players, so they couldn't substitute anyone into the game," Belles forward Wendy Irvin said. "We try to go out and do the same thing every game, but we were just able to tire them out because they didn't have any subs."

The junior Irvin had two goals in the contest, moving her into second place in the MIAA with four goals on the season. The Belles avenged two overtime losses to the Comets during the 2001 season with the lopsided victory.

Olivet's deficiency of players also kept the team from making a scoring threat in the game. Saint Mary's goalkeeper Maureen MacDonald got her second shutout of the season in keeping the Comets off the scoreboard.

The victory pushes Saint Mary's record to 4-4-1 and 2-1-1 in the MIAA Conference — tied for second place and just one game out of the lead.

Irish win 2nd Notre Dame Invite in 3 years

By ANDY TROEGER

The Notre Dame womens golf team had high expectations coming into this weekend's Notre Dame Invitational, and they did not disappoint. Led by a mixture of youth and depth, the Irish captured the event by three strokes over Western Michigan. The Irish also placed five individuals in the top 20.

"It's an excellent start for us," Irish coach Debby King said. "We are right now concentrating on staying in the present moment. We're not thinking of the past, not thinking of the future, but just taking care of business."

The Irish fired a team total of 945 (316-310-319) to hold off Western Michigan's hard charge in the final round. Despite being 14 strokes back heading into the final round of play, the Broncos scored a tournament best 308 for a 948 total. Northern Iowa held second place heading into Sunday but struggled to a 325 to finish third.

The Irish were led by one of four freshmen in the lineup, Lauren Gebauer. The rookie tied for the lead after the first 18 holes and finished in a tie for fifth individually at 234 (75-77-82). Since Gebauer competed as an individual last week at Michigan State, it was the first time she contributed to the team's score.

"It really was a carry over from last week when I shot a 76 in the last round," Gebauer said. "It just got me to work harder in practice and to really focus on this tournament."

The rest of the Irish squad also made important contributions as three other golfers finished in the top 20. Junior Shannon Byrne fired a 239 (82-77-78) to tie for 15th, while freshman Sarah Issatt tied for 18th at 241 (78-78-85) and classmate Katie Brophy finished tied for 20th with 242 (87-78-77).

Former Notre Dame Invitational medalist Rebecca Rogers fired 248 (82-85-80) and Lauren Barbir added a 249 (81-85-83) to round out the Irish team total.

In addition to winning the team title, Irish sophomore Karen Lotta finished tied for third overall in the individual competition. Lotta fired a 72 Sunday, the low round of the tournament. She finished two shots off the pace set by Allison Comick of Cincinnati who finished at 230 (77-75-78). Evansville's

Notre Dame 3, Connecticut 1

The Irish began defense of their seventh Big East title with a pair of conference victories over the weekend against the Huskies and the Red Storm. The Irish recovered from a slow start and 0-1 deficit against Connecticut for the 3-1 victory.

ROWING

Notre Dame def. Kansas

In Notre Dame's second meet of the fall season, the Irish placed the top three boats in defeating Kansas in the Milwaukee River Challenge. Kansas' top boat finished in fourth place. The Irish also had boats finish in sixth and seventh places. Notre Dame's next meet is at the Head of the Ohio in Pittsburgh.
