University welcomes 3 provosts

The University named replacements this summer for its three departing associate provosts, all of whom are assuming greater administrative responsibilities at either Notre Dame or Saint Mary’s. Two of the new associate provosts, Jean Ann Linney and Christine Maziar, come from outside the University, and the third, Dennis Jacobs, served previously as a chemistry professor at Notre Dame. “It’s a challenge, but it also adds new insight and vitality,” Provost Nathan Hatch said of the changes occurring in his office. A search process began after Carol Ann Mooney, former associate provost, was appointed chancellor of the new University of Notre Dame du Lac.

US revokes visa for Ramadan

Decision bars Muslim scholar from teaching at Notre Dame

By CLAIRE HEININGER

Drawing a national spotlight to the University and dealing a painful blow to the Kroc Institute for Peace Studies, the State Department has revoked the visa of Tariq Ramadan, a prominent but controversial Muslim scholar scheduled to begin teaching at Notre Dame Tuesday. Hired last spring to raise the profile and diversity of the curriculum of the Kroc Institute, Ramadan was initially granted a visa after passing a thorough investigation by both the Department of Homeland Security and the State Department. However, his permission to work in the United States was revoked July 28 for reasons not revealed to the University.

Homeland Security spokesman Dean Boyd would not comment on the specifics of the decision to bar Ramadan, a Swiss citizen who had been scheduled to teach Islamic philosophy and ethics beginning this fall at Notre Dame. But Boyd said visas are typically revoked when a noncitizen poses a potential national security threat or a public safety risk — two suggestions that the University immediately denied. “We know of no reason why he shouldn’t be allowed in,” Notre Dame spokesman Matt Storin said. “If we did, we wouldn’t have hired him.”

According to State Department spokesmen, Ramadan’s visa was revoked after he failed to check in at the U.S. Embassy in Switzerland, but the State Department is not clear on what other factors led to the decision to remove the visa. In a statement released by the Kroc Institute, Ramadan wrote that he had not been allowed to enter the United States because of his status as a Muslim scholar of Islam.

Officials optimistic about ticket distribution

Despite some student confusion over lottery numbers and frustration about the price increase, University officials were optimistic about the first day’s outcome of this year’s football ticket lottery distribution. “On a one to 10 scale, it was a 10,” said Cappy Gagnon, coordinator of stadium personnel. “We’ve been doing this process for several years now ... so everybody, I think, is now so used to it that they just do it right. We did virtually the whole [senior] class today in about an hour [and] 45 minutes.”

Josh Berlo, director of ticketing, said the process was relatively time-effective, with students waiting in line for 10 minutes or less. Although other methods of ticket distribution have been discussed, such as completing applications online and through the mail, the lottery ticket system allows students to choose their neighbors in the stands.

Home at last

There are some that say you can't go home again, but I'd beg to differ. Going home is easy—it's being home that's the test.

During my freshman year, I did a lot of growing-up. After my tame and structured high school experience it was inevitable that college would change me, but I didn't realize by how much until I tried to fit back into the world I left behind.

I think I know what it means to be an intern at the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, mainly because I was stuffed into a group of strangers, as I was stuffed into a mattress that I had shat upon long before.

Suffocating in the hand-me-downs of a former life, I saw no possibility of reprieve in the summer ahead, and no hope of securing a location for their final year in the student section.

Football coach Tyrone Willingham selects 199 as the winning number in the lottery for student season tickets Monday night. Seniors with numbers close to the winner began lining up outside the Stadium in the early hours of Tuesday morning in hopes of securing a prime location for their final year in the student section.

Woman attempts scorpion record

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia — A Malaysian woman who's trying to reclaim a world record by living in a locked glass box with more than 6,000 scorpions has been stung once, is suffering a fever and nearly sleeps because the creatures keep crawling over her.

Nur Malena Hassan, 27, said Wednesday she has a "50/50 chance" of reaching her target of being coped up with the poisonous arachnids for 36 consecutive days to set a new record for the longest stay in a room full of scorpions.

I'm feeling so much tension," Nur Malena told The Associated Press by telephone from the specially built glass room that she moved into Saturday in a shopping mall in Kuantan, a city about 160 miles northeast of Kuala Lumpur.

"Nighttime is the worst," she said. "I can only sleep two or three hours, since scorpions get so active at night.

ND, SMC continue campus construction over summer

By KATE ANTONACCI

News Writer

Though most of the Notre Dame student body was absent, campus was all but silent over the summer as construction crews busily worked to prepare for the 2004 school year.

While the most visible fruit of these labors is the new Marie P. DeBartolo Center for the Performing Arts, other developments also took shape.

James Lyphout, vice president for business operations, said the 150,000 square foot performing arts building, which first broke ground in Oct. 2001 and cost an estimated $62.6 million, was finished earlier this summer.

"Faculty moved in on July 1 and everything is on time and on schedule," he said, adding that there will be an official ceremonial dedication in late September or early October.

Though the new performing arts building houses many offices and classrooms, the main venues include a concert hall, a center theatre, an organ and studio theatre.

Construction continued this summer on the new security and post office facility, located near Stepan Center, which will be finished in late December or early January.

Also underway is the Guglielmino Family Athletics Center, located east of Rolfs Sports Recreation Center. This 100,000 square foot building will house a variety of facilities for varsity athletes, notably a 25,000 square foot strength and conditioning center, according to the University Architect Web site.

Lyphout added that the new Jordan Hall of Science, which will contain lab space for undergraduates, as well as an observatory, greenhouse and herbarium, should be finished by the summer of 2006.

The completion of the performing arts center and the developments made on other construction projects represent the first significant progress since budget cuts and a decreased endowment forced the University to cut back on all construction projects, with the exception of Legends, in recent years.

"These buildings are primarily funded, with the exception of the security/post office building, by benefactions and those gifts have allowed these buildings to move forward," Lyphout said.

Students at Saint Mary's also returned to campus to find completed student apartments, which were finished less than a year after the College broke ground.

"The Opus Hall apartments at Saint Mary's were finished the first week of August and all 72 beds are filled," said Nick Farmer, the director of marketing communications at St. Mary's. "The new apartments offer the independence of off-campus living to senior students.

Construction is also underway on the new Student Center at the College, which, if all goes as planned, will be ready for use by mid-March, said Farmer. He added that Saint Mary's is also considering building a new academic facility, though construction will not begin until fundraising is finalized.

stadium. Gagnon said, "Students have always wanted to choose who they sit with, and then compete in some way to get there early for seats," he said, recalling the tradition of students camping out in line for tickets — a process that changed in 1999 because of problems with safety, litter and alcohol consumption.
"We transferred to something that's a lot cleaner and a heck of a lot more time efficient," Gagnon said.
Berlo said due to student reaction, the University has explored the feasibility of transitioning to an online ticket distribution system.
"It's something that we definitely want to do," Berlo said of online ticket distribution. "We just want to support the students and see that their needs are met."
Students expressed overall satisfaction with the speed of the process.
"It thought it was very decent," said senior Jaimie Berlo. "We were in the stadium and The first lottery number was called, so we were in the stadium and through the ticket line, we had about 15 minutes after that," he said. "It was fairly quick."
A larger source of student grumbling was the price of season tickets, which was increased to $339 and $212 for Notre Dame and Saint Mary's students respectively. "Both Gagnon and Berlo attributed the inflated price to athletic director Kevin White's desire to fully fund all scholarship sports.
"One of the means to fully fund the athletic programs is the ticket price," Gagnon said.
"There's 26 varsity sports that seek to win a national championship every year," Berlo explained. "We are fully funded ... but with the cost of tuition going up, the cost of a scholarship goes up. Ticket revenue is a major part of the revenue that supports all of our sports.
Students will continue to receive tickets at a significant discount."
"I have not heard any discussions of changing the student discount or reducing it," said Berlo. "We want them to be affordable for the students."
The lottery system allows students to take applications to the stadium to receive a random lottery number. Applicants go in groups to receive sequential lottery numbers that ensure seating together. After the lottery number is drawn, students travel to the stadium to actually buy their season ticket booklets. The first lottery number drawn has the first pick at seating. As students reach the stadium, tickets are distributed in order of lottery numbers that are present. Seating begins with the lowest row number of one section, proceeds up to the top and then goes through the next section top to bottom.
Although Feltault observed "a lot of inconsistency on what time people could go in (to the stadium)," Gagnon insisted that the system is very efficient.
"We check every number," said Gagnon. "If you don't come early, we'll take whoever's there. There are people whose times should have been the second half but they got in at the first half because someone slept in...but in the line itself was in sequence."
Students with low lottery numbers can move to the front of the line for tickets. However, it is their responsibility to make sure they are in the appropriate line position Gagnon said.
"Students are very reluctant to do this," he said. "They stand there like lumps because I guess it's not a 'cool' thing to do. We'd have students go behind somebody in line, and that was their choice. We checked every number as people came in."
Berlo said that each ticket window has similar seats, so that groups going consecutively might have seats several rows apart.

SMC names Pierce new associate dean of faculty

By KELLY MEEHAN
News Writer

Saint Mary's political science professor Patrick Pierce, who spent the last year serving as director of the College's Strategic Plan, was named Associate Dean of Faculty and director of the Center for Academic Innovation.
As the associate dean, Pierce will extend his planning responsibilities to faculty and curriculum development. He said he hopes to earn further financial support for the academic life of the College by enhancing the array of grants that support faculty research, teaching, student learning and research.
"Faculty and students work very hard at Saint Mary's College," Pierce said. "As a college we need to celebrate and recognize those achievements. Additionally, we need to provide support so that faculty and students can continue to excel."
While building upon the existing programs of his predecessors, Patrick White and Marcia Blackard, Pierce said he wants to engage students and faculty in intellectually stimulating discussions on topics that address relevant, timely and ongoing public questions.
"I hope to encourage faculty and student participation in these areas, and to support their efforts," Pierce said. "I will also organize programming to support intellectual life."
Pierce — who also serves on several committees that address issues such as rank and tenure of faculty, curriculum, grants for faculty development and various program grants for the Center for Academic Innovation — will play a vital role in the college's accreditation process, helping to manage the flow of professors' work in required self-study projects.
Pierce has taught in the College's political science department since 1981 and served as department chair from fall 2000 until spring 2003.

Students may have missed a poster or phone call during the hectic environment of move-in weekend. "The purpose of a timely notice was to alert students so that they could take measures to avoid further criminal activity," he said, but added that NISP was unaware of a pattern or of any other incidents of this nature.
Though no additional security patrol was assigned over the weekend as a result of this specific report, Johnson said officers try to provide a visible presence in potentially dangerous areas such as the lakes and parking lots.

Pullout plan moves forward

President's campaign attorney discloses relationship with anti-Kerry veterans

WASHINGTON - A lawyer for President Bush's re-election campaign disclosed Tuesday that he has been providing legal advice for a veterans group that is challenging Democratic Sen. John Kerry's account of his Vietnam War service.

Benjamin Ginsberg's acknowledgment marks the second time in recent days that an individual associated with the Bush campaign has been connected to the group Swift Boat Veterans for Truth, which Kerry has accused of being a front for the Republican incumbent's re-election effort.

The Bush campaign and the veterans' group say there is no coordination.

The group "came to me and said, 'We have a point of view we want to get into the First Amendment debate right now. There's a new law. It's very complicated. We want to comply with the law, will you keep us in the bounds of the law?'" Ginsberg said. "I said yes, absolutely, as I would do for anyone."

Ginsberg said he never told the Bush campaign what he discussed with the group, or vice versa, and doesn't advise the group on ad strategies.

"They have legal questions and when they have legal questions I answer them," Ginsberg said. He said he had not yet decided whether to charge the Swift Boat Veterans for Truth for the work.

Kerry's presidential campaign last week filed a complaint with the Federal Election Commission charging the Bush campaign and the Swift Boat Veterans for Truth of illegally coordinating the group's ads. The ads accuses Kerry of lying about his decorated Vietnam War service; the group's accounts in a television ad have been disputed by Navy records and veterans who served on Kerry's boat.

"It's another piece of the mounting evidence of the ties between the Bush campaign and this group," Kerry campaign spokesman Chad Clanton said of Ginsberg's admission. "The longer President Bush waits to specifically condemn this smear, the more it looks like his campaign is behind it."

On Saturday, retired Air Force Col. Ken Cordier resigned as a member of the Bush campaign's veterans' steering committee after it was learned that he appeared in the Swift Boat veterans' commercial.

Kerry, meanwhile, is the subject of complaints by the Bush campaign and the Republican National Committee accusing his campaign of illegally coordinating anti-Kerry ads with soft-money groups on the Democratic side, allegations he and the groups deny.

Ginsberg also represented the Bush campaign in 2000 and became a prominent figure during the Florida recount.

He also served as counsel to the RNC in its unsuccessful lawsuit seeking to overturn the nation's campaign finance law, which banned the national party committees from collecting corporate donations known as soft money and imposed stricter rules on coordination involving parties, candidates and interest groups.

Ginsberg contends that by offering legal advice to both the Bush campaign and the Swift Boat group, he has done nothing different than other election lawyers in Washington, including attorneys for Kerry and the Democratic National Committee who have also advised soft-money groups.

Representing campaigns, parties and outside interest groups simultaneously is legal and allowed under the law and by the FEC, he said.

Macrory, who announced last winter her decision to depart Notre Dame and take leadership of the College. The search expanded following the Board of Trustees’ decision in April to appoint Father John Jenkins the next University president and name John Affleck-Graves executive vice president.

Linney replaces Mooney, who became president of Saint Mary’s June 1. Maziar fills the position vacated by Affleck-Graves and Jacobs takes over for Jenkins, who is preparing to replace University President Father Edward Malloy following the conclusion of the current school year.

This search was spearheaded by Hatch, who will now have the task of implementing a smooth leadership transition within his office.

Keeping a focus on undergraduate education

Undergraduates who complain that the University turns a deaf ear to their concerns stand to gain a strong advocate in Jacobs, who was named professor of the year in 2002. Jacobs will oversee undergraduate education, in addition to international study programs.

“I have tried to understand some of the challenges [undergraduates] face,” said Jacobs, who will continue to teach this fall. “I couldn’t imagine moving into this role ... if I hadn’t had that prior role [as a professor].”

As Notre Dame chemistry professor for 16 years, Jacobs combined a focus on chemistry research with concern for quality undergraduate education. He also redesigned a general chemistry course to better respond to different learning styles and student patterns. In his new position, Jacobs hopes to continue work on many of these same interests.

“Why should a student need to take two semesters of philosophy? What are we hoping students will gain from that?”

Building the Notre Dame of the future

With responsibilities that include budget administration, academic space management and the ten-year plan, “Notre Dame 2010: Fulfilling the Promise,” Maziar will help build the Notre Dame of the future, both literally and figuratively.

While being the provost at the University of Minnesota, she also served on Notre Dame’s Graduate Program Advisory Council.

“That kept me abreast of what was happening at Notre Dame,” she said. “It caused me to say, this might be a good time for me to be at Notre Dame.”

Maziar also praised Notre Dame’s Catholic identity and credited it as a key factor in her acceptance of the new position.

“I was very active at the Newman [Catholic] Center at Purdue. I have always made a point of ... making the campus parish my home parish,” Maziar said.

Maziar will focus her energy on implementing Notre Dame’s ten-year plan and creating a delicate balance among a variety of academic goals.

“We have the opportunity to be very thoughtful ... about how we build these [graduate] programs,” she said. “They’re not sustainable if we sacrifice in any way the quality of undergraduate education.”

Fulfilling the promise

Linney comes to Notre Dame from the University of South Carolina, where she served as graduate studies dean prior to chairing the school’s psychology department. She will oversee faculty promotion, tenure and governance, in addition to diversity efforts. Linney was unavailable for comment.

Hatch said Notre Dame was attracted to Linney’s experience with diversity initiatives, including several awards for her efforts in that area.

“The work has long dealt with multicultural issues,” Hatch said. “I think her greatest strength is that she’s a wonderful problem solver.”

Mass

“We are inheritors of a great tradition of a glorious past,” Malloy continued. “What will we do with this inheritance that has been passed on to us?”

Calling Notre Dame a “community of faith, service, and learning,” the University President said that as members of that community, “we are called to be agents of transformation in the Spirit.”

He challenged those attending to build on Father Sorin’s dream and carry on the greatness of the Notre Dame tradition.

“We can recognize the power we represent collectively to do great things,” Malloy said. “I pray that together we might be blessed that the gift of the Spirit might give us courage, learning, and strength.”

New and returning students alike, along with members of the Notre Dame faculty and staff, celebrated with Father Malloy and the Holy Cross priests. A picnic, accompanied by live music and later fireworks, followed the opening mass and was celebrated on DeBartolo Quad.

“The mass was a great bond of community spirit at Notre Dame,” said freshman Brian Brownshcudie.

Another freshman, Kara Fessler, agreed.

“I think that it was great to see so many people at a mass that wasn’t on a Sunday,” she said. “It was a great way for the freshmen to see what the Notre Dame community is all about.”

“There is no better way to start off another academic year at a Catholic University than to gather together at mass and offer it up to the Lord,” said senior Brad Leeman.

IN BRIEF

World Bank lends Brazil $1.2B

BRASILIA, Brazil — The World Bank announced Tuesday it will lend $1.2 billion to Brazil over the next four years to help protect the environment.

Vinod Thomas, the World Bank's director for Brazil, said it was the bank's biggest single loan ever to protect the environment of a single country.

"Given the size of Brazil and the size of the problem and the quality of the government's project, it is a reasonable amount," Thomas said in a video link from Washington.

Brazil's environment minister, Marina Silva, said the money would be used to finance 10 priority projects ranging from protecting the Amazon rainforest to employing environmental analysts.

"For us, this is highly relevant," Silva said, adding that the loan should serve to shield environmental projects from any eventual budget cuts.

Stock action slumps on Wall Street

NEW YORK — Investors all but ignored another substantial retreat in oil prices Tuesday, leaving stocks mixed in a listless and lightly traded session. Tech stocks fell in response to a brokerage downgrade of Cisco Systems Inc., while blue chips got a boost from an upgrade of Caterpillar Inc.

Although oil dipped briefly below $45 per barrel during the session, two days of falling prices weren't enough for hedge fund managers to get back into the market, despite very attractive prices.

Investors were concerned that oil prices, which topped $49 per barrel late last week but closed down 84 cents at $45.21 on the New York Mercantile Exchange, could advance again. Another sharp rise could raise corporate costs and reduce consumer spending, thus harming third- and fourth-quarter earnings.

"Without any real big economic or geopolitical news here, the market's keening off of oil," said Jay Suskind, head trader at Ryan Beck & Co. "But we're in the dog days of August here, so there's just not going to be a lot of volume or conviction here."

Major airline cancels over 50 flights

LONDON — Thousands of disgruntled vacationers were stranded at Heathrow Airport on Tuesday after British Airways canceled scores of flights because of staff shortages and technical problems.

Passengers at Europe's busiest airport were forced to sleep on benches, joined long lines to rebook their flights or simply gave up and returned home as the airport grounded 56 flights over two days.

"To be told that they've got no staff is ludicrous," said Tom Edmonds, 36, whose flight to Nice, France, was canceled. "I'm only going for four days, and I now have to queue up to try and get myself booked on a later flight."

British Airways pulled the plug on 31 flights to and from short-haul destinations in Britain and Europe on Tuesday after it scrapped 25 flights to the United States and other European destinations.

The airline said it was short about 120 staff at Heathrow. Several airline staff members left unexpectedly at the beginning of the summer and large numbers were away on sick leave, a spokesman said. British Airways is recruiting more staff.

The airline last week headed off a strike for the Aug. 28-31 public holiday in Britain by offering baggage handlers and check-in staff more pay. Workers complain they are underpaid and overworked, particularly during the busy summer vacation periods at Heathrow.

Most flights operated by the airline, which usually carries about 100,000 passengers a day, were delayed by several hours. British Airways said it expected at least 8,000 travelers to be directly affected by the end of Tuesday.

The disruption at the height of the summer vacation season made head-line news across Britain and some commentateurs suggested the airline could find it tough to win back public favor.

Search for Boy Scout continues

SALT LAKE CITY — The search for a missing 12-year-old Boy Scout in a mountainous area of Utah was officially labeled a recovery operation Tuesday as authorities all but gave up hope of finding him alive.

"It's a great loss for my family right now," the boy's father, Kevin Bardsley, told reporters.

Garrett Bardsley was last seen Friday morning, when his father noticed he was back in camp after boy got his shirt, pants and wet fishing in a pond near a lake. The campsite has been described variously as 150 yards to a quarter mile from the town of Blue River.

Dozens of searchers have spent the last 10 days searching for Garrett, who was wearing sweat pants, a T-shirt and a black hooded sweat shirt and was last seen in the woods.

The search has been hampered by cold, wet weather. Rain mixed with snow fell on Saturday, and the temperature plummeted to 18 degrees overnight. On Tuesday, the high temperature was forecast to be 10 degrees, said Sheriff Dave Edmunds.

"We all thought we would have him back over after Paris, but we're not holding, " he said. "That just increased the bitumen deep." Edmunds said ideas from French were discussed on the war and the evacuation of the French at that time. "I could hear it all from my cell," he said. "The three were tried, sentenced, lined up against a wall and shot. The whole thing was over in less than an hour. Such things went on all the time."

But today, like nearly every one of dozens of veterans interviewed by The Associated Press, he lauded efforts to meld ancient foes into a modern union. "We have to stop old stupid rivalries," he said.

People who remember Aug. 25, 1944, are celebrating with a bittersweet mix of emotions. For many, the horror and humiliation of occupation did not end in 1945, if not decades earlier. "It is not over, we have had all more important things to worry about, like finding our families and rights and bringing our lives," Delarue said. "Only last did we have the luxury of analyzing that." Almost immediately, the French army destroyed against colonial cousin blood军团 in Asia and Africa, including a war that spread in Vietnam and ended only in 1954.

Parisiens fete 50 years of liberation

Although liberators found Germans had minted the bridges over the Seine, it was 20 years or more later, when most people had forgotten, that danger Paris had faced.

On Tuesday, France designated "Paris Burning!," told the AP its idea for the book came only in the late 1960s, when a German businessman who lives happily in Paris.

However, Boyd noted that University of Fribourg in Switzerland did anticipate possibility under the post-September 11 incident. As a European citizen, it, University spokesman Matt said, "We're never felt any hostility at first sight, here as a 14-year-old girl in the United States," said Mar".

And Appleby said, "Paris, 81, "Peace is accepting the idea that you must live with others and forge new alliances into something stronger."

When he left, I didn't think I'd have said that a few years after the war," While Paroli celebrated, his spirit was dampened after his wife died near Dijon. Captured, he was in German prison camps until arraignment in 1945.

Today, Delarue decided the Paris was too much easier to start than to finish, the only answer is to avoid them. "I have a hard time saying, 'Vive la France!' but it's a good idea for the book-- 'Paris is Free Again.'"

Charles Wertensbaker wrote, "It was a hard place, a little dirty and scarred with no impeachable damage. Notre Dame is chipped from machine-gun bullets ... and these scars will never run tail off by the end of the week," he concluded.

Lawyers sue to block deportation

Japanese will not immediately deport Fischer

Associated Press

TOKYO — Japan will not immediately deport former world chess champion Bobby Fischer to the United States, where he is wanted for violating international sanctions.

Japanese Immigration Minister Daizo Nozawa rejected Fischer's application for political asylum Tuesday and issued an order to deport him, but the chess legend's lawyers immediately sued to block the order, winning him a temporary reprieve.

"It should take a little while," Immigration Office spokesman Itseu Noto said Wednesday.

Noto said lawyers were confident he would renounce his U.S. citizenship and getting him a temporary reprieve.

Fischer's supporters said they were confident he would not be sent to the United States.

"Once we get this battle onto a level playing field, then Bobby Fischer should prevail," said John Bosnitch, a Tokyo-based adviser to Fischer. "We are going to hang on and we are going to fight.

Fischer's animosity toward his homeland is well-known, and he once praised the Holocaust.

Red Cross announces massive Sudan airlift

Associated Press

AL-FASHER — The International Committee of the Red Cross said Tuesday it was mounting a major airlift of relief supplies to Sudan’s troubled Darfur region, its largest such operation since the war in Iraq.

The United Nations terms Darfur the world’s worst humanitarian crisis. More than 30,000 people have been killed and 1.4 million forced to flee their homes in the 18 months of fighting between African rebel groups and Arab militia known as the Janjaweed.

Interior Minister Abdel-Rahim Hussein said Monday’s clashes by Sudanese Liberation Army fighters, which left several police injured, did not bode well for peace talks in Abuja, Nigeria, which opened the same day. But he insisted the government remains committed to the peace process.

“Still means we continue the talks because we think the only way to reach a solution is through negotiation,” he told The Observer.

The Associated Press after visiting the scene of one attack — a police car near Tawilah, 35 miles west of Al-Fasher.

It was not possible to independently confirm the attacks or the affiliations of the perpetrators. But at Al-Fasher’s military air base, two men wearing blue police uniforms, suffering apparent leg injuries, lay on stretchers in a room pockmarked with bullet holes from a rebel attack last year.

Announcing plans to launch a major airlift to the region, the Red Cross said it was planning six trips carrying trucks, other equipment and medical supplies by Sept. 5.

“The aim is to improve ICRC access to thousands of people still deprived of urgently needed humanitarian aid and to provide further supplies to meet vital health and water needs,” the agency said.

The peace talks in Nigeria are a last-minute attempt for progress before Monday’s U.N. Security Council deadline for Khartoum to disarm the Arab militia accused of terrorizing African farmers or face economic and diplomatic sanctions.

Tribunals begin in Guantanamo

Associated Press

GUANTANAMO BAY NAVAL BASE — Osama bin Laden’s chauffeur was formally charged Tuesday at the first U.S. military tribunal to convene since World War II, and the defendant’s lawyer quickly challenged the panel over its impartiality and questioned the proceeding’s fairness.

Salim Ahmed Hamdan, a 34-year-old Yemeni, declined to enter a plea until motions filed by his military-appointed lawyer attacking the legality of the proceeding are decided, probably in November.

Hamdan, who was not shackled and wore a flowing white robe, smiled occasionally as he listened to an Arabic interpreter through headphones, even after hearing charges that could bring life in prison; conspiracies to commit war crimes, including attacking civilians, murder and terrorism. He isn’t charged with any specific violent act.

His lawyer, Lt. Cmdr. Charlie Swift, filed challenges against four of the five panel members, including the presiding officer, and an alternate, questioning their capacity to serve fairly. The accompanying authority, John Altenburg Jr., a retired Army general, will decide whether any of the commission members should be removed, but was not clear how soon he might rule.

“It is important that these proceedings not only be fair, but appear fair to the world,” Swift said during the hearing, which lasted eight hours.

He challenged the presiding officer, Army Col. Peter Brownback, a former military judge, on the grounds that he came out of retirement to serve on the panel and that he is not a standing member of a bar association.

Swift raised questions on panel member Marine Col. Jack Sparks Jr., citing concerns over Sparks’ feeling about a reservist under his command who died in the Sept. 11 terrorist attack on New York’s World Trade Center while working as a firefighter.

He also said he was concerned that commission member Marine Col. R. Thomas Bright had said he was in charge of the logistics of moving detainees to Guantanamo, that Air Force Lt. Col. Timothy Toomey was an intelligence officer in Afghanistan, and that an alternate, Army Lt. Col. Curt Cooper, expressed strong emotions about the 2001 attacks and concern for the safety of himself and his family.

“Clearly the impartiality of these panel members is a concern to us,” said Anthony Romero, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union who was one of several rights activists observing the hearing.

Hamdan has said he earned a pitance for his family as bin Laden’s driver before the Sept. 11 attacks, but denies involvement in terrorism. U.S. officials allege he served as the al-Qaeda leader’s bodyguard and delivered weapons to his operatives.

Brownback gave Swift until Oct. 1 to file other motions and said the prosecution would have until Oct. 15 to respond.

Tribunal members and prosecutors asked the media not to use the names of the panel members, fearing possible retribution. But their names were previously made public and have been published.

Brownback is the only member of commission to have formal legal training. Asked by Swift whether he thought the proceedings were legal, Brownback said he chose not to answer.

When describing our Notre Dame student body, often the words "disengaged" and "apathetic" find their way in the conversation. The attendance of social justice activities and participation in campus demonstrations certainly support these descriptors, yet I feel this generalization may be too hasty. As people of consciousness and compassion, we all have something we care passionately about. The gaps of concern range from our own lives to the broader human community of this planet. While some show their passions more overtly, others hold back.

Yet, we are surely a community of overachievers. To be here at this prestigious university, ingenuity and diligence have to be a part of our characters. So, with such an able student body and injustice all around us to inspire out of moral outrage, why do Notre Dame students still get dunned as uncaring automatons? The more cynical view would suggest the achievements and eminent success of many students have hardened their hearts to the worries of the outside world. Yet, this damming view only alienates the active crowds from everyone else. Perhaps a closer reflection may offer a better answer.

We all, as human beings, have something about which we are concerned. Whether it is family, friends, our future, or our descendants, we all have a reason to care for something beyond ourselves and beyond the present. The gap between caring and action often seems weary of crossing then points to a sad truth. Most people do not recognize their own power to change circumstances and are overwhelmed by the wrong they see in the world. This is understandable in such an individualistic and money-driven culture. As the robber barons and ruling classes of the present make decisions that dictate our freedoms and fortunes, it is hard to see how a group of compassionate people can influence the course of things.

Yet, all change and reform throughout history has been the result of countering power with power. Not the destructive power of violent force, for it only tears human bonds and destroys lives. The appropriate description of power identifies two kinds in our culture — organized money and organized people. The latter exists where the concern has on the course of things. Refusing to aid others in their struggle for justice does more to retard the process than the actions of their opposition.

Howard Zinn, activist, writer and historian, captures the context in which we should view our power and action in his autobiography, "You Can't Be Neutral on a Moving Train." The title comes from a phrase Zinn used often in his classes. For him, history is being made everyday. The course of things resembles a moving train, surging toward a foreseeable and sometimes negative end. The hope for preventing tragedy is inside us — also on the train. We all have the power to act, change it's momentum and do something, to change the course of history. Our success compounds and organizes us.

"It is important to recognize the power in a group of people organizing to change circumstances. More imperative, we must consider the influence inaction has on the course of things. Refusing to aid others in their struggle for justice does more to retard the process than the actions of their opposition."

Howard Zinn, activist, writer and historian, captures the context in which we should view our power and action in his autobiography, "You Can't Be Neutral on a Moving Train." The title comes from a phrase Zinn used often in his classes. For him, history is being made everyday. The course of things resembles a moving train, surging toward a foreseeable and sometimes negative end. The hope for preventing tragedy is inside us — also on the train. We all have the power to act, change it's momentum and do something, to change the course of history. Our success compounds and organizes us.

"It is important to recognize the power in a group of people organizing to change circumstances. More imperative, we must consider the influence inaction has on the course of things. Refusing to aid others in their struggle for justice does more to retard the process than the actions of their opposition."

Politics more than petitions

I know what you're thinking. "It's the second day of the fall semester, and the last thing I want to do is read a column about politics." We've been on campus for a little over a day now, and who knows how many times you've been asked to sign a petition for candidate so-and-so or sign up for political group X. Couple those inquiries with a summer that boasted an unprecedented volume of political ads, and just about every bodily organ is in a big hurry and the outbreak is pretty easy to start filling up. The frenzy is only amplified by the petition-wielding army: those people who approach us with the familiar "If my name is ... Would you like to sign a petition for candidate so-and-so or sign up for political group X?" But the joy of being a college student, right? We are the purportedly apathetic section of voters coveted by every political group imaginable. Walking around campus like a political buffet, there's always someone with a clipboard waiting to give you an earful. Yet, indeed, we are truly the chosen people of the political recruiting process. The frenzy is only amplified in an election year when so many states will be decided by a couple hundred votes. We all have our strategies for avoiding the petition-wielding army. Wearing headphones even if they don't happen to be playing any music, pretending to be in a big hurry as the ever-popular strategy of not making eye contact at any cost. The phone calls are even easier to avoid. Just hang up.

After perfecting one of these methods, it gets pretty easy to start dismissing these political activists. The trouble is, all too often the entire political process gets lumped in with them. It gets pretty easy to start filling the role of "apathetic young voter." We shut the clipboards, we change the channel and we assume issues don't apply to us yet because we're still in school. Tax cuts don't mean too much when you're living in UNM's student population, but you have roughly 20,000 students not voting - 20,000 votes just from UNM students. The turnout for all voters across the board is even lower in non-presidential election years.

What kinds of issues are decided by elections? Well, they're not necessarily those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer. Institutions. Also, even though young people often choose to ignore issues such as rising federal deficits and the demise of Social Security, there are the types of issues that will plague our generation and our children's generation unless they are kept on our radar.

Although we may not always have the time or the desire to talk to every person who approaches us with the familiar "If my name is ... Would you like to sign a petition for candidate so-and-so or sign up for political group X?" That does not mean we can't safely dismiss the political process as a whole. The people we vote for and the people who get elected when we fail to vote change our lives in numerous ways.

From a Republican Congress falling to allocate proper funding to our schools, to Heather Wilson's crusade to include candidates who make a point to prioritize student issues. College students have allowed themselves to be ignored by the White House and the Republican-controlled Congress. The only way to change that is to make our voices heard on Election Day.

This column originates from The Observer, page 15, Aug. 24, 2004. This is an editorial and private opinions expressed in this column are those of the author and not necessarily those of The Observer.
that's more American than beer, hot dogs and baseball?

How about drinking beer, eating hot dogs and listening to Willie Nelson and Bob Dylan. It is rare for any ballpark like Coveleski Stadium to see an artist as big as Willie Nelson with ease. But at Sunday night’s concert, it was obvious that the home of South Bend newer groups, and Dylan may have lost some of the fire of his early performances, but today. The choice to have the two singer/songwriters tour together was as innovative as the idea Rochester, Minn. Like performances by Billy Joel and Elton John, who have performed together would be loathe to miss.

Sunday night’s performance opened with a group that, in sharp contrast to the headlining act: Cowtown, a group from Austin, Texas, has toured across the U.S. and internationally, and was asl. Hot Club’s Western swing sound, not to be confused with bluegrass, set the mood for Nelson and Dylan very well. Although violinist Elana Fremerman, guitarist Whit Smith and bassist Jake Erwin do not have the same talent for poignant lyrics as the senior musicians on the tour, the group was instrumentally excellent.

Willie Nelson and the Family Band took the stage with the energy and informality Nelson is known for. Nelson sang strong vocals on hits like “On the Road Again” and “Beer for my Horses.” The whole group slowed down beautifully for “Blue Eyes Crying in the Rain” and “Georgia on my Mind.”

In their heyday Nelson and Dylan were known as much for the songs they wrote as for their performances. As their fame has increased, their songs have become known for the countless covers of their work and for their own performances of it. To some extent nostalgia is the reason why both artists still attract on famous hits like “Watchtower” have become less recognizable.

Sunday’s performance was, in addition to anything else, a chance to see how time has changed both artists. Nelson has gained a reputa­ tion as an American institution in areas beyond his music. Besides owning a brand of whiskey, Nelson, along with John Mellancamp and Neil Young, is one of the founding board members of Farm Aid, and T-shirts for both could be seen throughout the stadium. Dylan has preferred to stick closer to what made him famous. But no matter what has happened or will happen to Willie Nelson and Bob Dylan since their early fame, the crowd at Coveleski showed how much the two will remain American legends.

Offensive linemen key to Oklahoma's success

Associated Press

NORMAN — Oklahoma's greatest asset and the second-ranked Sooners have many might be the players who get the least attention.

The offensive line that helped clear a path to the Heisman Trophy for quarterback Jason White returns intact for Oklahoma. The five starters three seniors and two juniors enter the 2004 season with 133 combined starts. Dan, juniors enter the

Recruiting aide indicted by grand jury in football scandal

Associated Press

DENVER — A grand jury investigation into whether boosters and sex were used to entice Colorado football recruits ended with an indictment against just one person, a former low-level school employee accused Tuesday of soliciting a prostitute for himself.

The grand jury accused only Nathan Maxcey in its indictment, making no mention of university officials, students or recruits. It decided against an indictment against three other people because of "pimping," which accused the recruiting aide of setting up prostitutes for others as a side line and hotels used by the Colorado football program.

"This appears to be good news for the University of Colorado athletic department," said attorney Craig Silverman, who has followed the investigation. "It appears that this investigation has fizzled out."

The indictment was handed up last week after three months of testimony, but were not made public until Tuesday.

The line's job will be to entice White enough time to throw downtown to his star wide receiver, Mark Clayton, and give Oklahoma's running backs, prized freshman Adrian Peterson and veteran Kejuan Jones, space to maneuver.

"With the kind of talent we have in our backfield, if we give those guys a little crease or a little seam, they are going to take it to the house," Carter said. "They all have great speed and are great athletes so it makes us real confident going down the field to them."

Oklahoma coaches insist that Peterson, the up-and-coming school recruit, must learn the complete offense to supplant Jones as the starter that includes blocking.

"You don't want a guy who gives all on a rushing play and then takes off on a passing play," said Chuck Long, Oklahoma's co-offensive coordinator. "He's going to be awarded the chance to play."

"We're not opposed to being playing incoming freshman, but he has to prove himself."

审议人: Michele Ames declined to comment on the indictment but said the university will monitor recruiting under stringent new policies.

"We will continue to be vigilant in ensuring that the reforms we've implemented take root," she said.

The embezzlement and theft charges accuse Maxcey of accumulating $1,043 in charges on his university-issued cell phone in '99 calls at a dating chat line. The calls totaled nearly 100 hours, the indictment said.

About half the calls were made after Maxcey was told by the university that the practice was unacceptable, and that he would have to repay the school, the indictment said.

The solicitation charge accuses Maxcey of paying Patricia Cowan $250 for sex.

Cowan, who ran an escort service, has alleged that Maxcey paid her $2,500 for three call girls to visit "very young, very athletic men" at Holiday Inn area hotels. Oklahoma has denied the allegations, saying the calls were only to arrange liaisons for himself.

ATHENS, Greece — They raced to the stands and grabbed American flags as "Born in the USA" blared over the speakers at the Olympics' rowdiest venue.

 Kerri Walsh and Misty May ended a splendid night on the beach with a gold medal, a fitting finale for the most dominant run in the history of beach volleyball.

 The top-ranked U.S. beach volleyball duo beat second-seeded Brazilians Shelda Bede and Adriana Behar 21-17, 21-11 on Tuesday night, and did it without ever dropping a set in seven matches.

 "It kind of hit me when I went and saw my family and they had tears in their eyes," Walsh said. "They flew a million miles to see it and they hate flying. It's really special.

 With the 6-foot-3 Walsh dominating at the net and the quick May scrambling and diving for every dig, they were favorites since last year, when they began an unprecedented 90-match, 15-tournament winning streak.

 "We have so much confidence in each other, we never doubted ourselves," May said.

 "We deserve it," Walsh added. Earlier, Americans Holly McPeak and Elaine Youngs won the bronze medal, beating Australia's Natalie Cook and Nicole Sanderson 21-18, 15-21, 15-9.

 The Americans and Brazilians exchanged hugs on the medal stand before the national anthem played. Adriana and Shelda, the all-time winningest pair on the International FIVB tour, won their second straight tournament winning streak.

 The Americans and Brazilians exchanged hugs on the medal stand before the national anthem played. Adriana and Shelda, the all-time winningest pair on the International FIVB tour, won their second straight silver medal.

 On match point in a surprisingly lopsided final, Walsh hammered a spike just inside the line. Walsh fell to her knees as May ran to embrace her and both fell backward in the sand.

 "I just tackled her," May said.

 "I didn't care if I broke her knees because she has a lot of time to rest." Questions about the pair's Olympic chances arose in June, shortly after May pulled an abdominal muscle. She spent most of the summer rehabbing while Walsh kept honing her game with other partners.

 If they had weaknesses, they certainly weren't apparent in Athens where they were untouchable, improving to 108-8 over two years.

 "A lot of people had doubts," May said. "I tried to tell people I never had doubts.

 But they never took the medal for granted.

 "People said, 'You've got the gold medal in the bag,'" Walsh said. "However flattering that is, we know that's not true."

 Now it's time to party. May and Walsh are invited to a post-Olympics party at McPeak's home in California, where 10 bottles of Dom Perignon await.

 The toasts will taste especially sweet to McPeak, who finished fifth at the Olympics in 1996 and 2000, both times because her partner was injured. Two weeks before Atlanta, Nancy Beno tore a rotator cuff and couldn't do much more than set in the tournament. Five weeks before Sydney, May then her teammate tore an abdominal muscle. She and McPeak hardly practiced together before the games began.

 Youngs played on the U.S. indoor team that finished a disappointing seventh in Atlanta. She hit the beach the following year and paired with McPeak in 2002 with Athens on her mind. The Americans' bronze victory kept Cook off the medal stand for the first time since beach volleyball became an Olympic sport in 1996. Cook won the bronze in Atlanta and the gold in Sydney, both times with Kerri Pottharst.

 She teamed with Sandersen last year after Pottharst retired.

Marlins drop Giants in key wild card matchup

Cubs outlast rain and Brewers, gain a game on San Francisco

MIAMI — The Florida Marlins continued their surge against the San Francisco Giants with a big inning Tuesday night. A four-run first inning sent San Francisco three-run homer to cap a seven-run first inning, and Ole Petter Tveit drove in five runs to help Florida win 9-1 on Tuesday night.

With the win, the defending World Series champions opened a three-game set touting as their most important so far this season. Florida won the eighth of 11 games and pulled within four games of theGiants, who had missed three straight games because of a strained left wrist, went 0-4-for-4 and came out following a 1-hour, 4-minute rain delay in the seventh.

Mulder wins league high 17th game in A’s win

Jeter hits milestone home run, Yanks win

Associated Press

OAKLAND — Mark Mulder became the American League’s 17th game winner, and the Oakland Athletics moved a season-high lead of 1-1/2 games over the New York Yankees with a 5-3 win over the A’s manager Ken Macha believed the A’s lineup for the second straight game. Mulder hit a two-run single in the first inning. A’s starter John Lackey allowed one run and four hits in seven innings against the Yankees, who won for the 15th time in 19 games under AL-best .369.

Mulder (12-4) didn’t have his best stuff, and he had to labor through innings more often than usual, but was solid for a four-run lead in the first by the A’s offense. The Orioles lost their eighth straight, scoring in the second on Darnell McDonald’s RBI groundout and in the fifth on a double by Melvin Mora. They’re on a season-high 13-game road trip the club’s longest stretch away from home since the 2000 season.

Sidney Ponson (8-13) struggled to limit the A’s lineup for the second straight start, allowing four runs on six hits in seven innings against the A’s lineup for the second straight game. After Matsui’s hit, Enrique Wilson singled off David Riske, but left fielder Alex Gonzalez threw out Matsui with a one-hop throw to the plate.

Tony La Russa said he had to stay on the game for his 17th victory in nine starts. Dampier traded to Mavericks

Associated Press

DALLAS — The Dallas Mavericks got a big man, completing an eight-player deal Tuesday that will bring Erick Dampier from Golden State.

Dallas sent Christian Laettner, Eduardo Najera, two future first-round draft picks and the draft rights to guards Luis Sekularac and Milan and Milan Sekularac to the Warriors for Dampier, Dan Dickau, Evan Eschmeyer and the draft rights to Steve Logan.

The 6-foot-11 Dampier averaged career highs of 12.3 points and 12 rebounds in 74 games last season for the Warriors. He was fourth in the NBA in rebounding, and one of just nine players to average more than 10 points and 10 rebounds a game.

Dampier opted out of his contract with the Warriors in late June and became a free agent after seven seasons with Golden State.

In a release, the Mavericks said Dampier signed a multi-year deal with Golden State before the trade was completed. Contract details weren't immediately available.

Donnie Nelson, the Mavericks president of basketball operations, was in Greece Wednesday, August 25, completing an eight-player deal before the trade was completed on draft day.

"We acquired quality players who can help our team now and several prospects that bode well for our future," said Chris Mullin, the Warriors' new executive vice president of basketball operations.

Najera averaged 4.9 points and 3.9 rebounds a game in his four seasons with the Mavericks, shooting 51 percent from the field. He was limited by two knee problems last season.

Laettner, a 12-year veteran, spent the last three seasons in Washington before being traded back to Dallas on draft night. He has averaged 13.3 points and 6.9 rebounds over 819 career games with Minnesota, Atlanta, Detroit, Dallas and Washington.

Flores was the 55th overall pick by Houston in the June draft, but acquired by Dallas. Sekularac, who has played professionally in Europe since 1996, was the 55th overall pick by Dallas in the 2002 draft.

Dickau was traded from Portland to Golden State last month, and Eschmeyer missed all of last season due to multiple knee operations after going from Dallas to the Warriors in another multiplayer trade last summer. Logan was a second-round pick by the Warriors two years ago.

While Dampier gives the Mavericks a much-needed big man for coach Don Nelson, Golden State achieved some objectives as well with the trade.

"We acquired quality players who can help our team now and several prospects that bode well for our future," said Chris Mullin, the Warriors' new executive vice president of basketball operations.

Carter signs deal to play for Jets

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. - Herman Edwards believes he won’t giving Quincy Carter a second chance would be a crime.

"That’s how the New York Jets’ coach explained the team’s signing Tuesday of the former Dallas starting quarterback who was surprisingly released by the Cowboys three weeks ago.

The fact the Jets were desperate for a backup to Chad Pennington got hurt the way he did last summer. Pennington, entering his fifth NFL season, broke his right wrist a year ago in a preseason game and although the Jets had Vinny Testaverde as a backup, they got off to a slow start and never recovered.

Testaverde, coincidentally, is now in the starter in Dallas, so in essence the teams traded quarter­backs.

“Pennington got hurt the way he did last summer. Vinny Testaverde as a backup, they got off to a slow start and never recovered.

Edwards hopes Carter provides a solid option should Pennington get hurt the way he did last summer. Pennington, entering his fifth NFL season, broke his right wrist a year ago in a preseason game and although the Jets had Vinny Testaverde as a backup, they got off to a slow start and never recovered.

Testaverde, coincidentally, is now in the starter in Dallas, so in essence the teams traded quarter­backs.

“You know, in this game, we learn that surprises, there are a lot of them,” Carter said before donning a No. 17 jersey and throwing a handful of passes in a lengthy practice session. "I know that things happen and you’ve just got to move on."

“But I was shocked.”

Carter was cut Aug. 4 amid reports he failed a drug test and the NFL Players Association has filed a request for arbitration. In the case, Gene Upshaw, the union’s executive director, told The Associated Press on Tuesday that the NFLPA will continue to press the case.

“We have to,” he said. "Adding that part of the grievance involves potential salary loss to Carter."

“You’ll have to ask Dallas why they released me,” Carter said. "All I got was the papers.”

Edwards said the Jets didn’t want to rush into anything with Carter…or any other veteran quarterback, which is why it took so long before they brought in Carter for a tryout. Edwards also defended his backups, second-year pro Brooks Bollinger and CFL refugee Ricky Ray.

In Brief

Colts plan to release two offensive linemen

INDIANAPOLIS — The Indianapolis Colts expected to release offensive linemen Rex Richards and Matt Greble, coach Tony Dungy said Tuesday.

Dungy was uncertain whether the official moves would come Tuesday night or Wednesday.

The first cutdown day is Aug. 31, and the Colts rarely make early moves. Dungy said the releases were “special situations” and that both players met with him because they believed there were opportunities to play elsewhere.

"It seemed like the right time to do it,” Dungy said.

Richards, a 6-foot-4, 315-pound guard, joined the Colts as a free agent for the second straight year. He has been cut both times.

Greble, a 6-2, 298-pound guard from Indiana State, was an undrafted free agent.

New Haven, Conn. — Third-seeded Jennifer Capriati ousted and outlasted Tatiana Golovin on long points Tuesday to advance to the quarterfinals of the Pilot Pen tennis tournament.

Capriati, the defending Pilot Pen champion, defeated Golovin 6-3, 6-2 in about an hour.

Also advancing to the quarterfinals was No. 7 Elena Bovina with a 6-3, 6-2 win over qualifier Maria Marrero.

Capriati used a serve that topped 117 mph and a punishing backhand to overwhelm Golovin, who made mistake after mistake in the match.

In the second set, Golovin had four chances in the fourth game to break Capriati, but failed on key points to keep the ball in the court.

"I know she wasn’t making many errors, and I kind of made the wrong choices sometimes,” Golovin said.

Capriati said it was exactly the kind of opening match she wanted to test her game after a few weeks of rest for a hammering injury.

"I felt good out there. I felt like I was making a lot of good gets, and I was able to go the long points,” Capriati said.

Golovin said she would take the match as a learning experience as she continues her rise through the WTA rankings, from the 300s last year to 300 this week.

In the second match, Bovina faced just one break point in cruising to a win over Marrero.

Bovina was the aggressor throughout, keeping the Spaniard on the move and hitting clean winners off Marrero’s drop shots.

Capriati broke once in the first set to take a 3-2 lead, and served out. She broke twice in the second; the last with a forehand winner down the line to take a 5-2 lead.

Season ends prematurely after loss to Arizona

Wildcats' hurler MeLoan too much for Irish at home

By JOE HETTLER Sports Writer

Two years ago, Notre Dame shocked the college baseball world by beating No. 1 Florida State to advance to the College World Series. After recording the final out, Notre Dame players rushed the field and created a dogpile on the mound.

The same scene happened this year at Frank Eck Stadium. Except a different team did the celebrating.

No. 3 seed Arizona ended Notre Dame's season in the NCAA Regional Tournament with a 7-6 win against the Irish June 6.

"Our kids played hard right until the end," Irish head coach Paul Mainieri said. "If you were in that dugout, it was nothing but optimism, positive talk. We all believed we were going to do it. Sometimes in this business, you don't get over the hump. It's been a great year."

The Irish scored six runs off Arizona starter John MeLoan in eight innings, but couldn't hold off the Wildcats seventh-inning rally. Notre Dame freshman pitcher Dan Kapala walked Trevor Crowe, Jeff Van Houten sacrificed Crowe to second before Jordan Brown singled in the run. MeLoan finished the game after rubbering the 141 pitches and surrendering all his runs via the long ball. First baseman Matt Edwards hit two homers and Steve Andres and Cody Rizzo added their own shots on a windy day.

Arizona closer Koley Kuhlmann finished the game for his second save of the season. "When I saw that the wind was blowing out today, I felt good about the way we swung the bats, but [MeLoan] was really tough," Mainieri said. "He was a competitor, and we had a tough day with him. I'm disappointed for the kids. I'm not disappointed in them."

The Irish threatened in the top of the ninth when freshman Danny Dressman leadoff with a walk. But Dressman was picked off first after slipping in the dirt trying to dive back to the bag. All-Americans Matt Macri and Steve Sollman struck out to end the game.

"They throw an excellent pitcher again, and he had his good stuff. It didn't work out for us that way," Edwards said. "We all thought we could come back and do this. Everybody had confidence and we were ready to go today. We just got beat out there today, and not because of anything that happened earlier this week. We put all that behind us and we were ready to go."

Notre Dame starting pitcher freshman Jeff Samardzija cruised through the first three innings before struggling in the fourth. The Wildcats pushed four in the fourth to take a 4-2 lead. Samardzija went 5 2/3 innings allowing five runs on seven hits and striking out six while walking zero.

Senior Joe Thaman surrendered one run in 2 2/3 of an inning in the sixth before Kapala came on. Notre Dame finished the sea- son 51-12 record and another Big East championship. The 51 wins were the most ever by any Notre Dame baseball team and the team had five players drafted into the Major Leagues.

Kent State 2, Notre Dame 1
Notre Dame lost the opening game against No. 4 seed Kent State June 4 when Golden Flash starting pitcher Andy Sonnastine threw a masterful game in a 2-1 victory. The big righthander went seven innings, allowed one unearned run and struck out seven and walked two. He effectively moved his slider inside and outside the plate to keep the Notre Dame hitters off balance all day.

"The stage was set," Mainieri said. "I guess someone just forgot to tell Kent State not to do what they did today."

Kent State manufactured a one run in the fifth and added another on an RBI double in the eighth. Notre Dame's only run was unearned. The loss put the Irish in the losers bracket in the double elimination format.

Notre Dame 6, University of California-Irvine 5
The Irish stayed alive with a victory over the Anteaters June 5. Right-hander Grant Johnson clowned his way through five innings, allowing four runs (three earned) while striking out four and walking three. Notre Dame's bullpen allowed just one unearned run through the final four innings to close out the game.

"We played well today," Mainieri said. "I saw that the wind was blowing out today, I felt good coming out of the ninth. We put them up against the wall early, scoring one in the first and three more in the third. But Irvine battled back with a three-run fourth before tying the contest in the fifth. Notre Dame took the lead for good in the bottom of the fifth when Craig Cooper hit an RBI sacrifice fly."

Notre Dame 7, Kent State 1
Irish starting pitcher Tom Thamann did not allow a hit to Kent State until the seventh inning, when he allowed one unearned run on a bases loaded walk. The Irish would pull away with a five run seventh and added two more on a two run double by Jeff Samardzija.

In Notre Dame's second game of the day, Thornton was brilliant by throwing for 8 1/3 innings, yielding just three hits and one run while striking out 12 and walking only two. He left the game in the ninth to a loud standing ovation from the crowd.

From the start, this game was much different than the first matchup between these two teams. The Irish scored two in the first and added runs in the third, fifth, sixth and seventh innings. Steve Andres lead the Notre Dame offense by going 3-for-3 with one run scored. The win pushed the Irish into the championship game June 6.

don't want to be blocked and commit errors."

At practice, the two have been honing their skills through scrimmages on opposite sides of the net.

The duo view practice as a time to challenge the other, and to learn from each others' strengths and weaknesses.

"(Brewster) is such a big presence in the front row. We almost take her for granted. You really notice the difference when she's not playing," Loomis said. "Every day I play her in practice, I know I'm playing the best."

Both Brewster and Loomis are quick to credit their teammates for the team's success and seem almost uncomfortable with the praise they garner.

"Our outside hitters do such a great job of setting the block up. It's really a combined effort at the net. Because the setters do such a great job with ball placement, we can do our job," Brewster said.

The combined Irish efforts at the net in conjunction with a solid back row are what Brown believes will put the Irish among the top teams in the country.

She looks to Brewster and Loomis to lead the charge.

"This year, I'm hoping they can dominate at the net, and I think they can," she said. "They both hit and block effectively and their presence at the net will be hard for their opponents to adjust."" keep your linebackers fresh," Simmons said. "We have Mike Goolsby, who is available now. And that gives those other guys a chance to really take a break." Goolsby (6-foot-4, 242 pounds) has experience from the 2002 season but did not play in 2003 due to a collarbone injury.

His return will add depth to what could be one of the strongest positions on the defensive side of the ball.
"It is extremely nice [to have depth at linebacker] and that makes it one of the strengths of our football team," Willingham said. "We're really pleased to have it, and not only just to have it but they have done great things with it."
One of the most vocal linebackers and players on the team, Curry (6-foot-3, 235 pounds) could start at middle linebacker. Curry saw middle linebacker duties last season in the Irish defense's nickel packages.
"It's nice to have experience," Willingham said. "It's nice to have confidence. But if you don't share those things then it really doesn't mean a lot to a team environment. The [linebackers] are sharing. They're leading not only by example but by stepping up and saying the right things at the appropriate times."
While vocal leaders Goolsby, Curry and Hoyte boast the most experience, Mays has the appropriate strength to play in the Irish defense's nickel packages.
"Coming out of two-a-days, you're most sore, you're most hurt," Willingham said. "That's where you're fatigued the most. So we're just coming out of that period. Where we really start to get a build up is probably coming out of this [coming] weekend. Even though that is only one week away from the game, there still is that time before everything seems to be crystallized for you."

favorite teams.

"It feels pretty good to be drafted by a hometown team," said Johnson, who grew up in Burr Ridge, Ill.

Notre Dame coach Paul Mainieri, said Johnson should succeed at the professional level.

"There's no question in my mind Grant will be a Major League pitcher," said Mainieri, who has had 40 players drafted during his 10 years as Irish coach. "He has all the attributes — size, arm strength, quality of pitches. But his best asset is that he's a fierce competitor."

Johnson compiled a 15-5 record and a 2.89 ERA in two seasons at Notre Dame. As a freshman, Johnson helped pitch the Irish to the College World Series. He was named to the Freshman All-American team and the USA National Team.

But Johnson couldn't follow up his success after needing shoulder surgery and missing the entire 2003 season before returning to the team in 2004. Johnson was a first-team Big East selection after going 6-0 with a 1.87 ERA.

Johnson pitched against San Jose State last season.

The 6-foot-6 starter was drafted in June, but delayed signing until August. He said the Cubs promised to get him signed, but were in no rush because Johnson was resting his surgically repaired right shoulder during the summer.

Since Johnson was the Cubs first pick of the draft, they were willing to give him more money than those drafted near him.

Johnson declined to reveal contract terms.

Johnson was one of five Notre Dame players drafted in June. Infielders Matt Macri (Colorado), Steve Sollman (Milwaukee) and Javi Sanchez (Minnesota) and pitcher Chris Niese (Cleveland) have all started their professional careers in various minor league systems across the country.

"All that have signed are playing well," Mainieri said. "I think that reflects very well on the program. It gives them a chance to do well and pursue their dreams."

Irish blank ‘Cats in preseason tilt

By MATT PUGLISI
Sports Writer

While most downplay the importance of exhibition games, head coach Bobby Clark disagrees. (The exhibition games) are huge—they’re all you get to put a team together,” Clark said. “They give you a chance to evaluate, build up team cohesion and just generally start to build the team.”

If Monday night is any indication, the No. 9 Irish are off to a good start.

Behind a pair of goals from forwards Justin McGeeney and Tony Megna and a shut out by Irish blank, the No. 9 Irish are off to a huge— they’re all you get to see Olympic, return unknown

By PAT LEONARD
Associate Sports Editor

Senior linebacker Brandon Hoyte spoke last spring about his will to improve within the defensive scheme. “At the end of last season,” he said, “I couldn’t look at myself in the mirror and say I played to my potential.”

At the end of last season, Hoyte’s numbers did not indicate he needed improvement. He finished second on the team in tackles with 74 total and 48 solo. Still, Hoyte’s attitude reflects the leadership role that the Irish coaches feel flows through this season’s linebacking core.

“All the players on the team are leaders,” linebackers coach, Bob Simms, said, “but [linebacker is] a position from a vocal standpoint of getting guys lined up to play… based on what the defense calls. It’s important for them to be leaders on our defense.” The word “them” describes more than just the normal three linebackers set behind a defensive line.

Seniors Mike Geolby, Derek Curry and Corey Mays will most likely start the season against Butler, with Hoyte (5-foot-11, 231 pounds) sideline with his right arm in a sling.

Coaches have declined to comment on Hoyte’s injury or a timetable for his return. “What you want to do is to see HOYTE/page 28

Johnson drafted by Cubs

Grant Johnson’s fall semester will be like most students’, but his spring will be different. Johnson, the 66th overall pick in the 2004 Major League Baseball draft, signed a contract Aug. 13 to pitch for the Chicago Cubs and will travel to Mesa, Ariz. in the spring to prepare for his first pro season.

The righthander will be passing up his final two years of eligibility with the Irish to play for one of his

Loomis, Brewster dominate middle

By ANN LOUGHERY
Sports Writer

Just for the record, they’re winners—not wishers.

For junior Lauren Brewster and senior Emily Loomis, there are no what-ifs or should-have-beens.

The two middle blockers aren’t ones to talk up their game; their achievements speak volumes.

Coach Debbie Brown said both Brewster and Loomis are two of the leading blockers on the team.

Last year, Brewer’s 1.78 block average earned her the NCAA Blocking title.

An All-American, Brewer's blocking average was a mere .01 off the school record. She led the Irish in kills (331) and was runner-up in service aces (270.26).

Loomis shined as well last season, though she made her contributions as an outside hitter. Brown decided to move the senior to the middle hitter position, describing Loomis as one of the team’s strongest blockers.

Loomis, also an All-American, led the Irish in kills (387.5/3.55) and was second in points (472.5/4.33).

Further, last season, she shagged not two school records — consecutive matches with 10 or more kills and most kills in a match without an error.

“The statistical impact they made on the team last year was huge,” Brown said.

Together, the duo makes for an intimidating tag-team.

“Other teams know they’re good blockers and that’s especially intimidating for oppo- nent hitters,” Brown said.

“The hitters have to try something different because they see VOLLEYBALL/page 27
The Guide to Community Service

Center for Social Concerns

Where Do You Start?
Answers to Frequently Asked Service Questions

Agencies in South Bend depend on Notre Dame students and greatly appreciate their time, energy and enthusiasm. Working with a large number of volunteers, especially groups doing one-time projects, takes a considerable amount of planning and effort on behalf of the agencies. Below are some FAQs about finding a service placement in South Bend.

How do I pick an agency? Decide on an organization that will fit your schedule, your goals, and your interests. Consider a placement that might complement your educational goals. The Center for Social Concerns has a great deal of information to assist you in making your decision, so please stop by the CSC. Once you’ve decided upon an organization, call the volunteer coordinator at the agency. He/she can provide you with contact information so you can set up a time to meet.

How do I plan a project for a large group? If you are planning a project for a large group, be certain there is interest in the project before contacting the agency and committing to a project. Check with the agency to determine if they can support a large group of volunteers for a one-time project. Be as specific as possible in terms of dates, number of volunteers, hopes for the project, etc.

I left a message, but no one has returned my call. Why not? Please keep in mind that many service agencies are understaffed and may not always return phone calls promptly. You may need to call several times, so don’t get discouraged.

Among the many service opportunities for Notre Dame students is an after school tutoring program at the Robinson Community Learning Center. For detailed information on service opportunities in the South Bend area, there is a complete list inside this guide of all the community partner agencies that need student help. Also inside is a comprehensive listing of on-campus service and social actions groups, many of whom work in concert with South Bend community groups.

An Invitation to Serve Your Local Community

The Center for Social Concerns invites you to push the boundaries of your classroom into the neighborhoods of South Bend and beyond. Come and enter into the lives of those who live and study and work there. Indeed, consider the ways that you might begin to be a part of the world’s transformation.

Through the years, thousands of students have taken part in the numerous opportunities offered through the Center for Social Concerns and our many partners. Each student has made an important difference.

Often this service involvement, and the learning that comes through and with it, transforms you. In turn, this transformation allows each of you to be an impressive agent of transformation and/or goodness within others’ lives. This is seen within our community long after your time at Notre Dame, Saint Mary’s and Holy Cross College.

Jesus called love the greatest of all commandments—to love the Lord God with all our hearts and to love our neighbor as ourselves (Mark 12: 28-31). It is not easy but it remains no less our challenge and call. It is the foundation on which we will build the justice we seek and the peace for which we long. Be a part of the transformation we are called to, and be transformed. Give yourself away. One or more of the opportunities on these pages could quite possibly change you forever.

Rooted in the Gospel and Catholic tradition, the Center for Social Concerns of the University of Notre Dame creates formative educational and service experiences in collaboration with diverse partners, calling us to action for a more just and humane world. —Center for Social Concerns Mission Statement

- Make sure that you will receive orientation, training, and supervision.
- Reach an agreement on your schedule and type of service.
- Know if you are working with children or other vulnerable populations, the agency may do a background check.
